It was known that, although a Sioux Indian, her husband was an educated man, a graduate of two colleges, a physician of good standing and under appointment by the Government to an Indian agency; that he was respected by his college associates, morally correct, mentally bright (his class orator at college), and that he inherited a splendid physique, which he had developed by training and athletic sports while a student, and in which he excelled, as he did in almost everything he undertook. And yet, despite a knowledge of all this, many persons feared that Elaine had made a grave mistake when she united herself for life to this scion of an Indian chief; and they sympathized with her accordingly.

From Mrs. Eastman's father and from other trustworthy sources have been traced some of the important events in the three years married life of Elaine Goodale Eastman. It has been found that she has had some trials, a good deal of care and the responsibilities that usually follow matrimony. But she has met them all bravely; she has adapted herself to the environment in which she found herself placed; accepted the situations as they were unfolded to her, philosophically, even enthusiastically; and to-day she finds herself a welcome guest at the homes of the wealthy and cultivated citizens of St. Paul, Minn.; the proud mother of a bright little girl a couple of years old, the wife of a physician with a growing practice in the same city, and a contributor in her leisure moments to the current publications of the country. Although the duties of wife and mother consume much of her time, yet she has been able to indulge her literary tastes by the preparation of poems, prose sketches, etc., and to keep in touch with the social world and with the current literature of the day. She laughingly declares that her marriage has not been a failure.

Soon after their honeymoon Dr. and Mrs. Eastman went to the Pine Ridge agency, where Dr. Eastman held the position of physician. In this far-away place the poetess labored earnestly in behalf of the Indians among whom she had taught before her marriage. During the year and a half that they lived at Pine Ridge their child was born. It was named after Mrs. Eastman's sister Dora, that other poetess whose early songs were given to the world with Elaine's. About a year and a half ago the Eastmans moved to St. Paul.

BOOTH'S LAST LETTER.

It Was Written to His Daughter the Day Before His Sickness.

Mrs. Edwina Booth Grossman, the daughter of Edwin Booth, has written a volume of recollections of her father, which will be published in October. The last letter penned by the great tragedian is as follows:

"THE PLAYERS, NEW YORK.
"Tuesday, 4:30 P. M., April 17, 1893.

"Dear Daughter—I rose very late this morning and brought with me an all-night and permanent headache, which still sways me after a long nap on the sofa till just now. I hope to get rid of it and be soon with you for a while this evening. We will send for coupe; am sorry that I did not send word earlier. Very sorry that your cold is worse, but am glad that you take care of it and have stayed in-doors, for it seems quite cold here.

"If I should not get out, don't worry; I am quite well, except my stupid headache, that will perhaps keep me in the house. Nothing worse. I hope it is better with you, and nothing worse with you all. God bless you! "PAPA."

In referring to it Mrs. Grossman says: "The above is my father's last letter to me; on the following morning he was taken ill (Wednesday, April 18).

"On the previous evening he came to my house, as usual, to dinner, and, although very feeble, he seemed bright, and spoke of his pleasure in still being able to come to us."

Emperor William's Wonder Carriage.

Emperor William, of Germany, has had a carriage built for his personal use when driving at night. It is provided with electric lamps, which contain small accumulators. They are placed on the breast of each horse and on the point of the pole of the carriage, at the sides and at the rear of the vehicle. Thus distributed, they will make the route at night as light as at noonday for a distance of about 50 paces from the equipage, while the vehicle itself, with its occupants, will remain in perfect darkness.

The Ice Water Bath Humbug.

There is a good deal of bosh printed about the stimulating effect of cold baths taken in a cold-room on a cold winter morning. A farm laborer, weighing 190 pounds, and living on cornbeef and cabbage, and possessed of just enough nervous energy to pull on his boots, might be benefited by such treatment, but five city men out of ten would be injured. There is a great deal of affectation in the ice-water bath idea—a desire to be thought vigorous and strong—laudable enough, to be sure, but that isn't the way to get there.

WIVES OF LITERARY MEN.

Their Influence in Helping or Retarding Their Husbands' Efforts.

That a prophet is frequently without honor in his own domain is shown by the fact that very many famous writers have wives who do not even take the trouble to read their husbands' productions. It is said that Mrs. William Dean Howells does not read the novels so freely turned out by "America's novelist," and that, were it not for his daughter Mildred's criticism, he would not discuss his works at home.

Mrs. Rudyard Kipling enjoys her husband's stories immensely. It was these that first made her like him. She is not a very great critic though, and is content to take his books as she finds them after they are written.

Tolstoi, until recently, had no audience in his wife. She did not approve the course he took to antagonize the Russian rulers, and begged him to desist and write the stories at which he is so apt and which pay him so handsomely. After a time, though, she too was converted to the severe style of thinking followed by her husband, and now callers see the couple evenings bending over a plain wooden table, while the Count reads aloud his written pages with the day's ink fresh upon them.

John Stuart Mill had the most appreciative wife a writer ever had. In one of his books he has a dedication inscribed to her, declaring that, but for her "bright, clear light," he could never have penned a line worth reading. To her criticism he attributed all his success.

Rebecca Harding Davis, herself a famous tale writer, is responsible for the career of two others well known in literature. Her son, Richard Harding Davis, thanks her for his literary career, which she encouraged by getting all his first good stories in print, and destroying others that would not add to her son's reputation. This she did until he could "go alone," as one says of a child. Then there is her husband, L. Clarke Davis of Philadelphia, one of the first editors of the country, and one who thanks his wife for her advice on all knotty editorial points and questions of literary judgment.

Mrs. Gladstone is not an intellectual woman, yet her husband says she has "helped" him very materially in his speeches and writings. And she has "assisted" more by what she has not done than by her actual deeds. For one thing—and she herself boasts of this—she has not bothered him when he was getting out a new speech or writing something on the vast number of subjects he has treated in the last sixty years; and she has kept the children quiet, too. Once she had a carriage door slammed upon her hand as she was getting in on her way to hear her husband speak. And she did not tell him until afterward.

Charles Dickens did not have this kind of a wife. When the truth is told, after time has softened its hard outlines, it will be learned how difficult it was for the great novelist to work at home until he and his wife "agreed to disagree" in the way they did. Both are now at rest.

Thackeray had a terrible time with his wife. She neither would listen to his writings, nor allow him to continue to work with his pen. Finally it was discovered that the poor lady was hopelessly insane. And for years the great-hearted man supported her in luxury in a private asylum, while he brought up his bright children the best he could. Mrs. Thackeray died only last spring, having outlived her husband thirty years.

Many living writers have wives that are true helpmates. Among these helping wives are the beautiful Mrs. Eugene Field, Mrs. Robert Louis Stevenson, who herself writes well, and Mrs. Julian Hawthorne. George Parsons Lathrop has an authoress wife; Mr. Peary, writer and explorer, has a wife, who, in Scriptural utterance, "holds up both his hands toward heaven;" Thomas Nelson Page has a wife, who, though not long married to him, is intensely interested in every written word, and Will Carleton has a home and appreciative household second to none other in the world.

The Czarina's Jewels.

Among the Russian crown jewels there are some which the present Czarina must regard with a peculiar interest. During her engagement to the Czarewitch Nicholas he was allowed to give her some very valuable ornaments from the family treasury as a foretaste of the splendors she would be able to assume later on. When his death put an end to the betrothal a delicate intimation was given to the disconsolate fiancee's parents that it would be greatly to her advantage if she returned sundry jewels, almost regarded as heirlooms (to the Czar), and His Majesty forthwith arranged to settle £10,000 a year on the Princess. As she afterwards became the bride of the next Czarewitch and is now Empress of Russia, most of the crown jewelry is at her disposal. The Czarina has also a considerable private stock, entirely her own, as the late Empress divided her diamonds between her successor, the Grand Duchess Vladimir and the Duchess of Coburg, a third to each.

Princess Beatrice Has Fun Incog.

A short time ago Princess Beatrice, escorted by her husband, Prince Henry of Battenberg, took advantage of the quiet now prevailing at Cowes to make a brief trip to the French coast. Their Royal Highnesses preserved the strictest incognito, and were so successful in escaping recognition that not a word about their little excursion has leaked out in the French or English papers. They were taken for American tourists, and in that guise enjoyed themselves immensely at St. Malo and elsewhere, mingling unsuspected with the crowd and entering into the fun of the thing like ordinary mortals. They visited Mt. St. Michel and cheerfully joined in the rush for seats at the table d'hote after watching the culinary operations in the Brobdingnagian kitchens. Princess Beatrice had with some difficulty secured a place, when a young lady opposite said to her: "Would you mind changing with me so that I may sit next to my young man?" The request was of course granted.

Dress Hints.

For novel fancy articles there are being sold beautiful wide Japanese silks in all desirable shades, at very low prices.

Handsome check effects for tailor-made suits are seen. Covert cloths and striped cross-rib weaves will also be popular.

A child's reefer for early fall days is of tan and brown mixed cheviot, trimmed with handsome braid of a rich brown shade.

Pretty bright colored rugs are now in order for September house decorating. Handsome lace curtains have plain centers and daintily designed borders.

AN ORIENTAL VIEW.

LOVE IS RECOMMENDED AS AN AILMENT TO DIE FROM.

The Way They Do In Servia, and Methods of Americans Contrasted to the Disadvantage of the Latter by an Eastern Matron of Twenty-three.

Mme. Hannah K. Korany is only twenty-three year old, was married at sixteen, has no children, and was born in one of the villages of Mount Lebanon. Mrs. Potter Palmer, of Chicago, heard of her through her writings in French publications and invited her to the World's Fair. Mme. Korany responded, and brought with her some laces, embroideries and other exhibits of her countrywomen's handiwork, which were inspected and admired by the thousands who thronged within the gates of that most wonderful of all exhibitions. She became a favorite in the big city by the lake, and long after the Fair was over, she was answering invitations to lecture in the drawing-rooms of Chicago, and to tell how curious America seemed to her, and how languid by comparison seemed the people and the customs of the far-off Orient, and more especially that part of Asia Minor in which her ancestors were born and bred.

MME. HANNAH K. KORANY.

She was candid and almost artless in everything. Speaking of the country generally, she said: "Life in the East is slow and quiet, while here it is fast, oh, so fast and exciting that it almost takes one's breath away. When something is to be done here, you do it, and do it at once. Society in the constrained East is languid and somewhat melancholy, and many parts of my country are made up of men alone. In America society is brilliant, free, animated, and men and women move in its various circles hand in hand. Etiquette in our country rests on a basis of the most conservative tradition and religion, while here your customs are at the mercy of an ever-changing fashion. Looking at this feature of your complex civilization, America is to me a very paradise of freedom, goodness, nobleness, benevolence happiness and comfort. Your government is educating the world in the principles of genuine liberty and the beautiful doctrines of the brotherhood of man. I love America and love your beautiful flag, which is the symbol of peace rather than of war, of justice and not of aggression."

"What do you think of our men?"

"Well," was the cautious reply, "I do not know if I like them sufficiently well to say so, or dislike them to an extent which would make it prudent for me to hold my tongue. I come from a country full of romance in matters concerning the relations of the sexes, where the men are gallant and chivalrous, and are even expected, it disappointed, to die of love, the same as people die of the grip or of diphteria or any other ailment. In Syria divorces are rare, because few marriages turn out unhappily. With us we learn to love each other after marriage; with you, you learn to divorce each other after marriage, and expend all your affection before marriage. You are a great people, but won't you please admit that there are other people who know a little something of what should be done—not perhaps, of how best to make money, you know, but, at least, of how best to be happy?"

ANOTHER ANECDOTE OF LINCOLN.

The Compte De Paris Told an Interesting Story of Him.

Of wide culture and sympathy, the Compte de Paris would talk well on most subjects, from recollections of his own adventures to the latest discovery in science. A story which he used to tell of Lincoln bears repeating. Lincoln used often to come in to the headquarters staff to which the Prince was attached when serving in America, and chat for half an hour, telling anecdotes in his inimitable way. Once, when a war with England seemed imminent, owing to the strained relations existing, some one asked Lincoln for his opinion.

"I remember," replied the President, "when I was a lad, there were two fields behind our house separated by a fence. In each field there was a big bulldog, and these dogs spent the whole day racing up and down, snarling and yelping at each other through that fence. One day they both came at the same moment to a hole in it, big enough to let either of them through. Well, gentlemen, what do you think they did? They just turned tail and scampered away as fast as they could in opposite directions. Now, England and America are like those bulldogs."—The Gentlewoman.

A Lesson in Journalism.

Professor of Journalism—If you were called upon to report a dog fight what would be your governing cosideration?

Class—To increase the sporting circulation without driving away the religious readers.

Professor—How is this to be accomplished?

Class—By deploring the brutality of the exhibition and then describing it.

Professor—What destroys barns?

Class—The fire fiend.

Professor—What did the scene do?

Class—Beggared description.

Professor—That will do for to-day. To-morrow you may prepare yourselves for examination on baffling investigation.—Boston Transcript.

The One Before Him.

She—I will marry you, George, since you wish it so much, but I tell you frankly I can never love you so much as my poor dead husband!

He—I suppose you did love poor John very much.

She—I don't mean John. I mean the one before him.—Judge.

THE LIFE PARTNERSHIP.

The Question of Slaving to the Household and the Children Considered.

The editor of Harper's Bazar writes thus earnestly of a great social topic:

Of the three distinctively natural womanly professions, those of wife, mother, and housewife, that of wife has been comparatively neglected of late years. On the other hand, motherhood and housewifery have attained the dignity of sciences. The periodical literature of to-day teems with special advice and instruction to those holding these professions.

Now it is submitted that women have become mothers and housekeeps altogether too much. Young children must be properly cared for, and homes must be made and kept by women. This undoubtedly's true. But to be a complete mother and housekeeper is not the end and aim of every woman's existence, even though she is married and has children. Many women have thought so, and in carrying out their idea have submerged mind and body, believing such sacrifice laudable and necessary.

But in doing so they have ignored and nearly lost sight of a profession of equal dignity and importance. Nay, of primary and paramount importance and dignity, since the "woman" and the "wife" may exist without either of the other professions, while the others cannot exist without these. And the most perfect specimen of mother and housekeeper is a very weak-minded and miserable specimen unless she has first realized the full completion of womanhood and wifehood.

The first year or two of married life has been heretofore thought sufficient time for a woman to give to husband as companion, comrade, friend—in short, specially to her profession of wife. After that she sinks herself more or less completely, according to her disposition and temperament, into being a mother and housewife. However finely equipped the woman may be mentally and physically for social and intellectual companionship, and for a life in which such powers take prominent part, she appears to regard the sacrifice of the best part of her nature and attainments as inevitable, and for the most part she consents to it with a good grace.

Slowly but surely the husband is relegated to his newspapers, his solitary cigar, then to his club and his special friends, for entertainment and solace. But his home is a marvel of order and neatness, his clothing is in perfect order, and his dinners are marvellously served. What more can the man want? His children are models of health and propriety. His wife is a devoted mother and a suitable housekeeper. What can a man ask more than this?

And the woman? Her evenings she can no longer spend anywhere but in the nursery, for the baby is subject to colic at that time, and sometimes the nurse wants her assistance. The only time she could devote to music is the hour she must superintend Susie's fingering on the piano. Then intellectual exercises are limited to posting Bobby on long division. The day comes when she concludes that a woman with young children cannot spare time to read a newspaper.

It may be asked whether women have a moral right to obliterate their womanhood and neglect the profession of wife for the sake of duties—it is said boldly—often of secondary importance. The subject is a vast one. The results of the mistake which many women have made in treating it are far-reaching. It should press home to the heart of every woman whom God has made a woman, and her own act has made a wife.

Is not the development of the full powers of the woman, is not the careful and complete fulfillment of every part of the profession of wife, of greater importance than devotion to a round of trivial duties which in nine cases out of ten could be better performed by trained hands? The profession of wife has fallen into a state of desuetude—not altogether innocuous.

Too Cynical and Smart.

"Nym Crinkle," who knows a thing or two about the theatre, says that the drift of the latter-day drama is toward cynicism and sermons. He says:

"The up-to-date drama is too cynical and smart.

"Can a play be too smart?

"Can a woman wear too many diamonds? Can a punch have too much Marischino in it? Can a child be precocious? Can a man form an epigram habit? Can a duck swim?

"Do you suppose the American people care particularly for cynicism? If you do you have measured the American people with Sir Lepel Griffin's notebook or Oscar Wilde's monocle.

"No, sir. The American people are more deadly in earnest with life than any other people on earth. They are not sitting in the parquet of existence to sneer at the abiding verities or to clap their hands at the passing hollowness. When they are tired they will laugh at the absurdities or cheer the jovialities, but the moment you begin to jibe the essentials upon which they have built their homes they yawn.

The War of the Ages.

The Chinese fight the Japanese and all the earth is rent, and battle thunders shake the seas that lave the Orient; and in our southern hemisphere the usual revolution fills all the nations with great fear and miserable confusion. And Russia looks with warlike eye upon the Turkish crescent, and France still looks at Germany with glance that's far from pleasant; and in the islands of the sea there's warlike perturbation, and rumors of great waves to shake many a frightened nation.

But these dread rumors move not me, for in my grief alone I bear a heavier misery—a great war of my own. I lead the singing in our church, and all about me rages a war whose equal you may search through all the wars of ages. No war in any land or age can be so fierce and dire as the peculiar war they wage when a row is in the choir.—N. Y. World.

KEEP A STIFF LOWER LIP.

It Is the Tell-tale One, and the Upper Lip Can Take Care of Itself.

"I can't understand," said a young lady, "for the life of me why you men, who see so much and know so much, persist in the phrase, 'Keep a stiff upper lip.' You use it as a sort of picturesque synonym for firmness of purpose and demeanor, but it has no value as such. The upper lip is not the weak member of the two; it is the under lip that wants stiffening. The upper lip is practically expressionless. It usually lies flat on the teeth, it is nearly always covered with a moustache—I refer, of course, to the male upper lip—and in conversation, especially in correctly languid conversation, it does not move at all. Like the Chinese joss, it's a harmless creature and can be safely let alone.

AN EARLY CALL.

He proposed to her in the conservatory after supper; he did not go down on his knees or declare that life would be nothing to him without her, but he told her, simply and earnestly, that she was very dear to him; that he had always loved her, and that as his wife it would be his care to guard her from the world's rude buffetings. "I think I could make you happy," he said. "I am not as clever as some of the men you know, but I love you."

"Yes," she murmured; "I know you love me—you have always been good to me; you must know—you must feel that I appreciate it. It touches me to have you care for me—I wish I could make you understand that I am grateful."

"Grateful! But why should you be? Could I help loving you? Could I know you and not care for you? You are so unlike other women, so free from envy and petty malice. I have watched you with your girl friends—I have seen you do many a kindness that you thought nobody knew anything about. I think it was your goodness that charmed me first."

She looked up—was he really in earnest?

"Don't praise me," she said; "compliments from other men are well enough, but not from you."

"Is it a compliment to tell you what I think? And it seems to me I have said so little. Ah! if you could know what is in my heart—but no doubt," as she made an impatient movement, "you have heard all this before—a twice-told story wearies. What can I say to win you—you who are so used to being loved? To another woman I might speak of my wealth, of all that I could give her, but not to you."

"You think too well of me," she broke in.

"No, Edith—I understand you—and that is why I want you all for mine, to have and to hold, to love and to cherish; say that you like me a little, that you will be my wife."

She leaned toward him, the words that would send him from her, and end forever the friendship that had become a part of her life were trembling on her lips, when he, guessing her intention, perhaps, said hurriedly: "Some one is coming—your german partner, I think. Don't answer me now; later on will do as well."

She breathed freely. It was natural for her to postpone unpleasant things—to put off the evil day as long as possible.

"As you wish; then; will you call to-morrow?"

"Yes, in the morning, at 11." He bowed and withdrew just as her next partner came hurrying up.

"The cotillion is about to begin, Miss Alton," he said, taking Manning's chair, "but I think we have time for a short chat. You don't mind talking to me for a few minutes, do you?"

"Why, no," she answered, for she liked the lad not only for his own sake, but because of his friendship with that other, whose image was never long absent from her mind.

"By the way," he said, as if reading her thoughts, "I got a letter from Agnew to-day. I thought you might care to hear from him; you always seemed such friends."

"Yes," she responded, idly. "How is he?"

"Very well; but growing homesick. Think of it! He has been away six weeks."

"No doubt he is enjoying himself."

"Oh, Carl will always get the best out of life: that's his way, you know."

"Yes, I know." The answer was given so carelessly, with such apparent indifference, that he was about to speak, to tell her the tidings that his letter contained, and which so far some instinct had made him withhold, when his hostess appeared in the doorway.

"Come, you two," she called; "the others are waiting for you."

"Dear Mrs. Danton," said the girl, rising. "Mr. Lane and I are such old friends that we sometimes forget how time flies."

"You young dissembler," laughed the older woman; "you know Herbert Manning was in the conservatory with you."

A sudden blush stained Edith's cheek—she hated herself for it, it was so apt to mislead—but Mrs. Danton seemed in no way surprised.

"There, child; don't look so frightened," she said. "No one wishes you happiness more than I."

"But, Mrs. Danton——"

"Really, Miss Edith," put in Lane, who had been a puzzled and uncomfortable listener, "I don't like to hurry you, but we shall surely be late."

She turned away; after all, what did it matter; by to-morrow the world would know the truth, Manning's face would tell the story of his rejection, and a few hours' misconstruction could harm no one. But late that night, when she stood in her own pretty room, she felt vaguely dissatisfied with herself; she could not put the feeling from her.

"I have not acted honestly," she said aloud. "I should have answered him; it was not kind to put him off, it may lead him to hope, he may have misunderstood me." She was silent a moment, then went on still contritely: "And I do like him. He is the kindest, truest friend, but love——" She arose and crossed the room.

When she came back she carried a photograph, a man's cold, clever face—the face of one who knew the world, and was perhaps not on the best of terms with it.

"But for you," she said, gazing into the unresponsive eyes, "I'd have loved that other man; if you had not shown me so clearly that I was dear to you, I might still care for him, for he loves me dearly; but it is too late now—too late to talk of what might have been." She stooped and laid her lips on the picture's.

II.

The next morning she was idling over her fire, when the maid brought up a bunch of heartsease and a card: "Mr. Manning's compliments, ma'am, and will you see him?"

"Yes; say to him that I will be down in a moment."

When the door closed she lifted the heartsease tenderly; a mute appeal, they seemed to her, from the giver.

"Poor fellow," she thought regretfully. "I should have told him; however, there is no use keeping him waiting, I might as well get through with it at once."

She pinned the heartsease in the lace at her throat, cast a parting glance at the mirror and started down the stairs.

As she reached the lower hall the front door opened and a servant admitted a girl in gray with a bunch of roses thrust into her muff.

"Why, Edith," she said rapidly, "I never thought to find you down so early. If you are going out don't let me keep you."

"I am not going out; come into the sitting room and get warm."

"No, I won't sit down. I only want to see you a moment. I came to ask you to join our house party—there will only be eight of us, the same old crowd we had last year."

"The same crowd? How delightful!"

"The same, and not the same. I won't invite Mr. Agnew now."

"And what has poor Mr. Agnew done?"

"What has he done? Oh, nothing unusual; they all do it sooner or later; but an engaged man is de trop at an affair of this kind. No girl wants him for her partner, and really, one can't blame them."

"An engaged man!" For one horrible moment Edith Alton thought she was about to faint; the next, however, the tables and chairs righted themselves, her visitor's face ceased its grotesque gyrations and she was conscious that she was speaking.

"So! Where did you hear that pleasant bit of news?" she asked, seating herself on the arm of a chair.

"Why, last night; Mr. Lane told me coming home. Strange he never mentioned it to you. I am horribly disappointed. Fancy Charlie Agnew marrying a Boston girl. You remember her—a terrible little creature who visited the Mores. Wealthy, of course—trust Charlie for that—but oh! so plain."

"Beauty is in the eye of the beholder," quoted Edith, lightly. She felt a longing to cry out, to bury her face somewhere instead of which she must smile and look unconcerned and discuss this love affair with the indifference of a mere acquaintance. "If I remember rightly she was a nice little thing."

"Nice? Heavens! Fancy Charlie's coming to that—actually to marrying a 'nice girl! His best enemy couldn't wish him worse luck. He has disappointed me dreadfully. I thought," significantly, "he fancied some one else, somebody nearer home."

"Somebody nearer home?—oh, do you mean myself? How awfully funny! Why we are very good friends, we have always been friends; but I—" a rapid flash of thought; then, with rising color. "I am going to marry another man."

Her visitor's face expressed intense surprise: "Going to be married," she repeated; "I had not heard——"

"No one has heard," said the other with some emotion, "and, by the way, Mr. Manning is waiting for me in the library. I must ask you to excuse me."

"Mr. Manning!"

"Did you not guess? I thought of course you would. Don't speak of it, Janet. I only told you because (slowly) you are such a good friend of mine."

"And I appreciate it accordingly. I wish you every happiness—she laid her hand lightly on Edith's arm—you know that, don't you?"

"Why, yes—you have always wished me well, haven't you?" See how potent your wishes have been! But to return to our first subject, I shall be glad to go with you to Arley. Last year's visit was a dream."

"Then I shall count on you. Come, you will have to let me out; I am not au fait with your latch."

"What a strong wind there is—draw up your wraps. Good-by, and again thank you for thinking of me."

The front door slammed and Edith stood a moment in the hall, gathering courage for what was to come; then she turned and went into the library.

Manning, who was standing at a distant window, came forward at her entrance.

"I am afraid I kept you," she said, giving him a trembling hand, "but I was detained by an 'early call' from a friend."

"An early call," he repeated; "then what do you think of me?"

"Ah; but I told you to come; that is altogether different. I wanted you."

"You wanted me?" he cried eagerly; "my darling, may I interpret that after my own fashion? Do you really care for me a little?"

She could not speak, but for answer she came to him, laying her beautiful head on his breast.

"Love me," she whispered, passionately; "only love me, and you can make of me what you will."

"Do you know," he said to her, about an hour later, "at first you frightened me, but when you didn't say 'No' at once, I began to hope. I knew it wasn't like you to keep me in suspense—you are too true of heart for that."

"Too true," she thought, remorsefully. "Oh, Herbert, Herbert!"

But aloud she said, smiling half sadly into his loving eyes: "To think of your being afraid of me—of poor little me—who am not half worthy of you!"—New Orleans Times-Democrat.

A WOMAN'S CLEVER RETORT.

Lady Blessington Surprises Louis Napoleon.

In a story of Bismarck's life is cited an anecdote coming under his personal knowledge in Paris, which has not been heretofore published. It concerns Louis Napoleon, who, it will be remembered, made his home with Lady Blessington while he was exiled in London.

When Napoleon was elected President of France, Lady Blessington went over to Paris expecting to be received with open arms, and left her name at the Elysee Palace. Many days passed before any notice was taken of her presence, but at last an invitation came to dinner. To her infinite disgust, where she expected to receive an ovation she found herself making one among a small party of men. At the close of the dinner Napoleon, whose greeting was anything but warm, said to her:

"Ah, well, my lady, when do you expect to leave our good city of Paris?"

Lady Blessington was for a moment taken back by this question and the manner in which it was put, but rose equal to the occasion and replied:

"Next Thursday I expect to leave. And you?"

Napoleon turned away dumfounded and never spoke to her again.

A Double Treat in Store.

A gentleman of this city who has three charming and beautiful daughters several years ago corked up a bottle of old whiskey, saying at the time it should not be opened until one of the three married, when the liquor should be drunk to the health of the bride at the wedding feast. The whiskey is now thirteen years old and the girls are still unmarried. What a luscious chance for some thirsty young man!—Owensboro (Ky.) Messenger.

And soon we must prepare
To keep from hitting with an axe

Dr. and Editor Morse Finds Great Curative Qualities in a Simple Remedy.

(From Westfield N. J., Leader, Sept. 5, 1894.)

We believe in being fair, and if we know ourselves we are fair. The fact of the Editor of the Leader being a physician of the old school encourages some people to ask why we kick quacks and quackery. We do hate charlatans the worst way. That's a fact. But every proprietary medicine is n't a quack medicine. In some of them we believe as devoutly as we do in calomel and quinine. There, for example, is Dr. David Kennedy's Favorite Remedy. It has our faith. We know of its therapeutical value because of knowledge of its efficacy. In this laboratory it has fully approved itself as containing just those ingredients which every physician knows the materia medica to indicate for the disorders for which the remedy is prescribed. In clinical experience its further proof has not been wanting, as we have reason to know. We have no hesitancy in saying that we should prescribe the Remedy in any case where it is really indicated.

Dr. David Kennedy's Favorite Remedy has no rival as a blood builder and nerve food. It has met with unparallelled success in the treatment of all diseases of the skin, liver, kidneys and the blood. It restores the disordered liver to a healthy condition, and effectually cures the worst cases of habitual constipation. It has cured cases of Bright's Disease, erysipelas, rheumatism, dyspepsia, gravel, diabetes, bladder and urinary troubles, where all else has failed. It is a certain cure for all the diseases and weaknesses peculiar to females and affords great protection from attacks that originate in the change of life. Dr. Kennedy's Favorite Remedy is for sale by all dealers in medicine at one dollar a bottle or six bottles for five dollars; which brings a treatment within the reach of all.

EVENTS IN NEW YORK.

WHAT PEOPLE OF VARIOUS CLASSES ARE TALK'NG ABOUT.

The Vanderbilt Trouble. Attitude of the Family Toward the W. K. Scandal. As Paul Bourget Sees New York. The War on Tights. Current News.

Mrs. William K. Vanderbilt came from Europe on the Lucania when it broke the westward record to five days seven hours and forty-eight minutes, and forthwith there was a perceptible flutter in society. Nothing agitates society like a scandal, and when it is one affecting the family whose name has been honorably conspicuous for upright and honorable life it has added interest and effect. Just what the outcome of the trouble between Mr. and Mrs. Willie Vanderbilt will be seems uncertain. Some of society's supposed authorities say one thing some another, and all seem to be guessing.

It is reported that Mr. and Mrs. Cornelius Vanderbilt, Mrs. William H. Vanderbilt, George W. Vanderbilt, Miss Vanderbilt and Mrs. Twombly had a meeting at Boston to consider the situation and that the attitude of the family was determined. What this will be is thus described by one who is supposed to know: "The family, as a body, will oppose the divorce with all its power. They will not oppose separation, and, I think, will encourage a separation, but not a divorce. A divorce, with legal proceedings, will bring great volumes of scandal, and this they will avoid for the sake of the children."

Paul Bourget, the clever French writer, gives this description of the outward appearance of New York: "Red houses stretch out indefinitely in files, all alike, with 'guillotine windows' and without shutters; other houses appear with dirty advertisements stuck on them, with bars on the lower floor or with goods of various kinds displayed out in front of them; fruits at reduced prices and vegetables. A gluey mud formed of all kinds of detritus covers the stained earth. Not a tree, not a square inch of grass in front of those houses, but rails on the ground for the tramways, posts for the telegraph wires and what is very like a long and double tunnel erected on pillars of iron. That is the track of the aerial railroad—or "elevated railroad," as they call it. There are four of them running the length of the town, and which carry two hundred millions of passengers during the year. In the short distance during which I follow this road I count six trains passing, three up and three going down town. The entire formidable structure which supports them trembles with the weight and the speed at which they go. What can be the lives of the inhabitants whose windows look out on this constant and wild flight of locomotives and carriages?

In hunting around for curious things a reporter has found the banner block for noise. It is that part of Sixty-fifth street between Columbus and Eighth avenues. By actual count there are 226 pianos in it, and most of them are played upon daily. There are probably not more than a thousand persons living there, so that there is an average of about one piano to four inhabitants. If any city, or any block can beat this, there is more cause for suicide than is generally suspected.

When Cornelius Vanderbilt returned to New York the other day he was asked by some intimate friends, and by one near relative, what truth there was in the statement that his daughter is to marry the young Duke of Marlborough. He replied, and the repetition of his reply indicates that he is not unwilling that the information be generally disseminated, that no such engagement has been entered into.

A lively crusade is being made by some of the ladies of the W. C. T. U. against tights, especially the abnormal and often indecent variety that disfigures the bill boards. In this they have the support of the Sun and of many thousands of citizens who are not prudish, but who know there is no art in the pictures that display in attitudes more or less gross women whose only apparent claim to notice is that they are skirtless.

A young woman and two young men have been sent to Blackwell's Island for three months for jumping into a cab and driving about town without asking permission of the driver. If the knowledge of this sentence is generally diffused, it will have the effect of breaking up a time-honored and frequent exploit of the people who live on the surface life of New York. It has always been held by the callow young enthusiasts about town that nothing winds up an evening with such splendor and completeness as the pastime of stealing a cab, and so thoroughly accustomed are the cabmen of the Tenderloin precinct to this form of pleasantry that they are never unduly excited over such an occurrence. Three months on Blackwell's Island, however, is a penalty which will have the effect of considerably modifying the ardor of the most enthusiastic member of the young element in the Tenderloin district.

Miss Madeline Pollard, of Breckinridge fame, accompanied by a good looking young man, is seen rather often of late in the vicinity of Herald Square. People jostle the pair and cast perhaps a careless glance at them, but not one out of the thousands who meet them know that she is the woman who caused the defeat of the Congressman. The young man is her brother, Dudley, who has been in town with her since she arrived. He is about twenty-five years old.

A stout, decently dressed man walked slowly along Thirty-third street, near Fifth avenue, the other day, stopping a passer-by now and then with the whispered and hurried inquiry, "Would you like to buy an elegant pipe?" At the same moment he would draw from his pocket a large, richly carved and finely colored meerschaum pipe and display it for an instant to the hoped-for purchaser. He looked like a lower middle-class Englishman in distress. Maybe he was, and maybe the explanation of his conduct would be found less creditable. One can't tell.

A Real White House, Now.

The Executive Mansion has emerged from its cream colored disguise and is now the "White House" in reality, through the finishing touches of the corps of painters who have been engaged in giving it a coat of immaculate whiteness. Heretofore the mansion has been painted with a creamy mixture that placed the appearance of the building in conflict with its popular name. To-day it looks fresher, cleaner, and statelier than ever before, and its name fits its color with exactness.

AT A SUPPER IN BOHEMIA.

A Devoted Admirer of a Bohemienne Gets a Cigarette Shock.

At a supper party in Bohemia, a short while ago, a funny thing happened. A beautiful maid came attended by her latest and most attentive cavalier. Now, this beautiful maid is much addicted to that habit which is said to make us think like philosophers—the use of tobacco in its daintiest form, the cigarette. The cavalier is one of those illiberal and uncomfortable young men who hold that all the vices and most of the enjoyments of life are the monopoly of his own sex, and he is particularly bitter in his criticism of women who smoke. The maid had carefully concealed from him the fact that her ruby lips had ever held a cigarette, but on the occasion of this supper party her desire overcame her discretion and she arranged with her hostess and various confidants that when the cigarettes were passed they should all urge her to "try just one," to please them.

The secret had been confided to the mamma of the girl hostess, but unfortunately, the name of the man who was to be thus hoodwinked had not been mentioned. The cavalier in question was seated at the right of the mamma, and that dear lady, finding him a bit difficult in conversation, thought to make it pleasant for him by telling him the whole story, which she did, with little ripples of laughter, adding, "of coure, you know the maid is an inveterate smoker." Meanwhile at the other end of the table the cigarettes were being lighted, and the beautiful maid was protesting that really she "didn't dare," "it would make her sick," etc., finally, with a conciliatory glance toward the swain, yielded, and lighting a Neston, while a light of ineffable satisfaction came into her lovely eyes. The youth became even more difficult to entertain after this, and what happened on the way home, no man knoweth, but now they meet as strangers; and so, alas and alack! another of love's young dreams has ended in smoke.

THE RUSSIAN EMPRESS'S SKILL.

She is One of the Best Women Riders in Russia.

At the time of the manœuvers of the army corps held recently near St. Petersburg, the Empress of Russia proved herself an excellent officer, and held her first official review of the troops under her command. The Empress is considered one of the best women riders in Russia, and the Czar—who is so heavy that few horses can bear him—is particularly proud of his wife's achievements, and loves to see her on her famous charger. Her Majesty never fails to attend the Krassnoye-Selo manœuvers with the Emperor, but the latter never before asked her to review her regiment—the Body Guard Cuirassiers.

At 4 o'clock in the afternoon the soldiers were drawn up in line under the leadership of the Grand-duke Vladmir, the oldest brother of the Czar, when the Empress galloped over the parade ground. She was accompanied by the Grand-duchess, Maria, born Princess of Mecklenberg-Schwerin, and her little daughter; Princess Maria of Greece, and several other women of rank. The Queen of Greece followed them in a carriage, and near by were the Czarewitch, the various Grand-dukes, the Princes of Denmark and the officers of the Chevalier Guards, of whom the Empress is also chief.

Her Majesty first took her stand opposite the centre of the long line to receive the report of the regimental commander. She then rode to one end, and started down the front greeting each company individually. As she flew by them the men, according to the ancient custom—company after company—saluted her with the following words:

"We wish health to Your Imperial Majesty."

After the ceremony was ended the Empress rode to the top of a small hill, or mound, from which she could survey easily the entire field, and commanded the men to begin their manœuvres, leaving the particular orders, however to the acting commander. She followed the evolutions carefully, praised the men when praise was their due, and rode to the front in several attacks, swinging her sword bravely. At the end she ordered the "parade march," and directed the bugler to sound the "step and time" for each company. The Empress then called the officers together for consultation, criticised and praised their actions, and thanked them for doing their duty. That ended the review, and the Empress galloped back to her friends, receiving the praise of the Czar and his relatives for the fine showing of her men.

'Twould Be Different Now.

In W. R. Le Fanu's "Seventy Years of Irish Life," is a reference to the visit of George IV to Ireland in 1821, which was enlivened, as much as a state visit may be, by the following incident:

The King entered Dublin in an open carriage drawn by eight splendid horses and attended by a number of grooms and footmen in magnificent liveries. He was in military uniform, and constantly took off his hat, smiling and bowing to the people, who enthusiastically cheered him. At one point a man close to the carriage stretched out his hand to the king and said,

"Shake hands, your majesty!"

The King shook hands heartily. The man waved his hand and called out;

"Begorra, I'll never wash that hand again!"—Youth's Companion.

Circling the Earth at 70.

Mr. D. O. Mills, millionaire and father-in-law of Whitelaw Reid, editor of the New York Tribune, has undertaken a trip around the world in his seventieth year. Mr. Mills stops first at the Sandwich Islands, going thence to China, Japan and India, reaching Egypt in January. There he will be joined by Mr. and Mrs. Whitelaw Reid, who are to sail for Gibraltar in November, and after a few weeks in the south of Spain and on the north coast of Africa are to make their way to Cairo. The united party has chartered a steamer for the Nile, and will go up to the second cataract. On their return they are to take camels, and, with an Arab escort, cross the desert to Mount Sinai, entering Palestine at the junction of the Jordan with the Dead Sea, and after a months' stay, going out by way of the Sea of Galilee and Damascus. They will probably reach Paris and London by May and be back in New York by June.

REMARKABLE CURES

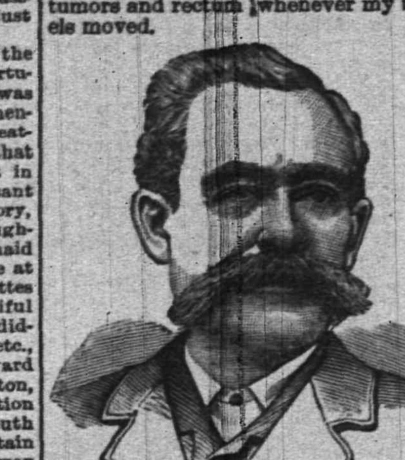
Of Recent Date.

A Statement from Ex-Mayor John Corson, Esq., of Clinton, N. J.

To the Public:

I acknowledge with the utmost pleasure the wonderful cure which Dr. Lighthill effected in my case.

I had been a sufferer from piles, which gave me constant pain and distress, during twenty long years, attended with frequent loss of blood and with great and painful protrusion of the pile tumors and rectum whenever my bowels moved.



I tried constantly to get relief from my sufferings, but to no purpose until Mr. Bryan, a friend of mine, who had been cured by Dr. Lighthill of the same trouble, recommended him to me, and he effected a complete and radical cure in my case also, and earned my lifelong gratitude.

JOHN CORSON.

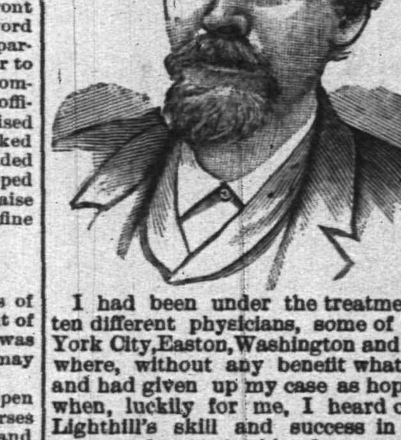
THE CASE OF MR. PETER G. EYCK, OF BISSELL, HUNTERDON CO., N. J.

Dr. Lighthill Effects a Complete Cure Where Ten Physicians Had Failed.

To the Sick, Suffering and Afflicted:

For many years past I have been afflicted with bleeding piles. Every movement of the bowels was attended with loss of blood and with intense pain which lasted for hours and sometimes all day. My condition was aggravated by a prolapse of the rectum, which greatly increased my suffering and sometimes gave me most agonizing pains.

So great was my distress and so bad my condition that I sold my farm, not being able to work it any longer. At one time the protruding pile tumors became so highly inflamed and swollen that they could not be replaced, and I had to go to bed, applying hot poultices for three months before I could get relief.



I had been under the treatment of ten different physicians, some of New York City, Easton, Washington and elsewhere, without any benefit whatever, and had given up my case as hopeless when, luckily for me, I heard of Dr. Lighthill's skill and success in such cases, and went to him for treatment, with the happy result that he effected a radical and permanent cure in less than four weeks's time; and I am glad to say that the entire treatment gave me neither pain nor distress.

I consider my cure perfectly wonderful, and so do all my friends and neighbors. I am confident that there is no case of piles which Dr. Lighthill cannot cure.

Bissell, Hunterdon Co., N. J.

BURNED IN A BARN.

A Crazy Elizabeth Mother's Awful Deed.

DESTROYED HERSELF AND CHILDRN

Their Charred Bodies Were Found After the Fire Had Burned Itself Out.

Elizabeth, Oct. 15.—Mrs. Thomas Harrigan and her three children were burned to death in a barn on Grier avenue, at 11 a. m. today.

It is believed that Mrs. Harrigan set fire to the barn while suffering from temporary insanity, caused by malaria.

Thomas Harrigan, the husband and father, is a vegetable peddler. He started for Newark early today to purchase a load of vegetables and as yet is unaware of the horrible scene that awaits him on his return.

Mrs. Harrigan called at Farmer Mc Candless's for her daily supply of milk this morning and he says that he did not notice anything unusual in her actions.

About 11 Miss Kate Harrigan, her sister-in-law, and Miss Rebecca Hall, who live near by, discovered the barn in flames and gave the alarm.

They then ran towards the house and saw smoke pouring out of the kitchen window. They rushed in and found a large box full of wood burning alongside the chimney, which they tossed into the yard.

Meanwhile other neighbors gathered at the scene, and surprise was expressed as to where Mrs. Harrigan and her children were. Search was made in the house, and the horrible truth began to dawn on the assembled people that they had perished in the flames in the barn.

There was nothing to do but wait until the fire burned itself out, as the place was far removed from hydrants.

It did not take long in the heavy wind blowing for the barn to be entire consumed, and then search was made in the embers for the bodies.

The charred trunks of the mother and children were found lying in a heap in a corner of the barn on the ground.

Women fainted at the frightful spectacle.

The bodies were tenderly lifted up, placed side by side and covered with sheets, and Morgue Keeper Jenson and County Physician O'Reilly notified.

Mrs. Harrigan was a comely woman of thirty years. The children were Walter, age 6; William, age 4; and Isabella, age 14 months.

Had it not been for the discovery of the attempt to burn the dwelling the supposition would have been that the children were playing in the barn and had set fire to it with matches, and that in an endeavor to rescue her little ones the mother had been overcome by the smoke and perished with them.

The opinion of the authorities, however, is that after kindling the fire in the house Mrs. Harrigan deliberately took the children to the barn and ignited it.

So far as can be learned, Mr. and Mrs. Harrigan lived happily together, and he did a fairly good business.

ROBBED THE LANDLORD.

SLEEK STRANGERS RANSACK JACOB BLIMM'S BEDROOM.

They Said They Were Members of a Music Hall Variety Show.

Two strangers came to town last Thursday and put up at Jacob Blimm's Farmers Hotel. One was a slender young man, while the other was older and rather stout. They did not tell what their business was but made it appear that they were connected with the variety companies which played in Music Hall Thursday and Friday nights.

They said they were going to the theatre Thursday evening so their arrival home was awaited until late at night. Friday morning they said they had changed their minds and gone to bed early instead.

The two did not appear at the supper table Friday night, and an hour later it was discovered that the men had entered Mr. Blimm's bedroom while the others were eating. They stole two women's gold watches, valued together at $45, a gold badge and $2.75 in cash. The money was taken a pocketbook which was left on the bureau. Nothing has been seen of the men or the valuables since.

Best Workmen Always Busy.

Marsh, Ayers & Co., the house decorators, are busy with a force of men at E. A. Faber's Rockview avenue house, another at Isaac Miller's, Ninth street and Watchung avenue, decorating interior and exterior. At Mr. Reinhart's Nethervood home they are using some handsome decorations, and at Mrs. J. H. Ackerman's, Seventh street, are finishing the interior in handsome relief. They commenced today at Mr. Runkle's on Eighth street, and are as busy as busy can be.

—The first session of the classes in arithmetic and shorthand will be held in the Y. M. C. A. rooms this evening. All who desire any information about these or other classes are invited to be present.

RAILROAD ROBBED.

JUNKMAN IN TROUBLE AND EMPLOYES UNDER INVESTIGATION.

Again Illicit Buying Causes Hollenbeck's Arrest.

Frank Hollenbeck, who has a junk-shop at 847 North avenue, is again in trouble because of his methods of obtaining old metal. Last Winter he was fined $100 for buying lead pipe from boys who had been induced to steal by Hollenbeck's eagerness to obtain the lead at a nominal price. Now Hollenbeck is accused of buying stolen property from railroad men.

Detective Corse secured a search warrant from Justice Newcorn Friday night and went to the junk-dealer's place. He found the metal as the man who gave the matter away had told him. Hollenbeck was arrested and brought before Justice Newcorn who held him in $500 bail to await the action of the Grand Jury. John Wolfe became his bondsman.

The metal was carted away from Hollenbeck's this morning. It consists of 8,900 pounds of the copper and zinc which the railroad provides for the block signal batteries. It is worth about $300. Nearly 900 pounds of the zinc is composed of entirely new pieces which had been broken up with hammers. According to the rules of the company old metal should be carried from one station to another until a certain quantity is accumulated when it is shipped to Jersey City by freight.

Hollenbeck admits that he has been buying the metal for three years. It is well understood that the railroad never sells through the signal men or in small lots. At the hearing he identified two signal men as being among those with whom he had had dealings. A general investigation is to be made among the employes all along the road.

FATAL SURGERY SHOCK.

Singular Death of A. B. Starrett Under a Doctor's Hands.

Arthur B. Starrett, 26 years old, of 125 Forrest street, Jersey City, died suddenly Friday morning just as he was about to undergo a surgical operation. Accompanied by his friend Louis R. Wright, a druggist at 132 Jackson avenue, and son of ex-watchman Ben Wright of this city, he went to Dr. Everitt's office, 209 Bergen avenue, where the operation was to be performed. The young man seemed strong and cheerful. Dr. Everitt prepared a weak solution of cocaine, about four per cent. Druggist Wright says, and applied it. Starrett told him to go on with the operation, and the doctor began to probe with a needle to ascertain the location of the tumor that had to be cut out. At the first prod of the needle the patient collapsed and went off in a faint. Then he seemed to be seized with something like a congestive chill, and in a few moments he was dead.

Dr. Forman and Dr. Bogardus, who live near by, were hastily summoned. An electric battery was applied to Starrett and other means used to restore animation, but without avail. The doctors say the young man died of nervous prostration. Mr. Wright went back to the house and broke the news as gently as possible to Starrett's widowed mother. Starrett was a popular member of the Jersey City Club. He was the New York correspondent of the Illinois Steel Company, and had an office at 46 Wall street

Lightning Haircut.

William Laing, carpenter, of 257 East Third street, had a hair-breadth escape from a serious accident a few days ago. A brother carpenter was working above him with a sharp two-inch chisel, when it dropped from his hand and struck Laing a glancing blow on the head, cutting a gash four inches long in his hat, and shaving the hair neatly from the scalp.

THE SIN OF CYCLING.

How the Wheel Is Growing in Disrepute.

TIME TO REMEDY THE EVIL.

Nature's Best Exercise Should Be Redeemed from the Taint of Sabbath Abuse—Keep Moving or Get Off, Is the Rule of Religion as Well as of Wheeling.

From learning to ride during his pastorate in Plainfield, Rev. Dr. Charles B. Mitchell has become an enthusiastic cycler, and he gave the young men of Kansas City, Sunday before last, the fruits of his experience and observation on the wheel. Dr. Mitchell's present pastorate is the Grand Avenue M. E., Kansas City, Mo. He rarely rides out for the mere pleasure of the ride, not having time amid the many duties of his parish, which is the largest Protestant parish in the West, having over eleven hundred communicants. His address on cycling was to a large body of young men in the Y. M. C. A. Auditorium.

The spirit of good fellowship among wheelmen was first remarked by Dr. Mitchell. "Only the other day,"—said he—"as I was bowling along, my hair, somewhat long, streaming out behind, one of our brilliant Kansas City youths yelled after me, 'Go it! old Paderewski!' That illustrates what I mean when I say that the public generally feels that a man on a wheel must be a good fellow.

"There is no exercise comparable with that of bicycle riding. What can be more charming than a ride on a good wheel with good company over a good road in early Autumn? One of the most golden days of my life I spent on an October day in 1892 with my dear North Plainfield friend, Dr. H. K. Carroll, of the New York Independent, on a trip from Plainfield to Morristown, and return.

"But above the advantages of exercise and pleasure, I place the real utility of the wheel. It is not simply a temporary fad which must soon pass away. The wheel has come to stay. It is intensely practical. It must become more and more the most universally used means of getting about. It is entirely too useful to be cast aside In my own case, I will say that it would be impossible for me to do the pastoral work of my very large parish without its aid. My predecessors have felt the necessity of an assistant pastor. My wheel is my assistant. I verily believe that one pastor on a wheel is worth more than two on foot."

Dr. Mitchell was frank to see the abuse of the wheel. He condemned "scorching", held that no boy under 20 should be permitted to pose as a racer, and said that the foundation for much constitutional weakness and disease was being laid through riding too fast and the manner of sitting in saddle.

"Why"—he asked—"do our boys, and many of our young men, emulate the horse jockey instead of the gentleman? Why must we who ride a wheel appear as though we were crack racers and were out for a race and its rewards, instead of gentlemen out for pleasure or convenience? The whole business of the bicycle, I fear, is in the direction of the race-track instead of the road. The construction of the newest wheel is based on the idea of the greatest speed. I plead for the respectability of the bicycle. Every gentleman who drives his own horse and buggy is not striving to be a jockey. Why should every wheelman, by his dress, by the height of his handle-bar, and his whole appearance, seem at least to be emulating some crack racing sport? I protest against the increasing tendency to make this, the most respectable of all exercises and pleasures, the mere agency for race-track gambling. I fear it will soon be as disreputable to be seen at a bicycle meet as at a horse race.

"I shall here speak of another abuse of the wheel which is an increasing one. I refer to the manner in which the wheel is being employed as a Sabbath desecrating institution. In my humble judgment there is no more moral wrong in riding a wheel on Sunday than in walking. I can see less of the spirit of desecration in riding a wheel than in riding in a buggy or on the street cars. Wheel riding is only more rapid walking. Yet in the face of the above declaration I repeat the statement that the wheel is becoming a great Sabbath-breaking institution. Men, and women, too, spend the sacred hours of that day in riding for mere pleasurable sport, when the time ought to be otherwise employed. There is no harm in strolling through the country, communing with Nature on God's day. That is true; but if we spend the day thus and absent ourselves from God's house, and do not employ our time in ways which will build us up in righteousness, we are not properly keeping the day. If we should spend the day in walking it would be the same. The trouble is here: Bicycle riding is put first. The day, which should be spent in God's service, keeping it holy, is spent simply like an ordinary holiday. Not the act so much, but the spirit in which the act is done, constitutes the desecration. Many of our young men, who spend the whole Sabbath on some pleasure excursion on their wheels, never darken the door of a church on Sunday. The public highways, near all our large cities, are fairly alive with Sabbath-breaking bicyclers. The day is used by them for sport and not for worship. They might be more wickedly employed, yet they are not using the day as God has ordered. I can find no apology for the way in which many wheelmen employ the hours of God's sacred day. Nothing brings bicycle riding into such disrepute in the estimation of good people as the growing use of the wheel as a mere pleasure on the Lord's day."

Profitable and practical lessons were drawn from the use of the wheel. The clergyman compared cycling to Christian living—hard to learn, with many a tumble; but, when learned, found to be so glorious we love it. A Christian like a wheelman must keep his eyes open, be on the guard. Coasting was delightful, but it never developed muscle, and if we would grow we must be willing to push and climb. Keep going, or get off, was the rule of religion as of cycling.

"No man"—concluded Dr. Mitchell—"ever rides a wheel who does not first learn how. No man will ever gain the rewards and delights of a Christian life who fails to make the start and give himself to Christ. Every man here wants to be saved some time. Why not will to be saved today? You must begin some time; why not now? It is God's time—is it yours? Oh, the folly of the man who wants to ride and has n't the nerve to learn. Far greater the folly of him who knows what Christ will save him from, and save him to, and who really wants to take Him as Saviour, and yet delays and fears and will not decide for his own soul's eternal interest. God help you to start right now!"

MYTHICAL MILLIONS.

JOSEPH PIKE PREPARED TO DISPEL HUFF'S ILLUSION.

Says the Fake Cost Him $500—A Plainfield Widow Also a Victim.

Joseph Pike today took steps to show to the world through the medium of the New York papers that the alleged million-dollar inheritance of John T. Huff, so often and so slightingly referred to in these columns, is a delusion and a snare. Mr. Pike says the story snared him out of $500, advanced to Huff on the strength of the story. And Mr. Pike says there are others.

Huff was a nurse in the Pike family five years, so the Pikes ought to know much about him. Mr. Pike says they do, and he is preparing a story completely exposing the fake.

Lawyers who have investigated assure Mr. Pike that no such death occurred and no such inheritance was bequeathed, as told by Huff. Yet on the strength of Huff's story, says Mr. Pike, several Plainfield people have kept him in funds, and a First Ward widow has promised to marry him

Mrs. Neighbor, who has been published by the New York Herald as having been fleeced by Huff, denies that she is among the victims who advanced him money.

REGULATING FEMININE LIFE.

Plainfield's Up-to-Date Women Here Have an Opportunity.

[Contributed.]

Stand up straight, girls,
Stand up straight,
We lean-over maidens
Are n't up to date.

And I earnestly wish all the dear girls and women of Plainfield had availed themselves of the opportunity afforded them on the afternoon of Oct. 9 of seeing Miss Grace Fogler, a girl of fine physical and mental development, gracefully demonstrate the artistic Swedish gymnastics at the lecture on Health Culture given by Miss E. Marguerite Lindley and Mrs. Etta Morse Hudder in the hall of the Y. M. C. A. Charts and manikin were used in illustration of Miss Lindley's talk on the body and its functions.

Mrs. Hudder gave only an outline of her work on posture and the training of children. The treatment of that most potent factor, either too much or too little of which disturbs the mind feminine of many an household—Fat, a word of three letters only, yet, like the more powerful one of two, (If), the fate, happiness, or misery of a life have been known to turn. How to regulate our diet and by exercise, properly adjusted to our individual needs, the up-to-date woman will be able to preserve the symmetrical lines of beauty in form, walk and posture.

All these topics will be intelligently discussed in the class work now offered us. A course of lectures will also be given on "First Aid to the Injured" or, as it is sometimes called, Red Cross work. In this class practical instruction will be given in bandaging wounds and sprains, the treatment of shocks, suspended animation in cases of suffocation or drowning. The aim of this instruction is to save life and suffering while waiting for a physician to arrive. Special attention given to medical gymnastics and children's classes.

The next meeting will be held in the Y. M. C. A. rooms Wednesday afternoon at 3

BEWARE IMPOSTORS.

The Only Safe Way to Bestow Charity, Is Through the Citizens Organized Aid.

The charitably inclined people of Plainfield are asked to be on their guard against impostors.

Last year a young woman worked upon the sympathy of many good people soliciting aid for a family in dire distress, which aid the family never received. Later, this solicitor tried to get funds for the Children's Home. Just at present Seventh street residents are aroused over the reappearance of this young woman with an application for help from a family living on East Fourth street. So bold has this woman grown that she refers to the Citizens Organized Aid Association, and even represents that the agent of this organization has sent her for funds.

A simple statement of this fact will put people upon their guard and will re-enforce one of the fundamental principles of the C. O. A. A., that there should be no giving at the door to any cause whatever, until full investigation has been made. If persons appealed to for any such cases would kindly send the applicant to the office of the C. O. A. A. on a householders ticket, instead of giving money or clothing to, perhaps, an unworthy applicant, the case would be carefully looked into and no one duped.

The Teeples' Troubles.

John Teeple of Plainfield rode to Elizabeth by cycle yesterday. Coming home, his wheel gave out, and he had to walk from Metuchen.

Today his father, driving his wagon in the lane by Frenh's Mills, broke through the foundation and smashed a section of the water pipe from the race The race had to be emptied so the pipe could be repaired.

MICE NIBBLE MATCHES.

That's the Theory of the Buckelew Fire.

THE HOUSE WAS UNOCCUPIED.

Blaze Started In a Set of Pantry Drawers, and Quickly Spread—Firemen Knocked About by Torrents from the Hose.

The fire in the house of Chas. H. Buckelew, 117 West Fifth street, Saturday evening, was peculiar. The house had been vacant a long time. No traces of incendiarism could be found. The regulation mice-and-matches combination is all the firemen have to offer in explanation of the cause. The fire served to show how easy it is for flames to gain headway in the ordinary frame dwelling.

Neighbors noticed smoke coming from the windows shortly after 7. The alarm was sent to Mr. Buckelew, who lives across the street at 126. He went across with his son Will and entered the house. The fire was in the centre of the house between two closets, and Mr. Buckelew opened the door of one of them and started to put the fire out with water brought in buckets.

The smoke began to fill the street then, and Sexton John Neagle ran down Park avenue to Assistant Engineer Martin's store and told him of the fire. It was 7:45 when the alarm was sounded from Box 13.

The firemen stretched four lines of hose and entered the house from both front and rear. The smoke was dense until all the windows were broken out. The building was flooded and the plastering and wood-work cut away to get at the flames. One length of hose burst. The water was cut off from two lines then, and when it was turned on again it found the nozzle open. E. E. Anthony was caught by one of the streams and knocked through a window to the veranda roof. Charles Burnet was knocked down Neither was injured. The recall was sounded in half an hour.

The house was damaged perhaps $400. Some of the plastering was loosened by the water, the fire left a charred channel through the centre and the windows were broken out.

The fire started in a set of drawers in the pantry which adjoins a closet opening into the dining-room. There was no rubbish in the place and the doors were fastened as usual when Mr. Buckelew went in. He has been accustomed to go through the house several times a week. From the closets the flames found a flue between partitions which had not been blocked up and across empty spaces above the closets.

The dwelling contains nine rooms. It was built 25 years ago and was worth $3,000. Mrs. Mansen, who moved a year ago, was the last occupant. The house was insured for $2,500 in the Home Fire Insurance Company, through J. C. Pope & Co.

TWO FIRES IN ONE HOUSE.

A Chimney Flue in the Morning, a Lace Curtain at Night.

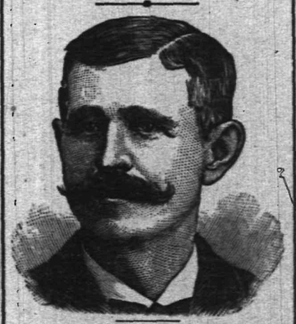
Fire twice alarmed the family of ex-Freeholder Vanderbeek at their home, 820 Second place, yesterday. The first was early in the morning when the furnace fire was started. An obstruction in the flue sent the smoke pouring out the windows and it appeared at first as if the whole building was on fire

At 9:30 in the evening Mr. Vanderbeek opened the windows in a room on the second story and went downstairs to fasten up the house. While he was doing this a lace curtain blew against a gas flame. The curtains in the window had burned away and the flames were spreading across the carpet when Mr. Vanderbeek went upstairs and found what was going on. The flames were easily extinguished. The loss is covered by insurance.

The Borough's Five Votes.

The North Plainfield Republican primary for the election of delegates to the county convention next Wednesday was held in the school-house Saturday night.

H. N. Spencer called the meeting to order and was chosen chairman. William A. Schutt acted as secretary. The delegates elected were Charles Place, A. V. D. Honeyman, Charles P. Sebring, J. W. VanHorne and H. N. Spencer.



A STRANGE CASE.

How an Enemy was Foiled.

The following graphic statement will be read with intense interest: "I cannot describe the numb, creepy sensation that existed in my arms, hands and legs. I had to rub and beat those parts until they were sore, to overcome in a measure the dead feeling that had taken possession of them. In addition, I had a strange weakness in my back and around my waist, together with an indescribable 'gone' feeling in my stomach. Physicians said it was creeping paralysis, from which, according to their universal conclusion, there is no relief. Once it fastens upon a person, they say, it continues its insidious progress until it reaches a vital point and the sufferer dies. Such was my prospect. I had been doctoring a year and a half steadily, but with no particular benefit, when I saw an advertisement of Dr Miles' Restorative Nervine, procured a bottle and began using it. Marvelous as it may seem, but a few days had passed, before every bit of that creepy feeling had left me, and there has not been even the slightest indication of its return. I now feel as well as I ever did, and have gained ten pounds in weight, though I had run down from 170 to 127. Four others have used Dr. Miles' Restorative Nervine on my recommendation, and it has been as satisfactory in their cases as in mine."—James Kane, La Rue, O.

OLD WHALING DAYS.

Most of New Bedford's Great Wealth Came From Bones and Blubber.

Down at New Bedford the other day I was much interested in a lot of old whalers like what we had at the Exposition, which are there tied up to the docks to decay. The whaling industry was the source of great riches to that city until about 1865 or 1866, when the discovery of petroleum destroyed the demand for fish oil, and the long rows of fine old Colonial mansions down the shaded streets still furnish evidence of many profitable voyages. The whale money that was laid away still furnishes large incomes to the heirs of hardy old sea dogs and the descendants of those who provided their outfits and shared the results of their perilous cruises in the arctic seas.

New Bedford is said to be the wealthiest city of its size in the United States, and most of its capital, which is estimated at $100,000,000 came from blubber and bones of whales. The business began as early as 1775, and reached its height in 1860, when there were nearly six hundred vessels going out from that port, with more than 10,000 sailors and representing an investment of more than $12,000,000. The catch that year was worth about $7,000,000 for then oil sold for $2.75 a gallon and whalebone for $6 a pound. But now the whale in the northern Atlantic are almost exterminated, and the places where it is worth while to hunt them are down around the antarctic circle and among the seal islands of the North Pacific.

Many old whalers have been turned into sealers and now sail from San Francisco and Portland instead of New Bedford. Now there are only thirty-five ships from this port engaged in this trade, and less than nine hundred men. With the competition of petroleum, oil is worth only 67 1-2 cents a gallon, and whalebone has been largely replaced as most of you know, by metallic appliances that make the form divine diviner still.

The most valuable catch ever made by a whaleship was that of the Onward, Capt. Allen, which arrived in New Bedford after a forty-one months' cruise with a cargo worth over $575,000, of which the captain's share was $33,000. The total value of the whole product of the whales brought into New Bedford during the 52 years for which a record has been kept is more than $145,000,000.

NOVELISTS' FAVORITE NOVELS.

The Works of Fiction That Best Please Noted Writers of It.

There are no people such omnivorous readers of novels as novel writers. They usually begin to read so early that they have formed the habit long before they begin to look upon every novel as a possible text book. A novelist never sees a successful book with other than respectful eyes. He may not call it literature, and he may not believe in it, but he considers it.

When we can hear a novelist tell what he most enjoys reading, we hear more about his own habits and tastes and aims than all the interviewers will ever tell us—more than his own books will tell us. Walter Besant considers "Lorna Doone" the best novel by a living writer. Dr. Conan Doyle gives the palm to "The Cloister and the Hearth," and after that to "Ivanhoe" and "Esmond." Of the modern books he likes best "A Window in Thrums" and "An African Farm." Of his own books Dr. Doyle prefers "The White Company." He says that he spent one year studying the middle ages before he wrote it, and tore the heart out of a hundred and sixteen books for his material. Froissart and Chaucer were his chief sources of information.

It seems rather peculiar that Archibald Clavering Gunter's favorite novels are the "Lorna Doone" and "Cloister and the Hearth" of Besant and Doyle's love. Stevenson runs from Sir Walter Scott to Henry James. When Colonel Richard Henry Savage was approached and asked what he liked to read, he paid great honor to his memory, and ran off the names of all the writers known to fame since the days of the New Testament. He said that "to the great men and women of the pen I owe my highest hours of soul communion and inspiration."

David Christie Murray also calls out "The Cloister and the Hearth" as his favorite novel.—Munsey's Magazine.

The British Museum Cat.

One of the best known and most popular domestic pets in London is the British Museum cat. It is just about twelve months ago since the animal, which had apparently strayed from somewhere, attached himself to the porter's quarters facing Great Russell street. Being a huge gray, beautifully marked cat, he was encouraged to remain, instead of being unceremoniously driven off, as assuredly would have been his fate had he been possessed of fewer personal attractions. From the first the animal has been a favorite with the attendants and the general public; now he constitutes one of the attractions of the great establishment, and is eagerly sought for by occasional visitors, both adult and juvenile.

Lately the cat has considerably extended the sphere of his rambles. He occasionally invades the reading-room, where he receives the attention of a stroking from even the most reserved and studious habitues. At nights the animal parades the galleries, and by an odd fancy seems to prefer the Egyptian Room, where so many embalmed sanctified specimens of his tribe are exhibited.—London Chronicle.

Thought His Wife Served Him Right.

Louis Stirs of 204 Ellery street, Brooklyn, entered the Vernon avenue police station early the other morning with a deep cut in the head, from which the blood was flowing freely. He said his wife had hit him for coming home late. When Stirs was advised to get a warrant against his wife, he said:

"I guess she had good reason for acting as she did. Coming in at 8 o'clock in the morning is enough to make any woman mad. Guess I'll go back and forgive her for opening my head, and ask her to forgive me for getting in late. That's fair." —N.Y. Sun.

His Dark Past Revealed.

Midnight.

The Countess Gesundheimer, nee Porkingham, was listening intently.

The Count was talking in his sleep.

True, when she had exchanged her millions for his title she had waived all thoughts of his past, but with a woman's natural curiosity she wished to know for the sake of knowing.

Breathlessly she hearkened. From the finely chiselled lips of her aristocratic spouse came the words:

"Gollar puttons, two for five. Nice iron ine gollar puttons, two for five."—Indianapolis Journal.

A BEAR IN HIS BEDROOM.

The Judge Was Badly Frightened and Lost His Bet.

Some time ago A. S. Judge, general superintendent of the Old Iron pier at West Brighton, Coney Island, made a bet with Harry Sturdevant of the Old Iron pier bathing pavilion, that he would not be frightened at meeting any kind of an animal, at any hour of the night, on any part of the dark pier.

Mr. Judge had retired for the night to his suite of rooms over the pier, when several of his friends determined to put his courage to the test.

Sturdevant procured a performing bear and turned it loose in Mr. Judge's bedroom at one o'clock in the morning. The room was dark, and the animal immediately walked over to the bed where Judge was sleeping and began to paw at the clothes.

Mr. Judge sprang out of bed and struck a match, and then, without waiting to don any clothing, rushed down stairs clad only in his pajamas.

After parading the long pier for more than an hour, trying to keep warm, his friends appeared upon the scene. It was some time before they could make him see the point of the joke, and it was with difficulty the bear was persuaded to leave Mr. Judge's bed, where he was found sleeping soundly.

Mr. Judge says he will swear off making bets.

A Mysterious Projectile.

The so-called magnetic shell, which has been used at the trials of English armor plates at Okhta, near St. Petersburg, Russia, has made an extraordinary record. The shell was fired at soft St. Chamond plate at right angles, and the penetration was 10 1-2 inches; another shell penetrated 16 inches. One shell was discharged at a six inch Harveyized plate at an angle of 20 degrees; the projectile passed through the plate and packing and fell about 400 yards beyond, a performance which filled the scientific experts present with amazement.

Further trials will be made, but for the present no plates of the requisite strength are forthcoming, those already used, which were manufactured specially for the purposes of the trial, being so shattered as to be useless for future tests. The general impression among military experts is that the magnetic shell is not a new shell at all, but simply a new invention adapted to any modern projectile.

One of the shells that had undergone the secret process was exhibited. Although it had passed through one of the armor plates, it was in an undamaged condition, and, as it showed no traces of fastening whereby the new invention could be attached to it, the spectators concluded that the improvement must be a cap of softer metal held on the top of the shell by magnetism. This nurses the hard point of the shell at its impact, and so helps it to penetrate the surface of the plate until it reaches the softer metal behind. This, at all events, is one of the guesses at the principle of the novel projectile.—Pittsburg Dispatch.

Seven Years Without a Birthday.

A Scottish clergyman, who died thirty years ago, Mr. Leishman of Kinross, used to tell that he once lived seven years without a birthday. The statement puzzled most who heard it. They could see that if he had been born on the 29th of February he would have no birthday except in a leap year. But leap year comes once in four years, and this accounts for a gap of three years only. The first thought would therefore, naturally be that the old man who, in fact, was fond of a harmless jest, was somehow jesting about the seven. There was, however, no joke or trick in his assertion.

At the present time there can be very few, if there are any, who have this tale to tell of themselves, for one who can tell it must have been born on the 29th day of February at least 98 years ago. But a similar line of missing dates is now soon to return.

The solution of the puzzle is to be found in the fact, which does not appear to be widely known, that the year 1800 was not a leap year, and 1900 will not be. The February of 1892 had 29 days, but in all the seven years intervening between 1896 and 1904, as well as in the three between 1892 and 1896, that month will have only 28.

Mostly a Native.

"Are you a native of this parish?" asked a Scotch sheriff of a witness who was summoned to testify in a case of illicit distilling.

"Maistly, yer Honor," was the reply.

"I mean were you born in the parish?"

"Na. I wasna born in this parish, but I'm maist a native for a' that."

"You came here when you were a child, I suppose you mean?" said the Sheriff.

"No, sir; I'm here about sax year noo."

"Then how do you come to be nearly a native of the parish?"

"Weel, ye see, when I came here sax year sin' I jist weighed eight stane an' I'm seventeen stane noo; sae ye see that about nine stane o' me belongs to this parish, an' the ither eight comes from Camlockie."—Glasgow Herald.

How to Be a Tenor.

A foreign scientific journal publishes the results of some recent experiments upon the vocal chords, which are likely to prove interesting to aspirants to lyric honors. In the case of a baritone who was not content to be a baritone, but sighed for the higher emoluments of a tenor, a course of inhalations, beginning with benzoin, going on to caffeine and chloroform and concluding with curacoa, proved successful. The transformation was pronounced to be complete.

Testing a Clucker's Age.

"I say, Jenkins, can you tell a young chicken from an old one?"

"Of course I can."

"Well, how?"

"By the teeth."

"Chickens don't have teeth."

"No, but I have.

JUST KEEP COOL.

Never mind how times may go,
 Just keep cool!
If you can't get in the show,
Turn a somersault or so—
Have a circus 'fore they know—
 Just keep cool!

Never mind when money's tight,
 Just keep cool!
When you're toiling day and night,
And there ain't a dime in sight,
Shake your keys from left to right—
 Just keep cool!

Never mind a single thing,
 Just keep cool!
All the birds are on the wing,
Some day all the bells will ring,
If you sigh, you cannot sing—
 Just keep cool!

THE SQUIRREL AND THE FENCE.

A little red squirrel lived under a fence—
 An old rail-fence at the edge of a wood;
He took a deep interest in current events,
 And sat on the top-rail and learned all he could.

The farmer was wide-awake, likewise, and so
 One day in the papers, he read of barbed wire,
And said to himself, "That old rail-fence must go;
 I'll have it chopped up into sticks for the fire."

The little red squirrel has moved to the wood;
 At being a hermit he makes great pretences.
He wouldn't learn current events, if he could.
 He's down on newspapers and barbed-wire fences.

THROWING THE BOOMERANG.

The Weapon Was Known in the Ancient Days of Strabo.

Where is the boy who has not read, or at least heard, of the far-famed Australian boomerang? And where is the boy who has not longed to know more about it, to see one, and, perchance, joy of all joys, to throw one?

This weapon is used by the natives of India and Africa, but only the Australian boomerang possesses the peculiar property of returning to the thrower.

When an Australian throws a boomerang he seizes one end, which is usually made rough in order to afford a better grip, and holds it backward in such a manner that the concave side of the weapon turns forward, somewhat as one holds a sickle.

Grasping it firmly, he runs a couple of paces forward, and then throws it in a straight line before him. It is all important that the weapon is held firmly until suddenly let loose.

The moment it leaves his hand it turns into a horizontal position and starts off buzzing like a spinning wheel.

Now, then, the boomerang, instead of falling, so long as the forward motion imparted by the thrower continues, will rise. When the impetus ceases the boomerang will begin to fall.

But, instead of falling straight down, its course will be the line of least resistance, which is in the direction of the edge that lies obliquely toward the thrower, so that it returns on the same plane by which it ascended.

Rochester's Fire Dog.

Rover is the name of a white and black spaniel that for the past month has followed Truck 1 of Front street to all fires where the service of the company was needed. Truck 1 only responds to calls in the sections of the city where there are high buildings, but there have been a sufficient number of calls to break Rover into his new duties.

It is a strange story that the firemen tell of how the dog happened to take up with their manner of life. It was in the early part of August, they say, that when going at full speed to a fire on the West Side the animal was first seen following the apparatus and barking as if he thought his efforts would spur the four grays on to a greater speed. The dog was allowed to follow the truck back to the house, where he has since remained. He is a great pet of the fire laddies, who named him Rover, after the old hand engine Red Rover.

Rover sleeps in the stable with the horses, and during the night if a call comes he will bark and run about, impatient for the firemen to leave the building. The men say that when their pet gets used to a fireman's life he will be more calm when an alarm is sounded.—Rochester Herald.

Boyhood of Some Great Men.

Virgil's boyhood was spent in the house of a porter. His father was a burden carrier, who had bought his own freedom.

Canova, the sculptor, came naturally by his profession, being the son of a stone cutter, and early apprenticed to that trade.

St. Cyr, Napoleon's great marshal, was trained to carry a peddler's pack, but laid it aside for a gun and rose from the ranks.

Napoleon's first plaything was a toy cannon. Late in life he said: "The whole course of my life was determined by that cannon."

Thorwalsden, the sculptor, was first taught the carpenter's trade. From that he went to wood carving and thence to sculpture.

As a boy Thomas Jefferson was fond of hunting, athletic sports and music. He was a good shot and played well on the violin.

Where the Injury Came in.

The elevator boy in the hotel was a great friend of Jack's, and gave him a ride every time Jack wanted it; but a time came when they ceased to love each other.

"What's the matter with you and the elevator boy, Jack?" asked his father. "Don't you speak any more?"

"No," said Jack. "He put me out of the elevator last night."

"What for?"

"Because I punched him."

"Well, wasn't he right to do it?"

"Certainly he was," said Jack; "but he needn't have put me out on the tenth and make me walk down."—Harper's Young People.

Two Fads of the American Girl.

More than ever does the American girl affect dogs. She owns six or eight, and teaches them all to gather about and follow her directly she steps outside the door. They trot at her heels, whether walking or riding; and next in importance to the dogs, when she takes an airing on foot, is her stick. She never walks without one, and usually it is a yellow bamboo rod, not very large, but flexible, tapering to a point, and topped with a polished silver knob bearing her engraved initials. Ostensibly the stick is for support in walking, to keep the dogs in order, and, perhaps, for defence; in reality it is a great deal of nuisance; but it's a fad, lately over from England, and earnestly cherished by the seriously fashionable.—From "Society Fads," Demorest Magazine.

To Preserve Big Game.

An English committee of sportsmen and naturalists is taking in hand the protection of South African mammals—the giraffe, zebra, eland, gnu, ksodoo and other antelopes—against their threatened extinction. A suggested method of accomplishing this is to secure an enclosed park of about ten thousand acres.

Quite a Ranch.

Ex-Senator Warren's ranch in Wyoming covers an area of seventy-five by one hundred miles, and is stocked with 2,000 horses, 15,000 cattle and 120,000 sheep. It is six times as big as Rhode Island, and lacks but 615 square miles of being as big as Massachusetts.

THE "BLUMINE" OF CARLYLE.

His Heroine was the Daughter of a Hyderabad Begum.

There is an interesting note on Mrs. Phillips, the "Blumine" of Carlyle's "Sartor Resartus," to be found in the current number of "The Westminster Review." It is written by a feminine connection of Blumine, a lady who was in her youth much attached to that charming heroine of romance. "To no other person," says this chronicler, "did she ever make any distinct reference to her feelings as regarded Carlyle, and only once to me—what might be expected from a faultless wife and devoted mother, as she was. She was arranging books in the library one morning, when she turned to me and said: "Lizzie, have you ever read 'Sartor Resartus' by Carlyle?" "No, I have not," "Well, get it, and read the 'Romance,' I am the heroine, and every word of it is true. He was then tutor to my cousin, Charles Buller, and had made no name for himself; so of course I was told that any such idea could not be thought of for a moment. What could I do, with every one against it? Now any one might be proud to be his wife, and he has married a woman quite beneath him.

Blumine, "Lizzie" says, was "the daughter of a Begum at Hyderabad, a Persian Princess by descent, who married Colonel Kirkpartrick, an English officer, holding a high post at the court there. Her hair, which Carlyle describes as 'bronze red,' was, she said peculiar to the Persian royal family. In person she was far more foreign than English, and it was this rare combination of Eastern grace and beauty with the highest English culture which made her so very chaming. She had a keen sense of humor and the kindest heart, and could not bear to give another pain. Had firmness of character been stronger in her, the whole tenor of her life might have been different; but, gathering from the few references to her youth she made to me, it seemed that she too easily yielded to the wishes of the different relatives with whom she had lived, and doubtless her large fortune and great attractions made them imagine no one was good enough for her.

HOW HE WILL HUNT THE POLE.

Explorer Jackson's Business-like Plan for Finding the Pole.

The proposed methods of Mr. F. G. Jackson, the English Arctic explorer, appear to be the most practical and business-like of any yet undertaken for exploring the Polar regions. Mr. Jackson and a party of eight Englishmen will proceed to Franz Josef Land, where they will encamp for the winter. His vessel, the Windward, will then be sent back for more supplies. Next spring, by means of dogs and ponies, he will get as far north as possible by means of Peterman Land, a country of which little is known beyond the fact that it is mountainous, and, therefore not liable to sink off suddenly into the sea.

At intervals of about thirty miles along the route food depots will be left, so that the line of retreat will always be supplied. After leaving land the advancing party will proceed with sledges on the ice, being provided also with light portable boats, collapsible and in sections, by means of which any open spans of water can be navigated. Mr. Jackson expects to spend three years on the expedition, and, with chances of catastrophe reduced to a minimum and a route possessing great natural advantages, he should, if his party possesses the necessary powers of endurance, reach a very high latitude.

A Pretty Story of an Empress.

The Empress of Austria was, the other day making an excursion in the neighborhood of Campiglio, where she is at present staying, and called at a farm house, where all the inmates were in festal attire, but appeared in a rather melancholy turn of mind. Her Majesty perceived this, asked the reason, and was told that a baby born three days before was to be christened that day, but that the godmother had not come, for which reason the ceremony could not take place. The Empress then declared that she would take the place of the godmother, and when the poor people, who did not know the Empress, asked the name they must give their little girl, she replied, "My name is not much used in this country; it is better, then, to give the child the most beautiful name which Christendom knows—that of Mary." It was only on the following day, when a servant brought a handsome present in money and an entire outfit for the babe, that they knew their little girl had for godmother the Empress of Austria.

Hidden Treasure at Genoa.

For centuries it has been the belief of the common people of Genoa that treasures were hidden in the bed of the Polcavera, a stream that runs by the city. Recently a carter, in digging for sand in the bed of the dried up torrent, came upon hidden treasure, of which so far coin of the face value of 60,000 francs has been found and the supply is not yet exhausted. By the Italian law half of this goes to the State and half to the finder. The value of the coins is far beyond the sum mentioned; many of them are rare and of great artistic value; they are chiefly of gold and belong to the period between 1460 and 1550, that is, the reigns of Louis XI., Charles VIII., Louis XII. and Francis I., and are all either French or Genoese. The Genoese ducats are specially rare and will fetch high prices. The search for treasure is going on under police supervision.

The Old Cain's Wife Puzzle.

A correspondent of the World, replying to some questions, writes as follows:

There seems to be a difficulty in answering the question, "Where did Cain get his wife from?" And the gentleman who asked it already supposes the whole Bible to be untrue. The fact is that Cain married his sister. Again, the gentleman says that the Bible does not record that Adam had any daughters. Well, if the gentleman will look close into the Bible he will find that there is not a woman recorded between Adam and Abraham. Is it possible that in ten generations not a female was born, and if so, where did all of them get their wives? Where did Noah get his wife? It is because the women of that time did not play any prominent part in the history that they are not recorded. In the 930 years which Adam is supposed to have lived, it is very likely that he had a few daughters. I hope that this will settle the question.

"I'm going to have a party on my birthday," said Mollie.

"What kind?" asked Jennie.

HUMAN SACRIFICE IN RUSSIA.

A Gruesome Story of Inhuman Practices By the Tshukshen.

Apropos of Russia, it is probably known to few people that the practice of sacrificing human lives under certain conditions still exists in certain parts of the Russian Empire, says a writer in the Commercial Advertiser. The government and the orthodox church have attempted in vain to stop the inhuman practice, but up to the present time they have been unsuccessful. Revelations regarding the customs were made in recent issues of the Gazette of Yukutsk, Siberia. It prevails among a sect known as the Tshukshen, not far from that city. Old people, beyond the Biblical limit as to age, and sick ones, tired of life, offer themselves as the sacrifices. When a Tshukshe decides to "offer himself up," he sends word to all his relatives, friends and neighbors, who then visit him and try to persuade him to change his intentions. But prayers, upbraidings, threats, are useless in such a case, and the fanatic prepares for his end. The friends and relatives leave his house and return in ten or fifteen days, bringing the death candidate white clothing and several weapons, with which he is supposed to defend himself in the other world against evil spirits and to shoot reindeer.

After completing his death toilet, the candidate takes his place in a corner of his house or hut. About him gather his relatives, who offer him the choice of three instruments of death—a knife, a spear and a rope. If he chooses the knife, two friends hold his arms while a third plunges the blade into his breast. Practically the same thing is done if he decide to die by the spear. When he prefers the rope, two of those present place it about his neck, and strangle him to death. A cut is then made in the breast to let the blood flow out. All those present sprinkle their faces and hands with the blood, believing that it will preserve them from evil and bring them fortune. The body, after this ceremony, is placed on a sledge, which is drawn by a reindeer to the "cremation hill," near the village. The neck of the animal is cut at once upon arrival at the place. The body is stripped of clothing, which is then cut in small pieces and placed on the altar with the dead man or woman. During the cremation the "mourners" utter prayers to the spirits, begging them to watch over those mortals still left on earth. This custom has been followed by the sect for centuries.

CURE FOR A BROKEN HEART.

A Louisville Girl Employed a Monkey and a Hand Organ.

A Louisville girl has discovered a novel panacea for a broken heart, which common humanity demands should be given widespread circulation at once for the benefit of a suffering world. The story was overheard in that queer but popular public confessional, a street car, says the Louisville Courier-Journal. The clever creature said to the other girl:

"Oh, Louise, I felt perfectly dreadful all day yesterday. Harry and I have fallen out, and we are both so obstinate that we never will make up—never! My life is a perfect wreck. I cried until I couldn't cry any more, and was just desperate to know what to do with myself, when suddenly I heard a hand organ out on the street—the first of the season. I rushed out and brought the man into the parlor—monkey and all—and kept him all afternoon—the antics of that monkey nearly killed me. Of course, it nearly ruined me financially, but, goodness! when one has a broken heart, something has to be done."

WHAT PEARY HAS LEARNED.

Man Can Be Clothed and Fed so Cold Doesn't Hurt Him

General Isaac J. Wistar, president of the Philadelphia Academy of Natural Sciences, has received the following letter from Lieutenant Peary:

"The experience of the journey has shown me that my ideas as to the orthography of the inland ice of Northern Greenland are correct, and that on my proposed route, after surmounting the slope of the ice immediately adjacent to Whale sound, I shall have a level road until I begin the descent to Independence Bay. I also know that the human animal can be so clothed and fed as to be unaffected by any degree of cold. What I need now is an exhaustive study of the Eskimo dog and his needs under the most trying circumstances. The coming winter will give me the opportunity for such study. In my next year's work I shall utilize my faithful friends and allies, the Eskimo, and with their assistance shall have a strong, efficient working force. You may rest assured that I shall not return until I have done everything that is possible for one who believes in ultimate success, and whose every fibre is in sympathy with and straining for the desired end."

Shelley's Biography in Brief.

The monument to Shelly, the poet, erected in Viareggio, Italy, near which town he was drowned on July 8, 1822, is the work of the sculptor, Urbano Tuchessi. It bears the following inscription:

To Percy Bysshe Shelley.
Hearts of Hearts.

Drowned in this sea; cremated on this spot; where he composed "Prometheus Unbound." A posthumous page wherein every generation will have a token of its struggles, its tears and its redemption.

Royalty's Cucumber Punch.

The favorite drink in the Imperial palace at Potsdam now is said to be "cucumber punch." It was introduced into Germany by the Emperor, who learned to like and make it when on a visit to some English officers recently. His Majesty makes the punch as follows:

He takes three bottles of good red wine and pours it into a bowl which is kept cool. In this he places a cucumber from which the rind has been removed, and allows it to become saturated with the wine. The cucumber is then pressed out, and three glasses of maraschino are added. Sugar is not used in the punch.

He Took the Hint.

"Dear me, I find it impossible to drag my feet away," he said as the clock struck twelve and he gave no sign of going.

"Perhaps they are asleep," suggested the young lady, with a yawn, and he took the hint.—Detroit Free Press.

Mr. Figg's Definition.

REMARKABLE CURES

Of Recent Date.

A Statement from Ex-Mayor John Corson, Esq., of Clinton, N. J.

TO THE PUBLIC:

I acknowledge with the utmost pleasure the wonderful cure which Dr. Lighthill effected in my case.

I had been a sufferer from piles, which gave me constant pain and distress, during twenty long years, attended with frequent loss of blood and with great and painful protrusion of the pile tumors and rectum whenever my bowels moved.

I tried constantly to get relief from my sufferings, but to no purpose until Mr. Bryan, a friend of mine, who had been cured by Dr. Lighthill of the same trouble, recommended him to me, and he effected a complete and radical cure in my case also, and earned my lifelong gratitude.

JOHN CORSON.

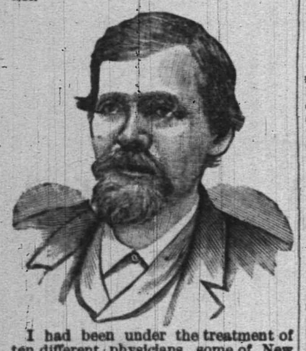
THE CASE OF MR. PETER G. EYCK, OF BISSELL, HUNTERDON CO., N. J.

Dr. Lighthill Effects a Complete Cure Where Ten Physicians Had Failed.

TO THE SICK, SUFFERING AND AFFLICTED:

For many years past I have been afflicted with bleeding piles. Every movement of the bowels was attended with loss of blood and with intense pain which lasted for hours and sometimes all day. My condition was aggravated by a prolapse of the rectum, which greatly increased my suffering and sometimes gave me most agonizing pains.

So great was my distress and so bad my condition that I sold my farm, not being able to work it any longer. At one time the protruding pile tumors became so highly inflamed and swollen that they could not be replaced, and I had to go to bed, applying hot poultices for three months before I could get relief.



I had been under the treatment of ten different physicians, some of New York City, Easton, Washington and elsewhere, without any benefit whatever, and had given up my case as hopeless when, luckily for me, I heard of Dr. Lighthill's skill and success in such cases, and went to him for treatment, with the happy result that he effected a radical and permanent cure in less than four weeks's time; and I am glad to say that the entire treatment gave me neither pain nor distress.

I consider my cure perfectly wonderful, and so do all my friends and neighbors. I am confident that there is no case of piles which Dr. Lighthill cannot cure.

PETER G. EYCK,
Bissell, Hunterdon Co., N. J.

Dr. Lighthill

NOT NATURAL ILLNESS

Is the Czar the Victim of a Plot?

A Private Letter from St. Petersburg Says the Russian Ruler Is Dying from an Ailment Brought About by Scientific Means—Dispositions of His Sons.

Minneapolis, Minn., Oct. 16.—Dr. Geo. F. Schmidt, an officer in the Prussian army now traveling on leave, made public in an afternoon paper a letter received from a friend in St. Petersburg. These dispatches were written in sympathetic ink on apparently blank paper in order that they might be conveyed out of Russia. The most sensational matter in the dispatches is the intimation that the czar's illness has been caused by other than natural means. The doctor translated the dispatch as follows:

"The czar is lying at the point of death. The excitement in the highest circles of Russia is tremendous. It is understood in a wide circle in Russia that the czar's sickness was brought about by scientific means and that his death will not be a natural one. It is on account of this that the journals contradict the fact of the czar's sickness. There is a party that wants to set the czarewitch on the throne. The czarewitch is of a cranky, melancholy nature, is inclined to institute the most radical reforms throughout Russia and has already made plans for such actions. He is very much hated by the clergy. The patriarch of Moscow, who is the head of the Greek church, has traveled about with the czar in order to persuade him to put his second son on the throne instead of the czarewitch. As this second son is a very hot-headed individual he is sure not to remain long on the throne without becoming seriously involved in state troubles. He is a fine soldier, fond of fight, a martial fellow and very ambitious. He is an enemy of England, of Germany and, above all, of America. This prince by all odds is the greatest general in Russia, having been with Gourki and Timaschieff and having studied with the latter."

Will Shelve the Czarewitch.

London, Oct. 16.—The Daily News correspondent in Berlin says: "The czar obviously is inclined to shelve the czarewitch whose political views are at variance with his own. He will appoint the Grand Duke Michael president of the regency."

Morton's Coachman.

Washington, Oct. 16.—The immigration bureau in the case of James John Howard, Levi P. Morton's undercoachman, who, it is charged, was brought to this country from London in violation of the contract labor law, is awaiting the action of the New York courts in the matter. A writ of habeas corpus having been asked for the decision of the habeas corpus case will control the disposition of future proceedings. If the writ should be denied the man will be returned to the custody of the emigration officials and, under the ruling of Secretary Carlisle that he comes within the terms of the contract labor law, he will be deported. If, on the other hand, the writ of habeas corpus should be granted, Howard will remain here and the subsequent proceedings will probably have considerable interest.

Cranks at Pittsburg.

Pittsburg, Oct. 16.—Mayor McKenna received two blood-curdling letters at his office evidently eminating from a crank. The letters were not signed and although the writing of the first was so erratic that it could not be deciphered, Chief Clerk Morgan was able to read sufficient to indicate that some gigantic plot was on foot to dispose of the mayor and possibly his entire office force. The second letter informed the mayor of the existence of a circle of anarchists who had been directed by a superior, residing in a foreign land, to "kill the rats, dogs and traitors," and he further incites them to riot, poisoning, bloodshed and murder, promising that he will forgive any and all sins they may commit. "To give supreme power to slay them with a miraculous hand," is his command.

Connecticut Democrats.

New Haven, Conn., Oct. 16.—The democratic state campaign was opened in this city by a big rally in the Grand opera house. Congressman Piggott was the principal speaker. Other speakers were the nominees on the state ticket, Lieut.-Gov. Cady, Judge Beardsley, Mayor Killduff, Hon. O. Bowen and Comptroller Staub. All the speakers, besides discussing state and national issues, had a word to say in regard to the A. P. A. movement, and Congressman Piggott was particularly severe in his denunciation of that body.

McKinley Will Speak at New Orleans.

Columbus, O., Oct. 16.—The following telegram was sent by Chairman Dick, of the Ohio republican committee, to Secretary Ferris, of the Louisiana republican committee, in care of the Fifth avenue hotel, New York: "Responding to your earnest appeal and that of those whom you represent, Governor McKinley has consented to speak in New Orleans, and we have cancelled engagements already made in Ohio so as to allow him to speak in your city Saturday night, October 20."

Against Church Union.

Rome, Oct. 16.—The Armenian patriarch, Azarian, in Constantinople, telegraphed the pope that the powers opposed to the union of the Eastern church with the holy see had influenced the sultan against aiding the vatican in the conference next Thursday concerning this union. He would postpone his visit to Rome therefore until November.

Diphtheria Epidemic.

Hollidaysburg, Pa., Oct. 16.—Diphtheria has become epidemic in Franklintown township, this county. The township public schools have been closed to prevent the spreading of the disease. There have been five deaths and many homes are in a state of quarantine. It is claimed that germs of the disease were brought here by the New York city fresh air children.

WAR TO THE FINISH

Meaning of Failure of China's Peace Overtures.

And the Conflict Will Now Enter Upon a Chronic Stage—Foreigners, and Especially Missionaries, in China Assured of Protection—Other Foreign News.

London, Oct. 16.—The Times has this despatch from its Tien-Tsin correspondent: "In an imperial edict issued from Pekin the government assumes full responsibility for the protection of foreigners and denounces rowdyism. It orders the punishment of several culprits who assaulted travelers and assures strangers that their persons and property will be protected. It especially favors the missionaries. "Japan having rejected China's peace overtures without a hearing, the war now will enter upon a chronic stage, demanding an appeal to the latent forces of China. The government is prepared, although reluctant to engage in a protracted conflict. The party in power recognize, however, the urgency of radical military and fiscal reforms. The important question is, 'How long can the national cohesion bear the strain of a great war?' There is danger of a revolution which might be followed by prolonged anarchy.

"The Pei-Yang squadron was not docked, but has been completely refitted, however, and the magazines have been filled."

Japanese Politics.

London, Oct. 16.—A dispatch from Tokio says an imperial rescript has been issued convoking the Japanese parliament in extra session at Hiroshima. The session is to last seven days and is for the purpose of discussing matters connected with the existing war which require parliamentary sanction. At the time of the last parliament the various leaders were at swords points, but the war has healed all differences and brought the factions together, and efforts are making to have all the parties and factions represented in the new cabinet. None of the portfolios is vacant, but it is proposed to create new cabinet offices in order to secure the cooperation of the former opposition leaders. Among those urged for the new offices are the most active leaders of the parties which were opposed to the government prior to the war. These include Count Chuma, Count Itagaki, Count Matsukata and Viscount Shinagawa.

China Did Not Seek Peace.

London, Oct. 16.—The Daily News has a dispatch from Tien-Tsin saying that China made no proposals of peace to Japan, and hence the report of their rejection is untrue.

Honors to Strauss.

Vienna, Oct. 16.—The celebration of the Strauss jubilee was continued by a grand reception, at which the composer received a number of deputations and an immense gathering of individual callers. The reception began with a serenade by a chorus of pupils from the conservatoire, after which the visitors were presented to the waltz king. The intendant of the imperial theatres, the burgomaster of Vienna, the presidents of the various musical, literary and art societies, the directors of the Vienna theatres and many others read addresses and presented gifts to the composer. Among the presents was a magnificent wreath of sterling silver, presented by Mr. Rudolph Aronson on behalf of the American committee of which Mr. Aronson is the head, and whose object it was to provide a suitable testimonial on the occasion of his jubilee. The wreath, which is sixteen inches in diameter, has fifty leaves, on each of which is engraved the name of one of of Strauss' compositions. This magnificent offering excited the admiration of all present. In his presentation speech Mr. Aronson dwelt upon the value of Strauss' music to the masses, its brightness, its melody, its dancing tempo, etc. To no composer, dead or alive, said Mr. Aronson, have so many hundreds of thousands of terpsichorean devotees in America danced as to the entrancing strains of the waltz king. Mr. Aronson's remarks were loudly applauded.

Herr Strauss in response said that he owed everything to his predecessors, and above all to his father, who showed him the way to musical progress especially in the sphere of dance music. "My feeble merit," he said, "having only taken an enlarged form and broadened preceding methods. I feel that you do me too much honor. I am no orator. I have spoken enough."

The applause and cries of "hoch" which followed the composer's remarks lasted several minutes.

Crispi Pleased with Verdi's Success.

Paris, Oct. 16.—Signor Crispi has sent a despatch to Signor Verdi's friend and publisher, Recordi, of Paris, concerning the honors paid the composer on the evening of "Otello's" first production at the opera. He says: "I am proud that an Italian name is so highly honored in the great and sympathetic capital. I regard the event as an augury of fraternal affection between neighbor nations. Blessings on the art that has created the opportunity. All honor to Verdi who opened the way across the Alps to an accord of hearts."

Dvorak Completes a New Opera.

London, Oct. 16.—The Daily News learns that Anton Dvorak, the composer who recently visited America, has passed his holidays in the perfection of an opera dealing with Indian and negro themes. The libretto is said to follow many outlines of Longfellow's "Hiawatha."

Italy Must Economize.

Rome, Oct. 16.—The ministers are under instructions to report on all possible means of curtailing expenses in their departments. The deficit which must be covered is estimated as 80,000,000 to 85,000,000 lire.

To Test the New Diphtheria Serum.

Paris, Oct. 16.—The budget committee has resolved upon an appropriation of 100,000 francs with which to test the efficacy of the new diphtheria serum.

SOME MONEY UP.

Cash Slowly Superceding Eloquence and Literature.

New York, Oct. 16.—Captain Glori, Bob Fitzsimmons' manager, has posted $1,000, making the first instalment of Fitzsimmons' stake of $10,000 complete. Fitzsimmons' original $1,000, which he posted with the Herald, was turned over to Philip J. Dwyer, the stake-holder, last Thursday. The next deposit of $2,500 is due on December 1. Although Captain Glori posted the money promptly he absolutely refused to sign the articles of agreement so long as the clause in regard to the Police Gazette championship belt was allowed to remain. Captain Glori pointed out that the belt had to be won three times before becoming the absolute property of the winner. "Corbett," said Glori, "has never fought for the belt before in his life, and a reference to the articles of agreement of the Corbett-Sullivan and Corbett-Mitchell fights will prove what I say. Notwithstanding all this, Richard K. Fox proposes to give it to Corbett if he defeats Fitzsimmons, while if the latter beats the champion he cannot claim the trophy. Fitzsimmons, like Sullivan, has no use for the dog-collar, and he won't fight for it. This is final. If Corbett wants to make an agreement to fight for it he can do so, but no mention will be allowed to go in the articles of agreement."

Captain Glori drew up new articles of agreement and signed them, and a copy will be sent to Corbett. In the new articles, which Captain Glori signed, no reference is made to the belt in dispute, and the stipulations in regard to the selection of a referee and the size of the gloves have been modified to read as follows:

"The contest shall be under the Marquis of Queensberry rules; the gloves shall be of five ounce weight; the other details of the contest shall be left to the decision of the Florida Athletic club. The club shall name the referee, but he must be satisfactory to both principals. Should either party fail to comply with these articles, the money then in the hands of the stake-holder shall be forfeited to the party which shall have fulfilled his obligations according to this agreement."

POISONED FOR MONEY.

Two Sisters Indicted for the Murder of Their Brother.

Ballston, N. Y., Oct. 16.—Katherine and Elizabeth Nolan of Waterford, sisters, aged 22 and 17 years old respectively, were arraigned in oyer and terminer on an indictment charging them jointly with murder in the first degree, in having on June 8, 1894, administered arsenic to their brother John Nolan, with intent to cause his death that they might obtain and share a policy of insurance issued by one of the low-priced assessment companies on his life in which they were named as beneficiaries. He died June 13 from such poison as was determined by an autopsy made by direction of Coroner Stubbs. A drug clerk testified before the coroner's and grand juries to having sold one of the sisters arsenic just before that date. The father, mother and a sister of the Nolans had died within this preceding eight months on all of whose lives they held similar insurance policies that were paid before John's death. C. E. Keach, counsel for the prisoners, demurred to the indictment and also moved that it be quashed on affidavits setting forth that the evidence before the grand jury did not present sufficient facts to warrant that the sisters be held for trial. Justice Stover overruled the demurrer and denied the motion to quash. Mr. Keach then entered pleas of not guilty for each of his clients and asked that a date be fixed at this term for their trial. District Attorney Person opposed on the ground that the attendance of necessary witnesses for the people could not be obtained at this term. On his motion the cases were put over till the January oyer.

Christian Convention.

Haverhill, Mass., Oct. 16.—At the Christian convention the resolutions on church union, which was referred back to the committee on Saturday, were taken up and after discussion were unanimously adopted. The resolutions provide for an alliance with other churches of any denominations or body of Christians, with the provision that doctrinal tests shall not be applied to members and that such an alliance shall not deprive denominations of their distinguishing names. A board of commissioners was appointed to confer with other bodies in the matter of forming an alliance.

Actual Assets $6,74.

New York, Oct. 16.—The schedules in the assignment of Oliver Sumner Teall, who carries on the real estate business at 309 Broadway, show liabilities $110,936; nominal assets, $210,150; actual assets, $6.74. The difference between the nominal and actual assets arises from the fact that numerous concerns in which Mr. Teall held stock are in the hands of receivers, or have forfeited on their bonds, the only actual assets, $6.74, being cash in bank. Mr. Teall assigned on Sept. 26 last to Francis Farquhar without preferences.

Gov. McKinley Speaks at Home.

Columbus, O., Oct. 16.—An audience of about five thousand people greeted Gov. McKinley at the Fourteenth regiment armory last evening where he made his first and to be his only speech here in the present campaign. There were many ladies present and a glee club sang campaign songs. Three hundred students from the State university applauded occasionally with the college yell. Ex-Attorney General George K. Nash presided. Governor McKinley's speech, for the most part, followed the one made at Findlay three weeks ago, very closely.

POLITICS IN THE ANTIPODES.

Radical Measures in New Zealand and New South Wales.

Vancouver, B. C., Oct. 16.—The steamship Arawa, which has arrived from Australia, Fiji and Hawaii, brings interesting advices from the antipodes. The new South Wales legislature has passed a resolution by an overwhelming majority in favor of extending the franchise to women. Notice has also been given by Sir Henry Parker that on Nov. 13 the following motion will be made: "That in view of the rapid growth of Australia in the elements of national life and the number of questions arising out of that growth, which can be only dealt with adequately by a national legislature, it is in the highest sense desirable that parliament without loss of time should resume the consideration of the federation of these colonies under one national government."

The New Zealand government propose what is called the cheap money scheme, which briefly means that the government shall borrow £1,500,000 in London every year for advances to farmers at the rate of 5 per cent. The scheme limits advances on freeholds to two-thirds of their value and on leases to half of the lesee's interests.

In the legislative assembly on Sept. 12 during discussion in committee of the peace preservation bill, introduced by the government to put down the lawless outbreak occasioned by the strike, a great scene of confusion ensued ending in the suspension of seven labor members. Mr. Glassey appealed to the government to appoint a committee, with the object of endeavoring to settle the strike. The government was willing to accept several amendments from the opposition if the first six clauses of the bill were allowed to stand. Mr. Glassey would not accept a line of the bill and absolute disorder ensued. Several members asked to be allowed to make an explanation, but the chairman threatened to name all. Nearly all the labor members rose to their feet and general disorder ensued, amidst cheers and cries of "the brutal government," etc. When order was restored the premier moved that the chairman leave the chair and report no progress. Before the chairman could put the motion several members, who had become obstreperous, were removed.

FRIGHTENED WITH A RAZOR.

Sad Death of a Young Woman at East Kingston, N. H.

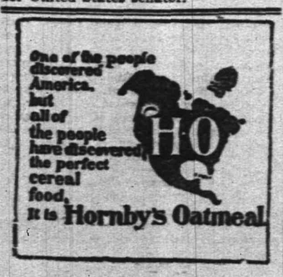
Amesbury, Mass., Oct. 16.—A sensational death has just come to light here, the facts of which have been guarded since Tuesday last. John Gill, an industrious farmer, resides at Kensington, N. H., about three miles north of here. On Friday, Oct. 5, his daughter, Miss Frances, a bright girl of 19 years, went to East Kingston, to visit some friends and while there a young man named Brown, a boarder at the house came into the room where Miss Gill was and commenced to shave himself. After a few minutes had elapsed he took his razor and playfully made a pass at the girl, saying that he was going to cut her hair off, having a minute before asked her how she would like to be shaved. As he started toward her, she gave a scream, and throwing up her hands, fell to the floor in a swoon, at the same time her right hand came in contact with the sharp razor, cutting the palm of it. In spite of all efforts she died the following Tuesday from the effect of the sudden fright and from the sight of blood on her hand. Miss Gill had been a sufferer from heart trouble for several years past. While in one respect blame can be attached to the young man, the fact of the girl having been so long a sufferer from heart trouble, any sudden fright, in the opinion of physicians, would have probably caused her death.

May Have To Close Down the Courts.

Trenton, N. J., Oct. 16.—The criminal trials in Mercer county may have to be indefinitely postponed owing to the condition of the county treasury and the existence of dual boards of freeholders. Money is needed for the actual county expenses particularly the paying of witnesses' fees, but the banks will not loan either board any money. Justice Abbett has suggested that both boards jointly authorize the borrowing of money in which event the banks would be legally protected and would furnish the money needed. If this is not done the business of the court will cease and prisoners awaiting trial will have to stay in jail indefinitely.

Exciting Republican Primaries.

Newark, N. J., Oct. 16.—The republican primaries throughout Essex county last night were the most exciting held in years. Fights occurred in many precincts and several arrests were made. Assemblyman Elsle, who was opposed by many corporations because of his anti-monopoly course in the last legislature, carried his district. He had to contend against the leaders in his own party as well as the corporations. Dr. H. C. Herald, who is out against the regular organization, swept his district. The contests were all factional and it is conceded that the entire delegation will favor General Sewell for United States senator.



TRUST SECRETS SOLD

Great Scheme of a Dishonest Bookkeeper.

Twenty Thousand Dollars and a Big Stock Deal for Furnishing Inside Figures on the Condition of the Cordage Trust—Rogues Fall Out and Tell Tales.

New York, Oct. 16.—A suit which arises out of the giving away of some of the secrets of the Cordage trust was brought to trial before Judge Freedman in the superior court. The action is one brought in the name of Nesbitt V. Davenport, who for some years was the confidential bookkeeper in the employ of the Cordage trust at a salary of fourteen hundred dollars a year, against George B. Hulme. The amount involved in the action is $20,000. It is claimed that on April 28, 1892, while Davenport was employed as the confidential bookkeeper of the trust he entered into an agreement with Hulme, in consideration of a promise made by the latter to give him $20,000, and also to sell him 5,000 shares of the stock of the Cordage trust, to reveal to him all the inside facts concerning the financial standing of the trust for four years, and, in fact, to tell all the secrets of the corporation, which would be of great value to him in a financial way. Davenport says he did this and gave a list of the dividends of the company, of which the following is a copy:

March 20, 1888	$237,000
September 27, 1888	750,000
January 5, 1891	100,000
April 3, 1891	100,000
April 3, 1891	400,000
July 1, 1891	50,000
November 1, 1891	350,000

A statement of the profit and loss account of the trust showed the total loss of the corporation to be $3,017,992.42. The account is as follows: August 1, 1887, to December 31, 1887, profit, $287,313.67. January 1, 1888, to July 3, 1888, loss, $247,414.49. August 1, 1888, to July 31, 1888, profit, $869,259.34. August 1, 1889, to July 31, 1890, loss, $2,987,648.83. The slip of paper containing these items was handed over to Hulme two days after the contract was made. Now Davenport insists that inasmuch as he caried out his part of the contract Hulme should be compelled to pay him the contract price for the bargain. The claim of Davenport is disputed on the ground that the contract is an immoral one and against the statute of frauds, and the outcome of fraud and conspiracy. Moreover, it is alleged that he did not carry out the contract to the letter, because the statement which he gave did not contain a true statement of the financial standing of the trust. On these defenses it is insisted that Davenport cannot recover in an action at law. The receivers have been subpoenaed to show their books, in order that it may be found how near right Davenport's information was. After hearing some testimony, Judge Freedman held that a servant in a confidential capacity had no right to sell the secrets of his employer, and dismissed the case. The plaintiff's attorney took the usual exceptions, and gave notice of appeal.

Smallpox on Shipboard.

Quarantine, S. I., Oct. 16.—The steamer Kronprins Frederick Wilhelm from Naples, with eight cabin and 499 steerage passengers on board, was detained at Quarantine owing to the detection on passing the passengers of a suspicious case in the person of a steerage passenger. Deputy Health Officers Talmadge and Sanborn were of the opinion that the patient suffered from smallpox. Drs. Dillingham and Benedict of the New York health department, both experts in the handling of epidemic diseases, were called in, and after thorough examination, confirmed the diagnosis. The passenger having been found mingling with his fellow passengers exposing all to the disease, the whole number of the steerage passengers will be vaccinated and transferred to Hoffman island to await the development of the disease for a period of fourteen days. The cabin passengers will be disinfected and released.

Dr. Bartlett's Resignation.

Washington, Oct. 16.—Dr. William Alvin Bartlett, who has been thirty-seven years in the ministry, and for the past twelve years pastor of the New York Avenue Presbyterian church which has the largest congregation in the city, has been compelled to resign on account of ill-health, and after his farewell sermon in November will leave for Europe. Dr. Bartlett is one of the most prominent citizens of this city and is president of several charitable associations and church societies.

Connecticut Baptist Ministers.

Norwich, Conn., Oct. 16.—The twelfth anniversary conference of Baptist ministers of Connecticut was held in this city. In the business meeting Rev. Geo. M. Stone, D. D., of Hartford was elected president and Rev. C. Sage, Ph. D., of New Haven secretary and treasurer. The secretary made a report of the ministerial changes during the year. Four have died, nine have removed from the state, four have been ordained and nineteen have entered the state and have been settled as pastors.

Fifteen Fishermen Drowned.

Apalachicola, Fla., Oct. 16.—The saddest feature of the recent storm was the drowning of fifteen fishermen, all white, near Sand island, about ten miles from this place. It was known that these men were caught in the gale and until Saturday it was hoped that they had escaped. Since the gale subsided searching parties have been looking for them, and Saturday their bodies were found.

Sick of Corporation Senators.

Belvidere, N. J., Oct. 16.—The Democrats of Warren county held their convention here and nominated Ezra P. Gulick of Vienna and Michael McCabe of Oxford for assemblymen, in a field of eight. The two nominees were pledged to support a man for United States senator "who has other qualifications than the support of banded corporations and millionaires."

FAREWELL TO $500,000

Half a Million in Gold Goes to Europe.

Unusual Occurrence for October—Balance of Trade Should Be the Other Way—Probability That the Gold Is Destined for Austria—Effect of the News on the Stock Market.

New York, Oct. 16.—The first shipment of gold from New York to Europe in October for many years will be made on the steamship Havel, which sails for Southampton to-day. The Bank of New York withdrew from the sub-treasury $500,000 just before the close of business last evening, presenting greenbacks in payment for the gold. The withdrawal is for the account of Kidder, Peabody & Co., of Boston, and the gold is consigned to Berlin. The ultimate destination is supposed to be Austria. The engagement of this gold caused weakness in the stock market, as it is an extraordinary occurence for gold to be shipped to Europe at this season of the year, when the export of cereals and cotton should throw the balance of trade strongly in favor of the United States. For over a decade, except during the financial stringency existing in 1892 and 1893, gold has been imported in large amounts from Europe during the months of September, October and December. The impossibility of lending foreign balances in New York on account of the 1 per cent. money market, and active demand for money in Germany and Austria, the smaller exports of wheat and cotton combined with their low price—the lowest to-day in the history of the United States—and the larger imports stimulated by the new tariff, are mentioned as among the reasons which have caused foreign exchange to advance to a gold exporting rate. Germany and Belgium have also recently placed some large loans in the London market which have forced sterling on the continent to an unusually low rate, permitting the triangular operation of exchange, which permits gold exports.

The profits on the shipments of gold, however, are so slight that it is believed that gold would not have gone forward if inducements had not been offered by Austria, which has not yet acquired sufficient gold to put its recently established gold currency on a solid foundation. This suspicion has the most depressing effect on stocks and other markets, as it is recollected that Austria in 1892 and 1893 drew tens of millions of gold dollars from the United States by the payment of a liberal premium to the gold-shipping houses in New York, and the low gold balance of the United States treasury inspired the fear that another government bond issue would be forced by the efflux of gold to Europe at this time.

MAY LOSE THEIR GROUNDS.

A Prominent Showman After the New York Club's Quarters.

New York, Oct. 16.—It is reported that the New York baseball club is in danger of losing its grounds at 155th street and Eighth avenue. The report says that the property in question belongs to the Lynch estate and that the lease held by the National Exhibition company, which controls the New York baseball club, expired with the present year. There was a provision in the contract, however, to the effect that if the company desired to renew the lease the manager of the estate should be notified on September 1, 1894. The failure of the company to comply with this clause has led to the present complications. An agent of a prominent showman, the report says, has made a flattering offer for the grounds, the object being to turn them into a race course. A representative of the National association, the proposed new baseball organization, has also made flattering offers for the property and unless the New York club succeeds in changing the purpose of the Lynch estate the Temple cup winners will be without a play ground next season.

Youthful Tragedy.

Bergen Point, N. J. Oct. 16.—Richard Seabercrab, the son of Henry Seabercrab, was shot and instantly killed by his 11-year-old brother, Joseph. The boys were playing about the house and they found their father's revolver. Richard picked up the weapon and pointed it at Lizzie Wright, the 10-year-old daughter of a neighbor and one of their playmates. Joseph endeavored to take the pistol away from his brother and a scuffle ensued. During the struggle the weapon was discharged, the bullet entering Richard's left temple. The Bayonne police were notified of the tragedy and arrested Joseph. He was paroled in the custody of his father for examination.

Lease Lost.

New York, Oct. 16.—It was reported that the Northern Pacific company had lost the lease of the Chicago terminals to the Baltimore & Ohio. The officials of the Northern Pacific are in no alarm over the matter, as they are confident that there will be found some memorandum of the contract with the Baltimore & Ohio. The use of the Chicago terminals is so important to the Baltimore & Ohio that no fears are entertained that the Baltimore & Ohio will not continue to use the terminals and pay the rental agreed upon in the lease.

Legality of Pasters.

Albany, Oct. 16.—A labor representative called at the attorney-general's office and inquired whether or not it would be possible to vote for the constitutional amendments by paster ballot. He was told by the clerk in the office to submit his question in writing, when an opinion would be prepared by the attorney-general. The object of the use of the paster is to enable the illiterate voter to prepare his ballot before he goes into the booth, so that he may vote intelligently.

Diphtheria at Ogdensburg.

Ogdensburg, N. Y., Oct. 16.—There are a number of cases of malignant diphtheria at Waddington on the St. Lawrence, eighteen miles from here. Six deaths have occurred recently. The schools are closed and notices have been posted warning people not to enter the village.

A KINGLY TREASURE.

And One Which is of Priceless Value.

It Is Within the Reach of Everyone Who Wants It—A Subject Which is Interesting People All Over This Wide Land.

The greatest treasures are those which bring the most good, which do the most towards benefiting mankind. Everywhere we go we see sickness and suffering, until it seems as though there was not a perfectly healthy person in existence. And such is about the case, for there are very few who are not troubled in some way.

The most common complaint is nervousness. There are thousands who would not acknowledge they were nervous, and yet they feel weak and tired, and their actions show their nerves are weak and irritable. This is a dangerous condition to neglect, for it often leads to nervous prostration or other serious disease.

All kinds of nervous and chronic diseases are fearfully common, and the remedy that will cure them may well be called a kingly treasure. Such a medicine exists, and it is constantly curing these diseases. Read what Mrs. W. H. Smith, of 74 Sutton st., Providence, R. I., has to say about it:

"I was taken sick 5 years ago with the grip. It left my whole system and especially my nerves in a terribly weak condition. I was dreadfully nervous, and lost almost complete control of myself. I was all discouraged and did not know what I should do.

"My limbs were swollen, my feet ached and I had pains all over my body. I got scarcely any sleep, and what little I did get did me no good. I took many remedies but without any benefit. Finally, hearing Dr. Greene's Nervura blood and nerve remedy highly recommended, I determined to use it.

"After taking one bottle I was almost entirely cured of all my troubles. My nerves were strong, the pains left me, the swelling disappeared and I could sleep well. Thanks to this wonderful medicine I am cured. I wish every sufferer might use it."

The reason why you should take Dr. Greene's Nervura blood and nerve remedy is, because it is the surest and quickest medicine in its action known. It positively and permanently cures all forms of nervous weakness and exhaustion, invigorates the blood and gives health and strength. Take it now, for Dr. Greene's Nervura blood and nerve remedy will do more for you than any other remedy.

It is the discovery and prescription of Dr. Greene, of 35 West 14th street, New York City, the most successful specialist in curing nervous and chronic diseases. He can be consulted free, personally or by letter. Don't miss this opportunity to get well.

SIX PAGES TODAY.

People in Music Hall last night felt that it was audacious enough to invite Plainfield people to sit through a harangue scorching the personal liberties of many of the audience, without asking them to put their hands in their pockets and pay for the toasting.

Rev. Madison C. Peters is a good talker, and most of his hearers in Music Hall last night were well entertained. But he can hardly expect to be regarded seriously when he intimates that Grover Cleveland is not an American and is not appointing Americans to office. Chauncey Depew is a good judge of Americanism; and Chauncey Depew, stanch Republican though he is, publicly extolled Mr. Cleveland as a most representative American, and reviewed Mr. Cleveland's career to clinch his statements. The Constitution of the United States prohibits any but American citizens from holding public office, and Plainfielders know from their own observation and experience that a liberal proportion of Mr. Cleveland's appointees are actually native born. To bring the matter home, right here in Plainfield he selected native Americans for postmaster and consul. But why in a free country should a man's nativity be considered? A heathen redeemed is called henceforth a Christian, and a foreigner naturalized is entitled to every right of citizenship. After a man has renounced allegiance to foreign potentates, and has sworn his fealty to the United States of America, the mere accident of his birth should not be held against him. And as regards religion, the Constitution guarantees freedom of conscience.

What did not Rev. Madison C. Peters assail? He assailed the Democratic party, the church of Rome, the entire press of the country, the Protestant congregations. He lauded the Protestant ministry, and was chary of censuring the Republican party. So then he is for his profession, and for the G. O. P. But we can't all be clergymen, and lots of us won't be Republicans.

Mr. Peters was brought here by the A. P. A., the idea being taken from a local clergyman who is a member of the A. P. A. and who intended having Mr. Peters give his lecture in the church. It was better that in a theatre and not a house of worship Mr. Peters should attack institutions which were well grounded and doing good work long before Mr. Peters acquired the pulpit. Language so intemperate, misleading, sensational and extreme belongs not to the conservatism and careful speaking of the temple.

The truth is that while Rev. Madison C. Peters may be sincere in championing for hire the secret organization of which he is not a member, he is no less sincere in championing the notoriety of Rev. Madison C. Peters, whose sermons find such favor in his eyes that they are stereotyped each week and sent to the newspapers he affects to despise, for publication with the name of Rev. Madison C. Peters at the top.

The Daily Press's Page for Women is a new-found delight for the feminine world

In response to the claims of the New York Herald that he is a candidate for Assembly, Counselor McClure asks The Press to state that "for no consideration under heaven could he be induced to permit his name to appear on any ticket on which the name of John T. Dunn appears".

Rev. Madison C. Peters did not help the Republican ticket for which he is working, when last night he said that most of the paupers and criminals of the country belong to one church. Such an offensive attack on a religious body that has a constitutional right to thrive unmolested on American soil, helps no cause but the cause it assails.

OBITUARY.

Mrs. Sarah W. Clark.

Mrs. Sarah Welford Clark, wife of James E Clark, died at her home in Newton, Mass., Sunday, at the age of 38 Mrs. Clark was the daughter of the late Judge Lomax of Keokuk, Iowa Mr. Clark is a son of James Clark of 404 West Seventh street, and is in the leather business in Boston. The funeral will be held tomorrow morning at the house, the interment being private. Mr. Clark of West Seventh street has gone to Boston to attend the services. His wife is in St. Louis with a sick sister.

Albert Utter, M. D.

Dr Albert Utter died at his home, 144 East Sixth street, yesterday afternoon at 4 in his seventy-sixth year. He had been ill for a long time

Dr. Utter was born in Unadilla Forks, N. Y. He came to Plainfield 40 years ago and established his famous water-cure sanitarium on the mountain at the head of Somerset street. A year after the war broke out he joined the First Rhode Island Cavalry as surgeon.

He served in the army three years and then went to Wisconsin. After staying there five years he returned to Plainfield and began to practise medicine.

Besides a wife Dr. Utter leaves two daughters, Mrs. Clarence Maxsen of Westerly and Miss Jessie Utter, the organist of the Crescent Avenue and Seventh Day Baptist Churches. The funeral services will be held at the house tomorrow evening at 8.

PARTICULAR MENTION.

A G. Vogeler returned yesterday from Germany.

Miss J. Louise Jenkins of West Second street has returned after ten days spent with friends in Brooklyn.

Miss Marion A. Taggart has a charming story, "An Unrecognized Genius", in the October Catholic World.

Albert A. Marsh, one of the firm of Marsh, Ayers & Co., is at home today suffering with a heavy cold.

Ernest Millard of East Fourth st eet has returned from a two-weeks vacation, part of which was spent in Newark.

Marion Ackerman, who returned from his Adirondack trip Saturday, had the good fortune to see a deer the day before he returned, and brought him down.

Plainfield is graced for a short visit by Mrs. James A. Demarest, wife of the U. S. Consul at Brockville, Ont., who with her bright son Fred is stopping with friends in the borough.

In response to an invitation from the pulpit a large number of members of the congregation of Hope Chapel gathered at the home of Rev. G. Kennedy Newell, 445 West Fifth street, last night, and passed the hours very pleasantly. Refreshments were served before the guests left the hospitable home of their pastor.

Mrs. John Scott, who, sojourning at the home of her sister, Mrs. Walter Scott of East Front street, was taken seriously ill with hemorrhages, some months ago, is now convalescent, under the judicious treatment of her medical attendant, Dr. J. B. Probasco of East Front street, and expects soon to start for the South to spend the Winter.

Up-to-Date Discussion.

At the meeting of the Monday Afternoon Club yesterday Mrs. William L Gibbs of Scotch Plains read a paper on "The Chinese—Should They Be Allowed Citizenship", in which she took the affirmative side. Mrs. E W. Hedges and Mrs. B. Arrowsmith Hegeman followed with brief papers on the other side, and a spirited discussion was opened.

Club topics will be formally discussed at the next meeting, Oct. 29 At the first meeting in November the woman's suffrage question will be considered. Mrs. Julia Ward Howe will speak.

SILVER WEDDING.

CHARMING RECEPTION OF MR. AND MRS. CAHOONE.

Society People Enjoy Their Daughter's Birthday and Their 25th Marriage Anniversary.

A charming afternoon reception was that given yesterday at the residence of Mr. and Mrs. Stephen Cahoone, 1126 Watchung avenue. From 4 to 7 the handsome home was filled with Plainfield society people. A few flowers, tastefully arranged, were the decorations. The caterer was Max Wiertz of West Front street.

Mrs. C. E. Tyler and Miss Tyler of Brooklyn assisted Mr. and Mrs. Cahoone and Miss Cahoone in receiving. In the parlor the guests noticed "1869–1894" in silver letters on a red background. Then they learned that the affair was not only in honor of Miss Cahoone's birthday but also of the twenty-fifth anniversary of Mr. and Mrs. Cahoone's wedding. Relatives who had known of the wedding anniversary sent handsome gifts of silver.

The guests included Mrs Alex Gilbert, Miss Randolph, Mrs. H B Newell, Mrs S B Krom, Dr and Mrs T H Tomlinson, Miss Tomlinson, Mrs Wm Garrigues, Mrs Chas Bernard, Mrs J B Dumont, Mrs L N Lovell, Mrs Leonard, Miss Leonard, Mr and Mrs Aaron M Powell, Mr and Mrs Chas Place, Mrs O B Leonard, Mr and Mrs A S Patterson, Mrs Horace Kimball, Samuel Kimball, Mr and Mrs David Moore, Mrs Ephraim Miller, Miss Miller, Miss Helen Hasbrouck, Miss Bushnell, Mrs W W Holland, Mrs Isaac L Miller, Miss Lulu Patton, Mrs. Henry Bowen, Miss Bowen, Miss Maud Lord, Miss Della Bowers, Miss Murray, Mr Bonnell, Miss Bonnell, Mr Field, Mrs J W Murray, Miss Mary Simmonds, Miss Lilian Oakley, Mr Oakley, and Mrs Irvins of Plainfield; and Andrew Cahoone, R M Cahoone and J D Phillips of Brooklyn.

20TH ANNIVERSARY.

Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Norbury Have a Marriage Celebration.

Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Norbury celebrated the twentieth anniversary of their wedding very pleasantly at their home on North avenue last evening. They received many handsome presents, including a number from agents of the Metropolitan Life Insurance Company of which Mr. Norbury is a superintendent. A surprise which Mrs. Norbury had arranged was the presentation of a perfectly executed crayon of her husband. Miss Norbury's birthday anniversary being near, her father presented her with a costly piano in honor of the affair.

The guests spent the evening in an enjoyable manner and left with hearty congratulations and well wishes for Mr. and Mrs. Norbury. The party included Dr. Andrew Manning, Mr and Mrs J K Lane, Mr and Mrs W H Shearer and son, A B King, Theodore Philpot, Mr and Mrs J T Vegiard, Miss Raybert, Mrs S T Wilde of Newark, Mrs E Crosley, and Mr and Mrs Schaefer.

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR

The Junior Christian Endeavor society of the Congregational Church will meet for reorganization Wednesday afternoon at 3:45. All of the old members and those who wish to join the society are invited to be present.

Regarding Mrs. Venino.

If those who are disposed to render assistance to Mrs. Venino and her six children, whom her heartless husband is destrous of abandoning, will call on Mrs. J. M. Crane, 543 West Eighth street, arrangements may be made for systematic assistance in this case.

EARLY INTELLIGENCE.

—Cook & Co. have begun at Grant avenue to extend the sewer through Third street.

—After a sharp frost last night, violets were still blooming on Watchung avenue today.

—The Choral Society began its rehearsals in Vincent Chapel last night. 115 voices were there, and the first two choruses of "The Messiah" were sung with old-time vigor.

—You'll find the choicest cuts, and the lowest prices, at the new meat market of L. H. Apgar, 103 Somerset street, to be opened Saturday. Mr. Apgar will do a strictly cash business, and people have but to give him a trial order to become steady patrons.

—Peter Clauson of Sandy Hill asked the police yesterday to find his sixteen-year-old bride, nee Annie Nelson of Plainfield avenue. After they were married last week she went away but was found and taken back to the home of her father, John Nelson. She has now disappeared for the second time.

ROBERT PEEL'S WIFE HUNT.

A Young English Spendthrift Wants an American Heiress.

The Marquis de Fontenoy, in one of her breezy stories of the English nobility, has the following on a degenerate scion of a famous family:

Inasmuch as young Robert Peel has, according to his own admission, come to this country for the purpose of securing the hand of Miss Kate Sanford, the granddaughter of the millionaire president of the Adams Express Company, it may be of interest to point out the fact, ignored apparently by most of his friends and acquaintances here, that he is a bankrupt. It was in last autumn that he came before the courts as an insolvent debtor, with a statement showing that his liabilities amounted to some $300,000, and that he had no available assets wherewith to discharge them.

Nor do these liabilities include the sum total of his expenditures since he has come of age. For he has disposed for cash of his reversionary interest in the property of his father and also the reversionary interest in the old Baronet's life insurance, besides squandering a sum of about $50,000 which he won two years ago at Monte Carlo. It would, therefore, require an American heiress with a big dowry indeed to set him on his legs again financially. Under the circumstances is is difficult to understand the assertion which he is alleged to have made to an interviewer, and, which is published in a New York paper, to the effect that he would succeed to £23,000 a year on his father's death, and it is equally difficult to comprehend how young Peel would fulfill his offer to marry Miss Sanford and to support her, without receiving a cent from her family.

Young Peel has once before been engaged to be married, to the lovely granddaughter of that grand old sportsman, Mr. Lane-Fox, master of the famous Branham Moor Hunt, who enjoys the distinction of having been the first to discover one redeeming point (from the landowner's point of view) in the new death duties just enacted by the present Government. In a speech which he delivered the other day to a number of his fellow-Yorkshiremen, he stated that formerly his sons and grandsons were inclined to grumble that "the old buffer" did not get out of the way to give them their innings, but now they knew that when "the old buffer" did go they would be half ruined by the death duties, and so they were doing everything they could to pet him and keep him going.

Sir Robert Peel, the great statesman of the early portion of the Victorian reign, was a grave, reserved and tranquil worshipper of the British proprieties, with an inborn hatred and terror of anything verging on the unseemly or the scandalous, and superstitiously reverencing the conventional. It is difficult to imagine what his feelings would have been had he lived to witness the mode of life indulged in by his grandson, the heir to his name and to his title.

The Pleasant Adirondack Picnic.

An Adirondack picnic is perhaps the least trying form of that somewhat uncomfortable entertainment. The guide does much of the hard work and the absolutely delightful atmospheric conditions that prevail in the Adirondacks rob the affair of the pains attendant upon the ordinary picnic. The conveyances are the light and beautiful Adirondack boats, the scenery is novel and charming, and the impossibility of catching cold relieves every one of the uneasiness that attends picnicking elsewhere. The return home at evening amid the fascinating sights and sounds that belong to dusk in the wilderness is a fitting close to such an entertainment.

For Travelers to Read.

In traveling, you can easily guard against the dread of getting cinders in your eye by carrying with you a tiny box of flaxseed. The instant you feel a foreign substance in the eye throw back your head and drop three or four flaxseeds on the ball of the eye, then lift the upper lid and draw it down over them so as to hold them in. The relief will come immediately and soon the seeds will begin to work out and bring the offending particle with them.

"My son," said the economical father, "these cigars are better than I smoked at your age."

"Father," replied the youth, "it pains me to do it, but I am compelled to state that they are better than the cigars you smoke now."—Washington Star.

Miss Anna Gould has announced that she would not marry Mr. Harriman, and now Howard Gould announces that he was not engaged to Miss Lulu Hopper. It must be awful to be compelled to dodge matrimony like this. Have the rich no rights?

Makes Her American Debut.

New York, Oct. 16.—Miss Olga Nethersole made her American debut last evening at Palmer's theatre in Gattie's play, "The Transgressor," and was very favorably received by a critical audience. The drama, which deals with painful domestic complications, furnishes ample scope for emotional abilities, and the English actress fully sustained the reputation which had preceded her. She was well supported by an American company.

Ex-Gov. Waller for Congress.

Norwich, Conn., Oct. 16.—Ex-Gov. Thomas M. Waller of New London was nominated by acclamation for congress by the democrats of the Third congressional district. It is doubtful if the ex-governor will accept.

Connecticut's Last Toll Road.

New Haven, Oct. 16.—The last toll road in the state of Connecticut will through legal process be abolished in a few weeks. This road is the old Derby pike and is managed by the Derby Turnpike company, which has been in existence many years. Judge Wheeler of the superior court has ordered the company to file an answer to a complaint brought by the selectmen of the towns of New Haven, Derby, Milford and Hamden in an effort to close up the affairs and make the road free.

Looking for the Train Robbers.

Washington, Oct. 16.—The detectives looking for the Acquia creek train robbers have left that vicinity and gone into Maryland towards Marlborough. Sunday they made a thorough search along the Richmond, Fredericksburg & Potomac railroad tracks in that locality and along the river for several miles. Farmers were questioned as to whom they had seen in the vicinity and every effort was made to secure a clue, but to no avail.

Big Blaze at Oneonta.

Utica, N. Y., Oct. 16.—The table factory at Oneonta was destroyed by fire. Loss, $50,000; insurance, $16,000. Forty persons are thrown out of employment by the fire.

Corporation Notice.

Notice is hereby given that the following Ordinance has been introduced before the Common Council, read the second time and ordered engrossed preparatory to its third reading, and that it is the intention of the Council to adopt the same.

JAMES T. MACMURRAY, City Clerk.
Plainfield, N. J., October 15, 1894.

AN ORDINANCE

concerning the Construction, Maintenance and Repair of Sidewalks.

The Inhabitants of the City of Plainfield by their Common Council do enact as follows:

Section 1. That all sidewalks shall have a width not less than one-fifth of the entire width of the street and all sidewalks hereafter laid shall be raised, from the curbstone line to the side of the street adjoining, in the proportion of five inches in ten feet, unless otherwise specially directed by resolution of the Common Council, provided that this section shall not apply to sidewalks whose width has previously been established by ordinance.

Sec. 2. That all sidewalks in said city shall be well and sufficiently repaired and maintained at the expense of the abutting land owners, so as to be even on the surface and so laid and constructed as freely to shed water and for the width of at least four feet free from turf, grass, weeds, stubbie and other foreign substances.

Sec. 3. That within that portion of said city described as follows, viz:—beginning with the intersection of the northeasterly side line of Norwood avenue with Green brook and running thence along said northeasterly side line of Norwood avenue continuing along northeasterly side line of Richmond street to its intersection with the centre line of Watchung avenue; thence in a straight line to the intersection of the easterly side line of Ninth street with the southerly line of Third place produced; thence along said easterly side line of Ninth street and the same line produced to its intersection with the southwesterly side line of Plainfield avenue; thence with the southwesterly side line of Plainfield avenue northwesterly to Green brook and thence along Green brook to the point or place of beginning; also on both sides of Watchung avenue from Richmond street to Woodland avenue; both sides of West Front street from Plainfield avenue to Grant avenue; and both sides of East Front street from Richmond street to Farragut road; both sides of Central avenue from Ninth street to Randolph road; in all cases in which sidewalks are not already constructed of blue stone flagging, sidewalks shall be constructed at the expense of the abutting land owners, and unless otherwise specially permitted by resolution of the Common Council, shall be composed of blue stone flagging, smooth and even on the surface, and properly laid in one course under the direction of and on such lines as shall be given by the Street Commissioner, and the flags shall not be less than four feet long and not less than two feet wide and not less than one and one-half inches thick in the thinnest part. And within that portion of the City of Plainfield described in this section, in all cases in which sidewalks are not already curbed with stone, cement, concrete, hard and durable substances, said sidewalks shall, when ordered by resolution of the Common Council, be curbed at the expense of the abutting land owners, and unless otherwise specially permitted by resolution of the Common Council shall be curbed with blue stone or ironolithic, not less than four inches thick in the thinnest part and sixteen inches in depth, smooth and even on the surface and laid in one course under the direction of and on such lines as shall be given by the Street Commissioner. That all return curbs shall have a radius of six feet, no piece to be less than three feet two inches in length.

Sec. 4. That within that portion of the said city not embraced within the foregoing limits described in Section 3, in all cases in which sidewalks are not now constructed in the manner hereinafter provided in this section, sidewalks shall be constructed at the expense of the abutting land owners, when ordered by resolution of the Common Council, and unless otherwise specially permitted by resolution of the Common Council, said sidewalks shall be composed of bluestone flagging as specified in Section 3, or crushed stone not less than six inches deep, thoroughly rolled and compacted, or cement not less than one-half inch in thickness, laid on at least four inches of concrete, said bluestone flagging, crushed stone or cement and concrete to be made smooth and even on the surface and properly laid in one course under the direction of and on such lines as shall be given by the Street Commissioner, and said sidewalks to be so laid for the width of not less than four feet, and in case bluestone flagging is used, the flags to be not less than two feet in width and not less than one and one-half inches thick in the thinnest part.

Sec. 5. It is hereby made the duty of the owners of land abutting on the sidewalks in said city to comply with the preceding sections of this ordinance under the direction and supervision of the Street Commissioner. The Street Commissioner is hereby authorized to serve notices in writing upon the owners or occupants of said lands requiring the necessary specified work to said sidewalks to be done by said owners or occupants within a period of thirty days from the date of service of such notice, and shall file with the City Clerk a list of the names of parties on which notices have been served: if any of said lands are unoccupied and the owner cannot be found within the city, the said notice shall be mailed, postage prepaid, to his or her postoffice address if the same can be ascertained; in case such owner is a non-resident of the city and his or her postoffice address cannot be ascertained, then the notice may be inserted for four weeks, once a week, in the official newspapers of the city.

Sec. 6. That in case the owner or occupant of such lands shall not comply with the requirements of the notice specified in the preceding section, said Street Commissioner shall file in the office of the City Clerk due proof of the service or publication of the aforesaid notice and thereupon the Common Council may by resolution order the required work to be done and paid for, and proceedings to be taken to perfect a lien for the costs thereof and to enforce payment of the same pursuant to the statute in such cases made and provided.

Sec. 7. That Sections 1, 2, 3, 4, of an ordinance entitled "An Ordinance Relating to Streets and Sidewalks and Encroachments Thereon", and the ordinance entitled, "An Ordinance Concerning the Construction, Maintenance and Repair of Sidewalks", and the amendment of said last named ordinance approved August 4th, 1890, be and the same are hereby repealed.

Sec. 8. That all ordinances and parts of ordinances which were repealed or abrogated by any ordinance hereby repealed, shall continue to be so repealed and shall be deemed abrogated.

THE DAILY PRESS'S PAGE FOR WOMEN.

THE DECOLLETE GOWN.

The Sprightly "Bab" Writes of Necks and Shoulders.

The Princess of Wales has been expressing herself very freely on the subject of gowns that are cut to low. I wonder what she would think if she could see the circle on the opera nights here in New York! The more bones a woman has the lower her frock is devised, and the more she suggests the fact that she is a close connection of some well-bred cow the lower will her bodice be found. Now, a very fat or a very thin woman never looks well in a low bodice. It is possibly that the throat may be beautiful; show that, then, but draw the line there. It is possible that the shoulders are beautiful; display them if you wish, but at least be a little modest about it. I think if all women realized how men talk and how men look at them when they so lavishly display their charms they would put on penitent's robes and let their bones and flesh be hidden from sight forever.

I like to see a beautiful neck, but I don't like to see an immodest woman. They can talk as much as they want about usage and being unconscious of the impression made. No woman becomes sufficiently used to displaying what ought not to be seen for her to forget it. As a general thing American women have not beautiful necks and arms. Like their French sisters, they are apt to be a little skinny; unlike the French they are not wise enough to hide their defects, but they display them and simply make themselves laughing stocks for wiser people. English women have beautiful arms and necks. Usually they are low busted and can wear their bodice with modesty cut much lower than can the American woman. I do think that women ought to give a little more thought to this, and that the line should be drawn between what is beautiful and what is not, for really that is what makes modesty and immodesty.

MRS. DRAYTON'S GIRLHOOD.

Chummy With Lispenard Stewart; But She Wedded Another.

The N. Y. Press, speaking of a prominent society woman whose name has figured unpleasantly in the newspapers recently, says:

It is necessary to go back many years to arrive at the beginning of the present Astor miseries. They were the years of "Lottie" Astor's girlhood. She was married fifteen years ago—that is, in 1879. Her life prior to that time had been spent at No. 350 Fifth avenue, the stately old home of the late William Astor. The Astors cling to this region of Fifth avenue for some reason or other. John Jacob Astor to-day lives at No. 374, officially speaking, though Mrs. Drayton has been occupying the house all alone. She left a month ago for New England, although she has tried to have it appear that she is in Europe.

When Charlotte Astor was still quite a little miss she met Lispenard Stewart, then a little boy. The two were constant companions. They were both remarkably proficient in the French language and they were in the habit of conversing together in that tongue. There are still old residents of this neighborhood who can tell you the usual tales of people's childhood—how Charlotte was very democratic and gay with the little girls of the block, and so on. When she was 16 she had a Sunday-school class. That was in Rev. Morgan Dix's church. She did not teach her scholars anything about the Bible, but she had them come up to her father's house every Sunday and then they stayed to dinner very often. One day she invited twelve little girls, all poor, and many friendless, to dine with her at her father's house. She had met them through the sewing society at Trinity Church.

William Astor was passionately fond of Charlotte. Hence the stories that her conduct killed him. They were in the habit of taking drives together in Central Park in the seventies. Once, as the police records of that time will tell you, their horses ran away and precipitated millionaire and heiress to the gravel.

Meanwhile Lispenard Stewart had been a fond wooer, and when the Astor heiress became a young lady William Astor was willing that the distinguished young man should be his son-in-law. But it all turned out another way.

THE RETIRED BURGLAR.

His Fondness for Little Children Got Him Into Trouble.

"I always was fond of little children," said the retired burglar, "and once I served a term on that account. I had gone into a house in the western part of the State and rummaged about downstairs, and finally got up and got into a room where there was a man and his wife and a little baby, all asleep. The baby was in a cradle that stood at the foot of the bed; not far from the cradle, standing against the wall, was the bureau. I transferred whatever there was of value in the bureau and then I turned to the baby; I couldn't help it. I turned my light on the kid to look at him, and it woke him up. He stared at me a little and then he began to smile and double up his fists at me.

"Well, he looked so funny that I chucked him under the chin, and that seemed to tickle him immensely; he threw up his legs and his arms, and laughed more'n ever, and tried to say something; all he could say was 'Goo—o—o,' but that was enough. You've heard of women so tired you couldn't wake 'em up firing a cannon in the next room that would wake up in a minute if the baby turned in its cradle? Well, when this baby said 'Goo—o—o' its mother not only woke up instantly but she began to get up before she was fairly awake; and all the time she was looking toward the cradle, and she saw the light long before I could douse it. Then she screamed and I made a great break for the door.

"But the man got there before I did; and, besides being very quick, he was very able-bodied and not the least bit afraid; in fact, he was a better man than I was, and the upshot of this business was that I got four years and six months just for stopping to chuck a little shaver under the chin."

Remark Stale, Too.

Mr. Younghusband—Oh, how I wish I had a piece of the apple pie mother used to make.

Mrs. Younghusband (sweetly)—It would be rather stale by this time wouldn't it dear?

"Can you not read my thoughts?"
They were near the cold, gray ocean with its eternal pulsations.
His ardent glance rested upon her glorious face,
"No," she answered, quietly; "I do not care for light reading."
A bittern rose near them, emitting a loud shriek as it took wing.

WALES AND HIS WIFE'S PARENTS.

He May Offend His Wife by Showing Them Too Little Attention.

The Prince of Wales' return to England from Homburg without paying his promised visit to Copenhagen has excited a good deal of unpleasant comment, particularly among those who recall to mind that the last occasion on which he met his father and mother-in-law was when they came to London for the purpose of endeavoring to straighten out certain differences between himself and his wife—differences which are currently believed to have been mainly due to his somewhat too marked attentions to the beautiful Countess of Warwick, the only woman of whom the Princess has condescended to show herself in any way jealous through all her quarter of a century or more of marriage.

It is now a considerable number of years since the Prince has been at Copenhagen, where he does not by any means find the atmosphere as congenial as does his better half, and his invariable absence from the annual family gathering, which takes place there, has furnished a theme for no little gossip.

Another matter which has attracted attention is the fact that he should have spent forty-eight hours in London on his return from the Continent without seeing his young grandson, Prince Edward of York, before going north to Scotland to stay with the Duke and Duchess of Fife. No one expects the Prince to manifest any abnormal interest in babies, but still there are so many hopes centred on the head of this infant, the poor little chap has been so ill with teething, so entirely deserted by all his relatives, even by his own mother, that one would have thought that after an absence of several weeks abroad the Prince of Wales might have found an hour to run down to the White Lodge at Richmond to see his son's only child.

But in any case I fear that the neglect on his part of his respects to his parents-in-law at Copenhagen is likely to strain once more relations between himself and his wife, who is very sensitive in all questions where her own immediate family is concerned.—Marquise de Fontenoy.

NAMING THE BABY.

Curious Ways in Which Names Are Found in Some Countries.

A Hindu baby is named when twelve days old, and usually by the mother. Sometimes the father wishes for another name than that selected by the mother. In that case, two lamps are placed over the two names, and the name over which the lamp burns the brightest is the one given to the child.

In the Egyptian family the parents choose a name for their baby by lighting three wax candles; to each of these they give a name, one of the three always belonging to some deified personage. The candle that burns the longest bestows the name upon the baby.

The Mohammedans sometimes write desirable names on five slips of paper, and these they place in the Koran. The name upon the first slip drawn out is given to the child.

The children of the Ainos, a people living in northern Japan, do not receive their names until they are five years old. It is the father who then chooses the name by which the child is afterwards to be called.

The Chinese give their boy babies a name in addition to their surnames, and they must call themselves by these names until they are twenty years old. At that age the father gives his son a new name.

The Chinese care so little for their girl babies that they do not give them a baby name, but just call them Number One, Number Two, Number Three, Number Four, and so on, according to their birth.

Boys are thought so much more of in China than girls are that if you ask a Chinese father who has both a boy and a girl how many children he has, he will always reply, "Only one child."

German parents sometimes change the name of their baby if it is ill; and the Japanese are said to change the names of their children four times.

Interesting Facts About Odessa.

Odessa, which is frequently described as the Liverpool of Russia, and which in point of trade and prosperity ranks as the most important city of the Empire, has just been celebrating the centennial anniversary of its foundation. Built in territory ceded to Russia by Turkey in 1792, the foundations of the present city were laid in 1794, and when, at the beginning of the century, the French emigre, the Duc de Richelieu, arrived upon the scene to assume his duties as Governor-General, a post to which he had been appointed by Emporor Alexander, there were only 400 houses and about 6,000 inhabitants in the place. To-day the population is over 500,000 of whom no less than 150,000 are Hebrews, and there is no city in the Empire more bountifully endowed with magnificent public buildings or where the inhabitants are possessed of greater wealth mostly amassed by commerce.

A Boy That Is in It.

A boy who was recently sent to a boarding school has just sent the following letter to his loving and anxious mother:

"I got here all right and I forgot to write before. It is a very nice place to have fun. A feller and I went out in a boat and the boat tipped over and a man got me out, and I was so full of water that I didn't know nothin' for a good long while. The other boy has to be buried when they find him. His mother came from Lincoln and she cries all the time. A horse kicked me over and I have got to have some money to pay the doctor for fixing my head. We are going to set an old barn on fire to-night, and I should smile if we don't have bully fun. I lost my watch and am very sorry. I shall bring home some mud turtles, and I shall bring home a tame woodchuck if I can get 'm in my trunk."

The Rival Hairdressers.

One of the two, by way of advertising himself, cuts his hair in the most faultless manner, according to the latest fashion plate; the other on the contrary, cuts his in the most clumsy way imaginable. The first customer who entered his shop did not fail to take him to task about it.

"How in the world, being yourself a barber, do you have your hair so badly cut?"

"Why, sir, the reason is simple enough. I cannot possibly cut my hair myself, but am obliged to have recourse to my colleague across the way, and he is such a duffer!"

"And I suppose you cut his in return?"

"Of course. And you can judge for yourself whether he oughtn't to be satisfied."—Il Carlino.

THAT COLLEGE BOY.

SOME SUGGESTIONS FOR MOTHERS WITH BOYS AT COLLEGE.

How to Make the College Boy's Room So Attractive that He Will Like to Stay in It. The Bookcase, Desk, Cushions, Etc.

Just how to furnish the boy's room this fall is the question which disturbs every woman who has a son going to college and away from her, perhaps for the first time in his life. How can it be done so that the mother feels that her boy will not remain out late at nights from the very cheerlessness of his room, and how can it be managed so that the boy will be proud of the spot furnished by his mother?

It is probable that the boy for his freshman year will occupy a room either in a college building or in a boarding house devoted to students. The room will have furniture in it, but nothing ornamental—not even a bookcase. May be it will be devoid of closet room or place to hang things—and the boy has never folded anything in his life.

The bookcase thought comes first. Have one made and send it by freight to the college town as soon as possible. Select a new style for the design. Here is the very latest. Have a carpenter make what looks like an immense book, half open, and after he had painted or enameled the outside a lovely green, with a gold back, let him print in white letters the title, "For Play or Profit." The bookcase is then fitted with shelves on the inside of the book and the lower edges are mounted on rollers. The boy will be very glad to stand this in the corner of his room with the back to the room, and when he realizes that it can be rolled toward the table at night, and that its shelves make an admirable place to store away ghosts of unfinished essays and half copied exercises, he will bless the mother who thought of it. The bookcase may stand five feet high if so desired. An art student in New York city has one about four feet tall.

The boy will want a couch. His room may not have one. Order a simple pine shelf with upholstering, springs and all things for comfort. Get a Bagdad rug to throw over it, and inform the boy that his trunk will slip under the couch, so that he need never travel home without his clothes because too tired to visit the storeroom for his trunk.

By way of comfortable chairs make plenty of sofa cushions to be dropped into hard backed rockers and cane seats, and try to make each cushion reminiscent. Let the boy select silk handkerchiefs. Let him ask his girl friends for old bandannas and broad ribbons and ex-parasol covers. Let the cushions seem like home. And to the corners of half a dozen of them sew a stout ribbon loop so that the cushion will hang to chair knob.

In the bottom of the boy's trunk put pictures, unframed, likenesses of authors, artists and celebrities, with colored copies of famous paintings. And in a stout box to go separately, place a small hammer, a gross of gold tacks to becomingly border the pictures, a small saw, a screwdriver, tacks and nails. These surely come good in four years' housekeeping.

The boy will want a desk. If you value his educational factors you will go to the expense of fitting one with a typewriter upon it and a sunken ink well. There will be a sunken tray for pens and pencils, a pencil sharpener fastened upon the side and a small closed receptacle for stationery. Over the desk will be a dictionary, books of reference and the bust of his favorite author.

If you want the boy to be very luxurious, furnish his apartments with rugs, antlers, water colors and all thing he had at home. But if the boy is to do college on a moderate amount yet in comfort, consider the little things. They will go far toward taking away the homesick feeling which often leads a boy into wild company his first college week.

THE LATEST WATER CYCLE.

A Queer Machine That Has Made Eight Miles an Hour.

The latest water bicycle is the invention of M. Gustave Train, a French engineer, living at La Villette, a suburb of Paris. His performances on the Seine lately have been watched with interest by large crowds of Parisians. Frequently it has been used by a young woman.

This machine is for use on the water only, must be carried on land and is not pneumatic. It has two metal wheels with wooden projections. The wheels resemble paddle-wheels. On either side of the cycle are long, narrow, wooden, canoe-shaped platforms. They are hollow and formed of several compartments each, so as to be practically unsinkable.

M. Train claims that he can make twelve kilometres an hour on his machine with comfort, and has done, he says, fifteen. That is about the rate of progress of a regular Seine steamboat. The wash from one of these vehicles does not incommodate the bicyclist.

At a recent trial near the Ile des Cygnes in the Seine the machine was overhauled by a number of newspaper men and bicyclists and pronounced to be serviceable.

The bicycle is of an entirely different type from the machine with which Herr Pinkert recently attempted to cross the English Channel. The German's friends awaited him with confidence at Folkestone, but he did not appear. Fortunately he had been picked up by a French fishing smack a few miles from his starting place.

He was unable to make headway against the strong cross current of the Channel. This did not, of course, prove that his machine was entirely useless.

A Custom of the Astors.

It is a cast-iron rule that when the head of the Astor family arrives at a certain age his photograph is taken and inserted in a frame which contains also those of his predecessors. These framed photographs stand in the head office, where the business of handling the vast estate is carried on, and every day a bunch of flowers is placed in a vase in front of them.

Cheap for Cash.

"Did Miss Trotters make any purchases while she was abroad?"

"Yes, indeed, she got an Italian count off the bargain counter in Rome.—Chicago Journal.

Willie Wiltod's mustache changes him wonderfully."

Florence—Why, you can't see it across the room."

"I know, but he talks about it instead of the weather—Chicago Inter-Ocean.

THE LONDON BEAUTY.

She is Shallow and Brilliant, and Has a Fool for a Husband.

Lena, "the beauty," is seven and thirty years old. She is the best dressed woman in London. She is so shallow and brilliant that one feels she ought to make a great name. Her beauty is perfectly preserved. An excellent digestion and a heart and conscience which have given her no sort of trouble have contributed to this desirable result. "I shall be thirty-eight next birthday," she is in the habit of saying, with the most delightful candor, "and I should be constantly mistaken for my own daughter if I were not so very much better looking."

Her husband? He is a fool, of course. What could he have been but a fool to think that Lena, brilliant and nineteen, could be marrying him for anything except his money? What can he be now but a fool to go on worshiping this woman who insults him a dozen times a day with her scornful good humor and her cruel wit? The world scorns scarcely less than she does herself his slow patience and long suffering. "My husband has no brains to speak of, you know," says Lena, conversationally. Her husband can hear the remark from the other end of the table. "He wrote a prize poem at Cambridge," she continues, enjoying herself very much; "that speaks for itself."

Presently Sir George falls ill. This illness is alarming; it even alarms Lena. In the very middle of the season she goes down to the coal country to nurse her husband. She puts on a very becoming cap and a delightful apron. The sick man always lies so that he can see her. She has done her best to break his heart, and he loves her still. The touch of her hand raises in him a thousand tender emotions. She is still the one woman in the world for him. And she leaves him. The deadly dullness of the place and the monotony and depression of a sick room soon get intolerable. She has always been quite selfish. Admiration is the breath of her life. And who is there to admire one in the coal country? She goes back to town, and a telegram informs her of his death. She laments him and curses herself passionately for a few days. But there is the estate to see about, and one's black and all sorts of things. "I am not sure that black is not more becoming to me than anything else," she says.—Cornhill Magazine.

WILLIAM C. WHITNEY.

A Man Wise in Matters of Business, Politics and Health.

Ex-Secretary William C. Whitney is one of the men who is considered in every discussion of candidates for the next presidential nomination of his party. As Secretary of the Navy he pursued a broad and progressive policy which received the commendation of Republicans as well as Democrats, and in both political and business circles is popular and potent.

When the Democratic Convention of New York met, he was one of the men prominently named for the Governorship, and when the convention was adjourned a day, one purpose of the adjournment was to await the incoming of the Majestic, on which Mr. Whitney was a passenger, and get his consent to the nomination. He peremptorily declined, and Senator Hill, another prominent presidential candidate, was named. The nomination of the ex-Secretary, many believed, would have harmonized his party, as he has prudently kept aloof from the factional fights, and is popular with both wings of the Democracy, but for some reason he preferred not to run.

Mr. Whitney takes remarkably good care of his health, and is, perhaps, the most notable illustration of the value of persistent exercise in New York society. Most men of Mr. Whitney's years who have lived amid the easy surroundings which millions of money can buy are stout and unwieldy or practically invalids. There are a few notable exceptions, as in the case of Cornelius Vanderbilt and Henry M. Flagier. Any one, however, who has attended a meeting of the Chamber of Commerce or any similar gathering where several scores of millionaires are to be seen together, must have been struck by the general look of weariness and the low physical condition which characterizes the men.

The ex-Secretary of the Navy is abstemious in almost everything except exercise. He practically lives in the open air, and rides twice a day, even during the busy season in New York. He often makes it a point in winter to drive from his house in Fifty-seventh street to the Mills building and back in a cab, with the windows open on both sides, even in the coldest weather. This, as he once said to the writer, gives him nearly two hours of rapid driving in the clear, open air. It might be a longer journey and more tiresome than on the elevated road, but the fresh air compensated for all that. In the morning he rides in the park from 7 to 8 o'clock, and this is what is known by the horsemen as "hard driving," the ex-Secretary always having a mount on a mettlesome and powerful hunter, and his journey is not that of a rocking-horse character by any means. In the afternoon, at about 5 o'clock, he is often seen again, galloping or trotting sharply on the west bridle paths. When the weather is clear Mr. Whitney and his brother-in-law, Col. Payne, regularly walk along the block on Fifty-seventh street for half an hour after dinner. The figures of these two well-groomed men, walking methodically back and forth for half an hour or thereabouts in the evening, is a familiar spectacle to the residents of the block.

This Is Worth Trying.

A spirit bath, such as is sometimes used by professional dancers, is excellent to keep the feet in good condition. After bathing them rub the soles and between the toes with a little alcohol, which may be perfumed with a cologne, to make it more agreeable. A systematic bathing of the feet, putting on fresh stockings, or freshly aired stockings, each day, allowing the shoes to rest and air at least twenty-four hours after wearing before they are worn again—all this conduces to the health of the members. There is scarcely anything that is so restful after a fatiguing walk or household employment as a footbath—followed by a change of stockings and shoes. It is astonishing to one who has never tried this simple method of treating the feet how often corns, and even bunions, will vanish before such care.

Rotund Joke.

"No, I cannot marry him. He is not straightforward."

And in view of the fact that his measurement around the shoulders was 27 while his waist measure was 48, they were forced to admit that she was right.—Cincinnati Tribune.

"THE STAY AT HOME'S" REVENGE.

Her Retaliation for the Snub Received from the Summer Girl.

Two of them had evidently just returned from a summer outing and they made no particular effort to conceal the fact. They greeted the third girl with little screams of surprise and delight.

"Why, how well you look after being cooped up in town all summer!" cried the girl with the sunburned nose.

"Do tell us how the city looks in July!" fluttered the girl in the duck suit.

"I am well. It looks just like it always does in July—I haven't minded it a bit," returned the girl with the far-away look in her eyes.

"You poor, brave girl," cooed the girl with the sunburned nose; "I suppose you've decided to live for others, like the broken-hearted people in the novels."

"Well, no, I——"

"I think it was just horrid the way Jack treated you," broke in the girl in the duck suit; "I told him so when he ran down in July—made him take me driving on purpose."

"But, really——"

"Oh, yes! I know what you are going to say. Jack told me the same story about your flirting so with Dick that it caused the quarrel; but I just told him that if you were generous enough to take all the blame I was not silly enough to be deceived by it."

"Oh, but, Sue——"

"Yes, and I just told all the girls how shockingly he had treated you, and they must have snubbed him for it, because he avoided them all the time he was there. He really seemed so lonely and downcast that I felt sorry for him after all and asked him to go sailing once or twice, but he always refused. I suppose he was ashamed."

"But, girls, it was all my fault. I did flirt awfully with Dick, and then we quarrelled and I broke it off, and"——

"Oh, yes, that's just like you, to take his part, after all when——"

"You ought to have more spirit, everybody knows——"

"Look here, girls," said the girl with the far-away look in her eyes, "you may just as well save your sympathy for some one who needs it. I treated Jack just as badly as could be, and it would have served me just right if he had never spoken to me again, but as soon as he came back to town he came over to see me and we made up, and—and we're to be married in September, after all."

And then, says the Chicago Tribune, the conversation seemed somehow to have come to a standstill.

J. SLOAT FASSETT.

He Has Held High Positions and He Aspires to Higher.

Mr. J. Sloat Fassett, of Elmira, is one of the most active and influential of the young Republican leaders of the State of New York. Three years ago he was the candidate of his party for Governor. While he was defeated by a Democratic candidate, it is recognized that '91 was a Democratic year, and that he therefore was not discredited by his defeat. As a member of the Senate he took prominent rank, and he was afterwards appointed by President Harrison, Collector of the Port of New York—one of the most important offices in the gift of the President. In the recent contest for the Republican nomination his vote in the Convention was next to that of Morton, the nominee, although only a small percentage of Republican strength went to him. Mr. Fassett is also the proprietor of the Elmira Advertiser, a well-known newspaper of the Southern Tier, and is in other ways prominent in the business and political affairs of the State.

J. SLOAT FASSETT.

Mr. Fassett married, several years ago, Miss Crocker, the daughter of a wealthy Californian, and she has been no small assistance to him in his political career, although very domestic in her tastes. She has great faith in her husband's future, and his defeat three years ago was no slight disappointment to her, and it was hardly less disappointing to her friends, who thought what a splendid Governor's wife she would make, and how finely she would dispense the hospitality of the Executive Mansion at Albany.

Mrs. Fassett is as proud of her children as she is of her husband, and has the reputation of being one of the best mothers in the city where she lives. A short time ago she came to New York and registered at the Fifth Avenue Hotel, as "Mrs. J. Sloat Fassett, nurse and five children," the quintette of small folks being very much in evidence.

Whether Mr. Fassett obtains the Governorship, which he desires, or not, it seems certain he is destined to have a political future, and it will not surprise his friends to see him hold the office of Governor, Senator or almost any other which the people have to bestow.

AN OPEN SOUTH POLE.

The Present May Be a Good Time to Get at the Southern Pole.

It is evident that some climatic conditions have existed in the neighborhood of the Antarctic pole for the last few years, which have caused masses of ice to appear in frequented waters, by the side of which our usual Northern icebergs are as mole hills to mountains. These have been so reported by masters of vessels making passages in the extreme South, that there can be no mistake about it, even allowing for imagination and exaggeration. No doubt many a ship reported missing found her fate upon or among these ice masses. Such being the case, it stands to reason that the present would be a favorable time for exploration toward the South pole, and efforts have been made for some time to have the English Government undertake such a mission, and endeavor to discover whether a great Antarctic continent, with its lofty volcanic mountain ranges, does really exist, and, incidentally, what new hunting grounds for seals and cetaceans are to be found.—The United Service.

A STRATAGEM.

Gertrude Hazelton was undeniably a coquette. She was not a girl who would win a man's heart merely for the sake of breaking it, but that she was a girl to whom coquetry came as natural as did the smile to her lips her intimate friends and George Hazard, her lover, acknowledged.

George called one beautiful June day to take Gertrude for a drive, but the servant said, "Miss Gertrude is engaged in entertaining a caller." The horses were beginning to get impatient, as was also their driver, when at last she came down the long walk from the house looking very lovely in her white dress, her large chip hat partly shading her face, and as he looked at her he almost forgot his impatience of a moment before.

"Here at last, Gertrude," he said, as he helped her into the carriage, "who was your caller?"

"Captain Leighton," she answered.

"Captain Leighton again?" and Gertrude, looking at him from under her long lashes, saw with mischievious eyes how his face clouded.

"Why, yes, George. Captain Leighton is mamma's friend and mine. He calls often."

"But you know, Gertrude, how I dislike the fellow," and Gertrude smiled as she thought how pleased George would be if he only knew her dislike for Captain Leighton equalled his own, but aloud she said, "I really believe you are jealous of him, George."

"No, Gertrude, I am not; "but Captain Leighton, as you know, admires you greatly, and as you are my promised wife I feel justified in asking you to discourage his attentions."

"I will begin to regret giving you that promise," she said, pouting, "if you get so unreasonably jealous."

"Unreasonably, Gertrude," he questioned, reproachfully, and Gertrude had not the grace to answer him, and maintained a grave silence during the rest of the drive, answering George's questions only in monosyllables: but when at last they reached home she asked him, rather ungraciously, in to tea, which invitation he accepted.

Fay Hamilton, a cousin of Gertrude's, was spending the summer with her, and from the day of their introduction she and George had been firm friends.

After tea Gertrude went at once to the piano, taking no notice of George, for she had not quite forgiven him for daring to remonstrate with her about Captain Leighton; and as she sat running her white hands lightly over the keys, Fay beckoned George to her side and asked him why he looked so unhappy. "Has Gertrude been unkind again?" she asked.

"I am almost forced to think Gertrude is beginning to regret her promise," he answered.

"You are mistaken, George," said Fay, hastily. "Gertrude does love you dearly, but you are too devoted; too ready and willing to obey her every command, and as hers is a nature that wearies of constant attention you should commence practicing indifference yourself and be less devoted. As she delights in making you jealous, make her jealous in return."

"I have not conceit enough," he said, smiling, "to imagine I can make her that."

"But you can," interrupted Fay, "let her be jealous, say, of me. If you will be firm and help me carry out the little ruse to make Gertrude feel something of the pain her indifference causes you, I am sure it will teach her a lesson, and also convince you of her love."

"But what am I to do?"

"Commence devoting yourself to me, especially in Gertrude's presence. Be just as indifferent to her as she is to you, and see how well the plot will work."

"How good you are, Fay," he said looking at her gratefully, and just then Gertrude turned from the piano, anxious to see how George was bearing his punishment, and whether he was looking as miserable as she was picturing him. She was very much surprised to find that he had apparently forgotten all about her, and seemed very much absorbed with Fay.

It was hard work for George in the days that followed to keep up the role he had begun—that of the careless, indifferent lover, for Gertrude, piqued at his inattention, was unusually sweet and gracious to Captain Leighton, encouraging him in every way, greatly to George's anger.

The Captain was very assiduous in his attention to his lovely hostess one evening when there was a little party in Fay's home, and Gertrude was obliged to appear happy, but it was a happiness wholly assumed, for George had scarcely deigned to notice her, but was devoting himself with conspicuous attention to Fay.

Captain Leighton was delighted and he embraced the opportunity to lead Gertrude away from the conservatory to tell her of his love. "I have always loved you, Gertrude," he said, "since the moment I first saw your sweet face, and had hoped to win you for my wife until I saw you preferred another, but now, as you have seen as I have for some time, George's devotion to your cousin, won't you give up this lover, Gertrude, and let me show you how happy I can make you as my wife?"

Gertrude at first was too surprised to speak, but seeing the dark face of the Captain so near her own, said indignantly—"Captain Leighton, how dare you speak to me like this? If, as you say, Mr. Hazard is unfaithful and loves Fay, I am still his betrothed wife." And turning from the discomfited Captain, she hastily crossed the lawn and almost into the arms of George.

"Gertrude," he exclaimed, forgetting his role at the sight of her flushed face and excited manner, "what is the matter? Are you ill?"

"Ill? No," she answered, and then burst into tears.

In astonishment George led her into the now deserted conservatory and said, tenderly, "Will you tell me, Gertrude, what is the matter?"

"Yes, I will tell you," answered Gertrude, in a voice which she vainly tried to steady. "I think after this evening it is time our engagement was ended. Here is your ring," taking with trembling fingers the solitaire from her left hand. "Now you are free to win Fay."

For answer, he only took her in his arms, and Gertrude, looking at him through the tears she had vainly tried to keep back, saw that he was smiling.

"It was all a mistake, Gertrude," he said. "Fay is my friend, nothing more," and then he told her of their plot to test her love, and how hard it was for him to feign the indifference which he did not feel; that the scene in the conservatory was enacted for her especial benefit, as they had seen her coming toward them.

"How cruel you were, George," she said. "But you may congratulate yourself and Fay also, on your plot, for it has taught me a lesson that I needed and one I shall not forget.—Isabel Van Velsor in Buffalo News.

REAL ART IN BEGGING.

The Beggar's First Step is to Get the Attention of His Intended Victim.

The professional beggar in New York uses various devices to get a hearing, for if he can once gain the attention of his intended victim he has taken the first step toward success.

"Can you direct me to Ninetieth street and Seventh avenue?" asked a poorly dressed woman whom I met in Fourteenth street.

"You had best take the elevated road at the corner and get off at Ninety-third street," I answered.

"How far is it?"

"About four miles," I said.

"That's a long ways to walk and I haven't a cent. Could you give me a nickel to pay my fare?"

Within three days I again met the woman at the same place, with the same story.

"Do you speak German?" asked a young man with a Teutonic countenance, in good English.

"I do not."

"I live in Hoboken. Could you lend me three cents to pay my ferriage, as I haven't a cent? I will pay it to some one who is as hard up as I am."

Twice since then the same man has started the same conversation with me, but he gets no further than the first question.

A woman was standing at the corner of Twelfth street and Sixth avenue, gazing intently at the Jefferson Market tower.

"My poor old eyes are not much good," she said in soliloquy, and then, turning to me, asked: "Can you see what time it is by that clock?"

"Half-past nine."

"So late? Mister, could you give a poor woman a few cents?"

At ten o'clock she was still at her post.

"Be careful if you go in there," said a genteel appearing man, as I approached the entrance to a place of amusement.

"Why?" I asked.

"I have just come out, and find I have my pocket picked, and I have to go to Yonkers to get home. Could you lend me half a dollar? I will return it."

I watched the man until he had collected two half dollars.

"Did you drop these, sir?" asked a boy as he ran up behind me with a pair of cheap eye-glasses in his hand.

"No. They are not mine."

"I am sorry, boss, for I thought you might give me a few cents, as I have had nothing to eat to-day."

Two other men were approached in the same manner before I had walked a block. One evening as I turned from Grand street into the Bowery a man who was approaching dropped a coin at my feet, and I had to stop to prevent a collision with him as he stooped to pick it up.

"Nearly lost my nickel," he said, "and I am trying to get another to pay for a night's lodging. Could you help a poor fellow out?"

Very likely he got his lodging.

TRILBY'S SONG OF BEN BOLT.

Written By An American Although Claimed as English.

It happens that much is made in Du Maurier's story of the singing by Trilby of the song "Ben Bolt." In speaking of the song the author in one place says that its harmonies in the playing of Svengali, "were all magnified into a strange, almost holy, poetic dignity and splendor quite undreamed of by whoever wrote the words and music of that unsophisticated little song which has touched so many simple British hearts that don't know any better—and among them, once that of the present scribe—long, long ago." That started a great discussion in England, but the controversy on this side of the Atlantic was settled shortly after it arose by the publication in The Sun of the fact that "Ben Bolt," was written by an American, Thomas Dunn English. On the other side it was assumed in the simple British manner governing such things that the song was written by a Briton, and it was variously credited to every song writer antedating "the fifties," when Trilby sang it to Little Billee's mixed emotions, sitting cross-legged on the model throne in the studio in the Place St. Antonio des Arts.

Well, the song writer, still lives, and in this news story of "Trilby," its successes and its controversies, it is meet that something should be said of him. This much is told in the exact and unimaginative Congressional Directory, for Thomas Dunn English is a member of Congress in the House of Representatives from the Newark, Sixth New Jersey district. He was born in Philadelphia, on June 28th, 1819; was graduated Doctor of Medicine at the University of Pennsylvania in 1839, and called to the Philadelphia bar in 1842, but has mainly pursued authorship and journalism; in 1863-4 served in the New Jersey Legislature; in 1876, received the degree of Doctor of Law from William and Mary College, Virginia; was elected to the Fifty-second and reelected to the Fifty-third Congress.

THE OLD PROVERB TRUE.

Bjornson Believes the "Early to Bed" Proverb is Sound.

In an article by Bjornsterne Bjornson, in the Revue des Revues, the celebrated Norwegian writer inveighs against the growing custom of turning night into day. The practice, he thinks, if altogether pernicious. In discussing it he says:

"It ruins men's health, perverts their tastes, and is as effective in lowering the standard of intellect as the abuse of alcohol. The State ought to legislate in the matter. If State employees and the schools were made to begin work at sunrise and to cease work at midday (or, two hours later, if necessary), this reform would soon lead to others. Noon would again be noon, and all shops would be closed early in the afternoon; evening would once more be evening as in former times. The theatres would be open from four to seven, or from five to eight, and between nine and ten everything would be closed and all lights would be out, as at present in the country, where people have not yet ceased to work during the day and sleep at night. Such a reversion to 'elders' hours' would do much to alleviate the evils from which society is at present suffering."

An Odd Anagram.

We should like to know the name of the author of the following puzzle and anagram:

"A —— old woman with —— intent
Put on her —— and to market went;
"'——,' said she, 'give me, I pray,
The wherewithal to —— this day.'"

Each of the blanks is to be filled with a word of four letters, and the same letters occur in each of the five different words. These words are consecutively, "vile," "evil," "veil," "Levi" and "live."—Chicago Record.

FULL AS A GOAT.

A Billy of That Persuasion Gives a Sad Example of That Condition.

"Look out dere, fellers!" shrieked a touzle-headed youngster, whose flying bare feet were carrying him toward the foot of West Fifty-first street. "Look out dere, Billy's on a tear."

There wasn't very much doubt about it. Billy's tear was extensive. It led him from the sidewalk to the middle of the street, and from the middle of the street back to the curb, along which he tried to walk with as much comic dignity as complete failure. It led him to leap into the air with his feet together, and to come to earth again with his feet helplessly limp and wide apart. It led him to rush across the sidewalk with his head dead set for a fruit stand, and then, before he had got half way across, to plunge suddenly backward down into a German cobbler's shop in the basement. The cobbler gave the intruder a jab with his awl and Billy flew out of the areaway like a compact rocket, scattering the crowd of yelling youngsters that had gathered at the top of the stairs and corkscrewing down the street like the propeller of an Atlantic liner at full speed. There was a policeman at the corner, but he made no effort to arrest the inebriate or to check the procession. In fact, he rather seemed to enjoy it, and held on to a railing that he might not double up with laughter. For Billy was a goat fallen into evil ways.

"It do bate the divil," said the policeman with a fine department accent, "to see that goat whin he's full. He was the daycinist goat on the block till m Flaherty byes giv him a dipper av lager last St. Pahthrick's day, and iver since he's bin a dishgrace."

"But how does he get the beer?"

"Ah! it's a regular can-canner thet he is now. He waits outsoide the saloons, and whin they roul out the kigs and shtands 'm up at the kirrub, Billy just butts them over and laps up the hale-taps. And win he gets full he's the killingist thing outside av a cock foight. There he goes now across to the dump lot on Fefty-secind, and weth the whole divil's gang after 'm. Gobs, but I'll have to rin him in yet, mebbe, I donno."

Meanwhile, Billy had charged his pursuers twice, had overturned a baby carriage with twins in it, and tried to get behind a board fence by going through it. But his legs were getting shaky, and when he reached the empty lot by the riverside he made a last attempt to gather his beard into his mouth with his tongue, tied his front feet together, threw one bleary, beery wink at the cliffs of Weehawken, and gave a faint bleat that ran into hiccough, and fell over. Billy was dead drunk.—N. Y. Sun.

VIRCHOW ON THE MONKEY THEORY.

The Great Professor Condemns Darwin's Evolution Theory.

Professor Rudolph Virchow declared himself emphatically against the Darwinian theory of the origin of species at the convention of anthropologists which met recently at Innsbruck. Virchow is considered by many competent judges the greatest anthropologist living. He has probably made more measurements of the representatives of various races and tribes than any other specialist.

In his address at Innsbruck, Virchow did not mince words in his attack upon Darwin, whose theories, he said, instead of aiding the researches of anthropologists, had been hindrances to them. "Darwin himself," he continued, "refrained at first in his explanation of his law of development, in the work on the origin of species, from applying it to human beings. There has been a long investigation of this theory. The attempt was made to solve the question by speculation, and the 'monkey theory' was set up. It would have been just as easy to come to a 'sheep theory.'"

This "monkey theory," as Virchow likes to call the ideas of Darwin, had been harmful to anthropology. Anthropology to-day, however, bothered itself little about this theory, which was started twenty-five years ago. Anthropologists had to accept the actual world, and the race question naturally appealed to them. It was impossible, in Virchow's opinion, to say whether or not a colored race could descend from one not so marked; no positive example existed. Such a thing in the case of an individual was looked upon as a pathological event.

Metaplasia (change from one kind to another), Virchow declares, could not take place without anomaly. This anomaly could become hereditary. If that took place in a family, "we come upon the hereditary variation, and by multiplication we get the race. We know that a race can retrograde. Where we find an example of atavism, we must ask the question, of course, whether this atavism is not a proof that the race developed from a being of that kind. It is almost always impossible to speak with certainty regarding the origin of a race or tribe."

Not Enough to Warrant Thanks.

"A perplexed Essex vicar" has been appealing to his fellow clerics for advice as to the propriety of holding harvest festivals in the churches this year. In his district not only has the harvest been absolutely ruinous to the farmers, but the laborers have lost so much time through the rains that their harvest savings, upon which they depend to carry them through the winter, have practically disappeared. "What am I to do?" this reverend gentleman asks in despair. "It seems almost a bitter mockery to ask them to return thanks for a benefit which they have not enjoyed and cannot now receive." Clergymen who have written in response to his appeal express sympathy with the sufferers, but, recalling the Apostolic injunction, "In everything give thanks," do not approve the suggested omission of the time-honored harvest festival.—London Telegraph.

Where Widows Need Help to Wed.

According to a vernacular paper in India, a movement in aid of the remarriage of widows among Mussulmans was started two or three years ago in Kalanam, in the Gurdaspur district. The Mahometan religion does not prohibit the remarriage of widows, but long residence in India and contact with the Hindu has made many Mahometans look down upon remarriage of widows.

Considerable opposition was at first shown, but it has been overcome. A widow remarriage association has been formed, and publishes a flourishing weekly paper which disseminates news and information on the objects of the society. Over eighty widows have been remarried within the last three years, and the fund started to aid destitute widows on their remarriage exceeds 20,000 rupees.—London Daily News.

A SONG OF HARVEST.

Reap, O reap: gather and reap.
Where golden ripples laugh and run,
For the hush of noontide, still and deep,
Lies on the ripened ears like sleep,
Where cornlands greet the sun.

Lift up your weary eyes, behold
The golden field, the golden air;
The west wind flecks the swaying gold
With light and shadow manifold,
And gold gleams everywhere.

Reap, O reap: while the sickles sing
The harvest song of a world at rest;
Reap with a rhythmic sweep and swing
Till silence falls with evening,
And peace is manifest.

Lift up your joyful eyes and see
The silver night, with gliding feet
Move from the sunset glimmeringly,
And, priestess of God's ministry,
Hallow the garnered wheat.

LITTLE THINGS.

Brief Paragraphs On Various Matters of Interest.

A Cincinnati man's will, just made public, bequeaths the sum of $1,000 to be used in seeking a method whereby mosquitoes may be destroyed. He had suffered for years from a large bite on the nose.

Mrs. Myra Gaddings, of Liverpool, has invented a reversible bonnet. It is so constructed that it can be changed in ten minutes from a Gainsborough flaring brim to a dainty toque or widow's cap.

The Government has at last found a purchaser for the colossal globe which cost $13,000, and was on exhibition in the Government Building at the World's Fair. The South Park Commissioners have given $10 for it.

The oldest emblem of royalty in existence is the iron crown of the Lombards. The inner strip of iron, according to tradition, was beaten out of one of the nails used at the crucifixion. Its most distinguished wearers have been Charlemagne, Charles V. and Napoleon.

On the isle of Falster, in the Baltic, at Nykjobing, a great find has been made in the unearthing of two superb specimens of antique brass horns of the same model as those in the Copenhagen Museum. These instruments are two yards long, and are decorated with chains and ornaments. They are believed to be 2,500 years old.

A curious case of kleptomania is reported from Paris. A wealthy woman, noted for her wit and brilliancy, has a mania for stealing men's hats. She can create a hullaballoo at a tea party or ball that makes things decidedly unpleasant. The hats are of no possible use to her or to anyone else, because she cuts out the crowns as soon as she gets them. Her malady has been called mania d'chapeau.

Not Without His Father's Permission.

Richard Vaux has never been to a theatre in his life to see a theatrical performance. An interesting incident is given of his boyhood days, over three score years ago.

His father, a highly respected and prominent Friend, resided on Arch street, and believed it was best for his children to be trained within the rules of the good old Quaker habits. At that period Ned Forrest was the brilliant young American tragedian and had captivated all the boys of Philadelphia in his character of the Roman Gladiator and big Indian Metamora. Young Vaux naturally desired to see the great actor play, but shrank from going without his father's consent, so one day he ventured to ask his father for a half dollar to get a ticket. The old gentleman kindly replied in Quaker accent:

"Richard, I don't begrudge the money, but thee knows I don't approve of playhouses, and wish thee to promise me not to go to a theatre without my permission."

The promise was given, and his father died suddenly soon after without giving the permission. Richard Vaux has conscientiously refrained from going to the theatre ever since.—Philadelphia Times.

They Exchange Hats.

"Well, sir," said a well-know Main street man, "I had an embarrassing experience this morning. I invariably sleep until the very last moment, and then make a rush for the breakfast table and car. This morning I had but five minutes to get through eating and catch the car that passed my door. As I passed through the hall I snatched a broad-brimmed straw hat that was hanging on the rack, and just reached the corner in time. Then I dropped into a seat and took the morning paper from my pocket.

"It was not long until I heard a gentle tittering from some dry goods clerks in the seats behind me. They kept it up and somehow I got an idea into my head that they were laughing at me. After a while I turned fiercely to one of them and asked what it was that seemed to amuse them so. He trembled and managed to gasp out that I had on my wife's hat. It was even so, and there was one of those long, gaudy, yellow pins that women use to keep their headgear in position sticking in it. I was so mad that I jerked it off and threw it into the street. Then everybody in the car roared, and I felt furious. When I reached a hat store I stepped in and bought me a hat of the masculine variety.

"Several hours afterward my wife dropped in the store, and she was wearing my hat. There was a pin in the back of it and a little face veil swinging from the front, but it was my hat. I didn't say a word and that woman is wearing it yet. What bothers me is that everybody found out the joke on me and nobody noticed it on her."

Insured Cigars Against Fire.

A man in Germany recently bought one thousand cigars and had them insured against fire. Then he smoked them, and demanded the amount of his policy from the insurance company. The company refusing to pay it, he brought suit and got a verdict.

BISMARCK AND HIS APPETITE.

The Great Prince Afflicted with Hereditary Voracity.

One of Bismarck's chroniclers tells of a visit the Prince and his wife made on the Prince of Putbus. While at the table Bismarck was about helping himself to a savory dish when his wife interrupted him with the caution: "My dear Otto, you know your stomach is not strong?"

"Ladies," Bismarck observed, pushing aside the dish, "have you ever seen a husband more obedient than I?"

The Prince made some jocular remark, and said to the Countess Bismarck that she was the only living person besides the King who could control her husband, to which the Countess replied:

"Oh, no, you are mistaken; there is one other person whom Otto obeys much more readily and with much greater servility than he does either one of those you have named."

"And who in the world is this powerful man?" exclaimed the Prince.

"Guess," said the Countess. "But no, you never could do that. My husband obeys the cook."

"Bismarck says of himself: "I cannot moderate my appetite. I eat too much; in fact I am eating all the time, except when I am asleep. I eat all the evening, and then I become unconscious, like a boa constrictor."

This voracity is hereditary in his family. His father and his grandfather were both known throughout their district as being enormous eaters and drinkers. In his youth, and up to within a few years, Bismarck would drink a quart of wine without setting down the tankard, and he admits having satisfied his appetite frequently with eleven egg omelets at breakfast. He is a perfect encyclopædia for recipes of delicious dishes, and it has been his custom for years to have long conferences with his cook in his library, on the creation of new delicacies.

A PARSON PLEASED BY OATHS.

Profanity of Sailors in a Storm Comforts a Timid Preacher.

A good story is told in the London News of a timid clergyman just arrived from a trip abroad. Coming home on the Berlin the weather was alarmingly tempestuous. The wind blew a hurricane, the vessel naturally rolled, and the parson took fright. He left his stateroom and staggered along to the office of John Kavanaugh, the purser, who is a bit of a wag, and said:

"I'm sure, Mr. Purser, you'll pardon me, but I feel so dreadfully agitated. Kindly inform me, are we in any positive danger?"

Kavanaugh replied:

"Come with me a moment," and he led the way to the forecastle. "Now," continued he, "bend your ear down there and tell me what you hear."

The sailors were swearing in their happy-go-lucky, unconscious way.

"How shocking! What language!" groaned the parson, trembling from head to foot.

"Now, do you for a moment think that those sailors would go on in that profane fashion if there was any real danger?" asked the consoling Kavanaugh.

"True, true," replied the parson, somewhat calmed by the assurance. "One may sometimes pluck the sweet flower of comfort from the vile cloaca of sin. The ways of Providence are indeed inscrutable," and back he crawled to his room, in a degree reassured.

Two hours later the storm had increased in violence, the wind raged and howled more wildly, and huge waves broke over and seemed to submerge the great ship. The parson was out of his room again, more scared than before, and was seen silently, nervously fumbling his way along the deck to the forecastle. He was deadly pale and trembled with excitement. He listened. The sailors were shouting, and a tremendous oath amid the din reached his ear.

"Thank heaven," murmured he. "They are still at it. They still blaspheme. There is no danger yet, the Lord be praised!"

THE WAY IT'S SAID.

A Modern Account of the Sinking of a Tug Boat.

Darkness covered sea and land like a pall and the wind whispered of gruesome woe.

On the glaucous waters of Atlantic Basin the lordly tug W. J. McCaldin rode at her hawser. From his humble bunk stole a sleepy fireman, turned the hose into the vessel's tank and laid him down upon the wharf to court repose.

The water flowed
The tanks filled.
The fireman slept.

Shafts of light shot athwart the sky and glinted upon the ramparts of the land-locked harbor. The silence was unbroken save for the subdued gurgling of the water.

The tanks overflowed.
The tug filled.
The fireman slept on.

Through leaden clouds and azure haze the king of day followed the straggling couriers of the dawn. It was yesterday morning.

The water flowed.
The tug sank.
The fireman fled.
And they haven't seen him since.—N.Y. Herald.

BOUNDARY WORK ENDED.

The Last Monument of the Mexican Border is in Place.

The United States International Boundary Commission practically completed the work of establishing 258 monuments marking the line between Mexico and the United States from El Paso to the Pacific Ocean, a distance of about 705 miles. The Commissioners are Colonel Barlow, United States Army: Lieutenant Gaillard United States Army, and Mr. Mossman of the United States Coast and Goedetic Survey. Their staff of engineers, soldiers and laborers number about eighty. For two years and a half this party has been in the field erecting the monuments and resurveying the boundary line, which was originally established by Commissioner Emery from 1849 to 1853.

The fifty-two monuments then erected have been supplemented by 206 more, which are for the most part plain iron shafts on rock and cement foundations. By agreement with Mexico any error discovered in the original survey by the present Commission shall not be corrected, so far as ownership of territory is concerned. Few errors have been found in the first survey. The largest was along the New Mexico boundary whereby Uncle Sam gains nearly forty square miles of land which the old survey had given to Mexico.

Much of the trip of the Commission was through Arizona deserts. At times it cost twenty-five cents a gallon for water needed at certain remote points by a small party of men and horses.

MADISON PETERS TALKS

Brought to Plainfield by the A. P. A.

EVEN THE PRESIDENT ASSAILED.

Virulent Attack Upon the Foreign-Born Element of American Citizenship—Our Office-Holders Not to Be Respected—A Collection Taken After the Lecture.

Under the auspices of the local branch of the A. P. A., Rev. Madison C. Peters of the Bloomingdale Reformed Church, New York, lectured in Music Hall last night. The audience, about 500 people, filled the lower part of the house. It included a number of Westfield A. P. A. men and prominent Plainfield people, among them half-a-dozen ministers.

Besides the speaker's table there were on the stage 75 empty chairs, arranged in three semi-circles. The table was covered with a large American flag. Mayor Needham introduced Mr. Peters, saying that he was a man well-known for his earnest work against corruption and a strong advocate of the independence of American institutions.

Mr. Peters spoke for an hour and a half on "Americans for America" frequently receiving enthusiastic applause. He said, in part:

America is the best country in the world and those who don't believe it can get out. He is an American who is loyal to the country and lives in accordance with its laws whether he is born or adopted. The country is indebted to the foreign laborers who came here and helped develop the new land.

But it is now the opinion of conservative men that the immigration problem demands more careful consideration. There is plenty of room left for occupancy by vigorous foreigners, but we must protest against the paupers and degraded men who are daily being dumped upon our shores. Since the Civil War three-fourths of our immigrants have been of the lowest class. The majority of the late comers have no claim upon our respect although they hold nearly all our political offices.

If immigration continues for the next 25 years as it has in the past 15 we will see many of our best citizens driven away and their places taken by the worst foreigners. Europe can send 2,000,000 people a year for 100 years and yet increase in population. The foreigners can work for half our wages and save money. Yet last year, while the poor were suffering, 400,000 immigrants arrived. There is one cure for hard times. In November adjourn the present Congress permanently and suspend all immigration until we have found work for the men here to do.

I believe in protecting American capitalists by a reasonable duty, and American laborers by putting a heavy per capita tax on the European laborer, at present a free raw material. The immigrant should have a good-character certificate and be able to read and write his own language. Americans are afraid to express their true opinions because of the foreign vote. At the next election pledge your Congressman to restrict immigration. In that way you will solve the temperance question. Of the wholesale liquor dealers 65 per cent. are foreigners, of the brewers 75 per cent. and of the saloon-keepers 93 per cent. One good thing about the saloon business is that Americans are not in it. Foreign-born people and their children contribute 71 per cent. to our poor houses and prisons, and nearly all belong to one church.

Everybody knows that in Brooklyn, New York and Jersey City we naturalize men before they have recovered from seasickness. In New York they hold office before the smell of the steerage has left their clothes. Ten years should be the term of residence. I had to live here 21 years. The Federal Courts should naturalize and stop six months before each election. While one party enjoys the foreign vote the other is working to get it. The strength of the Irish vote was shown in New York when Mayor Hewitt failed to be re-elected after he had refused to fly the green flag on the City Hall. It is natural to have sympathy for one's native country, but it is treason to demand that any but the American flag should be raised on a municipal building.

There are thousands of naturalized citizens better than those Americans who are ashamed of their nationality and ape the English fashions. There are other foreigners who are founding colonies all over the country, especially in the West. Naturalization should be granted only to those who on their arrival express a willingness to learn the language of the land. If those people want papal domination in religion and politics let them go back. If we let them stay we have the right to demand individual submission to the government. Their coming has corrupted politics. In large cities voting is a farce; it is the counting that does the business.

The agitation in New York was not started by the Christian church but by one man, Dr. Parkhurst. The position of the church on all burning questions has been a shame and a disgrace. The preachers are all right, but their congregations will not let them talk. A change has come in the past year; even Tammany is making respectable nominations. Some people do n't believe in mixing religion and politics. Church members who do not vote should be excommunicated. In 1896 we will land an American in the White House. Since Grant and Garfield we have not had an American in the White House who dared say anything American. Pick up the papers and see if Grover Cleveland is appointing Americans.

What we want is independence in politics. I do not belong to a secret society or an anti-Roman organization, but I come in contact with many members and can assure you that that in the A. P. A. and similar societies are now 3,000,000 voters. Every large city in the north except Philadelphia is in the hands of the foreigners. Sixteen per cent. of the population hold 75 per cent. of the offices and 50 per cent. of these are Irish Roman Catholics. If all were held by Presyterians or Baptists I would assail them as un-American. These patriotic societies are not against any one church, but against corruption. The alleged exposures of the A. P. A. are not true, but the oath of the Clan-na-Gael was brought out at the Dr. Cronin trial. The members promise to vote and work for the Irish in politics. The A. O. H., the Knights of Columbus, the Sons of the Emerald Isles, are similar. They have more men armed than the militia. To prove it look at their parades.

The attempt to found an Irish empire in America was frustrated. The Chinese were legislated against only to please the Irish. The Chinese earn $15,000,000 a year and send home but $2,000,000, while the Irish send back $10,000,000. If there is one thing that should be preserved it is the American school. We have in our land a delegate from ignorant Italy to teach us how to solve educational problems. If we need such a man let him come from some nation wiser than us. Put in the schools none but defenders of the public-school system. If any denomination wish a denominational dance let them pay the denominational fiddler with the denominational coin.

At the close Mayor Needham commended the spirit of the speaker, and asked those present to remain while a collection was being taken up to defray the expenses of the evening.

RAILROAD ARREST.

First Victim of the Investigation of Illegal Junk Sales.

James Nolan of Dunellen, a signal man who is employed on the Central Railroad between Dunellen and Elizabeth, was in Justice Newcorn's Court yesterday afternoon on a charge of selling supplies to Frank Hollenbeck.

He pleaded not guilty and was committed to jail to await the action of the Grand Jury. It is claimed that he stole metal at two different different times, the last offense being Oct. 2.

The New Physician.

Dr. Wm. B. Mathewson, who has settled in Plainfield, having handsome offices in the new Babcock Building, comes here from Somerville, where he has practised for the past eight years. His brother, Dr. Charles Mathewson, has also come to reside with the family, but is not in active practice.

Dr. Mathewson has long ranked as one of the ablest physicians in Somerset County, but for some three years past has been out of health and nearly retired from his profession. Recently, by reason of a sufficient period of rest, he has become strong, and, as he has a number of patients in Plainfield and the city has an attraction for his aged mother, he has removed hither.

His residence is 97 Rockview avenue. His mother married some years ago the late Governor Greene of Rhode Island.

Fancy Dances by Graceful Children.

Mme. Menzell gave a children's reception in Park Avenue Hall yesterday afternoon from 4 to 6, opening the season for new pupils, and showing the proficiency of those she taught last year. The fancy dances given were the rose, the butterfly and the gypsy. New gavottes were the Kaiser William, the Harvard and the Badger.

The regular work of the afternoon class begins next Thursday. Last evening the private class for adults began its sessions. The hall was very prettily decorated with flowers and was brightly illuminated with gas and electricity. Mme. Menzell has a very successful season before her. By Christmas the new hall which L. E. Hart is building for her will be ready.

Fifth Street Sociability.

Miss Lucie P. Davis, assisted by Miss Ethel Staples of Brooklyn, entertained a number of her friends at her home on East Fifth street last night. The evening was enjoyably spent in a game of progressive tiddle-di-winks in which Miss Eleanor T. Van Deventer won first prize for the young ladies and Charles Noble first prize for the young ladies. After the game and a recitation by Miss Mary Lucky, refreshments were served.

Among those who were present at the informal gathering were the Misses Grace E. Overton, Mary Lucky and Eleanor T. Van Deventer; Walter B. Rittenhouse, J. Vincent Rittenhouse, F Wilbur Cornwell, Charles Noble, Henry Brower and Alvah Davis.

Catarrh Cannot Be Cured

with local applications, as they cannot reach the seat of the disease. Catarrh is a blood or constitutional disease, and in order to cure it you must take internal remedies. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, and acts directly on the blood and mucous surfaces. Hall's Catarrh Cure is not a quack medicine. It was prescribed by one of the best physicians in this country for years, and is a regular prescription. It is composed of the best tonics known, combined with the best blood purifiers, acting directly on the mucous surfaces. The perfect combination of the two ingredients is what produces such wonderful results in curing catarrh. Send for testimonials, free.

IMPUGNS THE COURT.

HULETT SAYS THE JUDGE AND HE WERE ON THE OUTS.

Bitter Feeling Shown by the Man on Whom Judge Coddington Suspended Sentence.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE DAILY PRESS:

Since H. C. Runyon has done and said all he could in order to draw that healing balm, satisfaction, for his much injured Mau-vaise Honte done by profane and indecent language used toward him by me, as he would have one to believe, I desire to have space to reply thereto and to some statements made through the press positively deny. I do not do this from a sense of fear that the public have or will be misguided in their judgment of this affair by what has been done or said. I feel confident that in the minds of those who are acquainted with my character and reputation they must have condemned the action of Runyon as being one without any foundation of sense, and have clearly seen that it was the ostentatious intention to injure me in the eyes of the public. It is true that several creditors have sued and obtained judgment against me, but the judgments have all been satisfied, and my effects today are free and clear from encumbrances. Men in all lines of mercantile business have been pushed close to the wall of late, and my own business has suffered so greatly that at times it has been impossible to meet all demands promptly. I have heretofore met with that success in business that it has encouraged me to believe the people had placed in me their confidence, and I still believe so.

It is also true that I met H. C. Runyon on the street last Wednesday and used words towards him that some might term indecent, but not the scurrilous and approbrious terms he alleges. I admit that I am a man of a hasty temper, and what man, placed and passing through what I have, harrassed by cares of business, would not, as I did, lose judgment and say things perhaps not the wisest. Out of these words H. C. Runyon would have a mole hill made into a mountain, and if he never uses any more indecent words than those he can conscientiously acquit himself of using profane language. As for being lodged in jail, that is absolutely false. As for finding me guilty as charged and severely reprimanding me, City Judge Coddington did nothing of the kind. This was so stated in The Courier, and is a base fabrication, and one that shows some parties are more interested in causing me trouble than in trying to gain my patronage. Sentence was not postponed until Saturday but the case was adjourned until then in order that the Judge might learn the law. The case was reopened Saturday morning and Judge Coddington after being shown the law, refusing to abide thereby and knowing full well the charges had not been sustained, did out of the overwhelming kindness of his heart suspend sentence on me, at the same time expressing himself that he having known me for many years and was acquainted with my many shortcomings and hasty temper, and had ofttimes through friendship remonstrated with me for it, and not only so expressing himself as to his friendliness to me, but for the benefit of the sordid crowd present takes advantage of the occasion to air many things concerning my private life, tending to humiliate me, and thus overstepping his jurisdiction as a "jurist".

The complaint was a most trivial one, and if Judge Coddington had been the friend he professed to be, he would not have in the first instance entertained such a simple charge. Before this occurred there was a difference between Judge Coddington and myself. Sufficient said on that point. The reason is apparent.

Now I do not wish to occupy any more of your valuable space, but I wish the public to know that this matter is but of small notice to me, feeling assured that the people of Plainfield are better acquainted with my character than to use this contemptible and pernicious matter to my discredit. I feel it a duty I owe myself to make this statement, knowing it will be credited, and that those who have taken upon themselves the burden of attempting to injure me, will receive the just condemnation they richly deserve.

FRANK M. HULETT.

Judge Ill and Court Closed.

The October term of the Union County Circuit Court came to an abrupt end yesterday, after one of the shortest sessions on record. Judge Van Syckel sent word to Judge McCormick that he was sick and to dismiss the jurors until next Monday, when the criminal trials begin before Judge McCormick. Only one civil case has been tried this term before a jury, which is something never before known in the history of Union County. Most of the thirty cases on the calendar were put off for the term by the Judge because the lawyers were not ready to try them, and his illness settled the fate of the remaining cases to be disposed of this term.

Thatcher Triumphant.

A number of Plainfielders attended the performance of George Thatcher's "About Gotham" in Elizabeth last night. The house was crowded. The play is better than ever, and is doing big business everywhere it goes.

THE WAY IS OPEN

to health and strength, if you're a nervous, delicate woman. The medicine to cure you, the tonic to build you up, is Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription. You can depend upon it. The makers say it will help you, or cost you nothing. They guarantee it.

As a safe and certain remedy for woman's ailments, nothing can compare with the "Prescription." It's an invigorating, restorative tonic, and a soothing, strengthening nervine, perfectly harmless in any condition of the female system.

It's a marvelous remedy for nervous and general debility, St. Vitus's Dance, Fainting Spells, Dizziness, Sleeplessness, and all the nervous disorders due to functional derangements. It has often, by restoring the womanly functions, cured cases of Insanity.

COMMITTEES CHOSEN.

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVORERS RE-ORGANIZE THEIR DEPARTMENTS.

In Addition to the Business Transacted, Reports Are Given of the Recent State Convention.

The meeting held in the lecture room of Trinity Reformed Church by the Christian Endeavor Society last evening gave substantial evidence of the growth and deep spiritual progress of this large society. The object of the gathering was to hear reports from delegates who attended the Christian Endeavor State Convention in New Brunswick last week.

After the opening exercises, which were conducted by Miss Emma F. Gillem, the pastor, Rev. Cornelius Schenck, was called on and spoke of the opening sessions of the convention, of the pleasant and courteous treatment given by the reception committee. The address on behalf of the city by Mayor J. H. VanCleef was noted with emphasis, as was also the speech of President Austin Scott on behalf of Butgers College. Rev. F. T. Pockman for the churches had welcomed all in a most cordial manner, and Mr. Schenck said his remarks were of great interest. H. B. Zimmerman spoke on behalf of the business men and the local union, and it gave evidence of the close relation between the two. All were highly pleased with the eloquent response by Rev. J. C. French for the State. His stirring words gave all greater enthusiasm for this grand work.

At the conclusion of Mr. Schenck's remarks, H. J. Martin thought all felt like singing, and the State song, composed by J. A. Sandford of Montclair, was given out, and those present had opportunity to give vent to their enthusiasm.

E. E. Anthony followed in his usual happy and humorous way, telling of the denominational rally, also of the evening session, at which time an excellent address was given by L. D. H. Gilmour of Newark, on "Spirituality in our Music". He told of the amusing address of President-elect Rev. J. C. French, in which the latter told of the way in which he promenaded the streets, taking in the cold air and scenery, by arising each morning at 5 to attend the 6:30 sunrise meeting, which was one of the best of the convention and attended by about 700 Endeavorers.

The grand parliament led by Rev. J. A. Roundthaler, D. D., of Indianapolis, was given brief note by Rev. Cornelius Schenck.

H. J. Martin followed, telling something of the able and eloquent address of Rev. D. J. Burrill, D. D., of New York, on "Good Citizenship".

Miss M. Berkaw and Mrs. Josephine Tier gave excellent reports of the Junior Rally, the part which they took being one of the most inspiring of the convention.

The speakers all gave evidence of these gatherings by their enthusiasm and their evident desire to impart to their societies something of the inspiration and blessings received.

An excellent and efficient corps of workers was appointed by President Fred Smith at the Christian Endeavor meeting in Trinity Reformed Church last evening. This society, which is the largest and best organized in Union County, hopes with God's blessing to accomplish much in its labors "for Christ and the Church".

The standing committees appointed are:

Lookout—E F Gillem, Mabel Wilson, Sadie Searing, John H Van Winkle, Jr., and Ed Weaver.

Prayer Meeting—Mrs F C Adams, J J Williams, Misses I M Lanning, E E Wikoff, and Henry Seader.

Flower—Misses May Sheppard, Grace Berg, Carrie Mehl, Lizzie Dunlap, and Viola Huff.

Missionary—Misses E C Benedict, Clara Huff, Gertrude Creveling, C J Smalley; Jesse Metler.

Reception—Misses Cora Gardner, Garretta Wikoff, Phebe E Mills; F E Woodruff and Elmer Garretson.

Music—Misses Mamie Berg, Lillian Force, Mrs J C Van Dyke, Mrs Elmer Garretson; C D Wheeler.

Temperance and Good Citizenship—A C Clemens, Chauncey Colthar, Corra Ryno, A D Honeyman, Harry Crawford.

CYCLING COMMENT.

It is stated that Monte Scott is to ride for the hour record when he goes South, that he will beat Titus's time, and that his mount will be a Columbia.

The Crescent Governors decided last night to have an entertainment. President Rogers appointed Haynes, N. B Titsworth, Pearson, Carey and Coward a committee of arrangement.

The Bicycling Division of the P. H. S. A. A., will take a run to Somerville and Bound Brook tomorrow afternoon. The start will be made from the High School building at 2. Everyone invited to join.

The Crescent Wheelmen met last evening and re-elected Captain J. A. Haynes. Mr. Haynes being regarded as perpetual captain, this was a formality which had been forgotten at the regular annual meeting.

CHURCH CHIMES.

The Mission Band of Willing Workers of the Congregational Church will hold a paper-doll social this afternoon in the church parlors. Refreshments will be served after the entertainment.

The Ladies Foreign Missionary Society of the Congregational Church will meet next Thursday afternoon. The subject will be "The War Between China and Japan and its Effect on Missions". Miss F. F. Clark will read a paper and the whole society will take part in a general discussion. Special music will be provided.

—The Young Men's Auxiliary will hold their regular meeting this evening in the Y. M. C. A. rooms on East Front strtet. All young men are invited.

SIDEWALK ORDINANCE.

It Extends the Territory Requiring Paving.

LAND OWNERS TO PAY EXPENSE.

Damages Paid to Mary McCann for Her Fall, But Refused to Etta Garey—Various Municipal Improvements Accomplished.

The Plainfield Common Council last night transacted considerable business, the most important of which was the adoption on second reading of the sidewalk ordinance which is published in this issue of The Daily Press.

A petition for a fire box at Liberty and Second streets was referred to the Committee on Fire and Buildings with power.

In the application for the acceptance of far Madison avenue and Stelle avenue, Corporation Counsel Marsh was instructed to draft an ordinance.

Isaac W. Bushmore and others asked for light on Eighth street west of Grant avenue. The matter was referred to the Committee on Police and Public Lights.

A crosswalk was ordered for Second and New streets, and a lamp for the Elm Place bridge.

$118 50 was ordered returned to James Moses on account of the abandoned Peace street extension. Constable George R. Rockafellow's bond was ordered filed. H. W. Ulrick was given permission to erect a frame extension at 145 East Fifth street.

The Fire and Building Committee was authorized to dispose of the house gong at headquarters and substitute an electric indicator. Having sold the old fire bell, the committee was authorized to buy another $125 fire box, and will probably place it on Arlington avenue.

Corporation Counsel Marsh recommended settlement with Mary McCann for her fall on an uneven sidewalk. $315 02 was ordered paid for her damages and costs.

Etta Garey's claim for damages for falling in a catch-basin was refused, as Counselor Marsh held the city not liable.

James Brown's application to move his house from East Second street to North and Leland avenues was refused, the house being too big.

A crosswalk was ordered for Third and Liberty streets across Third street, but that across Liberty was deferred till the Third street flagging be laid.

Stove and coal were ordered for the sewer engineers room.

WILL SCIENTISTS TALK SO!

The Progress of Slang and "Dialect" Suggests a Dialogue.

After asserting that slang is a cowardly subterfuge for profanity, the Brooklyn Eagle suggests the horrors which the future may develop on the lines of slang and dialect. Let us suppose, it says, that during the late convention of scientists in Brooklyn an argument had occurred between a couple of eminent specialists who were then assembled, and that it took such a form as this:

"What's de game, cully? Another occiput of a megatherium Cuvieri?"

"Naw, I ain't getting roasted on megatheriums now. Dis is a quartz pseudomorph after calcite."

"Yes, it is—not. Dat's no pseudomorph."

"Ah, what are you giving us?"

"I'm not giving you taffy, and dat's on de level. See? I'm giving it to you straight."

"You're a cuckoo."

"I'm a mineralogist, and I know me business. Get onto de curves dere. I mean de angles. Throw your four eyes on dis side and you'll see its fifty degrees."

"Dat's a fracture. Chase yourself around de block."

"Go and cut your teeth. You'd call a calamite de thigh of a dinornis, you would."

"Huh! You're de blokey dat wanted to label dat chunk out of a glyptodon a concretion."

"Well, it is a concretion. You make me tired. Go and buy a felt hat so as to let your mind grow."

"Well, we've had our little diff for a daily bracer. See you later. Got to go and tell de chumps about silicates now, and dis pseudomorph goes."

"I've got to go on at 11 o'clock and help dose mugs to get on to de pleiosauri. So long."

One contemplates such a possibility as this with horror, but who can say that it will not be so? The dialect writer is haunting the east side and the barrooms and the back counties to get material for his repertory, and the best magazines take his compilations after he has written them. Such a mass of language cannot be launched upon society without some of it abiding.

GREAT, BUT DISAPPOINTED.

Of the First Five Presidents Four Died Disappointed.

Among the illustrious men who designed and constructed what has become the greatest republic and most powerful nation of modern times, Washington, John Adams, Jefferson, Madison, and Monroe were, successively, called to the head thereof. Of those Washington alone died when he was still in the glamor of his great achievements.

Although John Adams lived some twenty-five years after he was retired from the Presidency, he took no further part in politics. His time was spent among his books, in literature, and in the society of his friends. So bitterly did he feel his failure to be elected again that he would not stay in the President's mansion to induct his successor.

Jefferson lived eighteen years after leaving the White House. At that time he was so embarrassed with debt that he feared arrest from his creditors, and his poverty continued to the end. He was forced to sell his library to Congress, though he obtained for it only one-quarter of its value. But for a contribution of $16,000 made to him by the cities of New York, Philadelphia, and Baltimore, he would not have been permitted to die in the home which he inherited. Imagine Jefferson, author of the Declaration of Independence, a leading member in the national Congress, Minister to France, Secretary of State, twice President of the United States, and founder of the Democracy, having the recollections of his great career interrupted by duns, and his days harrassed with the cares of procuring the money necessary for the requirements of his household!

Madison lived nearly twenty years after he had been President, but the public's concernments were not his. His books and a few friends were all that was left to him during the long period of his retirement from daily and voluminous duties to a season of enforced repose.

Monroe, who was twice elected President, and the second time almost unanimously, and who was the founder of a doctrine in American policy which is known by his name, retired first into obscurity as a county Justice of the Peace in Virginia, and then came to New York, where he was reduced to desperate financial straits, and where he died at last in poverty, and forgotten. How many men now know even where his bones lie buried?

Thus, of the first five Presidents, who were also conspicuous as founders of the Government, one alone died with his ambition satisfied and unchilled by neglect.

A Curiosity in Railroad Building.

One of the curiosities of railroad building is the construction of a road running from Ismid, a harbor about sixty miles from Constantinople, to Angora, about 300 miles. The bridges, sleepers, stringpieces and telegraph poles, as well as the rails, are of iron, nine-tenths of which is of German manufacture. The bridges average about four to the mile, there being 1,200 of them, the longest having a stretch of 590 feet. In addition to these there are sixteen tunnels, the longest measuring 1430 feet. This is the only railroad which penetrates the interior of Asiatic Turkey, the Smyrna lines being near the coast.

A Thousand Pardons for a Wedding Gift.

The Princess Alix of Hesse is finding that her coming greatness—that of a future Empress of Russia—is already casting long shadows before. She has finished her course of religious education necessary to be received into the Russian Church and is now being instructed by a Russian tutor to the imperial family sent from St. Petersburg for the purpose. Her position in court circles is much higher by reason of her approaching marriage, and recently a cordial letter from the Czar asked her what especial "act of mercy" she would like to have "ukased" in honor of the important event, "the pardoning of one thousand persons" being suggested by way of example.

The "Blue Man" is Dead.

Thomas H. Hood, known as the "Hoosier Blue Man," died the other day in Jefferson, Ind. His skin was as blue as an indigo bag. The false complexion was brought on many years ago by taking large doses of nitrate of silver as a cure for epilepsy. He was cured of the malady, but the remedy turned his skin blue.

TOO BIG TO BE HURT.

Eiffel Tower, Like the Mighty Ajax, Defies the Lightning.

The Eiffel tower was struck by lightning during a heavy thunder storm that passed over Paris recently. The announcement of the fact in the papers caused considerable excitement among the gay Parisians, who shuddered at the thought of their beautiful tower being destroyed. M. Emile Gautier, the popular writer on scientific subjects, hastens to reassure these timorous souls. The tower, he says, has been struck scores of times during its five years of existence, and has suffered no ill effects whatever. Electricians, of course, will feel no surprise at this statement, knowing, as they do, that it is only the resistance of a non-conducting body that rouses dangerous activity in the current. Mr. Eiffel's gigantic construction, built up of iron and steel throughout, with its supporting columns penetrating deep below the surface of the soil, is simply a huge lightning conductor. It may possibly attract storms, but it robs the clouds of their electrical fluid, and passes it harmless into the earth as soon as they come with the radius of its attraction. M. Gautier was himself on the tower upon one of the occasions when a flash descended upon it, and he experienced no unpleasant sensation whatever.

A GIANT WOODPECKER.

His Wings Measure Nearly a Yard from Tip to Tip.

To those readers who may only be familiar with the average-sized woodpeckers found in this country, it will be interesting to know that there are species of this famous group of birds in existence, which, even when compared with such sizable species as the well-known "Flicker," appear in proportion like great ravens placed by their lesser congeners, the garrulous magpies.

Our common pileated woodpecker, which ranges over North America at large, may attain a length of nearly twenty inches, while the elegant black woodpecker of Northern Europe, the pic noir of the French, averages but three or four inches smaller.

Both of these, however, undersize the true giants of this interesting race of birds, for our ponderous ivory-billed woodpecker, now found only in the wilder timbered districts of the Gulf States, has a length of twenty-one inches, and a wing extent of nearly a yard. The magnificent imperial woodpecker of Mexico and Central America is even larger by an inch or more than the last named species, and is truly a most remarkable bird.

There is one very peculiar thing about these big woodpeckers, and that is, in their general coloration they are all of a glossy black, with white markings, and the males have brilliant scarlet crests or other color areas of the same, on their heads. The imperial and the ivory-billed have powerful white, chisel-cutting bills, capable of making great havoc with the partly-decayed trunks of forest trees, where they search for the pine-destroying insects which constitute their chief food.

The Last Revolutionary Pensioner.

It is on record that the last pensioner of the Revolutionary War, under the special act of Congress, died in the neighboring town of Freedom, Cattaraugus county, on the 5th of April, 1859, at the age of 109. He was a young man of 23 when the war closed, and his name was Daniel F. Bakeman. Thus the man who bore a musket under Washington lived to hear the tidings of Lee's surrender at Appomattox. Who is to be the last survivor of that mightier host, the Grand Army of the Republic? The time will come when not a single soldier who fought for the Union will remain, and the last one if 25 at the time of his discharge, and he lives to the age of old Daniel Bakeman, will not die until the year 1931. The chances are that the very last man of the Grand Army will have passed over and pitched his tent "on fame's eternal camping ground" before the year 1956.

Sam Spence's Strange Adventure.

A queer story comes from North Carolina. Sam Spence, a colored man of Union county, was in the woods gathering wild grapes. He climbed a tree and slipped off. His foot became entangled in the vines and he was suspended in the air by one foot. Spence had to wait for assistance, which did not arrive for more than an hour. The blood all flowed toward his head, and after he was taken down he became very sick. Since that time all the wool on his head has pulled out and he is getting almost as white as a white man. His skin first began fading in spots, which have now spread all over his body.—Atlanta Constitution.

Another Ebon Lover of Watermelons.

A Maryland exchange has this novel story, which tends to prove that dark colored organisms have an affinity for watermelons:

The melon growers of Kent county are now combating an entirely new enemy to the watermelon. Within the past 10 days crows have been doing great destruction. They attack the largest melons just before they are ripe. One melon grower in the county several days ago carried out from the patch over 100 of his finest melons, which had been so badly pecked by crows as to be worthless.

Fireworks at His Funeral.

A New York undertaker has an order to bury a young man in a casket lined with red, white and blue silk, and have the funeral take place at nine o'clock at night, with a band and all the mourners carrying torches. At the grave there are to be fireworks, and "Auld Lang Syne" is to be sung before parting. Each anniversary of the funeral is to be observed with a feast, here his memory is to be drunk standing.

Menkhoudjinoff and Dalai Lama.

Two Russians, MM. Menkhoudjinoff and Oulanoff, recently arrived at Shanghai after a journey of two years and nine months through Thibet, in the course of which they visited Lhassa and had an interview with the Dalai Lama. It was the first time since 1811 that Europeans have accomplished this feat.

THE YOUNG MAN WAITED.

In the room below the young man sat,
With an anxious face and a white cravat,
With a throbbing heart and a silken hat,
And various other things like that,
Which he had accumulated.
And the maid of his heart was up above,
Surrounded by hat and gown and glove
And some thousand things that women love
But no man knows the names thereof.
And the young man sat and waited.

'Twas then she tried to put on her hat.
Ah me! a trying ordeal was that.
She tipped it high and she tried it low,
But every way that the thing would go
Only made her more agitated.
It wouldn't go straight and it caught her hair,
And she wished she could hire a man to swear,
But alas, the only man lingering there
Was the man who wildly—waited.

And then, before she could take her leave,
She had to pump up her monstrous sleeve;
Then a little dab here and a wee pat there,
And a touch or two to her hindmost hair;
Then around the room with the utmost care
She thoughtfully circulated.

Then she seized her gloves and a chamois skin,
Some breath perfumic and a long stick pin,
A bon-bon box and a cloak and some
Eau de cologne and chewing gum,
Her opera glass and a sealskin muff,
A fan and a heap of other stuff;
Then she hurried down, but ere she spoke,
Something about the maiden broke.
So she scurried back to the winding stair,
And the young man looked in wild despair;
And then he—evaporated.

OPPOSED TO DYING IN BOOTS.

So Captain Joe Albee Will Leave Indian Territory.

Everybody in Southwestern Texas knows Capt. Joe Albee, who made a record about thirty years ago by fighting and killing two Indians, who had set upon him with great fury, while maddened with liquor. That took place at Little's Ranch, and was witnessed by a dozen half-breeds and a score of white men, who refused to interfere because, as Capt. Albee says, they were afraid "it might break up the show." The old frontiersman has been East, recently, selling horses.

"I get this way about once a year," said Capt. Albee, "but when I go home now I don't think I'll get to New York for three or four years—anyway not until business picks up a little. It has taken me longer to sell twenty head of horses than it took to sell fifty half a dozen years ago, and you can't get any money for 'em, either.

"I have been livin' in Muscogee, Indian Territory, for the last eight months, but I'm thinkin' I'll pull up stakes and get back to Texas. I'm gettin' a little old now to be fussin' with people, and there's considerable of it in that neck o' woods just now. The trouble is with the Cherokees. They are a bad lot, taken altogether, especially those who have negro blood in 'em. The policemen are Cherokees, and the authority they possess makes 'em kind of ugly at times. There's just a little too much shootin' goin' on there to suit me. It would have been all right twenty years ago, but not now. I intended to locate in Muscogee, but hadn't been there a week before Larry Matthews, a stock raiser, shot an Indian in the head for asking a ride on his pony. The Indian didn't mean to steal it, mind you. He came back to the saloon where Matthews was drinkin' with some friends, and before you could say scat he was shot. Then an Indian policeman shot Matthews and a free fight followed. Two men were killed, and two were wounded who had nothing whatever to do with the row. That's the way it was kept up about two or three times a month, so I've about made up my mind to quit. I'm not hankerin' to die with my boots on."

A SUNDAY-SCHOOL MAN'S BLUNDER.

He Invited a Visitor to Speak and the Visitor Spoke.

"I see," said the smiling superintendent of the Sunday school, "we have a stranger with us to-day. We are always glad to hear from visitors, and if the brother over there near the stove has a word of encouragement to give us we shall be glad to listen to him."

The stranger, though evidently somewhat surprised, came forward and mounted the superintendent's platform.

"I had not expected to be called upon to make any remarks," he said, with the easy manner of one used to speaking in public, "and yet I hold myself in readiness whereever I may be to advance the cause of truth and goodness by every means in my power. It has been my observation and experience, children," he continued, "that truth always pays. Never tell a lie. Never deviate from the exact facts, however strong the temptation may be. In the course of a somewhat varied career in which I have been thrown much before the public, I have made it a rule to show my colors, to be upright, just, honorable in all my dealings with my fellow men, and to be prepared to back up with the facts whatever representations I may make. A reputation for truthfulness and implicit honesty is a possession nobody can take away from you."

He paused a moment, set his lips firmly and cast a searching look over his audience. Then raising his voice, he went on:

"It has been my lot, children, to minister in a humble, and, I trust, a useful way to the instruction of the people. I have sought to combine amusement with that instruction. Whatever tends to instruct and amuse the people elevates them. The works of nature, children, are wonderful. To present those wonders in a proper way to the gaze of mankind, to show the marvelous design that runs all through creation, to explain these marvels and wonders so as to make them plain to the understanding of the humblest and most unlearned, is a work, children, that any man may be proud to engage in, and I consider it a duty as well as a pleasure to take this opportunity of calling your attention to the fact that I shall be your neighbor next week with a magnificent collection of ostriches, some fresh from their native plains and some born and reared in mild captivity amid the refining and elevating influences of civilization, and the price of admission to this unequalled display of nature's marvels has been placed at the insignificant and merely nominal figure of fifteen cents. I shall hope, dear children, to see you there. Tell your friends."

Amid a silence dense enough to cut with a knife the eloquent stranger stepped down from the platform and resumed his seat. The superintendent had unwittingly roused the celebrated ostrich farm orator of the Midway Plaisance.

SLOWER THAN TIME.

Russian Mails that Take a Week to Get Only 240 Miles.

Russia has an elaborate system of railways which she constantly develops, and innumerable postal routes which are supposed to cover amply all important points of her European empire. Nevertheless, correspondence within her boundaries is laborious and uncertain. Many efforts have been made in recent years by her rich merchants to induce the Government to improve the postal service, but up to the present time they have proved unavailing. The newspapers of the empire have suffered most keenly from the mismanagement of the Post Offices. Their complaints have multiplied recently, and the Nowoje Wremja, which is more widely read than any other Russian daily, has now begun a newspaper campaign for reform. The editor gives this description of the conditions which he desires to see bettered:

"Our postal system in the interior of the empire is, as is generally acknowledged, very primitive. Its defects are due in a large degree to the greatness of the distances as well as to the comparative scarcity of proper railway connections. We have cities which geographically are hardly 250 miles apart, yet for postal purposes are separated as Kieff and our beloved Toulon. Curious stories might be told of the correspondence between two such cities. A friend of ours in Kieff exchanges business letters constantly with several persons in the neighborhood of Rovno. The distance from Kieff to Rovno is about 240 miles, and the persons in question live about four miles from the latter city. The correspondence between our friend and his acquaintances near Rovno can be carried on only by means of registered letters, as no unregistered mail matter ever reaches its destination, whether sent from the one city or the other. If not registered, letters simply disappear without leaving a trace that might lead to their recovery. For years this sort of thing has been the rule hereabouts. Our friend has his letters ready at 5 o'clock P. M., at which hour the main Post Office in Kieff has been closed for the day. He is obliged, therefore, to mail them at the main telegraph office. This office is wont to deliver registered letters only twice daily, at noon and 4 o'clock, to the main Post Office, although these hours do not correspond with the time of departure of the mail trains, but are chosen arbitrarily, perhaps because the relief of clearing up the office has a more beneficial effect on the digestion of the civil servants just before luncheon and dinner. Now after our friend has got a registered letter into the main Post Office by this roundabout way the sequence of events is as follows:

"The letter is sent to the main telegraph office at 5 o'clock on Monday, say. On Tuesday at noon the letter goes to the main Post Office. At 9 o'clock on Wednesday it is sent away on the mail train of the Southwest Railway, and it arrives in Rovno at midnight. At Rovno the postal force is so inadequate to the amount of work falling to its lot that the Kieff mail cannot be sorted before Thursday. At 1 o'clock on Friday afternoon a notice is sent to the village some four miles off that a registered letter from Kieff is at the Rovno Post Office. The village authorities do not make haste, and the person addressed consequently does not get the notice before 5 o'clock on Saturday afternoon. As on Sundays there is no delivery from the Rovno Post Office, he must wait until Monday to get the letter of which he has received notice. That makes one week the time required for the carriage and delivery of a letter between cities 240 miles apart."

The editor adds that, under such circumstances, it is impossible to establish close trade relations among the great cities of the Russian interior.—N. Y. Sun.

BETRAYED BY HIS SWORD.

How a Gift From Napoleon Brought Marshal Ney to His Death.

When Napoleon I. entered Cairo, on the 22d of July, 1793, he was presented with three swords of honor, richly inlaid with precious stones. He brought them back to Europe, and in 1803 he gave one to Marshal Ney, and another to Murat, keeping the third for himself.

Ney received his at an imperial reception; the sword passed from one to another of those present, among whom was a young subaltern of the Auvergne Regiment.

When Napoleon escaped from Elba, Ney left the king and took sides with his former chief. After the allies entered Paris the place became too hot for him, and he made preparations to get out of the country with a pass procured for him under a false name, but his wife and a friend persuaded him that there was really no danger, and he decided to stay in France.

Then came the order for his arrest; he fled to a castle in the possession of some friends, and succeeded in reaching it without his whereabouts becoming known. But he was destined to be betrayed by the sword of honor given to him thirteen years previously.

He was one day looking at the paintings in one of the more public rooms of the castle, which he usually avoided, and feeling tired, he threw himself on a couch, first taking off his Oriental sword, which he always wore out of affection for the Emperor.

Suddenly he heard voices. He sprang up and hurriedly left the room, forgetting his sword. A minute later a party of ladies and gentlemen entered the room, one of them being the young subaltern of the Auvergne regiment, now a colonel.

He at once recognized the sword, and, in spite of all the owner of the castle could do, he called in some gendarmes and proceeded to make a search for Marshal Ney.

Finding that he was discovered, Ney gave himself up quietly. On the 7th of December, 1815, the Marshal was shot, scarcely two months after the owner of the second sword—Murat—had met his fate in the same way.

Hospitality.

Hospitality exercised in domestic life means the opening one's heart and one's door with cordial welcome to a friend; means the giving one's best to a friend, without counting the cost. It is an open question whether our present fashion of making most of our entertainments formal is not doing away with olden hospitality. The matron of a former day was accustomed to provide for a possible extra guest or two at every meal, and no trouble beyond the putting on of a plate or a cup was needful if a friend happened in. Stately dinners they were, with evening devoted to invited guests, but the children grew up in an atmosphere different from ours, in that no sudden pressure of company disturbed the home arrangements.

BURIED SPOILS OF PIRATES.

Story of a Find Made on an Island Off the Virginia Coast.

The traditions of the treasures buried by the pirates Kidd, Lafitte and Blackbeard gave a romantic interest to the Atlantic coast from Massachusetts to Georgia, says the Cincinnati Commercial Gazette. Thousands of men have searched for these buried chests of gold, but there is authentic record of only two "finds," one on the New England coast, the other in Virginia. The latter case is said to have furnished Poe with the foundation of his story of the "Gold Bug." The facts are briefly these: In the Atlantic ocean, lying off the Virginia coast, there are two or three heavily wooded islands.

One of these was the resort of Blackbeard, and was called by his name—Teach. A neighboring island belonged a century ago to a wealthy woman on the mainland. It was a wilderness which never had been inhabited but by foxes, wild ducks and other game. A trusty old slave, Ben, was placed by her in a cabin on the beach to bring her occasionally game and fish. One day, while walking on the shore, Ben saw a yellow gleam in the sand. It came from a gold coin. He searched breathlessly along the beach and found a rusty iron box, one end of which had fallen out. Within was a heap of coins with crosses and silver crucifixes. The old man went to his cabin and brought an empty salt bag, which he filled with the coins. He then dragged a heap of brush over the chest to conceal it, set up a broken sapling to mark the place, and started for the mainland to give the treasure to his mistress.

Tradition says that Mrs. Hetty was a hard, suspicious woman, and that when the trusty old negro gave her the mass of coin her joy was equaled by her terror that he would rob her of the great treasure which he had left behind. A heavy storm raged for five days. It was impossible for her to make the voyage to the island in an open boat, and she would not trust Ben, nor even her brother or son, to go with her. At the end of a week the sea was calm enough for her to cross, but the sapling, the brush and the chest had disappeared. An unbroken crest of sand covered the whole coast. Ben could not find the spot then nor ever afterward. His mistress, it is said, kept him at the search as long as he lived, aiding him herself, but in vain. Some of the gunners who have visited the island have also searched for Mrs. Hetty's chest, but it never has been found. Nothing is certain but the fact that the bag of coin was brought to her and that the touch of the gold and her suspicions and greed made her life wretched to the end. The poor fishermen of the coast understand the moral of her story. When any of their number grows avaricious they say that he has "rubbed his hands against Mrs. Hetty's iron chest."

DEADWOOD HAS CHANGED.

You Can Get Your Rights Now Without Showing a Gun.

"I am just from Deadwood," said G. F. Ziegler at the St. James hotel the other night, "and I tell you it's a different looking place from the Deadwood of eighteen years ago. I was out there then. Those were the days when a man carried his life in his hands, or rather in his pocket, for he had to be on the trigger if he expected to get the best of a quarrel over the most trivial subject. It seems to me there must have been something in the air which made men bloodthisty. I don't know how else to account for it, unless it was the example set by the Indians.

"If the occupants of the graves in the Deadwood cemetery could come forth and talk what a wonderful tale they could tell.

"I kept a general store in Deadwood in 1876, and was there when Rev. Henry Weston Smith was so cruelly murdered. He was on his way to Crook City to preach a sermon when he was ambushed by Indians who mistook him for Frank Curley, a desperado who had stolen a squaw and ill-treated her.

"They shot Mr. Smith from behind, and cut him to pieces after he fell from his horse. I once saw two gamblers take a man out of a den on what was called "two pair row," and march him up to the head of the street, where they shot him through the head. He had been cheating them at their own game for more than a week, and the night they caught him he happened to be unarmed. All that is past now. You might think you were in a quiet mining region in Pennsylvania. The site of my old store is occupied by a little Methodist church. The place called the "bad lands," where there were so many gambling saloons and so many murderers, has never been rebuilt since it was burned several years ago. The old-time miners who worked on grub stakes have disappeared. Their places have been taken by wealthy corporations. Placer mining has been abandoned entirely. Once in a while an old fellow will bring in a bag of gold dust, but not often. It is hard to make gold mining pay nowadays without plenty of capital, because with all the new appliances for quick work used by the big companies the individual operator has very little show.

"Farming has picked up wonderfully in the Black Hills, and there is a good chance there for young men who are willing to plod along for a while content with small profits. The trouble is the young fellows who go from the East have their heads full of old yarns about striking big fortunes in a week, and it's hard to get them down to the unexciting routine of a farm, but that is what will pay out there in the long run."

Quite a Difference.

REMARKABLE CURES

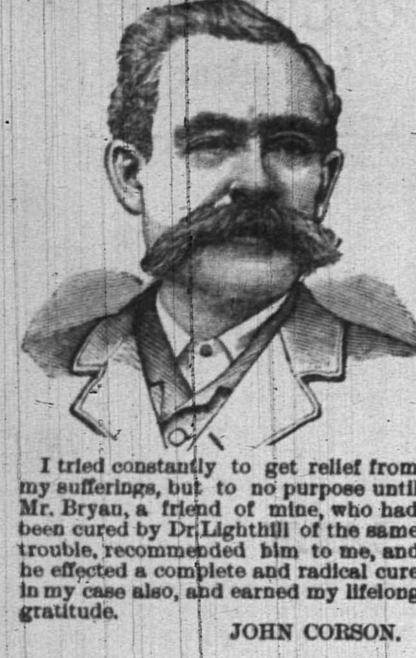
Of Recent Date.

A Statement from Ex-Mayor John Corson, Esq., of Clinton, N. J.

To the Public:

I acknowledge with the utmost pleasure the wonderful cure which Dr. Lighthill effected in my case.

I had been a sufferer from piles, which gave me constant pain and distress, during twenty long years, attended with frequent loss of blood and with great and painful protrusion of the pile tumors and rectum whenever my bowels moved.



I tried constantly to get relief from my sufferings, but to no purpose until Mr. Bryan, a friend of mine, who had been cured by Dr. Lighthill of the same trouble, recommended him to me, and he effected a complete and radical cure in my case also, and earned my lifelong gratitude.

JOHN CORSON.

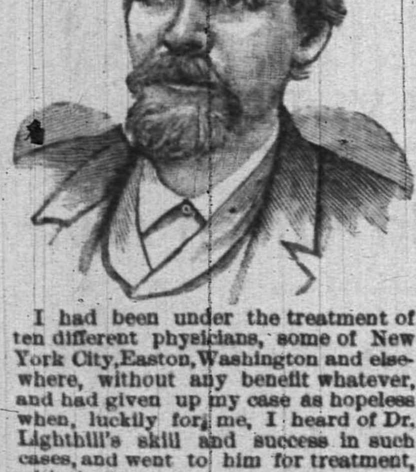
THE CASE OF MR. PETER G. EYCK, OF BISSELL, HUNTERDON CO., N. J.

Dr. Lighthill Effects a Complete Cure Where Ten Physicians Had Failed.

To the Sick, Suffering and Afflicted:

For many years past I have been afflicted with bleeding piles. Every movement of the bowels was attended with loss of blood and with intense pain which lasted for hours and sometimes all day. My condition was aggravated by a prolapse of the rectum, which greatly increased my suffering and sometimes gave me most agonizing pains.

So great was my distress and so bad my condition that I sold my farm, not being able to work it any longer. At one time the protruding pile tumors became so highly inflamed and swollen that they could not be replaced, and I had to go to bed, applying hot poultices for three months before I could get relief.



I had been under the treatment of ten different physicians, some of New York City, Easton, Washington and elsewhere, without any benefit whatever, and had given up my case as hopeless when, luckily for me, I heard of Dr. Lighthill's skill and success in such cases, and went to him for treatment, with the happy result that he effected a radical and permanent cure in less than four weeks's time; and I am glad to say that the entire treatment gave me neither pain nor distress.

I consider my cure perfectly wonderful, and so do all my friends and neighbors. I am confident that there is no case of piles which Dr. Lighthill cannot cure.

HOLDING UP TRAINS

Utter Helplessness of the Traveling Public.

Startling Facts Made Plain by Recent Robberies—Interesting Statement by the President of the Adams Express Company—Dink Wilson One of an Organized Gang.

New York, Oct. 17.—President L. C. Weir of the Adams Express company makes an interesting statement in regard to the recent train robbery in Virginia. "The fact that stands out above all the others in connection with the robbery," said Mr. Weir, "is that it would have been just as easy for the gang who did the work there to have stopped a train like the Empire state express on the New York Central railroad or the New York & Chicago limited on the Pennsylvania. Railroad trains must stop on the proper signals. These the robbers could easily give, and, when stopped, two of them could go through each car of such trains as these as easily as through the cars of any western or southern train. One, with drawn revolver, could order the passengers to hold 'hands up,' while the second could follow him down the aisle with a bag for the valuables, as he collected them. This is the way it has often been done before—in the west. I would wager that take nine-tenths of the passenger trains leaving this city and you would not find one armed man on board, that is, with the exception of the messenger in the express car. Who is it in the east that habitually carries a revolver, with the exception of regularly appointed peace officers? Perhaps now and then a sporting man attending the race tracks or a professional gambler. Occasionally a train employe may have a revolver, but it is at his own expense, and they depend to overawe unruly customers rather on their fists or clubs, and the axes carried on most trains for use in accidents. A gang like that in Virginia would find it the easiest thing in the world to have gone through a train like the Empire state express filled with well-to-do passengers."

Dink Wilson One of a Gang.

"It is true," continued Mr. Weir, "that such gangs have not operated in this state, but at the time that Dink Wilson and his brother Charlie committed their robbery in Syracuse, with the result of murder, we were cognizant of and had our eyes on the assembling of a gang of seven men to which they belonged and who we thought and still think intended to put up a train robbing job either in this state or some neighboring state. It was while they were making preparations to do the work that, as a sort of side issue, they committed the Syracuse burglary. The gang in Virginia is reported to have contained seven men, and so did the Wilson crowd. There are some other points of resemblance between the two episodes."

"Do you think that there is any connection between the two cases?" was asked.

"I cannot say as yet," replied President Weir. "If there is, the gang must have taken in two new members to replace the Wilsons, for Dink has been executed and Charlie, his brother, is now under sentence of death for the same murder. Our detectives, I am satisfied, can place their hands on all the old band if need be.

"At any rate, there is not the slightest of doubt that every man in the Virginia gang will be brought to justice, though it may take time. In the history of our express business we have never yet failed to run down and have punished every train robber who has stolen from our company, and in all the cases of train robbing, with looting of express company property, there has been but one case where the man has failed to be captured."

Will Reopen a Big Plant.

Watertown, N. Y., Oct. 17.—Watertown is rejoicing over the announcement of a favorable decision by the United States court on the suit between the New York Air Brake company and the Westinghouse company. The New York Air Brake company's extensive plant is located here and employs nearly a thousand men when in full operation, but it has been practically idle for several months awaiting the decision just rendered. Work will now be resumed and the number of employes gradually increased until the usual number are at work.

Death of a Noted Colored Lawyer.

Washington, Oct. 17.—Judge Macon H. Allen, the first colored man admitted to the bar of the United States, is dead in this city. He was admitted to the bar from the office of Hon. Samuel Fessenden (father of the secretary of the treasury) at Boston, May 3, 1845. He removed to Charleston, S. C., after the war and was judge of the criminal court and of the probate court of Charleston county, S. C.

President Will Not Talk Politics.

Buzzards Bay, Mass., Oct. 17.—The wind is blowing almost a gale here, and the president is satisfied to remain at Gray Gables. He will not speak or attend the exercises at Attleboro on Thursday, as reported. He is as noncommittal to-day as he was two weeks ago as to his preference in regard to New York politics.

Attempt To Kill Da Gama Failed.

New York, Oct. 17.—A cable dispatch from Montevideo says: The police report that an attempt to kill Admiral da Gama has been frustrated and the two would-be assassins have been arrested, one a Portuguese, the other a Brazilian. Both arrived three days ago from Rio de Janeiro.

Murderer Garrett Brought Back.

Pittsburg, Oct. 17.—Charles Garrett, who murdered his wife at Lebanon, on Sept. 16, was brought to Pittsburg last night and locked in the Central police station. He will be taken to Lebanon to-day. He was arrested at Columbus, Ohio.

Diphtheria in Ottawa.

Ottawa, Ont., Oct. 17.—There are 30 cases of diphtheria in this city at the present time, and as a measure of precaution the public and separate schools in Dalhousie ward have been closed.

DELAWARE GREETS HIM

Bayard Given a Grand Welcome Home.

Enthusiastic Reception at the Opera House—He Is Visibly Affected at the Demonstration and Makes a Speech Expressing His Gratitude—He Also Tells of His Observations Abroad.

Wilmington, Del., Oct. 17.—The leading city of the Diamond State gave a rousing "welcome home" last night to her illustrious son, Thomas F. Bayard, the United States ambassador to Great Britain. The affair surpassed anything of the kind ever given in Delaware. The city was brilliantly illuminated and decorated and 10,000 persons turned out to do Mr. Bayard honor. The opera house in which the formal reception was held was crowded with a representative audience of 2,500. The ambassador accompanied by Mrs. Bayard and Henry L. Bryan, the former private secretary to Mr. Bayard, arrived in Wilmington from Washington at 12:19 o'clock, and were met at the Pennsylvania railroad station by Levi C. Bird, a prominent attorney of this state and a brother-in-law of Mr. Bayard, and Samuel Bancroft, jr., the democratic candidate for congress from Delaware. Mr. Bayard was driven to the country seat of Mr. Bancroft, where he took dinner.

Shortly after 7 o'clock the ambassador and Mr. Bancroft were driven to the residence of Senator Geo. Gray, where a distinguished party awaited them. The arrangements for their reception to the man who has represented Delaware in the United States senate, who was secretary of state during President Cleveland's first administration, and who was the first American citizen to be appointed an ambassador, were in charge of a joint committee from local democratic clubs. Three hundred members of the Bayard legion, headed by a brass band, greeted Mr. Bayard at Senator Gray's residence at 8 o'clock and acted as the ambassador's escort to the opera house.

Grand Demonstration.

The procession was loudly cheered and fireworks were set off incessantly as it moved to the place where the reception was held. Mr. Bayard reached the opera house at 8:30 o'clock, and the assemblage of 2,500 gave him a demonstrative welcome as he walked upon the stage, preceded by Senator Gray. The stage was filled with a gathering of prominent Delawareans, while in a box to the right of the stage were seated Wm. M. Singerly, the democratic candidate for governor of Pennsylvania; national democratic chairman, Wm. F. Harrity; collector of port, John D. Read, of Philadelphia, and other Pennsylvanians. In the box opposite were Mrs. Thomas F. Bayard, Miss Florence Bayard, daughter of the ambassador; Mrs. Levi C. Bird, his sister; Mrs. Senator Gray and her daughters Misses Anne and Emily; Mrs. Dr. James A. Draper and Miss Draper and other Wilmingtonians. Mr. Bayard was presented with a huge bouquet by local admirers and he then took a seat in the middle of the stage between Senator Gray and Mr. Tunnell. When Senator Gray arose to welcome the ambassador to his home, the gathering cheered loudly. Mr. Bayard also arose and stood with bowed head as the senator addressed him. Mr. Bayard was perceptibly affected. When the senator had concluded, Mr. Bayard began his response. He spoke extemporaneously for a half hour and with much feeling. Mr. Bayard said, in part:

"Mr. Gray, my kind friends, my dear countrymen and my good neighbors: It is very difficult to find phrases that are to express what I feel to-night, for to-night is an occasion of feeling to me far more than speaking. It is no time for cut and dried phrases. It is no time for prepared speeches. It is a time when human hearts are to echo with the same good feeling. (Applause). Before I can make you understand the deep gratification it has given me after I have tried to live according to my own conscious, to find that I have lived according to yours also. (Great applause). To understand how I feel, reflect for a moment that it was within a stone's throw of the place in which I now stand, and where we meet, that my eyes first saw the light. Here was I born. Here were my days of infancy and manhood passed in private life, in public life as your representative, and now the representative of this commonwealth and her people, an integer in the mighty union which is the nation of the American people. In representing them I have been sent to a foreign country and never before in my life have I ever been separated for so many months from the home of my nativity and from the home circle to which most clearly my affections were attached. But for nearly eighteen months of absence, I return and my heart swells with gratitude when I still see the friendly faces.

Our Name Stands High.

"From one and all in the country to which I have been accredited has come to me nothing but the most unbounded courtesy and kindness. Everywhere I found the name of an American was received with honor; was received with favor, such as I simply believe had been extended to no other people than ourselves. (Applause). From the beneficent, the benign, the venerable lady whose virtue so illustrates the happy reign over a contented people, to the officials and down to the very heart of the people I have found nothing but friendly hands, kind words and offers of good service. I went as a friend; I have been received as a friend. Had I not been a friend I would have been disqualified for my place; but I went as a friend to clear up all misunderstanding and to bring together the hearts and the feelings of two nations bound by ties such as exist between no other two nations on the globe. I would say that there has been so much that I have seen to create great respect for the temper of the people and their government, it is but just to say so.

"It is but just my countrymen that I should testify to you the spirit of respect for law, the law-abiding spirit of that people, not simply among the accomplished men who deliver their judgments upon the intricate cases of property and personal rights in their courts of justice; not among them alone, but among the humbler classes of those other officials who mingle with the body of the people at large. In a year and a half's residence in England and most of the time in the city of London, I have never seen a policeman with a batton or stick in his hand; I have not seen a blow struck by one; I have never heard violent language from one; I have not even seen violence or jest from one. It is not only a daily and an hourly sight but it is almost a constant sight in that vast sea of traffic. It is a common sight to see, when traffic is the greatest, and vehicles are almost piled one upon the other one quiet man in the uniform of a police officer walk into the middle of the great crowd, turn his back upon the vehicles and hold up his hand. He is the incarnation of law, and the uplifted hand of that plain policeman is obeyed and respected, and until he lowers it, the traffic does not attempt to continue. That is an every day sight almost a momentary sight in any part of the crowded streets of London. What does that imply? To me a great deal. Not simply that that man was a trained man in the performance of his duty, doing it unhesitatingly, but that there was a responsive chord in the hearts of the people that recognize him as the instrument of the general law and taught them that there was only safety in obedience to law honestly executed. (Great applause). I could pass to many other exhibitions of comprehension of what was necessary for the conduct of the state. I could speak, and speak feelingly of the strong venerative principle that pervades these people. I could tell you of other experiences, somewhat of a varied character, tasting of the delights of a genial and refined hospitality. I have never passed a night in any house in which that family did not kneel every morning in common prayer to the ruler of the world. Everywhere it is done. It is not done ostentatiously, but is done by the hearts of the people and it is almost their universal practice. Further I would go, showing you that there are the mother ties and roofs of respectability.

"I have been a long time there and I do not remember that I have heard any oath. I have been a long time there and I do not remember, I am sure I never heard at any entertainment in the height of jest a story that a man would object to telling to his wife, his sister or his daughter. I feel it my duty to say these things of a people who have received me so kindly and so cordially into their houses, into their homes, into their public dinners and into their assemblies."

KRZMINISKI DIES IN PRISON.

End of a Famous Case in International Diplomacy.

Washington, Oct. 17.—A dispatch received at the state department from Consul General Jonas announcing the death of Stanislauss Krzminiski, the naturalized American citizen, in a Russian prison at Warsaw, Oct. 14, terminates a diplomatic incident which marked a new phase in the relations of the United States and Russia in which Secretary Gresham is understood to have impressed upon the government of the czar the advantages of our statute of limitations which is unknown in Russian law. Krzminiski had lived in America since 1869 and had become naturalized. He returned to Russia and was arrested for a political crime, that of participating in a Polish revolution thirty years ago. Upon the prompt demand of this government he was released on this charge but immediately rearrested for alleged embezzlement committed while he was a police official just before he came to America, and he was awaiting trial on this charge when he died. The United States was powerless to intervene for his release on this charge but was confined to an effort to secure a prompt trial. Russia has always been excessively unwilling to make any exception at the request of other countries to the rigid Russian methods of government, but the United States has frequently, by persistent arguments, indirectly obtained American justice for Americans in Russia. Even in the Krzminiski case Russia was driven to abandon the political charge which was more than Germany or England has been able to secure in similar cases.

Chance for Women Architects.

Atlanta, Ga., Oct. 17.—The building committee for the woman's department of the Cotton States and International exposition has decided unanimously to employ a woman architect and offers premiums for the best designs with competition open to women everywhere. Those wishing to compete are invited to correspond with Mrs. E. C. Peters, of Atlanta, who will furnish all necessary information.

Oldest Mason in the World.

Port Alleghany, Pa., Oct. 17.—S. G. S. Rowley, believed to be the oldest Mason in the world, is dead here, aged 95 years. He was born in Otego, N. Y., in 1799, and in 1852 he organized Macedonia Lodge, No. 258, of Bolivar, N. Y., of which he served as worshipful master several terms and was chaplain for a quarter of a century.

New Albany, Ind., Oct. 17.—While Postmaster Schingler was at dinner a thief slipped into his private office and took $4,000 worth of stamps and $500 in cash from the safe. There is no clue to the robber.

For Rifling Letters.

Pittsburg, Oct. 17.—The United States grand jury has returned a true bill against Louise A. Droffner, postoffice employe at Williamsport, for stealing money out of letters.

COERCION IN TRADE.

Injunction Against the National Association of Master Plumbers.

Providence, R. I., Oct. 17.—Judge Tillinghast, of the supreme court, handed down a rescript of national interest to trades people. The national association of master plumbers has a branch in this state, which recently issued circulars to the wholesale dealers in plumbers supplies, warning them not to sell supplies to plumbers who were not members of the association. These circulars were particularly aimed at the MacCauley Bros., of this city. This firm undertook to purchase supplies in the open market but was in some instances refused, thus being put to considerable inconvenience. The brothers applied to the supreme court for an injunction to restrain the association from interfering with their business. H. J. Turney, the secretary of the master plumbers' association of Providence was made the respondent. The court says that undoubtedly the members of the association have the right to purchase their supplies where they please and to combine and agree that they will not patronize wholesalers who sell to non-members of their own association; yet they have no right by threats to coerce wholesalers not to sell to non-members of that association. The defendant association was using unlawful means to compel the plaintiff to join the association and that the association was wrongfully interfering with the business of the plaintiffs. An injunction was ordered to issue against the association.

FOUGHT OVER BRECKINRIDGE.

A Cousin of Jesse James Shoots a Defender of the Colonel.

Louisville, Oct. 17.—The recent campaign against Breckinridge has resulted in more bloodshed. Buchanan Berry is thought to be dying at Turner, forty-four miles east of here, from a pistol wound in the stomach inflicted by C. B. James, a foreman of construction employed by the railroad. The two were discussing Breckinridge and James said: "Breckinridge is a man I fought through the civil war with. He carried a Bible on one shoulder and lewd women on the other." This angered Berry, who was a strong Breckinridge man, and he struck James on the left shoulder with a chair. James then drew a revolver and, as Berry struck him again, fired. Witnesses say James shot in self-defense. James is from Alabama and is a cousin of Jesse James.

Heavy Registration in Chicago.

Chicago, Oct. 17.—Yesterday's registration in Chicago eclipsed all previous records. When the polls closed at 9 o'clock it was estimated that the list contained over 200,000 names. In 1892 the first day's registration numbered 190,428 and the total for two days was 270,000. A feature of this year's registration is the feminine vote. The women were very much in evidence in the suburban polling places, but in the city proper very few gave in their names. It was said by some enthusiastic people that 10,000 women registered.

Millionaire Leisenring's Will.

Philadelphia, Oct. 17.—The will of the late Edward B. Leisenring, the well-known millionaire coal operator, who died at Hamburg, Germany, on Sept. 20, while traveling abroad, was admitted to probate. The wife and daughter of the deceased are given $500,000 each. After private legacies amounting to $1,000,000 he leaves over $100,000 to various public charitable institutions.

Big Vote Expected in Minneapolis.

St. Paul, Minn., Oct. 17.—The registration in St. Paul yesterday was the largest first day's registration in the cit's history, nearly 12,000. Other cities of the state also report large increases. The vote of the state is expected to reach 280,000.

BIG JAPANESE VICTORY

Occupation of Port Arthur Reported at Shanghai.

If True, It Is a Severe Loss for the Chinese as It Was Their Largest Naval Station—Where the Damaged Fleet Went After the Battle of the Yalu.

Shanghai, Oct. 17.—It is reported that Port Arthur, the Chinese stronghold, where the fleet of China has been refitting since the battle fought off the mouth of the Yalu river, has been captured by the Japanese.

Port Arthur, the largest naval station belonging to the Chinese, is situated at the extreme southern point of the Liaotung peninsula. The port has a large refitting basin, with a depth of 25 feet at low water. On the border of this basin are spacious wharves and quays, and these are connected with the workshops by a railway. Two docks—one 400 feet in length and the other smaller—are there ready for the repair of ships of all sizes. The foundries and workshops are constructed on the most improved models and contain the best modern machinery. The harbor is protected both on the land and sea sides by strong forts armed with modern guns of heavy calibre. The place is one of the most important points on the Gulf of Pechili, which forms the approach to Tien-Tisn, seaport for Pekin. Japanese ships have heretofore been reported as commanding the Gulf of Pechili, a fact which will tend to impart confidence in the report of Port Arthur's fall. Port Arthur's population is estimated to be about 6,000, exclusive of the garrison, and the number of houses is estimated to be from 600 to 800, in addition to two large temples, two theatres and several banks. The prosperity of the town began with the determination of the authorities, in 1881, to establish a naval dock-yard there. The work was finally completed in 1890 by a French company, which was obliged to take over the work from the native contractors, who had been killing time, with little or no results, from 1881 to 1887.

The Oriental War.

London, Oct. 17.—A dispatch to the Central News from Wiju, dated Monday, says: "The two opposing armies still face each other on the banks of the Yalu river. The Chinese have not fired a shot, but work night and day strengthening their defenses. Count Yamagata, the Japanese commander-in-chief, is awaiting the arrival of heavier artillery before attacking the Chinese position. Japanese scouts estimate that the Chinese force altogether numbers 25,000 men. The scouts have brought in detailed information as to the condition of the Chinese defenses, showing that they are not so strong as the first reports indicated. The Chinese artillery is shown to be less formidable than the Japanese had supposed. A decisive attack is expected shortly. Various indications justify the belief that the chief stand of the Chinese will be at Kubenchao."

A dispatch from Tokio says that several hundred Chinese prisoners who were taken at the battle of Ping Yang arrived in Tokio. Crowds were in the streets to see the captives and followed them from the station to the prisons. The crowds were quite and orderly, indulging in no insults or signs of exultation. The captives were distributed among several military stations.

Old Winter Weds Young May.

Toledo, O., 17.—Col. Isaac Morrow, government agent and inspector, and well-known in Toledo and eastern cities, was married to Edith Gilmore. The colonel is 76 years of age, while his bride is only 17. The young woman came to Toledo last summer to take part in the beauty show at the exposition here, and had previously impersonated Scotch beauty at the World's fair beauty show. At the close of the exposition here she was taken to the Aldine hotel by Col. Morrow, who announced that he would educate and adopt the young woman.

Where Are John Latten's Heirs?

Hartford, Conn., Oct. 17.—Vicar-General Hughes has received a letter from Theodore Parks, of Garibaldi, Tillamook county, Oregon, stating that John Latten had died there leaving considerable money to relatives in Connecticut, who cannot be found. Latten formerly lived in this city and emigrated to Oregon several years ago.

Senator Hill's Campaign.

Utica, N. Y., Oct. 17.—Senator Hill's reception in Utica last night certainly equalled if it did not surpass any he has received since he opened his campaign. He remained here over night and will arrive in Gloversville this afternoon where he speaks in the evening. The senator's voice is still a source of slight trouble to him.

Nominated for Congress.

Buffalo, Oct. 17.—The democrats of the Thirty-second congressional district nominated Joseph E. Gavin for congress. Mr. Gavin is the present city comptroller. The democratic city convention will be held to-day. Hon. Jacob Stern, the present surrogate, will be nominated for mayor.

Morton's Man.

New York, Oct. 17.—Judge Lacombe, of the United States circuit court, has just signed the writ of habeas corpus in the case of John James Howard, Morton's coachman. The attorneys for Howard—Tracy, Boardman and Platt—have filed the petition for his release in the circuit court.

Registration at Auburn.

Auburn, N. Y., Oct. 17.—The first three days' registration here this year shows a large increase over the registration of last fall. The number of names enrolled during the first three days last fall was 3,444, while the number this year is 4,641—a gain of 1,197.

The Largest Ever Known.

Gloucester, Mass., Oct. 17.—The record of disasters to the fishing fleet for the year ending this month is the largest ever known in a single season. Twenty-nine vessels, with an aggregate tonnage of 2,354 tons, and 112 men, were lost, against 10 vessels and 53 men last year.

FOR SOCIAL REFORM

Chamberlain Talks on His Proposed Measure.

Bulletin from the Czar's Chamber Not Hopeful—The Belgian Elections—Extraordinary Concession Made by the Russian Holy Synod—Other Foreign News.

London, Oct. 17.—Joseph Chamberlain, M. P., the liberal unionist leader, addressed the unionist conference in Durham. He held that the unionist party was growing in strength at the expense of the Gladstonians and insisted upon the importance of having a definite pilicy of social reforms. He defended in detail the bill which he has prepared for introduction at the next session of parliament, providing for the furnishing of state aid to artisans in the purchase of homes of their own, for the granting of old-age pensions, for the limitation of the hours of labor in shops and factories, for the restriction of pauper immigration, and for a new employers' liability act embodying a contracting-out clause. In referring to the adverse opinions of certain unionist papers on the bill, he said that if he thought the criticisms were approved by any considerable section of the unionist party he would resign the responsible position which he now held in the party's councils. The party would never succeed, he declared, with a barren policy, negative criticism or cynical indifference.

Synod Had To Back Down.

Berlin, Oct. 17.—The Kreuz Zeitung says the Russian holy synod has made an extraordinary and highly important concession in the case of the adoption of the Greek faith by Princess Alix of Hesse. The princess refused to declare her former religion accursed, or that her conversion was due to the conviction that her own religion was not founded upon truth, as is required by the law of the Greek church. She merely made the declaration that she had joined the Greek church in order that she might be of one faith with her future husband and the holy synod accepted her declaration as suffcient.

Belgian Elections.

Brussels, Oct. 17.—The socialists announce that in the supplementary ballots they will vote for all liberal candidates who pledge themselves to support free trade and universal suffrage in both local and general elections. The socialists estimate that they will have thirty members in the new house. Jules Guesde and M. Joffrin, French socialist leaders, arrived here to congratulate their Belgian comrades upon their success in the elections. They were enthusiastically received.

The Dying Czar.

St. Petersburg, Oct. 17.—A special edition of the Official Messenger, contains a bulletin signed by Doctors Leyden, Zacharin, Popoff and Befaminoff, the czar's physicians, stating that on consultation they found no improvement in the kidney disease from which the czar is suffering, and that his majesty's strength has diminished since their last examination. They hope, however, that the climate of the Southern Crimea will benefit him.

Von Hannecken May Not Recover.

London, Oct. 17.—A dispatch from Shanghai says it is reported there that Capt. Von Hannecken, the German officer who was wounded on one of the Chinese warships in the battle off the mouth of the Yalu river, is suffering from blood poisoning resulting from his wounds, and is not likely to recover.

Nice Parlor Ornaments.

Vienna, Oct. 17.—The Neue Freie Presse says that Strauss has received a letter from Trieste signed by Jakub Effendi, stating that the ex-khedive, Ismail Pasha, has sent Strauss a pair of giraffes as a jubilee present.

French Honors for a German.

London, Oct. 17.—The French public is agog over the act of the French government in conferring the cross of the Legion of Honor upon Captain von Susskind, the German military attache at Paris.

Mme. Nordica Honored.

Berlin, Oct. 17.—The duke of Coburg has conferred the cross of the Order of Merit for Art upon Mme. Nordica in recognition of her excellence in the part of Elsa in Lohengrin.

Challenge for Oarsmen.

London, Oct. 17.—The backer of C. R. Harding, the English oarsman, challenges any oarsman in the world to row Harding over the Tyne course for £200 a side.

Yale and Princeton May Not Meet.

New Haven, Conn., Oct. 17.—Manager Cable, of the Yale eleven, said upon hearing that Princeton would not play Yale except upon Thanksgiving day: "Yale will certainly not play a game on that day with any college. If it is Thanksgiving day or nothing, there will be no game with Princeton this year."

Captain Pratt Injures His Knee.

Amherst, Mass., Oct. 17.—Captain Pratt of the Amherst eleven received a severe knee sprain while practicing yesterday afternoon, and he will be unable to take part in the Amherst-Harvard game at Cambridge to-day. His brother, J. T. Pratt, will probably play quarterback.

New Railroad To Be Opened.

Ebensburg, Pa., Oct. 17.—The new Ebensburg & Black Lick railroad, which has just been completed, will be open for traffic in a few days. It opens up one of the richest bituminous coal fields in the state.

Wages Increased 5 Per Cent.

Dover, N. H., Oct. 17.—Agent Holland, of the Cocheco mills, has issued a notice informing the operatives that beginning Oct. 15, wages in all departments would be increased 5 per cent.

Does Not Want To Go to Congress.

New York, Oct. 17.—Julius Frank, nominated by the New York state democracy in the Fourteenth district for congress, declines to accept the nomination.

A member of the County Committee in each ward and township will be elected at the above primaries for the ensuing year.

By order of the County Democratic Executive Committee,

Dated Sept. 26, 1894.

JOHN J. MATTHEWS, Chairman.
A. P. HUGHES, Secretary.

Somerset County Convention.

The County Democratic Convention will meet at the Court House, in Somerville, on Monday, the twenty-second day of October, 1894, at 10 o'clock in the forenoon, for the purpose of nominating a candidate for Member of Assembly, and the transaction of such other business as may properly come before it.

In accordance with the resolution adopted by the County Democratic Executive Committee, all townships having but one polling place will be entitled to six delegates; townships having two polling places will be entitled to elect three delegates in each polling place; and townships having more than two polling places will be entitled to elect two delegates in each polling place.

The primaries for the election of delegates will be held on Saturday, October 20, at 3 o'clock in the afternoon, at the places hereinafter designated (excepting North Plainfield, where the primaries will be held on Friday, October 19, at 8 o'clock in the evening):

GEORGE E. PACE,
Chairman County Ex. Com.

Again the editor of The Evening News comes forward as a humorist. He gravely announces that Rev. Madison C. Peters was brought to Plainfield with his speech through a scheme of John T. Dunn's to arouse the ire of the Irish voters and concentrate them against the Republican ticket which Mr. Peters openly champions. It is the height of humor to think of Mayor Needham, who introduced Mr. Peters, working with John T. Dunn for the Congressman's re-election. As a fact, Mr. Peters was brought to Plainfield by men who hoped for Republican effect. But that speech is proving a boomerang, and by it Mr. Dunn's cause has been greatly strengthened in Plainfield.

Only one candidate should be mentioned in the Democratic Convention for the office of County Clerk, and the nomination ought to be accorded to him by acclamation. That one candidate has high standing in the business and social life of the county, he is respected by all, and held in warm affection by many. The masses of both parties love him for his sincere kindnesses to the people; he proved his qualities by his generous donation of much of his first year's salary to the widow of his predecessor. He is already County Clerk, and has been a most creditable official. By all that is just and proper the nomination and the election belong to William M. Oliver.

In acquiring by purchase from ex-Prosecutor Wm. R. Wilson the ownership of the Elizabeth Herald, F. S. Lockwood favorably impresses the fraternity and the public by his quiet announcement:

Having purchased the Central New Jersey Herald, today's issue appears under my sole control and direction.

I have few promises to make.

The policy of the paper will be ever for the advancement and prosperity of the city of Elizabeth.

It will publish the news "for all the people", irrespective of condition or creed.

Politically, the paper will be Democratic in every sense of the word, supporting at all times, to the utmost of its power, party men and party measures.

The salutatory is well spoken, Friend Herald, and Elizabeth will amply reward fulfilment of your aim.

The Press in an editorial last night in connection with Rev. Madison Peters's address Monday night, stated that the idea was inaugurated by a local clergyman, and carried out by the local branch of the A. P. A. The editorial should have said that the idea of Mr. Peters's visit originated with a number of citizens belonging to the above organization, that they merely asked the use of a church, finally deciding on Music Hall. No local pastor originated the visit, nor invited the reverend gentleman to speak.

The Press is glad to learn that influential women of the town are taking steps to improve the town housekeeping. They see many blemishes on the face of Plainfield that escape the careless eye of man. For instance, they purpose having cleaner streets, signboards at the corners, better sidewalks. Miss Jane Slocum, an advocate of town reform, is to start the crusade under local auspices by a course of lectures, the introductory one being delivered Oct. 30. She and her disciples hope to effect radical improvements in Plainfield.

THE REASON FOR LEADERSHIP.

The Plainfield public has good sense. When it wants meat, it does n't grab the butcher by the throat and say "What 's your politics!" When it wants raiment it does n't hunt around till it finds a clothier whose political creed is satisfactory. Its coal bins are not stocked with fuel bought of a man according to the ticket he votes. And just so with selecting a newspaper. Business is business, and patronage is accorded where the money brings best value. It is simply because it keeps its readers best posted and brings its advertisers biggest trade that The Daily Press leads all Plainfield in circulation and advertising patronage.

PLAINFIELD A MODERN MODEL.

When Plainfield has its intermittent filtration system in successful operation, it will have the distinction of possessing the only complete sewage-disposal equipment in the State. Interested people will come from all parts of the country to examine it before deciding what sort of sewerage plans to adopt. The engineering papers will describe it and give Plainfield the benefit of extensive advertising. With the plans in accordance with which the present work is progressing, completely carried out, Plainfield's system will be the model for the country. The city has many advantages over South Framingham in the location of the land where the beds are to be, the character of the soil, and the convenient grade which makes a pumping-station unnecessary. The men who have started the construction of the sewers have laid their plans wisely.

FIRST OF ALL, THE NEWS.

One of the most respected citizens and stanchest Republicans of Plainfield said in renewing his yearly subscription for The Daily Press yesterday: "I stand by The Press because it is the best and cleanest newspaper of the town. I don't care what its politics, the newspaper that keeps me best informed and is most wholesome for the family circle, is what I want. So I take The Press." The fact that this experience is manifold through the city is gratifying and encouraging to the management. The Daily Press has its opinions, and is respected for expressing them; but it is perennially popular because it is the people's champion and places most importance on being up to time every day.

SAFETY ON THE CENTRAL.

Plainfield people pride themselves on having the best railroad service in the country, and the Jersey Central is the best because of its thorough attention to every detail. The Safety Valve, that New York authority on engineering matters of which Charles Bullman of this city is editor, today gives us new evidence of the Central's regard for public safety. It states that the Jersey Central has in all probability the most careful system of boiler inspection of any railroad company in the country. Every locomotive is tested at least once a month, and no locomotive is allowed to continue on the road when three or four broken staybolts are found grouped. Both the hammer and hydrostatic tests are employed, and not until a boiler is found to be perfect is it allowed to go to work. The Safety Valve gives in accurate detail the system of inspection and tests, which is of especial value to the technical mind. The general public will be satisfied with the proof adduced that the Jersey Central has n't a risky boiler on the road.

EARLY INTELLIGENCE

—Ex-Sheriff Coddington is having his house painted, 198 Somerset street.

—Cook & Co. tell the engineers that they have ten carloads of pipe on the way here.

—Thomas McDonald is painting the house of Aleck Shotwell, the veteran ex-drug-clerk, on Chatham street.

—George Studer of Arlington avenue has his dog back. He was lost, and advertised in The Daily Press, and that's how he was found.

—Fifteen people attennded the entertainment in the Casino last night, and the manager lost money in his effort to benefit Muhlenberg Hospital.

—Court proceedings in Elizabeth have no precedent. The Circuit Court has tried but one case, the Boone-Kaerth suit, and the petit jurors have served but three days. The Grand Jury have received over 300 complaints.

—There is not a man or woman in Plainfield who is not pleased to get a bargain. Still sometimes they do go to New York and buy a pig in a poke, and at other times buy things at a high price in New York when they could have done better in Plainfield. You can perhaps do well if you buy your wall-paper in New York. You can do better probably if you buy it in Plainfield, and you will certainly do best if you buy it at Love's, corner of North and Watchung avenues. Love has an immense assortment of the lowest priced and finest paper which must be closed out this Fall at prices way, way down.

PARTICULAR MENTION.

Miss J. E. Moore is visiting friends in New York city.

Miss Gaskill of New Market is visiting Maggie Coriell of Church street.

The Misses Pray of West Fifth street are visiting their sister in Brooklyn.

Miss Fannie Vail of East Orange is visiting her aunt, Mrs. Vail of Church street.

Edward Stine has gone on a tour of six weeks for the Scott Printing Machine Works, to put up presses through the country.

Misses Clara and Ida Manning of Newark have returned home after a pleasant visit at the home of B. F. Moore, East Second street.

John Willis of Johnston's drive has gone to Wilkesbarre, Pa., to spend two weeks with his father and uncle. He has not seen his uncle since the war.

The marriage took place Tuesday of Lewis W. Miller, under-Sheriff of Union County, and Mrs. Jennie Miller, Rev. Dr. Parks officiating. All are of Scotch Plains.

Pony McLaren and his brother John, who is home for the first time in 22 years, had a pleasant reunion with their o'd schoolmate, Janitor W. V. Mundy of the Council Chamber.

Ex-Mayor Haynes of Newark was a distinguished caller on The Press today. He also called on Squire Moore and Christian Schepflin. He is just as young as he used to be, and walked from Fanwood to Plainfield as a pastime.

Miss Josephine Schaffer, formerly of West Fourth street, will sing in the operatic performance of R. E. De Stefani's Italian conservatory in Criterion Theatre, Brooklyn, Thursday evening, November 8.

Rev. and Mrs. E. O. Moffett, who are visiting their parents in Dunellen and friends and relatives in this city, drove by carriage from their home in New Prospect, Orange County, N. Y., and found it a most delightful drive.

In his house garden on East Front street E. P. Thorn has devoted much time to the development of cotton plants. He had just brought the pods to the point when they burst and show their snow-white floss when the frost came and blighted them.

Charles W. Runyon, the telephone manager, is still kept to his room by lameness from his recent fall. He is as plucky as ever, and insists on trying to get about, but by restraining his restlessness a few days longer his physician and good wife hope to make it possible for him to discard crutches even sooner than was expected.

Frank Linke of West Front street entertained a large party of friends last evening as a farewell meeting before leaving for Europe. The Liederkranz singers were present and with singing, speechmaking and feasting a very pleasant evening was passed. Mr. Linke left at 2 for New York to sail at 7:30 this morning. He will spend five weeks with his father, and his sisters and brothers in the old country. Henry Haurand, who has just returned from Europe, went to New York to see him sail.

Miss Maggie Coriell of Church street gave a party to some of her friends last evening. Music and dancing were the features of the evening and were kept up until a late hour. Cake and cream were served in abundance. Among those present were Misses Maggie and Emily Coriell, Walter Coriell, Fannie Vail, Ethel Conkey, Jennie and Jessie Saxton, Mildred Gaskill, Joe Runyon, James Stafford, H. Runyon, Abe Holden, C. Runyon, John Giles, Charles Hazeltine, Percie Dayton, and others.

OUR OWN LITTLE WORLD.

Plainfield Women to Learn of Their Own Locality.

The Plainfield Branch Alliance of Unitarian and Other Liberal Christian Women announces for its afternoon meetings this season a course of study on "Our Own Little World" The history and institutions of New Jersey and Plainfield are to be discussed in detail under the following heads:

Oct. 26—Geography and History of New Jersey.
Nov. 27—History of Plainfield.
Dec. 18—Present Local Government.
Jan. 22—Local Charities.
Feb. 26—Criminal Classes.
March 26—Public Improvements and Public Works.
April 23—Manufactures and Industries of Plainfield.
May 28—Public School System.

All women interested are invited to attend these meetings, and no doubt much pleasure and benefit will be derived from them. The subjects considered would seem to be in the line of the Good Government Clubs which are attracting so much notice of late, as, for example, the Civitas Club of Brooklyn described at Mrs. Florence Howe Hall's reception last Spring.

Tally-Ho.

The New Brunswick Coaching Club started out for a two-days trip this morning. The usual number of members of the club were on the coach. The club went to Morristown by way of Plainfield and Scotch Plains, attracting much attention on Front street. The coachers rode on through Madison, Millburn, Irvington and Newark, and stop in Morristown over night.

CYCLING COMMENT.

Captain John J. Lynch of the Lyceum Cyclers left at 8:30 this morning to wheel to Kingston.

The route selected for the Asbury Park-Newark century run tomorrow is: Interlaken, Long Branch, Red Bank, Matawan, New Brunswick, Plainfield, Montclair, Paterson, Rutherford, reaching Newark at 6:30 p. m. They stop at Hotel Grenada about noon for dinner.

The Crescents will turn out tomorrow morning to greet the Asbury Park wheelmen on their century run to Newark. Members are requested to meet at the club-house at 9:30 and ride half-way to New Brunswick to escort the Park men through town. They will reach Plainfield at 11:30 and go on to Newark by way of Paterson.

BY THE WAY.

—The Women's Temperance Aid Society will meet at the home of Mrs. Ethan Lanphear, corner Fifth street and Central avenue, tomorrow afternoon at 3.

—A new member was elected at the meeting of the Camera Club held in G. Thorn's rooms last evening. President Teale was authorized to purchase an $850 portrait outfit with a six-inch Dallmeyer lens. The next meeting will be held in the new rooms in the Babcock Building, Thursday evening, Nov 1.

ROBERT BROWNING.

Prof. Boyesen Discusses the Poet and Tells Some Stories.

Prof. H. H. Boyesen, in a lecture on Robert Browning, told some interesting stories illustrating the poet's obscure style. He said that when Douglas Jerrold recovered from a severe illness his wife brought him some of the latest books for reading. Among them was "Sordello." When she returned, after some time, she found her husband in great distress of mind. "Oh, why did you conceal it from me?" he said.

"Conceal what?" asked his astonished wife. "That I have lost my mind," he cried. "Don't deceive me any longer! I have read this whole book through, and haven't understood a word of it." Jerrold's wife then sat down and read "Sordello" too, and, to her husband's great relief, told him that she couldn't understand a word of it either.

In "Sordello" Browning's obscurity reaches its climax, and bewilders with its labyrinthine tangle of words and thought. Tennyson said he only understood two lines of the whole poem, and they were both lies. The lines were the first and the last of the poem:

Who will, shall hear Sordello's story told,
and
Who would, hath heard Sordello's story told.

The philosophy of Browning was strikingly contrasted with that of Tennyson. A poet's philosophy, he said, is his definite attitude towards life; it is the lens of his individual vision. Shelley's was a wild, lawless aspiration, a panting for something higher, a wild lyrical yearning for the unattainable. Tennyson's was confidence in law, and the doctrine of self-subordination and averages. No wild, frenzied grief, but a mournful, brooding sorrow. No ecstasy of bliss, but a sweet, temperate felicity. Browning's philosophy is widely divergent. With him passion is the expression of personality at flood tide. He does not preach subordination of passion to duty, but the duty of passionate aspiration. His is a philosophy of aspiration that rejects even perfection, because perfection can go no higher.

LOOK AT OUR GIRLS.

They Are Stunners, as Described by an Enthusiastic Review.

The name of American girl was once a popular synonyme for "nerves," ill-health, and all the ailments engendered by want of exercise, foolish diet, and irregular habits of life. When contrasted with the English girl, whose outdoor life made her the picture of abounding health and rosy-cheeked energy, she suffered in the comparison.

A generation has sufficed to effect a complete change, and our English cousins no longer hold a monopoly of outdoor sports. When thirty years ago the girl who went boating and fishing, climbing trees and jumping fences with her brothers, was looked upon as a tom-boy and regarded with severe disapproval, the reverse is now the case. Outdoor life, delight in action, the spirit of sport, have taken hold of American womanhood. Girls of strong, active physique, erect carriage and energetic spirit, delighting in tennis, riding, boating, walking, are now the rule; the feeble, indoor do-nothing is the exception, and the result is a tall, vigorous race, with free step and cheeks aglow with the ruddy color of physicial health and energy. Walk along the avenues of New York, Boston, Chicago, or any large city at the fashionable hours, and the procession of bright, animated girlhood which passes before one's eyes gives ample proof of summer activity in the country and city work in gymnasium and riding school.

All over the country, where there are men and money to start a club and create a sporting interest, the women also have their fair share of advantages, and, in not a few cases, their fair share also of work in setting the organizations on foot. There are few country clubs, or other sporting clubs throughout the Union which have no lady member.—Fortnightly Review.

TYPEWRITER DOCTORS.

They Go from Office to Office and are Very Busy Men.

The busiest professional men nowadays are the doctors of typewriters. These go about from office to office putting machines in repair, and the reason for their great activity is on account of the return of the regular operator from the summer vacation. All this sounds enigmatical. But it is true.

When a typewriter goes away upon her vacation she gets a substitute to sit in her place and do her work. The substitute appears promptly the first day, takes off the tin enclosure from the celluloid keys, gives a gentle "tap! tap!" and throws up her hands in horror. She cannot use a machine that works so hard. Where is the man who regulates typewriters, and will he not come to make the machine work easier? That he does, and for two weeks all goes well. Then the regular operator comes home.

The regular operator is proud, nay, haughty. She feels that the machine must of necessity have been spoiled by the substitute, and her senses are keenly alert for faults in the machine. The first tap tells her that it works very easily, and the second convinces her that the friction is so light that she will make mistakes every minute. So the typewriter doctor is called to put the machine back precisely as it was.—N. Y. Sun.

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR.

The Fall Conference of the Plainfield Local Union will take place tomorrow evening in the First Presbyterian Church of Dunellen. The meeting will open promptly at 7:45, with a ten-minutes service of song. The address will be delivered by Rev. C. L. Goodrich of this city, and two-minute reports bearing upon the State Convention are expected from each society in the Union. It is hoped that a large delegation from Plainfield will be present.

—The eleven of St. George's Hall will play the Local School eleven, Friday afternoon at 3:30 on the Park avenue grounds. The St. George's Hall eleven is a very strong one, so a good game may be expected.

IN BLUE MANTLE CLAD.

A CELESTIAL VISITOR TELLS PLAINFIELD OF HIS NATION.

Rev. Yung Kiung Yen, Chinese Clergyman, Whose Countrymen Have Brains Tough as Their Skin.

The expectation of meeting Rev. Yung Kiung Yen, a native Chinese clergyman, attracted a large audience of women to Grace P. E. Church this afternoon. Mr. Yen is rector of the Church of Our Saviour, Shanghai, and is a most entertaining talker on life in his own land. His discourse is intelligent and gratifying; he speaks fluently and without notes. He uses remarkably good English, sometimes with a mastery of subtler niceties which some of his hearers would perhaps have come to grief on. His attitude toward his countrymen is engaging for its simple pathos. He does not flatter them; he says their brains are tough as the skin of a man's hand. When Mrs. Yen tries to teach them the Lord's Prayer they forget the first line while they struggle with the second, and her patience is often piteously taxed. The rector of Our Saviour, Shanghai, does not attempt vain praise, as a lesser patriot would. He loathes the horrors of the present war, but he declares also that it may incite his country to stir out of its immemorial sloth for its ultimate salvation. Mr. Yen speaks modestly of his advantages for missionary work by reason of his great acquaintance with the dialects of the various localities. For the proposed plan to establish a chain of posts between Shanghai and Hang-Kow it is necessary to have missionaries who speak half a dozen different vernaculars.

Rev. Mr. Yen is to speak to the general public, all of whom are invited, in Grace Church tonight. He is accompanied by Rev. Dr. Langford, secretary of the Protestant Episcopal Board of Missions, and Rev. Dr. Carey of Saratoga, who also speak briefly.

Mr. Yen wears a blue mantle, a compromise between Eastern and Western vesture, but still in striking contrast to Dr. Langford's conventional clergyman's robes of lawn.

The hour tonight is 8.

THE WARRING ORIENT.

Plainfield Sends Money to One of the Fighting Nations, But 'Tis a Peaceful Fund.

The Boys Mission Band met in regular monthly session in the parlors of the Crescent Avenue Church yesterday afternoon at 4, nearly 40 attending. The leader, Miss Bronson, was in charge. Japan was the country under consideration.

Miss Gussie Murray told the boys of what she had seen in Japan, taking them on an imaginary journey by the British line. She exhibited a number of small Japanese articles, including coins and models of different things in common use among the people. Incidents of her own visit and General Grant's trip aided the audience to understand various points of Japanese customs and superstition.

After the speaker had finished, the collection was taken up as usual for the general mission fund of the Band. Then refreshments were served to all present, and the meeting ended in a pleasant social way.

THE KEY TO THE CUPBOARD.

Its Disappearance Added Excitement to the Willing Workers' Meeting.

The Mission Band of Willing Workers of the Congregational Church held their first meeting of the Fall yesterday afternoon in the church parlors. A business meeting first was held, at which the following officers were elected:

President, Miss Edna M. Howell; Vice-president, Miss Elsie DeR. Suffren; Secretary, Miss Frances Demarest; Treasurer, Miss Nellie Rockefellow.

After the election, plans for Autumn and Winter work were discussed, and the members spent the rest of the time in making paper dolls for the children in Muhlenberg Hospital and conversing on various subjects. When the necessary dolls had been made, cake, crackers and lemonade were passed. At first the key to the cupboard could not be found, and the alternative of drinking the lemonade from the flower vases was presented, but at the last moment the key was found.

Clever at Doing and Teaching.

Olaf Saugstad, superintendent of the manual training department of the Boys Club, has placed on exhibition in Reynolds's pharmacy a carved pine panel which shows what is being done in the department. The artistic lines of the conventional foliage outline and relief work are admired by all inspectors. Natural skill and conscientious application and study have made Mr. Saugstad an excellent instructor in the manual branches.

THE BABCOCK BUILDING.

LIEN AGAINST IT FOR HARDWARE MATERIAL.

Dishonored Order from John Chandler on the Executors Results in Legal Proceedings.

Charles Zimmerman, Jr., of 224 West Front street, has made a lien on the Babcock Building for $450 which he claims is owing him on account of hardware material furnished by him.

He says he was told during construction, by the executors, that an order from Contractor John Chandler would be honored, that after this was secured they failed to keep their agreement, and that when Mr. Zimmerman sought the executors he was informed that he might get 75 cents on a dollar. This he said was not satisfactory, and later on he again saw them in regard to the claim and was told by one of them that 25 cents on the dollar was all he could expect, and in all probability he would get nothing.

Mr. Zimmerman has placed the matter in the hands of Hance & Powers and intends recovering the amount he claims is due him.

SOMERS FOR ASSEMBLY.

SOMERSET REPUPLICANS MAKE RENOMINATION.

North Plainfield Wins Honors in Convention.

Somerville, Oct. 17.—The Somerset County Republican Convention was held today. A. V. D. Honeyman of North Plainfield was made chairman. H. Newton Spencer was elected chairman of the Committee on Rules, and ex-Mayor Place chairman of the Committee on Resolutions.

Frank W. Somers of South Bound Brook was renominated for Assembly on first ballot.

There was no other business, and the convention concluded early.

Rousing speeches were made by Nominee Somers, Louis H. Schenck ex-Mayor Place and Congressional Nominee Howell.

$20,000 FIRE AT YONKERS.

Archibald's Coal Sheds Burned—Seventeen Horses Saved.

Yonkers, Oct. 17.—A fire was discovered at 4 this morning in Archibald's coal sheds, at the foot of Ashburton avenue.

An alarm was promptly turned in, and the firemen succeeded in saving seventeen horses, but the sheds were burned. The loss is $20,000. There were evidences to show that the fire was of incendiary origin.

AMATEUR SPORTS.

Manly Youngsters Make Good Showing of Their Speed.

The English Language in Song.

At the rehearsal of the Choral Society Monday night it was announced that Miss Annie J. Bronson, who has recently settled in Plainfield, intends giving a subscription lecture and song recital within a short time. Subscription tickets were offered to members of the Choral Society at these rates: Two admission tickets to each member for 50 cents; two reserved seats for $1. The public can obtain subscription tickets at 50 cents for each admission ticket, and 75 cents for each reserved seat. Subscriptions must be left at Shaw's drug store, foot of Park avenue, or sent to Miss Bronson, 248 East Ninth street, not later than Oct. 22. The subject of the lecture will be "The English Language in Song", illustrated vocally by Edmund J. Myer, who trained the voice of Miss Tirzah Hamlen. Songs will be rendered by two first-class artists from New York, whom Mr. Myer will bring out with him.

Kitty's a Jewel.

Kitty Pilot, M. Quinn's swift mare, is winning new laurels. In the rain and mud last Saturday she won fourth money in an 8-heat race, and at Parkville Monday won a handsome lap robe as prize for the 3:30 class. C. C. Brower was given warm credit for her condition and handling.

Catarrh Cannot Be Cured

with local applications, as they cannot reach the seat of the disease. Catarrh is a blood or constitutional disease, and in order to cure it you must take internal remedies. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, and acts directly on the blood and mucous surfaces. Hall's Catarrh Cure is not a quack medicine. It was prescribed by one of the best physicians in this country for years, and is a regular prescription. It is composed of the best tonics known, combined with the best blood purifiers, acting directly on the mucous surfaces. The perfect combination of the two ingredients is what produces such wonderful results in curing catarrh. Send for testimonials, free.

FIRE IN A BARN.

CAUSED BY A OVERHEATED STOVE-PIPE.

Quick-Witted Kate Kelly Saved the Horse, and Quick-Acting Firemen Quenched the Blaze.

The barn in the rear of the residence of Samuel L. Dollner, 831 Madison avenue, corner of Ninth street, caught fire shortly after 1 this afternoon. The flames started from a stove-pipe which went from a small cylinder stove on the ground floor and passed through the coachman's room upstairs. The fire reached the hay outside the room and at 1:20 smoke was seen pouring out of the upper floor.

Miss Kate Kelly, domestic, ran from the house and took the horse out while the fire was showing through the ceiling. Men from the neighborhood were alarmed and arrived in time to save the carriages and much of the harness. The stove that caused it all was carefully carried out.

The neighbors shouted and attracted more neighbors. The alarm was carried to Hotel Albion and Box 26 was pulled with the hotel key. The firemen answered quickly and had two lines of hose stretched in a few minutes. They worked for 20 minutes and had the fire extinguished by the time it had burned out the second story and was starting down the rear wall. The recall sounded at 1:53, just 30 minutes after the box alarm.

The loss is probably in the neighborhood of $300. It is fully covered by insurance placed through VanBuren & Timpson's agency. The coachman, Honest White, loses all his clothes except what he was wearing. He had just stored away his brand new livery in the room that was destroyed. Both Mr. and Mrs. Dollner were in New York when the fire occurred.

MARRIED IN CHURCH.

ELECTRICIAN TOMLINSON WEDS A LOVELY BRIDE.

Plainfield and Dunellen Join in Congratulations to the Esteemed Young People—Reception in a Floral Bower.

The Dunellen Presbyterian Church was the scene of a very pretty wedding with a very pretty bride last evening. The groom was Harold W. Tomlinson, the prominent young electrician of New York and Plainfield, and the bride was Miss Lucy Vail Dunham.

The church was filled at 6 when the ceremony was performed. The platform was beautifully decorated with ferns and potted foliage plants and the flowers of Fall. The officiating clergyman was Rev E T. Tomlinson, pastor of the Central Avenue Baptist Church, Elizabeth, and brother of the groom. Rev. A. I. Martine of the Dunellen Presbyterian Church, offered prayer.

The bride, a charming blonde, was gowned in heavy white silk, lightly brocaded. She carried a bouquet of white roses. The maid of honor, Miss Helen Dunham, daughter of George Dunham of New York, wore a pink gown and carried pink flowers. The best man was Dr. Frank Clawson of this city. Adrian Vermeule of New Brunswick and D. Marcus Clawson, Harry Maxson and Franklin S. Smith were the ushers.

After the ceremony the bridal party proceeded to the home of the bride's mother, 165 Church street, Dunellen, and a reception to the relatives and intimate friends followed. Mr. and Mrs Tomlinson received beneath a bower of beautiful flowers, and other parts of the house were decorated. There were many valuable presents. Supper was served and at 8:30 the bride and groom started on a short wedding tour. They will come to Plainfield afterwards and take up their residence at 443 West Sixth street.

The guests included many from New Brunswick, Bound Brook and Dunellen. Others present were George Dunham and family of New York, Rev. E. T. Tomlinson and family of Elizabeth, and Dr. T. H. Tomlinson and family, Dr. A. H. Lewis and family, Mr. and Mrs. David E Titsworth, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur L. Titsworth, James Clawson and family, Mr. and Mrs. D. W. Titsworth and W. A. McClurg of Plainfield.

CHURCH CHIMES.

The women of Grace M. E. Church, Park place, are making great preparations for their chrysanthemum tea this evening. They promise an enjoyable evening, and a great big supper for 25 cents.

A special meeting was held yesterday afternoon of the Ladies Aid Society of the Congregational Church. It had been planned to pack a barrel for a missionary in Nebraska, but the work of packing was not completed and will be finished at a coming meeting.

—In the first district of North Plainfield there were registered 617 voters yesterday by the board of registry. The second district enrolled 463.

—Committeemen George D. Hallock, George C. Evans and William J. Boome of the Park Club have arranged for the resumption of Joseph B. White's classes in dancing.

SAVE DOCTOR'S BILLS

by paying attention to properly regulating the bowels thereby preventing a thousand and one derangements of the system which follow neglect of this precaution. Once used for this purpose, Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets are always in favor. They're purely vegetable and far better, as a liver pill, than blue pills or calomel. Their secondary effect is to keep the bowels open and regular—not to constipate.

Miss MARY ANDERSEN, of Glen Easton, Marshall Co., W. Va., writes: "Two years ago I was pale and emaciated, food tormented in my stomach. A physician pronounced my case Catarrh of the Stomach, but he could not help me. I lived a month without solid food and when I tried to eat I would vomit. At this time I began taking Doctor Pierce's Pleasant Pellets, and in two weeks I was feeling better. I am now in good health, and never felt better in my life. I have a better color, eat more, and have no distress after eating—having gained thirteen pounds since I began taking them.

MISS ANDERSEN.

TRAIN-ROBBER CAUGHT.

ONE OF THE QUANTICO BAND JAILED AT CUMBERLAND.

A Large Sum of Money, Weapons, and Other Suspicious Articles Found on the Prisoner.

Washington, Oct. 17.—A despatch from Cumberland, Md., at 5 a. m. today to the Washington Times says that at about 1:10 this morning Policeman Beck of that city noticed a man acting in a suspicious manner near the Baltimore and Ohio station. He tried to board express train No. 9, west-bound, with two sachels. The man answered the description of one of the men concerned in the robbery of the express-car on the Richmond, Fredericksburg and Potomac Railroad near Quantico, Va., last week. As soon as the officer attempted to make the arrest the man started to run, but he was soon caught.

The prisoner was then taken to the station-house and, upon being searched, $1,553 were found bidden in two woollen stockings. Of this $923 were in notes and $630 in silver. He had also one silver watch, one gold one, a lot of pawn tickets, and three silver pocketbooks. A fine Colts navy revolver was in his pocket, 43 cartridges, and a memorandum book showing where a division of booty had taken place. In the sachel were found old muddy shoes, a slouch hat, and wearing apparel that looked like disguises.

The prisoner asked to be taken to a closet, and while there tried to hide another revolver and some money, but was caught in the act.

The man weighs at least 160 pounds, and is six feet tall, with a smooth face, and was dressed neatly. It was discovered by the officers that he had arrived in Cumberland at about 11 yesterday morning, and had lost several hundred dollars in a gambling-house. The police of Cumberland are confident he is one of the robbers.

NEWS OF NEAR NEIGHBORS.

Scotch Plains and Fanwood.

T. J. Nicholl of Mountain avenue is having a new roof put on his house.

The Registry Board met at Excelsior Hall yesterday. The registry now numbers 360 votes.

The Sons of Temperance held their regular meeting last evening at their rooms in the hall.

County School Superintendent Holmes of Elizabeth paid a flying visit to the school yesterday afternoon.

Excelsior Hook and Ladder Company held their monthly meeting at their rooms on Monday evening. Routine business was transacted.

John Cook is circulating a petition to be presented to the Township Committee at their meeting Friday. They want the trolley to come nearer the town. Several routes are mentioned.

Sheriff Kyte and his assistant, E L Hand, have finished the sale of the Berkley Heights property. They report some exciting times with the Italians from whom the property was taken.

After Pastor Braker's sermon Sunday evening the invitation was given to those who wished prayer and to lead a Christian life to stand. Four stood. This is very encouraging for the pastor.

Freddie Collins of Park avenue gave a birthday party to his young friends, on Saturday afternoon. The time was spent in games and refreshments, and the little ones all report having had a good time.

Ernest Marsh entertained 85 of his friends at a birthday party given him by him by his parents, Mr. and Mrs. George Marsh, last evening. The house presented a gala sight with its tasty arrangements, bright lights shining from every window and the merry laugh of the young people as they enjoyed the games. Presents received were many and handsome. A grand supper was served at 10, the table being laden with all the delicacies of the season. The grand march to supper was led by Ernest and Miss Bertha Elser, followed by 30 other young couple. The middle of the table was taken up by a large birthday cake with his name upon it and surrounded by 12 small candles, it being his twelfth birthday. After supper the evening was spent in playing donkey party and other games for which prizes were given. Among the older ones present to help Ernest to enjoy the evening were Mr. and Mrs. Jimmerson, Mrs. Boice and son of Westfield; the Misses Cotton, Adams, Randolph, Bliss, Squiers, Rinehart, Garlinghouse and Parse, Mr. and Mrs. W. S. Jimmerson, George L. Dunn, Miss Miller, W. B. Buckley, Dr. F. W. Westcott, Mr. Cull, Rev. J. S. Braker, Mrs. Buckley and son, and others. Every one taking a piece of the birthday cake made a wish, it is needless to say the wishes were for many more happy birthdays. The party broke about 11:30 all having had a good time. The donkey prizes were won by Jimmy Moore first; Fred Johnson second; George Allen, the booby. Miss Edith Randolph presided at the piano.

—The landlord and tenant case of Fred Martin against Caspar Shroper will be tried in Justice Mosher's Court next Monday.

THE SECRET ORDERS.

Several members of Franklin Council, No. 41, J. O. U. A. M., will go by stage to Millburn this evening to visit the Council at that place.

Shiloh's cure is sold on a guarantee. It cures incipient consumption; it is the best cough cure, only 1c a dose; 25, 50c, $1. Sold by all druggists.

Karl's Clover Root, the great blood purifier, gives freshness and clearness to the complexion and cures constipation; 25c, 50c, $1. Sold by all druggists.

FIGHTING FOR LIFE.

A Suffering Woman Testifies.

Mrs. Henrietta Burton, of Janvier, N. J., writes: For a long time I suffered from a disordered stomach. My appetite was gone and what little I ate distressed me terribly. My health failed rapidly. I became very weak and feared I should never be well. After reading your "Guide to Health," I was encouraged to try Munyon's Dyspepsia Cure. Its action was so prompt that I soon felt like a new woman, and am now completely cured."

MUNYON'S STOMACH AND DYSPEPSIA CURE cures all forms of indigestion and stomach troubles such as constipation, rising of food, distress after eating, bloating of the stomach, palpitation of the heart, shortness of breath, and all affections of the heart caused by indigestion. It soothes, heals and invigorates stomachs that have been weakened by over-eating, or where the lining of the stomach has been impaired by physic and injurious medicines. Price 25 cents.

Munyon's Homœopathic Home Remedy Company, of Philadelphia, put up specifics for nearly every disease, which are sold by all druggists, mostly for 25 cents a bottle.

Perfect Fitting Suits and Overcoats.

Young men who are particular about the correct cut of their clothing should go direct to Watson & Co., the celebrated Newark clothiers, as this firm get up all their garments as exact copies of custom-made work, and have them hung on convenient racks, all ready for you to put on. Besides you can save fully 20 per cent. on every purchase if you buy your clothing where it is made, and see many choice new patterns which will certainly improve your dress appearance.

ELEGANT SUITS AND OVERCOATS at $12, $15, $18 and $20 are now shown in all their Broad and Market street windows finished daily in all the selling sizes, as exact copies of custom-made work.—Newark Item.

The Judge Collides.

Ex-Judge John Ulrich turned into Park avenue from Front street yesterday afternoon while driving in a buggy and collided twice with the light rig of C. O Smith of Scotch Plains which had been left standing at the side of the avenue. The first time no damage was done, but the collision turned the carriage and horse over on the sidewalk. Nothing was damaged except the harness.

VERY VALUABLE AND FREE TO ALL.

If you have not already accepted this great free offer, don't lose another minute. It tells you how to be well and strong. The most successful living specialist in curing nervous and chronic diseases is Dr. Greene, of 35 West 14th st., New York City, who makes the following generous offer. Write him about your complaint, tell him just how you feel, and he will answer your letter, describing you case and telling exactly what your trouble is. He gives most minute attention to every detail, and makes you understand instantly just what ails you. And think of it, all this costs you nothing. He makes a specialty of treating patients through letter correspondence and is having wonderful success. He is the discoverer of that world-renowned medicine, Dr. Greene's Nervura blood and nerve remedy, which is constantly curing thousands of people. Anyone not living in the largest cities will appreciate this splendid opportunity to consult, entirely free, the highest medical authority without leaving their homes, thus saving the time and expense of a trip to the city, and also the large fee charged by other and less skilful physicians. Write him at once, and the probabilities are you will be made well and strong.

A Loan Exhibition Planned.

The Young Men's Auxiliary met in the Y. M. C. A. rooms last evening. A debate had been arranged for the meeting, but was not held on account of the principals not being prepared. At the business meeting the idea of having a loan exhibition and comic art gallery at the Y. M. C. A. fair was talked over, and the regular meeting was changed from Tuesday to Thursday, so as not to conflict with the Y. M. C. A. classes. The programme for next meeting will be a "spots" talk.

—The water main in Waynewood place burst yesterday afternoon and flooded Waynewood place and the adjoining part of West Front street. The water ran for almost two hours, tearing up the roadbed, when a representative of the water company arrived and shut off the water from the entire street.

A VETERAN'S VERDICT.

The War is Over. A Well-known Soldier, Correspondent and Journalist Makes a Disclosure.

Indiana contributed her thousands of brave soldiers to the war, and no state bears a better record in that respect than it does. In literature it is rapidly acquiring an enviable place. In war and literature Solomon Yewell, well known as a writer as "Sol," has won an honorable position. During the late war he was a member of Co. M, 2d. N. Y. Cavalry and of the 13th Indiana Infantry Volunteers. Regarding an important circumstance he writes as follows:

"Several of us old veterans here are using Dr. Miles' Restorative Nervine, Heart Cure and Nerve and Liver Pills, all of them giving splendid satisfaction. In fact, we have never used remedies that compare with them. Of the Pills we must say they are the best combination of the qualities required in a preparation of their nature we have ever known. We have none but words of praise for them. They are the outgrowth of a new principle in medicine, and tone up the system wonderfully. We say to all, try these remedies."—Solomon Yewell, Marion, Ind., Dec. 5, 1893.

These remedies are sold by all druggists on a positive guarantee, or sent direct by the Dr. Miles Medical Co., Elkhart, Ind., on receipt of price, $1 per bottle, six bottles $5, express prepaid. They positively contain neither opiates nor dangerous drugs.

Vanity

is a virtuous vice. The world is better for it. It makes men ambitious—and it makes women careful of their personal appearance. It doesn't take much money to keep well-dressed now-a-days. Cleaning or dyeing makes it possible to use soiled or faded garments. And there's where our ax comes in. We are in the Cleaning and Dyeing business. Our cleaner is ready, and our dyer has his fall shades mixed.

Ask for our little booklet "Re-Freshing Thoughts." It tells about cleaning for men's clothing.

BURNING OF KINGSTON.

Celebration of the Event by Daughters of the Revolution.

Kingston, N. Y., Oct. 17.—The one hundred and seventeenth anniversary of the burning of Kingston was celebrated yesterday at the old senate house by Wiltwyck chapter, Daughters of the American Revolution, and by citizens. The exercises consisted of addresses by Mayor Kennedy and Hon. William Lounsbury, of the Senate House associations, and the reading of historical papers by Mrs. Anna F. Clearwater, of this city, and Mrs. Marie Leduc, a lineal descendant of George Clinton. Mrs. Kathrine Woods Madden read Will Carleton's poem "The Burning of Kingston." After the exercises the Daughters of the Revolution and their invited guests, who represented chapters of the society in New York city, Rochester, Saratoga, Poughkeepsie, Brooklyn, and other places in the state of New York, besides a number from Connecticut, Massachusetts and Rhode Island, embarked in forty carriages decorated with flags, and were driven to Hurley, four miles away, at which place the Americans on October 16, 1877, took refuge after fleeing from the British who had set their houses on fire. At Hurley, after viewing the several colonial houses still standing, the Daughters were entertained by Mrs. J. D. Wynkoop, of New York, at her country home, an historic mansion where Colonel Cornelius D. Wynkoop gave many of the fleeing Dutchmen and their slaves shelter. Along the route to Hurley all the streets were decorated with flags and bunting, and in Hurley the farmers even decorated their barns in honor of the visit of the Daughters and their distinguished guests.

Fighting American Trade.

New York, Oct. 17.—A Buenos Ayres special says: Now that for the first time in many years there is an incentive to larger direct trade with the United States, the other foreign mercantile interests here, especially the English, are agitating against any encouragement being given the American trade. The German merchants, afraid of losing their commercial supremacy, have joined with the English in intrigues against extension of trade with New York and Boston.

REMARKABLE CURES

Of Recent Date.

A Statement from Ex-Mayor John Corson, Esq., of Clinton, N. J.

TO THE PUBLIC:

I acknowledge with the utmost pleasure the wonderful cure which Dr. Lighthill effected in my case.

I had been a sufferer from piles, which gave me constant pain and distress, during twenty long years, attended with frequent loss of blood and with great and painful protrusion of the pile tumors and rectum whenever my bowels moved.

I tried constantly to get relief from my sufferings, but to no purpose until Mr. Bryan, a friend of mine, who had been cured by Dr. Lighthill of the same trouble, recommended him to me, and he effected a complete and radical cure in my case also, and earned my lifelong gratitude.

JOHN CORSON.

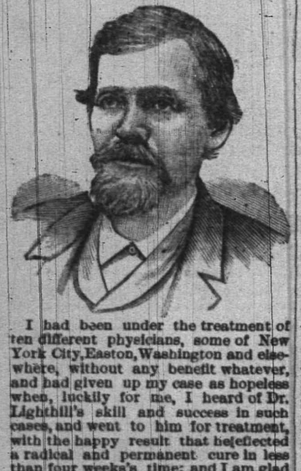
THE CASE OF MR. PETER G. EYCK, OF BISSELL, HUNTERDON CO., N. J.

Dr. Lighthill Effects a Complete Cure Where Ten Physicians Had Failed.

TO THE SICK, SUFFERING AND AFFLICTED:

For many years past I have been afflicted with bleeding piles. Every movement of the bowels was attended with loss of blood and with intense pain which lasted for hours and sometimes all day. My condition was aggravated by a prolapse of the rectum, which greatly increased my suffering and sometimes gave me most agonizing pains.

So great was my distress and so bad my condition that I sold my farm, not being able to work it any longer. At one time the protruding pile tumors became so highly inflamed and swollen that they could not be replaced, and I had to go to bed, applying hot poultices for three months before I could get relief.



I had been under the treatment of ten different physicians, some of New York City, Easton, Washington and elsewhere, without any benefit whatever, and had given up my case as hopeless when, luckily for me, I heard of Dr. Lighthill's skill and success in such cases, and went to him for treatment, with the happy result that he effected a radical and permanent cure in less than four weeks's time; and I am glad to say that the entire treatment gave me neither pain nor distress.

I consider my cure perfectly wonderful, and so do all my friends and neighbors. I am confident that there is no case of piles which Dr. Lighthill cannot cure.

PETER G. EYCK,
Bissell, Hunterdon Co., N. J.

SHOT DOWN BY MILITIA

Three Killed While Trying To Secure a Prisoner.

Wanted To Lynch Him for Committing an Assault on a Woman—Reserves Ordered from Cincinnati—Gov. McKinley Abandons His Louisville Trip on Account of the Trouble—The Situation at a Late Hour.

Columbus, O., Oct. 18.—The mob at Washington court house made an attempt to take William Dolby, alias Jasper, the negro rapist, who pleaded guilty and was sentenced to the state prison for 20 years, from Sheriff Cook and in attempting to repulse them, Col. Colt, of Columbus, in command of the state troops, ordered them to fire. Three citizens were killed.

"The situation is evidently very grave," Adjutant General Howe said to the United Press correspondent "and I have ordered all the First regiment at Cincinnati, Company H, of the Seventeenth regiment at Chillicothe, Company L, of the Third regiment at Sabina, and Companies A, F, M, and D, of the Fourteenth regiment here, to report at Washington Court House at the earliest possible moment. I fear that the mob has proved too large and too aggressive to be controlled by the small force of three companies at Col. Colt's command."

The details of the trouble follow: As darkness came on a crowd of 1,500 people surrounded the court house and jail which are really one building, yelling "lynch him, lynch him." Finally some one threw a stone which struck a soldier on the breast. Then Col. Colt, whose anger was aroused, addressed the people in language which was very plain and forcible. He told them not to repeat the offence. "If you want to injure any one," said he, "hit me and not those young men," and, with hat uplifted he walked out into the crowd and said: "Here I am," his face ashen with anger. The crowd gathered around him but not a man lifted his hand to strike the colonel. It was probably well that they did not, for, standing on the court house steps were the soldiers with guns loaded waiting an order to fire. The crowd surged closer and closer to the court house steps, becoming bolder as the darkness increased. Col. Colt addressed them again, or rather attempted to do so, but they would not listen to him. He shouted that he would have to order the soldiers to fire if they did not fall back, but on they came, and finally the order to fire was given. Many were seen to fall and the mob fled like a lot of frightened sheep. The dead are:

Smith Welsh, 18 years of age, son of a groceryman, shot in head and abdomen. Jess Juty, laborer, 25 years old, shot in breast and abdomen. Mack Johnson, of Williamsburg, Brown county, shot in bowels.

The wounded are, William Sam, 23 years old, a laborer; Theodore Ammerman, shot in right thigh, serious; George Keating, 14 years old, shot in groin and in both legs, will die; Frank Smith, flesh wound in foot; Dial Parrott, 20 years old, shot in right foot; John McCune, flesh wound in foot; Ernest Ellis, shot in foot.

The wounded and dead were carried into the engine house and the stores near by.

Others were undoubtedly injured, but these are the most serious cases.

The mob secured a battering ram and began to beat down the door. Not a shot was fired by the soldiers until the door fell in, when the troops fired the volley which resulted so fatally. The remainder of the soldiers were stationed at the south entrance and unmindful that a portion of the crowd was making an attempt to batter down the door at the north entrance. The first fright following the volley having died away, the mob became more boisterous and bold again. They gathered about the court house and though still maintaining a respectful distance, uttered loud imprecations against the soldiers.

The first message received from Col. A. B. Colt, in command of the state troops at Washington Court House, since the report of the assault, was addressed to Gen. J. C. Howe, and was as follows: "Your telegrams just received. No reinforcements have yet arrived. We can hold the court house for hours. The doors were broken in and the guards fired. Reported to us that two were killed and three wounded. It is reported to the sheriff that the mob has broken into the powder house and taken the powder. It is the most determined mob I ever saw. The troops used every precaution. The sheriff and Judge Maynard approve our action. I pleaded and begged of the men to peaceably disperse. Our men are all right now."

At an early hour this morning Adjt. Gen. Howe secured telegram communication with Major John C. Speaks, of the Fourteenth regiment, surrounded in the court house at Washington by the mob. Major Speaks said the mob about the court house and jail seemed to be as large as ever but not so noisy and defiant. He was informed that another large crowd had collected at the railway station evidently awaiting the arrival of more troops. The wisdom of arranging it so that all the detachments should arrive at the same time was now apparent, and orders were sent to the officers of the different commands to effect a meeting at some distance from the town. Major Speaks said the troops at the court house would be able to hold it against the mob, now that it was known that an attempt to take it would be met by a volley of musketry. The mob seemed to be without leaders of courage or it would be equal to almost anything.

Should the mob disperse promptly on the arrival of the reinforcements, the prisoner, Dolby, will be brought on the special train directly to this city, under the guard of the entire state troops and placed in state prison. Gen. Howe says he will not feel easy until the prisoner is safe behind the doors of the state prison. Unless it is plain that the troops have overawed the rioters, however, no attempt will be made to move the prisoner until daylight and the troops will guard the court house and jail until that time.

Fayette county is settled by farmers and the region is distinctively rural. There are no large cities in it, farming and stock raising is almost the only occupation. That a mob so bold and persistent should be met here is a surprise to the state military officers. Never have the mining regions, which were supposed to contain all the worst elements of the state's population, produced a mob that equalled this one in dogged tenacity of purpose and boldness.

Gov. McKinley, who went to Cincinnati after his speech at Hamilton, telegraphed from Cincinnati to his private secretary, that he would return to this city this morning, instead of going on to Louisville, Ky., where he was to speak to-day.

William Dolby, the negro rapist who caused the bloodshed, assaulted Mrs. Mary Boyd a few days ago. He was brought to this city Tuesday and that night the first mob rumors took shape. The local militia was ordered out and later two companies from Columbus reached here. Much indignation was manifested at the action of the officials in thus putting a bar between them and their prey, and on all sides denunciations were frequent. All classes were represented among those who took this view of the situation, though many deplored the lawless spirit manifested. Later in the day a special grand jury was impanelled and the negro was indicted.

CONFESSED TO INCENDIARISM.

Two Negroes Fire the Baldwin Mansion To Hide Their Robberies.

Long Island City, N. Y., Oct. 18.—John P. Williams, colored, coachman for Henry W. Baldwin, manager of the Manhattan Life Insurance company, of New York, living in a handsome mansion in Flushing, and Thomas Bass, also colored, were arrested accused of setting fire to Mr. Baldwin's residence on the morning of Oct. 9, last, in order to hide a series of robberies they had been committing during the family's absence in the Adirondacks last summer. Williams has a wife and three children. He is somewhat of an artist. He is at the head of the Flushing Baptist colored church and is a leader in the Flushing colored band. He has been in Mr. Baldwin's employ for more than nine years. Bass was arrested in this city, while Williams was apprehended in Flushing, where he made a confession before Detectives James Slavin and James Sarvis in Mr. Baldwin's house. The confession was taken down in writing by Mr. Baldwin himself. Among the property stolen from the house was $500 in rare coins, which the thieves sold for $9, a quanity of Bohemian cut glass bought at the Paris exposition and valued at $1,000, a quantity of silverware and many costly articles of bric-a-brac. They had, in addition, emptied Mr. Baldwin's wine cellar, and Williams admitted that, in order to hide the thefts, they concluded to fire the house. Williams admitted Bass into the house at about 4 o'clock that morning, and Bass kindled fires in four different places in the house, not forgetting the wine cellar. The house was damaged to the extent of about $5,000. The culprits are now in the county jail here.

TRAIN ROBBERS ARRESTED.

Work of Thirty Detectives on the Virginia Case.

New York, Oct. 18.—President E. C. Weir of the Adams Express company confirmed the reports from Washington, D. C., and Cumberland, Md., that two men had been arrested who were undoubtedly concetned in the recent train robbery on the Richmond, Fredericksburg & Potomac railroad, at Cherry Run, W. Va. The information in Mr. Weir's possession is in the form of a telegram from some of the company's detectives in Washington. It gives out meagre details of the arrests, not as much, Mr. Weir said, as the newspaper reports. He added that the robbers got less than $20,000 in cash, as it had been learned that several packages supposed to contain easily negotiable securities and cash, contained in reality drafts with bills of lading attached, which can be stopped, and, after a little delay, duplicated. It is just possible that this amount will be further lessened, as the company have not heard from all the persons whose packages were stolen. The Adams Express company have over thirty detectives engaged on the case, who are hard at work confirming reports of arrests made by other persons.

Football at Philadelphia.

Philadelphia, Oct. 18.—Without its goal ever being seriously threatened in the two thirty-minute halves played, Pennsylvania defeated the strong Lehigh team by the score of 30 to nothing. Pennsylvania made three touch downs and three goals in the first half, and two touch downs and two goals in the secod half. The game was played on the grounds of the Philadelphia baseball club, as it was anticipated that the university grounds could not accommodate the crowd that would attend the game, and this expectation was not disappointed, for when play began 6,500 people were present. The day was perfect, a trifle too warm, perhaps, for the players, but just right for the comfort of the spectators.

Restricting the Output of Whiskey.

Louisville, Ky., Oct. 18.—Important action toward restricting the output of Kentucky whiskey has been taken by the distillers, at their meeting. A resolution was adopted providing that the production during the coming year shall be limited to 15,000,000 gallons. The distillers present, representing every large distillery in the state, were unanimous for the proposition. A permanent state association was organized and the production will be apportioned upon an equitable basis.

Anderson for Hill.

New York, Oct. 18.—E. Ellery Anderson has written a letter to the Hon. Charles S. Fairchilds, chairman of the New York state democracy, stating that he not only inends to support the nominees of the Saratoga convention, but also to support the nominees of the regular county convention, and that he deems it necessary to sever his connection with the New York state democracy.

Turk Shoots an Armenian.

Providence, R. I., Oct. 18.—John Semmonian, an Armenian, was shot four times by Chabourne Changeonian, a Turk. Semmonian is dying in the hospital and his assailant is under arrest. The men were enemies.

What Gen. Howard Says About the Army.

Conservative Review of the Chicago Riots—Necessity for National Troops To Meet Emergencies—Demoralizing Effect of Post Exchanges Upon the Soldiers.

Washington, Oct. 18.—Major General O. O. Howard, commanding the department of the east, in his annual report to the adjutant general of the army under date of Aug. 31, shows that his forces consisting of 413 officers and 4,933 privates were distributed among 28 garrisoned and 36 not garrisoned posts. Affairs in the department have been very peaceful except for the interruption of the Chicago strike. This insurrection extended to some degree into Indiana but the governor of that state was so prompt in his action that it obviated the necessity of sending any federal forces there. One regiment from the department, the Ninth infantry, under instructions from Washington went to the vicinity of Chicago and assisted the troops gathered there for thirteen days. Other troops were held in readiness to move to Illinois or elsewhere on short notice. "At one time," says General Howard, "judging by the daily reports, I feared that there would be obstructions to commerce, to transportation of supplies and hindrances of the mails at several points, for example at Toledo, Cleveland, Cincinnati, Columbus, Buffalo, Albany and the vicinity of New York city. My apprehensions were, however, not realized; but should such difficulties arise again, and simultaneously in cities far apart, the necessity for regular troops and more of them than this department now affords is apparent. Just now the national guard in several states in the department is well organized and responds promptly to every call of duty; still, if more than one state is involved in any event growing out of anarchy, the executive will always require his own troops. They will be essential to his execution of the laws and maintenance of order. Of course, governors of states could co-operate, but they might disagree, or be reluctant in meeting sudden emergency. I strongly recommend an increase of the army to at least double the size of our present force. It will, in my judgement, be like an adequate police, the best possible method of preserving the peace until many vexatious questions which are now troubling our country are put at rest by a solution satisfactory to the people of the nation."

General Howard expresses the opinion that our coast defenses are in fairly good condition and that in conjunction with our ever increasing naval armament there would be little to fear from outside agression.

Evils of Post Exchanges.

Regarding the regulations governing post exchanges General Howard is particularly severe. He says: "The post exchanges seem to be conducted in accordance with the orders and regulations. I believe the increase of cases of court martial is largely due to these exchanges. I form this opinion from the cases that have come before me and believe the drinking habit is increased by the encouragement given them. As I myself am regarded as extreme the words of the department inspector are at least certainly suggestive. 'From the amount of beer consumed in them (the exchanges) it is to be feared that we shall have many rheumatic and gouty soldiers in the course of time, providing the restriction on length of service is taken off. As matters stand in this inspection, the general practice seems to be to turn the net profits of the exchanges into the messes of the men. This is bad education for men whose profession is supposed to be one of self-sacrifice and denial. On previous occasions I have advocated turning over a part, say 40 per cent. of the profits, to the post treasurer to be expended in maintaining a post library for the men. It is granted that the men's stomachs must receive careful attention within certain limits but I think that limit has been passed, and that that member is now being favored at the expense of his head. The allowing of the men to purchase from the exchange on credit is also open to criticism.'"

General Howard goes on the retired list on the eighth of November.

First Official Trial of the Maine.

New York, Oct. 18.—The first official trial of a composite built ship-hull construction by a navy yard and motive power by outside contractors was made yesterday in Long Island sound, when the United States battleship Maine demonstrated to the satisfaction of the official board and the proprietors of the Quintard Iron works of this city, who built her machinery, that the vessel's engines will make the 9,000 collective indicated horsepower called for in the contract with the navy department, and something over.

Hot Fight Over Atchison.

New York, Oct. 18.—The sharp contest for the control of the Atchison, Topeka & Santa Fe railroad is now at fever heat, and both the contestants, the present management and the protective committee, claim the victory. Although the annual election will not be held in Topeka until October 25, the work of securing proxies is nearly concluded. The contest now argely turns on the Amsterdam proxies, representing 80,000 shares of stock.

SECRET OF PERPETUAL LIFE

A Convict in Dannemora Claims To Have Discovered It.

New York, Oct. 18.—Romer Best, a convict in the prison at Dannemora Clinton county, New York, claims to have the secret of perpetual life, and wants his formula tested on the condition that if it is successful he shall be given his freedom. His cause has been taken up by Charles Brady, of 34 West Twenty-sixth street, who was released from the prison last week after having served a term of four years and four months for burglary. Best, he says, is an intelligent colored man, about 38 years old, who was sentenced in a Brooklyn court to serve a term of twenty years for burglary. His term expires in 1902, and for his liberty now, Brady says, Best is willing to offer mankind's greatest boon.

His proposition is that he be taken from prison on habeas corpus proceedings, and that he meet a committee of doctors and scientists before a judge the latter to decide the merits of his claim.

Brady says he knows little of Best's secret, except that the principal ingredient in his elixir of life is alcohol. A part of his treatment is to give the candidate for perpetual youth an ounce of butter and follow this with a quantity of alcohol.

Best's theory is that alcohol will sink below the butter, and thus the patient's brain will be protected from the fumes, and he will not get a jag on. Unfortunately for the locked-up Ponce de Leon, he can't get the alcohol in prison to make a test of his theory.

In fact, Mr. Brady is inclined to criticize Warden Thayer for not giving Best the necessary ingredients and allowing him to practice on prisoners in the hospital. Brady says Best has made this proposition to the warden repeatedly, but has always been laughed at.

He also offered after an execution by electricity to restore the victim to life; but the state authorities would not take the chances of having to inflict capital punishment twice on the same subject.

Brady says Best is well educated, intelligent and popular with convicts and keepers. He says he has been thirteen years perfecting his formula, and asserts that it will prolong life as long as it is used. He will not, however, give up the secret until released from prison.

NEW YORK POLITICS.

Senator Hill's Name To Head the Grace Ticket.

New York, Oct. 18.—It has been definitely fixed that the Hill state ticket will head the local Grace-Fairchild ticket. William R. Grace and Francis M. Scott called at democratic state headquarters and after a long interview with Chairman of the Executive Committee John Boyd Thatcher, made the positive announcement. Mr. Grace said: "I may now positively state that our local ticket will be headed by the regular state ticket. David B. Hill's name will lead the list of nominees in large black letters, and he will win. Of course we have all along expected that that would be the outcome, but I am now able to state it in positive terms. The decision was reached in the morning and once decided there will be no change. The organization is locally out for Col. Strong, but in heading its ticket with the regular state ticket will show no inconsistency. We will now bend every effort toward the election of Mr. Hill. We want to win in the city, but our chief efforts will be directed toward the success of the state ticket."

The visit of Mr. Grace and Mr. Scott was, of course, prompted by the call which Mayor Gilroy and other representatives of Nathan Straus, the Tammany candidate for mayor, made upon Major Hinckley. While Major Hinckley preserved a dignified silence after the interview, it is no secret that these gentlemen dropped in to announce the objection of Mr. Straus to any movement allowing the state democracy to head its local ticket with the regular state ticket. In fact, Mr. Straus intimated that if that privilege were allowed he might consider the advisability of resigning. It is very well understood that Mr. Straus is in the fight to stay. Of course, he would have preferred that no recognition should be given to the Grace democracy, but now that it has been, he will contest the battle on local issues to the best of his ability.

MYSTERIOUS ROBBERY

Fifty $1,000 Bonds Stolen in Brooklyn.

They Belonged to Stephen A. Dutton and Were Against the Montauk Coal and Gas Company of West Virginia—The Police Puzzled Over the Matter.

New York, Oct. 18.—Stephen A. Dutton, of Carroll street, Brooklyn, had $50,000 bonds of the Montauk Coal Gas company of West Virginia which he found to be missing from his desk at his home. They are valued at about $30,000. He had not examined the drawer in which they were for ten days. The interest certificates of the bonds were left untouched. Policeman Sullivan found the house door open at 1:20 a. m., when he tried the front door. He went in and rapped, but got no response, and then bolted the door and proceeded to search the house. He found the rear door of the basement open. On the third floor he discovered Mr. Dutton's brother, Allen, asleep. While talking with him, Mr. and Mrs Dutton, who had been to a social gathering, returned and were unable to get in the house. When they were admitted the search of the house was continued, but everything was found all right until Mr. Dutton thought of his bonds and examined his desk. The roll-top was not fastened, and the drawer was open half an inch. No trace of the bonds was found. There were no marks on the desk or upon the doors of the house.

Mr. and Mrs. Dutton and Allen Dutton all went out on Tuesday evening leaving a servant and a child in the house. Allen Dutton returned at 10:30, and found the house properly fastened and left it in the same way when he went to bed. The only suspicious circumstances that the family could recall was that on Thursday two well-dressed men came to the house to see Mr. Dutton. He was not at home and Mrs. Dutton saw them. They said that they desired to see about purchasing a mortgage from Mr Dutton. Mr. Dutton says he had not talked of selling a mortgage to anyone. He is in the dock business on the East river. He telegraphed to the Montauk company in regard to the missing bonds, so that they cannot be negotiated.

The police are puzzled over the matter and are trying to locate the two strangers.

RHODE ISLAND IN THE WAR.

Location of Various Organizations at Antietam and Gettysburg.

Sharpsburg, Md., Oct. 18.—General Elisha H. Rodes, of the 2d Rhode Island volunteers; Captain Walter A. Read, of the 4th Rhode Island volunteers; Captain Benj. H. Child, battery A; Levi J. Cornell, battery B; Captain Fred M. Sacket, battery C; Captain Charles T. Gray, battery D, and Major William D. Rhodes, battery G, of the First Rhode Island light artillery, the commission appointed by Governor D. Russell Brown, of Rhode Island, to locate the positions occupied by Rhode Island organizations in the battle of Antietam have arrived here. They were accompanied by Governor Brown as a guest of the commission and by Major George B. Davis, U. S. A., of Washington, D. C., General E. A. Corman, of New Jersey, and Major Jed Hotchkiss, of Staunton, Va., members of the Antietam battlefield commission. After taking dinner at the Antietam house the party was driven over a portion of the battlefield and succeeded in locating the positions occupied by all of the organizations which took part in the battle with the exception of the Fourth Rhode Island volunteers and battery C, of the Rhode Island light artillery. The party will next go to Burnside bridge for the purpose of locating the positions of these two organizations, after which they will leave for Gettysburg to visit the battlefield there.

Negro Progress.

Atlanta, Ga., Oct. 18.—The plans for the negro building of the cotton states and international exposition include a novel exhibit in the way of a panorama showing the progress of the negro from his native state in the wilds of Africa, and in his original thatched hut, by successive stages, to the most advanced type of the race in America. Besides this, a large assembly hall for negro congresses is a leading feature. The building will have 25,000 feet of floor space. The exposition has secured a chime of bells larger and finer than the one at the world's fair, and they will be placed in a tower 150 feet high, on the big manufacturing and liberal arts building. The new process of extracting gold from red dirt by chlorination will be in operation in machinery hall.

The Lourenzo Marquez Situation.

London, Oct. 18.—Sir Henry Loch, governor of Cape Colony, who is about to return to his post, gave a brief interview on the situation at Lourenzo Marquez. He ridiculed the report that Premier Cecil Rhodes had offered to help the besieged Portuguese. Mr. Rhodes, he said, was powerless to take such a step without Great Britain's consent. He thought it possible that Mr. Rhodes had suggested the exertion of friendly influence to Chief Gungunhana, but he himself was not aware that the course had been followed.

Bad for Alderman Parks.

Freehold, N. J., Oct. 18.—Among the 151 indictments found by the Monmouth county grand jury, was one against Alderman Chas. Parks of New York city. He is charged with running a gambling house on Fifth avenue, which became so notorious that the authorities raided the place. Charles Lyman, who was associated with Park in conducting the gambling, was also indicted.

Against Richard K. Fox.

New York, Oct. 18.—In the United States circuit court the suit of Everett E. Salisbury, of Danielsonville, Conn., against Richard K. Fox, for libel, was decided in favor of the plaintiff. Judge Lacombe was on the bench. This is the case in which Fox's paper charged Salisbury with betrayal of a woman in Connecticut.

THE BASEBALL WAR

Progress Toward Formation of a New League.

The Movement a Fight Against the National League, Which Claims To Take No Notice of the Matter—Sunday Games Considered — Big Money in Baseball.

New York, Oct. 18.—The indications are that some progress has been made toward the formation of a national baseball association to fight the league. It is said that everything connected with the movement in all parts of the country is traveling towards the metropolis. They are all under sealed orders, and neither the meeting place nor any other of the plans of the new association are to be divulged until the leaders consider the time ripe.

Some of the more enthusiastic among the schemers, however, have given out the fact that New York, Brooklyn, Philadelphia, Providence, Chicago, Pittsburg, Milwaukee, and either Detroit or Buffalo will make up the association circuit, grounds having been secured in all those cities.

So far as Buffalo and Providence are concerned, the above statements are somewhat premature. P. T. Powers, the president of the eastern league, admitted this much to a reporter.

"Those two cities will not be in it," he said. "On last Sunday night at the Broadway theatre, on the occasion of the Temple cup presentation, three or four people in the eastern league came together, and the cities of Buffalo and Providence pledged themselves to the eastern league."

The members of the national league profess to be not at all disturbed by the coming formation of a new association. In talking of the matter George E. Stackhouse, the secretary of the New York Baseball club, said:

"When the new association was first talked of there were rumors that Cornelius Van Cott, John B. Day, the old president of the New Yorks; W. B. Wheeler, one of the largest operators in Wall street and one of our directors; P. T. Powers, the president of the eastern league and the Overman wheel club, were behind the scheme, but the very next day they all came out and denied it, said the scheme was a crazy one, and that they had never thought of going in.

"The league is taking no notice of the matter at all. There is no truth in the story that a special meeting is to be called, and the league members do not meet again until November, when the annual meeting always takes place.

"The new association is talking of a peaceable arrangement by which they should play Sunday ball and charge 25 cents. Neither scheme is feasible. They think that there is big money to be made out of baseball. So there is, but they forget what has been lost. The New Yorks played even last year, and made a little money this year, but it will take a lot more before they are even on the losses of the past. Any more fights will ruin the game."

WANT TO BE WARRIORS.

American Citizens Applying for Jobs in the Chinese Army.

Washington, Oct. 18.—Numerous applications have been made to the Chinese legation since the commencement of hostilities between China and Japan, by American citizens seeking employment in the military and naval service of that country. These applications are made by telegraph, by letter and in person. In some cases the applicants have had military service. While in the majority of cases the persons who desire this employment ask for places of prominence in the army and navy, others are satisfied to serve as gunners, and in less responsible positions. The legation has also been asked to purchase for the service of the Chinese government torpedoes, munitions of war and even provisions. H. W. Hoo, one of the secretaries of the legation, authorizes the statement that the legation has no authority either to aid in the enlistment of persons who desire appointments in the Chinese service or to purchase munitions of war, or other material.

Favorable to Serum Treatment.

Paris, Oct. 18.—A special committee of the Academy of Medicine have reported favorably to the serum treatment of diphtheria which is universally known in France as the Roux treatment. The report ascribes full credit also to Klebs, Loeffler, Yersin, Fraenkel, Behring and Kitasato for their shares in the discovery and development of the remedy. It expresses the hope that the Pasteur institute, where the serum is prepared, will be enabled to supply all France. The number of cures effected with the serum multiplies in France, Austria, Germany, Italy and other countries.

To End Obstructive Tactics.

London, Oct. 18.—Henry Labouchere Lefevre, president of the local government board, said in a liberal meeting in Bradford that the government was determined to end the obstructive tactics of the lords, who had ceased to be an independent part of the legislature and had become merely a section of the Tory caucus. The country might expect a statement on this subject from the prime minister in a few days.

To Reinforce the British Squadron.

Liverpool, Oct. 18.—Two hundred British seamen and marines have sailed on the Allan line steamer Numidian for Canada. They will reinforce the British squadron in Chinese waters and will proceed by the Canadian Pacific route, as the shortest way to their destination.

Wilson's Boston Trip Postponed.

Boston, Oct. 18.—Hon. Wm. L. Wilson has postponed his visit to Boston, and his lecture in the star course, until November 12, owing to the fact that campaigning in the open air has almost ruined his voice.

Gorman To Speak for Hill.

Baltimore, Md., Oct. 18.—Senator Gorman is preparing to go to New York to speak for Mr. Hill. He holds strong views on the failure of the administration to support the democratic candidate in New York.

OVERWORK KILLS.

How Few Persons Stop to Think Of It.

And How Few Who Are Not Overworking In Some Way—Does This Mean You, Reader? Are You Not Doing More Than You Ought?

Oh, the millions of tired out, hardworking men and women! Our stores, shops, factories and homes all have them. They are weakening their systems, ruining their nerves, and laying a foundation for early decay and death. That nervous, weak and tired feeling at night is a warning of what is coming.

If you feel this way, look out! You will break down just as surely as you don't do something to get strong. Read the terrible experience of D. D. Bulkley, Esq., one of the most popular men of Moretown, Vt.:

"Within the last year I have found myself in a fearfully debilitated and depressed condition from overwork. I was in such a terrible state I could not sleep nights, and was so weak and nervous that the least exertion would completely unnerve me.

"I also had trouble with my kidneys, they bothered me constantly. I became greatly discouraged and worried all the time.

MR. D. D. BULKLEY.

"I consulted many physicians, but they did me no good. I also took all kinds of medicines, but without benefit.

"Finally I was induced to try Dr. Greene's Nervura blood and nerve remedy, and I can truly say that in a short time it had done me great good, more than all the other medicines together. Its action on my system was wonderful. I can now sleep well, my nerves are strong and I feel well.

"I owe my cure entirely to that most wonderful medicine, Dr. Greene's Nervura blood and nerve remedy. I recommend every sick and suffering person to use it. I know it will cure them."

As a great physician once said, "If these poor sufferers would only be induced to take Dr. Greene's Nervura blood and nerve remedy they would soon be well and strong." Some people are hard to be convinced, but even the most unbelieving now realize that this wonderful medicine cures.

And it is because it cures that everybody uses it. Try it. It is purely vegetable and harmless, and its discoverer is that well-known and most successful specialist in curing nervous and chronic diseases, Dr. Greene, of 35 West 14th st., New York City. He can be consulted free, personally or by letter.

All that's Yellow is not Cottolene

There's hardly a housekeeper in the country but has heard of Cottolene the new vegetable shortening. It is a strictly natural product; composed only of clarified cotton seed oil, thickened for convenience in use, with refined beef suet, pure and sweet. So composed,

COTTOLENE

Was bound to win, and to drive out lard from the kitchens of the world. When housekeepers wish to get rid of the unpleasant features and results of lard, they should get Cottolene, taking care that they are not given cheap imitations with vegetable names, spuriously compounded to sell in the place of Cottolene.

It's easy to avoid disappointment and ensure satisfaction. Insist on having Cottolene.

COUNTY DEMOCRATIC CONVENTION

At a meeting of the Democratic Executive Committee of the County of Union, held September 20, 1894, it was resolved to hold the County Convention on Wednesday, Oct. 24, 1894,

at 2 p. m., in

ARMORY HALL, BROAD ST., ELIZABETH,

to nominate candidates for County Clerk, Members of Assembly, and one Coroner. It was also resolved to designate between the hours of seven and nine in the evening, as the time for holding primary meetings.

The ratio of representation will be one delegate for every fifty and one for every fraction over twenty-five Democratic votes cast at the last Gubernatorial election.

The number of delegates to which each ward and township is entitled is as follows:

	Votes.	Delegates.
Clark township	50	1
Cranford township	165	3
Elizabeth—
First Ward	586	12
Second Ward	486	10
Third ward	591	12
Fourth ward	352	7
Fifth ward	309	6
Sixth ward	366	7
Seventh ward	432	9
Eighth ward	624	12
Ninth ward	476	9
Tenth ward	172	3
Eleventh ward	225	5
Twelfth ward	260	5
Fanwood township	134	3
Linden township	193	4
New Providence township	82	2

Third ward	309	6
Fourth ward	158	3
Springfield township	88	2
Summit township	382	8
Union township	306	6
Westfield township	311	6
Total		170

A member of the County Committee in each ward and township will be elected at the above primaries for the ensuing year.

By order of the County Democratic Executive Committee,
Dated Sept. 26, 1894.
JOHN J. MATTHEWS, Chairman.
A. P. HUGHES, Secretary.

DEMOCRATIC PRIMARIES.

The Democratic voters of the city of Plainfield are requested to meet on Monday evening Oct. 22, at 8 o'clock, at the following named places to nominate delegates to the County Convention to be held at Elizabeth, on Wednesday, Oct. 24.

	Delegates
1st ward, Hoagland's office, North ave.,	5
2d ward, Bryant & Bro.'s,	5
3d ward, Livery Stable, Sixth street,	3
4th ward, Democratic Headquarters, Front street,	8

J. B. MARTINE, Pres. Ass'n.
L. F. WADSWORTH, Sec'y.

The local Democracy having called its primaries, it becomes the duty of every voter of the party to attend.

The Democratic County Committee have secured Room 21 in the Dix Building, Broad street, Elizabeth, for a headquarters during the campaign.

Again the Daily Press reminded of the danger of having the fire horses away from headquarters. Yesterday two companies were delayed by the horses being at work.

In response to inquiries The Press now states that the New Jersey Senators to be elected this Fall are in the counties of Burlington, Cape May, Hunterdon, Middlesex, Passaic and Sussex.

In declining to take the stand that it is a sin to license the liquor traffic, the Presbyterian Synod of New Jersey yesterday laid itself open to dangerous criticism. The action will be welcomed by lukewarm temperance communities who covet license revenue while deploring saloons.

New Brunswick continues envious of Plainfield's advantages. The latest lament of The Home News is this:

"Consumers of gas in Plainfield are rejoicing in the announcement that the Plainfield Gas and Electric Light Company, which has a monopoly of lighting in Plainfield, has voluntarily reduced the cost of gas from $2.20 to $2 a thousand cubic feet, with 10 per cent. off for cash. Can't we have something to the same effect in this city? Trenton, Plainfield, Newark, Orange and other cities in this State have riding schools for ladies and gentlemen. New Brunswick has no such school."

Having received a membership-application blank, The Press is in a position to state that the principles of the A. P. A. as stated are:

Restriction of Immigration.

Extension of time for naturalization.

An educational qualification for every voter.

One general non-sectarian Free Public School System.

Public funds and public property not to be used for sectarian purposes.

Taxation of all property not owned and controlled by the public.

All places of a reformatory or charitable character receiving public aid and support shall at all times be open to public official inspection.

No person who recognizes allegiance to any foreign or ecclesiastical potentate shall be supported for any official public position whatever.

American land for actual settlers.

Any citizen eighteen years of age and upward, of good moral character, who approves these principles, is eligible to membership in this organization regardless of his nationality and party affiliations.

The initiation fee is $1; the quarter's dues, 25 cents. P. O. Box 165, Elizabeth, is the local headquarters address.

When trade is slack what there is of it goes to those who have the courage and energy to ask for it.

GEISSENHAINER.

Never a more enthusiastic convention was held in the district where North Plainfield casts its Congressional vote, than in Freehold Monday when the Democrats renominated Jacob A. Geissenhainer by acclamation. For three successive terms he has served his district. He has been an active, industrious and faithful Representative. His record in Congress is one that recommends him to hearty support. Few men in Congress have applied themselves so closely to their official duties, and none has been a better committeeman. He has earnestly supported the policy of the party and helped to redeem its pledges to the people by voting for the Wilson Tariff bill and for the repeal of the Force bill. He also voted and labored faithfully for the repeal of the Sherman silver purchasing act. He deserves to be re-elected.

FAIRS AND BUSINESS.

The frequency of fairs, and the treatment accorded by them to local merchants, is the subject of much discussion among those who feel that the bazars injure established tax paying and town-supporting businesses. One leading merchant feels that he has serious cause for complaint, and says:

"I have contributed in three different ways fancy articles to the coming Y. M. C. A. fair, as well as given to the building fund. I suppose almost every merchant in town has done the same, or will do so.

"I heard incidentally yesterday that the ladies committee were going to New York to get the materials for their fancy dresses, etc., to be worn at the different booths, and doubtless make other purchases for the fair.

"I trust this is a false report, for I feel sure if this course is pursued the other merchants in town, as well as myself, will not feel like rendering further assistance to the fair. If Plainfield merchants have not the goods in stock that the committee need, they can be procured at a day's notice, and there is no excuse for such shabby treatment on the part of the fair people. Plainfield merchants seem to be all right to beg from, but not to buy from."

This is a strong indictment, and if the charges are true local merchants will be justifiable in refusing support to such bazars in the future.

WOMEN'S WORDS.

The closing session of the annual State W. C. T. U. convention in Pennsylvania was characterized by a severe arraignment of the church for its treatment of the temperance question, delivered by Mrs. Louise Downes Quigley, the president of the New Jersey State W. C. T. U. Mrs. Quigley said in part:

"The church has lost its grip upon the moral forces of the world because it has not gripped the saloon. The saloon is an evil organized. Dr. James Payne says there are 19,000,000 professing Christians and 100,000 Christian ministers, and the saloon has more power in the politics of this country than all the churches, all the ministers, all the schools and colleges of the nation combined; but this appalling fact does not stir the church from its slumbers, and these millions of Christian people could overthrow the liquor traffic if they would. If the church can not or will not attack its enemy, and the Woman's Christian Temperance Union can and will, then every facility the church possesses to aid this organization in so doing should be laid at its feet I ask you, Should it not?"

And this was the reply of the Pennsylvania women:

"Resolved, That the Pennsylvania Woman's Christian Temperance Union recognizes in the Christian Church its forerunner and strongest ally, and that it hereby declares itself loyal to it and its principles, and that it asks its indorsement and co-operation in its work."

The Pennsylvania women used good judgment.

THE RELIGIOUS TEST.

Appropriate to the creed agitation which has been brought into Plainfield where all sects have in times past been so harmonious, is the action of the Third Congressional District Democratic Convention, which said:

"We denounce as un-American any system which would require as one of the qualifications for public office, a religious test. Our forefathers when they founded this nation founded it as a nation where all might come and be upon an equal footing, and might worship God according to the dictates of their own conscience without let or hindrance from any person or power.

"The recent attempts by the Republican party to enlist with them people who hold different views and who would deprive their fellow citizens of the right to aspire to and hold of office, or to take any part in our Government, are unworthy of the high standard which has always been set up for the American people, and which makes them a people different from the monarchies and the despotisms of the governments of the old world; the Constitution of this State in section 4 of article 1, speaks of the sentiment of our people, and we can safely say of Americans at large, when it says: 'There shall be no establishment of one religious sect in preference to another; no religious test shall be required as a qualification for an office of public or private trust; and no person shall be denied the enjoyment of any civil right merely on account of his religious principles'. We demand that all the people, regardless of race, color or religion, shall be entitled equally to all privileges under the Constitution of the United States, and of this State, so long as they comply with the constitutional requirements."

—Augustus Rose, the Scotch Plains lockjaw patient, is improving rapidly in Muhlenberg Hospital, and is now able to take short walks about the West End.

—Little Miss Viola Odam returned to The Press office this morning the black sachel advertised in yesterday's Daily Press. It's really wonderful, but everybody seems to read The Press, and that Wants and Offers column is a wonder.

TRAGEDY AT SEA CLIFF.

A YOUNG MAN AND HIS FIANCEE DEAD TOGETHER.

The Bodies Found in a Bath House.

Elliott E. Titus of Brooklyn, and Miss Mary Duff, daughter of Peter Duff, also of Brooklyn, who left Mr. Duff's Summer house at Sea Cliff, L. I., at 9 Tuesday evening, saying they were going for a short walk and did not return, were found dead last night in Mr. Duff's bath house. The discovery was made at 10 by the party of searchers who had been looking for the young couple ever since yesterday morning.

The bath-house was locked on the inside. The door was forced open, and the bodies were found on the floor. Both were shot through the head. The pistol with which the shooting was done is said to have been found upon the floor, and this gave rise to the belief that Titus shot himself and the girl, who was his sweetheart.

Miss Duff was 20 years of age and Titus about 22. He was a Summer visitor at Sea Cliff for the past three or four seasons, always boarding at Mr. Duff's house, where he first met the girl.

It was expected that they would be married this Winter, the engagement being satisfactory to all concerned. When they started out on Tuesday night at 9, they said they would be gone only twenty minutes. As the hours passed and they did not return, the Duff family became anxious and a search was made for them, but without success, until the bath-house was opened. No cause is assigned for their act.

JOHN BROWN LOST EVERYTHING.

The Owner of the Buildings, However, Was Partly Insured.

The house and barn of S. R. Struthers of Madison avenue on Plainfield avenue, a mile south of the city line, which were destroyed yesterday noon, were insured through M. M. Dunham's agency. The Continental Insurance Company bears a loss of $2,100 on the house and $400 on the barn and outbuildings, nothing remaining of any of the buildings on the farm.

John Brown, who runs the farm, had no insurance whatever, and loses all the crops he had harvested, a cow, six small pigs and a flock of chickens. His wife regrets the loss of all of the canned fruit which she had just finished preparing and placed in the cellar

To the agent Mr. Brown said today that the fire probably caught from his pipe. He has always been careful about smoking, but yesterday he must have dropped a spark from his pipe as he harnessed the horse. He was outside when his wife saw the flames from the house and alarmed him. Nothing remained to be done but to save the household furnishings as the flames were swept across the sheds to the house. The preservation of the furniture is of great consolation to the unfortunate couple.

CHURCH CHIMES.

The W. C. T. U. will begin next Sunday a series of services in Music Hall, commencing at 4:15 p. m. Interesting and instructive speakers have been secured for each Sunday.

The first of the meetings of the Park Avenue Baptist Church Reading Circle under the change of day from Wednesday to Friday will be held tomorrow afternoon at the home of Mrs. Chas A. Haynes, 826 First place.

The Sunday-school of Holy Cross Church will meet at the Sunday-school rooms Saturday morning at 10, to embark in Conover's big stage for the chestnutting hunt that was postponed by the rain from last week.

The women of Grace M. E. Church, Park place, are making great preparations for their chrysanthemum tea this evening. They promise an enjoyable evening, and a great big supper for 25 cents. The announcement for last night was a mistake.

Bishop A. W. Wayman, D. D., of Baltimore will preach the dedicatory sermon in Mt. Zion A. M. E. Church, Liberty street, Sunday, Oct. 21, at 3 p. m. An invitation is extended to all pastors, by Rev. T. A. V. Henry, pastor, and Rev. W. W. Dyett, P. E.

A tea will be given at the home of Mr. and Mrs G. Q. Dolliver, 17 Manning avenue, tonight, from 5 to 10, under the auspices of the Ladies Christian Work Society of Trinity Reformed Church. Mr. and Mrs. Dolliver are whole-souled, genial people, and a pleasant evening will be enjoyed by all who attend.

The Junior Christian Endeavor Society of the Congregational Church met in the church parlors yesterday afternoon, and reorganized for Winter work. The following officers were elected: President, Miss Emma LaBoyteaux; vice-president, Miss Alice Morgan; secretary, James Beekman; treasurer, Harold Nomer. The chairmen of the committees will be elected at the next meeting.

At the annual meeting of the congregation of Trinity Reformed Church last evening George L. Van Emburgh, Alex. Willett and J. P. Laire were elected elders, and H. E Gayle, W. F. Oliver and A. B. Clemmins were elected deacons. John H. Van Winkle was chosen chairman of the meeting, and the clerk of the consistory, D. Van Winkle, served as secretary. There was no opposition to the officers, and they were unanimously elected by the clerk's casting the ballots.

—Driver Vail of C. M. Baybert's wagon narrowly escaped running over a little girl at Park avenue and Fourth street at noon yesterday when he turned the corner at a reckless speed.

—Cook & Company laid 208 feet of fifteen-inch pipe on Third street yesterday, the greatest length yet laid in a day. The supply of that size is now exhausted, and tomorrow the men are to begin to lay twelve-inch pipe on Plainfield avenue. Mr. Prout is in Ohio ordering more pipe.

The Trinity Church organist, A. L. Titsworth, is in great demand this month. He has been invited to play for three weddings.

Telephone Manager Charles Runyon was able to be on the street today, by aid of crutches. He is steadily improving from his fall.

Mrs. Charles Horne and daughter, Miss Elsie Horne, of Willow avenue, are spending a week with Mrs. Horne's father, James A. McGee of Willow avenue, at Hotel St. Denis.

Yung Kiung Yen, the Chinese clergyman, was entertained at tea last evening at the home of the Misses Buxton, 452 West Sixth street, to company with a few friends. He became acquainted with the family when a student.

VENINO'S DOWNFALL.

The Worst of News from the West.

A letter written from Spokane nine days ago, before the divorce proceedings were published, states that Venino has become involved in scandal in the Conservatory, and that as a supposedly single man he had compromised a young woman of the institution. His resignation was demanded.

EARLY INTELLIGENCE.

CYCLING COMMENT.

Capt. F. L. C. Martin counted 59 as the century cyclers left Plainfield. John Mortimer was the only Plainfielder who rode from start to finish.

Monte Scott's twenty-fourth birthday anniversary passed by yesterday. It was celebrated in a quiet way in the evening when Mrs. Neighbor gave a supper at which Monte's mother and Manager Teel were honored guests.

Nine Crescents rode to Metuchen this morning and escorted to town the century riders of the Asbury Park Wheelmen. They arrived at 11:15, 75 strong, including all the original starters and accessions to the ranks, and ate dinner in the Hotel Grenada and McVey's restaurant. After resting an hour they went on to Paterson.

The Articles Filed.

Articles of incorporation have been filed in the office of the county clerk by the Allen-Foise Manufacturing Company, which The Press said several days ago had been organized. The incorporators are Joseph C. and Edith A. Allen of Plainfield, and Lee Foise and Asher Foise of New York city.

The purpose for which the company is formed is the manufacture and sale of tooth powder and similar preparations. The business will be conducted at Plainfield. The capital stock is $18,000, divided into 180 shares of $100 each.

Catarrh Cannot Be Cured

with local applications, as they cannot reach the seat of the disease. Catarrh is a blood or constitutional disease, and in order to cure it you must take internal remedies. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, and acts directly on the blood and mucous surfaces. Hall's Catarrh Cure is not a quack medicine. It was prescribed by one of the best physicians in this country for years, and is a regular prescription. It is composed of the best tonics known, combined with the best blood purifiers, acting directly on the mucous surfaces. The perfect combination of the two ingredients is what produces such wonderful results in curing catarrh. Send for testimonials, free.

FOUND DEAD IN A SHED

Ghastly Discovery by Mrs. F. B. Randolph.

THE BODY WAS BATHED IN BLOOD.

Hemorrhage of the Lungs the Cause of Death—The Victim Was Henry Huff, a Well-Known Carpenter—Leaves a Wife and Four Children.

Mrs. Frank B. Randolph of 145 West Front street went out to the wood-shed in the rear of her home shortly before 7 this morning and was shocked at finding there the body of a man with blood about him. He had died from hemorrhages. She called to her husband and he hurried to the station-house and notified Sergeant Kiely.

Policeman McCue was stationed in Cutter's lane where the shed is while County Physician O'Reilly was notified by telephone from The Daily Press office. Permission was granted for the removal of the remains and at 8 Undertaker Casey took the body to the morgue on West Third street.

The dead man was identified as Henry Huff. It is thought he died early last evening. Yesterday afternoon he sat by the boiler in the rear of Ulrich & Blatz's store. He had been unwell all day while he was out driving with Edward Conshea, driver for the market. At 5 he stopped talking with William Geiger and went out into the lane, apparently taken with a slight hemorrhage.

He must have gone into the shed at once and sat down to rest. His attack became worse and he probably died from loss of blood in a short time after entering. When found he lay on his back with his left arm under him and his head turned towards the right.

Huff was 42 years old. He was formerly a carpenter but of late he has had no employment. Until a month ago he lived at the Arlington Hotel. He then left and went to room with Edward Conshea when the latter hired a house on Arlington avenue and moved from his father's home in North Plainfield. Conshea missed him last night, but went home without him after searching for him for some time.

Mrs. Huff lives on New street with four children, Harry, Fred, Ella and Grace. Two other daughters Miss Agnes Huff and Mrs. William Comstock, live in Pennsylvania. Harry Huff is employed in Albert Hedden's livery stables, while Fred works in Hummer & Mulford's market.

Huff's father was Perrine Huff, who died seven years ago. His brothers, Andrew J., carpenter, Frank P., merchant tailor, and his sister, Miss Adelia Huff, live at 926 Park avenue. These two brothers have been engaged in building enterprises lately and own the three new houses opposite their residence.

The funeral will be held tomorrow afternoon from the house of the widow, 125 New street. The interment will be in Evergreen Cemetery.

Selling Netherwood Stock.

A horse and two blankets, the private property of Frank E. Miller, were sold this morning by Constable W. R. Mattox on a writ of execution secured in Justice Mosher's Court by Frank E. Linke. The auction was held at Terrill & Coles's stables.

Mrs. Linke bought the horse, a gray worth $150, for $36. Walter Hetfield purchased the blankets for 50 cents. The rest of the contents of the hotel stables were claimed by Charles Hyde and others and could not be sold. Receiver W. R. Coddington of the Hotel Netherwood Company objected to the sale this morning, and has filed a claim for the horse and blankets also.

The Last of the Estate.

E. R. Pope, executor, yesterday afternoon sold the last of the property of the late Ezra Wooden, thereby settling the estate. The house and lot corner of Chatham and Warren streets was bought by Richard E. Cortell for $1,530. The woodland on the mountain, about six acres, went to L. M. French for $175.

The property belonged to Gideon Wooden who made Mr. Pope his executor when he died 25 years ago. It was entailed during the life of his son Ezra and the son's wife. Both of these now being dead the executor had the right to sell the real estate and divide the money among the heirs.

BLAIR-DOUD.

PRETTY HOME WEDDING IN THE BOROUGH.

A Horseshoe of Roses Gives a Good-Luck Benediction to the Marriage of a Popular Young Couple.

At a quiet home wedding last evening were united in marriage Miss Nellie Doud, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Doud, and James Blair, son of Mr. and Mrs. Ramsey Blair. The marriage took place at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Doud, corner of Emily and Duer streets. The house was prettily decorated with flowers and Autumn leaves. The stair-rail was twined with smilax and adorned with flowers, making beautiful the hall at the entrance. In the parlor an alcove was decked with leaves of many colors, with a horseshoe of white roses and green foliage in the centre. Other flowers about the room and the soft colored light from shaded lamps made the parlor a place of beauty.

The ceremony was performed by Rev C. E. Herring, pastor of the First Presbyterian Church. The bride's father gave her away. The bride was attired in white silk. She wore an elegant pearl lace pin, presented by the groom. The maid of honor, Miss May Doud, the sister of the bride, was gowned in pink. Thos. King, Jr., was the dignified best man The ushers were William Doud and Thomas Blair.

Many handsome presents testified to the popularity of the bride and the kind feelings of the many friends of the family. After the happy couple were married the guests were invited to the dining-room where a bountiful supper was served. On their return to the parlor Mr. Herring rendered several selections on the piano and afterwards accompanied the singing. Miss Bessie Blair sang a solo, and Mr. Herring. Blanchard Randolph and Thomas King a trio. The rest of the evening was passed in an enjoyable way with conversation and the heartiest of repeated congratulations.

Mr. and Mrs. Blair will take no wedding trip, but instead will start at once to keep house on East Fifth street. Mr. Blair was formerly employed in New York, but now works for Mr. Doud.

Among the guests present last evening were: Thomas King, Jr., Freeman Shotwell, Blanchard Randolph, Mrs Jeremiah Jaggers, Mrs Parks, Mr and Mrs William Shotwell, Miss Mary Hughes, Mr and Mrs Ramsey Blair, Mr and Mrs A C Blair, Miss Bessie Blair, Thomas Blair, Samuel Atchison, and John Doud of Plainfield; Judge Collins of Westfield; Mr and Mrs James Craig, Miss Emma Craig, Hazelwood Craig, Mr and Mrs D C Boice, Miss Ethel Boice, and Mrs Sidney Craig of Dunellen; Mrs Chichester of Poughkeepsie; Miss Josie O'Brien of Troy; and Mr and Mrs W J Hamilton of Hackensack.

CURRENT EVENTS CLUB.

Music Opens the Season's Work, with a Song Written by a Local Poetess.

The Club of Current Events held an introductory meeting of a charming character yesterday afternoon at the residence of the vice-president, Mrs. Frank Curtis of Mercer avenue. Besides the twenty-five members composing the club, a number of invited guests and members of other clubs were present. After the calling of the roll by the secretary, Mrs. C. F. Pond, an address of welcome, bright and racy, was made by the president, Mrs A. E. Faber. Instead of the usual programme of written papers and discussions, social chat was interspersed with the following programme: A piano duet rendered by Mrs. Dwight and Mrs. George Dupee; song by Mrs. M. I. Cooley; piano duet by Mrs. Dwight and Mrs. A. E Faber; and song by Mrs. Cooley, the words of which were written by Miss May H. Taylor of Rockview avenue. Refreshments and a piano solo by Mrs. Dwight concluded an afternoon full of pleasure to the participants.

THE CHURCH'S SON-IN-LAW.

Dr. Barnes of Plainfield Happily Expresses Y. M. C. A. Relationship

Referring to the Y. M. C. A. Conference speech of Rev. Dr. C. R. Barnes of Plainfield, the Somerville papers speak of Dr Barnes as humorous. His topic was "Our Responsibility to Young Men", and among other good things he said that the Y. M. C. A. had at first been regarded by the churches very much as a father who has several daughters regards a young man when he first comes around his home, but when he finds he is all right he puts his hand on his head and tells him to go ahead. The church, said he, is beginning to understand that the Y. M. C. A. is its son-in-law.

LUNCH-BOX AUCTION.

PYTHIAN SISTERS AND FRIENDS HAVE ABUNDANT FUN.

One Customer Was Laughably Sold by a Pair of Old Shoes—Music, Readings and Tableaux.

A lunch-box social was the affair that brought pleasure and profit to the Pythian Sisters in K. of P. Hall last evening. The hall was crowded, and the entertainment, the lunch box auction and the dancing were equally enjoyed by the merry throng. The treasury of the lodge was greatly benefited by the sales of the boxes.

The evening opened with the rendering of the following programme:

Music, Guttman's orchestra; recitation. Bert Thatcher; contralto solo, Mrs A I Clark; recitation, Miss Ida Tallamy; instrumental duet. G and J Downey; song E M Odam; recitation, Mrs C W Lines; song, Geo Stevens; vocal duet, Mrs A D Pope and Mrs A E Clark; recitation, Mrs I H Boehm; quartette, Mrs Wm A Westphal, Miss Pullen, Mr Leland and Bert Tallamy; sleight-of-hand tricks, George Downey; song, E M Odam; solo, Mrs A D Pope; tableaux—"Country Gossip", Mrs Drew Mattis, Mrs Andrew Cox; "Mischief", Master Ford, Master Dennick, Miss Newman, Mrs Haberle, Miss Mamie Stevens; "Charity Begins at Home", Mrs I H Boehm, C W Lines, Master Ford, Master Egan, Miss Newman; "Never a Rose Without a Thorn", Mrs Haberle, Master Egan. Miss Mamie Stevens, Master Dennick.

Every number of the programme was rendered in an excellent manner, and each of those who took part received hearty applause. The tableaux were greatly appreciated. E. M. Odam was called out four times and delighted the audience very much with his songs. The recitations were a pleasing part of the entertainment, and the music showed that those who played were possessed of more than usual talent.

At the close of the entertainment J. G. Haberle and A. D. Pope took elevated positions and proceeded with an auction of the lunch-boxes which the women had prepared. The merriment was increased when one man who had paid a high price for his package found in it nothing but an old pair of shoes. When all had selected partners by this scheme they adjourned to the banquet room and there enjoyed supper. Dancing to the music of Guttman's orchestra finished the evening. The affair was in charge of the following committee: Mrs. C. W. Lines, chairman, Mrs. Haberle, Mrs. Bateman Thatcher, Mrs. Stevens, Mrs. Nichols, Mrs. I. H. Boehm, Mrs. Smith, and Mrs. Bowman.

A SIN TO LICENSE?

PRESBYTERIAN SYNOD WON'T SAY IT ISN'T.

They Declare, However, That the Saloon Is a Curse, to Be Handled as Each Community Decrees for Itself.

The saloon question was before the Presbyterian Synod of New Jersey in Trenton yesterday. It was brought up in response to an overture from the West Jersey Presbytery, asking for a declaration on the subject. The Committee on Temperance, of which Rev. W. E. Honeyman of Plainfield is chairman, reported the following:

"Resolved, That in the language of the General Assembly of 1892, we regard the saloon, licensed or unlicensed as a curse to the land, and that we disapprove of the policy of licensing such traffic as being sinful in its character and a blighting curse to the home, the Church, and the State,

"Resolved, That we favor the enactment of a county local option law, by which each county can decide for itself whether it shall or shall not banish the saloon."

Dr. Hickok of Orange, in the debate on the resolutions, said that the licensing of a saloon was not an absolute sin. Dr Galloway of Paterson declared that if a saloon was a curse, licensing it must be a sin, and that the Synod ought to let the world know of its opposition to the liquor traffic. Rev. Mr Honeyman held that if "No drunkard shall inherit the kingdom of heaven" it was a sin to legalize the business of drunkard-making, and he quoted that when a man was gored by an ox that was known to gore the ox should be stoned and the owner put to death. After some more discussion the resolutions were sent back to the committee for further consideration.

When they were again reported in the afternoon they excited a still more lively debate. Several ministers objected to the characterization of licensing saloons as a sin in one resolution and in the next favoring local option and incidentally licensing. Finally by a close vote an amendment was adopted striking out the declaration that licensing saloons was a sin and the resolutions were then adopted. This was the only question on which there was any division during the session of the Synod.

PLAINFIELD'S SEWERS.

Discussion of the Proposed Filtration Beds.

TIDEWATER THE BEST DISPOSAL.

Cost and Merits of Land and Water Schemes Contrasted—What Does for the Little Town of South Framingham Not Suitable for Big and Growing Plainfield.

To THE EDITOR OF THE DAILY PRESS: As the printer of The Call, our local weekly, is away, so that it cannot come out until Friday, I send you this communication it hopes that it may be published before the Thursday night meeting of our Dunellen committee with the Plainfield Council.

To discuss the sewer question intelligently, it is necessary first to take a glance at the city, its topography and surroundings. Plainfield is nearly level, having a general slope toward the southwest of about ten feet a mile. The valley of Greenbrook lies along its northwesterly side, and Cedar brook rises in the northeasterly portion of the town and flows nearly south to the southerly line of the city. If these two streams united instead of diverging from one another, they would form the natural lines for main sewers. The valley of the Greenbrook as it nears the western limits of the city is about twenty feet lower than Cedar brook, and at an elevation of about fifty feet above tidewater. The cheapest way of sewering Plainfield would be to carry all the sewage to the valley of Greenbrook, follow that valley with a trunk sewer to the city limits, and there empty into Green brook, and allow that stream to carry it away to the ocean. Such a system was undoubtedly thought of by the sewer committee, for selfish people always look for the cheapest way regardless of consequences to others. The State laws against the pollution of streams prevented the carrying out of any such scheme.

It is always desirable in sewering large cities (or small ones, either) to carry the sewage to tidewater or some large stream where it will be dissolved and diluted to such an extent as to make unobjectionable. There is no large stream near Plainfield, and against carrying the sewage to tidewater two objections present themselves to the Plainfield Council.

First, the distance by way of Bound Brook is so great and the fall so little that a gravity discharge is out of the question, as the sewer would not clean itself.

The second method would be to put in a pumping plant, but that is considered expensive. So the Common Council decided on what they thought would be a last resort, the construction of sewage beds, or, a large open cesspool. This saves an outfall sewer, a pumping station, and the expense of pumping.

A trunk sewer of iron pipe can be built from Plainfield to tidewater at Martins Dock on the Raritan river, three miles below New Brunswick, a distance of eight miles from Plainfield, for $100,000, including right of way and everything complete. A pumping plant to force the sewage through such sewer, consisting of real estate, buildings, well, boiler and pump, would cost about $25,000, set up and ready for use. To maintain and operate such a plant would cost about $8.50 a day, or about $3,000 a year.

To build the proposed filter system should cost, for real estate, $20,000. The cost of beds will depend on how they are built. As Plainfield wants a perfect system, it will probably build in accordance with the most approved scientific plans. The South Framingham system, which seems to be the pattern from which the Plainfield Council is taking, cost about $7,500 an acre.

If Plainfield uses no precipitating tanks, which seems to be the intention, the filter beds should be not less than one acre for each 500 inhabitants, which for Plainfield's population means an excess of 20 acres; at $7 500 an acre this equals $150,000, which, added to real estate, is $170,000, far in excess of the cost of pumping.

Gardner, Mass., put in filter beds, not so famous as South Framingham, but "the cost of preparing the beds, with piping, was 12 cents a square foot". (Quotation from report of the engineers in charge of construction.) This was at the rate of $5,227 20 an acre, which for 20 acres is $104 544

But Plainfield is trying to get in a plant at less cost than pumping to tidewater—a plant for about $50 000. We all know what that means. Suppose they do build the plant at a cost of $70,000 for real estate, and beds complete. The cost of maintenance and operation will be about $3 50 a day, or about $1,000 a year. Placing the two systems side by side, we have:

Cost of pumping complete.......$125,000
Interest on $125,000 at 5 per cent	$6,250
Maintenance and operation.....	3,000
Total per annum...........	$9,250
Filtering system complete ......$ 70,000
Interest on $70,000 at 5 per cent.	$3,500
Maintenance and operation.....	1,000
Total per annum...........	$4,500

A saving of $4 750 per annum, being the interest on a capitalization of $95,000.

Now for a moment let us look at the merits of the two systems.

Pumping the sewage to tide-water settles the question for all times. It is disposed of without annoyance to anyone, without endangering the health of large communities, or destroying the value of large areas of adjacent properties.

The discharge on sewage beds first destroys the value of all surrounding property. In this instance it will cause a real estate depreciation of not less than one-half million dollars, which, placed opposite the saving of a capitalization of $95 000, is a net loss of over $400 000

The odors from the beds will be an annoyance to all living within a half-mile of the same, the annoyance varying with the condition of the atmosphere. And worse than either of the above will be the menace to the health of all living in the near vicinity. As has been already stated in The Call, if there is scarlet fever, typhoid fever, smallpox or other contagious disease in Plainfield, the germs of contagion will be carried in the sewage until floated out on the beds, from which they may enter our drinking water, or be carried in the air, spreading havoc all around. Fortunately for Dunellen, our prevailing Summer winds are from the northwest.

But the advocates of the system say that the beds are death to contagion and the effluent purer than our best drinking water. Let us see. South Framingham is quoted very largely. Let us examine South Framingham.

South Framingham is a Massachusetts township having, in 1890, 9,239 inhabitants, of whom about 6,000 lived in the village of that name. The works there were completed in 1889. In 1892 there were less than 300 sewer connections, and last year when visited by the Plainfield committee, about 500. We are now told there was not much odor. Why should there have been? Bear in mind the short time the works had been built, and the small number of connections. Such being the case, does it follow that Plainfield with its 2,000 houses will cause no offense after the works are in operation a series of years?

Pullman, Ill., was founded in 1880. In 1881 its sewage farm was put in operation. The town now has a population of about 12,000. Broad irrigation is there used, supplemented by intermittent filtration, a more complete system than intermittent filtration alone, which Plainfield proposes using. Their farm consists of 140 acres, piped and underdrained, and very completely built.

Result.—In 1886, but five years after the completion of the beds, much of the sewage was run through a large open ditch into Lake Calumet. "In 1887"—six years after the beds were completed, to quote a prominent engineer who examined them, but did not duplicate them for his own city—"we found that the sewage was being discharged upon the filtration area, the first section of which was covered with sludge to the depth of about a foot. The sewage was running over this to the second section." You all know what the sludge is.

Allen Hazen, chemist of the Massachusetts State Board of Health, visited Pullman and wrote: "I visited the Pullman sewage farm in October, 1891. The superintendent was absent, and I was shown about by a man who had worked on the farm for some years. He told me that with the application of sewage worms developed in the soil and destroyed the crops, and for this reason no sewage had been applied for two or three years. The filter was not in use at the time of my visit, nor did it have the appearance of having been used. The sewage of the entire town was being turned into Lake Calumet." Last November another engineer visited the beds, and found them unused, and the sewage flowing through the open ditch into Lake Calumet. Such has been the experience of Pullman, and I might write on at great length, giving other official reports and private communications which support our side of the question, but this letter is now too long.

If the Plainfield Common Council want more information on the question let them apply through the columns of The Press, or The Call of Dunellen, and we will present another phase as yet untouched, but equally interesting.

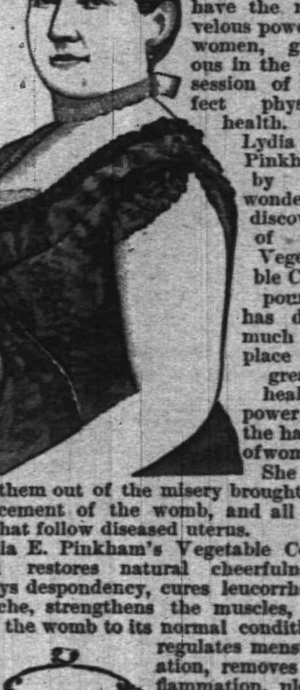
A WOMAN'S POWER.

IT IS THE GREATEST ON EARTH.

It Establishes Thrones and Destroys Nations.

[SPECIAL TO OUR LADY READERS.]

The influence of women upon the civilization of the world could never be measured.



The flash of her eye, the touch of her hand, and we have the marvelous power of women, glorious in the possession of perfect physical health.

Lydia E. Pinkham, by her wonderful discovery of the Vegetable Compound has done much to place this great health power in the hands of women. She has lifted them out of the misery brought by displacement of the womb, and all the evils that follow diseased uterus.

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound restores natural cheerfulness, destroys despondency, cures leucorrhœa, backache, strengthens the muscles, restores the womb to its normal condition, regulates menstruation, removes inflammation, ulceration, and tumors of the womb, etc. Here are two women who speak from experience, and for the benefit of others.

MissHelenSmith, 43 22d Place, Chicago, Ill., says:—"I was troubled with irregularity and leucorrhœa. I followed Mrs. Pinkham's advice, took her Vegetable Compound, and used her Sanative Wash. I now feel like a new woman, and am perfectly healthy."

Mrs. E. Fox, Woodstown, N. J., writes:—

"I had been sick 10 years with womb trouble and leucorrhœa. Doctors could not help me. Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound did. Employment of any kind does not trouble me now, and I can stand nearly all day and not feel tired I cannot thank you enough. I recommend the Compound to every woman who has any weakness."

Twenty-five Fraudulent Pensions.

Scranton, Pa., Oct. 18.—Special Examiner Shuker of the pension department, who is here looking into the illegal pension operations conducted by Alvinzia Tillinghast, who ran a pension claim office in Hyde Park, reports the unearthing of twenty-five fraudulent cases. Tillinghast is found to have operated extensively in getting through claims that had repeatedly failed. Tillinghast fled to Binghamton when Shuker began his investigations. Later he was heard from at Buffalo, and is now believed to be in Canada. His operations are believed to have netted him a large sum.

An Unlucky Bridge.

Jeffersonville, Ind., Oct. 18.—A portion of the false work located at the south wing of the Louisville and Jeffersonville bridge between piers 3 and 4, fell with a crash injuring three men, one of whom is supposed to have been hurt fatally. The injured men were conveyed to the Louisville side where they were taken to the bridge office and their injuries dressed. There were some twenty men at work on the structure at the time, dismantling it. It was almost a miracle that more were not hurt or killed.

REMARKABLE CURES

Of Recent Date.

A Statement from Ex-Mayor John Corson, Esq., of Clinton, N. J.

TO THE PUBLIC:

I acknowledge with the utmost pleasure the wonderful cure which Dr. Lighthill effected in my case.

I had been a sufferer from piles, which gave me constant pain and distress, during twenty long years, attended with frequent loss of blood and with great and painful protrusion of the pile tumors and rectum whenever my bowels moved.

I tried constantly to get relief from my sufferings, but to no purpose until Mr. Bryan, a friend of mine, who had been cured by Dr. Lighthill of the same trouble, recommended him to me, and he effected a complete and radical cure in my case also, and earned my lifelong gratitude.

JOHN CORSON.

THE CASE OF MR. PETER G. EYCK, OF BISSELL, HUNTERDON CO., N. J.

Dr. Lighthill Effects a Complete Cure Where Ten Physicians Had Failed.

TO THE SICK, SUFFERING AND AFFLICTED:

For many years past I have been afflicted with bleeding piles. Every movement of the bowels was attended with loss of blood and with intense pain which lasted for hours and sometimes all day. My condition was aggravated by a prolapse of the rectum, which greatly increased my suffering and sometimes gave me most agonizing pains.

So great was my distress and so bad my condition that I sold my farm, not being able to work it any longer. At one time the protruding pile tumors became so highly inflamed and swollen that they could not be replaced, and I had to go to bed, applying hot poultices for three months before I could get relief.

I had been under the treatment of ten different physicians, some of New York City, Easton, Washington and elsewhere, without any benefit whatever, and had given up my case as hopeless when, luckily for me, I heard of Dr. Lighthill's skill and success in such cases, and went to him for treatment, with the happy result that he effected a radical and permanent cure in less than four weeks's time; and I am glad to say that the entire treatment gave me neither pain nor distress.

I consider my cure perfectly wonderful, and so do all my friends and neighbors. I am confident that there is no case of piles which Dr. Lighthill cannot cure.

PETER G. EYCK,
Bissell, Hunterdon Co., N. J.

AFTER TWENTY YEARS

Edward Sheffield Meets the Wife of His Youth.

Strange Story of Three Continents—The Husband Was Shipwrecked and His Wife Thought Him Dead While He Believed Her To Be Unfaithful—Happy Reunion.

New York, Oct. 19.—Edward Sheffield, of Melbourne, Australia, and Ellen, his wife, of Helena, Montana, met in the law office of Richard V. Boyd, No. 13 Wall street, a few days ago for the first time in twenty years. Each had believed the other dead, but each had remained faithful. The man had become bronzed, burly and bearded since his wife had seen him, and she had grown plump and comely, with her forty years.

They kissed stiffly and shook hands when they met, abashed by the presence of the lawyers; but their eyes told a different story. They left for the west to spend together their remaining years.

This romance of life was begun nearly a quarter of a century ago in Southampton, England. Sheffield was a bluff and honest young seaman, the captain of a ship. His home was in Dover, but his ship loaded at Southampton once, and there he met pretty Ellen Marshall. She was a bright-eyed, rosy young girl, full of good spirits, and Sheffield loved her and told her so.

But the course of love did not run smooth for Edward Sheffield even in his courtship days. William Porter was a young merchant of Southampton, and he, too, loved pretty Ellen Marshall. He proved a hard fighting rival and had more to offer than did the sailorman for his business was prosperous.

But in the end the bluff sailor won the victory and the girl. Edward and Ellen were married and set up a little home, and when Edward was away on a voyage, his young wife wailed and worried. She always feared that disaster would overtake him, and sure enough disaster did.

They had been married about two years when Edward's ship was chartered for Brazil. It was a long voyage, and the wife was nearly distracted. But Edward was full of grit. He cheered his yung wife as best he could, feeling so sick at heart himself, and sailed away.

Victim of Shipwreck.

Then it was that Ellen's fears were realized. Just out of the doldrums, a storm struck the vessel and wrecked it. The sailors took to small boats, and all were lost. The captain stuck to the wreck and was saved. He clung for days to the wave washed hulk, calling upon Heaven for help, till a passing schooner hove to and took him aboard.

He was landed friendless and penniless on the South American coast. He could find no ship for home where he was and he wandered from place to place. He despaired of ever reaching a port where he could get passage back to Southampton and his beloved wife.

Meantime he must live, so he turned his hand to any sort of work he could find in the wretched South American towns where fate had cast him. He saved what he could, and after years scraped enough together to take him home. In a distant port he found a ship bound for England, and he boarded her. His hopes were high, but there was an awful sinking at his heart when, after years of absence, he at last set foot again in Southampton.

Would he find her there? Or was she dead? Or was—but Edward never got further than that.

The worst was realized. Edward was told that his wife had left town. He inquired of his old time rival, and Porter told him maliciously that Mrs. Sheffield had gone to America with another man. Edward could not believe it at first, but Porter brought proofs.

The blow was a frightful one. The young man left at once for Australia. He had no more use for England. He hated his native land. He furthermore determined to give up the sea. He would wholly change his manner of life, so that there would be nothing of the past. He had brought some savings with him, and he bought a small ranch near Melbourne, and took to sheep farming. Success was slow but sure. He became moderately rich. But he never married, though he heard his wife was dead.

Found Wife and Fortune.

While going through his old sea chest some months ago Sheffield found memoranda concerning five hundred acres of land in Montana, which he had bought for a song twenty-five years ago from a land agency and had forgotten. He wrote to Clive Pritchard, a London lawyer, to look up the matter and see if the land was worth anything. Pritchard wrote to Lawyer Boyd, of this city, and he communicated with a lawyer in Helena, which was near the land in question. The reply was that a Mrs. Sheffield had shown deeds for the lands and sold most of the acres at a high price, as silver had been found in several places. Mrs. Sheffield was a widow, the Helena lawyer reported, and was living at Helena.

The rest came about quite naturally. Mrs. Sheffield was communicated with. She wrote that she had waited years at home until perfectly satisfied that her husband was dead. News of the shipwreck had reached Southampton. Then she took the deeds for the Montana lands and came to America to see what she could sell them for. She was amazed to find herself rich. As for the story that she had run off with another man, that was a wholecloth fabrication of Porter's. She had been faithful to her husband's memory.

And so husband and wife, so long parted, hastened to unite their lives once more. It was decided to settle in Montana, so Sheffield sold his Australian ranch and crossed the water, and Mrs. Sheffield came east to meet him. The first interview in Mr. Boyd's Wall street office was a brief one. They started west at once.

EIGHT NEW BALL CLUBS

American Association Getting Matters in Shape.

Meet in Philadelphia and Adopts a Constitution—Numerous Reforms Decided Upon—Officers To Be Elected To-day—No Fight With National League if Avoidable.

Philadelphia, Oct. 19.—There will be another big baseball league bidding for public patronage next summer. The rumored formation of the new association became a fact when a meeting of the men interested was held here and the preliminary work of the organization completed.

Delegates from seven cities met at the Colonade hotel yesterday and held an all-day session. The delegates and cities represented at the meetion were: New York, A. W. Becannon; Brooklyn, William Barnie; Philadelphia, Frank C. Richter and W. S. Kames; Washington, Walter Hewitt and Michael Scanlon; Chicago, Fred Pfeffer; Pittsburg, A. C. Buckenberger and A. L. Leroy; Milwaukee, Henry Quinn.

The meeting was called to order and F. C. Richter acted as temporary president and Walter Hewitt as temporary secretary. A full discussion of the situation then followed and it was decided to organize a new American association with a circuit comprised of the cities represented, all of the delegates having shown financial backing satisfactory to the convention.

The cities elected to membership were New York, Brooklyn, Philadelphia, Washington, Pittsburg, Chicago and Milwaukee. Application for membership was received from Buffalo, Detroit, St. Louis, Cincinnati, Providence and Columbus. These were referred to a committee pending the arrival on Friday of a delegate from Buffalo. It was decided to name the new organization "The American Association of Baseball Clubs."

The constitution, reported by a committee composed of Messrs. Kames, Barnie, and Scanlon, was then adopted. This constitution limits the membership to eight cities, fixes the membership of the association at ten years and decides the duties of the president, secretary and board of directors; regulates the contract and control of players and prescribes rules for the championship.

The gate receipts are to be divided equally after the payment of 10 per cent. into the general fund, which must be maintained at $25,000. Each club is to be permitted to regulate the matter of free admissions according to its own judgement. The general admission was fixed at twenty-five cents and permission to play Sunday games was accorded.

Exhibition games between association clubs during the championship season are absolutely prohibited. Transfers of games will not be permitted. The buying and selling of ball players' releases is also prohibited by the constitution. The sections relating to membership and gate receipts division cannot be amended except by unanimous consent, thus preventing any "throw downs" whatever.

It was also decided that the double umpire system should be used. Each club must adopt for its team a distinctive style and order of uniform to be worn at home and not to be changed during the season; said color and style must also be registered with the secretary and cannot be used or infringed upon by the other association clubs. Stringent rules were also adopted on the subject of dirty ball playing and rowdy ball playing on the field.

It was also decided that there should be no fight with the National league if the Association could avoid it. In pursuance of this policy it was decided to respect all contracts and to play a non-conflicting schedule. Officers will be elected to-day.

DOLBY SAFE IN JAIL.

Escorted to Columbus by Six Companies of Soldiers.

Columbus, O., Oct. 19.—The special train bearing Sheriff Cook and Deputy Sheriff Bostwick, of Fayette county, with the prisoner, William Dolby, alias Jasper, in custody, arrived here. The train bore also six companies of the Fourteenth regiment, the remainder of the troops being left at Washington Court House, to guard life and property, as the mob was still threatening to burn the jail.

The train was stopped near the state prison, and the sheriff and his deputy, with the prisoner in custody, walked hurriedly, unguarded, to the main entrance, and in a few moments Dolby was behind the great stone walls of the penitentiary, where he will spend the next twenty years of his life at hard labor.

Hill and Strauss.

New York, Oct. 19.—That Nathan Strauss, Tammany's candidate for Mayor, is seriously contemplating a withdrawal from the contest is no longer to be disputed. Unless Senator Hill backs down from the stand he has taken in favor of permitting the Committee of Seventy's county ticket to be printed on his state ticket. Mr. Straus will—instead of a letter of acceptance—send to the Executive Committee of Tammany Hall a letter declining to stand as a candidate of that organization.

Freight Wreck on the B. & M.

Boston, Oct. 19.—The "Flying Yankee," from Portland, on the Eastern division of the Boston & Maine railroad, ran into the rear end of a freight train last night near the Somerville station. Five freight cars were knocked from the track and one of them caught fire and burned. The engine was badly damaged.

Arrested for Treason.

Madrid, Oct. 19.—The prior of the Dominican monastery of Santa Catalina has been arrested for treason. He is the author of a pamphlet asserting that Queen Regent Christina had caused the king to be made a Free Mason.

Hon. Myron B. Wright Critically Ill.

Susquehanna, Pa., Oct. 19.—Hon. Myron B. Wright, congressman from the Fifteenth district of Pennsylvania, is critically ill at Trenton, Canada.

ABSOLUTELY PURE

THE CHINESE SITUATION.

An Attack Expected at Wei-Hai-Wei as Any Moment.

London, Oct. 19.—The Shanghai correspondent of the Central News says that the Chinese government is making great efforts to raise a domestic loan, offering 7 per cent. interest. Several millions have been taken already.

The work on the fortifications at Wei-Hai-Wei is pressed forward with feverish haste. The old forts have been strengthened, new ones are going up, and all the weaker points are being coverd with earthworks. Troops are concentrating there rapidly, but many of them are indifferently equipped. The garrison is thoroughly alarmed for the safety of the port and sensational rumors as to an approaching attack are set afloat almost daily. The commander has good reason to expect a sudden attack from the Japanese soon.

A rebellion has broken out in the district round Foo Chow and peaceable persons are coming into the city by hundreds. The fear of a Japanese attack has increased recently and more torpedoes and mines have been laid in the bed of the Min. The river has been so carefully fortified, that navigation has become dangerous. On Wednesday a junk struck a torpedo and was blown to pieces. Most of the crew were drowned.

The Daily News says to-day: "A day or two after the last cabinet council, China informed Great Britain that she was prepared to negotiate for peace on certain terms. Great Britain made overtures to the powers on a new basis of negotiation and asked Japan whether the terms of such would form the basis of negotiations for peace. Japan did not reply definitely, but has not rejected the proposals. The majority of the powers are in accord with Great Britain and there is a likelihood that the others will assent. The intervention is purely diplomatic and is offered to both combatants in the friendliest spirit."

FOOTBALLISTS NOT ARTISTS.

Secretary Carlisle Says They Cannot Be Imported Under Contract.

Washington, Oct. 19.—Much interest is manifested in treasury circles over the newspaper statements that a number of players in the Baltimore professional football team are Englishmen and prior to their coming to the United States were engaged in professional football playing in England. Whether these players came into the United States under contract or not is unknown to the treasury department officials who look after the importation of aliens, but as far back as August of this year the treasury officials were asked if professional football players under contract would be allowed to land. The application came from Baltimore from a person who wished to import a complete English team to play in the United States. In answer to this request, Secretary Carlisle telegraphed that "in the opinion of the department, football players are not artists, and coming into the United States under contract, would be prohibited from landing."

Whether these players now engaged by the Baltimore team are part of the players who desired to come into the United States in August last is not known at the treasury department, but the immigration bureau will probably investigate the allegations made.

KENTUCKY MINING TROUBLE.

The Straight Creek Miners Fired on from Ambush.

Ashland, Ky., Oct. 19.—The outbreak that has been expected for some days in the Carter county mining district, occurred yesterday in the ambushing of the miners of the Straight Creek Coal company by the strikers. The miners were fired upon from the bushes along the hills as they were enroute to the mine and a number were wounded. Jack Marcum and John Morris were perhaps fatally shot, while Bob Evans, John Adams and several whose names are not secured, were also shot and badly injured. The bullets in each case came from Winchester rifles. During the balance of the day, the appearance of a miner at the pitmouth or the tipple was a signal for renewed firing. Word was sent to Grayson, the county seat, and the sheriff and a posse of deputies were quickly summoned. They spent the day scouring the hills and succeeded in capturing Geo. Tyree, James Coburn, Bob and John Taylor, Will Sneed and two others, but these men were unarmed when found and protested innocence. They were removed, however, to Grayson for safe keeping and will be held for further developments. The excitement is intense and extra guards are being stationed as further trouble is expected.

New Reading Rumor.

Baltimore, Oct. 19.—There was considerable talk in local financial and railroad circles with regard to the Philadelphia & Reading securing control of the Western Maryland railroad and making Baltimore its leading coal port, instead of Philadelphia and Port Richmond. As the story goes, the purchase of $300,000 worth of bonds of the Potomac Valley railroad, which was built and is now operated by the Western Maryland, by Drexel & Co., the Philadelphia bankers, was really for account of the Philadelphia & Reading, and that the same firm, acting for the same clients, has been quietly absorbing the securities of the Western Maryland and auxiliary lines for several months.

Prizes for Firemen.

Newburgh, N. Y., Oct. 19.—In the firemen's parade here the prize for the best appearing company was awarded to Cornell Hose company, of Kingston, and the prize for the finest carriage was awarded to Phenix Hose company, of Poughkeepsie.

THRILLING EXPERIENCE.

Seven Men Imprisoned in a Mine Full of Water.

Wilkesbarre, Pa., Oct. 19.—The news has just come out that on Wednesday night seven men were imprisoned in the Honeybrook mine near Hazleton, this county, by a rush of water and narrowly escaped with their lives. The matter was kept very quiet by the company. The men were engaged in releasing the water which had come into the mine from the surface. It was about the time that the pump man had stopped his pump for repairs that the miners had arranged to let down a body of water from the surface. Contrary to custom, however, they did not run to the bottom of the slope but took refuge in another breast inside the point where they had prepared the blast. When the explosion took place the water came down with a rush. The water flowed to the bottom of the slope in a great body, filling the "sump" immediately and the gangway to the roof. The report circulated like wildfire and in a short time the slope was surrounded by an excited and trembling lot of villagers. Rescuing parties were formed immediately. The pumping machinery was put in motion. The firemen on the surface worked like beavers to keep up steam and every effort was made to keep the pump running at its full capacity until they had reduced the quantity of water in the gangway sufficiently for an exploring party to gain an entrance. These men returned shortly after with the information that the miners had been found alive and well. The pumping was kept up and the men were all safely taken and removed to their homes.

LOVERS DIE TOGETHER.

Their Dead Bodies Found in a Long Island Bathhouse.

New York, Oct. 19.—The bodies of E. L. Titus and Mary Duff were found in an old bathhouse at Sea Cliff, L. I., last night—the man shot to death and the girl suffocated by chloroform. It was apparently either a case of joint suicide, committed presumably by the man. Titus and Miss Duff, who were engaged to be married, went out for a stroll Tuesday night, and had not been seen or heard of until their bodies were found. A reward of $250 had been offered for information as to their whereabouts, and there were rumors that they had met with foul play. Miss Duff was the 19-year-old daughter of Peter Duff, a well-to-do furniture dealer at 253 Columbia street, Brooklyn. He lives at 399 Clinton street, the same city. Mr. Titus was a young business man living at No. 440 Clinton street. He was a visitor at Mr. Duff's country home a pretty cottage near the shore at the head of Prospect aveneu, at Sea Cliff. The people with whom they associated accepted them as engaged, and looked upon them as a well mated pair with excellent material prospects. Both were socially active. Miss Duff was a tall, slender girl, blond and blue eyed, full of natural vitality, and with all the accomplishments of a well-bred young woman of her years. Titus, who was only twenty-two years old, was of a gay and social temperment and a popular member of the Sea Cliff Yacht club. The young people had known each other four years.

FOR NATIONAL GUARDSMEN.

Two Important Orders Issued by Adj.-Gen. Porter.

Albany, Oct 19.—Adjt.-Gen. Porter has issued two orders of great interest to national guardsmen. The first provides that there shall be awarded to the officers and enlisted men actually serving on Oct. 1, 1894, in the national guard and the naval militia, and to those who may be enlisted subsequent to that date, as recognition for faithful services in these organizations extending over ten, fifteen, twenty and twenty-five years, a state decoration, subject to certain conditions

The second order has to do with field uniform and equippment. Officers and men, when ordered to turn out so attired, are directed to wear the undress uniform, with campaign caps or forage caps, leggings and good serviceable walking shoes; men will carry canteens, packs with blankets, pouches and overcoats, and rifles with slings and bayonets, belts, scabbards, cartridge boxes and twenty pounds of ammunition. Medical officers will carry the surgical field case and hospital corps men the pouches issued to them or their organization.

A Jersey City Marshal Indicted.

Freehold, N. J., Oct. 19.—John Graham, Jersey City's marshal, and a well-known Hudson county politician, has been indicted by the Monmouth county grand jury for assault and battery and false imprisonment. The charges were made by Charles E. Bell, of Hillsboro, Ohio, the secretary of a large manufacturing concern. Mr. Bell while visiting Asbury Park last summer was arrested by one of Founder Bradley's special policemen at the instigation of Graham, charged with being a crook. At the hearing Graham swore that Bell was a noted pickpocket, but the accused proved his identity and was discharged after spending one night in jail.

RUSSIA'S DYING RULER

Believed That the Czar's End Is Near at Hand.

The Latest Bulletin Reports His Condition as Worse—Not Even the Most Urgent Affairs of State Attended To and the Bourse in St. Petersburg Paralyzed.

St. Petersburg, Oct. 19.—All political questions are temporarily in abeyance, even the protection of foreigners in China, inasmuch as the foreign office's dispatches to Livadia are not answered. This alone is a sinister omen, indicating that the czar is incapable of attending to even the most urgent affairs.

The bourse has been paralyzed, the dealers awaiting the cue from abroad. The commercial world is disturbed no less than the political world. St. Petersburg has not been so shaken with anxiety for years. The Official Journal, containing the latest bulletin sent from Livadia, was posted at the street corners throughout the city before midnight. It was read with intense interest by anxious crowds. The text is:

"The condition of the emperor has changed markedly for the worse. General debility and weakness of the heart are increasing."

Berlin, Oct. 19.—A private dispatch from Livadia says that the czar's family and attendants are unanimous in the belief that the emperor cannot live many days. The disorders affecting his heart have grown much more serious.

London, Oct. 19.—The Lancet speaking of the illness of the czar says it is the character of his majesty's serenal disease, his pathologic condition which is no two days alike and the deterioration of his blood that have led to a general state of perverted tissue and nutrition, physical weakness, impaired digestion and insomnia.

Paris, Oct. 19.—The Grand Duke Vladimir, the czar's eldest brother, started for Livadia. He will go by way of Vienna and throughout his journey will receive dispatches as to the czar's condition. The Russian embassy here has heard nothing from Livadia concerning a change for the worse. Princess Alix, of Hesse, the czarewitch's fiancee, will leave Darmstadt for St. Petersburg with the grand duke of Hesse. The present report is that she will go from the capital to Livadia to be married in the czar's presence.

VIRGINIA EXPRESS ROBBERY.

Various Opinions About the Man Under Arrest.

Washington, Oct. 19.—The Adams Express company officials in this city have no new information bearing upon the robbery. The officials admit that for the time the base of operations has been transferred to Cumberland, but their detectives are still at work in Washington and vicinity. C. S. Searcey, the man under arrest at Cumberland, pawned some articles of jewelry in this city Sept. 27, giving an assumed name in one case and the name he now gives, in the other, but giving his address as Memphis, Tenn. It was thought by reason of this that he might be Charles O'Leary, a Washington crook, but Detective Quinlan who went out to see him returned to Washington with a report that the prisoner was not O'Leary. The possession of so large a supply of Honduras lottery tickets as was found on Searcey is thought to be important as all this business is now conducted by express. Lottery tickets are not permitted to be sold in the United States and when transported are billed under another name. Whether any tickets of this kind were in the express car the night of the robbery has not yet been ascertained.

Searcey was arraigned before the court at Cumberland and the case was postponed until Saturday.

Cincinnati, Oct. 19.—A man giving his name as Charles A. Morganfield, whom the police think knows something about the Aquia Creek train robbery, has been arrested here.

Hunted Out of Town.

New Haven, Conn., Oct. 19.—A woman who it is said worked the "soldier's widow" scheme, in Boston, Providence, Hartford and other cities east and west, has been hunted out of town by the police and board of charities. The woman gave her name as Mrs. Dixon and was associated with a "Prof. Hackett," who posed as a platform orator. She sent a typewritten letter to prominent citizens, asking them to buy tickets to a lecture for her benefit. Appending to the letter were the names of prominent people certifying that the woman was worthy of aid. When the police looked into the matter they were satisfied that something was wrong and the woman and professor fled.

Seeks a Divorce in South Dakota.

Sioux Falls, S. D., Oct. 19.—Papers have been filed at Brokings by Mrs. Emma C. Lockwood, who asks for a divorce from George Lockwood and the custody of the minor children. The charge is non-support. The plaintiff came to this city nearly a year ago and rents one of the largest and most costly residences here. She is accompanied by two daughters, one about eighteen and the other about eight years of age. She has lived in the grandest style, although making but few acquaintances. The defendant is a wealthy lawyer in New York city. They were married in Peekskill, N. Y., July 1, 1868. They have an older daughter who has spent the summer at eastern summer resorts.

Oil in Luzerne County.

Wilkesbarre, Pa., Oct. 19.—There is much excitement among the farmers of the lower end of Luzerne county over the discovery of the fact that oil in paying quantities has been discovered in the vicinity. Land has taken a jump in price in consequence and for some time past the Eastern Pennsylvania Oil company has been buying up land in the quiet on which they will sink wells at once. The Standard Oil company is said to be in the field and has purchased tracts of land in Susquehanna county but so far as known none in Luzerne.

SUGAR TRUST SILENCE

Sequel to the Senatorial Investigation.

Broker Seymour Arrested for Refusal To Answer Questions Asked by the Committee—President Havemeyer and Secretary Searles Arraigned and Admitted to Bail.

New York, Oct. 19.—Allen Lewis Seymour, a broker, of the firm of Seymour Bros. & Young, at 3 Exchange place and Leonard street, was arrested shortly after noon on a bench warrant from Washington. The arrest was made by United States Marshal John H. McCarty and Deputy Marshal E. W. Bostwick. The charge against Mr. Seymour is that he refused to answer questions put to him in a session of the "Sugar Trust" Senate Investigating committee in Washington on July 23 last. Mr. Seymour has been indicted by the grand jury of the District of Columbia for violation of section 102 of the revised statutes of the United States. Mr. Seymour sent for his lawyer, E. Y. Bell, by telephone, and then went with the United States marshal to his office in the federal building. He was arraigned before United States Commissioner Shields, where he admitted his identity and waived examination. Bail was fixed at $5,000. Mr. Bell demurred to this amount as excessive, and went before Judge Addison Brown in the United States district court. Judge Brown refused to reduce the bail and accepted the ex-mayor of Orange, N. J., L. T. Fell, as surety. Bail offered $50,000 worth of real estate in Orange as security.

The questions that Mr. Seymour refused to answer were with regard to the dealing of the branch house of Seymour Bros. & Young, Washington, with Senator Joseph W. Camden. Two questions that were not answered were specified. One question was whether Mr. Seymour knew of the purchase or sale through his firm of stock of the American Sugar Refining company to any senator. The other question was whether Mr. Seymour knew of the execution of an order of Senator J. W. Camden for sugar stock through Sanford W. Battershall, of Battershall, Strahan, in charge of the firm's branch office in Washington. The charges aver that "The Sun" and "The Press" made the original charges against the senators. Lawyer Bell says that the arrest should not have been made. It had been expected that Mr. Seymour would be summoned to Washington, and arrangements had been made by him to give bail in that city. "We expect to be allowed to wait," said Mr. Bell, "until the similar case of Edward Chapman, an employe of the brokerage firm of Moore & Schley, is decided. Whatever is the result of Mr. Chapman's case, we will carry the case to its utmost limits in the United States courts."

Havemeyer and Searles.

Washington, Oct. 19.—President H. O. Havemeyer and Secretary J. E. Searles, of the American Sugar Refining company, came over from New York, and were arraigned in the district supreme court on indictments charging them with refusing to answer certain questions before the senate sugar investigating committee. Bail was fixed at $5,000 in each instance. A plea of "not guilty" was entered in each case, with leave to withdraw that plea and demur within fifteen days. After this proceeding the defendants left for New York.

Martin Was Arrested.

Derby, Conn., Oct. 19.—William Martin and wife, of New York, driving through the Housatonic valley, were arrested here because they failed to settle a board bill at Naugatuck. Martin is a millionaire and has a fine span of bays and a handsome outing wagon. He left Naugatuck early, after tipping the servants, but forgot to settle his hotel bill. The landlord grew uneasy and telephoned the police in neighboring towns to be on the lookout for the team. The parties reached here at noon and Martin was arrested. When the cause of arrest was explained he was very much amused and settled at once. He said he forgot all about the board bill when he left Naugatuck.

Accidentally Shot Her Brother.

Ogdensburg, N. Y., Oct. 19.—Arthur Laporte, aged 7 years, son of Louis Laporte of Prescott, Ont., was accidentally shot and almost instantly killed last evening. The boy and his sister Maggie Laporte, aged 18 years, were in an upstairs room which the girl was engaged in papering. In moving a doubled-barrelled shot gun which stood in the corner she struck the hammer against the sideboard discharging the weapon. The charge struck the boy in the face blowing off the right side of his head. He died in five minutes.

Suffocated Under Tons of Grain.

Niagara Falls, N. Y., Oct. 19.—John Wilson, a Central Milling company employe, met with a peculiar death here. A number of freight cars were being loaded with grain from the mill elevator and Wilson was sent to watch the bin from which the cars were being loaded. In trying to increase the flow through the spout to the cars, the man was sucked into it, and his body plugged up the spout. He was instantly buried under tons of grain and was suffocated.

Verdict of Murder Against Marriott.

Buffalo, Oct. 19.—The coroner's jury in the case of Sergeant Schuyler, who was murdered at Fort Porter by Sergeant Marriott, found a verdict of murder against Marriott. Sergeant McCarthy, the most important witness, told of the shooting and rounded his testimony by saying that there were serious differences between the two men.

Acquitted of Manslaughter.

Hackensack, N. J., Oct. 19.—Peter Duan, aged 13 years, who killed Bella Shields last April by the accidental discharge of a gun which he was dragging down a flight of stairs while the young lady was sitting in his father's house, has been acquitted of the charge of manslaughter.

Golden opportunities do not travel by time-table.

Saturday is a great business bargain day in Plainfield, and The Press ad columns are the guide to bargains.

Press "Wants and Offers" tell. Dr. Keeney said last night "The Press is the paper!" She lost a handbag of instruments, advertised in The Press, and honest George Lewis brought the bag to The Press office last night.

A great and glorious special Page for Women will be a feature of the six-page Daily Press tomorrow. The latest and best news for the gentler sex will therein find utterance. The Daily Press of six pages and 48 full-length columns is the biggest and best newspaper in Plainfield.

North Plainfield Democrats should do their duty of citizenship tonight and attend their primary meeting in the school-house at 8 o'clock. Six delegates are to be selected for the county convention, and if the North Plainfield voters have any choice for Member of Assembly they should let their delegates know. Every voter's place is at his primary.

The public always views with suspicion star-chamber proceedings of its public officials, and it is unfortunate that the conference between Dunellen and Plainfield, on the sewerage question, should be involved in secrecy. Caution is commendable, but there should be nothing to conceal in an exchange of views on a matter concerning the public welfare.

FAIRS AND BUSINESS.

Liberal View Taken by a Plainfield Merchant.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE DAILY PRESS: In answer to a Plainfield merchant who seems to be afraid that a little business will get away from him, I would say that our experience with all fairs that have been held in Plainfield of late years has always been most satisfactory to ourselves as well as to the managers of the fairs, and that they have invariably extended to the stores a most liberal patronage. Probably some stores have received more business from them than others, but those that receive the most are probably more liberal in terms, etc. Fairs as well as business are not run for pleasure, and the fair managers show a good business policy in buying their goods where they receive the most liberal treatment. EDWARD WHITE.

Plainfield, Oct. 19, 1894.

This Firm Does Not Complain.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE DAILY PRESS:—In your last night's issue a "Plainfield Merchant" feels that he has serious cause for complaint because of the frequent calls upon him by the fairs and festivals committees. If this particular merchant has such feelings toward all fairs and festivals held in Plainfield, why doesn't he sign his name? We deem it very unbusiness-like to dictate where people should make their purchases, and desire the Plainfield public to know that we are no party to such business. We have deemed it and always will deem it a pleasure to help any just cause.

GEORGE L. VANEMBURGH & SON.

—Gallant and honest Manager Armstrong of Reynolds's Pharmacy restored to the owner last night a pair of diamond earrings lost in the store.

—J. C. Pope & Co. today adjusted the loss on ex-Freeholder Vanderbeck's residence. The paper in the room where the curtain burned will be replaced, and the window will be repainted.

—Rogers's Seafood Market is just about perfection. The latest improvement is a huge box containing 19 huge jars packed in ice, to hold all sorts of clams and oysters. Special sale tomorrow.

—One candidate was initiated in Franklin Council, No. 41, J. O. U. A. M., last evening. The seventh anniversary of the Council will be celebrated next Thursday evening in an elaborate manner. A choice programme is now in preparation.

SEWER CONFERENCE.

Dunellen Calls on Plainfield Councilmen.

THE SESSION MADE A SECRET ONE.

Dr. Brakeley Says Plainfield Physicians State the Belief That the Disposal Beds Will Be Unhealthy.

The Dunellen committee of citizens appointed at the meeting October 10 to protest against the location of filtration beds just outside of Dunellen met the councilmanic sewerage committee in the Mayor's office last evening.

Besides the committeemen there were present Council President See and Mayor Gilbert. The papers had been asked to send representatives to the meeting, as the matter under consideratian was of public interest, but when the reporters appeared a member of the Plainfield committee objected to their presence and carried his point by his influence over the other members. The reporters were accordingly ordered out of the room in spite of their having been asked to come.

From Dunellen came the members of the committee, Rev. A. I. Martine, Rev. A. Todd, Eugene Runyon, Alva Gray and P. M. Ising, together with Dr. P. W. Brakeley and Adam Dealman. Mr. Martine was late as he had to wait until he had opened his Christian Endeavor meeting.

The committeemen were introduced to one another, and then Dr. Brakeley opened his side of the argument. He said before the meeting that he would cover much the same ground as at the public meeting in Dunellen. He had asked four Plainfield physicians for their opinions and found that all agreed that the location of the beds on the boundary of Dunellen would be a nuisance.

The scheme of disposing of so much sewage on such small beds was impracticable. If the sewers were flushed daily with 60 gallons of water for every inhabitant of the city, the ground could not possibly absorb it properly. Besides the land where the beds were to be was overflowed by the brook every year.

Dr. Brakeley's remarks were seconded according to the arrangements made, by Mr. Martine. He emphasized all that the doctor had said, representing a church which the beds would be near.

Engineer A. B. Nelson was another late arrival. He explained that he was almost a commissioner although he hadn't accepted a proposed appointment. He seemed much interested in the matter and was allowed to attend the secret conclave.

The Plainfield commissioners listened to the protests patiently and then, according to the statement of one of the committee this morning, told the Dunellenites that they had no proof that the beds were to be located where they thought they were, although there might have seen surveyors in the vicinity and been led to believe that they were working on the site of the plant.

The Dunellenites had to be satisfied with this and the meeting broke up, each side stating that the matter was "about where it was before". One of the Plainfielders said after the meeting that the Dunellen men would have to know more about the matter before they would be able to attempt a successful protest.

TROLLEY TRACTION.

Comments Concerning the Township Meeting Tonight.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE DAILY PRESS: A very important meeting of the township will be held at Excelsior Hall tonight. Of course, nothing definite and final will be done; for that is a distinctive characteristic of the Plains. But I feel that there are enough aggressive citizens here to carry out their plans of progress. We should remember how we were duped out of twenty-five years of nineteenth century progress by the foolish position and extreme demands when the Central Railroad wanted to come near us. Waiving that now, let us see if there is not a definite plan upon which the townspeople can settle.

The route through Midway avenue to Plainfield is out of the question, so far as Scotch Plains is concerned. Three routes have been proposed as substitutions of that one along Midway avenue, viz (1) along Forest avenue to Westfield avenue, continuing until entering Second street Plainfield; (2) along Forest avenue to Grand street, to Park avenue, to Mountain avenue, entering Plainfield at Somerset street; (3) along Forest avenue to Mountain avenue, along Mountain avenue entering Plainfield and connecting with Somerset street.

Of these three the best is the first named, because (1) we want our town to grow toward the east line, it cannot grow westwardly because of the mountain, and since the railroad station is not in that location; (2) the ground back of the residences on Front street has been granted and an offer to grade the same made, (3) such a road will not break up any county road, a fact which should be seriously considered by the advocates of good county roads of which we are so proud; (4) when Scotch Plains and Fanwood are one place by a continuity of houses this road will run through the centre of the place; (5) it will go along an unimproved part of the Plains and will tend to arouse building operators along neglected Forest avenue, sparsely builded Westfield avenue and will open a street on which people we build. TRINITY TEA.

HOSPITALITY SUPREME AT THE DOLLIVER HOME.

The Congregation and Their Friends Inaugurate Another Delightful Sociability Series.

The delightful home teas that are such a success with the Trinity Reformed Church people each Winter were renewed for the season last night, when the hospitable home of Mr. and Mrs. G. Q. Dolliver, 17 Manning avenue, was placed at the disposal of the Ladies Christian Work Society.

Mr. and Mrs. Dolliver made everyone feel at home, and a very pleasant evening was the result.

There was a large attendance, and as the people entered each left an offering at the door, with Letter-Carrier E. T. VanWinkle, guardian of the treasury.

The table was laden with the best the season affords, tastefully arranged and ornamented, the centre-piece being a large jardiniere filled with choice cut flowers. Everybody had a merry time, and the promotion of sociability was gratifyingly accomplished.

The tea was in charge of Mrs. P. A. Emmons, Mrs. C. F. French, Mrs. J. F. MacDonald and Mrs. E. T. VanWinkle, and those who served refreshments were Miss Minnie Arnold and Miss Grace Smith. With such fair hands at the helm, how could it be other than a success?

PARTICULAR MENTION.

Mrs. Worthington of Franklin place has purchased a handsome new phaeton.

Samuel Milliken is compelled to return home from Clifton Springs, N. Y., by a severe attack of illness.

J. B. Miller, formerly of Plainfield and now of the Elm House, Elizabeth, is backer of the Pauline Parker Company now on the road.

When Aaron Kline, the popular traveler for Arnold, Constable & Co., returns to Plainfield the latter part of this month he will bring with him a charming bride from Chicago.

Mrs. Harriet Miller, widow of Edmund Miller of Greenwood Lake, is visiting Mr. and Mrs. George L. VanEmburgh of East Second street. Mrs. Miller is a sister of Mrs. VanEmburgh.

A letter has been received by Mrs. F. W. Bailey of 83 Duer street, announcing an improvement in the condition of her brother, Rev. J. Judson Pierson of Bridgeton, who has been very ill.

G. R. Vanderhoef and family, respected residents of Newark, have leased through the agency of Wm. D. Thickstun of 197 North avenue the house 418 East Sixth street, near Franklin place, and will be welcome additions to the Plainfield population.

CHURCH CHIMES.

The Epworth League of Grace M. E. Church will enjoy their monthly sociable in the church this evening.

The monthly consecration meeting of the Christian Endeavor society of the First Baptist Church will be held this evening.

The tiles have been taken from the main roof of the Seventh-Day Baptist Church, and the work of relaying has been commenced in the rear.

Rev. P. E. Smyth of St. Mary's Church was a prominent witness of the consecration of Very Rev. James A. McFaul, as Bishop of Trenton, in Trenton yesterday.

Rev. W. E. Honeyman of North Plainfield was elected by the Presbyterian Synod as a member of the Inter-Denominational Church Commission on Temperance.

The Daughters of the Cross will conduct a sale of cake and fancy articles tomorrow afternoon from 4 to 6, in the Park Club-house. There will be no admission fee, and everybody who attends will find much enjoyment.

A meeting of the Epworth League of the First M. E. Church will be held this evening in Vincent Chapel. An interesting programme has been prepared under the direction of the Literary Department, and an enjoyable time is anticipated.

The carpenters and painters finished work on the Friends Watchung Avenue Meeting-house at noon today. The walls and ceilings have been kalsomined, and the stairs and the upper rooms wainscoted in yellow pine. A new table has been placed upstairs. Better lighting facilities are to be provided.

Saves and Satisfies.

To reduce the meat bills and at the same time keep her table supplied with the best the market affords, is the aim of every good housewife. Through the enterprise of Fred Endress, of 203 Liberty street, she is now enabled to accomplish her purpose. Mr. Endress shows by his price list in his ad in The Press today that his market deserves its title of Excelsior.

NOTICE OF MEETINGS OF THE BOARD OF REGISTRY and ELECTION OF THE CITY OF PLAINFIELD.

In accordance with a supplement to "An Act to Regulate Elections", approved March 23, 1891, notice is hereby given that the several Boards of Registry and Election of the City of Plainfield will meet at the various polling places in the said city on Tuesday, the 16th Day of October,

1894, at ten o'clock in the morning, and continue in session (recess from one to two o'clock) until nine o'clock in the evening, for the purpose of making such registration of voters and that the said Boards of Registry and Election shall also meet on

Tuesday, the 30th Day of October,

1894, at the place of the former meeting, at one o'clock in the afternoon, and remain in session until nine o'clock in the evening (except that they may take a recess as aforesaid) for the purpose of revising and correcting the original registers.

The places of meeting to be as follows:

First Ward, First District—At the real-estate office of H. G. Adams, 197 North Avenue.

First Ward, Second District—At the office of Chase's Machine Works, 655 North Avenue.

VENINO WON'T TALK.

It Is Gleaned, However, That He Has Lost His Situation West.

In copies of Spokane papers just received Albert Venino is spoken of as being "formerly" principal of the Henry Conservatory. In the issue succeeding the publication of the despatch from The Daily Press, the Spokane Spokesman-Review says:

"I have no statement to make about the case," said Professor Venino when shown the Spokesman-Review dispatch from Plainfield, N. J., about his divorce suit. "When the suit comes up for trial the public will be given an opportunity of judging of the facts. Till then I prefer to leave the matter just where it is. The least said the soonest mended."

"You are a pretty young man, professor, to be the father of so many children?"

"Oh, I am older than I look. I shall soon be 39 years of age."

"Has a date been fixed for the hearing of the case?"

"I believe not."

"Who are your attorneys?"

"I prefer not to say. I would rather say nothing about the matter at present. It will all come out in due time."

STRAUS IS OUT OF IT.

Nathan Straus today withdrew his name from the contest for Mayor of New York.

MORTON LOSES.

Judge Lacombe today decided against Levi P. Morton and ordered his imported coachman deported.

NEWS OF NEAR NEIGHBORS.

Scotch Plains and Fanwood.

The Young People's Association of the Baptist Church will entertain the Epworth League of the Methodist Church at a chocolataire on Wednesday, Oct. 24, in the chapel.

John Thys is back at Force's Hotel, having left the position he had in Plainfield.

The Traction Company can, if they come through the town by way of Westfield avenue, thence over a road the property-owners offer to open up, which would be the continuation of Second street, Plainfield. The street would be opened up for them all the way to Leland avenue.

The town ordinance relating to peddling by out-of-town hucksters is never enforced and is a dead letter as the town is overrun with peddlers every day.

The Choral Union met in the chapel last evening. The work is progressing very favorably.

Quite a number have signed the petition to the Town Committee to try to influence the Traction Company to come nearer the village.

Mr. Kerr of Elizabeth has moved into the Osborn house on Front street.

Mr. and Mrs. L. W. Miller have the best wishes of hosts of friends of the village in their journey through life together.

Mrs. Louis Movel, Jr., is around again after a week of illness.

The Knights of Pythias met at their rooms last evening. Routine business was transacted.

It is proposed by Pastor Braker on next Sabbath morning to preach on "The Good Old Days of the Scotch Plains Baptist Church". It will be an historical sketch relative to the origins of special revival services since 1764. The sermon is the outcome of a disposition of revival in religion in the church at the present time.

Pastor Braker intends preaching on the subject of Lamps, to the little ones Sunday morning.

Last Sunday afternoon the largest attendance was had at the Baptist Sunday-school, under the present superintendent, Mr. Colgate.

The gas machine of the Baptist Church has been fixed, and the lights will burn more smoothly now, the old wire on the machine having been replaced by a new one.

EARLY INTELLIGENCE.

—Justice Newcorn will try the contract case of Laire Brothers against J. J. H. Poillon next Friday.

—In these days of many wedding gifts, the desire for something beautiful and useful is satisfied at Gavett's.

—Stocks have dropped, and so will stockings if not securely fastened. The patent hose-supporters for sale at Peck's are safe and desirable.

—Special attractions are to be found at Edsall's Commercial Palace for tomorrow and tomorrow night. See the new list of bargains in his ad in another column.

—The Bonny-Peterson feud has broken out again, Bonny claiming that Justice Mosher's recommendation that all the goods be returned has not been fully complied with.

—Keeping warm, by day or by night, is no secret to those who know of the great bargains Lederer offers in underwear, overwear, and blankets. The ad list for Saturday tells much.

WOMEN TALK WAR.

China-Japan Imbroglio Discussed in a Plainfield Church.

The Women's Foreign Missionary Society of the Congregational Church held a special meeting yesterday afternoon in the church parlors. The topic was "The War Between China and Japan, and Its effects on the Missionary Cause." The meeting was led by Miss F. E. Clark. Mrs. Muller made the opening prayer, and after a duet by Miss Morse and Miss Whiting scripture reading followed. The secretary, Mrs. M. E. Dwight, made her report, and Mrs. G. W. Rockfellow, treasurer, gave an account of the finances of the society. After other less important business had been discussed the members listened to a very interesting paper by Miss Clark on the topic under discussion. Miss Clark spoke of the present condition of Corea, China and Japan, and then gave the claims of both sides and the results of both. After the paper, the discussion was left open to all, and several able remarks were made. After a collection for the benefit of the cause, and a closing hymn, the meeting adjourned.

CYCLING COMMENT.

The moon rising late, the Plainfield Bicycle Club have decided not to have their postponed run to Middle Brook tomorrow night.

John Mortimer started from Plainfield with the Asbury Park century riders and went as far as Orange. There he fell from his wheel and sprained an ankle so severely that he is confined to his house.

There has been a great rush for 50-cent Columbian souvenirs at face value at Capt. F. L. C. Martin's, and now Mr. Martin makes the liberal offer to give the 50 cent pieces away at 45 cents apiece to all purchasers to the amount of 50 cents or more.

Catarrh Cannot Be Cured

with local applications, as they cannot reach the seat of the disease. Catarrh is a blood or constitutional disease, and in order to cure it you must take internal remedies. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, and acts directly on the blood and mucous surfaces. Hall's Catarrh Cure is not a quack medicine. It was prescribed by one of the best physicians in this country for years, and is a regular prescription. It is composed of the best tonics known, combined with the best blood purifiers, acting directly on the mucous surfaces. The perfect combination of the two ingredients is what produces such wonderful results in curing catarrh. Send for testimonials, free.

SIMPLY SUNSTROKE.

That's All That Ailed Young Joseph Pike.

HIS FATHER HAS FULL EVIDENCE.

The Circulation in Plainfield of Stories from the West Are Branded by the Father as an Infamous Attack Upon a Popular Young Gentleman—Joe's Own Story.

Someone has been assiduously circulating in Plainfield with the evident intent of damaging a young man who is well liked by all who know his quiet habits and sensible and gentlemanly deportment, copies of newspapers from the West containing articles about Joseph S. Pike. One of the issues thus being sown broadcast is the Leavenworth T[illegible] Wednesday, Aug. 29, containing [illegible]

[illegible] yesterday a young man known [illegible] Fort Leavenworth as Joseph [illegible] was taken before Probate Judge [illegible], and a brief examination was made [illegible] his sanity. Paresis seems to be his trouble, and it was decided that he be taken to the county jail until further developments. He was of an anarchistic tendency, and several days ago became imbued with the idea that the world was all wrong, and he was one to set about reforming it. His method of reformation was death. He swore he would go right to work on his mission. He had prepared a lecture he was going to deliver. It was to astound the world. The annihilative inspiration came later, and meeting Lieutenant Jasper Brady one evening, he said: "I am crazy, and I have threatened to kill the first man I meet. You are that man and must die." He raised a great blackthorn stick for the purpose, no doubt, of striking the officer, but the latter outwitted him. He did not disarm him. He simply said: "I'll tell you what we will do. I don't mind the killing; you can do that any time. You wait a little while, we will go down town and have the best dinner that can be found in the city, wash it down with some choice champagne and then I can die with a satisfied stomach and you will be able to do your work ever so much better." Pike studied a minute and replied: "I'll do it. It's a d—d fine scheme." The two came to the city together and the first thing Pike knew he was in a chair in the police office and was later in the county jail. He was afterward taken out and given apartments in the Delmonico Hotel with a guard, and remained there until yesterday afternoon, when he was taken to the jail.

He had been a member of the 12th Infantry Band, but later ran a little lunch counter near the Fort. Mr. Brady said yesterday to a reporter that Pike is an heir to $10,250. His father has in the East something over $100,000 that was bequeathed to him. Part of this sum he can use; $41,000, however, is to be divided equally between four heirs, of whom Pike is one.

Mr. Brady says the father has been slow in answering letters and seems to be unusually careless about such an important matter, and remarked: "If it was a son of mine I would not have cared for letters; I would have been here as fast as fire, steam and steel could have brought me."

Among Pike's documents is a letter written to God in care of Lieutenant J. E. Brady, which reads:

To God, Care of Officer Brady; to Dr. Hunter, to Robert Meadow:
Who has been my friends to the last, if you want to see me I have a pass, I am falling fast, as I said before you have been my friends to the last. J. W. P.
Delmonico Hotel.

Pike got away from the hotel yesterday and reached the Bell steam laundry before he was discovered by his colored attendant. He went through the laundry; and when the attendant tried to get in, the door was shut in his face, his manner being excited and Mr. Bell not knowing of the circumstances. Pike was captured in the alley back of the laundry.

At 1 this morning Pike called up The Times by telephone, and said he had a statement to make. He then sent the following letter: "What young man who has the ability will let fortune slip by? A man can become thorough enough in his way to know right from wrong. I ask any man in the city of Leavenworth to say that I as much as ever laid a thumb on him.

"Louis my attendant says, 'You cannot leave the city.' His authority only comes from a doctor. While on the other hand I ask whether or no a man can't come and go when he likes?

"Today while taking a car for the Fort a man steps up and says 'You cannot go.' Very well; I said I would see about that. I walk around to the chief of police. Before reaching there I met Lieutenant Brady of the Post who considered it too hot to say much. He said: 'I will meet you at the Delmonico.'

"I reached the hotel to find two gentlemen who said: 'You'd better come with us, we are deputy sheriffs.' County jail! I defy any man, woman or child to say I ever laid hand on them. What right has Judge Hawn, or any other man, to confine me to the county jail?

"Lieutenant Brady says I tried to slew him with my cane. It is a lie. Dr. Carpenter says, 'you can't go anywhere you please.'

"Dr. Yohe—'Pike is all wrong because Pike's manuscript was all wrong.' Did you ever miss a lesson in school? Pike is thought to be a discharged soldier. Pike is thought this and that and jail goes. 12th Infantry band; 6th Cavalry, discharged. Excellent character—Jail. Can't make a speech; free country, pay for your hall, can't do anything unless you say so. I ask the 12th Infantry soldiers and officers as well whether I remain in jail? JOSEPH W. PIKE."

The writing was plainly spelled, some few words being misspelled. The letters are large, though they seem to have been written in an inconvenient place Pike will perhaps remain in jail, until something further is heard from his parents at Plainfield, N. J.

With the desire of having justice done the young man thus attacked, and who is now living among his Plainfield friends and associates, The Press today sought to investigate the truth of the matter, with the purpose of setting at rest the idle stories. One of its reporters saw the young man's father, Noah W. Pike of East Front street, who said that the whole affair was the work of his son's enemies. The young man had been falsely arrested when suffering from an attack of sunstroke and held for examination when he should have been in a hospital. Mr. Pike has a stack of papers and letters from physicians, lawyers and prominent men in Leavenworth, which testify to the young man's good character and perfect sanity. Joe had been detained by the police for only a day, as many new friends went to the rescue and secured his release when they learned that his enemies had seized upon the sunstroke as an excuse for causing his arrest.

The Press has once before denied the report that Joe was in trouble in the West, and it is glad to be able to make the authoritative announcement that the senior Mr. Pike has abundant documentary evidence to refute all the malicious stories which evil-minded people based upon the young man's unfortunate temporary illness.

JOE'S OWN STORY.

Since the above was written, Joe called at The Press office and told a long story about his case. He said that his attack in Leavenworth was brought on by overwork, worry and excessive heat.

He said he had kept good habits and tried to live so that his father would be proud of him. He had bought his discharge from the army, and had done a good business with his lunch counter.

After being kept guarded and cared for, for two weeks, he was sent home to Plainfield, but his domestic relations were such that he had worried himself sick again.

"Today"—said he—"I have my old pain in the head back again. I need care and comforts that I cannot get at home. I am kept in constant worriment, and, feeling that if I do not get the treatment I need I shall really lose my mind, I went to Dr. Cooley today and submitted my case. He said I needed quiet, and good treatment; he asked me why my father, who gets $200 a month income and has no house rent to pay, did not provide for me. I told him it was not all my father's fault, though I did feel that he ought to be more liberal with me.

"I told the doctor I saw no hope except to be sent to the asylum. He said I only needed mild treatment, and advised me to go to Judge Coddington, state my case, and since I was without funds have him commit me to the asylum as a care on the county.

"I was going to see the Judge when father told me a Press representative had been to see him. I determined to let the people know through The Press of my unhappy condition."

This and much more Joe told The Press, and asked that the story be published as it might rally his friends and the public to his help.

COUSINS FALL OUT.

TURBULENT SEQUEL TO A DOUBLE WEDDING.

Cooperative Housekeeping Ideas Fail in the Case of These Fourth-of-July Couples.

A complicated family row excited the residents of upper Manning avenue between 7 and 8 last evening. Abuse almost led to blows, but Chief Marshal Pangborn and Justice Crosley were summoned in time to keep matters quiet.

The story goes back to last Fourth-of-July when two cousins, Joseph and Winslow Carson, celebrated the day in spite of their English inclination by participating a double wedding. They immediately decided to go on together and took their brides to Hackman Patrick Lynch's house, the last one on the right side of Manning avenue. Each of the men agreed to pay half the rent to Landlord Lynch and each lived in peace in his half of the house all through the Summer.

The first of October Winslow and his wife got work in the city, the man in a Fifth street residence and the woman on Sixth street. Both Joseph and Winslow paid their half of the rent to October 4. Then the landlord said he wanted to raise the house and gave the two families the privilege to remain in the dwelling this month without paying rent. Joseph decided to move November 1 to the new house which the hackman is building next door.

So Winslow looked up his rooms and went to live with his employer. Last evening he went with his wife to their old home to see how things were progressing. They found that Joseph had taken boarder to live with him, and as the newcomer would crowd them he had decided to use his cousin's rooms also.

Accordingly, he had broken into Winslow's apartment and thrown all of the furniture and household belongings outdoors. First he made a great pile on the stoop and then he heaped the rest on the sidewalk. When Winslow and his wife approached he began to talk and finally took off his coat and prepared to fight. He had paid no rent and had no right to Winslow's part, but he seemed terribly mad when his cousin asked for an explanation.

Winslow did not try to soothe his cousin but went at once to Chief Pangborn's home. The Chief told Justice Crosley and the two explained to Joseph what would happen if he did n't hurry up and put the goods back. Joseph hurried, and quiet reigned once more.

CHURCH DOCTRINE NOT INFALLIBLE.

The Crescent Avenue Pastor Speaks Against Binding Every Clergyman and Elder by the General Assembly's Decision in the Briggs Case.

The judicial commission appointed by the Presbyterian Synod to examine the complaint made by Dr. Haley of Newark in the Briggs controversy submitted a report yesterday. It is against the Newark Presbytery and in favor of Dr. Haley, and was adopted after a short discussion. The report reads as follows:

"The commission unanimously sustains the complaint so far as it refers to the first part of resolution No 1: that is to say, the Presbytery of Newark erred in informing those under its care that judicial decisions by the General Assembly are binding upon the church unless and until reversed by a subsequent assembly.

"The phrase 'unless and until reversed by a subsequent assembly' ought not to have been adopted by the presbytery, for the reason that an assembly cannot reverse the judicial decision of a previous assembly, as all jurisdiction in a given case ceases with the assembly which tries the case, yet assemblies have corrected palpable errors of process when such have been shown.

"With regard to the matter of doctrinal declarations or deliverances the commission adjudges that the General Assembly is the highest judiciary in the church and its interpretations of the doctrines of the confession of faith are to be received with the obedience due to the body, but such deliverances become law only when approved by the General Assembly, or when embodied and set forth in a judicial decision by the assembly.

"The doctrine of inerrancy declarations by the General Assembly, which declarations prompted the Presbytery of Newark to adopt the papers complained against, is now the law of the church, having been judicially settled in the Briggs case, and is therefore binding upon every minister and elder of the Presbyterian Church."

Rev. W. R. Richards, D. D., of Plainfield, and Cornelius H. Clark, members of the commission, except to so much as the report sets forth in the following: "And is therefore binding upon every minister and elder of the Presbyterian Church." Dr. Richards made a brief explanation of his exception, stating that he believed a person could have his belief differing somewhat from the church's doctrines and yet be a good Presbyterian.

Dr. Dixon made a lengthy address, in which he stated that it was the law of the church for one to keep his ordination vows, which bound one to the will of his brethren in the Lord. We must actively agree or passively submit to the laws of the church or else leave it.

The report was adopted with only a few dissenting votes.

BLAZE FROM OILY RAGS.

Quenched in Its Incipiency by the Gallant Firemen.

Chief Grant and Policeman McCue were on Third street near Liberty at 5 yesterday afternoon when they heard shouts of "Fire". The Chief pulled Box 34 while McCue ran to the house of Lawrence Green, 515 West Third street, and commenced to keep back the crowd which was already filling the street.

The firemen stretched two lines of hose as usual, but found use for the extinguishers only. The blaze was in a room on the second story. It started in a heap of oily rags and ran up the side of a closet door. The painting of the woodwork and the repairing of the plaster where the firemen tore holes in it will probably cost $1.50. The loss is covered by insurance.

The Carmon-Nelson Match.

A large crowd of trap-shooters paid admission to enter the grounds of the Dunellen Gun Club yesterday to witness a pigeon match between W. Carmon of Dunellen and Dr. Nelson of New Market, to shoot at ten live birds, 28 yards rise, 80 yards boundary. The wind was very strong, and the birds were a fine lot, which proved too fine for Carmon, as the doctor won the match, killing 7 to Carmon's 6, out of ten. This match had been the talk of the boys for the past three months, and they all thought Carmon would win easily.

W. Sisty and Thomas Brantingham shot a match at 25 targets. Tom shot in fine form, and easily won the match.

C. E. CONFERENCE.

PLAINFIELD LOCAL UNION ENJOYS REUNION.

Two-Minute Reports from the State Convention Delegates—A North Plainfield Church Added.

Two hundred and fifty enthusiastic Christian Endeavorers attended the Fall Conference of the Plainfield Local Union held in the First Presbyterian Church of Dunellen last evening.

The meeting opened with a song service of fifteen minutes, led by Horace J. Martin of Trinity Reformed Church. E. M. Cave, president of the Local Union, then commenced the regular meeting with a short prayer. Singing by the congregation followed, and Rev. A. I. Martine of the First Presbyterian Church of Dunellen read a portion of Scripture, after which he offered prayer.

A selection was rendered by the regular choir, in which J. E. Low, tenor, sang the solo part.

Mr. Cave introduced Rev. C. L. Goodrich, of the Plainfield Congregational Church, speaker of the evening. His theme was "For Christ in These Days". He spoke of the motive of the Christian Endeavor society, and its strength and said that the motive meant not only belief but also work; the cross an emblem of our loyalty to Christ, has been borne in many places in His name. We should do something for those that He loves, and not be content with merely showing our loyalty by wearing badges and pins. One work of the Christian Endeavor is to bring the churches together and unite them. Our aim must be to save all we can outside of the church; we must work outside of the church as well as in. There is plenty of work for young women and young men to do that the pastor cannot; the Christian Endeavorer should do it.

After Mr. Goodrich's address, a collection was taken, and Miss Elizabeth Blair and Miss Mabel Brunson sang a pleasing duet.

A report of the Spring Conference held in South Plainfield last May was read by Miss Hawkins, the Local Union Secretary, and the delegates to the convention at New Brunswick gave two-minute talks. The following delegates spoke: Mr. Harris, South Plainfield; Mrs. Schwenk, Marconier; Rev. Mr. Peterson, Seventh-Day Baptist Church of New Market; Rev. Mr. Fletcher, First Baptist Church, New Market; Mr. Anthony, Trinity Reformed Church Plainfield; Miss Elfleda Whiting, Congregational Church, Plainfield; Mr. Barnes, First Baptist Church, Plainfield; Miss Dunlap, Warren Mission; Miss Luella Clawson, Seventh-Day Baptist Church, Plainfield. The report from the First Presbyterian Church of Plainfield was read by the secretary. After the two-minute talks, the secretary, who had been sent as delegate from the Local Union, made her report.

The Christian Endeavor society of the German Reformed Church of North Plainfield was elected a member of the Local Union, and the president announced that the nominating committee for the coming election of officers would consist of representatives from the following churches: Trinity Reformed Church, chairman; Congregational Church, Park Avenue Baptist Church, First Baptist Church of New Market, South Plainfield, German Reformed Church, Warren Mission, Washingtonville, Seventh-Day Baptist Church of Plainfield, First Presbyterian Church of Plainfield.

After a closing hymn, Rev. Mr. Fletcher pronounced the benediction.

The Plainfield contingent brightened their homeward journey with familiar C. E. songs.

THE A. P. A. OATH.

Rev. Father Murphy Asks People to Read and Judge for Themselves.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE DAILY PRESS:—As you published in last evening's edition of your paper a statement seemingly harmless and unprejudiced, regarding the principles of the A. P. A., will you kindly publish today the oath of the association, a copy of which I enclose? By so doing you will give your readers an opportunity of deciding for themselves on the merits of this un-American society, and you will also oblige,

Sincerely yours,
F. J. MURPHY.
Plainfield, N. J., Oct. 19, 1894.

THE A. P. A. OATH.

I do most solemnly promise and swear that I will use my influence to promote the interest of all Protestants everywhere in the world; that I will not employ a Roman Catholic in any capacity if I can procure the services of a Protestant; that I will not aid in building, or in maintaining, by any resources any Roman Catholic church or institution of their sect or creed whatsoever, but will do all in my power to retard and break down the power of the Pope; that I will not enter into any controversy with a Roman Catholic upon the subject of this order, nor will I enter into any agreement with a Roman Catholic to strike or create a disturbance whereby the Roman Catholic employes may undermine and substitute the Protestants; and that in all grievances I will seek only Protestants and counsel with them, to the exclusion of all Roman Catholics, and will not make known to them anything of any nature matured at such conferences; that I will not countenance the nomination, in any caucus or convention, of a Roman Catholic for any office in the gift of the American people, and that I will not vote for, nor counsel others to vote for, any Roman Catholics; that I will endeavor at all times to place the political positions of this Government in the hands of Protestants. (Repeat) To all of which I do most solemnly promise and swear, so help me God. Amen.

TORTURED THIRTY YEARS.

His Suffering Ended After Using Munyon's Rheumatism Cure.

Mr. George Smith, of Tacony, Pa., says: "I suffered from rheumatism for 30 years, and had so many severe attacks that some of my joints were twisted out of shape. At times I suffered terrible pain, and, although I tried many remedies, I never obtained any permanent relief until I procured Munyon's Rheumatism Cure. The action of this remedy was wonderfully quick, and although I have only taken a small quantity, I consider myself permanently cured."

Munyon's Rheumatism Cure is guaranteed to cure rheumatism in any part of the body. Acute or muscular rheumatism cured in from one to five days. It never fails to cure sharp, shooting pains in the arms, legs, sides, back or breast, or soreness in any part of the body in from one to three hours. It is guaranteed to promptly cure lameness, stiff and swollen joints, stiff back, and all pains in the hips and loins. Chronic rheumatism, sciatica, lumbago, or pain in the back are speedily cured.

Munyon's Homœopathic Home Remedy Company, of Philadelphia, put up specifics for nearly every disease, which are sold by all druggists, mostly for 25 cents a bottle.

CHRYSANTHEMUM TEA.

ANOTHER JOYOUS TIME IN GRACE M. E. CHURCH.

The Ladies Aid Society Responsible for This Delightful Repetition of Former Successes.

The simple announcement that something is to be held in Grace M. E. Church is sufficient to attract a crowd. The women of this active little church have gained a most enviable reputation for carrying on both spiritual and social work.

When it became known that they were going to give a chrysanthemum tea, everyone in the church planned to go, and representatives from their sister churches were just as eager.

The tea was given last evening, under the very able direction of the Ladies Aid Society, and as a result everyone present was delighted.

The church was tastefully decorated with a profusion of chrysanthemums and other choice flowers, by the artistic hands of Mrs. W. H. Griffin and Mrs. Taft; and the effect was exceedingly pleasing.

In the primary department room a long table, heavily laden with all the edibles of the season, was very tempting, and the small price of twenty-five cents was a mite for such a mighty supper. After all had partaken of this most excellent meal, they adjourned to the main room of the church, where an excellent literary and musical programme was enjoyed.

Mrs. Griffin and Mrs. Taft had charge of this also, but prevailed on good-natured Dr. Carroll to announce the several numbers.

The opening selection was a charming piano duet, by the Misses Mabel and Luella Benner, which for general merit could not have been excelled. Then Clarence Mills, apt pupil of P. Ludwig Conde, was introduced; the audience was delighted over his marvelous execution on the violin, and a hearty encore resulted. This was followed with a well-executed piano solo by Miss Lizzie Joseph, which was much appreciated.

The audience was given a treat when James and George Downey were introduced. Their selections on the mandolin and zither produced the greatest applause, and several encores were asked for. Clarence Mills again favored the people with a select violin solo.

George Downey gave an amusing recitation which was hugely enjoyed. In concluding the programme the Downey brothers again rendered some choice selections.

The able Committee on Supper was Mrs Valliant, chairman, Mrs Carroll, Mrs Stevens, Mrs Vermeule, Mrs Loomis, Mrs Lutkins, Mrs Hummer, Mrs Garey, Mrs Winckler, Mrs Shepard, Mrs William Lunger, Mrs Carney, Mrs Schuck, Mrs Townsend, Mrs Randolph, Mrs James Lunger, Mrs Smalley, Miss Belle Lunger, and Mrs Charles Hummer.

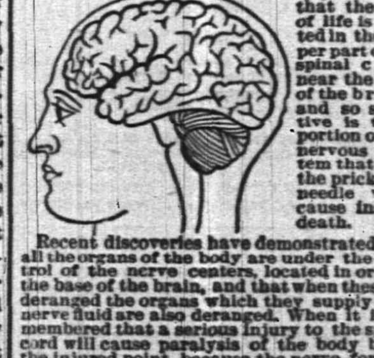
Those who looked after the check table were: Mrs L A Hummer, Mrs W H Griffin, Misses Grace and Alice Carroll, and Miss Clara Steiner.

—George W. Rockfellow has added a new gray horse to his delivery outfit.

MYSTERIES!

The Nervous System the Seat of Life and Mind. Recent Wonderful Discoveries.

No mystery has ever compared with that of human life. It has been the leading subject of professional research and study in all ages. But notwithstanding this fact it is not generally known that the seat of life is located in the upper part of the spinal cord, near the base of the brain, and so sensitive is this portion of the nervous system that even the prick of a needle will cause instant death.



Recent discoveries have demonstrated that all the organs of the body are under the control of the nerve centers, located in or near the base of the brain, and that when these are deranged the organs which they supply with nerve fluid are also deranged. When it is remembered that a serious injury to the spinal cord will cause paralysis of the body below the injured point, because the nerve force is prevented by the injury from reaching the paralyzed portion, it will be understood how the derangement of the nerve centers will cause the derangement of the various organs which they supply with nerve force

Two-thirds of chronic diseases are due to the imperfect action of the nerve centers at the base of the brain, not from a derangement primarily originating in the organ itself. The great mistake of physicians in treating these diseases is that they treat the organ rather than the nerve centers which are the cause of the trouble.

DR. FRANKLIN MILES, the celebrated specialist, has profoundly studied this subject for over 20 years, and has made many important discoveries in connection with it, chief among them being the facts contained in the above statement, and that the ordinary methods of treatment are wrong. All headache, dizziness, dullness, confusion, pressure, blues, mania, melancholy, insanity, epilepsy, St. Vitus dance, etc., are nervous diseases no matter how caused. The wonderful success of Dr. Miles' Restorative Nervine is due to the fact that it is based on the foregoing principle.

DR. MILES' RESTORATIVE NERVINE is sold by all druggists on a positive guarantee, or sent direct by DR. MILES MEDICAL CO., Elkhart, Ind., on receipt of price, $1 per bottle, six bottles for $5, express prepaid. It contains neither opiates nor dangerous drugs.

GREEN GOODS MEN AT WORK.

A Southerner's Money Saved by the Philadelphia Police.

Philadelphia, Oct. 19.—The intervention of the police has probably saved $350 for William L. Fulton of Savannah, Ga., as otherwise it would have been in the hands of green goods sharpers. Fulton came north with a man named Ziba King, of Waycross, Ga., for the purpose of purchasing greengoods with his $350. King is alleged to be a steerer for the greengoods men and took Fulton and another man named Johnson to New York. They arrived there Monday but found that the stirring up of the police circles by the Lexow committee made it impossible for them to do business in New York. Accordingly they came here and Johnson left them and went to Detroit. The suspicious action of the pair led to their arrest and they were locked up on the technical charge of conspiracy. Fulton stated at the police station that he was in the grocery business and that financial embarrassment had led him to borrow $350 and come north with King to buy green goods.

Strong and Powerful Words from Those Who Know Whereof They Speak—Being Prominent People, Everybody Knows Their Words Are True.

HON. WM. J. FISHER.

More wonderful grow the cures, and more noted and prominent those who have been cured by that greatest medicine in the world, Dr. Greene's Nervura blood and nerve remedy.

The strength of these splendid testimonials coming from well-known persons, gives to them such convincing power that the foremost men and women in the land are taking it because they know it will do exactly what people say it will.

One of the best known and honored men, Hon. Wm. J. Fisher, of Whallonsburg, N. Y., speaks as follows about himself and his estimable wife:

"Nine years ago I had malarial fever which developed into a severe case of Bright's disease. I saw a celebrated specialist who said I could live but a short time. I employed several eminent physicians. They all said I had Bright's disease, but none of them cured me.

"My wife, who was using Dr. Greene's Nervura blood and nerve remedy with great benefit, advised me to try it. I commenced it and almost immediately began to improve. I took four bottles and was then entirely cured and made a well man in every respect. I tell you it was wonderful, this medicine doing what no other medicines or physicians could do. I don't wonder it has got the name of being a wonderful remedy.

"My wife has been troubled with erysipelas, salt rheum and nervous debility. She has tried several medicines but Dr. Greene's Nervura blood and nerve remedy has done her more good than anything she has ever taken. She is rapidly getting well under its use. We both consider this medicine the best remedy in the world."

The wonderful cures performed by Dr. Greene's Nervura blood and nerve remedy have become so wide spread that everybody takes it. The best physicians everywhere advise and recommend its use, for they know its great and remarkable power to cure. Use it if you wish to get back your health.

Why waste time in trying uncertain and untried remedies when here is a physician's prescription, a discovery made by the greatest living specialist in curing nervous and chronic diseases, Dr. Greene, of 35 West 14th st., New York City. If you take this medicine you can consider yourself under Dr. Greene's direct professional care, and you can consult him or write to him about your case freely and without charge. This is a guarantee that this remedy will cure, possessed by no other medicine in the world.

SLOWLY PICKING UP

Another Week Shows Continued Improvement.

Considerable Expansion Still Necessary, However, To Compare Favorably with Corresponding Periods Two Years Ago—The Business Situation as Summed Up by Bradstreet.

New York, Oct. 20.—With few exceptions, says Bradstreet, the leading features of the business situation of the last week have been those of continued moderate improvement, although the total volume of business, so far as indicated by bank clearings throughout the country, will require considerable expansion to compare favorably with corresponding totals two years ago. The volume of clearings for six business days ending with Oct. 18 is $949,000,000, or 2.3 per cent. more than in the preceding week, and 2.5 per cent. larger than in the third week of October last year, but nearly 31 per cent. smaller than in the corresponding week in 1892.

This relatively favorable bank clearings report is offset in part by a decline in prices of staples, coffee alone scoring a slight advance. At Louisville tobacco is easier under promise of a large crop, and hides are lower in price at some of the most important markets, while leather is quoted lower at western cities. Competition of northern lumber manufacturers has forced down prices at Chicago, and all except best grades of live cattle at Omaha and Kansas City have sold for less than a week ago, while wheat and Indian corn have also shown declines. The production of iron and of Bessemer steel continues as heavy as heretofore, and quotations have been further shaded. Lard is lower in price, and the prospect for cessation of textile labor difficulties at the east has weakened the print cloth market. As serious as any other decrease is that of cotton, the feature of trade in the south this week being a check to purchases by interior merchants for spring delivery and slower mercantile collections, due to lower prices for cotton.

Exports of wheat (flour included as wheat), both coasts of the United States and Canada, this week amount to 3,192,000 bushels, against 3,317,000 bushels last week, 2,709,000 bushels in the third week of October a year ago, 3,270,000 bushels two years ago, and 3,500,000 bushels in the week three years ago.

The strength of foreign exchange and gold engagements for the week aggregating $1,000,000 have disturbed the speculative stock market and checked activity. Current decreases in railroad earnings are ascribed to the effect of the heavy World's fair passenger traffic a year ago. A small reduction in the Baltimore & Ohio dividend is not considered indicative of trunk line traffic conditions at this time. Bonds are strong, and any demand for prime securities causes an advance. The foreign exchange market is narrow, both as to supply and demand. Sight sterling is 4.87½.

There have been 253 business failures in the United States within a week, as compared with 238 last week. In the third week of October one year ago the total was 340, two years ago it was 216, and three years ago it was 220.

Nearly all the more important business centres west and northwest report moderate activity, but few of them announce new features. Chicago advices are received of increased mail orders, but fewer purchases in person, with relatively heaviest demand for underwear, clothing and cloaks, and a smaller volume of money going to the country. St. Louis merchants report increased confidence of jobbers dealing there and expectation of largely increased stocks of spring goods throughout the region tributary. Kansas City and Des Moines both report that warmer and unseasonable weather has served to restrict the volume of business within a few days, but at and near Omaha the weather has favored general trade and farm work. Conditions prevailing at Cleveland, Cincinnati, Louisville, Detroit, Milwaukee and St. Paul in preceding weeks are practically without change. At San Francisco and Portland, Ore., the volume of business is fairly satisfactory, and the demand for grain vessels is more active, with an advance in rates to the United Kingdom.

At four southern cities general trade is reported to have shown some improvement, Memphis, Jacksonville, Galveston and New Orleans, but at Savannah, Augusta, Atlanta and Nashville increased cotton receipts and lower prices have had an unfavorable influence. At Charleston, Chattanooga and Birmingham business has been quiet.

TRAIN ROBBERS BUSY

Another Express Car Looted of $20,000.

Four Bandits Perform the Work on a Texas Railroad—$20,000 in One Safe They Could Not Open, So They Ruined the Combination as an Act of Revenge.

Fort Worth, Texas, Oct. 20.—The west-bound Texas and Pacific through express train for California, leaving here at 9:05 a. m., was robbed about noon near Gordon, seventy miles from here. The robbers secured about $20,000 from the Pacific Express company, and but for their inability to open the safe of the Texas & Pacific Coal company, containing $20,000 in gold, would have made a better haul. Four men did the work. They came upon a section gang about noon, covered them with winchesters, and forced them to spread the rails and flag the coming train. The engineer and fireman were then lined up with the section gang and guarded while two men entered the express car and covered the messenger before he knew of their presence. Messenger Marshall was ordered to open the safe containing the money of the Texas & Pacific company. Telling them he could not do his, they seized a pick and ruined the combination, remarking: "If we can't get the money, those miners at Thurbers shant." The robbers fled southward, and no trace of them has yet been secured. Rewards aggregating $1,000 have been offered for their arrest. The money secured was taken from the way safe.

The only time the robbers used their revolvers was when Baggageman Almeras became too inquisitive. He peered out of his car door to see what the trouble was and not being quick enough when one of the robbers told him to take his head in, he had a narrow escape from being struck with a bullet, which imbedded itself in the facing of the door. The crew say that the robbers did not occupy more than thirty minutes in the job, and acted as though professionals of long experience. The robbers kept an eye on the mail clerks, but did not bother the mail pouches or the passengers. The work was done so quietly and quickly that the passengers were ignorant that anything of the kind was transpiring until nearly over. When the robbers disappeared the train was run with the throttle wide open to Gordon, from which point the railway, express and county officers were notified by telegraph of the crime. Posses were formed at once to pursue the bandits. When the train arrived at Thurber an engine loaded with a posse armed for business was found waiting under a full head of steam, and it was hurried to the scene of the daring hold-up.

SEVEN EX-HUSBANDS.

The Eighth Matrimonial Partner Was Freed from His Bonds.

Columbus, O., Oct. 20.—In the divorce court here Mary Knubbe was a defendant and her husband, Edward Knubbe, charged that she was a habitual drunkard and an evilly-disposed woman, having on more than one occasion caused him to suffer serious illness by the preparation of unwholesome food.

Among the witnesses for the husband were four ex-husbands of the woman, and it developed in the trial that three others are living in Ohio. The ex-husbands told how they had wedded the woman, and had tired of their bargain because of her bad habits.

One of the ex-husband witnesses said that upon the return of the woman while she was his wife, after a week's spree he ran away from her and did not know that she had ever been divorced. The present husband, the eighth in Mrs. Knubbe's list of matrimonial conquests, offered to bring in the three missing ex-husbands in the event that the court was not satisfied that a divorce should be granted him.

The escapades of the much married woman as told by the four husbands present were sufficient and Mr. Knubbe was freed from his incumbrance, leaving her in a position for other possible matrimonial adventures.

Honolulu and Annexation.

Pittsburg, Oct. 20.—Isaac F. Brannon, of Honolulu, is stopping in Pittsburg for a few days. He went to Honolulu 17 years ago for his health. He took an important part in the establishment of the Hawaiian republic, having commanded the most important battery of the revolutionists. The new government, he said to-day, was now firmly established and no apprehensions were felt for its overthrow. Annexation to the United States will, he thinks, follow just as soon as there is a change of administration in this country no matter what political party.

New Trotting Record.

Pittsburg, Oct. 20.—A new world's trotting record for a mile was made on the half mile track of the McKee Rocks association by Magnolia, a bay trotting mare, trained and developed by William Laird. The time is as follows: First quarter, 34 seconds; second, 1:06 1-4; third, 1:38, and the mile 2:11 1-2. The previous record was 2:11 3-4 held jointly by Magnolia and the Maine trotting stallion, Nelson. Magnolia made her mark at Warren, O., last week while Nelson took the record on a Maine track earlier in the present season.

Bombs at Barcelona.

Barcelona, Oct. 20.—Ten dynamite bombs with fuses attached were found near the engine of a large factory here. The bombs were powerful enough to have destroyed the entire manufactory. A number of anarchists were formerly employed in these works, among them two men who were executed some time ago in front of the fortress of Montjuich.

To Increase Union Dues.

New Bedford, Mass., Oct. 20.—The spinners' union of this city has voted to increase the weekly dues of members 100 per cent. The dues are now 11 per week for each member. Secretary Ross says the course persued is not for the promotion of hostility, but for the future defence of union members.

PLEA FOR PEACE.

China and Japan Urged To Arbitrate Their Differences.

Washington, Oct. 20.—The members of the American branch of the International Peace bureau, of which Mrs. Belva Lockwood, of this city, is secretary, have issued an appeal to the emperors of Japan and China to arbitrate their difficulties. Some of the successful arbitrations that have been achieved by these international peace associations are mentioned in the appeal, the more prominent of which are the treaty of London, which gave to Belgium her neutrality; the treaty of Washington, which resulted in the settlement of the Alabama claims and the Behring sea arbitration, known as the treaty of Paris. The appeal states that further loss of life and property can be avoided without any reflection upon either country by submitting their pending disputes to arbitration, with the same results and without loss of prestige as were secured by the contending nations which were parties to the foregoing arbitrations. It recommends as arbitrators, the pope of Rome, the emperor of Austria, Queen Victoria, the king of Denmark and the queen regent of the Netherlands. Pending the negotiation of such submission to arbitration all hostilities to cease and the usual international forms of truce to be strictly observed by both the contending parties. The appeal in conclusion pledges that the International Peace bureau will do all in its power to have this armistice strictly observed.

MORTON'S ENGLISH COACHMAN.

Judge Lacombe Decides That He Must Be Sent Back.

New York, Oct. 20.—Judge Lacombe, in the United States circuit court, dismissed the writ of habeas corpus in the case of John James Howard, Levi P. Morton's coachman, and decided that he must be sent back to England, as he had been brought here in violation of the contract labor law. Judge Lacombe held in his opinion that the statute provides for the return of an immigrant if the secretary of the treasury shall be satisfied that he has landed in violation of the contract labor law. The judge declares that the question whether an immigrant is a prohibited person is relegated solely to the secretary of the treasury and when congress intrusts final disposition to such officer the courts cannot interfere. In support of this Judge Lacombe quotes a decision of the supreme court to the same effect. Gen. B. F. Tracy argued on behalf of Mr. Morton that the statute exempted domestic and personal servants and while Judge Lacombe agreed with the counsel, he said that the courts had no power to reverse the decision of the secretary.

Pollard and Breckinridge.

Washington, Oct. 20.—On a motion by Mr. Calderon Carlisle, counsel for Madeline Pollard in the case of Pollard vs. W. C. P. Breckinridge, of Kentucky, the court of appeals for the District of Columbia ordered the appeal, which had been asked for in this case, stricken from the docket of the court on the ground that it had not been entered within statutory time. This ends the litigation as far as the court of the district are concerned, and leaves Pollard free to collect her judgment of $15,000 and costs from Col. Breckinridge when and how she can. Mr. Breckinridge's salary for the remainder of his congressional term is exempt by law from seizure and there is no provision in the laws of the District of Columbia, as there is on the statutes of some of the states, for the arrest and detention of any person about to leave the jurisdiction of the state without complying with the judgments of the courts.

VISITORS AT GRAY GABLES.

Isidor Straus and Ambassador Bayard Make Short Visits.

Buzzard's Bay, Mass., Oct 20.—Isidor Straus of New York, arrived on the noon train to call on the president. He was not expected. The president was enjoying his last sail down the bay on the Ruth when Mr. Straus arrived, and did not return until the middle of the afternoon, when he saw Mr. Straus for a short time. Ambassador Bayard and Miss Cleveland, the president's sister, arrived on an evening train from Boston. They were met at the station by Mrs. Cleveland and were immediately taken to Gray Gables. This is Mr. Bayard's first visit here. He expects to return to Boston where he will spend Sunday with his daughter, Mrs. Warren, after which he enters the campain in Delaware. It is learned that the president and his family will leave here next week, as previously announced.

Debs Speaks in New York.

New York, Oct. 20.—An immense audience gathered in the hall of Cooper union last night to hear Eugene Debs speak on the Pullman strike and the future of labor. When Robert Buchanan introduced Mr. Debs as "a man who had done his duty," the responsive applause was deafening and lasted fully ten minutes. When Mr. Debs finally found a chance to speak, he disavowed being one of those "who think the sun of our country will set in blood," and declared that he had faith in the republic. He then reviewed the Pullman strike and expressed his well-known political opinions. He was listened to attentively throughout, and warmly applauded when he finished speaking.

Y. M. C. A. in Pennsylvania.

Johnstown, Pa., Oct. 20.—At the second day's session of the Y. M. C. A. convention, the executive committee's annual report was read. It shows a membership of 26,018 in the state, an increase of more than 2,500 the last year. About 350 delegates were present, one hundred of whom are railroad association men.

Russia's Dying Ruler Now Surrounded by His Family.

St. Petersburg, Oct. 20.—A dispatch sent from Livadia this morning says that the czar's condition had not changed during the night. Keen anxiety is evident throughout the capital this morning. The streets are unusually full and everybody is reading bulletins or inquiring the latest news from the czar's bedside. Solemn prayers for the czar were said at the cathedral of St. Isaac last night. Ministers, high officials and the most conspicuous members of St. Petersburg society were present.

Copenhagen, Oct. 20.—Private telegrams received from St. Petersburg at an early hour this morning say that the czar's condition is slightly less critical.

Paris, Oct. 20.—After the special service in the Russian church last evening, Baron Mohrenheim, the Russian ambassador, was surrounded by persons inquiring eagerly after the czar. He replied: "His condition is very serious, but far from hopeless."

London, Oct. 20.—The Standard's St. Petersburg correspondent says: "It is intended, unless events precipitate matters, to declare a governing council on the 29th, when the senate will assemble, and thus avoid the word "regent." The council will consist of the czarewitch, Grand Duke Michael and Councillors Bunge and Solisky."

Dispatches from all parts of the continent show that the whole European press is brimming with articles on the czar. The vast majority of writers praise him for his love of peace. Speculation as to the czarewitch's future policy is rife. No two estimates of his character agree. Many of them are exceedingly unfavorable. The censorship of the St. Petersburg press is reported as being unusually strict. The newspaper which announced yesterday that Father Ivan, better known as Holy John, had been summoned from Cronstadt to Livadia, was seized by the police. The Allgemine Zeitung in Vienna suggested last evening that the czar was already dead and the fact was concealed as it was in the case of Emperor Nicholas I. The Russian embassy in Rome received a dispatch today saying that a miracle alone could save the czar's life. Prayers are being offered hourly in the Russian cathedral and dily in the Russian churches and the chapels of Russian embassies in European capitals.

London, Oct. 20.—The correspondent of the Times at St. Petersburg telegraphs: The czar has now taken to his bed, and his imperial relatives are now gathering round him. With an organic disease such as his the continued decline of strength is one of the most alarming symptoms.

RESTRICTING IMMIGRATION.

Europe Must Not Unload Non-Producing Classes on Our Shores.

Boston, Oct. 20.—Gov. Greenhalge has been called upon by the United States immigration investigation commission to answer certain questions considered at this time of extreme importance. The governor is requested to inform the commission as to whether this state, or any portion thereof, desires immigration; if so, what the resources are that need development; whether skilled or unskilled labor is desired; what wages are usually paid in these occupations, and what nationalities are preferred, and the order of preference numerically. A letter which accompanies the queries states that it is the intention to reproduce in various languages the substance of the information thus obtained to be displayed at the various ports of entry of the United States, for the convenience and guidance of immigrants. "By a careful inspection of immigrants," the letter further states, "it is hoped to systematically and effectively restrict immigration under the present laws within proper bounds. We trust," says the letter, "that the day has passed when Europe will be permitted to unload its non-producing classes upon our shores."

POLITICS IN NEW YORK

Change of Tammany Candidate for Mayor.

Nathan Straus Withdraws from the Contest and Hugh J. Grant Is Nominated—Useless Appeal to Senator Hill To Keep His Name Off the Republican City Ticket.

New York, Oct. 20.—Nathan Straus has formally withdrawn from the contest for mayor on the Tammany ticket and ex-Mayor Hugh J. Grant has been substituted. Following is the letter in which Mr. Straus made known his decision to Tammany.

To the Chairman of the Executive Committee of Tammany Hall.

Dear sir—I cannot too highly express my appreciation of the honor conferred on me by my nomination as the candidate of the democratic party for mayor of the city of New York. The distincion was all the more flattering, because it was tendered to me without any pledge, expressed or implied. But, while I have never had the slightest doubt about the election of the candidates placed upon your ticket, I simply obey the dictates of my conscience in withdrawing my name from it. My reason you will find more fully set forth from the letter which I append, a copy addressed to the democratic candidate for governor of the state, but to which I have received no written reply. Though personally out of the race, my efforts for the success of your ticket will be continued without intermission, and all organization so far perfected and campaign material accumulated at my headquarters are, with the headquarters themselves, freely at the disposal of my successor. I have the honor to be, very respectfully, yours

NATHAN STRAUS.

Here is the letter to Senator Hill:

Senator David B. Hill,

Dear sir—I trust that you have declined to allow your name to be placed on any other ticket in this county but the regular democratic ticket, upon which my name appears. I expect to stand as the candidate of the democratic party for mayor, but I will positively decline to run if you overthrow the political standing of the democratic party in this county by permitting your name to appear on a ticket with a republican mayor. I have the honor to be, very respectfully, yours,

NATHAN STRAUS.

Ex-Mayor Grant was formally notified of his nomination in place of Mr. Straus and made a speech of acceptance.

Demanded Certain Conditions.

In accepting the nomination Mr. Grant said:

Col. Murphy and gentlemen of the committee—You cannot regret more than I do the unfortunate condition of affairs that Mr. Straus has seen fit to make. Mr. Straus was my friend and I am extremely sorry he should have felt it necessary to decline at this late date the nomination tendered him for mayor by Tammany hall. It has been my fixed determination not to accept the nomination for mayor of this city. Such has been my determination and what I say now is conditioned upon some matters that I shall later bring to your attention. Thus there will be no mistake about my position. The democracy of New York city, as represented in Tammany hall, has been extremely kind to me. I asked many of you gentlemen to favor the nomination of Mr. Straus and you were kind enough to comply with the request I made. As I understand your statement of the matter this morning you consider me somewhat responsible for his nomination. I know that you are aware that I would not ask you or any friend of mine to do anything that I would not take the responsibility for.

I cannot but appreciate your very kind feeling toward me as expressed by Col. Murphy, and I can say to you now that upon the condition that such candidates upon your local ticket as I may deem it injudicious to run shall be withdrawn, I will accept your nomination. I do so with no fear in the world that it means anything but my election.

Col. Murphy here remarked: "And on behalf of the organization I represent here I say that we will accept your conditions no matter who the man may be that is affected or whom he represents."

Mr. Grant replied: "Upon these conditions I accept the nomination, and I may have something further to say which I shall communicate to you in writing."

Mr. Grant's Career.

Hugh J. Grant, who takes Nathan Straus' place on the Tammany hall ticket for mayor, is a comparatively young man. He served two terms on the board of aldermen, was sheriff of the city and county of New York and has occupied the mayoralty chair for two terms of two years each. He has been a member of Tammany hall for a number of years, and is on particularly friendly terms with Richard Croker. He is a bachelor. He has many large business enterprises, and is the present receiver of the St. Nicholas bank.

Senator Hill Has Nothing To Say.

Buffalo, Oct. 20.—Senator Hill was shown a United Press dispatch reviewing the local democratic situation in New York city which led up to the nomination of Hon. Hugh J. Grant, for mayor, on the retirement of Nathan Straus. Senator Hill after reading it said: "I have nothing to say on the local democratic situation in New York city."

Endorsed Anti-Tammany Ticket.

New York, Oct. 20.—The independent county organization, better known as the Steckler organization, met and accepted the full anti-Tammany ticket. The report of the committee appointed to consider the question of nominating a straight ticket recommended that the committee of seventy's ticket be indorsed in its entirety. This was carried unanimously. The Stecklerites are the seventh and last of the anti-Tammany organizations to declare for the committee of seventy's ticket.

Sixteen Women Drowned.

Madrid, Oct. 20.—Twenty women who were unloading the steamer Septembre in Bilbao were thrown from the dock in some unknown manner and sixteen of them were drowned.

NO FEARS OF PRISON

Strange Stories of New York Police Methods.

Convicted Prisoners Buy Their Freedom from Court Officers Under the Name of Bail—Police Partnership in Robbery—Mrs. Urchittel Gets Back Her Children.

New York, Oct. 20.—In the Lexow investigation Lucy J. Harris, a young colored woman, testified that she lived at 122 West Third street and robbed a man of $180. "The officer came in with the man afterwards," said she, "but I wasn't in. They went out and the officer, whose name is Derrigan, returned and said the money must be returned."

"I gave up the money to the wardman and found it was not reported. I was arrested but the man didn't appear against me and I was discharged."

The witness said Derrigan got the $180 and that afterwards she met him and he told her there was $10 for her at headquarters.

"I went up," said she, "and went in by the Mott street entrance. Derrigan met me and gave me two $5 bills."

The witness said that it was the general rule that if money was taken it was to be divided between the officer and the person who took it, the former getting 50 per cent. She said she threatened Derrigan and asked him what he had done with the money. He told her he would make it all right and not to say anything.

No Fear of the Island.

Hattie Ledyne, another colored woman, said she was sentenced to six months on the island on Sept. 28, and was discharged yesterday.

"How did you get out so soon?"

"Either a lawyer or influence got me out."

"How many times have you been arrested altogether?"

"About 110 times in the last two and a half years."

"You had to pay a lot of money to the police?"

"Yes, sir; and to the judge."

"What judges?"

"Voorhis, Ryan, McMahon."

"You don't mean to say you paid money to the judges personally?"

"Oh no, sir; I mean I paid it to the clerk of the court."

The witness said when she was sentenced to a month on the island she paid $15 to the clerk and then she was allowed to go. She was sentenced to the island 102 times and was there only eight times. "I paid $80 one time to Lawyer Webb," she said, "to get me off the island when I got a year. I got out after spending six days."

"We want to be fair," said Mr. Goff, "in this matter. The witness means that after the sentence was passed she paid the money to the clerk to get off. The judges did not know anything of these transactions."

The witness then said it was quite an easy thing to get bail around the fifteenth precinct.

"How much money did you pay in bail in getting out of the police court?"

"I paid different sums—from $15 to $80."

Detective Dennett, of the Parkhurst society, then took the stand. He said he had a conversation with Lawyer Webb, in which he asked him how he got the prisoners out of Blackwell's island. Lawyer Webb told him, he said, "that he went bail for them and that he never failed to get a person out in that way."

Mrs. Urchittel Gets Her Children.

Mr. Goff then said that the children of Mrs. Urchittel were in court.

"The officials," said he, "of the Hebrew Children Sheltering Arms society, have surrendered the children reluctantly to their mother. I am especially pleased because this is the first case where an institution has given up children without the consent of the Gerry society."

"Call Mrs. Urchittel to see her children."

Just at this moment the door of the courtroom opened and detective Dennett led in the three little children of Mrs. Urchittel. The moment Mrs. Urchittel saw them, she rushed towards them, and, seizing the little boy, clasped him to her bosom. She kissed him again and again and sobbed aloud with joy. Then she embraced the other two children and kissed them. There was scarcely a dry eye in the courtroom.

"Thank you, thank you, Mr. Goff," the poor Russian woman exclaimed. Finally she and the children were led from the courtroom. It was the most sensational incident in the entire proceedings of the Lexow committee.

Mrs. Urchittel's children were taken from her, and she herself was arrested on the charge of being a disorderly person by Officer Hussey. The story of persecution she told before the committee was a most pathetic one.

Searcey Is Nervous.

Cumberland, Md., Oct. 20.—There is nothing new in the Searcey case. The suspect is nervous, he will not talk to anybody and the detectives having the case in charge are equally reticent. The requisition papers issued by Gov. O'Ferrall, of Virginia, are expected to reach there to-day. Should they reach this city before 4 o'clock, the time set for the hearing of the case, it will put an end to all proceedings so far as the authorities are concerned. Directly the papers arrive Searcey will be taken to Richmond and turned over to the authorities there.

A Murderous Crank.

New York, Oct. 20.—A crank entered the Clinton Place bank, on Astor place, at 1:30 o'clock and demanded $1,000 from Paying Teller Hind. Hind turned away and told the man to wait, whereupon the latter fired a revolver at Hind's head, but missed him by an inch. Other employes of the bank seized the crank and handed him over to the police.

Ex-Gov. Bedle Resting Quietly.

New York, Oct. 20.—Ex-Governor Bedle of New Jersey, who is seriously ill at St. Luke's hospital, is resting quietly. An operation will be performed on him in the course of the next few days.

IN BRACING OCTOBER.

STRENGTH SHOULD RETURN AND LANGUOR GO.

No Season Is So Good for Building Up the Brain and Body—Paine's Celery Compound's Work of Mercy in Countless Homes.

The prostrating heat of summer has long since gone.

There is now but one excuse for languor and lack of energy—ill health.

With the return of bracing, vigorous weather the thoroughly well men and women find the prospect of work attractive. Business looks promising. The indolent, unambitious feeling of a few months ago gives place to energy and hard work.

That is, provided one is well.

To the sick man or woman the prospect is doleful. The thousands of persons who worked right through the hot summer, and the many whose vacation, instead of recruiting their strength, has only made increased demands on their tired nerves and brain—these unhappy ones should take advantage of the bracing days and nights to store their bodies with pure, vigorous blood and their nervous system with energy before the cold weather overtakes them in their weak, "run down" condition.

Paine's celery compound should be taken during the month of October. It will build up the tired system wonderfully. Increased appetite and steady gain in weight during the month will show unmistakably the stimulating effect of this remarkable nerve food. To those who know anything of the working and the purpose of the nervous system it is evident that the prompt feeding of the nerves with Paine's celery compound means well followed by a decided gain in health and vigor of the entire system. There is no organ of the body that is not controlled by the nerves.

It is the putting off of attention to the signs of heart weakness that fills the statistics with overwhelming numbers of deaths from "heart failure." Those who at once build their strength and nourish the feeble nerve centres with Paine's celery compound, check weakness of that important organ as readily as weakness of any other part of the body. This greatest modern invigorator, discovered by the man whom Dartmouth College is most proud to honor, Prof. Edward E. Phelps, M. D., LL. D., was welcomed more than extraordinary step in advance of anything before at the command of physicians, for curing rheumatism, neuralgia, debility. Countless women, weak, thin, mere bundles of nerves, and discouraged by their inability to gain strength, have been started on the sure road to recovery by Paine's celery compound.

Physicians prescribe it the world over. Get strong and well with Paine's celery compound.

Here is the experience of Mrs. William McCollom of Trenton, Mo., who says:

"I have had neuralgia for eight or ten years. I began to think that eventually it would cause my death. I would have three or four awful attacks in a month, and all the pain would settle in the base of my brain, and extend down my back, lasting several hours.

"We tried everything we could think of but nothing did me any lasting good until my mother came on a visit and told me to try Paine's celery compound, as she was using it for nervous trouble with wonderful success. We both think your compound saved us from going crazy. I only used two bottles of it, but I have not had a return of my old enemy since.

"One thing is certain, and that is the doctors could not do anything for me. Some told me it was caused by nervous trouble, some said it was female trouble, some said one thing, some said another, but thanks to your wonderful compound I am free once more. I have often thought that I write and tell you what a relief it is to be free from pain, but I neglected it from time to time. You may believe that I shall always speak a kind word for Paine's celery compound.

COUNTY DEMOCRATIC CONVENTION

At a meeting of the Democratic Executive Committee of the County of Union, held September 20, 1894, it was resolved to hold the County Convention on Wednesday, Oct. 24, 1894,

at 2 p. m., in

ARMORY HALL, BROAD ST., ELIZABETH,

to nominate candidates for County Clerk, Members of Assembly, and one Coroner. It was also resolved to designate between the hours of seven and nine in the evening, as the time for holding primary meetings.

The ratio of representation will be one delegate for every fifty and one for every fraction over twenty-five Democratic votes cast at the last Gubernatorial election.

The number of delegates to which each ward and township is entitled is as follows:

	Votes.	Delegates.
Clark township	60	1
Cranford township	165	3
Elizabeth—
First Ward	586	12
Second Ward	486	10

Fourth ward	168	3
Springfield township	88	2
Summit township	382	8
Union township	305	6
Westfield township	311	6
Total		170

A member of the County Committee in each ward and township will be elected at the above primaries for the ensuing year.

By order of the County Democratic Executive Committee,
Dated Sept. 26, 1894.
JOHN J. MATTHEWS, Chairman.
A. P. HOGEN, Secretary.

DEMOCRATIC PRIMARIES.

The Democratic voters of the city of Plainfield are requested to meet on Monday evening Oct. 22, at 8 o'clock, at the following named places to nominate delegates to the County Convention to be held at Elizabeth, on Wednesday, Oct. 24.

	Delegates
1st ward, Hoagland's office, North ave.,	5
2d ward, Bryant School,	3
3d ward, Livery Stable, Sixth street,	3
4th ward, Democratic Headquarters, Front street,	8

SIX PAGES TODAY.

A local Republican laments because he saw Charles N. Codding on a train and his "pure white smile" was missing.

No copy of The Press is complete today without the Woman's Page supplement. The men will find it interesting for themselves as well as a delight for the feminine members of the household.

One of the rough spots on the local streets is at the Madison avenue crossing on Front street. The roadbed has been worn into a gully alongside the flagging, and is dangerous enough to demand immediate attention.

The Press does like to see folks enjoy themselves, and is glad that the Plainfield Republicans had a good time last night. There's nothing like making the best of life these glorious October days. November is approaching.

Corner-loafing is too prevalent in this town. The police should bestir themselves tonight and "move along" the tobacco-spitting and unsavory-talking groups that annoy and offend decent people out for shopping purposes.

It is gratifying to The Daily Press and other stanch friends of J. W. Reinhart that he is rapidly recovering his health and will soon be in a physical condition to meet the attacks of the railroad opponents whose enmity has been aroused by jealousy at his successful career.

The large trade traffic in Plainfield Saturday nights makes prominent the fact that many of the narrow sidewalks of the town are blocked unnecessarily with packing-boxes and goods. The duty of the police is to see that the ordinance against sidewalk obstruction is enforced. A spasmodic attempt at such enforcement was made some time ago, but the evil is now as bad as ever. Clear away the encumbrances and save the people from being squeezed.

The Plainfield Democracy has in the days of the old solid Republican district put up so many deserving men for sure slaughter on the Assembly ticket that now under the county method of voting she deserves a chance. The candidate? Who better than J. Augustus Smith! He's a level-headed, progressive business man, a man of the people, pushing, popular, praiseworthy in every respect. Among Plainfield merchants he's a leader, in the Board of Trade he's a hustler, in personal qualities he's true blue, and he'd be loyal to his constituency. Here's to J. A. Smith for Assembly, and it nominated he will win!

Fleet First-Warders.

Nine-year-old John Ralston of East Third street won the 5½-mile handicap running race this morning. Harry Drake of Richmond street was second. Henry Angerbauer was third and made best time, 35½ minutes. The Scotch Plains-Fanwood course was run.

Harry VanHiew won the 100-yards dash. Lawrence Doyle was second.

John Ralston won the 2-mile handicap race. Lawrence Doyle making best time.

DEATH OF M. S. TAYLOR.

A PROMINENT RESIDENT GOES TO HIS REWARD.

He Was a Man of Sterling Worth, and Will be Mourned by a Wide Circle in the Community.

A man of great business ability and strong, earnest Christian character, highly respected as a resident of Plainfield, and popular and prominent in New York business circles, passed away when Morgan S. Taylor of Rockview Terrace died at daybreak this morning. His death was not unexpected, but it was more the loss a great blow to all who knew him.

Mr. Taylor had been kept away from business by poor health for a year. He spent last Winter in southern California, returning to North Plainfield in the Spring. For the past month he had been confined to his bed. He slowly became worse, his constitution not being strong enough to resist disease so long. The end came at 5 this morning.

Morgan S. Taylor's father was Rev. Dr. E. L. Taylor, for many years pastor of the Strong Place Church of Brooklyn. In that city Mr. Taylor was born 49 years ago. When a boy he entered the establishment of Townsend & Yale, the dry goods commission merchants of 345 Broadway, corner of Leonard street, New York. With them he remained ever since, rising to the highest place in the great wholesale firm's confidence. He was known to nearly everyone in the dry-goods trade, in New York and throughout the country.

In 1873 Mr. Taylor moved to Plainfield with Martin I. Cooley, who had known him since they were boys together. He lived at first on Grove street and then went to Rockview Terrace where he built the elegant home in which he has since lived, next door to the residence of Mr. Cooley.

One of Mr. Taylor's first acts in Plainfield was to unite by letter with the First Baptist Church. During his 21 years of residence here he was one of its most esteemed members. He has been a trustee for several years and in the church and its governing board he will be greatly missed.

A wife and three children, Mary, Edith and Fred, survive Mr. Taylor. Fred Taylor, the youngest of the three, is 18 years of age. Mr. Taylor leaves three brothers, Dr. James M. Taylor, President of Vassar College; Charles H. Taylor of New York and Electus Taylor who lives in the South.

The funeral services will be held at the house next Monday afternoon at 3. Rev. Dr. D. J. Yerkes will officiate. The interment in Hillside Cemetery will be private.

DEATH OF J. A. FROUDE.

London, October 20.—James Anthony Froude, LL. D., the celebrated religious writer and historian, died at 6:30 this morning, aged 76 years.

PARTICULAR MENTION.

Garret Hammael is severely ill with Bright's disease at his home on Elm place.

Wallace Serrell of Chicago is visiting his father, L. W. Serrell, West Front street.

W. S. Force of Fanwood, who is recovering from illness, has gone away on a two-weeks trip.

Miss Georgia Eick of East Third street is home from an enjoyable visit to Trenton and Princeton.

Dr. D. C. Adams and Captain Benjamin Doane are expected home tonight after three weeks in the Adirondacks.

Hon. Roswell G. Horr will give his campaign talk to the Elizabeth Republicans in the Lyceum Theatre tonight.

Councilman and Mrs. V. L. Frazee, Peter Weaver, and John Bolsterli, will enjoy a drive to Morristown tomorrow.

Mrs. Elizabeth Sargeant of Putnam avenue, Brooklyn, is visiting her niece, Mrs. S. P. Craig of 815 College place.

John Ward Stimson of West Seventh street leaves today to spend the Winter in the Adirondacks on account of his health.

Mrs. S. I. Conkling, who has been spending the Summer at Hotel Bristol, Asbury Park, returned to her home on East Front street last night.

Andrew E. Kenney, who has been in town a few days with his family, leaves tomorrow night for Augusta, Georgia, to resume his work for the Benevolent Legion of Brooklyn.

Rev. and Mrs. E. O. Moffett, who recently drove from New Prospect, N. Y., are now visiting their cousins, Deputy County Clerk E. D. Moffett and wife of 445 Orchard place.

Perennial is Plainfield. Here November is near, and Mrs. Amelia Sandford of Washington avenue has been feasting on strawberries grown outdoors on the Greenbrook farm of Amos Vail.

Harry A. Connett of 303 East Fifth street is justly proud of the fine, stately old clock that keeps time in his home. Its height is eight feet, its age 200 years, and it is as sure as the 5 o'clock gong.

Wm. Howard, Rahway's Republican candidate for county clerk, was born in Washington Valley, just over the North Plainfield border, and is well remembered by his comrades in the 39th N. J. Vols.

Wesley Abbott, who was injured last week in a football game, is rapidly improving, but will be unable to play any more football this season. In losing Abbott, the Leal's School eleven are bereft of one of their best players.

For the Groendyke-Randolph wedding in the First Baptist Church next Tuesday evening L. R. Moore, organist of the Central Congregational Church of Brooklyn, and formerly instructor of Miss Randolph, has volunteered his services on the organ.

The Patriotic Order of Sons of America will meet next Wednesday evening to install their officers.

A reception is being planned by Pauch Caugh Naugh Sicque Tribe. It will probably be held in Music Hall at an early date.

SUNK BY A CENTRAL FERRYBOAT.

During the heavy fog this morning the ferryboat Mauch Chunk, which is running on the Thirty-ninth street, Brooklyn, ferry, but which is owned by the Central Railroad Company of New Jersey, ran into and sunk the tugboat E. A. Kirkham, which belongs in Harlem.

Earn Nichols, the cook on the Kirkham, was drowned.

The collision took place at 7:15 off the foot of Dykeman street, Red Hook.

MORE POLICE ARRESTS.

New York, Oct. 20.—Bench warrants were issued late last night for the arrest of ex-Police Capt. Michael Doherty, ex-Sergeants Hugh Clark, James W. Jordan, George C. Liebers, Felix McKenna and Charles H. Parkerson and ex-Ward Men Hock and Bernard Meehan on the charges of bribery and extortion. They were arrested today.

CHURCH CHIMES.

"Good Tidings Day" will be celebrated in Grace M. E. Church tomorrow afternoon.

The Epworth League of Grace M. E. Church enjoyed their regular monthly social last evening. Amusing games occupied the attention of those present.

Copies of a recent booklet by Dr. Stalker upon the subject of the pastor's sermon, will be distributed at the Congregational Church to morrow morning.

The committees on entertainment and reception for the Baptist State Convention which will be held in the First Baptist Church Oct. 29 and Nov. 1, have about completed their arrangements.

George W. Stone, who will preach in All Souls Church tomorrow night, has friends both in and outside the church in this city, to which he is often called by his duties as National Bank Examiner of this State. He has never preached here before, though he has frequently done so elsewhere, and he is a most eloquent and accomplished preacher.

The Bound Brook Chronicle, which The Press quoted in the matter, was misinformed as to the result of the Congregational Council at Warrenville, of which note was made a week ago. Mr. Bowers was not reinstated in the ministry. The council advised the church to employ Mr. Bowers for a year, and at the end of that time call a new council to consider reinstating him.

Temperance women are busily engaged in preparing for the twenty-first annual convention of the New Jersey W. C. T. U. The convention will open Tuesday night, Oct. 23, in the Bergen Avenue Reformed Church, Jersey City Heights, and will close the following Friday. A fine programme has been prepared. Mrs. T. H. Tomlinson of Plainfield will conduct the opening devotions. All of the prominent women will take part, and Col. Geo. W. Bain of Kentucky will speak on "The Curse of Our Nation".

The congregation of Trinity Reformed Church are delighted with the news that their pastor, Rev. Cornelius Schenck, is planning a permanent home, as it indicates that he and they are firmly wedded. The new house will adjoin and be similar to the home of Mr. and Mrs. M. A. Haven, on the north side of West Front street, West End Park, near the Grant Avenue station. Seaman Williams, mason, has begun excavating for the cellar, and Pearson & Gayle will do the carpentry work. Mr. and Mrs. Schenck will not take possession till Spring.

The fourteenth annual convention of the Union County Sunday-school Association will be held in the Second Presbyterian Church, Elizabeth, all day Tuesday, October 23. A collation will be provided at the closing of the morning and afternoon sessions. An interesting programme has been arranged. Among the addresses will be: 4:00 to 4:30, by William D. Murray of Plainfield, on "The Spiritual Side of the Teacher's Work"; 8:30, by Rev. A. H. Lewis, D. D., of Plainfield, on "The Relation between Bible Study and the Future of Protestantism."

Instead of a preaching service tomorrow night at the Park Avenue Baptist Church, the Y. P. S. C. E. will hold a service to mark their sixth anniversary. There will be special music, and an address on "What Constitutes an Aggressive Christian Endeavor Committee", by the pastor, Rev. J. W. Richardson, who was one of the speakers at the State Convention in New Brunswick last week. As he was not able to finish his address there, for lack of time, the young people are anxious to have him repeat the address here tomorrow night.

The Epworth League of the First Methodist Episcopal Church held their regular monthly sociable in Vincent Chapel last evening. The meeting was in charge of Daniel Dunavan, who introduced the different speakers. After preliminary singing, Rev. Dr. C. R. Barnes opened the meeting with prayer. Following another hymn, Robert Davis gave a reading entitled "Toby's Monument". G. R. Cornwell gave a recitation "Old Ironsides", interspersed with his customary witty remarks and appropriate gestures. Singing followed, and J. R. Joy read a poem, "Dolores". Dr. Barnes was the next speaker, and he told several funny stories and read a number of humorous clippings from newspapers. After Dr. Barnes's address, all enjoyed a social chat, and the meeting broke up in pleasantry.

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR

The fourth anniversary of the organization of the Christian Endeavor society of the First Presbyterian Church of Dunellen will be held next Friday evening in the church. J. W. Trout of Elizabeth will make an address on "Good Citizenship", and a male quartette will sing several selections.

A number of the young people of the Crescent Avenue Presbyterian Church met last evening to consider the advisability of forming a Christian Endeavor society. After considerable discussion it was decided, by a vote of 18 to 14, to form one. A committee of five was appointed to draw up a constitution and report at the next meeting.

The Sewer Matter.

The mistaken idea which some Dunellenites have that the flush-tanks will flood the filtration beds daily with 60 gallons of water for each inhabitant of the city, arose from a misconception of the remark of one of the engineers.

What he did say was that 60 gallons day was a standard in use in calculating the consumption of water in cities.

The plan to use but five acres for the bed at first seems to be a mistake only to those who do not consider that it will be many years before every house in the city gets connection with the sewer.

When it becomes necessary to use more land the committee can be depended upon to increase the size of the land utilized. It is certain that the committee do not intend to allow the system to become a nuisance to any one.

MADE A "LIGHTNING CHANGE."

Song and Dance Artists Marriage Caused a Sensation.

A novel wedding ceremony was performed in the West Brighton Police Court at Coney Island recently by Justice Finnerty. The contracting parties were Charles Henry Gorman, aged thirty-four, and Jane McKenzie, aged thirty-three, who are "lightning change song and dance artists" in a concert hall on Sea Beach avenue. Both had been married before.

The couple shocked Justice Finnerty and caused a lively sensation in the court room by giving an example of their proficiency in lightning change of costumes in front of the bench. They came into court dressed in shabby clothes which presented the appearance of having been thrown on any way, and stated their case to the Justice.

"Are you ready now?" began the magistrate, and prestol at the word the woman pulled a string at her waist and the man one at his neck and their clothes began falling off their backs. Justice Finnerty, who is a modest man, covered his blushing face while the spectators roared with laughter.

The shabby old clothes slipped to the floor and the couple stood forth resplendent, the woman in a handsome satin ball dress and the man in a gorgeously bespangled song and dance costume. Then the spectators applauded, while the woman explained to the still mystified Justice that they wanted to be married in their stage costumes and couldn't very well wear them through the streets.

The Judge forgave them and tied the knot, after which the couple kissed one another and put on their old clothes again and walked out of court arm in arm, to the delight and admiration of the court loungers.

Mr. Hearn's Dreaming Crow.

Wes Hearn has a crow, and he is the gawkiest, oddest, ugliest, but withal, the smartest bird one ever saw. He has learned the accomplishments of men so well that he now dreams—actually has nightmares.

The crow during the odd hours of his willing and luxurious captivity has dug a hole in the wall, in which he deposits dainty morsels for the future when his appetite is not satiated.

Yesterday in his hole in the wall he carefully placed two pieces of cheese and three bits of meat, all the while casting a furtive eye to windward to see that no one learned the secret of his hiding place.

This done, he ruffled his feathers, drew his neck down into them, and, standing on one foot, went fast asleep. Perhaps the immense quantity of cheese which he had gorged himself with a half hour before gave him the indigestion, for he had a nightmare right on the spot.

Suddenly he woke up, and the air was rent with "Squawk! squawk! squawk!" in quick succession. He danced over in a flurry of excitement to his hole in the wall and jammed his bill in it three times. Everything was there. Nothing had been stolen. He sidled over to his perch, scratched his bill with his foot in a meditative way, as much as to say "Well, I'll be ——," and, ruffling his feathers into a muff, drew himself into them, supported the whole on one leg, and was soon again in the land of nod.

What the Old Man Did.

"What's Dick doing now?"
"Well, Dick he's a-doctorin'."
"And John?"
"He's horse tradin'."
"And William?"
"He's a savin' of souls."
"And Tom?"
"Well, Tom—he's sorter politicianin' aroun'."
"And you?"
"Well, I'm sorter farmin' an' a-feedin' of Dick, an' John, an' William, an' Tom.'

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR.

Topic For the Week Beginning Oct. 21. Comment by Rev. S. H. Doyle.

TOPIC.—Which of Christ's teachings seems to you most wonderful?—Mark i, 22; Isa. ix, 6.

The Old Testament in describing the Messiah who was to come into the world described Him as one who would attract the wonder and amazement of the world. "Unto us is a child born, unto us a son is given, and the government shall be upon His shoulders, and His name shall be called Wonderful, Counselor, the Mighty God, the Everlasting Father, the Prince of Peace" (Isa. ix, 6). And when Christ came He fulfilled this description. The world looked in wonder upon Him not only because of His wonderful works, but also because of His wonderful teachings and the way in which He taught. "They were astonished at His doctrine, for He taught them as one who had authority and not as the scribes" (Mark i, 21).

The scribes were the official teachers of the Jews, but they were not final authorities in themselves. They based their teachings upon the law and tradition. Their chief duty was simply to explain the law and apply it to the people. But Christ was not a scribe in His teaching. He taught of Himself and for Himself, and the people were not slow in seeing the difference between the character of His teaching and that of the Jewish lawyers. He taught as one who had authority.

In the three years of His public ministry Christ at some time or other touched upon all the important truths which constitute Christianity and the truths that had been for all time agitating the minds of men. He was indeed wonderful in His teachings. Concerning Himself, Christ taught that He was the Son of God; that He came into the world to die, to save the world, and that when He should die He should be raised in three days from the grave. Concerning man, He taught that He was estranged from God, and that He was the only true way back to God; that the soul of man is immortal, and that it exists in eternity either in happiness or in misery, dependent upon its relation to God, and also in His teachings He placed before men the highest standard of principle of men's dealings one with another.

We may well think upon the great teachings of Jesus Christ. They are all important to us. They are all dear to us, and yet perhaps in every heart, because of its experience or its surroundings, one truth is more wonderful than another.

Bible Readings—Math. iv, 17; v, 43; vii, 7, 28; viii, 8; ix, 23; xxii, 23; xxv, 34-46; Mark ii, 18; xii, 28; Luke vi, 31; viii, 19; xx, 1; John iii, 1-16; vi, 26; xiii, 14; xiv, xv, xvi.

A Christian Endeavor Choir.

A feature of the workings of the Philadelphia Christian Endeavor union most deserving of imitation by other unions is its Christian Endeavor choir, probably the largest ever organized among Christian Endeavor societies. It holds regular monthly rehearsals and enlivens with its music all the meetings of the union. At a recent union meeting a choir of 1,000 occupied seats on the platform. This form of work brings together in a very pleasant way the different members of the union, promotes mutual acquaintance and increases the enthusiasm of the meetings to a marked degree. Besides the choir is valuable for many general occasions connected with the churches, and thus the usefulness of Christian Endeavor interdenominational co-operation is made noticeably apparent to all the pastors and churches. —Golden Rule.

Practice In Soul Winning.

Practice is a wonderful influence in soul winning. Life always has an influence. Piety has a preaching power. The steady influence of a godly life is the light that guides many a wanderer to Christ, its source. Christ exemplified by the Christian is Christ recommended to the world. "What sermon of mine was it that brought you to confess Christ?" asked the minister of an applicant for church membership. "It was not your preaching, sir. It was Aunt Betty's practicing that brought me," was the reply.—Christian Intelligence.

Like the Primitive Christians.

Referring to a recent Christian Endeavor union meeting in Scotland, one of the speakers of the occasion said that he could imagine just such meetings among primitive Christians before the great differences which now exist had come to pass.

Christian Endeavor Briefs.

The Kansas City Christian Endeavor union is not resting in its vigorous good citizenship fight. It is in the war against the saloons, the lotteries and bad politics, and in it to stay.

Two capital topics recently used at Christian Endeavor conventions in Australia are, "The Sulks, and How to Cure Them," and "The Power of the Tongue." Such practical themes should be more frequently treated.

The first annual convention of the Wellington (Australia) union was held July 10 and 11, the date of the Cleveland convention.

Cleveland got only enough of the Christian Endeavor convention to wish for more, and now the Cleveland Leader is raising the warcry, "Cleveland, 1897!"

A Christian Endeavor service was held on board the schoolship St. Mary, then in New London harbor, previous to her departure for a foreign cruise.

The Floating Christian Endeavor society on the United States steamer New York, which was the first one organized in the navy, has held its meetings regularly, even although on some occasions, during the rebellion at Rio Janeiro, shells were flying unpleasantly near the vessel.

Twenty societies in Victoria, Australia, have given more than $1,900 to missions.

The Chestnut Picnic a Success.

The chestnutting party of members of the Holy Cross Sunday-school was found to be so large that the start was postponed from 9 this morning to 11 while another stage was being secured. It was thought two large stages would be sufficient, but the young people turned out in such numbers that a third was necessary.

Bogus Hawaiian News.

Washington, Oct. 20.—An alleged dispatch from Port Townsend sent out by the Chicago organization styling itself the Associated Press, asserted that another revolution was imminent in Hawaii, the ardor of the royalists having been renewed by the arrival of Parker and Wideman with personal assurances from Secretary Gresham that in case of another revolution the United States would remain neutral. When the dispatch was shown to Mr. Hastings, who has been acting Hawaiian minister at Washington for nearly a year, he said he had not the slightest idea that there was any truth at all in the story.

Dr. McGlynn Speaks at Chicago.

Chicago, Oct. 20.—Eight thousand people fought their way into the Auditorium to hear Dr. McGlynn make an address on behalf of the populists and fully 8,000 more stayed on the outside nearly creating a riot in their efforts to gain admission. Dr. McGlynn endorsed the peoples' party platform as a "singularly wise one." He confined himself to religious and philosophic arguments, touching but little on political subjects. Single tax sentiments were plentiful, and were vociferously applauded.

MISS DELLA FOX.

A SUCCESSFUL STAR IN COMIC OPERA SPEAKS OF HER CAREER.

Her Debut was Made in "Pinafore," and in St. Louis; but Despite this Handicap She Has Won Success. She is Fond of Her Singing Spaniel.

A few years ago a little St. Louis girl, fair-faced and sweet-voiced, with fluffy blonde hair and large dark eyes, appeared as the Midshipmite in "Pinafore," that Gilbert and Sullivan opera which has been murdered by so many amateurs and sung by so many professionals.

She made a successful debut and her friends predicted that if she went on the stage (which of course she wouldn't) she would some day appear in the great playhouses of the city as a star. That is the kind of prophecy that usually attends every amateur of more than ordinary ability and frequently those of no ability at all; but in this case the prediction has been verified. The dainty "Midshipmite," that filled her friends with admiration at her first appearance, is now Miss Della Fox, the successful star who is singing in the "Little Trooper," under the capable management of Mr. Nat Roth.

The opera opened the season at the Casino, which for many years, in fact almost since the famous days of "Erminie," has been in hard luck. The "Little Trooper," achieved an instant success, and those who feared that perhaps Miss Fox, who had been very successful as the leading lady in the De Wolf Hopper Company, would not be equal to the demands upon a star, found themselves pleasantly disappointed. Her success was immediate, and the Casino was filled again with the old time crowds. Miss Fox's singing and acting were received with applause, and the people went away saying all manner of kind things about the sprightly young soubrette whose debut as a star has been attended with so many pleasant circumstances.

While in the city Miss Fox's home is in one of the fine apartment houses in Fifty-ninth street, that look out upon Central Park, and there she was seen the other day and asked for a little account of her stage career. "My first appearance," she said, "I am almost ashamed to say, was in that opera which has attracted the efforts of so many amateurs, 'Pinafore.' I took the part of the 'Midshipmite' and was fairly successful, I guess. After singing for a time I came to New York where I soon secured a good engagement. For the past four years, previous to beginning with my own company, I was with De Wolf Hopper, singing leading parts in 'Wang,' 'Castles in the Air' and 'Panjandrum.' My relations were very pleasant in this company, for I always had good parts written for me, and in every way the situation was a pleasant one."

Some of the critics have been inclined to be a trifle sarcastic because of the warm commendation which De Wolf Hopper, Francis Wilson and Miss Fox have given to each other's performances, and have suggested a mutual admiration society. But, after all, isn't it very much better to see professional people who are in competition with each other, kindly rather than quarrelsome, whether their profession be clerical, theatrical or what not? But Miss Fox does not by any means confine her commendation to comic opera stars, for she speaks in terms of marked kindness of many other actors and actresses. Happening to mention Miss Maude Adams in the interview with her, Miss Fox said enthusiastically: "Isn't she lovely?" and she continued by warm praise of Miss Adams in various roles. This spontaneous expression, which was none the less kindly because deserved, shows that there is not among all the members of the theatrical profession the jealousies which some have imagined, and it shows, too, one of the reasons why Miss Fox is deservedly popular.

Miss Fox is inclined to deny that she has any of those conspicuous fads which comic opera stars are expected to possess, although she confesses to a great admiration for small dogs—the very small ones that a pint cup will almost hide, and she is especially proud of her "Momo," a little Japanese spaniel that she proudly says is very much smaller than Lillian Russell's "Koko," which is famous for littleness. "And, besides," said Miss Fox, "Momo can sing, which is an accomplishment that very few dogs possess. One day, when I was at the piano singing, Momo came up and standing beside me entered into competition, opening her mouth very wide in her first effort to sing. Sometimes she would actually strike the exact notes that I was singing. It was purely spontaneous on her part, for she had never been encouraged as a songstress, but when we discovered her accomplishment we endeavored to improve it, and now she is quite a remarkable singer. I am sorry my sister has her out for an airing or I would show you how well she can sing."

When Miss Fox appears on the stage as the breezy "Little Trooper" her coming is always a signal for applause, and her dancing, fighting, swaggering and singing are all received with demonstrations of approval. She seems especially handy with the foils and when she tells her fickle husband she can do up the trooper with whom, as a man and soldier, she has had a quarrel and is obliged to fight, he tells her to go in and win, which she does with apparent ease, swinging her sword around as if she were a pupil of the famous "Three Guardsmen." After the victory, however, she faints in true woman fashion, thus disclosing her sex to a female rival.

In personal appearance Miss Fox is decidedly interesting, and people who meet her for the first time are pretty sure to carry away an impression of something unusual. Her hair is a very light blond, and contrasted with this moonlight crown are a pair of big brown eyes that are the most striking feature of her well-rounded face. The combination of light and shadow in hair and eyes is very effective, and gives a piquancy of expression that will bring a second look from about every man who sees her. Some idea of the general effect of her eyes may be inferred from the picture which accompanies this sketch, but—you remember what Byron said about the dark-eyed Eastern girl, and will use the picture merely to assist your fancy. Her figure is pleasantly round, and its lines and the lines of her face indicate that the world has used her well, and that she is pleased with it and not discontented with her surroundings. And, in view of her success this season in the difficult role of a star, why shouldn't she be contented and smile upon the world that has smiled upon and applauded her.

LINWARD.

ARTIST WHISTLER'S IRE.

He Makes Harper & Brothers Apologize for Du Maurier's Sketch.

Mr. J. McNeil Whistler, the well-known artist, who made such a fuss because Du Maurier sketched him in "Trilby" in the character of Joe Sibley, has finally been pacified. The following apologetic letter appeared at the end of the English Edition of the October Harper's:

Aug 31, 1894.—Dear Sir: Our attention has been called to the attack made upon you by Mr. Du Maurier in the novel "Trilby" which appeared in our magazine. If we had had any knowledge of personal reference to yourself being intended, we should not have permitted the publication of such passages as could be offensive to you. As it is, we have freely made such reparation as is in our power. We have agreed to stop future sales of the March number of Harper's Magazine, and we undertake that, when the story appears in the form of a book, the March number shall be so rewritten as to omit every mention of the offensive character, and that the illustration which represents the Idle Apprentices shall be excised, and that the portraits of Joe Sibley in the general scene shall be so altered as to give no clew to your identity. Moreover, we engage to print and insert in our magazine for the month of October this letter of apology addressed to you.

Assuring you again of our sincere regret that you should have sustained the least annoyance in any publication of ours, we are, Yours respectfully,

HARPER & BROS.

J. McNeil Whistler, Esq.

The fact that the English law for libel is much stricter than ours probably accounts for the tone of the letter. Now that he has succeeded in having the objectionable matter cut out, it is to be hoped Whistler is satisfied. No doubt he will be a little disappointed that the publishers so readily deleted the part relating to him. As it is Trilby will go on with no reference to Whistler, whereas, had the Sibley sketch been left in, it would have been a continual reminder or monument, so to speak, to that artist. Although twitting him somewhat on personal peculiarities, it was not, as a whole, an ill-natured description, and it is a general opinion in art and literary circles that Whistler made entirely too much of the matter.—Philadelphia Ledger.

A News Item from the "Brightest."

Among newspaper men the New York Sun is usually regarded as the best edited American newspaper. The secret of the Sun's reputation seems to be in its treatment of subjects rather than in their importance. It has a style of expression peculiar to itself, the characteristics of which have been maintained for years. A woman fell in getting off a car the other day, and this is how the Sun told of it:

Mrs. Angelina Allen, one of the living pictures at the Imperial Music Hall, was slightly injured yesterday by falling from Broadway cable car 135. Mrs. Allen was on the way to her home in Newark, and took the car down town, intending to change at Fifteenth street. There is a curve just below Sixteenth street, and Mrs. Allen, seeing the car she wanted about to leave, rushed to the front platform and jumped off. The cable car being still in motion, she fell, striking on her side. Mrs. Allen is the young woman whose bathing suit at Asbury Park was the sensation of the place a few years ago. She was also a pioneer in the wearing of a bicycle costume with knickerbockers. She is not living with her husband.

A Snake Living in Irish Soil.

People in passing the Times office today have been attracted by the sight of a lively striped snake, two feet long in a glass jar with a perforated covering. The jar is nearly half filled with earth and his snakeship is having a lively time wriggling and burrowing in it.

The snake is an American product, but the earth is from Ireland, where, tradition says snakes cannot live since St. Patrick banished them. Whatever opinions may be held in regard to the truth of the story about the exodus of snakes from the Green Isle at the command of the patron saint, the fact is that nowhere in Ireland can a snake be found. The damp climate of the country is uncongenial to them.

Mr. Patrick N. Burke of this city read some time ago in the Times an article stating that a test had been made in New London, and the snake was unable to live on the soil. He recently visited the country of his birth, and it occurred to him to test the story of the inability of snakes to live on Irish soil. He brought with him from Galway, Ireland, the earth shown in the Times window. He has been making efforts to secure a healthy snake, and on Tuesday two boys found one in Tariffville. Mr. Burke, anxious to test the fatal effect of Irish soil on reptiles, gave the boys a dollar for their snake. He put the snake in the jar this morning.—Hartford Times.

The Milkmaids of Germany.

There's a little romance about the milkmaids of Germany. They cover miles of territory, work from 4 A. M. until 9 P. M. and make little more than a living. In imperial Berlin these trains of women, dogs, carts and milk tins abound. They come and go before the city is awake. In Dresden, Leipsic and Augsburg they enjoy more freedom, and in lazy, lovely old Nuremberg the yellow-haired, pink-cheeked dairy maids don't go home while there is a drop of white wine in the wagon. All the Empire drinks hot milk with the coffee, and so the cream is saved to make butter. The law looks after the dogs, and compels the driver to spread a carpet for the faithful steed to lie on while customers are being served.

REMARKABLE CURES

Of Recent Date.

A Statement from Ex-Mayor John Corson, Esq., of Clinton, N. J.

TO THE PUBLIC:

I acknowledge with the utmost pleasure the wonderful cure which Dr. Lighthill effected in my case.

I had been a sufferer from piles, which gave me constant pain and distress, during twenty long years, attended with frequent loss of blood and with great and painful protrusion of the pile tumors and rectum whenever my bowels moved.

I tried constantly to get relief from my sufferings, but to no purpose until Mr. Bryan, a friend of mine, who had been cured by Dr. Lighthill of the same trouble, recommended him to me, and he effected a complete and radical cure in my case also, and earned my lifelong gratitude.

JOHN CORSON.

THE CASE OF MR. PETER G. EYCK, OF BISSELL, HUNTERDON CO., N. J.

Dr. Lighthill Effects a Complete Cure Where Ten Physicians Had Failed.

TO THE SICK, SUFFERING AND AFFLICTED:

For many years past I have been afflicted with bleeding piles. Every movement of the bowels was attended with loss of blood and with intense pain which lasted for hours and sometimes all day. My condition was aggravated by a prolapse of the rectum, which greatly increased my suffering and sometimes gave me most agonizing pains.

So great was my distress and so bad my condition that I sold my farm, not being able to work it any longer. At one time the protruding pile tumors became so highly inflamed and swollen that they could not be replaced, and I had to go to bed, applying hot poultices for three months before I could get relief.

I had been under the treatment of ten different physicians, some of New York City, Easton, Washington and elsewhere, without any benefit whatever, and had given up my case as hopeless when, luckily for me, I heard of Dr. Lighthill's skill and success in such cases, and went to him for treatment, with the happy result that he effected a radical and permanent cure in less than four weeks's time; and I am glad to say that the entire treatment gave me neither pain nor distress.

I consider my cure perfectly wonderful, and so do all my friends and neighbors. I am confident that there is no case of piles which Dr. Lighthill cannot cure.

PETER G. EYCK,
Bissell, Hunterdon Co., N. J.

Dr. and Editor Morse Finds Great Curative Qualities in a Simple Remedy.

(From Westfield N. J., Leader, Sept. 5, 1894)

We believe in being fair, and if we know ourselves we are fair. The fact of the Editor of the Leader being a physician of the old school encourages some people to ask why we kick quacks and quackery. We do hate charlatans the worst way. That's a fact. But every proprietary medicine isn't a quack medicine. In some of them we believe as devoutly as we do in calomel and quinine. There, for example, is Dr. David Kennedy's Favorite Remedy. It has our faith. We know of its therapeutical value because of knowledge of its efficacy. In this laboratory it has fully approved itself as containing just those ingredients which every physician knows the materia medica to indicate for the disorders for which the remedy is prescribed. In clinical experience its further proof has not been wanting, as we have reason to know. We have no hesitancy in saying that we should prescribe the Remedy in any case where it is really indicated.

Dr. David Kennedy's Favorite Remedy has no rival as a blood builder and nerve food. It has met with unparalleled success in the treatment of all diseases of the skin, liver, kidneys and the blood. It restores the disordered liver to a healthy condition, and effectually cures the worst cases of habitual constipation. It has cured cases of Bright's Disease, erysipelas, rheumatism, dyspepsia, gravel, diabetes, bladder and urinary troubles, where all else has failed. It is a certain cure for all the diseases and weaknesses peculiar to females and affords great protection from attacks that originate in the change of life. Dr. Kennedy's Favorite Remedy is for sale by all dealers in medicine at one dollar a bottle or six bottles for five dollars; which brings a treatment within the reach of all.

DID YOU EVER

THE DAILY PRESS'S PAGE FOR WOMEN.

FAIR WOMEN'S FADS.

WHAT THE SOCIETY WOMEN OF NEW YORK ARE DEVOTED TO.

Fans, Flowers, French Verses, Pianos, Candlesticks, Languages, Photographs, Bracelets, Bowling, Dogs, and Horses are all on the List of Society's Favorites.

Miss Edith Rockefeller has a fancy for pianos. There are five in her home, 4 West Fifty-fourth street. She likes them in wood to match her boudoir, or in rosewood like the drawing-room. She plays beautifully.

Miss Pauline Whitney loves to write French poetry, and does so very well indeed. She has contributed to all the leading French periodicals, and is much amused when a French paper refers to her as "the daughter of one of the ex-Emperors of America."

Miss Gertrude Vanderbilt, while rich enough to abound in fads, really has very few. She loves flowers, though, and has them everywhere about her. The walls of her little boudoir are covered with them; and her mirrors, of which every side of the wall has one, are entwined with garlands painted upon the wall by the most celebrated artists of America.

Miss Virginia Fair has a fad for fans. She owns the largest and most expensive private collection hereabouts. They are all for use, too, and match her costumes, of which she has hundreds every year. Miss Fair did not set out with the idea of making a collection of fans, but the number has increased until she has come to have a justifiable pride in them.

Mrs. C. Oliver Iselin, who until recently was the most celebrated society girl of her State, has long had a fondness for candlesticks. She has every conceivable sort, and her tables and mantels are covered with them. There are jewelled sticks and just the plain, pretty ones that come in so many different kinds of china nowadays. Her collection would stock a bric-a-brac shop nicely with that variety of ornament.

Mrs. Frederick Gebhard, when she was Miss Lulu Morris, had a wonderful fancy for small dogs. She owned many of them, and used to get the newest importations to add to her list of pets. She named them all, too, and knew them by their own title, even as they knew her.

Helen Gould has a fad. It is for bowling. Last winter she formed a private class in bowling, which met on Monday nights at the Berkeley Ladies' Club for practice. There were only about a dozen in the class, and, unfortunately for Miss Gould, she was either ill or out of town nearly every night during the season. She hired two alleys for her friends, so that the pins could be set up in one while the sport was going on in the other. Miss Gould is strong enough to be an expert bowler. An alley recently built on her Tarrytown premises cost $10,000, and is as beautifully equipped as the bowling alley at Baltimore, George Vanderbilt's North Carolina home.

Miss Sylvia Green has a fad which is hers by inheritance. It is for money. But, unlike her mother, Mrs. Hetty Green, it is not for the making of money, but for saving it. She is constantly in fear of the poorhouse, and is afraid to spend a cent. She has three millions in her own right from her grandfather, but spends nothing. She is most agreeable to live with, being quiet, amiable and accommodating, though not so cheerful as she might be. She is not stingy to the household, but will not spend anything on herself.

Miss Consuelo Vanderbilt, the young daughter of Mrs. Willy K., has a fondness for bracelets. Mrs. Willy has brought up her family well and has not overindulged them in luxuries, but this daughter, who will make her debut in about two years, owns a very large collection of these ornaments.

Miss Anna Gould, that ever-discussed heiress, has a fad for horses. At Furlough Lodge, her brother's place in the Adirondack Mountains, she keeps a magnificent team for her own driving, and she has, besides, several saddle horses there and a stableful of young horses, yet to be broken, for she will doubtless establish a small-sized stock farm there, where there is so much room.

Miss Winnie Davis has a fad, so it is said. It is for getting her photograph taken. She has been photographed so often that she has grown to enjoy it, and several times a year she poses. The demand for her picture is very great, as in the South she is known as "the Daughter of the Confederacy," and North she has many friends.

Miss Julia Dent Grant, though not yet in society, knows a great deal about the etiquette of Austria, England and America, and speaks many languages. She now enjoys learning them, and since the day when her cultured mother insisted upon having German spoken as the language of the household she has mastered several tongues. In the Austrian court, when her father was foreign Minister, it was not an unusual thing to hear Miss Grant speaking German, French, Italian, and Spanish all in one breath, then English again, without a second's hesitation in any of the tongues.—N. Y. Sun.

In Trouble Through Buying Girls.

Two distinguished Pashas have been tried in Egypt for buying slave girls, and an intense excitement has been the outcome. There seems no doubt to foreigners that the Pashas were guilty of a breach of the slave laws, but the Court could not decide whether the law was intended to strike buyers as well as dealers, and so have, as yet, rendered no decision. The excitement arises from the fact that the Department demands the Mohammedans shall be punished for acts distinctly permitted by their "Holy Law," the high rank of the accused drawing general attention to the case.

Too Hard For Them.

Two runaway convicts took refuge in a church having an experience meeting. They listened to the stories told by several of the regenerated, until one of the fellows exclaimed in a whisper, to the other: "Come, Jim, let's get out o' this! It's a tough crowd, and no man's life's worth a copper!" And out they lit.—Boston True Flag.

Do You Know?

How many one dollar bills would it take to outweigh in the scales a twenty-dollar gold piece? Ask anybody and see how near he will come to the fact. In an intelligent company the other evening the guesses ranged all the way from twenty-five thousand to two million.

"Japan says she proposes to demolish China," said Mr. Blykins.

"She ought to have our servant girl," replied his wife wearily.—Atlanta Constitution.

THE SUN'S FASHIONS.

THE INTERESTING SEX MAKES HERSELF ATTRACTIVE.

Her Dress is Gorgeous, and Her Deeds are Fraught with Goodness, Joy and Hustle. The Latest Sleeve Outdoes Its Predecessors. The Newest Colors.

If fashions, like flowers in their respective seasons, would only blossom out each year with the same regularity of form and color what a deal of bother and anxiety would be spared the feminine mind. Yet, on the other hand, there would be woes of another kind, for if there were no changes the fashion makers would have to go out of business, so, for their advantage and our distraction, the general upheaval of all things which were fashionable, to give place for the things which are to be fashionable, must periodically disturb our peace. Once again we must put away the dainty summer finery, so lovely and enticing in the warm days of June, and seriously consider the ways and means of a winter outfit. The subject, from the standpoint of the latest sleeve, has a breadth and depth not easily reduced to the practical fitness of things, and how to make a last year's coat sleeve cover the voluminous structure which seems to be built on the extension plan is a difficult problem to solve. However, the modern sleeve has one redeeming feature in that it serves to diminish the apparent size of a large waist, so the old coat must be sacrificed on the altar of vanity, be it ever so good and comfortable.

A cheerful item in the fashion of skirts is that they are very simply trimmed, if at all, and drapery, which was so persistently prophesied last year, is rarely seen, and only of the plainest description.

A plain cloth skirt may be stylishly trimmed at the bottom with a narrow bias fold of velvet, either checked or plain, and edged on either side with fur. With this is worn a charming blouse of velvet to match the band on the skirt. A single Norfolk plait trims the front, and three jewelled studs fasten it together. The sleeves of velvet are very full, and the neck band is draped with lace which is knotted in the back, and falls in two short ends.

Certain colors are always announced from time to time as the favorites, but a glance at the new goods convinces you that all the colors, in varying shades, of course, have equal place, so there is the usual uncertainty as to choice. Brown, however, except of the tobacco shade, does not seem to be as popular as dark green, blue, black, purple, and a dark, rich red, something which is described as a "warm shade of stone color," adds another to the list.

The blouse, which has become such an indispensable article of dress, retains its popularity, and in most cases bears out the name with the extra fulness which overhangs the belt. Every sort of a fancy waist is worn, and black silk skirts, whether of the new frosted moire or satin, are consequently as desirable as ever.

A stylish model for a wool and velvet gown has a full plain skirt with three plaits in front, caught together with rosettes of the same. The balloon part of the sleeves is also of cloth, and the lower sleeve and bodice of velvet adorned with jet-spangled embroidery. The wrinkled collar and rosettes are also of velvet.—N. Y. Sun.

Analogy.

"You have heard," said the present Governor of New York to his typewriter, "the fable of the prudent blossoms, which, instead of standing obstinately against the blast, bends in modest obscurity until the storm is over?"

"Yes."

"Well, that's the kind of a flower I am."—Washington Star.

WHERE WOMEN VOTE.

THE FAIR SEX HAVE AT LEAST A FAIR SHOW IN MANY COUNTRIES.

What They Can Vote For in Great Britain, France, Russia and Other States of Europe. Their Privileges in This Country.

The countries of the world where women already have some suffrage have an area of over 10,000,000 square miles and their population over 350,000,000.

In Great Britain women vote for all elective officers except for members of Parliament.

In France the women teachers elect women members to all Boards of Education.

In Sweden women vote for all elective offices except Representatives; also, indirectly, for members of the House of Lords.

In Norway they have school suffrage.

In Ireland the women vote for the harbor boards, poor law guardians, and in Belfast for municipal officers.

In Russia women householders vote for all elective officers and on all local matters.

In Finland they vote for all elective officers.

In Austria-Hungary they vote, by proxy for all elective officers.

In Croatia and Dalmatia they have the privilege of doing so in local elections in person.

In Italy widows vote for members of Parliament.

In the Madras Presidency and the Bombay Presidency (Hindoostan) the women exercise the right of suffrage in all municipalties.

In all the countries of Russia Asia they can do so wherever a Russian colony settles. The Russians are colonizing their vast Asian possessions, and carrying with them everywhere the "mir" or self-governing village, wherein women who are heads of households are permitted to vote.

Women have municipal suffrage in Cape Colony, which rules a million square miles.

Municipal woman suffrage rules in New Zealand, and I think, at Parliamentary elections.

Iceland, in the North Atlantic, the Isle of Man (between England and Ireland), and Pitcairn Island, in the South Pacific, have full woman suffrage.

In the Dominion of Canada, women have municipal suffrage in every province and also in the Northern Territories. In Ontario they vote for all elective officers, except in the election of members of the Legislature and Parliament.

In the United States twenty-eight States and Territories have given women some form of suffrage.

School suffrage in various degrees is granted to women in Arizona, Colorado, Connecticut, Massachusetts, Michigan, Minnesota, Nebraska, New Hampshire, New Jersey, New York, North Dakota, Oregon, South Dakota, Texas, Vermont and Wisconsin.

In Arkansas and Missouri women vote, by petition, on liquor license in many cases.

In Delaware suffrage is exercised by women in several municipalities.

In Kansas they have equal suffrage with men at all municipal elections.

About 50,000 women voted in 1890. In Montana they vote on all local taxation.

In New York they can and do vote at school elections. The question of the constitutionality of the law is still undecided. They vote also in many places in this State on local improvements, such as gas and electric street lighting, paving, sewerage and municipal bonds.

In Utah, women voted until disfranchised by the "Edmunds law," when they promptly organized to demand its repeal.

In Pennsylvania a law was passed in 1889 under which women vote on local improvements by signing or refusing to sign petitions therefor.

In Wyoming women have voted on the same terms with men since 1870. The convention in 1889 to form a State Constitution unanimously inserted a provision securing them full suffrage. This Constitution was ratified by the voters at a special election by about three-fourths majority. Congress refused to require the disfranchisement of women and admitted the State July 10, 1890.

MIGHTY BELLS.

The Giant Bells at Moscow and Pekin. About Bell Making.

Bell making is one of the great industries in this country, yet how seldom we hear of it. Foreign countries recognize that our bells are superior in tone to any other make, and even the Japanese are sending orders to this country for bells. The Japanese have long been regarded as famous bell makers, but they do not hesitate to apply to American manufacturers when they find it to their advantage to do so. There is grim humor in the fact that the fire-alarm bells to be used in Tokio have been ordered of a manufacturing firm in Jersey City.

The largest bell in America is in the cathedral of Montreal, and it weighs 28,000 pounds. The bell in the public building at Philadelphia is to weigh between 20,000 and 25,000 pounds. There is a bell at Erfurt, Germany, cast in 1479, and one in Notre Dame, Paris, cast in 1680, each weighing 30,000 pounds. The great Chinese bell at Pekin weighs 120,000 pounds, is 14 feet high and 12 feet in diameter. By the way, the Chinese used to make their bells nearly square in shape. The largest bell is, of course, that in the Kremlin at Moscow. It is over 19 feet in height and measures nearly 23 feet across the mouth; its thickness at the point where the clapper would strike is 23 inches; the cost of manufacturing this noble work of human art was about $300,000.

A Dreadful Little Habit.

"Of all the dreadful habits of men," said an observer, "that of carrying a toothpick in the mouth in the street is the most dreadful. And you sometimes see this done by men who appear otherwise to be refined and thoughtful. Indeed, the chewing of a toothpick seems to be an aid to reflection and to serve in some manner as a cigar might do for a smoker; but while it might thus help to good ends, its public use is nevertheless much to be deplored."

A Startling Statement.

The Rev. Mr. J. Savage, in a letter describing things seen in Wales, copied this advertisement:

"Mr. and Mrs. Llewellyn Jones having cast-off clothing of every description, invite personal inspection.—Chicago Tribune.

COOKING IN SCHOOL.

INSTRUCTION IN HOUSEWIFERY VARIES THE MONOTONY OF BOOKS.

A Department that is Likely to Become a Feature in American Public Schools, and which Must Result in Better Prepared Food for the Rising Generation.

In these days they teach little girls in the public schools to cook as well as to spell. At least, they do it in some public schools in New York, where the practical sides of life are getting to be of equal importance with the learning of books in the eyes of principal and teachers.

A lady thus describes her visit to the school: Half a dozen little cooks, assisted by four little housekeepers, whose business it was to wash up and clear away, were bustling over the preparation of luncheon. Each little cook wore a large white cap and apron and the other twenty or so members of the class who sat around on the benches wore similar attire and kept thirty pencils and pads in operation making notes. The gas stove was lighted and the kettle set on with one pint of water to boil. On the long table stood a quart can of tomatoes, a bunch of parsley, an onion, about a quarter of a pound of butter, pepper, salt, some dried bay leaves, cloves, the regulation tubs of sugar and flour, a small stale loaf and four succulent lamb chops.

Within half an hour everything was ready, and the housekeepers had their best time setting forth the repast for every one. Half a bowl of the soup was served to each, and crispy croutons with it crunched into such delicious powder under your teeth that as soon as the little girls got home they wanted to make plenty of them for supper.

The cooks and housekeepers ate the chops, which looked deliciously appetizing, ranged regularly on their dish, with the mounds of red carrot and green cress surrounding them.

All the while the preparation and cooking were being done a chapter of questions on the choosing of supplies, the treatment of food and the first principles of cookery was being put by the principal and receiving intelligent, practical replies. Each little girl, whether handling the viands or sitting on the benches, was able to give sound reasons for her methods.

And so when the bread crusts from the croutons were chopped off and the principal asked what she should do with them one little housekeeper fetched a jar, while the whole class in chorus said they should be kept for puddings or for frying fish or cutlets. If they were fresh they would have been dried hard in the oven, but being stale they were so laid away, kept air tight and grated for use when necessary. One little girl explained that bread pudding made from sliced bread was all lumps, while made from grated crust it was like custard. All these small people are learning to understand not only how to cook food in the most economic and appetizing manner, but how to take care that not the smallest crumb goes to waste.

Poetry and Daily Life.

A great many people have an idea that the principal use of poetry is to fill up corners in the newspapers. You often hear the remark, "I never read poetry; I do not understand it." If by poetry one simply means long and serious verses, lyrics or epics, which require deep thought in order that their meaning may be puzzled out, it is probably true that a great many people care nothing about this. The great poets, such as Homer, Dante, Shakespeare, Milton, Browning, have their cloudy peaks which only the brave and daring may reach. But they have, as well, their green valleys and quiet paths, where the most simple stroll with pleasure.

In daily life, however, the verse which is most liked is generally the simple and unpretentious kind which is easily understood, and which conveys a single clear message or thought. It is surprising how often a grave man of affairs or a practical business man cuts a few verses from a paper, slips them in his pocket-book, and carries them about, now and then, in a moment of confidence, producing them and reading them to a friend with great pleasure. Such verses are usually of the ballad style, or are sweet and melodious, with a tender little home thought making music in them, like the tinkle of a brook over stones. Will Carleton's and Eugene Field's verse enjoys this kind of popularity.

The poetry which has to do with home life, with little children, with hope and faith and love, which helps those who are weary, and comforts those who are sad, and rests those who are tired, is a blessing to us all. Such verses the mother tucks into her mending-basket or slips into her Bible, or pins fast to her cushion. The little simple homely rhyme comes to her like the voice of a friend, and reminds her to be patient and helps her to be strong. This is the sweetest office of poetry.

Old-fashioned people used to learn such verses by heart, and store them in memory. It was once part of the education of all gentle bred girls to learn a great many poems, and there are dear old ladies to be found to-day who can repeat stanza after stanza by the hour. Sometimes they know all the hymns in familiar use, and lying awake at night, take great pleasure in repeating them over.

To be the poet of daily life is a very pleasant thing. To sing, as the hermit-thrush does, a vesper song, or, as the robin, a little rondeau in the morning, is to add to the happiness of the world.—Harper's Bazar.

Debs Was Flush.

At Milwaukee the other night laboring men were asked to contribute to the fund for the defence of Debs and his associates, and now comes a man who says he was an eyewitness and tells the following tale:

"A shave in a barber shop at Washington and La Salle streets Thursday cost Debs over $15. To be sure, this included a shave for Debs's associate, Howard, but that was only 15 cents. Debs was shaved. After the operation he bought cigars for the barbers all around, and then all around again. He gave the boss barber a $5 bill and told him to keep the change. The leader of the lost cause then pulled out a purse filled with dimes, nickels and cents and emptied it into the hands of the colored porter, saying he carried that especially for poor colored boys whom he might chance to meet. This was not a heavy enough expenditure in one place for the American Railway Union plutocrat, so he pulled a roll of bills out of his trousers pocket, peeled off one of a $10 denomination, and told Howard's barber and his own to buy a drink and a cigar for all the boys and then to divide the remainder between them."—Chicago Daily Tribune.

FAIR SHOPLIFTERS.

METHODS OF LARGE DRY GOODS HOUSES AGAINST THEFT.

A School Girl Detective Whose Sharp Eyes Cover the Transactions of Some of the Cleverest Female Swindlers of New York.

The scene is laid in one of New York's huge uptown dry goods stores. It is the hour of the crush. Crowds of bargain hunting women surge up and down the long stifling aisles. The cry of the sales people, the chatter of the cash girls, the noise of shuffling, hurrying feet, the hum of conversation, rising to insist upon bargains here and there—all mingled in a confused, subdued roar.

At one of the busiest counters, where are piled high rich and costly laces, holding their own against the elbowing, irritated, feverish, ceaselessly moving throng, are a pair of fashionably dressed women. Both perhaps wear diamonds, but they are not conspicuously displayed. They are quiet of demeanor; nothing by look or action would separate them, so far as the superficial view would reveal, from hundreds of others in that eddying clamorous mass.

Evidently one of the women is the purchaser, the other merely accompanying her. They consult over possible purchases. These completed, they give the direction to the saleslady. The price is high; they consult their pocketbooks and discover that they have not sufficient change about them.

"Please to send the goods C.O.D. to-morrow. It will be abundant time."

The saleswoman is pleased; she bids her agreeable customers to come again. They reply with a charming smile and are lost in the crowd. Unnoticed, after them wanders a pretty blue-eyed girl. She has been standing near them, purse in hand, at the counter, rather wistfully eyeing their purchases, wondering, no doubt, if she shall have money enough some day to do as they. Her hair is golden and hangs pendent in a plait down her neck. Her eyes are big and blue, with all the innocence of a school girl. A jaunty sailor hat caps a trim and attractive figure.

The women from the counter move toward the door. The little girl is not far behind. If you had looked closely—something you would have never though of doing—you might have seen a sharp, keen eyed young man eyeing the girl closely. If you had been an attentive observer you might have seen this innocent, blue-eyed little girl nod sharply at the two women as they pass out, then turn on her heels and go back among the crowd. Then you would have noticed that the sharp eyed young man quietly left the store with the two women. He is fashionably dressed, idly wears a cane, has doubtless been making a purchase himself. Half a block away he taps one of the women on the shoulder.

"Madam," he says, half roughly, but politely, "the woman at the lace counter would like to see you."

The women look up with astonishment. They are quite sure they have left nothing, but the young man is urgent. He suggests that they had better not make a scene. He blandly suggests that it is doubtless all a mistake, but return they must. Otherwise—an officer stands at the corner.

Seeing that there is no escape, the women return. One of them is searched in the superintendent's office. A roll of rich laces, worth probably hundreds of dollars, is found ingeniously stowed away in a rear pocket. Evidently she is an expert. She is a queen of the shoplifters, and she has run against one of the sharpest private detectives in the city. He knowing her, she not being aware of him, he has the advantage. This particular woman, Nellie Scott, of very wide and generous notoriety, is now doing time in Sing Sing. For years she had been operating against the stores, living like a woman of wealth and fashion. It is a gay life while it lasts, the work is easy, but always is the day bound to come when she will feel that tap upon the shoulder, and know that she is caught.

Just how she was discovered she probably never knew. Neither do a long line of other shoplifters that have been sent over the road from a mistaken attempt to work this store. Neither Nellie Scott nor any of the rest was ever for a moment conscious of the innocent looking but watchful eyes intently laid upon them by that pretty little girl with the sailor hat and the golden hair, bound in a school girl's plait.

Sam Wah's Dried Oysters.

The San Antonio Daily Express says: Our live and energetic laundryman, Sam Wah, helps out his daily breakfast with Chinese oysters on the shell. The shells he brought with him, but the oysters he receives from China in the half barrel, dried and smoked. As they come they somewhat resemble dried apples or peaches. But Sam places a mess over night, each in a shell full of sea water, and next morning they have all the plump and juicy attractiveness of freshly opened oysters, and, aside from a decided taste of canvassed ham, much of their flavor. Sam says that they are dried in the sun and then smoked with a seaweed that, when burning, smacks strongly of oyster soup.

Met His Match.

"No," said Mr. Haicede, "I ain't goin' to pay no ten dollars fer this suit. It's second-hand."

"Vat?" shouted Mr. Achheimer.

"I say it is second-hand. Second-hand clo'es is them that has been wore, ain't they? An' didn't I have to wear it when I tried it on?"

"Vat a pity," said Mr. Achheimer, in admiration, "vat a pity it vas dot you vas prought up to pe a farmer. You got a pizness head dot vas simbly owit of sight."—Indianapolis Journal.

BISMARCK IN LOVE.

THE GREAT CHANCELLOR'S VIGOROUS WOOING A SUCCESS.

Herr Puttkamer Feared the Young Man Was Fickle, But the Girl Was on His Side, and Together They Won. A Dramatic Love Affair.

The biography of Prince Bismarck tells an interesting story of his wooing of Fraulein Puttkamer, who became his wife. In the year 1844, the historian says while at the marriage of a friend, he met the only daughter of the rich Puttkamer family, and he wrote his sister the most enthusiastic accounts of the young lady. He declared that she was the one woman on this earth that met all the requirements; he said his case was really hopeless and unless he could make an alliance with her his life would be a total failure. He concludes his plaint with these words:

"But she does not pay the slightest attention to me, and it required genuine diplomacy for me to get her to invite me to call at her home. I do not understand her; she does not seem to care whether she sees me or not."

His sister had probably heard this description of things so often that she evidently did not attach much importance to it, and so she replied in a semi-joking strain warning him not to lose his heart irrevocably without giving the matter very serious thought.

But Bismarck was more deeply smitten than his sister supposed. He was genuinely in love, and he made no attempt to conceal the fact. This uncertainty continued for two years before Bismarck had the satisfaction of being able to congratulate himself upon any signs of encouragement, and the suspicion is created that the lady had learned of her admirer's fickle nature and resolved that if he wanted her he would have to show that he was in earnest by a good long probationary period. At the end of this period we find him travelling in the Harz Mountains in her society and with her whole family, still madly in love and resolved on bringing matters to a crisis. One day he walked into the presence of the family and without ado asked the hand of the daughter in marriage.

But the father and mother of the damsel were not so ready. They did not care to acquiesce quickly, nor did they show any disposition to make Bismarck their enemy by refusing absolutely; so they adopted the course of giving an evasive answer and delayed any definite reply until they could think it over. As a matter of fact, as it afterward transpired, Herr Puttkamer was familiar with the versatile character of Bismarck's affections and wished to learn a little more before intrusting his daughter to the young man.

But the young lady had been softened by the persistency and the audacity of the lover, and she intimidated to him that so far as she was concerned he had every reason to hope, and as this was all the encouragement a man of Bismarck's impulsive nature required, he waited for nothing else, but started at once for the Puttkamer abode, determined to push the conquest to extremities. Arriving in the neighborhood of the castle he addressed a note to Father Puttkamer notifying him of his approach and requesting an interview, and at the same time he sent word to his inamorata of his plan and suggested that she be on hand to hear it.

Herr Puttkamer replied courteously to the note and invited the suitor to call that evening and talk it over. Needless to say Bismarck was on hand long before politeness would have suggested it to be the proper hour for his visit, and he was armed with every variety of argument showing why the parents' consent should be given. Mlle. Puttkamer was also in evidence, and played her part with great tact. She sat beside her father with her eyes cast down and an occasional tear rolling over her cheek when the prospects seemed black. Finally Bismarck sprang to his feet and seizing the young lady he embraced her rapturously and declared that he would have her despite all the Puttkamers on the top of the earth.

The maiden returned the embrace with such good will that there was no room for doubt as to her sentiments, and the parents with what grace they could command surrendered and the engagement was duly announced.

They were married, and a few years later when Bismarck had taken his place among the great men of the world, he wrote to that trustful sister again:

"I say to you, as I never tire of saying to all my friends, that you cannot imagine even a little bit what my wife has made of me. To her is due all the credit. In the midst of my most serious troubles she has always maintained the dignity of her position, and encouraged me where I know that otherwise I should have faltered. She is ever the Princess, true and devoted. All I have to worry me are these trifling political affairs. The domestic concerns go smoothly, and everything is so delightful in my home that I feel I am the most fortunate of men."

This was the great Chancellor's opinion after they had been married several years, and after several children had been born to them. Within the past year Bismarck has given utterance to similar sentiments, and his married life appears to have been a perpetual honeymoon.

Wonderful Sale of "Looking Backward."

The story of "Looking Backward," which appeared about six years ago, has had a larger circulation, with one exception, than any book ever written in America. That, of course, is "Uncle Tom's Cabin." Nearly half a million copies of "Looking Backward" have been sold in English, and it has been translated into many tongues of Europe. Its author, Edward Bellamy, is still a young man. Such of those as think that the story was a mere literary effort are not acquainted with the author's history. Although born in a quiet little Massachusetts village, Mr. Bellamy was early a student of economic topics, and later during his residence in Germany explored the bibliography of socialism widely. The novel was the outcome of long preparation, and Mr. Bellamy tells us that he really hoped, although he hardly dared believe, that it would excite widespread attention.

The story has been read more widely by the working classes than perhaps any other contemporary work of fiction, and it has profoundly influenced the thought of these classes.

"I think my boy is going to be a great mathematican," said Lemonby. "He's wonderful at it. He can multiply five by three and make twenty out of it every time. I don't see how he does it, but it seems as simple as can be to him."

FANWOOD HOLDS OFF.

Not Quite Ready For Trolley Legislation.

ORDINANCE SUBMITTED AND TABLED

Definite Statement of What the Traction Company Is Ready to Do, and Petition from Many Property Owners.—Line Wanted Through the Village, Not the Park—To Apply to Plainfield Next.

As was predicted in "Pro Bono Publico's" letter in The Daily Press of yesterday, no final action in regard to the trolley question was taken by the Fanwood Township Committee at their meeting last evening. The matter was simply discussed and laid over until November 9. There was one remarkable feature about the meeting, for instead of deliberating in the presence of a blacksmith, a few of his acquaintances and a Daily Press reporter, as they usually do, the committeemen met with the room full of interested citizens.

Clerk Edward L. Hand began the meeting by reading the notice advertised in The Daily Press. The reading of the minutes was postponed until later in the evening. The traction company presented affidavits showing that the meeting had been advertised by posting and by publication in The Daily Press, and also reading seven consents from property-owners who agreed to let the road run in front of their land. These were the Central New Jersey Land and Improvement Company, owners of much land on Midway avenue; James Conneely, 900 feet on Midway; Matthias Schweinfurth, 1,700 on South avenue; Christian Peterson, 3,000 on North avenue; John J. Wahl, 200 on North; Benjamin Clark, 350 on Mountain avenue; and Lewis W. Miller, 6,000 on Mountain.

J. U. Bethell of the traction company presented an ordinance entitled "An ordnance to authorize the New York and Philadelphia Traction Company, a corporation incorporated under the laws of the State of New Jersey, to locate, construct operate and maintain a street railway through the Township of Fanwood in the county of Union and State of New Jersey." It recites that the company was organized under the act of March 14, 1893, that public notice has been given and the application duly considered by the committee. It gives permission to the company to construct, maintain and operate a single or double track railway through the township upon the following route: Beginning in the division line between the City of Plainfield and the Township of Fanwood, where Midway avenue crosses said division line and running thence in an easterly direction along Midway avenue to its connection with North avenue; thence still easterly along North avenue to the division line between the townships of Fanwood and Westfield. For the purpose of supplying light, heat and power for the cars permission is granted to erect poles and wires. If the poles are on both sides they are to be opposite. Before the overhead apparatus is erected the committee is to approve of the plans. The plant must be in operation by July 1, 1896, and if the company fails to complete it then the materials can be sold to pay expense of repairing the streets. The company must keep the road between their tracks and 18 inches on each side in good condition. All work is to be done under an officer appointed by the committee and in case of dispute a referee is to be mutually agreed upon. The company is liable for all damages and must not stop cars unnecessarily. Persons in vehicles must surrender the right of way to the cars. The company is to keep the snow between tracks and gutters level. The rails are to be of steel, T pattern, weighing 56 pounds to the yard. All work must be approved by the committee before the cars begin to run.

On motion of Mr. Miller the ordinance was laid on the table. Mr. Downer presented the following petition:

To the Honorable the Township Committee of the Township of Fanwood:

WHEREAS application has been made to your honorable body by the New York and Philadelphia Electric Railroad Company for a franchise and right of way through the Township of Fanwood, therein designating the road known as Midway avenue as the particular road over and through which they desire to have such franchise and right of way apply,

We, the undersigned, citizens and taxpayers of said township, would respectfully beg to remonstrate against the granting of such application as far as it relates to Midway avenue for the following reasons:

First—We would respectfully call your attention to the fact that as a township committee you, as representing the township, are called upon to secure the greatest good to the greatest number.

The greatest number of the inhabitants of Fanwood Township who could be in any way benefited by a new railroad through the township reside at Scotch Plains and could only be benefited by a railroad passing through that village as the residents of Fanwood Park, residing south of Midway avenue have the steam railroad practically at their doors and consequently do not require the trolley.

It would therefore, we claim, be manifestly unfair to still further add to the advantages already possessed by a minority and not possessed by a large majority, particularly as the additional advantage is not asked for nor desired by the residents of Fanwood Park.

We would respectfully suggest that any of the following routes would entirely do away with the above objections and we therefore offer them to your consideration with the request that any grant made by you will be accepted by the imperative condition that Scotch Plains must be part of the route.

Route 1.—Entering Fanwood from Westfield Township via Mountain avenue and following same to Plainfield line or to Park avenue and thence to Plainfield via the proposed extension of Second street.

Route 2.—Entering Fanwood Township from Westfield Township at a point 100 or 200 feet from Mountain avenue, thence following a line parallel or nearly so with Mountain avenue to Plainfield line or to Park avenue and thence same as Route 1.

Route 3.—Entering Fanwood Township from Westfield Township near the C. R. R. of N. J., thence parallel to said railroad along Midway avenue to Forest avenue, running past T. S. Young's, the rear of the school-house, and John Robison's, to the corner owned by Thomas Cleaver, then to Park avenue to Mountain avenue to Plainfield line.

Route 4, being the same as Route 3 as far as the newly laid out road and Westfield avenue, and thence crossing Park avenue and through the proposed extension of Second street to the Plainfield line.

(Signed)

The petition was received, filed and laid on the table. Judge Moore asked to have his name withdrawn as he had signed it understanding that it was not in any way a remonstrance against the railway. Mr. Bethell said he appreciated the petition but that it was not yet time to make a loop to Scotch Plains. The company was constructing a through line now. No application had been presented in Plainfield. He had just left a petition in Westfield and would apply to Plainfield at the next Council meeting.

A. D. Shepard asked if the public would be given an opportunity to talk at the meeting when the ordinance was acted on. President Terry said due notice would be given so that all could attend. The regular order of business having been resumed the minutes were read and the treasurer reported as follows:

Balance Oct. 1	$271.94
Delinquent taxes received	15.40
Received from note	492.16
Total	$779.50
Paid out	336.72
Balance	$442.78

The Baptist Church trustees asked to have the gutters in front of its property attended to and the lamp near the corner of Park and Mountain avenues moved to the corner. This was referred to Mr Miller with power. The committee then adjourned.

Netherwood's Postal Change.

Ex-Postmaster Charles J. Noel of Netherwood has been notified by the Department to turn over the postal property to Postmaster Hetfield of Plainfield. Six boxes are to be established from Coles's Hill to the Shattle residence, covering all the settled territory. Nov. 1 Letter-Carrier Demarest will begin the Netherwood circuit, mounted, giving two deliveries a day. His place in Plainfield will be filled by Substitute Sharp, and Mr. Hetfield will then have only one substitute left available for temporary vacancies.

Judgment For Collision.

Justice Nash this morning gave Peter Robinson a judgment for $5.50 and $3 65 costs against William Henry Rogers of Washingtonville. W. S. Angleman was the plaintiff's counsel.

Robinson sued for damages to his dirt wagon in a collision with Rogers's farm-wagon August 14 last. The accident occurred at the corner of Front street and Plainfield avenue and was caused by both drivers' trying to go the same way in getting clear of a trolley car. The pole on Rogers's wagon broke a rear wheel on Robinson's.

Bowling Consolidation.

H. C. VanEmburgh will represent Plainfield and the New Jersey Central Bowling League at the bowling conference in the Elizabeth Journal office next Thursday night, when the Central and Journal leagues are likely to be consolidated.

Nimble Work.

George W. Dodge, one of the members of the new North avenue firm of Kilbride & Lodge, cigar manufacturers, yesterday made 800 hand-made cigars in 12 hours. Mr. Lodge will wager $100 that it can't be beaten by any man in Plainfield.

EARLY INTELLIGENCE.

—L. H. Apgar is having great success at his new cash meat market, 103 Somerset street. His prices are low, and his stock is faultless.

—An interesting story, and one that it profiteth to read, is Lederer's ad in The Press today. And the interior of the store tells a bigger and better story yet.

—Those who are to take part in the entertainment to be given by the Woman's Relief Corps had another rehearsal at the home of Mrs. Walter Walker last evening.

—In addition to their full line of meats, poultry, sausage, etc., the Plainfield Packing House have just received some Philadelphia scrapple which they are selling at 12 cents a pound.

—Boehm's big bargains bring big business. He has much information of value to those wanting to save money on needful purchases, in today's Press. And he will have more to say, Tuesday.

—To make a cake that can't be beat and a batter that can't be better you need the champion cake beater and batter dropper advertised by the Franklin Mfg. Co. of 95 St. Marks place, New York.

—The watch lost by Coal-Merchant Powers was found and restored to him by Hatter U. B. Crane. The $10 reward offered by Mr. Powers through The Daily Press was declined by honest Mr. Crane.

—The grassy bank on East Front street opposite Mrs. Myers's home is blue with violets. Plainfield's perennial bloom arouses the astonishment of an English visitor, who says that he never before saw violets except in the Spring.

—The Scott Stamp & Coin Co., Limited, have established an agency at Harper's, 411 Park avenue, where a large assortment of sheets of postage stamps, sets of stamps, stamp albums, stamp hinges, coats of arms, flags, pictures of rulers, packets of stamps, catalogues, etc., etc, can always be found at lowest market prices.

Children Cry for Pitcher's Castoria.

When Baby was sick, we gave her Castoria,
When she was a Child, she cried for Castoria,
When she became Miss, she clung to Castoria,
When she had Children, she gave them Castoria.

GREAT SCOTT.

HE GETS OFFICIAL RECOGNITION OF HIS FAMOUS RIDE.

Records Smashed for Various Distances—Cycling Authorities Crown Him With Distinction.

Monte Scott's great ride October 12 was greater than he thought it was. He realized when he finished that he had taken the 25-mile world's record, but it was not till yesterday that he knew that he and the Crescents and the Plainfield-Fanwood Scotch Plains course held the 5, 10, 15 and 20-mile records besides the quarter century time.

His notification came from H. P. Walden of the Chicago Cycle Club and the Century Road Club, the authority off the track, and showed that:

Monte's 5 miles in 12:55 beat Barnett's 12:45.
Monte's 10 miles in 26:07 2-5 beat Bettner's 27:17 4-5.
Monte's 15 miles in 39:20 2-5 beat Barnett's 42:40.
Monte's 20 miles in 52:51 beat Barnett's 57:12.
Monte's 25 miles in 1:05:23 4-5 beat Hughes's 1:09:27.

As The Press stated after the race Monte had an idea that he had taken the 15 and 20 miles marks too, but he was n't expecting anything like the award of the whole five records. Better time has been claimed, but the claims were not recognized because of doubt as to the correctness of the time. The current issue of The Wheel of New York intimates that zealous riders think there was fraud October 12 as the officials were Plainfielders, but every one of the men who had any thing to do with the race are ready to swear the figures right. Then Engineer Dunham testifies to the survey of the course and nothing is left uncertain.

The news of the decisions was great news for Plainfield with its love for Monte and its pride in Plainfield roads, and for W. H. Rogers who thinks of the part his Spalding played, and for Manager Teel who has been with Monte on all the prize winning trips of the season. Then Monte and Monte's mother and Monte's brother Henry all felt happy when Mr. Walden's letter came. And the crowds who looked in Doane's window today and saw the new picture of Monte and the statement of his five records all had nice things to say about Plainfield's favorite.

MR. REINHART INDICTED.

United States Grand Jury Finds True Bills on the Rebate Charges.

CHICAGO, Oct. 19.—Six indictments were returned today by the Federal Grand Jury in connection with the investigation which has been conducted on behalf of the Inter-State Commerce Commission. The names of the indicted persons were withheld by the attorneys for the Government and the Commission, as the warrants for their arrest will not be placed in the hands of the United States Marshal until tomorrow, and it was feared that three of them, who are not as prominent as the others, might elude arrest by leaving the city. The names of the three most prominent men indicted are known. They are Joseph W. Reinhart of Netherwood, ex-President and ex-receiver of the Santa Fe Railroad; John A. Hanley, ex-traffic manager of the Santa Fe; Nelson Morris, president of the Nelson Morris Company, shippers and packers of meat at the Union Stock Yards.

They are charged with violating the Inter-State Commerce law by giving rebates to shippers over the lines of the Santa Fe system.

CONVENTION DELEGATES.

North Plainfield Democrats Choose Their Representatives.

The primary meetings to elect delegates to attend the Somerset County Democratic Convention to be held in Somerville next Monday, was held in the school-house last night.

In the First District John A. Thickstun was elected chairman, and D. J. Carney secretary. The following were elected as delegates: D. J. Carney, J. B. Neuman and Hiram Woodland.

In the Second District E. C. Morse was elected chairman and Bert Bodine secretary. Warren Townley, Geo. Demarest and Levi C. Kline, were elected delegates.

THE FAIR MANAGERS TALK.

They Say Their Policy Is to Patronize Local Industry.

From the inception of the Y. M. C. A fair, it has been the purpose of the management to cooperate with the citizens and salesmen of the city, and to influence the purchase of everything used at the fair from Plainfield business houses. A special point has been made with the managers also, that in case of deficiencies in stocking the booths with donations, commissioned articles shall be purchased in our own city.

An Important Change.

Edward White announces in his ad today the closing out of his coat department, and he is going to sell every coat in the house at cost and below. There are 500 garments for women and children, all of the latest style, to be sacrificed for what they will bring. This opportunity all who want a Winter coat should take advantage of, as they will certainly save money.

LONG STRING of diseases and derangements have their origin in torpor of the liver. Deranged appetite, constipation, headache, sour stomach, gassy belchings, indigestion, or dyspepsia, are due to sluggish liver.

MR. JOHN A. DEBARY, U. S. Inspector of Immigration at Buffalo, N. Y., writes as follows:

"From early childhood I suffered from a sluggish liver. Doctors' prescriptions and patent medicines afforded only temporary relief. I tried Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets, taking three at night and two after dinner every day for two weeks and then one "Pellet" every day for two months. I have in six months increased in solid flesh, twenty-six pounds. I am in better health than I have known since childhood. Drowsiness and unpleasant feelings after meals have completely disappeared. Respectfully yours,

John A. DeBary
U. S. Inspector of Immigration.

REPUBLICANS REJOICE.

Glad They Have Such a Jolly Good Speaker.

IN LOVE WITH ROSWELL G. HORR.

His Stories Afford Them Rare Entertainment, and They Say He Beats the Circus for Fun—If He Were Only a Candidate, What a Run He'd Make!

The Republican town of Plainfield had a good Republican jollification last night, and was just as happy over it as though election day was past and the entire Republican ticket was elected.

The campaign managers got out the band, and lively airs were played in front of Music Hall. They got a crowd into the theatre, and everyone was "glad he come". For every man likes a good time, and this Republican mass-meeting was a jolly good thing all through.

On the stage was an eminently aristocratic gathering. In the audience were intelligent Republican voters, intelligent Democratic voters, worthy Plainfielders, worthy North Plainfielders. The fair sex was finely represented; and the youth of the town, voters in embryo, joined with their elders in appreciation of the free entertainment.

When the band had come indoors and subsided for awhile in the orchestra pit, men of distinction in the party filed upon the stage, winning varying applause. Mayor Alexander Gilbert elicited first hand-clapping, and ex-Congressman Roswell G. Horr won the loudest, this being a public welcome to Plainfield citizenship of the distinguished campaign jokesman.

Evidently feeling, in the height of their good humor, that they had no unsatisfied wishes left to pray for, the committee omitted the customary services of a chaplain or clergyman; and as Chairman of the City Republican Executive Committee ex-Judge William B. Codington twinkled his eyes, called the meeting to order, and announced as Chairman "our esteemed fellow-townsman and Mayor".

Mr. Gilbert bowed, had the band play, and proceeded to preside with his accustomed grace and dignity The pre-arranged list of officers was announced, as follows:

Vice-presidents — L V F Randolph, William Bockwell, Lemuel W Serrell, Clarence E Bond, Fred C Lounsbury, James T Closson, William Westphal, J Fred MacDonald, Edward F Maynard, Walter Scott, Abram Angleman, John Finlay, Fintin Hibbitts, William J Douglass, Mayor H E Needham, S A Ginns, Charles Place, Henry E Bowen, Charles W McCutchen, Leander N Lovell, Peter A Emmons, Hon John Ulrich, Augustus D Shepard, I W Rushmore, George Kyte, Samuel Q Lawson, Charles J Fisk, John W Murray, Harry M Stockton, William Klein.

Secretaries—Roger F. Murray, H N Spencer.

Some of these were absent; some sat on the platform, making a fine-looking body of representative citizens, over whom radiated the benign and well-groomed smile of John Kean, Jr., who was present with an eye on Congressional candidate Charles N. Fowler.

Mayor Gilbert's brief remarks were accorded respectful attention; and Mr. Fowler, a prepossessing man with square features, made a speech which was enthusiastically applauded. But not till Mr. Horr got up and wagged his sandy chin whiskers did the crowd express its full measure of delight.

Mr. Horr made Republican capital such as a man of his ability is able to, in argument; and tickled the people with his anecdotes. His exhaustless fund of fun kept the audience laughing and applauding, and not till 10 o'clock had passed did the jollification cease.

Leaving the hall in high good spirits, the crowd discussed Roswell G. Horr all the way home. He was better than a circus—said the people, and in the blaze of his personal popularity as an entertainer the Republican party and its candidates dropped out of sight.

There was much handshaking, congratulation and good fellowship, all around. D. W. Littell introduced John J. Kenney to John Kean, Jr., as a Democrat.

"We've met before,"—said the Plainfield John—"and I do n't know as I care to be introduced as that."

George DeMeza said it reminded him of Peter denying his Lord.

James E. Martine, one of the respectful observers of what went on, walked briskly homeward, smiling.

Metropolitan Near at Home.

The elegant new theatre, Drake's Opera House, Elizabeth, is built, equipped and conducted entirely on metropolitan lines. The country's leading stars are playing there to large houses, and Plainfielders wishing to enjoy a thoroughly New York production near at home are invited by Manager Drake to avail themselves of this opportunity.

The attraction next Monday night will be Robson Crane the great, in The Henrietta.

Inviting Their Friends.

John Hand Camp, Sons of Veterans, has decided to invite the other camps of the vicinity, and Division Commander Pollitt and staff of Paterson, to their fair. The Independent Fife and Drum Corps and the Plainfield Cornet Band will be invited to attend during the week.

An Electric Class.

A public meeting presided over by Mr. Cahoone and addressed by Mr. Trevell of the High School and J. Allan Hornsby of the National School of Electricity, will be held in the Y. M. C. A. rooms next Tuesday evening to organize a class in electricity.

The Short and Long of It.

The days are now getting to be like the victims of hard-times—awfully "short". To the person with that unaccountable headache", however, they are too long, and will continue to be until he realizes that some weakness of the eye is the cause of that headache, and goes to Collier's 3 Park avenue to learn the proper treatment of the same.

THE CLAN-NA-GAEL OATH.

This Correspondent Thinks "What Is Sauce for the Goose Is Sauce for the Gander".

TO THE EDITOR OF THE DAILY PRESS: As you published in last evening's edition a letter from Rev. Father Murphy, seemingly unprejudiced and unbiased, containing an oath purporting to belong to the A. P. A., may I not ask you to kindly print today the oath of the notorious Clan-na-Gael society, a copy of which I enclose? In the words of the reverend father, "By so doing, you will give your readers an opportunity of deciding for themselves, on the merits" of this Irish, non-American society, and to answer the question "If what is sauce for the goose is not good sauce for the gander."

Sincerely yours,
AMERICAN.

Plainfield, N. J., Oct. 20, 1894.

(From The Boston Citizen.)

The trial of the suspected murderer of Dr. Cronin, in Chicago, brought out the facts in regard to the Clan-na-Gael. The following is the oath taken by the members of this Irish-Catholic organization:

"I (name in full) do solemnly swear in the presence of Almighty God, that I will labor while life is left to me to establish and defend a Republican form of government in Ireland; that I will keep secret the name, and everything connected with this Irish brotherhood, from all not entitled to know such secrets; that I will obey and comply with the constitution and laws of the same, whatever they may be; that I will faithfully preserve the funds of this order for the cause of Irish revolution alone as specified in the constitution; that I will deem it my special duty and mission to promote and foster sentiments of union, brotherly love, and nationality among all Irish-Catholics; that I will not permit the nomination in any caucus, or convention, of a person not pledged to the principles of this society; I will always give a member of this brotherhood preference in all matters of business, and will vote and work only for Irishmen for political office. (!) I take this obligation without any mental reservation, holding the same forever binding upon me, and that any violation thereof or desertation of my duty to the brotherhood, is infamous, and merits the severest punishment, so help me God."

Mr. Editor, again permit me to ask through the columns of The Press, "which shines for all", if what is sauce for the goose is not pretty good sauce for the gander. The above society, and kindred organizations, are responsible for the presence of the A. P. A. AMERICAN.

Citizens Organized Aid.

The public meeting of this association, to be held in Vincent Chapel (in the rear of the Methodist Church) next Monday evening, Oct. 22, at 8, will be a most interesting occasion. Plainfield people will be told how a good work among the poor has been done, and will have the further privilege of an address by Dr. Charlton T. Lewis of New York, than whom no one living is better informed regarding modern methods of philanthropy. The general public will be welcomed without charge.

Stumbling-Holes Should Be Patched

Mrs. J. W. A Bauersachs, wife of the fleet letter-carrier, is slowly recovering the use of her hand which was lamed by a fall on a broken board walk in the borough.

A NOBLE GIFT

PLACED IN A DAUGHTER'S HANDS

In Order That a Life's Work May Be Perpetuated.

[SPECIAL TO OUR LADY READERS.]

It was an eventful day.

One of the noblest women of the age felt the weight of years upon her.

Her whole life had been given to one grand work, and her name was known throughout the civilized world.

Before her was a younger woman, and they were seated in the great "record room," where were stored many women's stories of sorrow and joy.

Letters by the thousands, together with great books of record, containing the important points of advice and treatment in special cases, were all about them.

The elder woman turned over the leaves and read:—

"I was sorely afflicted with chronic inflammation of the womb . . . . I am now well."

Turning over another page she read:—

"They said I was consumptive, and sent me away . . . . But you opened my eyes to the truth, and through you I am well."

Another page and:—

". . . Your remedy came to me with hope, then the truth dawned upon me. You saved my life, and I bless you continually."

Then the book was closed and placed in the hands of the younger woman.

"These are the records of my victories over the peculiar diseases of women. They give the history of each case, and how it was treated.

"I am growing old. Some day I must give up the effort, and I bequeath to you my life work for the physical salvation of women. Carry it forward that all may be cured."

The elder woman was Lydia E. Pinkham. The younger was her daughter, Mrs. Charles H. Pinkham, the one woman fully equipped to carry out the requirements of this noble legacy, not only by natural endowments, but from her knowledge through constant study and years of experience in assisting her mother in her voluminous correspondence and personal treatment of woman's diseases.

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound will redeem women from the fearful consequences of all diseases of the womb. All druggists have it for you.

So It Goes.

One feature of our business that causes us the best sort of satisfaction is the way people who get our prices and then shop around and finally come back and buy of us. It's only evidence that we are selling goods less than the other fellows.

TRY THESE.

We have decided to close out our Coat Department, as we want the room for other departments, and to close them out quick, we will sell every coat at cost and in many cases much less. Every coat must go.

A RIGHT TO RICHES.

BESSEMER'S INVENTION AND ITS INCALCULABLE BENEFITS.

The Hon. A. S. Hewitt Says It is Easier For a Tramp to Get a Living in the World To-day Than for an Honest Man One Hundred Years Ago.

If people were not allowed to get the advantage which comes to prosperity from growth of population, population would go somewhere else where the operation of its growth would be advantageous to the people. The first principle of the Constitution of the United States is the right of a man to control his own actions subject only to his not interfering with the rights of other men to control their own actions. Now what is the first right of an individual?

It is to work in any direction to which he may see fit to direct his energies, and if he works he works for the purpose of producing something, and that something is property. Therefore, the essence of individual liberty is the right to property. Now, the right to have property involves and requires the right to organize for the protection of property, and hence association both of employers and of those who are recipients of wages. But the right to associate for the protection of property does not give the right to interfere with those who do not choose to associate themselves for that purpose. This principle is absolutely embedded in the Constitution of the United States.

During the last twenty years there has been a disposition on the part of public men to overlook this fundamental principle and to yield to clamor.

This is the golden age of mankind. Don't be misled by the fact that there is misery and suffering in the world. There is; but it is easier for a tramp to get a living in this world to-day than it was a hundred years ago for an honest man.

ABRAM S. HEWITT.

We all know about the Bessemer invention of steel. It was made in 1855 by a student in his laboratory. He propounded his idea to the world, but it took fifteen years before it was successfully put in operation. I know Mr. Bessemer very well. He is a modest man who never sought to make a fortune, but he has taken the rewards of his great invention, and he told me the last time I saw him in London that he had got out of his invention £2,000,000—nearly $10,000,000. The contribution which he made to the world by that invention, in the saving it has effected in the ordinary operations of society is incalculable. If I were to say we were saving $1,000,000,000 a year in this country alone as the result of his invention applied to every branch of industry. Taking the world together, the saving effected by that invention is greater than the total value of all the movable capital of the world one hundred years ago.

One man, by a single invention, has contributed to the aggregate wealth of the world more value than existed fifty years before his birth. Now he has got ten millions of dollars. It is a great sum. He will leave it to his children who have done nothing, have contributed nothing, to the acquisition of this money. Whom has he robbed? Whom will his children rob? Who would be the gainer if he had never received one penny for his great discovery? How much would the distribution of his $10,000,000 over the face of society add to the fortune of any single individual, and how much has invention added to the fortunes of all mankind?

Calling names will do no good. I see no method of overcoming the evils which threaten us but to instruct the young in the principles of government.

If we were to undermine the security of property, we would take away from the young the incentive which success alone offers to them for a life of industry, of enterprise and of honesty.

ABRAM S. HEWITT.

DRESS REFORM MOVING EAST.

Kansas Women Will Wear the Denver Trousers Costume.

From Denver the dress reformers have made a step forward (or is it, rather, backward?) to the East. The women of Topeka, Kan., have adopted their sisters' ideas and have entered into an agreement, soon to be reduced to writing, to appear in the new costume after the elections in November. They fear to adopt it before, lest it have a bad effect on the vote for women suffrage.

The new costume consists of Turkish trousers, which are met at the knee by leggins of the same material. Over these falls a full skirt, reaching to the fold of the trousers. A bodice, tight or loose, as the wearer may elect, completes the dress. This would be sufficiently remarkable on any woman, but as one of the reformers, by her own statement, is five feet nine and wears No. 7 shoes, the effect will probably be striking, and all credit is due to the woman who has so entirely the courage of her convictions as Dr. Haviland. Neither is the effect likely to be limited in scope, as the women propose to divide the day into two or three watches, that some may be on the street at all proper hours.

With a Proviso.

A certain judge, who is blessed with a tremendous head of hair, which is generally in a state of wild disorder, was questioning a youthful witness to make sure that he comprehended the character and importance of the oath he was about to take.

"Boy," he said, with the severest and most magisterial manner, "do you feel sure that you could identify me after six months? Now be careful. Think before you speak."

"Well, your Honor," replied the boy, after a prolonged survey of the Judge's portly figure and rugged countenance, "I ain't sure, but I think I could if you wasn't to comb your hair!"—Philadelphia Record.

THE POET-PHYSICIAN.

Pleasant Characteristics of the Late Dr. Oliver Wendell Holmes.

The death of Oliver Wendell Holmes, oftentimes called America's "Grand Old Man," leaves Gladstone, England's "Grand Old Man," the last of that little group of men who made their names famous and who came into the world in 1809. The others have passed away—Tennyson, Darwin, Lincoln and Edgar Allan Poe. Holmes joins them, and Gladstone is "the last leaf upon the tree."

Perhaps none of the American authors with whom he was contemporary and whom he outlived—Hawthorne, Longfellow, Emerson, Lowell and Whittier—were so largely read or so thoroughly enjoyed as was Holmes. His fund of knowledge, his philosophy, versatility and sparkle will give him a niche high up in that list when history comes to fix accurately his relative place.

The last words which he dedicated to the public, on the occasion of the celebration of his eighty-fifth birthday, are almost prophetic in their character. He was in excellent health at that time, yet he said:

"After four score years, the encroachments of time make themselves felt with rapidly increasing progress. The twelfth septennial period has always seemed to me one of the natural boundaries of life. One who has lived to complete his eighty-fourth year has had his full share even of an old man's allowance. Whatever is granted over that is a prodigal indulgence on the part of nature."

DR. OLIVER WENDELL HOLMES.

He always continued to make medicine his profession, but early made literature his diversion, and as a poet and author became known to the people. At college he became the editor of the college magazine, and at the age of 21, the year after his graduation, the agitation over the announcement of the intended destruction of the old war frigate Constitution began and he wrote the well-known poem "Old Ironsides," which was published in the Boston Advertiser. He became famous at once. He had struck a popular note, and the tide of public opinion set strongly against the destruction of the vessel.

In 1857, when the Atlantic Monthly was started, Lowell asked Dr. Holmes to contribute to it. So began the "Autocrat at the Breakfast Table" essays, which obtained immediate popularity, and the success of the magazine was assured.

Dr. Holmes wrote forty-two works on medical subjects and lived to see many of his early ideas of medicine, which at first met with condemnation, accepted by the leading physicians of the world. Speaking of this recently Dr. Holmes recalled the storm of indignation which was raised by his famous epigram that if all the medicine in the world were thrown into the sea it would be all the better for mankind—and all the worse for the fishes. And then he laughed quietly as he remarked that now most of the profession practically agreed with him.

Mature in mind in early years, Dr. Holmes in age was young in thoughts. More than thirty years ago at a class gathering he said:

"Has there any old fellow got mixed with the boys?
If there has, take him out without making a noise.
Hang the almanac's cheat and the catalogue's spite!
Old time is a liar! We're twenty to-night."

And more than forty years ago he said to young men:

Be firm—one constant element in luck
Is genuine, solid, old Teutonic pluck.
Leave what you've done for what you have to do;
Don't be "constant," but be simply true.

When lectures were popular, forty years ago, Dr. Holmes was in demand on the platform and was ever full of philosophy and fun. Lowell said this of him:

"There is Holmes, who is matchless among you for wit,
A Leyden jar always full charged, from which flit the electrical tingles of hit for hit."

Among Dr. Holmes's works are memoirs of John Lothrop Motley and Ralph Waldo Emerson, "A Mortal Antipathy," "One Hundred Days in Europe," and in poetry: "Urania," "Astræa; the Balance of Illusions," "Songs in Many Keys," and "The Iron Gate." Although "The Chambered Nautilus" was the Doctor's favorite poem, "The Voiceless" and "Sun and Shadow" are ranked with it by the public. "The Wonderful One-hoss Shay" is known to everyone.

A Yarn of Two Schooners.

They were spinning yarns in the Barge Office yesterday. "I remember that a long while ago there were built in Calais at the same time two sister schooners," said Capt. Dimmock. "They were two-masters and just alike, both handsome vessels for that day. One of them was named the July Fourth and the other the Fourth of July. They both loaded with lumber and sailed out of Calais the same day, bound for the same port. They had not been out many days when, in a thick fog, they came into collision. The Fourth of July was smashed to pieces and lost. The July Fourth survived and is doing business along the coast yet. I see her occasionally."

The Captain's Heteroscopic Eyes.

An aged sea Captain, whose home is in this city, is troubled with a peculiarity of vision, which is common to all skippers and ship's officers of high rank who have had long experience on the sea. In this particular instance the Captain complains that through long use of the telescope, the quadrant and other instruments used in making calculations at sea, the sight has been drawn from the left eye into the one which peers so eagerly through the instruments. He says he can discern objects at an enormous distance with his right eye, but is scarcely able to read with his left.—Philadelphia Record.

Making a Good Matter Worse.

"Forgive me," he pleaded contritely, "I didn't mean to kiss you, but the impulse was irresistible."

"Forgive you!" she snapped. "Never while I live! A girl may forgive a man for kissing her, but never for apologizing afterward."—Cincinnati Tribune.

NOT A VALE OF WOE

PHILOSOPHY OF GOOD FEELING AS DEPICTED BY MR. DEPEW.

Busy Cheerfulness and Cheerful Business and the Helpful Lessons Deduced For Depressed Mankind, Essential to Happiness.

Mr. Depew's fellow-citizens always give him a hearty welcome upon his annual return from Europe, and they have good reasons to do so, for he invariably comes back with a budget of facts and reflections gathered from familiar intercourse with men worth knowing and acute observation of events at home and abroad from an unobstructed point of view. Experience has made him aware that a multitude of newspaper readers expect him to distribute his diversified store of information and philosophy for their benefit, and so he surrenders at discretion to the reporters and cheerfully submits to their exactions. It is to his credit as well as theirs that they come remarkably near to doing him justice, and his animated and instructive discourse is one of the pleasures and advantages of the early autumn.

Mr. Depew gives sound advice to men who carry a heavy load of responsibility year after year, that they should shift it on other shoulders at not infrequent intervals, for the salvation of their own minds and bodies, and therefore for the promotion of the interests they serve; and doubtless they would, all be glad to take the agreeable medicine which he prescribes, if they could prevail upon themselves to believe that such relaxation was practicable. But too many of them never get further than to make a plan which seems impossibly delightful, and the only warning that they are willing to take is the warning that comes too late. Mr. Depew is a teaching example of the wisdom of learning a lesson from the experience of others and applying it in such a manner as to avoid their melancholy fate. He was doubtless blessed with an original endowment of buoyancy, but there is great merit in cultivating a temperament which it was a boon to inherit. Through many years of extraordinary activity, and under the pressure of innumerable demands upon his time and strength not unmixed with private sorrows, he has preserved for his own inspiration and diffused for solace and support of others a joyous faith in the supremacy of good and the rationality of cheerfulness.

There is much that tends to depression of spirits in events of the time and the relations of society; there are many who think themselves at liberty to deepen the gloom by forebodings and a melancholy course of life, and not a few who stoop to inculcate the detestable doctrine that whatever is is wrong and suicide an honorable refuge for the despairing. It is worth a great deal to have among us a man whose eminent place in the community commands attention to his sanguine philosophy, and whose gifts and graces commend it to general admiration and acceptance.—N. Y. Tribune.

COL. JOHN A. COCKERILL.

An Able Editor and a Brilliant and Forceful Writer.

In the last week of September, Col. John A. Cockerill, Editor of the Morning Advertiser and the Commercial Advertiser, sent his resignation to the proprietors and retired from the editorial management of the two papers. In explanation he said that he had retired because he did not agree with the business management regarding some of the methods lately adopted, but he was unwilling to make any statement of the differences. He had made it a rule not to remain in a place which was not entirely congenial to him, he said, and that was all that need be said about his retirement. While he expected to continue in newspaper work, he said he had no immediate plans about which he cared to speak.

COL. JOHN A. COCKERILL.

Col. Cockerill is one of the most brainy and forceful of the New York editors, and his writings are marked by a brilliancy of diction and a clearness of thought that makes them always readable and effective. He came to the metropolis with Joseph Pulitzer, and was the managing editor of the World during the years when it was built from weakness into opulent strength. His vigorous editorials, and his skillful judgment regarding news, were a potent factor in the paper's success, and it was not a fortunate day for it when the conditions became such that he could not remain with it. It is understood that his salary on the World was fifteen thousand dollars a year; but it was not enough to make him remain when the conditions became uncongenial.

Airs His Linen in the Clouds.

Ex-State Senator Cyrus Flaxtogen, of Concord, N. H., has a huge kite which he keeps flying whenever the wind permits, and it is strong enough to support all the linen of the ex-Senator's bed. When the kite is flying the linen is sent up on rings, and is aired at the height of a quarter of a mile for several hours. The old gentleman says it is a sure preventative of rheumatism.

McKINLEY IN THE SOUTH.

The Ohio Governor Given a Grand Ovation En Route.

Chattanooga, Tenn., Oct. 20.—Gov. McKinley made a flying visit through Kentucky and Tennessee, his special leaving Cincinnati at 11:30 and reaching Chattanooga, 340 miles distant, at 9 o'clock. For the greater part of the distance the special made a speed of sixty miles an hour over the mountains. At Chattanooga the special car was attached to the Queen and Crescent flyer and will reach New Orleans this afternoon. The Louisiana people were in waiting at Lexington, Ky., when the special arrived and the governor was welcomed by Mayor Duncan, a life-long democrat, and editor Sam J. Roberts, of the Kentucky Leader.

In responding, Gov. McKinley alluded to the fact that this was the first time he had ever addressed a Kentucky audience, and continued: "We like Lexington because it is the home of the great American statesman who was foremost in leading the doctrine of American protection. You have in your keeping his ashes (pointing to the statue of Henry Clay in the distance) but all of us have in keeping his name and fame and the principles to which he devoted his life are nearer and closer to-day to the American people than ever before." (Great applause).

At High Bridge, as the train swept by, 200 colored laborers from the stone quarry lined up on the west side of the track and gave three cheers, at the same time discharging mining torpedos and hoisting the American flag. At Somerset the crowd gave three cheers "for the next president," and James Denton, the only Kentucky delegate to the last national republican convention that voted for McKinley for president said a word of greeting. There were cheering crowds at other stations in Kentucky and Tennessee, but no stops were made. Six or seven thousand people were in waiting at Chattanooga and the governor was escorted to a platform near the depot from which he spoke for ten minutes. He was vociferously applauded.

MOTHERS, Do You Know that Paregoric, Bateman's Drops, Godfrey's Cordial, many so-called Soothing Syrups, and most remedies for children are composed of opium or morphine?
Do You Know that opium and morphine are stupefying narcotic poisons?
Do You Know that in most countries druggists are not permitted to sell narcotics without labeling them poisons?
Do You Know that you should not permit any medicine to be given your child unless you or your physician know of what it is composed?
Do You Know that Castoria is a purely vegetable preparation, and that a list of its ingredients is published with every bottle?
Do You Know that Castoria is the prescription of the famous Dr. Samuel Pitcher. That it has been in use for nearly thirty years, and that more Castoria is now sold than of all other remedies for children combined?
Do You Know that the Patent Office Department of the United States, and of other countries, have issued exclusive right to Dr. Pitcher and his assigns to use the word "Castoria" and its formula, and that to imitate them is a state prison offense?
Do You Know that one of the reasons for granting this government protection was because Castoria had been proven to be absolutely harmless?
Do You Know that 35 average doses of Castoria are furnished for 35 cents, or one cent a dose?
Do You Know that when possessed of this perfect preparation, your children may be kept well, and that you may have unbroken rest?
Well, these things are worth knowing. They are facts.

TREASURER OF NEW YORK STATE

He Gives More Evidence of the Unequalled Worth of Paine's Celery Compound.

Mr. Colvin Had Suffered from a Nervous Complaint with which Many Are Afflicted--He Tried the Remedy That Makes People Well, and His Experience was Like That of Thousands of Others.

Mr. Colvin, the Treasurer of New York state, holds the highest position of purely financial responsibility to which it is possible for a citizen of this country to be elected.

In many respects the office is second only to that of the great United States official whose secretary himself has just publicly recommended Paine's celery compound.

Now there comes a letter of the same character from Treasurer Colvin.

In the history of the most remarkable remedy this country has yet seen, the fact that the ablest and most influential persons in the country and the most progressive physicians, were the first to perceive the extraordinary worth of Paine's celery compound, is very significant.

The fact that today this remedy is more widely recommended by grateful people in every walk of life, than all the other remedies in the world together is not astonishing. It makes people well.

There have appeared recently published testimonials of Mr. Carlisle's private secretary, of ex-Minister to Austria Francis, of Mayor McShane of Montreal, of Miss Mabel Jenness, of President Cook of the National Teachers' Association, of Gen. Macauley and of scores of other equally responsible women and men. The "plain people" by thousands in every state in the union have testified to the merits of the compound.

Hon. Addison B. Colvin, whose likeness is given above, who was elected Treasurer of New York State last fall, was born in 1858 in Glens Falls, N. Y., where he was educated in the public schools, and where he has since resided. His successful career is known to all well-informed persons.

Writing to the proprietors of Paine's celery compound on July 12 last, he said:

"I beg to advise you that three or four years ago, when I was suffering severely with a nervous difficulty, caused by too close attention to business, I took several bottles of Paine's celery compound, and the benefit to me was considerable; in fact, since having taken the compound, I have not been called upon to use any other remedy for that difficulty. Very sincerely yours, A. B. COLVIN, State Treasurer."

Every hard working person should heed this truth, that the most cruel taskmaster in the world is a man's self when he is ambitious and, moreover, successful.

No eight hour or ten hour laws have ever been devised to protect such hard-worked, overworked men against themselves.

Very many are tied to their office desks bent over books and papers for hours, in utter defiance of the simplest requirements of health. The steady drain on the store of nervous energy at length shows itself in repeated headaches, neuralgia twinges, rheumatic pains, unrefreshing sleep and a lowness of spirits and strength.

In all these cases there is urgent need of restoring the nervous vigor that has been heedlessly squandered. Just why the great body of really capable physicians have had the greatest confidence from the first in ordering Paine's celery compound in these cases of reduced nerve vigor and bodily strength is not only because of the immediate good results that follow, but because this great modern remedy is prepared from the formula of the ablest reputed scientist and practitioner in medicine, Prof. Edward E. Phelps, M. D., LL. D., of Dartmouth college.

There are hundreds of men and women successful in their work for every one who is successful in keeping well. In many instances a fraction of the care and earnestness with which they attend to their business if devoted to getting well would make them strong and well.

To quickly fill the shrunken arteries and veins with ruddy blood and to refresh the exhausted nerves is the task that Paine's celery compound at once sets at work to accomplish. It takes but a short time with careful employment of this great nerve food to call a halt to wasting diseases and to disorders of the important organs of the body; to dyspepsia, liver, kidney and heart difficulties and to nervous weakness.

It is, perhaps, vague to most persons' minds just what "regulating and strengthening the nerves" really means.

No parts of the body undergo such rapid changes as the nervous tissues. After exertion the brain and nerves demand the promptest repair possible. The proper material must be speedily and richly brought by the blood to ensure the healthy working of these delicate parts. It is when the vigor of the body is so reduced that the nervous tissues cannot extract these needed elements from the blood, and when the pale, watery blood can furnish but a scanty supply of building material, that the strength fails, sleep becomes broken and unrefreshing, depression seizes the mind and a general feeling of ill-being is the sure forerunner of the breakdown of some special organ, liver, kidneys, heart, brain or stomach.

Paine's celery compound regulates and strengthens the nerves, which govern and give tone to every part of the body.

The tiniest branchings of the nerves everywhere accompany and work in harmony with the marvelous network of blood vessels, so that wherever a pin prick starts a drop of blood, a sharp pain tells that a nerve has also suffered. Paine's celery compound stores the blood vessels even to their minutest capillaries with fresh blood, full of life, and builds up the worn down nerves, by bathing them, to their utmost filaments, in the rich, nourishing stream.

Tired mothers, worn out by the ceaseless care of large families, and fathers worried by business and responsibility, find just the refreshment to the nerves that they need so much. Overwrought brainworkers, teachers, scholars, young girls in stores and offices regain the sturdy appearance of health in a short time by using this powerful nourishing agent, Paine's celery compound.

Astronomical Progress.

Washington, Oct. 22.—Prof. Simon Newcomb is in charge of the nautical almanac and reports the substantial completion of the work of determining the fundamental constituents of astronomy and the elements and masses of the major planets from mercury to saturn inclusive. This great undertaking, which was commenced several years ago, has excited the admiration as well as elicitated the hearty co-operation of all great observatories. More than 100,000 observations of the sun and its three nearer planets have been used. It will interest mathematicians to know that ordinarily the determination of the elements of a planet only involves the solution of equations involving six or seven unknown quantities. But in the present theory it was necessary to the satisfactory character of the results that the equations in the case of the planets preserved each should involve 22 or 23 unknown quantities. It is noted that much of the expert mental labor involved in these important investigations is furnished gratuitously, and in at least one instance, the necessary funds for a very important routine computation has been supplied by a woman, Miss Caroline Bruce, of New York.

Missionary Jozeau's Murderers.

San Francisco, Cal., Oct. 22.—Advices are said to have been received by the Japanese government from Shanghai stating that the French minister at Pekin has again made a demand for reparation for the murder of the French missionary, Perd Jozeau, in Corea by Chinese troops. It will be remembered that the Chinese government pretended that the murder had been committed by Japanese fugitives and therefore China was not responsible for the outrage. A telegram received by the Japanese government runs as follows: "The French minister has received positive information as to the result of the second investigation by officers of the French men-of-war at Kunsen, Corea, that the murderers of the French missionary were Chinese. The minister has changed his former course and opened international negotiations. He has demanded of Li Hung Chang to give definite reply within a stipulated period. Li Hung Chang, however, has requested an extension of the period on the plea that he has his hands so full with the present war that he cannot make the necessary investigation."

New Hamilton, Pa., Oct. 22.—George Swain, a farmer living near this place, has discovered the skeleton of a mastodon in a swamp on his farm. The bones are a tusk seven feet long; some teeth, one being three by four inches, and weighing twenty pounds; a portion of a rib, over five feet long, and some vertebrae. An effort will be made to secure the remainder of the skeleton, as geological formations indicate the swamp to have been an ancient lake. The bones already found are in a good state of preservation, save those charred by a fire, which led to the discovery.

Against the Use of Troops.

Boston, Oct. 22.—The central labor union adopted resolutions deploring the evident disposition of those in authority to increase and centralize the numbers of state and federal troops and to multiply costly armories, thereby making more onerous the burden of taxation, which, in the ultimate, is born by the producing classes.

Arrest of the Albion Murderer.

Albion, N. Y., Oct. 22.—William Lake, the murderer of Emma Hunt, was arrested yesterday afternoon, and is safely lodged in jail.

NO RELIABLE NEWS

All Sorts of Rumors Concerning the Czar.

Official Bulletins Claim That He Is Better While Persistent Reports Are Current That He Is Dead—Illness of the Czarina—Decline in the Price of Russian Securities.

Berlin, Oct. 22.—The first dispatch of the day concerning the czar's condition was received here from Yalta, near Lavadia, at 11 o'clock. It was substantially as follows: "If the czar's death should not be hastened by heart failure, owing to recurring spasms, or by apoplexy, both incidental to his malady, the doctors hope to combat the uraemia for some time. Usually the final stages of Bright's disease are marked with convulsions, delirium, and at the last prolonged coma. These symptoms have not set in."

The numerous imperial princes now at Livadia have been gathered for state as well as family reasons. They will form an interim council whose composition will be announced soon after the convening of the senate on Oct. 29. The members of the council are expected to be the czarewitch, the Grand Duke Michael, Count Pohler and Privy Councillors Solisky, Bunge and Mouravieff.

The effect of the first alarming news from Lavadia last week was to send Russian securities down seven points on the Berlin and Frankfort bourses. During the week the prices rose slightly and at the close Saturday were firm. The czar's death is not expected to cause a panic unless French investors, who are believed to hold no less than three hundred millions in Russians, should take alarm and try to unload their holdings.

The Czarina Ill.

Warsaw Oct. 22.—Dispatches from Yalta say that the czarina is suffering from nervous collapse and paralysis of the legs. Her illness was caused by overwork in the czar's sick room, loss of sleep and constant anxiety. The Grand Duchess Xenia has been confined to her bed for several days. She is said to be suffering from premature childbirth.

Sensational Rumors.

London, Oct. 22.—High mass was said in the Greek church here and special prayers were said for the czar.

A dispatch from St. Petersburg to the Central News says: "Much excitement was caused to-day by widespread reports that the czar was dead and the news would be suppressed officially until next week to enable the Princess Alix to declare her adherence to the Greek church and be married to the czarewitch before the announcement. No confirmation of these reports can be obtained. The St. Petersburg journals have been ordered to expunge all bulletins as to the czar's illness from the copies going to Livadia."

"Pobedonoszeff, attorney-general of the holy synod and one of the czar's boyhood tutors, has started for Livadia."

Uncertainty at St. Petersburg.

St. Petersburg, Oct. 22.—Dispatches made public here at 7 o'clock p. m. say that the czar has rallied slightly. No confidence is felt by the people in the official announcements. The meagerness of the news has left room for the craziest rumors, which multiply on every street and in every cafe. It is said that the czarewitch has renounced the succession that the czar is dead, and the fact is suppressed, and that the Grand Duke George died two days ago. Official bulletins do not dispel these rumors. The last story is that the czarina's mind has broken down under her many difficulties. Despite the intensity of the interest in the czar's condition, the theatres and restaurants are crowded as usual. In the churches throughout Russia prayers have been said for the czar. A dispatch from Moscow says that the city is grief-stricken. Nevertheless the theatres are open. Between the acts the orchestra in every theatre played "God Protect the Czar." The audience stood during the hymn and insisted upon several repetitions of it.

Favorable Report.

London, Oct. 22.—The Russian ambassador received a dispatch from Livadia this afternoon saying that the czar was much better. This news was communicated to all callers at the embassy.

The Czarewitch's Marriage.

Berlin, Oct. 22.—The Local Anzeiger says that, if possible, the marriage of the czarevitch and Princess Alix will take place on Tuesday. The czarina is reported to be in the same condition as after the railway accident, near Berki, in 1888 in which she and the czar narrowly escaped death.

The Oriental War.

Washington, Oct. 22.—A telegram was received at the Japanese legation stating that on the 19th inst. upon he assembling of the diet at Hiroshima, Count Ito, the prime minister of Japan, made an elaborate speech in the house of lords in which he explained at length the causes of the war between Japan and China. The feeling of the diet appears to be unanimous in approval of the course pursued by the government. The universal expression is that the war must be vigorously pursued until it is brought to a triumphant conclusion. The diet has manifested the greatest willingness to grant everything asked by the government. The two houses on the 20th inst. passed by a unanimous vote the bills introduced by the government relating to war expenditure which involved a total sum of 150,000,000 yen.

Charges of Embezzlement.

Bellefonte, Pa., Oct. 22.—For the misappropriation of money collected as school taxes in the borough of Phillipsburg, in the year 1892, Associate Justice C. A. Faulkner, of Centre county, has been arrested on the charge of embezzlement and bound over in the sum of $1,000 for trial at the November term of court. The exact amount of his shortage is not yet known, but it is over $6,000. The affair is creating considerable of a sensation here.

GERMANY'S SOCIALISTS

Their Growing Strength in the Fatherland.

Bold Defiance of Prosecution—Expediency of Swearing Allegiance to the Powers That Be—Treatment of the Hebrew Question—Row Over Eight-Hour Labor Legislation.

Berlin, Oct. 22.—The annual congress of the social democrats has opened in Frankfort on the Main. The Vorwaerts observes the event by publishing in fourteen columns the executive committee's report of the party's doings in the reichstag. The party finances are, as usual, in good condition, showing at once the economy and sagacity with which they are administered. The usual surplus for the general treasury has been left after the payment of all expenses of the agitation.

The last paragraph of the report concerns the prosecutions of social democrats since the congress of 1893. Within the year fifty-eight socialists have been imprisoned and countless editors and agitators have been fined. "Whether this mimic warfare against the social democrats will be continued," says the report, "or be merged again into a general attack on the whole party, is a question which soon will be answered. However, come what may in the near or remote future, the social democrats will meet the attack with the same unperturbed, proud calm resolution as heretofore. We are ready for the foe at all times. We are prepared for every new onslaught. With us is progress, with us is right, with us will be at last the victory."

The case of Deputy Bueb and Comrade Doppler, who declined to take the oath of allegiance after their election to the provincial council at Strasburg, has not been mentioned in the congress' programme, but is likely to be debated. The Berlin newspapers have made it already the text of many leaders on the question: "Does the social democracy encourage perjury?" The Critic, a new journal edited by the old democratic agitator and leader, Karl Schneidt, and the friend of Most and Neve, has assaulted Liebknecht and Bebel mercilessly for their lightheartedness in making and breaking their oaths. Without wincing, it says, they both swear allegiance to the king when they enter the Saxon diet, admitting frankly that without such means no success in politics is possible. Schneidt's course foreshadows the intention of the independent social democrats to provoke a row in the congress by comparing the conscientious Bueb and Doppler with the pliable Liebknecht and Bebel. This old straw, however, was thrashed out long ago and everybody knows that the majority of social democrats approve of swearing falsely the oath of allegiance in case this act be deemed expedient for the good of the party.

The non-socialist newspapers have assailed the social democracy savagely in the last week. They have brought many charges against the party management and have raised several questions which are likely to increase the heat of debate in the congress. The Kreus Zeitung, for instance, asserts that millionaire Hebrews, under the direction of the Rothschilds, control and exercise a censorship over the social democratic press. As evidence of this, it cites the course of the Vorwaerts in apologizing for quoting from a Paris journal an anti-Semitic tirade against the Rothschilds. The fact is that the Vorwaerts expressed regret merely for using an untrustworthy statement concerning the great Hebrew bankers. The debates in the congress will illustrate once more the social democracy's attitude toward anti-Semitism. It is neither for nor against the Hebrews and will have nothing to do with the abstract contentions of Hebrews or Hebrew traders.

The Berlin social democrats were routed in the city council on Thursday after a furious debate on the eight-hour day. A socialist had moved that eight hours be made the legal working day for all municipal employees. The social democrats struggled desperately to fight down the opposition and made the discussion bitter and tumultuous from beginning to end. The motion was rejected amid a mixed chorus of approval and protest. The moment the vote was announced, the specialist, Stadthagen, bounced from his seat and bore down on the chairman shouting "You shall suffer for this. You have allowed the majority to insult me and my comrades." All the councilors left their seats. Many cried "Throw him out." An excited group made for Stadthagen, and but for the interference of the municipal officers, there would have been a hand to hand fight.

Business Improving.

Chicago, Oct. 22.—Comptroller of the Currency Eckels says the recent marked revival of business is by no means confined to the great financial centers of the country. The last call for a statement from the national banks was made Oct. 2," he said. "It showed an increase in reserve cities since July 18 of $25,000,000 of loans and discounts. We estimate that, in addition to this, there was an increase of $20,000,000 in outside cities. It was not confined to the financial centers, but seemed to come from every section of the country, indicating a very general and healthy revival. Compared with the statement of one year ago, however, the increase is phenomenal—more than $150,000,000. All this indicates a restoration of public confidence and more liberal investments."

ERRAND OF VENGEANCE

Four Brothers Decide on a Search for Murderers.

Sequel to the Assassination of Frank G. Hunter in Montana—Shot Down in Cold Blood by Cowboys—Systematic Plans of the Avengers—They Want To Be Deputy Sheriffs.

New York, Oct. 22.—Four stalwart sons of James Hunter, of 514 East 14th street, are about to start for the wilds of Montana bent on avenging the murder of Frank G Hunter, their brother, who was killed August 12 last, at Medicine Lodge, Mon., by cowboy desperadoes. The identity of the murderers is known to the avengers.

The Hunter brothers will go west fully armed, for they apprehend that the cowboy murderers will not yield without a struggle. James Hunter, the father, now the proprietor of a grocery store, was for years a school teacher in this city. All four of the Hunter boys are stalwart, muscular and courageous young men. They start west with the full knowledge of their father, James Hunter, as to the object of their mission and with his approval and consent.

Frank G. Hunter, the murdered man, was 31 years of age at the time of his assassination. He was one of a family of nine brothers. About four years ago he opened a saloon at Medicine Lodge, Mon. Hunter lived with his wife and family in a house about 20 rods distant from his saloon. As the murder occurred on Sunday the saloon was closed at the time.

The assassins, for whom the four brothers will go in search, are Paul Metcalf and A. F. Harness; they will also seek to have a Medicine Lodge character and cowboy, known as Irish Jack, arrested and punished for participating in the crime. The murderers, however, they believe to be Metcalf and Harness. Their reputation for lawlessness and desperate deeds in northwestern Montana has earned for them a very unenviable fame. They are now known to be hiding in the mountains, and although a price has been set upon their heads by the authorities the county officials have been able to get no trace of their whereabouts.

Metcalf and Harness having armed themselves with rifles and revolvers had mounted their mustangs and started out for a high old time. When they reached Medicine Lodge they at once headed for Hunter's saloon. On the way they picked up a local character known by the sobriquet of Irish Jack. The cowboys on arriving at the saloon proceeded to break in by throwing empty beer kegs through the door. When Hunter reached the saloon the cowboys were making free with his liquors. Metcalf immediately covered Hunter with his revolver and ordered him to "set 'em up." Hunter served them several drinks with the muzzle of Metcalf's revolver constantly presented at his head. There was a telephone in the saloon connecting with his house. While Metcalf and his comrades were pouring down one of the drinks Hunter seized the opportunity to ring the telephone bell in the hope of summoning assistance. The cowboys detected him in the act and realizing his purpose shot him down in cold blood. Then they rifled and robbed the body and rode off.

Mrs. Hunter found Irish Jack sitting on the door step bleeding from a wound in his head and Hunter lying on his face on the floor behind the counter shot through the left temple, alive, but unconscious. Two shots had penetrated Hunter's brain. Jack said that Metcalf had struck him over the head with the butt end of his revolver before shooting Hunter and had done so because he accused him of drinking too much of the whiskey. Jack admitted that he had robbed Hunter's body of a roll of bills amounting to several hundred dollars.

Bromide Mines.

Creede, Col., Oct. 22.—The Kentucky Belle Mining Company, operating on Campbell mountain, about two weeks ago struck a body of rich bromide ore at a depth of less than two feet and since then have shipped a car that assayed from 400 to over 4,000 ounces per ton. This evening the last shots knocked out about half a ton of nearly solid bromide ore that will run not less than 5,000 ounces. This is considered one of the greatest bonanzas found in Creede. Great excitement prevails over this grat strike, and a new era seems to have dawned upon Creede camp. This great strike is within a short distance of upper Creede depot, and in the high cliffs.

PLOTS OF ANARCHISTS

Plan To Murder an Ambassador at Washington.

Evidence That the Assassination of President Carnot Was Arranged With Deliberation — Successful Translation of a Remarkable Cipher Letter.

Washington, Oct. 22.—The Post in a leading article, reiterates the statements published by it last June relative to an anarchistic plot to blow up public buildings in this city during the Coxey excitement and publishes a deciphered letter, which purports to be written by the head of the society in London to its representative in this country. This letter was unraveled by one of the police inspectors here, after a great deal of study. Major Moore, head of the Washington police, states that the story is correct and vouches for the accuracy of the letter. The Washington police were notified of this plot by Mr. Brennan, head of the Chicago police, who furnished the name of the Washington correspondent of the Chicago association of anarchists. This man was watched and a letter addressed to him was intercepted. Accompanying this letter was the following communication in cipher, which was subsequently, as has been said, made plain:

London, June 21, 1894.

No. 9. At the time you will receive this letter several of our comrades will be ready to leave for America, and they will be absolutely under your command, and we hope you will organize a new league and do effective work. Lay your plans so that your attempts shall be effectual. At a meeting held in Geneva last week, the ambassador was ordered removed and it will be your duty, in the name of our cause, to arrange everything for his removal. There will be a sensation in a few days, the nature of which is not necessary to state, as it does not concern America, but you will remember the meeting held in Paris May 5. Would it not be advisable that you should obtain some sort of a position in Washington where you will come in contact with some government officers, and that will help you to success in our plans. But I do not need to give you advice as we have perfect confidence in your doings. We have recalled No. 23 from Chicago, as we have suspicions of his honesty to our cause. Strange that the Chicago bloodhounds have been well-informed of our doings while he was in Chicago. At the present we intrust you with the accomplishment of our sentence at W——, as in the future we will have to act in great caution for a time, at least. Before long several of our most reliable and daring members will go to America, and it will be at your judgment to assign them to action, but would advise you not to intrust No. 21 with any special deed, even though his number be drawn. He is not a traitor, but he lacks courage. We are awaiting from you some results. In the future go slow—take your time. You know there is so many bloodhounds against our right cause. I will write you soon some instructions for the future.

(Signed) No. 11.

The letter has the appearance of having been penned by a Russian. One startling fact concealed within this mysterious cryptography is the reference to the assassination of President Carnot. The ambassador ordered to be removed is still in Washington attending to his duties, but his escape from vengeance of the anarchists is said to be due to the uncertain vigilance of the Chicago and Washington police, and the cessation of their nefarious work when it became evident to the anarchists that some of their correspondence had miscarried. This ambassador is said to have also received a warning from the secret service agents of his own country, and had his residence guarded day and night for several weeks. That knowledge existed in this country of the plot to assassinate Carnot was proved by letters captured by detectives in the other cities and by the admission of the Washington anarchist after the assassination. The French secret service bureau was informed of the discovery of this plot several weeks before the perpetration of the crime. The Washington man, after his apprehension, weakened and gave up much information that was valuable here and elsewhere in watching the movements of anarchists throughout the United States.

Encouraging American Art.

Philadelphia, Oct. 22.—Of unusual significance in American art circles is the announcement made of an offer by Wm. L. Elkins, the railway traction magnate, through the Pennsylvania Academy of the Fine Arts, of $5,000 for the best American picture painted by an American artist. Mr. Elkins' liberal proposal was presented at the last meeting of the board of directors of the Academy of Fine Arts, by Mr. F. Burgess Warren, a member of the board and of the committee on exhibition, prension of appreciation and approval.

Fears for the Falcon.

St. Johns, N. F., Oct. 22.—Nothing has yet been heard from the Peary expedition steamer Falcon, which sailed from Philadelphia Oct. 3 for this port. The Allan liner Corean, which arrived here last night from Philadelphia, saw nothing of the Falcon on her passage, nor any wreckage or indication of what has become of her. As the Falcon made the passage from St. Johns to Philadelphia in seven days, she is now eleven days overdue.

Soft Coal in Pennsylvania.

Hastings, Pa., Oct. 22.—What is considered the largest and most perfect vein of bituminous coal in Central Pennsylvania has been developed at Sterling No. 11, at Spangler, Cambria county. The coal is eight feet high and remarkably free from defects or dirt. The remarkable height of the vein has been maintained for a considerable distance and gives every indication of being permanent.

The Bartlett Case.

Boston, Oct. 22.—The jury in the celebrated Bartlett-Bigelow case, in the superior civil court, in East Cambridge was dismissed late Saturday night, having been unable to agree upon a verdict.

CHEAP BREAD AT WASHINGTON.

Bakers Meet the Demand by Reducing the Quality.

Washington, Oct. 22.—The question of cheaper bread has attracted much attention. The Washington public has just awakened to the fact that while flour costs less by $2.50 a barrel than it did two years ago, the price of bread is still 5 cents a loaf, just as it was when wheat was selling at $1 a bushel and flour was considered cheap at $6 a barrel. The discovery resulted in a demand upon the local bakers for a 4-cent loaf. Strange to say, the bakers have yielded to the demand, but in cheapening the loaf they have reduced the quality of the bread in proportion to the price.

As nobody wanted poorer bread, this action of the bakers has met with general opposition, and the chances are that the bakers will continue to be subject to the criticism until they retreat from their present position. There is a decided unwillingness to return to the grade of bread with which people had to be content before the modern steam bakery, with its advantages of fine flour and new processes, came into vogue.

The feeling that cheaper bread should be furnished is undoubtedly due to the fact that there are many poor people in Washingon who become a public charge in the winter season. Those most interested thought it strange, when they began to look into the matters that the bakers should insist upon charging the price which has been standard so many years when the price of flour has steadily declined. The investigation which followed showed that a barrel of flour will produce 250 loaves. At 5 cents a loaf the gross return from a barrel of flour is $12.50. Deducting $3.50, leaves $9. Out of this amount the bakers and the middle men receive their profit. It is asserted that the bakers clear 3 cents on every loaf. The bakers say that the profit is not great, and that to reduce the price of bread and retain the present quality would result in a positive loss to them. They claim that the wages paid to the employees of the bakeries are higher in Washington than in any other city in the country.

CARL BROWNE IN NEW YORK.

He Is Arrested and Dismissed With a Reprimand.

New York, Oct. 22.—Carl Browne, commander of the Commonweal Army, who was arrested on Saturday morning on Wall street for causing a crowd to collect, was the first prisoner arraigned before Justice Ryan in the Tombs Police Court Sunday. Many of his followers occupied seats in the rear of the court-room and crowded the corridor, eagerly awaiting the fate of their leader.

Detective Sergeant Rogers had preferred a complaint of disorderly conduct against Browne, who pleaded not guilty. Browne was represented by his friend, Lawyer Salisbury, who explained the Coxeyites' object in visiting this city. The crowd had gathered about him while he was reading a letter he had just received. Instead of dispersing the crowd, the counsel said, Detective Rogers arrested Browne.

When the commander was asked what he had to say, he replied: "If there is going to be a trial, I should prefer to wait until I can procure my witnesses."

Justice Ryan said the case was a simple one, and could be disposed of at once.

"In that case," your honor, "I am willing to abide by the decision of the court," said Browne.

Browne said he had received a telegram from Wilmington, Del. He was in the act of reading it when he was ordered to move on. He halted to continue the reading of the dispatch and to answer it, as an immediate reply was required, when he was arrested.

Justice Ryan then explained to Browne that it was against the city's law to cause a crowd to collect, and, warning him against any future violation, dismissed the case.

Jersey City, N. J., Oct. 22.—Ex-Governor Joseph D. Bedle died at St Luke's hospital, New York, Sunday afternoon, from the effects of an operation for calculus performed by Dr Bangs. Mrs. Bedle and his family were with him.

SIX PAGES TODAY.

The High School letters which have become a bright and newsy feature of The Daily Press are a good thing for the students to preserve as a record they will find pleasurable in years to come, and a good thing for parents to follow who wish to keep posted in the progress of the rising generation. The chronicles reveal a live and progressive condition in the school, and show to the world that Plainfield students are not only being thoroughly trained for their lifework but are keeping themselves abreast with the times. The Daily Press is proud to be the only paper to keep the people in touch with the daily lives of the boys and girls, and recognized as the authoritative chronicler of those important hours when parental restraint gives way to scholastic discipline.

The right kind of head on the right kind of shoulders; a business head; a common-sense head; a head full of modern progressiveness.

The right kind of heart; a big heart; a generous heart; a heart in sympathy with the people; a heart faithful and true to its owner's friends and neighbors.

The right kind of man; a broad-minded man; a man of the people; an honest and upright man.

The head is his; the heart is his; the man is J. A. Smith.

And J. A. Smith is just the man for the Plainfield delegates to place in county nomination for Assembly.

The Plainfield Democracy deserves a nominee as a just reward for the many sacrifices she has made when the Republicans ruled the old Assembly district.

J. A. Smith for Assembly means not only the full Democratic vote of Plainfield for the Democratic ticket, but it means a lot more beside. It means large Democratic gains.

A Leg Crushed.

The parents of George Ringleman were shocked to find last night on returning from their visit at the home of the Schlerethe on Chatham street to their own home in Somerville that George had had a leg crushed on the Jersey Central, where he was a brakeman.

—No people on the earth work as hard, and none complain of that "tired feeling" as much, as Americans. In some cases this is no doubt due to the gloomy inartistic papers on the walls. A cure for this will be found at Love's, corner of North and Watchung avenues, where can be found an immense selection of bright beautiful wall-paper that will put dyspepsia to flight, save doctors bills and make home a thing of beauty and a joy forever.

LANE FOR ASSEMBLY.

Somerset Democrats Choose a Strong Standard-Bearer.

(Special by Wire to The Daily Press.)

Somerville, Oct. 22—George E. Pace presided over the Somerset County Convention here today, and D. J. Carney of North Plainfield was secretary.

Andrew Lane of Hillsborough was unanimously nominated for Assembly.

Congressman Geissenhainer is addressing the convention amid much enthusiasm.

CYCLING COMMENT.

A crowd of boys dragged the scenery wagon from the freight-house Saturday evening and left it in the middle of East Fourth street. A cycler from out of town struck it and was thrown from his wheel. His injuries were not serious.

The Victor Wheelmen will meet tonight to decide on details of the races Wednesday afternoon. The entrance fee of 25 cents for club members has started considerable discussion among those who object to paying it. Half-a-dozen Victors have entered. Eagle Wheelmen of Newark complain that it is too cold to race.

The Prospect Wheelmen of Brooklyn had a ten-mile road-race between Plainfield and Metuchen Saturday afternoon. They used the dressing rooms beneath the Crescent grand-stand and expressed themselves as highly pleased with the hospitality of the club and the excellence of Plainfield's roads. The finish was as follows: F. J. Egelhoff, scratch, 29:22, G. W. Shannon, scratch, 29:23; H. Barker, scratch; 29:23 4-5; E. B. Tyrrell, 2 3 4 minutes, 32:11; J. L. Brush, 1 3 4 minutes, 31:14; Benjamin Brunner, 2 minutes, 32:02; M. Switter, scratch, 30:44; O. Wemphal, scratch, punctured a tire after riding five miles and did not finish. Worthern, 4½ min., dropped out. The finish was a close, exciting one. The first prize was a Keating silver cup; the second a diamond ring, and the time prize a diamond scarf pin. The officers of the race were: Referee, F. L. C. Martin. Timers, J. C. Killick and W. T. Shannon. Judges—Monte Scott and C. E. Teel. Starter—E. J. Wulff.

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR.

The Christian Endeavor Society of the First Church of Christ will hold an old-fashioned sociable on Thursday evening in the chapel on Grove street. They will be assisted by the Christian Endeavor Society of Warren Chapel who will render the programme given at their chapel recently. During the evening a dime collection will be taken, and after the entertainment refreshments will be served. Everybody will be welcome.

The Crescent governors met Saturday evening and appointed J. A. Haynes a committee to arrange a century run. Captain Haynes announces that the run will be made Tuesday, October 30, starting from the club-house at 5 in the morning. The route will be to Somerville, to Belle Meade, to Pennington, to Trenton, to Princeton, to New Brunswick, to Plainfield, to Fanwood, to Scotch Plains, to the club-house. Dinner will be eaten at noon at the Trenton House. It is expected that the century will be completed before dark. Unattached riders and members of other clubs are invited.

The Christian Endeavor Society of the Congregational Church held a special convention meeting last evening. The meeting was led by Miss Effieda A. Whiting, the delegate of the society to the State Convention at New Brunswick. A song service opened the meeting, after which Rev. C. L. Goodrich made the opening prayer. Miss Eda Beekman sang a solo and then Miss Whiting gave a short talk on the State Convention, the various ideas brought forward there and the many useful suggestions for better work. Remarks by Rev. Mr. Goodrich, Robert Suffren, president of the society, and others, followed. The state hymn was sung and after a short prayers the meeting was closed with the benediction.

The Sixth Anniversary of the Y. P. S. C. E. of the Park Avenue Baptist Church was held in the church last evening. The special music was furnished by a choir of twelve. Mrs. D. C. Skaden, the president, presided and made a few opening remarks. After an organ voluntary and a hymn by the congregation, D. M. Runyon read the Thirty-fourth Psalm. An anthem by the choir followed, when Miss A. B. Spangenberg read a Scripture selection. After another hymn the secretary's report was read by the secretary, Miss Myra Runyon. Rev. J. W. Richardson gave the address that he partially delivered at New Brunswick. Mr. Richardson spoke on the present situation of the Christian Endeavor Society, the need of thoroughly organized committees, and on what constitutes a good committee; also speaking of individual work and the cultivation of enthusiasm. After his very interesting and instructive remarks, Mr. Richardson closed the meeting with the benediction.

CHURCH CHIMES.

The sermons on the Beatitudes which Rev. J. W. Richardson of the Park Avenue Baptist Church is preaching Sunday mornings to his congregation, are popular. There was a large attendance yesterday morning. Two candidates were immersed.

Rev. E. O. Moffett, pastor of the Reformed church at New Prospect, N. Y., who has been spending his vacation in Plainfield at the home of his cousins, Mr. and Mrs. E. D. Moffett of Orchard place, was a college mate of Rev. Cornelius Schenck, and yesterday morning Mr. Schenck invited Mr. Moffett to preach in his pulpit. His text was the first verse of the fifth chapter of Revelations, and his discourse gave evidence of careful preparation.

FOUR CHILDREN BURNED.

DESTRUCTION OF THE REV. ROSS TAYLOR'S HOUSE IN NYACK.

Four young children of Rev. Ross Taylor, son of Bishop Taylor of Africa, were burned to death early this morning in their father's house in South Nyack-on-the-Hudson. Mr. and Mrs. Taylor barely escaped with their lives, their two other children leaped from a third-story window and were hurt, and three men, a laborer and two mechanics, were severely injured. The house was destroyed.

PARTICULAR MENTION.

Andrew Kenney left for Augusta, Ga., last evening.

Lewis Dunn, now of the West, was in town yesterday.

Monte Scott's mother left for Providence Saturday afternoon.

S. Philip Curtis, Lehigh '96, spent Sunday in North Plainfield.

Mrs. Raymond and daughter of Kensington avenue have returned from Montreal.

Henry E. Bowen is home after a week spent at his father's elegant home, Woodstock, Conn.

Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Jackson of Crescent avenue returned Saturday from the Thousand Islands.

Mrs. Charles Naylor of Brooklyn is visiting her mother, Mrs. S. Sanders of West Second street.

A social gathering is to take place at the home of Mr. and Mrs. John Kitchen, Somerset street, tonight.

Mrs. H. A. Riley of Brooklyn spent Sunday with Mrs. S. Sanders and family of West Second street.

Miss Marion Hartley of New York is expected today by her cousin, Miss Sarah Schuyler of LaGrande avenue.

Miss Florence Walker of Grove street, escorted by Harry Shearer of Westfield, went to Brooklyn to spend Sunday with friends.

Mr. and Mrs. H. W. Tomlinson returned from their wedding tour Saturday night. Their home is at 443 West Sixth street.

Miss Mamie Kiely, formerly of Plainfield and now of Asbury Park, is spending a few days with friends and relatives in this city.

Charles Kyte and daughter returned to Fanwood from their trip to Europe Saturday night. Mr. Kyte is much improved in health.

A. H. Knapp, one of Paterson's largest coal dealers, was the guest of Mr. and Mrs. C. J. Baxter of 813 Richmond street yesterday.

Miss Edith Hartley, who has been visiting at the home of George P. Mellick of LaGrande avenue, returned Saturday morning to her home in New York.

Joseph Herold, a cousin of Mrs. Everett Marsh of Somerset place, who has been on the staff of the Arlington Hotel lately, will leave in a few days for Los Angeles.

Mrs. Horace VanHorn of Salt Lake City, Utah, and Miss J. VanHorn of New York city, spent Sunday with Miss S. R. VanWinkle and her brother Daniel VanWinkle of Mercer avenue and Duer street.

Charles Hand, for 38 years a thrifty and progressive builder of Plainfield, is at last to build a fine house for himself. It will be on Fairview avenue, east of Watchung, in Watchung Park, and is to be done April 1.

Patrick Kenney, a respected resident of Plainfield avenue, died yesterday after a useful life of 64 years. He leaves a daughter, Mrs. John Mottley. The funeral takes place tomorrow morning, at 9 from the house and 9:30 from St. Mary's Church.

DAUGHTERS OF THE CROSS.

Their Fair a Symphony in Pink and White.

The cake and fancy sale conducted by the Daughters of the Cross in the Park Club-house Saturday was a beautiful event, and netted $150.

The decorations were in excellent taste, and as dainty as feminine ingenuity could accomplish. The prevailing colors were pink and white, with green affording a pleasant relief.

Those in charge were:

Candy table—Mrs. Haviland, Mrs. Foster, Mrs. Howell.

Cake table—Mrs. Peck, Mrs. Townsend, Mrs. Dwight.

Flower table—Mrs. Walter McGee, Mrs. Hallock, Mrs. Rogers.

Fancy table—Mrs. Dupee, Mrs. Van-Devbuter, Mrs. Howland.

Household department—Mrs. J. P. McQuaide.

Tea and lemonade—Mrs. Faber, Miss Embury, Mrs. Phillips, Mrs. Brown.

Reception Committee—Mrs. Henry McGee, Mrs. Saunders, Mrs. Reed.

General Managers—Mrs. Reed, Mrs. Evans, Mrs. Saunders.

At night the Park Club held an auction party, at which Walter McGee was the auctioneer. Will Runyon sang, Mr. McGee recited, and Miss Emily Sandford played piano selections.

EARLY INTELLIGENCE.

—John Haberle shot a wild duck Friday near Sebring's Mills.

—Plainfield Democrats owe it to their citizenship to attend their primaries tonight. And their delegates should be asked to present a Plainfield man for Assembly.

A Moral.

There was a man in a faraway town
Who thought him wondrous wise.
He swore by all the fabled gods
He'd never advertise.

His goods were advertised at last,
And thereby hangs a tale.
The ad was set in nonpareil
And headed "Sheriff's Sale."

AT REYNOLDS'S PHARMACY.

AND MISS IRWIN WONDERED.

The Soubrette Greatly Astonished by a Rights-Hunter.

Miss Irwin places her plump hand over her big heart, looks as solemn as when she played in Daly's company, and deposeth and affirms as follows, to wit:

"I was sitting in my rooms in Forty-second street one afternoon last year, thinking how wicked it was to 'gag' during matinee performances, because the audiences are mostly women who do not understand 'gagging,' when a card was brought to me. It was that of a lady whose name was somehow familiar to me, yet just how I could not fix in my mind. I had seen the name in the papers I know; yet in what relation I could not recollect. It did not seem to me that it had been in connection with affairs of my profession. I had told my maid to tell the lady I was in, and was wondering who and what she could be while waiting for her.

"Tell you her name? Not in a thousand years! Why, she entered and greeted me with effusion, as 'dear sister.' That surprised me, for it was not Flo—she's my real sister, you know—and so I didn't do anything but keep right on wondering; except, of course, I asked her to sit down. I luckily caught myself in time just as I was going to offer her a cigarette, and kept right on wondering.

"She was richly dressed, but was somehow made up for a 'stern aunt' part, or something in that line.

"She suddenly produced a roll of papers and I guessed she was going to read me a new play, although she did not look as if she would think of just the kind of a play I would want, so I just kept right on wondering.

"Then she spoke. 'My dear sister,' she said, 'I have been appointed by the ladies of our league to give you an opportunity to sign our petition to the Constitutional Convention.'

"'What is your petition?' I asked, 'and what is the Constitutional Convention?'

"I thought the Constitution Convention might be some kind of a rest cure, but I really didn't know until she explained, and in the mean time I just kept right on wondering.

"When I asked my question she started and looked at me real cross, and then she laughed and said: 'Oh, I see you are joking. I fancy it is difficult to overcome your stage habit of being whimsical.'

"I assured her I was dead serious, and then she explained that the petition was from the Woman's Rights League, and was to be presented to some men who were going to do something to the laws.

"'But, madam,' I said, 'I have all the rights I want, and more than I desire, perhaps. I make my own living under contracts I make myself; the courts will enforce my contracts if I require their aid; I do as I like and no one interferes with me. If you will excuse me, I believe I'd rather not sign your petition.'

"I never saw such an amazed woman. She stared at me, and then exclaimed: 'But you lecture in our cause!'

"I really began to feel wuzzy. 'I lecture! Not on your life, madam! I never lectured in my life!'

"'Pardon me then, I see I have made a mistake. I supposed I was talking to the Miss May Irwin who is now appearing at the Bijou.'

"'And you're dead right,' I exclaimed, and kept right on wondering what came next.

"'Then unless there are two Miss May Irwins I certainly heard you deliver a very strong and instructive lecture on woman's rights, and you were out on top of the stage when you delivered it.'

"'Merciful heavens, madam!' I said, for I had just tumbled—dropped, you understand—that she referred to that burlesque turn I used to do in which I told about the different kinds of loads a husband and wife will get for $5.

"'Do you mean to say you took that speech seriously? It was just a comic turn, you understand, a burlesque.'

"She gave me an amazed and haughty stare, rolled up her petition, said stiffly: 'I thought you were doing your oppressed sex a great service by delivering a serious lecture against their oppressors, man. I am sorry to learn of my error.'

"She swept out of the room, and I didn't do anything but just keep right on wondering."

WHITE CAP LAWLESSNESS.

A Practice Directly Contrary to the Spirit of American Civilization.

Port Jervis, N. Y., seems to be a more Puritanical than law-abiding community. The White Caps go to church on Sunday, and on their raids on other days without any qualms of conscience. Intending competitors in the way of business; stray musicians; weak brethren who are too fond of their cups, and sinners in general are the objects of persecution. The latest application of these old-fashioned methods was in the case of a man and woman. In spite of the fact that the law of the land permitted these persons to do as they like, the White Caps resolved to enforce a moral law by breaking the law of man. They told the pair to get out or take the consequence. The man replied by inviting the White Caps to come on. The latter discovered that among the preparations made for their surprise party was a goodly store of arms and ammunition. They put off the execution of their plans for a time. Their next move was a threat to use dynamite. How the besieged will take this is not yet reported.

As the situation now stands we have a man literally besieged in his house, which he has placed on a war footing. He has every reason to expect hard treatment if captured. He will undoubtedly fire on his assailants if they try to break in. Not a word is said as to what the local guardians of the peace propose to do in the matter.

The probabilities are that the authorities don't interfere because the general sentiment is on the side of the White Caps, and reelection has to be anticipated. If somebody is hurt the responsibility will not rest with him who is fighting for the principle that a man's house is his castle, even when it is only a flat.

DEATHS.

KENNY—In this city Oct. 21, 1894, Patrick Kenny, aged 64 years.
Funeral from his late residence, 511 Plainfield ave., Tuesday morning, Oct. 23, at 9 o'clock at house, and 9:30 at St. Mary's church. Friends and relatives are respectfully invited to attend; also the members of the T. A. B. Society.

DELAYED CLAIMS.

Cases Resulting from Depredations by Various Indian Tribes.

Washington, Oct. 22.—There are now pending before the United States court of claims about 10,000 cases arising from the depredations committed by the various Indian tribes on the property of the pioneer settlers of the west. The claims aggregate nearly $11,000,000 and come from persons in California, Oregon, New Mexico, Texas, Missouri, Illinois, Alabama, Idaho, Washington, Montana, North and South Dakota, and other states in the south and west, and between two and three hundred lawyers are engaged in pushing their liquidation. An official of the interior department in speaking of the matter said:

"Since the date of the Indian depredations act, which conferred jurisdiction on the United States court of claims to settle and determine the losses sustained by the settlers and to give judgments for the same, over 11,000 cases have been filed in that court. An assistant attorney-general was provided under that act, as defense for the United States and the Indians, and the judgments were rendered for something over $500,000, which congress subsequently paid. Since the advent of the present administration judgments have been rendered against the United States and the Indian tribes, amounting, with those left over from the last administration, to about $580,000. These judgments were reported by the attorney-general to congress at its last session and an appropriation of $175,000 was made, less than one-third the amount of the judgments reported. In this appropriation bill was a proviso that before any payments could be made, the attorney-general was required to investigate each judgment, and if in his opinion no additional defense could be made on the part of the government and the Indians, he was to certify such judgments to the treasury for payment.

"A question has now arisen upon the proper construction of this appropriation act, and the treasury department seems to be in doubt as to whether the judgments should be paid in the order which they were rendered, or in the order in which they were certified for payment by the attorney-general.

"The decision of the supreme court in the test case of Marks and Wallenberg, construing the meaning of the words 'in amity' will practically decide one-fourth of the cases now awaiting jurisdiction by the court of claims."

ANOTHER TRAIN ROBBERY.

Startling Development of a Great American Industry.

Parsons, Kan., Oct. 22.—The Missouri Pacific passenger train No. 223, on the Kansas and Arkansas Valley branch, was held up by four or five masked men at Coretta siding, seven miles east of Wagoner, I. T., at 10 o'clock last night. Empty cars were placed on the track and the train struck them. The robbers commenced a terrible onslaught and four or five persons are reported shot. Little money is said to have been secured. All the cars, excepting the sleeper, were shot full of holes and not a whole window remains. The train struck the obstruction of cars across the track after being shunted on to a siding, the outlaws having thrown a switch for that purpose. The money secured was from the local safe.

During the fusillade Jack McHara, advance agent of the McHara minstrel show, received a shot in the forehead. How serious it is is not known. He was in one of the passenger coaches at the time. The train was in charge of Engineer Harris and Conductor W. J. Dunkin. The robbery was the work of Cook and his desperate gang of outlaws who have recently been terrorizing the citizens in the territory. For two months past all railroads passing through the territory have been heavily guarded in fear of an attack, and many shipments into the territory have been refused by the express company. Many depredations of the gang, especially within the past week or two have shown this precaution to have been timely. For days the gang has been represented as being at different points planning a robbery and thorough preparations were made to meet the expected attack. The outlaws evidently anticipated a desperate resistance, and began their work with fierce fighting.

Outrage in Ohio.

Hicksville, O., Oct. 22.—Charles O'Neil, a negro, assaulted a three-year-old daughter of Mrs. Daniel Heckerman late yesterday afternoon. The child will recover. About midnight the negro was arrested, and after a desperate fight with a mob, the officers succeeded in lodging him in jail. There is much excitement here, but the Washington Court House affair, of a few days since, has a discouraging effect, and it is probable the officers will be able to protect the men. His crime is a most heinous one, and yet the grandmother of the child is said to be shielding the negro in every way possible. This feature of the affair has served to incite the indignation of the people to a great extent.

Paterson's Church Row.

Paterson, N. J., Oct. 22.—The dissatisfied parishioners of St. Joseph's Roman Catholic church held a largely-attended meeting in the rooms of the Catholic club, and decided to continue the war against the pastor, Rev. De Sebastian B. Smith. They repudiated the decision of Mgr. Satolli in favor of the rector, on the ground that the petitioners who signed for Dr. Smith's removal were not consulted. It was agreed to make another effort to remove the objectionable clergyman by appealing to the highest dignitaries of the church in this and New York state. If no redress can be had by such a course the petitioners propose to cease paying pew rents.

Making Progress.

One night, after three hours of struggle on his part, and much delicate encouragement on the part of the girl, he had seized her hand convulsively, dropped on his knees impetuously, and was about one-fifth through an impassioned appeal to her to be his'n, when the mother's voice sounded clear on the night from the head of the stairs.

The youth stopped short, but held on.

"Mary," came the maternal voice querulously, "is that young man there yet?"

"Not yet, mother," replied Mary, smiling sweetly down on the face of her Romeo, "but he's getting there."

And two weeks later the cards were out.—Detroit Free Press.

Our Churches and Jails.

Comparisons are sometimes odious. But there is more truth than poetry in the following facts, which are taken from a good authority. We have spent nearly $470,000,000 in building churches in this land, and $500,000,000 in building jails. It costs $50,000,000 a year to run the churches and $400,000,000 to run the jails. The interest money on our jails amounts to two and one-half times as much per year as the whole church raises for home and foreign missions. We pay out eight times as much for running our fellow men down and jailing them as we do in trying to make them better so that they will not need jail.

Mrs. Humphrey Ward's Way.

That idea of Mrs. Humphrey Ward to deny herself to callers only when genius is burning freely and luminously, is a good distinction for a writer to make. At such times the announcement of a caller is met with a simple shake of the head, which the maid understands, and acts up to in her return message to the waiting visitor. If, however, ideas are few and work difficult and unsatisfactory, Mrs. Ward interrupts herself without hesitation, doubtless finding relief, if not actual progress, in stopping work that is like battering against a stone wall.

Will Trousers Prejudice the Case.

Having won her case in the Virginia Court of Appeals, which affirmed her right to practice law in the courts of Virginia, Mrs. Belva Lockwood now has nothing between her and an extensive practice in that State but the absurd prejudice in favor of lawyers who wear trousers.

with local applications, as they cannot reach the seat of the disease. Catarrh is a blood or constitutional disease, and in order to cure it you must take internal remedies. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, and acts directly on the blood and mucous surfaces. Hall's Catarrh Cure is not a quack medicine. It was prescribed by one of the best physicians in this country for years, and is a regular prescription. It is composed of the best tonics known, combined with the best blood purifiers, acting directly on the mucous surfaces. The perfect combination of the two ingredients is what produces such wonderful results in curing catarrh. Send for testimonials, free.

New York, Oct. 22.—The dense bank of fog which settled down over the rivers and harbors in the vicinity of New York were directly responsible for many accidents to shipping and river craft, and at least one accident traceable to this cause came very near resulting in serious loss of life and property. The big side-wheel Hudson river steamboat Drew, of the People's line, ran ashore at Washington point, about half a mile this side of Spuyten Duyvil, while on its way to this city from Albany. The Drew carried about 150 passengers, who were badly shaken up. No one, however, was injured.

ONE OF THE GANG.

EXPERIENCES OF MR. DRUMMOND IN RUNNING COUNTERFEITERS.

Arrested Himself and Broke Jail. Lived, Travelled and Worked With the Men Until He Sprang the Trap and Caught Them All.

It was in 1883 that the Secret Service officials were made aware of the existence of a gang of bogus money makers by the appearance of a counterfeit fifty-dollar bill of excellent design and workmanship. The counterfeit compared very favorably with the original and was being passed all over the country, but principally in the South. After careful work on the part of the Secret Service detectives, two experienced counterfeiters, well known to the United States officials, "Jim" Hanford and "Jim" Petts, were arrested on a Mississippi River flatboat and placed in the Natchez (Miss.) jail.

Hanford broke jail at Natchez, but was recaptured and placed in a cell at Holly Springs, Miss., by the United States Marshal of that district. I proceeded to Holly Springs and engaged lodgings.

It was with District Attorney Wells that I made my arrangements to be arrested. After going about the town for several days, chatting with people and making friends, I walked into a store and bought a box of paper collars, offering to pay for them with a fifty-dollar bill, which was refused. The bill had been made to look pale by a solution of acid, and the District Attorney had also marked it. After I took my collars—which I paid for with a fifty-cent fractional currency note—District Attorney Wells entered.

"If you don't mind," he said to the clerk, "I would like to see the bill that he who just went out gave you."

"It was a counterfeit, sure," yelled the young man, "and I refused it."

Mr. Wells said, "Watch out for that fellow, for he is a counterfeiter. If he comes in here again notify me at once, call the Sheriff and have him arrested."

That clerk did watch out for me, and when I went into the store a few days later and presented another pale, marked bill, this time a ten dollar note, he promptly notified Wells, and had me arrested by United States Marshal Pierce. Mr. Pierce was a very tall man, with a slow way of speaking. He held up a big gun while he read me his warrant in his slow and decidedly unmusical tone.

I denied any knowledge of the counterfeit or any acquaintanceship with counterfeiters. As he finished reading the warrant I attempted to throw away a big roll of counterfeit bills. Mr. Pierce made a dive for them, all the while keeping me covered with his big old style gun.

My alias was George Malm.

As Mr. Pierce recovered the bills he put his big gun a little closer to me.

"George Malm," said he, "you are a counterfeiter and I have got the evidence, sah, so you had better confess."

I became friendly with Hanford in the jail, for he soon learned that I had been arrested for passing counterfeit money. Being United States prisoners, we were handcuffed together one day and transferred to the County Jail at Oxford, Miss.

In order to impress Hanford I attempted to bribe the colored deputy, Randolph Gore. I offered him $5 if he would take the handcuffs off and let us escape.

"Doan' you try ter bribe me, sah; I am an officer of the law, sah, and I must do my duty, sah," replied Mr. Gore, as he held his gun a few inches closer to his prisoners.

When we reached the station Mr. Gore turned us over to the United States Marshal, who had preceded us. "Fo' heaven's sake, Mistah Marshal, watch dat little man, sah!" exclaimed Mr. Gore. "He is a bad man, suah, sah. Fo' de Lawd, dat man had his handcuffs off three times, and if I hadn't done my duty, sah, he would have escaped, suah, sah."

All of this by-play impressed Hanford with the belief that I was a desperate counterfeiter. He was beginning to regard me as a good man for a confederate if we ever got out of the scrape we were in. So I planned to break jail. Hanford advised me against the undertaking, but I told him that if he would stick to me we would get out together.

The United States Marshal was then taken into my secret, and he called to see me as was arranged the night I was to make my break for liberty. He took the Sheriff, Mr. Scroggs, to a dance, leaving only a colored deputy in charge of the prison. Well, we got out of the prison safely enough, for the colored deputy was very much scared and didn't move. We climbed onto the "blind side" of a freight train that was creeping by Oxford and made our way to Louisville, Ky.

We had not been in Louisville long before we were arrested and taken before "Yankee" Bly, the chief of police. As soon as I got the opportunity I explained to "Yankee" Bly who I was and what I was doing with Hanford, whom he knew to be an escaped counterfeiter. Of course the police chief decided at once that we were not the men he needed, and declared he had nothing against us.

If Hanford's own brother had told him at this time that I was a secret service man he would undoubtedly have laughed at him. Had I not risked my life to get him out of jail instead of getting him into one?

After our arrest and release in Louisville, we proceeded at once to Cincinnati, where I was introduced to the leaders of the big gang by Hanford, who declared that I had proven my loyalty beyond any question or doubt.

Then my work began in real earnest.

I have sometimes thought that were it possible for me to impart to all men when tempted to commit their first crime against our laws the knowledge gained by me in my twenty-three years' experience as to the end that must surely come, they would stop and turn back.

A. L. DRUMMOND.

Prodigal Jim Fisk.

It was in the memorable days of Erie railroad and Jim Fisk. A meeting of railroad men from all parts of the country had just adjourned. The irrepressible and lavish Fisk said:

"How many are there here, delegates, clerks, secretaries, reporters—count 'em all!"

"Three hundred was the estimate made.

"All right," responded Fisk. "The crowd feeds with me," and he sent a messenger to Delmonico's with this note:

"Have lunch, with wine, ready for three hundred in half an hour."

The service and the viands were perfect, and there was no delay. Fisk's stomach had temporarily given out, so he stuck to crackers and milk while the others feasted. The bill was nearly $2,000, and the giver of the entertainment evened the cost up to that sum by leaving the change for the waiters.

STORIES OF THE FIRES.

Three Events in the Great Northwest Holocaust.

One of the most remarkable of the many unaccountable incidents was developed in connection with the finding of the body of a man a few rods north of the dismal swamp north of Hinckley. The body of a man was found which had been exposed to such an intense heat that three silver dollars in his pocket had been melted together so that but one was recognizable. Near the body lay some cartridge loading tools and a flask containing nearly a pound of powder that was not exploded.—Minneapolis Tribune.

It appears, after all, that the two Chinamen who were on the ill-fated limited did not perish. They were seen to dive under the seats at a critical moment, and no amount of persuasion could get them to budge. No one saw them leave the train, and it was popularly supposed that they had burned up with it. Indeed, there are those who are willing to swear to it; but it seems that the two Mongols were picked up near Partridge, miles away from the scene of the disaster, but that is all their rescuers know. The Chinamen cannot explain, and their deliverance is a nine days' wonder.—St. Paul Dispatch.

Freda Johnson, of Partridge, 12 years old, saved her baby brother, two and a half years of age. Freda lived with her parents, and in the excitement she and little Joe got separated from the rest of the family, and he would have been left behind except for this brave sister. She is small for her age, and Joe is chubby and heavy, but she took him in her arms and followed her panic-stricken, flame-pursued neighbors. There were serpents of fire all around her, and they kissed her cheeks and hair with their hot breath, but she struggled and panted on. She fell twice, and the baby was bumped upon the gravel pathway, but he did not cry. He snuggled all the closer into the brave rescuing arms, and never once whimpered. Instinctively he seemed to know that danger threatened. She reached the little pond where the people took refuge, and fell rather than walked into the water with her precious burden.—St. Paul Pioneer Press.

THE BRITISH TAKE MT. ST. ELIAS.

A Survey Puts It on British Soil. Not the Highest.

The first survey of the boundary between the United States and Great Britain, made this season, has settled the ownership of the least valuable part of Alaska, provided there are no unexpected discoveries of precious metals in the coast region under dispute. The main body of the great region bought from Russia is definitely located on the one hundred and forty-first meridian.

But the point that the English hope to gain is to force the line down to cross some of the broad inlets running into the coast, and give them water access to their own territory, without regard to United States Custom Houses and tariff. It is not likely that they will be able to accomplish this.

One of the most important and regretted results of the season's work was to settle that Mt. St. Elias, so long regarded as the giant mountain of the continent, was not on American soil. What was almost as interesting was the determination of the height of the mountain. This was found to be 18,023 feet, considerably higher than the estimate given by numerous exploring parties of the Geographical Society of Washington.

But the most astonishing thing was the discovery of two, if not three, other mountains a few miles inland, on English territory, that are higher even than the famous saint's mountain. Of these, Mount Logan is 19,534 feet, and there are two other nameless peaks that overreach Mt. St. Elias by several feet.

A Quilt of Playbills.

A quilt of satin-printed playbills is the unique possession of Mrs. W. G. Jones, and old-time actress. The quilt is composed almost wholly of playbills, which have been printed on satin for souvenir occasions. There are pieces of plain silk, embroidered with the usual designs—butterflies, horseshoes, etc.—but the beauty spots of the quilt are the playbills. Another interesting feature is that the quilt is lined with the damask crimson satin which once formed the curtains of the Old Bowery Theatre. When the New Bowery was built most of the furnishings of the Old Bowery were sold. Mrs. Jones bought the curtains and put them to their present use. The quilt was mostly made "on the road," for Mrs. Jones did a deal of traveling when acting. "I always worked when waiting in the green-room for my cue," she said, in referring to the work. The quilt was begun in Kansas City in 1884 and finished in New York in 1887.

REMARKABLE CURES

Of Recent Date.

A Statement from Ex-Mayor John Corson, Esq., of Clinton, N. J.

TO THE PUBLIC:

I acknowledge with the utmost pleasure the wonderful cure which Dr. Lighthill effected in my case.

I had been a sufferer from piles, which gave me constant pain and distress, during twenty long years, attended with frequent loss of blood and with great and painful protrusion of the pile tumors and rectum whenever my bowels moved.

I tried constantly to get relief from my sufferings, but to no purpose until Mr. Bryan, a friend of mine, who had been cured by Dr. Lighthill of the same trouble, recommended him to me, and he effected a complete and radical cure in my case also, and earned my lifelong gratitude.

JOHN CORSON.

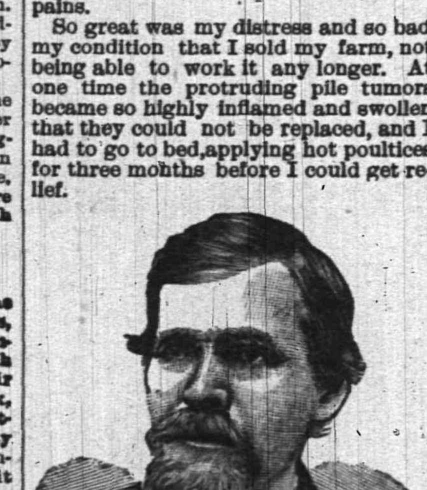
THE CASE OF MR. PETER G. EYCK, OF BISSELL, HUNTERDON CO., N. J.

Dr. Lighthill Effects a Complete Cure Where Ten Physicians Had Failed.

TO THE SICK, SUFFERING AND AFFLICTED:

For many years past I have been afflicted with bleeding piles. Every movement of the bowels was attended with loss of blood and with intense pain which lasted for hours and sometimes all day. My condition was aggravated by a prolapse of the rectum, which greatly increased my suffering and sometimes gave me most agonizing pains.

So great was my distress and so bad my condition that I sold my farm, not being able to work it any longer. At one time the protruding pile tumors became so highly inflamed and swollen that they could not be replaced, and I had to go to bed, applying hot poultices for three months before I could get relief.



I had been under the treatment of ten different physicians, some of New York City, Easton, Washington and elsewhere, without any benefit whatever, and had given up my case as hopeless when, luckily for me, I heard of Dr. Lighthill's skill and success in such cases, and went to him for treatment, with the happy result that he effected a radical and permanent cure in less than four weeks's time; and I am glad to say that the entire treatment gave me neither pain nor distress.

I consider my cure perfectly wonderful, and so do all my friends and neighbors. I am confident that there is no case of piles which Dr. Lighthill cannot cure.

Catarrh of the Nose, Throat, and Stomach—Life Made Miserable by Headaches, Pain and Cough.

Lida McCandless, No. 1230 South Thirtyfifth street, Philadelphia, in conversation with a reporter, said: "I had a very bad case of catarrh of the nose, throat and stomach, with frequent headaches, pain under the shoulder blades and a horrible cough. I had to keep my mouth constantly open day and night to breathe, and felt as miserable as one possibly could. I was advised to try Munyon's Catarrh Cure. I am happy to say that from the beginning I felt relieved and continued to grow better until now I am entirely well. I am so thankful that this remarkable remedy was ever discovered, and hope others will take advantage of my experience."

Have you Catarrh? Are you willing to investigate a treatment that cures Catarrh by removing the cause? If so ask your druggist for a 25c bottle of Catarrh Tablets. The Catarrh Cure will eradicate the disease from the system, and the Tablets will cleanse and heal the affected parts and restore them to a natural and healthful condition.

IT JUST GREW.

How a Bit of Village Gossip Started and Gathered as It Went.

"Speakin' of stories gittin' started," remarked old Mr. Multy, as he rearranged the piles of brown wrapping paper into a more comfortable cushion on the top of the nail keg, "it does beat all. It come mighty nigh goin' hard with ol' Jim Johnsin once on account of a story growin' a little."

"Tell us about it," said the young new clerk, to whom most of the corner store stories were as yet new.

"Well, you see," began Mr. Multy, "old Dekin Swaller come home to dinner one day, an' he happens to say to Mrs. Swaller, 'I met young Slimmers to-day, an' he said that he heerd that Jim Johnsin was thinkin' of buyin' the widder Spriggins' place.'

"Jes as soon as the dekin had gone down town agin Mrs. Swaller puts her shawl on an' steps across to Anastashy Soper's, an' says: 'What do you s'pose I heerd this mornin'? Jim Johnsin has bought the widder Spriggins' place. I wonder if he's goin' to take the widder along with the rest of the prop'ty?'

"'Jes's like as not,' says Anastashy; 'an' his wife not dead yet six months!'

"Soon as Mrs. Swaller's gone, Anastashy skipped over to ol' Mrs. Grumpy. She had to talk loud to the ol' lady on account her defness, an' even then Mrs. Grumpy didn't ketch quite all she said, an' had to guess some.

"Anastashy says: 'Have you heerd the news? Jim Johnsin's goin' to marry the widder Spriggins for her prop'ty.'

"'How?'

"'Jim Johnsin's goin' to marry the widder Spriggins' for her prop'ty.'

"'No! Is 'e?'

"'That's what they say. I allus heerd he thought a good deal of the widder 'fore his first wife died.'

"'Yes, that's so. What they goin' to do with Jim's two children?'

"'I don't believe the widder 'll have 'em 'round. They'll prob'ly have to send 'em to the orphan asylum.'

"'How?'

"'Orphan asylum.' An' Anastashy she happened to think she'd left three pies in the oven, an' she skipped back home 'fore the old lady could half git the thing straight. She had roomatics so bad she couldn't git out to carry the news along, an' she was on nettles till young Mrs. Fred Gadabout come in, an' then she says, all of a tremor: 'Did you hear the news? Jim Johnsin's goin' to marry the widder Spriggins to git the farm the old man Spriggins worked so hard to pay for.'

"'Goodness gracious!'

"'How?'

"'Goodness gracious.'"

"'Who did?'

"'I say, goodness gracious!'

"'Yes, I guess so. An' Jim's two children has gone clean crazy 'bout it, an' they're talkin' 'bout sendin' 'em to the 'sylum.'

"'You don't tell me!'

"'How?'

"'You don't tell me!'

"'I haven't heerd, but there's been talk that Jim thought a good deal of the widder 'fore his first wife died, an' that may be he pizened her.'

"'Mercy! He ought to be hung!'

"'How?'

"'They ought to hang him.'

"'Well,' says the old lady kind o' chucklin' knowin' like to herself—well,' says she, 'if he marries the widder Spriggins he'll wish they had.'"—Harper's Bazar.

BABIES IN JAPAN.

The Mikado's Kingdom No Longer a Child's Eden.

If any further evidence were needed of the influence of civilization upon the treatment of children, it would be found in the very noticeable change that has passed over the Japanese since they have adopted Western ways, says an ex-attache in the New York Tribune. Formerly Japan was the paradise of children, to whom everything and everybody gave way. The principal festivals and public holidays were those organized for the sake of the little ones, and even the grown people were wont to enter with enthusiasm into their games and amusements. It was not the Mikado or the Tycoon who ruled the people of Dai Nippon, but Boya San, which may be interpreted into English as "My Lord Baby." In those good old days, and they were still in existence fifteen and twenty years ago, cruelty to children was punishable by death; and while it is perfectly true that I never heard of any one suffering this penalty, yet I never during my earlier stays in Japan saw a child maltreated.

Now, however, with the invasion of a Western civilization, Japan is far less of a baby's Eden than in bygone days. The children's festivals are losing their importance and are fewer in number, the foundations of Boya San's throne are shaken, and the face of the tiny Jap is no longer as beaming with fun, merriment and contentment as when I first went there. It is all the effect of Western civilization, and I suppose that in due course we shall learn that it has become necessary to organize a Tokio society for the prevention of cruelty to children, on the same lines as those in London, Paris and other European capitals.—Boston Transcript.

True Anarchists.

Some thirty men were recently tried in Paris for belonging to an association of Anarchists. Among those acquitted was a young Anarchist poet, who proceeded joyfully to his lodgings, and discovered, much to his surprise, that all his clothes had disappeared. Shortly afterward he discovered an anarchist friend wearing a pair of his trousers, and then another wearing one of his coats, and still another rejoicing in his new frock coat. It seems that his friends decided among themselves that he would be convicted, and had shared his clothes among them.

Inherited Traits.

The thin, sallow-faced man said: "Yes, it's mighty strange how these superstitions do hang on, a heritate of former days. Why, I know men right here in Buffalo, well-educated and intelligent men, who have the most peculiar fancies. One I know who absolutely refuses to go down the right side of the street when a creditor of his is coming up the same side; he invariably crosses over. They say he inherited it from his father, too."—Buffalo Express.

THE COST OF A BATTLE SHIP.

It's a Pot o' Money, but May be One of the Best of Investments.

In looking over the appropriations for the support of the Government for a fiscal year probably no item will be found therein which specifies so much money to be expended for so limited an object as one similar to the following:

"The President is hereby authorized to have constructed by contract one seagoing, coastline battle ship, designed to carry the heaviest armor and most powerful ordnance, at a cost, exclusive of armament and of any premium that may be paid for increased speed, not exceeding $4,000,000."

At the first glance it scarcely seems possible that a single ship, that can be tossed around at will by the billows of the ocean, or be destroyed completely in a few hours if cast upon a lee shore, could cost such an enormous amount of money. Four million dollars would build a magnificent fleet of forty full-rigged ships, each capable of carrying 2,000 tons of cargo to any port in the world. It would buy every ferryboat plying between New York, Brooklyn, and Jersey City. It would be sufficient to establish a line of sixteen good-sized steamships, such as run from New York to Jacksonville, Fla., and other domestic ports. A fleet of fifty such crack yachts as the Vigilant could be built and fitted up in elegant style for the price paid for just one battle ship.

If we make our comparisons with objects on shore, more astonishing facts can be gleaned. Take, for instance, dwelling houses; a good three-story brick house, occupying a lot 25 feet by 100 in an ordinary city, would be worth on an average about $10,000. Four million dollars would build 400 houses of that class, and if these houses were placed in one row, after making due allowance for streets and sidewalks, we would have nearly two miles of dwellings.

It will naturally be asked, after reading the above statement, how is it possible to expend this great sum for just one ship? A visit to a large shipbuilding establishment where such vessels are constructed will disclose the fact that the principal item of expense must be the labor. Walk through the draughting room, the pattern shop, the machine shop, the boiler shop, and out on the vessel herself, and everywhere you will find men working away hour by hour, all for the one ship. If we should count them we would find that there are nearly eight hundred employed on one part or another of this four-million-dollar vessel. Month after month they work, and probably at the end of four years' time their task will be completed.

However, the men we find about the yard are not the only ones who are employed in the construction of the battle ship. In different parts of the country many others are working in the mines, the blast furnaces, and rolling mills to produce the material for the men in the yard to work upon. Altogether it is safe to say that a thousand men are constantly employed for a period of four years in the construction of one of these leviathans of the sea.

GOWNS SHE WILL WEAR THIS FALL.

Stuffs and Styles, Colors and Costs for Milady's Choice.

"No grays or greens," said Madame, with the indescribable little shrug which helps to convince her customers of her skill as a modiste. "Never wear cold colors in the fall. In the spring and summer, yes. But as soon as the chill comes into the air, then wear only what has a suggestion of warmth in it."

Madame's dictum seems to have been adopted by all the manufacturers. The fall woolen goods have hints of red in them. There are a few grays and greens, to be sure, but they are the grays that have warm, pinkish tints and the greens that have yellow lights rather than blue ones. Browns, wood browns, russet browns, golden browns, red browns and chocolate browns are shown in every conceivable fabric. The materials most favored, however, are rough cloths, camel's hair serges and shaggy tweeds and cheviots. Fine checks with the dividing lines scarcely defined are popular designs. The new rough materials cost from $2.50 to $5 a yard. Fortunately the goods is wide in proportion to its price.

One of the new fall shades bears the name "Francaise." It is cerise, with a little more purple than usual added. Another is Lincoln green, which the dealers are endeavoring to make popular, in a heavy, smooth-finished goods. Broadcloths in golden and russet brown come accompanied by vestings, in which pin dots in white relieve the monotony of the brown.

One of the prettiest and Frenchiest frocks yet shown for fall wear is of smooth brown, checked in chocolate and cream. The checks are very small and the line of division not very clear, so that the general effect is a blurred brown. The skirt is cut short, is generally full and has a couple of rows of stitching about ten inches above the bottom. The bodice is made with a jacket opening over a vest composed of gathered cream-colored silk and a cream lace jabot. The jacket is short, ending at the waist line, and has a double collar and double-jointed revers. The upper collar and the revers are of plain chocolate brown cloth.

Luxury In America.

Gilbert Parker in the St. James Gazette, says:

I believe, apart from hot breads and ice-waters, that Americans have more luxury than we have, and know how to be comfortable as well as ourselves. That they enjoy life as well all around is another thing. They are a nervous people and they must be gadding; they are mentally active—shall I say electrical?—and they must be worrying themselves; and a certain class would be less dyspeptic if they took more time to eat, ate at home and swore off from pie, pickles, green tea, preserves and cocktails. But then a certain class of Englishmen would be better, if they drank less beer and came later to the line of saturation. Also we may as well take home to ourselves the fact that the average intelligence is higher in America than here, as in Australia than here.

The Frenchman asked an English sparmaker what he was making.

"A yard," was the reply.

"How much have you got done?" was the next question.

"A yard."

"Where did the spar come from?"

"The yard."

And the Frenchman was very much surprised at the lucidity of the answers, and amazed at the simplicity of our language.—Leisure Hours.

IF THERE'S A BABY IN THE HOUSE.

An Infant Should be Brought Up by Rule to be Healthy.

Mrs. Peary gives some valuable points on the care of babies in a recent description of her methods to preserve her baby daughter's health in the terrible cold of a polar winter. She devoted her time entirely to the little one, and thus secured absolute regularity of meals and sleeping hours. To this Mrs. Peary attributes part of the baby's remarkable resistance to her trying environment. Mrs. Jenness Miller, whose little daughter, now three years old, was similarly brought up with one eye on the clock in all matters pertaining to sleeping, eating, bathing, and exercise, points with pardonable pride to the splendid and unbroken health record of her small Vivian as a result.

The start has to be made very early in life. A three weeks' old baby becomes a creature of habit difficult to change, an infant of two months is almost confirmed in either good or evil ways. For this reason, young mothers who find it necessary to count the cost of nursery assistance may with wisdom hire for the first six months an intelligent "modern" adult nurse, who will start the little one securely on the right road, and dispense the second six months with any help in his care. This is preferable to the harmful and wearing struggle—harmful and wearing to mother and child—with the incompetent service afforded by the novice who comes in to "mind the baby."—New York Times.

QUEER ENGLISHMEN THESE.

A Family Destitute of Fingers Lives in Lincolnshire.

In a Lincolnshire village in England lives a family who suffer under the curious deformity of being fingerless. This peculiarity does not appear to be one of those freaks of nature which may appear in one individual and not be transmitted to the next generation. From what can be learned, the singularity has existed in this family so far as history or tradition extends, and there seems at present no signs of its dying out, as the grandchildren are as devoid of fingers as their grandsire. The hands of this remarkable family present the appearance of having had the fingers amputated, or chopped off roughly and unevenly below the second joint, leaving a short stump. There is no nail or hard substance, and were it not for the absence of anything like a cicatrice, casual observers would conclude that the defect was due to an accident; but, as though nature had attempted to compensate for the absence of fingers, the thumbs are abnormally large and strong. The family are in other respects fully endowed by nature, and do not appear to suffer the disadvantages the absence of fingers might be expected to entail. One of the daughters, aged 20, can write, sew, knit, and is in every way as dexterous and accomplished as other girls of her age and station.

POMPEII WAS NOT LARGE.

In Its Best Days the Buried City Had Only 30,000 People.

Pompeii in her most flourishing period could not have had more than 30,000 inhabitants. After a sleep of many thousands of years, suddenly the volcano was awakened. In A.D. 63 there was the premonitory earthquake, and many buildings were destroyed. The traces of this remarkable earthquake are visible to-day. It was the eruption of A.D. 79 which buried the city to a depth of more than six feet. It was a shower first of pumice stone, followed by ashes. Prof. Man is of the opinion that these showers were not red hot, because the remains of wood found are not carbonized, but the changes visible are all due to atmospheric action. Volcanic action on Herculaneum was different. With the pumice stone and cinders there was a flood of mud, which soon set until it became as hard as cement. After the Pompeiian catastrophe, the upper part of the buildings were above the ashes.

Richard Mansfield's Curios.

One of Richard Mansfield's most conspicuous traits is his mania for acquiring curios of almost every description. As a result he is to-day possessed of a collection which is as interesting as it is large and varied. He has, among other things, a set of Oriental pottery which he obtained by the merest chance some three years ago from a peddler who had attracted his attention in an interior city of New York. It consists of three pieces, one, a large water flask, being a most hideous piece, in imitation of a dragon, but such a dragon as only the most fevered imagination could picture.

It was claimed by the peddler and proven by subsequent researches that this pottery represents a period in Turkish civilization of which relics are to-day very scarce. Mr. Mansfield has a large assortment, too, of daggers, spears and other weapons, some being extremely old. One of his daggers was sent him anonymously by an admirer in Washington, D. C., supposed to be one of the foreign diplomatic corps, and is without question the most valuable one he possesses. It has a jeweled hilt, is of the finest steel, but bears evidence of being extremely old.

Mr. Mansfield has also accumulated a natural history collection, which has grown to such proportions that he finds it inconvenient to store and is accordingly contemplating sending it to the National Museum in the Smithsonian Institution, Washington. It includes many varieties of animal life, its chief feature being a very valuable collection of seashells, said by a prominent conchologist to contain many specimens found in few museums.

A Murillo for the Dresden Gallery.

The Murillo, recently purchased for the Dresden Gallery, is one of the eleven pictures made by the artist for the Monastery of St. Francis in Seville. The price paid for the picture was $15,000. The picture shows St. Clara on the left as the centre of a group of attendants. On the right are Christ and the Virgin, very youthful, lovely face and figures moving toward the dying Saint. Around them are twelve female figures, six of which seem to be portraits of noble virgins at the Spanish Court. The other six are not clearly to be seen, and suggest that the right side of the picture represents a vision visible only in the eyes of the saint.

Somebody had done something to provoke the scorn and contumely of Mr. Skaggs, and he was ranting about it in the silliest manner.

"By George," he exclaimed, "I'd like to be the fool-killer for a year or so."

"Oh, no, Hiram," protested Mrs. Skaggs "you don't want to be placed in a position where you would have to commit suicide."—Detroit Free Press.

HOW TO GET MARRIED.

Many Customs in Various Countries for Joining Affinities.

In Java the bride washes the groom's feet as a token of subjection.

In Hungary at one time the groom gave the bride a kick for the same purpose during the wedding ceremony.

Horseback weddings, where groom and bride ride at full speed away from their pursuing attendants, are still sometimes seen in Tartary.

Among the Borneo head-hunters a young man, in offering marriage to a young woman, had to present her with the head of a man killed by himself.

Tournefort says that among Greek rustics to-day the bride and groom run the gauntlet of young folks of their acquaintance, who kick and cuff them as they pass.

A Roman bride was lifted by her husband at the threshold of his home and carried across it, probably symbolizing the great day when so many of the young Romans carried home stolen brides.

In some old houses in Holland are doors which were in former days never used except for weddings and funerals. After a bride and groom had passed the door was nailed up until another newly wed or newly dead approached to pass that way.

Crape at Funerals.

There has been in recent years no change in the display of crape at the door in case of death except by the addition occasionally of a few flowers to the ordinary emblem; usually white flowers for a child, and any full-blown flowers for an older person. The usual crape for a person of either sex up to the age of about nineteen would be all white, white ribbon upon white crape or tarlatan; for a person of from nineteen to forty, black crape with white and black ribbons; for persons above forty, crape and ribbons all black. The dimensions are generally from the doorbell to the step. If there is a bell pull, the crape is usually hung upon that; if an electric button, the plate is unscrewed enough to admit the crape under it and the plate is then screwed into place again.

Relentless Time.

He started in alarm.

"No," she repeated; "you do not know what my past life has been."

His fingers pressed convulsively into his palms.

"Surely," he cried; "it has not been more than thirty-five years."

The ocean moaned as it has for ages, and that was all.

They Think 'Tis Eve's Grave.

The grave of Eve is visited by four hundred thousand pilgrims each year. It is to be seen at Jeddah, in a cemetery outside the city walls. The tomb is fifty cubits long and twelve wide. The Arabs entertain a belief that Eve was the tallest woman who ever lived.—Chicago Interior.

A HYPNOTIC TRIAL.

That visit to Doctor Secor seemed fatal to my hopes. Selma had always been somewhat erratic and chimerical in her mental tendencies. There was a wayward independence in her nature that marked her either for a deluded crank or a strong genius. I trembled sometimes as to which.

I did not love her for these abnormal qualities, but more for the beauty of her form and face, and a quiet, sympathetic personality that slumbered somewhere in her nature. She did not look kindly upon my efforts to reclaim her from her mental fads. I felt at times that she believed in occult things just to shock my sense of propriety. When I was fully satisfied of this, I swung around to the other extreme and indulgently listened to all of her wild vagaries concerning mysticism, spirits, mind-readers, and astral bodies.

This was how we came to visit Doctor Secor, the celebrated hypnotist. I decided to disarm her of all suspicion. I would not cross her in anything. But I soon had cause to regret my approval of this extreme course. How well I remember the words of the doctor when he examined her as a subject for exhibiting his almost supernatural power.

"I do not wish to use you. You have in you the making of a powerful hypnotist. Yield to no one, but make others your subjects."

With that he dismissed her, but no one saw the look of exultation in her eyes as I did. She was now conscious of her power. Her eyes were feverishly bright as we left the meeting. I knew that the mischief was done, and I quietly waited the results.

Selma never did things by halves. When I saw the books piled upon her dainty table two nights after this visit, I knew that she was making a study of hypnotism. At first she was shy about her new fad, but she soon launched boldly forth into her subject. She was reading everything about the question, from the first principles up to the latest discoveries. I tried to discourage her, and to draw her mind toward other interesting things. But that was not Selma to yield until she had exhausted her passion, and the thing itself began to cloy.

One evening I called later than usual. I was not in an enviable frame of mind. Things had irritated me that day, and I found myself in the desperate mood of wishing to bring matters to a climax between Selma and myself. If she would not accept my love I would give up the chase. I would use every legitimate means and argument to force her to love and accept me. She could not be won by quiet, modest wooing. She required the determined opposition of a mind that would conquer her own in the struggle for supremacy.

Strange that I did not think of the words of Doctor Secor as I revolved these thoughts in my brain! I never once thought of Selma's mind being stronger than my own. I had always treated her as a half-spoiled, petted child, that needed a master and adviser. I had unconsciously assumed this function for myself.

Despite my self-possession and self-absorption in one great subject, as I entered her room I soon became aware of a peculiar sensation. The articles in the room had all been changed, and Selma herself looked strangely bright and fascinating. Her eyes were never more brilliant and attractive. She was dressed in an evening costume that set off her great beauty rather than concealed it. She glided toward me in a winsome, sylph-like fashion, and extended a warm hand to welcome me. I shuddered as I dropped the hand—why, I could not say. My eyes wandered around the room, and then back to Selma each time. She was always watching me, with her lips half-parted in a smile.

"Why have you changed the furniture so, Selma?" I asked in a voice that seemed somewhat dreamy to me.

"Why? Do you not like it?" she answered slowly, without removing her eyes from me.

They were very brilliant. I could almost imagine they were two stars. They were a complete study in themselves. I wandered somewhat in my thoughts, and then recalled myself.

"Have you anything new on hypnotism?" I asked irrelevantly, looking toward her recent collection of books.

"Nothing in book-form, but I have——"

A strange idea flashed across my mind as if by intuition, and I interrupted her only to finish her own sentence.

"You have been to see Doctor Secor?"

She nodded her head simply, and shrugged her pretty shoulders.

"Selma, this is going too far!" I burst out wrathfully. "You should not do such——"

She waved her hands imperiously, and said decidedly:

"Stop! you have said enough."

This was so unlike Selma that I obeyed. I thought her eyes grew more feverish, and she was making graceful motions with her hands that fascinated me. I watched her mutely.

Then I grew dizzy. I clutched the arms of my chair and caught for my breath. It dawned upon me that she was trying to hypnotize me. Doctor Secor had initiated her into the mysteries of his power. The thought at first was revolting and made me angry. But before I could speak a heavy sigh came from Selma. She was breathing hard and fast. Did she think to triumph over me, to bring my mind under her control? She might have a strong personality but I was willing to test my own powers against hers. I braced myself for the ordeal, and returned her steady gaze.

The sudden wave of strength which swept over me seemed to confuse and mystify her. She sighed again, and clutched her hands nervously. Then she gradually grew quiet and passive. Her hands seemed to lose their power, and her whole form dropped back into her chair listlessly. A wild feeling of exultation possessed me. I felt that I had triumphed. She was in my power. I could do with her as I pleased.

Then came the strong desire to make her love me. I could force her to that against her will. She could not escape. I had come to declare my love. I would first tell her of it, and if she refused my pleadings I would command her to love me.

"Selma," I spoke slowly, and my voice sounded strange and unnatural. "You are in my power."

She raised her head slightly as if to resist.

"Not entirely," she faltered. "I have failed, but you have not wholly triumphed."

"But I can," I answered.

"No, no, I shall not yield. You can go no further."

It was a far-away voice, and it floated to me softly. It seemed unlike that of Selma.

The room itself looked peculiar. There was something in the atmosphere that was enervating. My own limbs were dragging me down heavily into the chair. The sensation startled me.

"Selma, you must do my bidding," I said again, determined to try the effect of my power. "What I command, you must do."

She laughed a low, silvery laugh. Then mockingly, she added:

"You are over-estimating your power as I over-estimated mine. I am not your subject yet."

It was not necessary to tell me this. I could see that our two minds were struggling for the mastery, and each was baffled by the other. My feelings were strange beyond comprehension. I felt almost as if I was in a trance. I realized that if I should yield one inch Selma would triumph and obtain complete ascendancy over me. A weakening sensation crept upon my limbs and nearly paralyzed them. The thought that I was yielding inch by inch roused me, and I recovered my strength again with a great effort. As I regained possession of my powers, Selma seemed to waver and grow more nervous.

"I shall conquer," I muttered, more to myself. "You must yield. I shall read your life, and make you tell me of the future!"

Her hands fluttered nervously and her eyelids drooped. Her whole form threatened to collapse before me. For the moment I had gained the subtle power over her.

"Tell me, Selma, what I ask of you," I said, raising my hand. "It is impossible to resist longer. You are my subject. You must answer me truthfully."

She nodded assent, and whispered slowly:

"Yes, I must answer you; but you cannot ask me the questions you wish. I know what they are. You cannot ask them, but I will answer what you ask."

This strange confession confused me. Could not ask her what I wished. The thought made me smile. Had she the power over me to keep back the question that was uppermost in my mind? No; I would declare my love and get her confession from her. I tried to frame my thoughts in appropriate language, but my mind was confused. I vainly endeavored to begin, but each sentence that I revolved in my brain seemed unsuitable. My mind was never so uncertain and lacking in decision. Could I not speak? Bashful lover never hesitated so long as I did to declare his love. Was she really exerting a subtle influence over me that confused my mind and kept back the words I wanted to utter?

"Selma, when did you see Doctor Secor?" I said, anxious to discover whether I had lost control of my tongue.

"To-day," she said, simply.

"Did he teach you how to hypnotize?" I continued.

"Yes, he tried to, but I have partly failed."

"Not partly, but wholly," I answered, quickly.

She smiled as she answered:

"You are mistaken. You are partly under my power. You cannot rise from your chair without permission from me, and you cannot ask me the question you desire."

To show how absurd her words were I attempted to get up, but my limbs were paralyzed. I could not move. Neither could I tell her of my love and ask her to accept me. The realization of my condition made the perspiration stand out in great beads on my forehead.

"How can I free my self from this position?" I asked in desperation.

"Only by obtaining my consent."

"And you? How can you return to your normal condition?"

She smiled.

"You have it within your power to relieve me."

"Then I will do it as soon as I have shown my power over you. I must tell you that I——"

I could get no further. The words choked in my mouth. My pride forsook me at the thought of my utter helplessness. I bowed my head.

"It is useless. There is some mysterious power holding me back. I cannot tell you."

"If I willed it so you could, and I would have to answer you truthfully."

I did not raise my head. I was sick of the whole business. It was ruinous to the mind and nerves. I almost dreaded the result of such a strain upon Selma, with her sensitive, emotional nature.

"Release me, Selma, and I will withdraw my influence," I said, suddenly raising my head.

But as my eyes met her bright ones, a delicious sensation stole over me. My spirits rose with a jump. The heavy oppression was withdrawn. I only realized that Selma was before me—bright, beautiful, entrancing. My tongue was now free, and in the most eloquent language I poured out the story of my passion. I even rose from my chair and advanced to her side. She was still sitting motionless with her hands hanging listlessly by her side. She answered my questions as a child—as a mere automaton. There was no animation or emotion in her words or voice. She was stilled entranced, hypnotized.

I recoiled from her. The truth flashed across my mind in an instant. At my bidding she had relinquished her subtle power over my mind, but in my enthusiasm I had forgotten to release her. From a partial state of hypnotism she had then rapidly fallen into a totally quiescent, passive condition. I had unconsciously taken undue advantage of her and obtained her mechanical confession of love. The thought filled me with remorse and disquietude.

I turned from her and bowed my head on my hands. The whole night's experience had been disagreeable and even horrible to me. I vowed that it would be the last time I should ever tamper with hypnotism or other unseen mental forces. I dreaded to look around and see what effect the whole occurrence had upon Selma. She was quiet and immovable, but her hard breathing fell monotonously upon my ears.

"Selma," I said, finally, turning to her, "let us never try this experiment again."

She looked up at me and shuddered. She was now in her normal condition. The feverish brilliancy of her eyes had disappeared.

"No, never," she murmured. "It seems as if I was waking out of a dream. But it was a delicious dream, or at least part of it. I thought that——"

A flush tinged her cheeks, and she dropped her eyes.

"What, Selma?" I asked.

"Nothing, except that we were together, and that I was happy."

She remembered nothing. Her confessions of love were a secret with me. With them still ringing in my ears, I then repeated my tale of devotion, knowing full well beforehand that she loved me, though outwardly she might seem indifferent.—George Ethelbert Walsh.

HIGH SCHOOL NOTEBOOK.

Plainfield Students Thoroughly Up to Date.

GOING TO REWRITE SHAKESPEARE.

Keep Posted on the News of the Day, and Decide to Run a Paper of Their Own—Kappa Delta Phi's Talk of Keeping Secret Future Sessions.

The lovely October days have put the students into humor for good solid work, and the classes are progressing rapidly. The beginners Physics class is studying the different classes of levers and pulleys, while the advanced class is hard at work amid the problems of electricity. The zoology students have been dissecting lobsters, and carrying round stray claws as souvenirs. The diurnal circles have taken the attention of the Astronomy class. The class will meet some evening this week to study the stars.

The news discussion of the Senior Class has been regularly changed to Monday morning. The work was carried on all last year and is a great success. It enables all the class to keep posted in the events of the day. News of the war between Japan and China is a favorite theme.

A novel contest is about to be carried on the Senior Class. The pupils will be divided into two sides, and will hold a pronouncing match. As one side misses a word the other side has a right to choose a student from among its opponents. Miss Valentine Chandor will act as captain of one side, assisted by Miss Helen A. Hazen. The leader of the other side will be Edward O. Clarke, who will be assisted by Charles B. Morse. The match should prove both exciting and instructive.

The declamations in Assembly Hall have commenced. Edgar I. Serrell and Elwood Sebring, both of '95, spoke last week. Great is the gloom in the Senior and Junior classes, for none of the students knows who the successive victims will be.

The regular drill was held last week and the boys company was divided up into squads and drilled. Green still fills the position of commanding officer.

The football eleven has completely disappeared, and a number of the High School boys are playing on the other Plainfield teams. This is too bad, for there is certainly enough material in the school to form a first-rate eleven. It is not too late yet. Football under Association rules has become quite popular, and there has been some talk of a match game between the Seniors and Juniors.

General athletics have completely died out, and it is seldom now that we hear how Serrell won that run or how well Richardson rode that race. Better bicycle riding could not be had, though, than on the lovely afternoons we have had, and many of the boys have taken advantage of them. The run scheduled for last Wednesday was postponed on account of the unavoidable absence of all of the officers, no one being left to take command. Next Wednesday is now set.

Skating will come ere long, and with it hockey. This year's hockey team will be ably managed by Volney F. Green '96.

Interest in the literary societies has taken another boom, and, it is hoped, a lasting one. The membership of Kappa Delta Phi is limited to 15; already there are 13 members, with six applications for the two vacant memberships. A number of new names has been added to the roll-call of the Lyceum.

At the regular weekly meeting of the Kappa Delta Phi a hat talk was provided, and the members spoke as follows: Ernest Rapalye '97, "Is the British Empire Stable?" J. H. Craig '96, "Should a Young Man Ever Inform on His Classmates?" Henry Eggerding '96, "Are the Masses Contented?" Lewis Rand '96, "Should Every Boy Go to College?" Charles B. Morse '95, "Astronomy and Astrology." Carl C. Gallup '96, "Dress Reform." Edgar I. Serrell '95, "The Best Way to Keep a Class of Boys in Order." Arthur B. Crane '97, "The Advantages of Football." P. Wilbur Cornwell '96, "Social Intercourse in the High School." J. V. Rittenhouse '97, "Plainfield's Industries."

Among the various ideas brought forward for the advancement of the Kappa Delta Phi was that of an International Conference, each member of the society to represent some foreign nation and then each make a short speech on his version of the war over Corea and his wishes in regard to it. A meeting of this kind will be given probably in November.

The first number of the High School Record will be read in next Friday's meeting. C. B. Morse '95 was elected editor. C. C. Gallup '96 will be associate editor. E. I. Serrell '95 will take charge of the athletic department, Henry Eggerding '96 of the science department, and the literary and humorous departments will be under the able control of John V. Beekman, Jr., '95. Everyone that knows Beekman is sure that this department will be a success. The paper will be issued in manuscript.

After the business meeting a letter was read from John C. Whiting '93, an honorary member, at present a student in Amherst College. The letter was full of congratulations for the past success of the society and hopes for its future, and leavened with a little good advice.

Next Monday they will meet as a Committee of the Whole to discuss the plan of changing the Kappa Delta Phi to a secret society.

At the Lyceum's meeting the programme consisted of short readings by each member, as follows: Thomas D. Blair '95, "Watches that Talk." F. Wilbur Cornwell '96, "A Battle Ship; or, Twelve Torpedo Boats." Henry B. Drake '95, "Elias Howe and the Sewing Machine." Carl C. Gallup '96, "History of the High School Lyceum", by Clarence Smith. Ernest Suffern '97, "The Bad Boy Abroad" (very laughable). J. V. Rittenhouse '97, "A Machine of Great Delicacy". Llewellyn Bull '96, "The Bad Boy Abroad", continued(still more laughable) A short talk will be the programme for the next meeting.

For the special Fall meeting, it was decided to act out a burlesque on one of Shakespeare's plays, written to suit the occasion. Carl C. Gallup '96, Charles B. Morse '95, and F. Wilbur Cornwell '96, were appointed committee.

Superintendent Maxson gave his regular weekly talk Friday morning. It was the third of a series on China and Japan, and was much enjoyed by all the pupils. He told the causes of the war and the principal events up to the present time, and spoke on both the Japanese and Chinese side of the question. So you see the High School keeps up to date.

NINETY-FIVE.

Heard on the Ferry-Boat.

Two prominent Union County Republicans were heard on the ferry-boat discussing the strength of the different offices to be competed for at the November election.

"Codding is all right socially, and every other way as a man, but he seems to be a weak element, and I don't believe in the nomination of anyone who will weaken the entire county ticket"—said one of the men, who afterward proved to be a county delegate.

"Well, how about County Clerk?"—asked the other.

"As to that"—was the reply—"there is a question. Codding for Assembly is accused of having sacrificed the Republican nominee for Freeholder at Westfield, but the question is asked—was he as shortsighted as Freeholders Howard of Rahway and Hulskamper of Elizabeth, both candidates for County Clerk, when by their votes a Democrat was retained in the position of County Engineer? Anyone false to his party will be opposed in the county convention, I believe."

And the boat slid into the slip.

Catholics Condemn the Clan-Na-Gael.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE DAILY PRESS:—The A. P. A. is remarkable for its cowardly methods, hence the cowardice of its latest defender in seeking shelter under an assumed name is fully in accordance with the association's general policy. In order to dispel a little of "American's" bigoted ignorance I would state that the Clan-Na-Gael is condemned by the Catholic church equally with all other oath-bound, secret societies. "American's" retaliative example, therefore, is ill-advised. It is not ad rem. I have shown what I desired to show, the real aim and object of the A. P. A., which can commend itself only to the most narrow-minded and bigoted portion of any community.

Thanking you for your courtesy, I am,
Sincerely yours,
F. J. MURPHY.

Plainfield, Oct. 22, '94.

The Difference Between a Newspaper and an Organ.

A North Plainfield Republican in speaking of The Daily Press's fair-minded report of the Republican meeting of Friday evening which appeared in Saturday's issue, truly remarked that there was a strong contrast between that report and the report given by the Republican organ of the Democratic caucus held in the school-house the same evening. Notwithstanding it was the largest caucus of either party held this Fall in North Plainfield, that paper reported it as "a handful of Democrats", and the report was otherwise biased and garbled for partisan purposes.

To Study Local History.

The new programme of the Plainfield Branch Alliance on "Our Own Little World" will be begun at the meeting to be held in the lecture-room of All Souls Church tomorrow afternoon at 3. All women are welcome. The subject is as follows:

Geography and History of New Jersey—Early settlement, character of founders, and impress made by them on the commonwealth. The form of its political government. Laws of the State affecting women as wives, mothers and property-owners.

Progress of Higher Criticism.

George W. Stone of Wilmington, Del., preached in All Souls Church last evening. Mr. Stone is a national bank examiner, his territory including Delaware, New Jersey, and a part of Long Island, and is now stopping at Hotel Albion. He is a prominent layman, and an interesting speaker. His text last evening was Exodus 14:15—"The Lord said unto Moses Wherefore comest thou unto Me? Speak unto the children of Israel as they go forward." His subject was "The Forward Movement". He told of the progress of higher criticism.

Citizens Organized Aid.

The meeting in Vincent Chapel (at the rear of the Methodist Church) at 8 tonight, is a public meeting, free to all. Aside from a brief report of the year's work, the main feature will be the address of Dr. Charlton T. Lewis of New York on certain aspects of modern charities.

Not often have Plainfield people such an opportunity for instruction in such an engrossing theme.

The Wilds of Front Street.

About 10 Saturday evening, as Louis Schutt of Duer street was passing Marsh, Ayers & Co's store on East Front street, he saw something between the trolley tracks that resembled a cat, but which proved to be an opossum. The little stranger was easily captured by Mr. Schutt, who presented the find to a colored man who happened along. The thanks received from the recipient more than paid Mr. Schutt for his trouble.

—As Vincent Chapel is otherwise engaged this evening, the rehearsal of the Choral Society will take place there tomorrow evening, as announced at last week's rehearsal.

Children Cry for Pitcher's Castoria.

When Baby was sick, we gave her Castoria.
When she was a Child, she cried for Castoria.
When she became Miss, she clung to Castoria.
When she had Children, she gave them Castoria.

LIVELY WEST END.

Many Matters of Interest up in Twenty Pondville.

Mrs. Charles Adams and son and daughter of Femmisburg are visiting Mr. and Mrs. H. Hoffman of West Front street.

Robert York of West Front street is spending a few days at home in Scranton.

Some time this week ground will be broken by the Plainfield Ice Co. for a skating pond in the old Cadmus pond. It will occupy the entire field.

Friday night someone made a visit to the wire fence at Pond's, broke off the posts, and took them home for wood.

Four new houses will be built on West Front street north of Grant avenue by F. O. Smith of West Front street and H. Weber of Liberty street.

James Chamberlin and Jack Nickols of Potter's went to Sewaren Saturday and returned home with a large string of bass and pickerel.

Miss Bessie Higgins, teacher of the Warrenville school, is spending a vacation of one week with Mr. and Mrs. John Hyler of West Front street.

H. Hoffman of West Front street, who was laid up with a sprained ankle, is now able to be at his work.

George Firstbrook has returned from a business trip in Connecticut.

Harry Page, an employe of the street railway, while repairing No. 6 car crushed two fingers.

S. Burchell, a pattern-maker at Pond's, got his hand severely cut with a chisel while working on some patterns.

A bowling match was played Friday evening at Windham's on Somerset street, between Potter's and Scott's. The game went well till the sixth frame when one man from each team got a little humorous and went down into the pit, and got a wire and pulled the pins over. Potter's team was 132 pins ahead of Scott's in the sixth frame. It is now rumored unless these two men drop out the match will not be played Friday night.

A surprise party was given to Mr. and Mrs. McComas of Prescott place by the members of Mr. Yerkes's Sunday-school class Friday evening.

Emil Droll is out of work with an abscess on his finger. Dr. Boone is attending him.

The sewer on West Third street between Grant and Spooner avenues is all completed and also on Grant avenue between Fourth and Third streets.

Eddie Henry has started a pool room on South Second street.

George Gray of Brooklyn is visiting his parents on Grant avenue.

The Young Men's League of Hope Chapel will hold their regular meeting in the chapel tonight.

The Plainfield Ice and Cold Storage Company have repaired the fence of Winfield Schomp's on West Front street which was destroyed by the large gray team which ran away from the ice house.

Walter Magee of Prospect place has started in the market business. He runs a route through the country.

Henry McCormick of West Third street has resigned his position as motorman for the Plainfield Street Railway, as he has to go South for his health. His absence will be greatly missed by his fellow-workmen and also his many other friends.

John James, the West End fruit and fish peddler, has started a store on Liberty street between Third and Fourth streets.

W. Reid of 931 West Third street is confined to his home with illness. Dr. Simpson is attending him.

Things are looking brighter in this end of town, as the Pond Machine Tool Company has started all hands on full time, and has also taken on a few of the old hands. The Works have received an order for 20 cement grinders and two large planers; and have also a Government order to finish, which means steady work for the entire Winter for all hands.

Two more houses are being erected in the West End Park. This makes the seventh house in six months.

James McInness, W. Leland and John Canary have accepted positions with the Pond Machine Tool Company.

PROSPEROUS POTTERS.

Their Organized Good Fellowship Flourishes to Their Gratification and Credit.

The Mutual Aid Society of the Potter Press Works met in Sons of Temperance Hall Saturday night, and heard the reports of the various officers, which showed the society to be in a flourishing financial condition and the general health of the workmen good. The following were elected to serve the society one year:

President, James Patterson; treasurer, George B. Titsworth; secretary, Robert Kenny; finance committee, Lewis DeCamp, Thomas Calem, Charles Meyers, Fred Stillman. Auditing committee, John F. Casey, William R. Mosher.

The next meeting will be held in January, 1895.

—Iona Council's fair begins tonight in Red Men's Hall.

—The landlord and tenant case of Day against Kelorea will be tried by Justice Mosher next Monday.

—The entertainment recently held in Saengerbund Hall for the benefit of St. Joseph's R. C. Church netted $143.

CURES OTHERS

BAD COUGH, SPIT UP BLOOD,—CONSUMPTION.

MR. K. C. MCLIN.

K. C. McLin, Esq., of Kempsville, Princess Anne Co., Va., writing, says: "I commenced taking your 'Discovery' I was very low with a cough, and at times spit up much blood. I was able to do the least work, but most of the time was in bed. I was all run-down, very weak, my head was dizzy, and I was extremely despondent. The first bottle I took did not seem to do me much good, but I had faith in it and continued using it until I had taken fifteen bottles, and now I do not think or feel like the same man I was one year ago. People are astonished, and say, well, if a year this time I would not have thought that you would be living now." I thankfully say I am entirely cured of a disease which, but for your wonderful 'Discovery,' would have resulted in my death."

W. C. T. U. RENEWS ITS EFFORTS.

First of a Series of Mass-Meetings in Music Hall—Arousing the No-License Element—S. J. Sloane to Speak Next Sunday—Perhaps a Temperance Ticket.

The Plainfield W. C. T. U. conducted a public meeting in Music Hall Sunday afternoon. On the stage sat forty earnest workers, and in the body of the house was an audience of 350. Miss Cara Peck, president, stated that a similar meeting was to be held each Sunday, and that the purpose would develop as the meetings progressed. To a Daily Press reporter who asked her if the purpose was not to develop the no-license element of the community into active work in the forthcoming municipal campaign she said that the Union hoped to arouse temperance sentiment into effective aggression. It may be that a temperance ticket will be introduced in the December election.

Yesterday's meeting was largely a song service. Horace J. Martin led the hearty singing of familiar hymns, Miss Sue Peck accompanying on the piano and Whit Frazee on his new silver cornet. Rev. Mr. Scudder prayed and led in concert Scripture reading. Lewis Bond sang a solo, Howard Case accompanying. Miss Pancy Herring and Miss Edith Bond played beautifully on auto-harps. The services were a success, and a pleasure to all participating. Miss Peck announced that next Sunday Rev. Mr. Scudder would preside and S. J. Sloane of Newark speak. She thanked Manager Varian for the free use of the theatre.

AGAINST CODDING.

A Roman Catholic Paper States Its Case.

(From The Catholic Ledger.)

The action of this paper in connection with the political situation in Westfield is intended as a warning to the Republican party there. We have not waited to oppose Mr. Codding until the Republicans of that place should have irrevocably championed A. P. Alam by nominating him. We have shown our opposition from the time that he himself so brazenly showed his colors, and in so acting we have merely obeyed the dictates of justice, because we judged that his party ought to be warned.

We repeat the warning. If Mr. Codding succeeds in getting the nomination we will feel in duty bound to make known all the facts in our possession concerning his support of a school trustee who declined, because she was Catholic, to vote for a lady who sought the position of teacher in the Westfield Academy. The distribution in Westfield of A. P. A. circulars, alleging all sorts of wickedness against priests and nuns will be also told of, and of how Mr. Codding and Mr. Rees stood up unblushingly to vote down a resolution that denounced A. P. A. methods.

We will not forget to remind the voters of the Linden affair, the exposure of which will show some good anti-race-track Protestants how Mr. Codding manages matters in politics. They will no longer wonder how it was that while they supported him the Linden gamblers did the same.

We should send to the Legislature men incapable of deception and above suspicion. There are plenty of them in the Republican party in Westfield. By putting up Mr. Codding the Westfield Republicans force an issue that must be disastrous to them. A word to the wise is always sufficient. Are the Westfield Republicans wise?

OBITUARY.

Mrs. Phoebe D. Martin.

Mrs. Phoebe D. Martin, widow of Henry A. H. Martin, died yesterday morning at 9:20, at the home of her son, James A. Martin. She was 80 years of age. For a long time she had not been in the best of health, but it was not until two weeks ago that it was thought necessary to summon a physician. Even then she was not confined to her bed and was about the house the afternoon before her death.

Mrs. Martin was the daughter of Abram and Sarah Frazee, and was born in New York. She had lived in Plainfield for 70 years. Her husband died in November, 1874. He was city collector for many years and was very popular in Plainfield and the vicinity. Mrs. Martin leaves two daughters and two sons. They are Aug. H. Martin of Jackson avenue and James A. Martin, and the Misses Sarah and Catherine Martin of West Second street.

The funeral services will be held Wednesday afternoon at 2:30 from the house, 104 West Second street. The officiating clergyman will be Rev. C. E. Herring of the First Presbyterian Church, to which church Mrs. Martin belonged.

GLAD-TIDINGS DAY.

Grace M. E. Sunday-School Observes the Harvest-Time.

Glad-Tidings Day was celebrated in Grace M. E. Church yesterday afternoon by the presentation of the following programme:

Singing; prayer; singing, "Gate of Life", choir; exercises, "Harvest", Mrs. Carney's Class; recitation and song, Infant Class; recitation, Mabel Stevens; solo and chorus, Miss Tingley; recitation, Miss Lizzie Hoagland; singing, all; address by the pastor; singing, "Open Gates", children.

The platform was very prettily decorated with flowers. In the harvest exercises the children formed the word "Harvest" with letters upon their breasts. The last song was the most beautiful of all, the "open gates" being shown in flowers.

—Pliny Fisk's bay horse ran away from the Park Avenue bridge Saturday evening. The woman who was driving regained control at Ninth street.

RICHARD-BENEDICT.

Brilliant Wedding of One of the Handsomest Women in the State.

The Newark papers concede that of the many home weddings during the past week none was prettier than the marriage of Miss Hattie May, only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James P. Benedict, to John M. Richard, the manufacturing jeweler. The bride, who has been ranked as one of the handsomest women in the State, is a niece of Mr. and Mrs. James Huntington of Plainfield, who attended the festivities. She is also niece of W. R. Mattox. The ceremony took place at the bride's residence, 376 High street, and every room gave evidence of the preparation to make the event a pleasant affair. In the parlor plants and bright flowers filled the corners and mantels. The chandeliers and doorways were draped with smilax. Suspended from the centre of the parlor was a massive floral bell of bride roses.

Shortly after 8 the bridal party passed through a lane formed of over 100 relatives and personal friends, to the Rev. Charles Dodd of the Peddie Memorial Church, who performed the ceremony in a most impressive manner. The couple were escorted to the parlor by the maid of honor, Miss Frances Barneman, and George Stevens of New York acting as best man. The groomsman was Oscar B. Benedict, brother of the bride, and the bridemaid Miss Bessie Miller.

The bride wore a rich toilet of white satin and duchess lace, with court train. A tulle veil covered the toilet, and was fastened to the head by a spray of orange blossoms. Her jewels were diamonds, the groom's gift, and she carried a massive bouquet of bride roses. The attending maids wore toilets of white mull, and both carried bunches of pink roses.

Davis furnished a tempting lunch, while Iseler played enlivening music. The host and hostess were unremitting in their attention to the guests, and everyone was made to feel at home. The bride received many very handsome presents. The couple have gone South, and will be absent several weeks.

ROYAL ENTERTAINMENT.

Arcanumites to Provide Much Pleasure for Their Friends.

Under the auspices of the Committee on the good of the Order of Plainfield Council, No. 711, Royal Arcanum, an entertainment will be given in the Casino, Tuesday evening, November 20, at 8, to consist of singing by the Swedish Ladies Quartette, humorous sketches by James S. Burdette, conjuring by a skilful Japanese artist, and music, both instrumental and vocal, by the best local talent.

The primary object of the entertainment is to afford the members, their families and friends, an opportunity to pass an evening of thorough enjoyment, and, at the same time, to bring the order more prominently before those likely to join the ranks.

Tickets are to be had of the following committeemen and officers of the Council: P. A. Emmons, Regent, A. M. Rea, 428 East Sixth street, H. A. Thorne, La Grande avenue, D. W. Littell, North avenue, H. S. Mason, 302 East Sixth street, F. S. Green, 228 East Fifth street, H. C. Adams, 115 East Sixth street, J. S. Buckle, North avenue.

Grist of the City Court.

Five cases were quickly disposed of in the City Court this morning. The first was that of Frank Scheeline, who was fined $5 for being drunk and swearing at the corner of North and Park avenues last evening. Policeman Cooney arrested him.

George and Frank Tillman were drunk and went out driving last night. They drove on the unfenced lawns on East Front street beyond Edgewood and Policeman Mattox arrested them. Each was fined $2.

Edward Cuff, refusing to appear in court when charged with keeping a disorderly house, paid a $5 fine.

William Adams of Shay-Adams fame pleaded not guilty to disorderly conduct in Ettinger's Cottage Place cider-joint a week ago. The offense could not be proved and he was discharged.

—A cash auction sale of bonds, mortgages, shares, and safe, will take place at Carey's, 328 West Front street, Wednesday morning at 10, on account of the Job Male estate.

A RETIRED BUSINESS WOMAN.

A Page From Her History.

The important experiences of others are interesting. The following is no exception: "I had been troubled with heart disease 25 years, much of that time very seriously. For five years I was treated by one physician continuously. I was in business, but obliged to retire on account of my health. A physician told my friends that I could not live a month. My feet and limbs were badly swollen, and I was indeed in a serious condition when a gentleman directed my attention to Dr. Miles' New Heart Cure, and said that his sister, who had been afflicted with heart disease, had been cured by the remedy, and was again a strong, healthy woman. I purchased a bottle of the Heart Cure, and in less than an hour after taking the first dose I could feel a decided improvement in the circulation of my blood. When I had taken three doses I could move my ankles, something I had not done for months, and my limbs had been swollen so long that they seemed almost putrified. Before I had taken one bottle of the New Heart Cure the swelling had all gone down, and I was so much better that I did my own work. On my recommendation six others are taking this valuable remedy."—Mrs. Morgan, 99 W. Harrison St., Chicago, Ill.

Dr. Miles' New Heart Cure, a discovery of an eminent specialist in heart disease, is sold by all druggists on a positive guarantee, or sent by the Dr. Miles Medical Co., Elkhart, Ind., on receipt of price, $1 per bottle, six bottles for $5, express prepaid. It is positively free from all opiates or dangerous drugs.

CRANFORD'S EXPERIENCE.

She Does Some Singular Contracting with the Engineer Who Once Figured Similarly for Plainfield.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE DAILY PRESS:—Why has the Township Committee of Cranford, in its wise judgment, employed Carroll P. Bassett to superintend the construction of its sewers at a cost for engineering approximating $1,000 more than the bid of another reputable engineer who is well known to every member of said Town Committee?

Are the members of said committee better acquainted with Mr. Bassett than with the other gentleman? Can anything be said against his character or ability as an engineer? Do the taxpayers of Cranford relish the idea of paying the above-named additional sum to an engineer of whom they know nothing?

Here is the comparison:

Engineer Bassett—On $55,000 estimated cost, 5 per cent for engineering, amounting to $2,750; excess of $55,000 at 4½ per cent; assuming the work to cost $55,000, Mr. Basset will receive $2,750; assuming it to cost $80,000, Mr. Bassett will receive $4,775.

The other engineer agreed to do all engineering outside of the township limits for 3 per cent. of cost; within township limits, 5 per cent. of cost. Assuming the work outside of the township to cost $44,000 according to Mr. Bassett's plans, which amount this engineer states the work can be done for, and for which he is willing to furnish satisfactory bonds to prove his assertion, his charges for superintending said work, including all engineering work and expenses, would amount to $1,400. Assuming it to cost $55,000, his charges would be $1,650, or $1,100 less than Mr. Bassett's. Assuming the total cost to be $80,000 his charges would be as follows. $55,000 at 3 per cent., $1,650; $25,000 at 5 per cent., $1,250; total, $2,900 against Mr. Bassett's of $3,875. Assuming it to cost $100,000, his charges would be as follows: $55,000 at 3 per cent., $1,650; $45,000 at 5 per cent., $2,250; total, 3,900 against Mr. Bassett's price of $4 775.

Mr. Bassett at a late meeting of the Town Committee in explaining his proposition was permitted to change his figures, which made his price (according to the Cranford Chronicle) greater than his former proposition. Why was not such an opportunity offered to the other gentleman? Mr. Bassett's figures were not submitted to the Town Committee until three or four days after the proposal of the other engineer, who remained ignorant of the action of said committee for nearly two weeks thereafter.

Under such circumstances what assurance has anyone proposing to construct said sewers for the town, that his proposal, even if the lowest, would be accepted?

Taxpayers of Cranford, think well what you are doing.

Proof of the above statements will be furnished if necessary. A TAXPAYER.

Kicked by Horses.

HARNESS THE TIDES.

LIEUTENANT WHISTLER BELIEVES THAT THIS MAY BE DONE.

A Suggestion That the Ocean Tides Be Made to Light and Heat the World and Turn Its Machinery. Bellamy's Dream Recalled.

Nicola Tesla not long ago said, "The labor of the future will consist in pressing electric buttons." Like all great discoverers—and he is assuredly to be ranked as one of these—Tesla unites the imagination of a poet with the precision of a scientist.

There is another great electrician who predicts that within ten years the consumption of coal will have begun to decrease, and that within twenty coal mining will have entirely ceased. From 1880 to 1890 the production of coal in the United States doubled.

To quote yet a third, another engineer, the builder of the Ferris wheel, once remarked to me that the future growth of cities depends upon the intelligence with which they utilize their water power.

Lieutenant G. N. Whistler, a son of Gen. Whistler, and a cousin of the noted painter, of the regular army, sees a vision greater than that of Tesla. He says that there is energy enough in the currents which wash either shore of Manhattan to do all the work done by machinery in this country, and that he believes it can be utilized. Continuing he said:

"The tides of East and North rivers exert a power at least a dozen times greater than would be necessary to do all the mechanical work for Greater New York. If, therefore, it is possible by any economical means to utilize, say, 10 per cent. of this tidal energy, New York and Brooklyn need not burn another ton of coal nor another holder of gas. That this is not only possible, but practically and financially feasible, does not seem to me for a moment open to doubt. Current motors have been in use on the Rhine and the Danube for centuries, and they have likewise been employed on American rivers. They have rather gone out of use in just the same way that a great many of the older mechanical devices have gone out of use, because people have thought that some new device, run by steam, or gas, or electricity, had entirely superseded them.

After explaining how current motors, or great screws inside a breakwater could take up the power of the currents and transmute it to electricity, he painted this Bellamistic picture of what would result from the development of his scheme for harnessing the tides:

"Think for a moment of the revolution which would be effected in New York city if we could have cheap electricity. Let us run over a few items.

"We should have no noisy dirty elevated throwing clouds of hot cinders into the eyes of passengers and of passers by on the street.

"We should have no clumsy, unreliable cable, which leaves us stranded half way from our destination about every third time you board a car.

"We would have a smokeless city. New York, it is true, is not troubled so very much with smoke and soot and fog. Nevertheless, could coal be abolished tonight the change in the atmosphere tomorrow would be astonishing.

"With cheap electricity, every one could have a telephone, which would save miles and miles of travel every day and hours and hours of time. Every flat and private dwelling and business block in the city could have an elevator. Think of the saving in stair climbing which this would effect.

"We could wash clothes and dishes and do a good share of the housework by electricity if it were cheap enough. We would have a city that would be as bright as day at night.

"Then we could well nigh abolish the horse. Electric trucks are perfectly feasible, and we could have electrical hydrants scattered about the city where a supply of electricity could be obtained at any time, just as was the case with those beautiful launches at Chicago.

"All our cooking and heating could be done by electricity. There would be no more dirty coal to be put in every fall, no more steam heaters or furnaces, no more cooking stoves, nor gas stoves, nor gasoline, no more ashes, nor dirt, nor soot. We could abolish chimneys. The kitchen would be as clean as the parlor. Keeping house would become a delightful occupation.

"These are only a few items. In the summer time we could have, if necessary, a dozen electrical fans in every room and big fans to create a draught through the streets. We could drag New York into the finest summer resort in the world.

"With cheap electricity, it would be perfectly feasible to attempt to modify the climate or abolish a good part of it altogether. Countless other uses to which electricity might be put readily occur to you or to any one who gives a little attention to the subject. It would almost revolutionize our daily life. We have only begun to realize what we can do with machinery provided we can have power so cheap that we can build expensive machinery and still have it more economical than human labor."

MANCHESTER CANAL LOSES MONEY.

In the First Six Months It Runs Half a Million Behind.

The first report of the famous ship canal at Manchester, built to make that city a commercial rival of Liverpool, is not quite satisfactory.

The total net revenue from tolls amounts to $40,000; total net revenue from all sources, $153,000; interest due on debentures, $250,000. There is, therefore, a deficit of much more than half a million to be provided for. The company has "unappropriated resources" amounting to $2,250,000, and can meet the interest due easily enough. These resources consist, however, of the balance of the last corporation loan and of the reserve fund, on both of which there are heavy calls for construction purposes and future half-yearly interest payments over and above the revenue.

The directors, nevertheless, have confidence in the future. They are at present engaged in a bitter controversy with Liverpool, which takes the form of rate cutting. Liverpool's hostility to the Manchester canal is unmitigated. They are at odds with the railways also, between which and the Manchester docks there is at present but a single connection. The directors, however, are far from despairing, and the shareholders do not seem to have raised a single complaint at this meeting, distant as the day of dividends must be.

BIG GAME IN AMERICA.

Two Hunters Kill a Nine Foot Lion in Southern New Mexico.

The recent killing by two hunters of a mountain lion measuring nine feet from tip to tip in the Pecos Valley, in southern New Mexico, affords an illustration of the powerful wild beasts that, inhabiting the forests and plains and mountain districts, are rarely seen by human eye. Such animals, with a natural avoidance of humanity, keep so well out of the way that, except for their depredation, only the practical hunter would suspect their presence about the ranches. The valley in which the beast was killed is a depression with precipitous sides where the river cuts through the open plain. There is rough ground with rocks and cliffs in places, but the only trees that could afford shelter to so large an animal are thinly strung out cottonwood groves along the river, and scattered clumps of scrub oak and pine upon the valley slopes. Yet there the lion had made his lair for a long time, the only indication of his existence to the ranchmen being his destruction of sheep and young stock to satisfy his sanguinary appetite.

Many men have hunted deer season after season in the Rocky Mountains, yet scarcely once have seen a bear at large, and never a mountain lion. The latter creature, with more than the shyness of his smaller Eastern relative, the panther, has less fierceness in the presence of man. A terror to deer, hares, and antelope, and destructive as it is of the ranchman's colts and calves and sheep, the mountain lion, when hunted down and cornered, rarely puts up even a show of fight against the hunter, but, after killing his dogs, devotes its whole energies to escape.

THAT MONKEY ANCESTOR.

Interesting Theories Advanced by the New York Times.

The theory that mankind is descended from the monkey tribe has never thoroughly satisfied those of us who wish to take a pride in our ancestry. Still, the theory has seemed in many ways so plausible that it has met with very general acceptance, and as a consequence, monkeys, instead of being, as they once were, the chief attraction of zoological gardens and travelling managories, are now shunned with as much care as we shun the rest of our poor relations.

An eminent Italian anthropologist, who has recently made a thorough study of the modern Anarchist, has come to the conclusion that man is not an improved monkey, but that the monkey is a degenerate man. This new theory fully explains all the facts which Darwin sought to explain by the hypothesis that man has been developed from the monkey, and it also saves our pride from the painful necessity of acknowledging the monkey as our ancestor. There can be no doubt that the new theory will meet with immediate and almost enthusiastic welcome, and even the old-fashioned New England deacon, who considers it blasphemy to suggest that this remote ancestor was an ape, will find no difficulty in accepting the theory that men who differ from him in opinion may at some future time degenerate until they become the very meanest sort of monkeys.

If we study the photographs of French, German and Italian Anarchists we cannot fail to be struck with their resemblance to baboons. It is true that this resemblance is moral rather than material. The Anarchist does not as yet possess the peculiar facial angle of the baboon, but his expression immediately reminds us of that undesirable animal. It was this fact that suggested to the Italian anthropologist the thought that monkeys have descended, through Anarchists from men who had imbruted themselves by accepting and practicing the doctrines of Anarchy.

TALLEYRAND AND ARNOLD.

The Great Frenchman Tells of Meeting the Traitor.

In the memoirs of Talleyrand, he speaks as follows of his meeting with Benedict Arnold:

Fortunately the danger we were running was noticed on shore, and induced some Falmouth's lightermen to brave the fury of the sea and come to our assistance. With their help we managed to reach the harbor. Whilst our ship—all the rigging of which was much damaged—was being repaired, a rather striking incident added an impression of a special kind to the many I was to experience in the course of this voyage. The innkeeper at whose place I had my meals, informed me that one of his lodgers was an American general. Thereupon I expressed a desire of seeing that gentleman, and, shortly after, I was introduced. After the mutual exchange of greetings, I put to him several questions concerning his country, but from the first, it seemed to me that my inquiries annoyed him. Having several times vainly endeavored to renew the conversation, which he always allowed to drop, I ventured to request from him some letters of introduction to his friends in America.

"No," he replied, after a few moments of silence, noticing my surprise, he added, "I am perhaps the only American who cannot give you letters for his own country—all the relations I had there are now broken—I must never return to the States."

He dared not tell me his name. It was General Arnold. I must confess that he excited my pity, for which political puritans will perhaps blame me; but I do not reproach myself, for I was a witness of his agony.

Dumas Made a Mistake.

It is not always wise for an author to express his opinions too freely about those who write criticisms upon his works. Alexander Dumas, we are told, has been getting into hot water by expressing his opinion of the dramatic critics of Paris. Some of them are waiting for the production of his next new piece, while some of the more fiery ones are impatient to tear him to pieces at once, and talk of drawing lots to determine which shall challenge him to mortal combat. Dumas had been interviewed for his opinion as to the influence of the critics on the success of a play, and expressed himself somewhat freely to the effect that they were without influence, and many of them dishonest. The critics are very sore about it.

How He Does It.

The case with which F. Marion Crawford turns out a new and readable novel every few months is one of the amazing phenomena of the contemporary fiction crop. It is explained on the ground that Mr. Crawford is a man of robust build and vigorous health, that he is possessed of sufficient wealth to keep him safe from financial worry, that he has travelled widely and has had great social opportunities, and finally that he loves his work.

Mabel is shy.
I asked her why?
(So coy she is with brows uplifted);
Where is the harm
In just one arm
When you the argument have sifted?
But Mabel is shy.

When scarce could I in truth believe her
She sighed: "Alack!
Please, take it back
For stolen goods I can't receive, sir."

THEY RIDE TO SCHOOL.

Run in the Omnibuses, that are Accountable for Regular Attendance.

It is a very different thing going to school in New York City to-day from what it was even a few years ago. And what a vastly different thing it is from going to school up in the country, where the little red schoolhouse is always at least half a mile from any inhabited section.

Up there the children walk that half mile through fields of daisies in summer, mayhaps, and through fields of snow in winter.

In New York, in the upper districts, where the schools are further apart than they are in the more closely settled sections, the children ride to school. Not in their own carriages, but in omnibuses furnished by the city.

Rainy days have no effect upon the attendance whatever, for the stages stop at the children's houses to pick them up, and so the little ones are exposed to the elements for only a few moments. The continual attendance, too, unquestionably has a beneficial effect upon the progress made in the studies, as every teacher knows that a few absences are more detrimental than stupidity.

The system ought to be introduced in the country districts. It is practical, not expensive and unquestionably very beneficial. In the country, too, the stages can be hired much cheaper than in the city.

WONDERFUL HELEN KELLER.

The Little Girl Who Was Born Deaf, Dumb and Blind, Learned to Speak.

It is an interesting story that of Miss Helen A. Keller, who, born into the world deaf, dumb, and blind, and who has acquired a cultivation which would be remarkable in a girl her age who possessed every normal faculty. She is now thirteen years old, and by her own determination and application has learned to speak, an accomplishment which she acquired in a month after only eleven lessons. Her whole education has practically been acquired within the past six years and includes an elementary knowledge of natural history, cosmography, mythology, biography and English literature. She is an insatiable reader, and her memory is as remarkable as her power to assimilate what she learns by reading. The teacher under whom her studies were begun wrote of her two years ago:

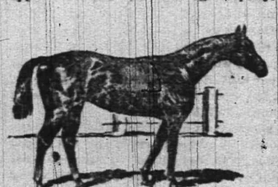
"She is a phenomenal child, and in every sense a remarkable person. Her gifts are manifold. Her mind is as clear as her brain is fertile, while her heart flames with earnestness and glows with charity. She is the finest illustration of consecrated, unselfish, whole-souled devotion that childhood has ever offered to the vision of men or that of gods. She combines largeness of view with subtlety of mind, breadth with keenness, vigor with delicacy, knowledge with geniality, tact with common sense, reason with warmth, enthusiasm with self-control, noble aspirations, gentle manners, intense feelings, incessant thinking, native goodness, a passion for learning and self-improvement, a thirst for righteousness, and a hunger for holiness, all unite in placing her above ordinary mortals."

So far Miss Keller's education has been acquired in rather a desultory fashion, but now that she has been taught to speak and can understand the slow speech of others by placing her fingers lightly on their lips and throat, her parents have decided that her education and mental development should proceed on more regular lines.

ADVANTAGE OF A RACING MATE.

Flying Jib's Mile in 1:58 1-4 was Paced With Racing Help.

The mile in 1 58 1-4 paced by Flying Jib with a running mate on the kite track at Chilicothe derives its chief interest from the fact that it demonstrates what extreme speed is possible under certain favorable conditions. Hitched with a galloper to a skeleton wagon, the pacer was free to skim along up to his utmost limit, while the mate took the weight of the wagon and driver, and, moreover, supplied the incentive of racing company.



Light harness horsemen have always looked upon records made with the aid of a running mate with a certain amount of good-humored contempt, and for this reason only one previous effort—that of Ayres P. in 1889—has been made in eleven years to lower the record made at this way of going by Westmont at the old West Side Park in Chicago.

The question naturally arises, if Flying Jib, an unreliable performer, is thus enabled to cover a mile in such phenomenal time, what could Robert J. or Alix do under similar conditions?—N. Y. Herald.

MARRIED BY THE MAYOR.

A New York Mayor Indulges Reminiscences of Loving Couples.

Ex-Mayor Ely of New York was interviewed the other day on the subject of the marriages he had performed. Here are the more interesting parts of the interview:

"Did you enjoy performing the ceremonies?"

"Yes, I enjoyed officiating at weddings when I saw that the couple were not elopers, or when the bride and groom fully appreciated what they were doing. As I was very particular that the couple should be accompanied with some relatives or friends, I was reasonably sure that it was proper that the two should be united. If the couple came alone, I refused to marry them, and told them they would have to go elsewhere."

"Do you recall any unhappy outcomes of your marriages?"

"I can only recall two. If any of the other 298 couples are sorry they took the awful step they have kept their unhappiness to themselves. I married the daughter of an old friend of mine to a young man of good standing. I afterward met the young man on the elevated road when he thanked me cordially for marrying him. A year later, at a reception I was introduced to the young lady who had been the bride. She had assumed her maiden name.

"Are you not the young lady at whose marriage I officiated a year ago?" I asked.

"Yes I am; and I will never forgive you for it," she replied.

"I was sorry for domestic infelicity, but I didn't want her to blame me for it. I remember one other incident which shows how simple-minded some people may be. I married a German couple. Neither the bride nor the groom could speak English, and I had to marry them by aid of an interpreter. The couple went away with beaming faces and dropped a thank offering in the poor box as they left. Three months later the couple returned with faces as long as they had been broad before. A woman who accompanied the couple and could speak English said that the bride and groom had concluded they could not live contentedly together and she wanted to know if I could not undo the marriage. The couple looked at me with appealing eyes and they evidently had no idea of the serious nature of their request. I told the English-speaking woman that I had no power to grant divorces, and if I had it would take too much of my time to investigate their case. The trio went away looking very disappointed."

"Who performed the most notable wedding?"

"I guess Mayor Hewitt can claim distinction in that regard. He married the widow of Louis Hamersley to the Duke of Marlborough. Mayor Wickham married the grand daughter of Mayor Stephen Allen to a young man with whom she had eloped. I had several distinguished marriages. I married the nephew of a Roman Cardinal to an American girl, and I also married the widow of Robert Pearsall to Count Ressi of Florence, Italy. Mrs. Pearsall was well know in New York society. She was the sister-in-law of Thomas Pearsall. Her wedding with Count Ressi has been a happy one."

"Do you recall any amusing incidents?"

"Of course there must be a humorous side to so many weddings. I remember a very respectable looking bride and groom who came from Detroit. They said they came from Michigan, solely to be married by me, and I asked the bride why she and her groom went to all the unnecessary expense.

"Oh, we wanted to be married by an old bachelor Mayor," answered the bride.

"When I married Mrs. Pearsall and Count Ressi the Count asked me to be sure and visit him if ever I happened to be in Italy. Four years ago I went abroad. I thought of the Count's invitation and visited him in Florence. I found the Count and Countess in a happy home. They entertained me delightfully."

Mr. Ely, when Mayor, insisted that couples comparatively well known when married by him, should publish notices of their weddings. As the city does not provide for the printing of advertisements of civil weddings, Mayor Ely inserted notices at his own expense when he saw something suspicious about one of his marriages.

Corporation Notice.

Notice is hereby given that the following Ordinance has been introduced before the Common Council, read the second time and ordered engrossed preparatory to its third reading, and that it is the intention of the Council to adopt the same.

JAMES T. MACMURRAY, City Clerk.
Plainfield, N. J., October 15, 1894.

AN ORDINANCE

concerning the Construction, Maintenance and Repair of Sidewalks.

The Inhabitants of the City of Plainfield by their Common Council do enact as follows:

Section 1. That all sidewalks shall have a width not less than one-fifth of the entire width of the street and all sidewalks hereafter laid shall be raised, from the curbstone line to the side of the street adjoining, in the proportion of five inches in ten feet, unless otherwise specially directed by resolution of the Common Council, provided that this section shall not apply to sidewalks whose width has previously been established by ordinance.

Sec. 2. That all sidewalks in said city shall be well and sufficiently repaired and maintained at the expense of the abutting land owners, so as to be even on the surface and so laid and constructed as freely to shed water and for the width of at least four feet free from turf, grass, weeds, stubble and other foreign substances.

Sec. 3. That within that portion of said city described as follows, viz:—beginning with the intersection of the northeasterly side line of Norwood avenue with Green brook and running thence along said northeasterly side line of Norwood avenue continuing along northeasterly side line of Richmond street to its intersection with the centre line of Watchung avenue; thence in a straight line to the intersection of the easterly side line of Ninth street with the southerly line of Third place produced; thence along said easterly side line of Ninth street and the same line produced to its intersection with the southwesterly side line of Plainfield avenue; thence with the southwesterly side line of Plainfield avenue northwesterly to Green brook and thence along Green brook to the point or place of beginning; also on both sides of Watchung avenue from Richmond street to Woodland avenue; both sides of West Front street from Plainfield avenue to Grant avenue; and both sides of East Front street from Spring street to Farragut road; both sides of Central avenue from Ninth street to Randolph road; in all cases in which sidewalks are not already constructed of blue stone flagging, sidewalks shall be constructed at the expense of the abutting land owners, and unless otherwise specially permitted by resolution of the Common Council, shall be composed of blue stone flagging, smooth and even on the surface, and properly laid in one course under the direction of and on such lines as shall be given by the Street Commissioner, and the flags shall not be less than four feet long and not less than two feet wide and not less than one and one-half inches thick in the thinnest part. And within that portion of the City of Plainfield described in this section, in all cases in which sidewalks are not already curbed with stone, cement, concrete, hard and durable substance, said sidewalks shall, when ordered by resolution of the Common Council, be curbed at the expense of the abutting land owners, and unless otherwise specially permitted by resolution of the Common Council shall be curbed with blue stone or ironolithic, not less than four inches thick in the thinnest part and sixteen inches in depth, smooth and even on the surface and laid in one course under the direction of and on such lines as shall be given by the Street Commissioner. That all return curbs shall have a radius of six feet, no piece to be less than three feet two inches in length.

Sec. 4. That within that portion of the said city not embraced within the foregoing limits described in Section 3, in all cases in which sidewalks are now or hereafter connected in the manner hereinafter provided in this section, sidewalks shall be constructed at the expense of the abutting land owners, when ordered by resolution of the Common Council, and unless otherwise specially permitted by resolution of the Common Council, said sidewalks shall be composed of bluestone flagging as described in Section 3, or crushed stone not less than six inches deep, thoroughly rolled and compacted, or cement not less than one-half inch in thickness, laid on at least four inches of concrete, said bluestone flagging, crushed stone or cement and concrete to be made smooth and even on the surface and laid in one course under the direction of and on such lines as shall be given by the Street Commissioner, and said sidewalks to be so laid for the width of not less than four feet, and in case bluestone flagging is used, the flags to be not less than two feet in width and not less than one and one-half inches thick in the thinnest part.

Sec. 5. It is hereby made the duty of the owners of land abutting on the sidewalks of said city to comply with the preceding sections of this ordinance under the direction and supervision of the Street Commissioner. The Street Commissioner is hereby authorized to serve notices in writing upon the owners or occupants of said lands requiring the necessary specified work to said sidewalks to be done by said owners or occupants within a period of thirty days from the date of service of such notice, and shall file with the City Clerk a list of the names of parties on which notices have been served. If any of said lands are unoccupied and the owner cannot be found within the city, the said notice shall be mailed, postage prepaid, to his or her postoffice address if the same can be ascertained; in case such owner is a non-resident of the city and his or her postoffice address cannot be ascertained, then such notice may be inserted for four weeks, once a week, in the official newspapers of the city.

Sec. 6. That in case the owner or occupant of such lands shall not comply with the requirements of the notice specified in the preceding section, said Street Commissioner shall file in the office of the City Clerk due proof of the service or publication of the aforesaid notice and thereupon the Common Council may by resolution order the required work to be done and paid for, and proceedings to be taken to perfect a lien for the costs thereof and to enforce payment of the same pursuant to the statute in such cases made and provided.

Sec. 7. That Sections 1, 2, 3, 4, of an ordinance entitled "An Ordinance Relating to Streets and Sidewalks and Encroachments Thereon", and the ordinance entitled, "An Ordinance Concerning the Construction, Maintenance and Repair of Sidewalks", and the amendment of said last named ordinance approved August 4th, 1890, be and the same are hereby repealed.

Sec. 8. That all ordinances and parts of ordinances which were repealed or abrogated by any ordinance hereby repealed, shall continue to be so repealed and shall be deemed abrogated.

SHE IS CLARK'S WIFE

End of a Noted Case in New Jersey.

Demurrer of the Wife on the Witness Stand Declared To Be Honest While the Testimony of the Husband Shocked the Credulity of the Court.

Newark, N. J., Oct. 23.—Vice-Chancellor Van Fleet rendered a decision in the case of Lucy Harr Clark, of Lebanon, against John Ramsay Clark, of New York and Lebanon, which now places on record a marriage between these two persons, which the former sought to prove, and the latter to disprove. Alimony, in the sum of $240 per annum, to be paid quarterly, in advance, in sums of $85 each, is granted the plaintiff. To insure these payments Clark has been ordered to file bonds. The case, when heard in the chancery chambers in this city, created a profound sensation, and the testimony given on the first day attracted scores of listeners at succeeding hearings.

Clark's father lived in Lebanon. His housekeeper was Lucy Harr. When the senior Clark died, the son often went to Lebanon, where he meet Miss Harr. According to her story, he made love to her, and she agreed to a marriage with him. The ceremony was postponed many times by Clark, who was loath to marry Lucy, as he was a widower and had two handsome, domineering daughters, one of whom was married, and who would have made Clark's life a burden had he brought the housekeeper home as a wife and stepmother. This is according to Clark's testimony.

Lucy claimed that she succeeded in inducing Clark to take her to New York, where they were married. Then, anxious to have her marriage made public, Lucy sought to have Clark announce it, but he refused to do so. He likewise refused to support her or take her to his home in New York. Then Lucy began suit in chancery for support or alimony ostentatiously, but really to prove her marriage. She could not remember where in New York she had been married, as she said she had been driven to a minister's private house in a carriage. But she knew the date and, although Clark denied the marriage, other admissions made by him resulted in the order just granted by the vice-chancellor.

In his decision, which fixes the costs upon the defendant, the vice-chancellor says he recognizes the validity of the marriage. He further says that when on the stand Lucy Harr Clark's demeanor was honest. In the case of Clark, he often gave evasive answers. Some of them were so improbable as to shock the credulity of the court.

BIG TROLLEY SCHEME.

Progress of the New York and Philadelphia Electric System.

Philadelphia, Oct. 23.—Another electric railway system is knocking for entrance into Camden and when the city council meets on Thursday night a formal application will be made for the appointment of a committee to confer with the officials of the company with a view of laying out a route. The new system is the New York and Philadelphia Traction company, which is to erect an electric line all the way from New York to this city, with lines running down from Trenton on both sides of the Delaware, through the groups of towns which dot the banks of that big waterway. The company is an outgrowth of the Consolidated Traction company, which is already in possession of trolley lines aggregating 100 miles in successful operation in the northern part of New Jersey. The contemplated extension on to Camden will make one of the most gigantic trolley systems extant. The right of way for nearly all the roads has been secured, franchises are being obtained through the different cities and towns and construction is about to begin. The system crosses and intersects all the principal steam roads of the state. Some of the foremost men in the state are connected with the enterprise and it has ample financial backing.

Boston Finances Mixed.

Boston, Oct. 23.—Affairs in the offices of the various heads of departments at city hall are in a decidedly uncertain state to-day in consequence of a report that, as a result of an investigation of accounts, the mayor is to make numerous changes in the business methods of the departments, and possibly put new men in charge. It is authoritatively stated that it has been found that in several departments appropriations have been exceeded, and there are numerous unpaid bills with no money forthcoming to meet them. It is said that the commissioners of public institutions have gone beyond their limit to the extent of $52,000. In contracting for a building recently the board expended the entire appropriation on the building itself, and, it is stated, forgot to include the cost of the land.

Judges Accused of Violating Laws.

Paterson, N. J., Oct. 23.—Game and Fish Warden Charles A. Shriner swore out warrants for the arrest of Judge Jonathan Dixon, of the supreme court and the Bergen and Passaic county circuit and court of errors and appeals; James Inglis, judge of the Passaic county court; Reuben Wells, superintendent of the Rogers locomotive works, and Charles R. Fitch, general superintendent of the Erie Railway Company, upon the charge of violating the game laws of New Jersey. They are accused of shooting ducks from a steam launch on Greenwood lake. Judge Dixon is alleged to have steered the craft while the others shot the game.

Electric Power for Buffalo.

Buffalo, N. Y., Oct. 23.—A petition from the Niagara Falls Power company asking for a grant to wire the city for the distribution of electric power was transmitted to the board of aldermen. This petition bears a peculiar interest, because it is the first official step in Buffalo in an enterprise which it is believed will revolutionize the industries of this city and place them in the most commanding position by giving them the cheapest and most abundant power in the world.

THE RUSSIAN THRONE

Ready for the Succession of the Czarewitch.

Standards Prepared for Emperor Nicholas II.—Special Reasons for Hastening His Marriage—The Ceremony Said To Be Set for Wednesday—Latest Reports from the Czar.

Berlin, Oct. 23.—The St. Petersburg correspondent of the Tageblatt finds that all preparations in the Russian capital point to the succession of the czarewitch, Nicholas. He says that the war office already holds in readiness the standards of Emperor Nicholas II. "The czarewitch's marriage with the Princess Alix of Hesse," he adds, "will be hastened in view of the house law, declared by Emperor Paul I, that no unmarried heir should succeed to the throne. Should the czarewitch be childless upon ascending the throne, the Grand Duke Michael, his younger brother, would be declared the heir presumptive.

The grand duke of the house is reported to have heard from Livadia that the czar walked half an hour in the park yesterday.

The Lokal Anzeiger says that the Princess Alix will be baptized and received into the orthordox Russian church to-day and will be married on Wednesday in the presence of the czar and the imperial family.

Paris, Oct. 23.—The French foreign office has been paralyzed by the reports from Livadia. Business has been at such a complete standstill that Lord Dufferin, the British ambassador, has been unable to finish his negotiations as to colonial questions. He will go to London on Oct. 27 or earlier, as there is nothing to be done here. The Russian archpriest in Paris thinks the czar's improvement is due to the intercession of Holy John of Cronstant. Holy John is regarded throughout Russia as a miracle-maker. It is said that he has a hypnotic power which is manifested whenever he lays hands on a patient. His treatment consists of praying, laying on of hands, and rubbing with oil.

BLOWN INTO FRAGMENTS.

Graphic Description of a Dynamite Explosion in Rio.

Baltimore, Oct. 23.—Capt. Hudgins, of the coffee bark Dom Pedro II., now in port gives a graphic description of a dynamite explosion that occurred in Rio a few days prior to his sailing for Baltimore, whereby sixty persons were killed. A Brazilian soldier discovered, near the English cemetery, a subterranean magazine, in which the insurgents of the recent rebellion had concealed a large quantity of gun-powder, cartridges and dynamite shells, which they evidently intended using against the government. The soldier reported his find to the general commanding, and a rough cart, drawn by two mules, was sent to the scene to remove the contents of the hidden magazine to a place of safety. A detachment of soldiers accompanied the cart, and a curious crowd of citizens followed it to the little hill, which had been dug out to hold the explosives. A quantity of the shells had been placed in the cart, and a pile of others had been passed out close behind, when one of the soldiers, while in the act of handling a shell, dropped it among the others. The same second an explosion shook the earth. A sheet of flame shot upward, and a cloud of whitish smoke hid everything from view. The vessels in the harbor rocked at their moorings, and the entire city was thrown into wild excitement. More than a ton of dynamite had exloded from the dropping of the shell. The soldiers and mules were blown into fragments and only the iron tires of the cart wheels were found.

Justice in Jersey.

Hackensack, N. J., Oct. 23.—Rudolph Doran, a contractor and builder of New York, is a prisoner in the Hackensack jail under $1,500 bail. He was committed by Judge Van Valen on a charge of obtaining money under false pretenses. Doran had been indicted by the grand jury for perjury. He built a house at Bergen Fields for Mrs. S. W. Martens, but in the release several names of those who had lien claims on the building were left out. The case had proceeded but a little way when Doran's counsel offered the information that the affidavit, which figured so conspicuously in the charge of perjury, was made and sworn to in New York. That case was immediately dismissed, but Judge Van Valen surprised the contractor and his counsel by placing him under arrest for obtaining money under false pretenses. Doran will have to await the action of the next grand jury.

Cholera Decreasing.

Washington, Oct. 23.—The latest advices received by the Marine hospital service show that cholera is on the decrease. The weekly communication of Surgeon Irwin, stationed in London, states that there is a steady decrease in the epidemic everywhere, amounting in the case of Austro-Hungary, to nearly 50 per cent. The decrease in Russia is remarkable, too, and it is hoped that the advent of cold weather will put an end to this epidemic entirely. There are still many cases being reported in Holland, Belgium and France, but they seem mostly of a sporadic nature and nowhere assume an epidemic form. The health of Marseilles is now so satisfactory that the medical inspection of all vessels leaving has been discontinued.

UNSAFE SPECULATION

War in Pittsburg Against Pools and Syndicates.

Newspapers and Police Begin a Crusade Against Speculative Frauds—Active Co-operation of the Chamber of Commerce—Efforts To Secure Injunctions.

Pittsburg, Pa., Oct. 23.—The chamber of commerce met in special session for the purpose of taking action on the "syndicate," "discretionary pool" and other unsafe methods of speculation, which are now being exposed by all the newspapers of this city. President Kelley said the chamber of commerce was always ready and willing to assist the civil authorities in exposing frauds of any kind. He said he had received a letter from the police department some days ago in relation to the "pools." This letter was published in all the papers for the purpose of warning people to keep away from such places. Supt. of Police O'Mara, who attended the meeting, said he had consulted several attorneys, but all had told him that as long as the "pools" paid their dividends and no complaints were made, the police officials under the present laws were unable to do anything. He said the first complaint made against any of the "pools" was on Saturday, and as soon as the writs were sworn out the place was raided and the manager and all his assistants were arrested. The superintendent said as soon as any complaint was lodged against any of the others he would serve them in a like manner. The united action of the newspapers in exposing the "syndicate" and other "pools," he thought, would have a good effect toward closing up such places.

A resolution was offered and adopted declaring that these institutions, known as "syndicates," "discretionary pools," and other "pools" were imprudent frauds and that the chamber denounced them and would offer all assistance in its power to the civil authorities to drive them out of the city. The resolution also authorized the chamber to employ counsel to go before the courts and see if a restraining injunction could not be issued whereby none but legitimate brokers could carry on a brokerage business in Allegheny county. If the "pools" cannot be reached in this way then the chamber of commerce will lend its assistance in having laws passed at the next session of the legislature that will cover this species of legislation.

The chamber also discussed the advisability of having the state banking laws so amended that institutions of this kind would come under the banking laws so that the bank examiner could show them up in their true light.

FEARS FOR THE FALCON.

Nothing Heard from the Steamer Since She Left Philadelphia.

Philadelphia, Oct. 23.—It is feared that the steam sealer Falcon, which conveyed the Peary party to and from Greenland, has been lost with her entire crew of sixteen men.

After landing the members of the Peary party, who returned this year, and the members of the auxiliary expedition and their baggage, the Falcon took aboard a cargo of anthracite coal for her home port, St Johns, N. F. She sailed from Philadelphia Oct. 3, and nothing has been heard of her since. Nineteen days have passed since the vessel sailed, and, allowing the nine days in which it was estimated she would make the voyage, she is ten days overdue. Westergaard & Co., her consigners, have virtually given her up, and, although the possibility exists that she may still be afloat, there is little doubt that she has met with disaster.

The Falcon's crew of sixteen men were all residents of New Foundland, and most of them lived at St. Johns.

Statements have been made that the vessel was too heavily loaded, and that in addition to the coal in her hold, she carried all she could on her deck.

Is Rossa a Citizen?

New York, Oct. 23.—Edwin F. Uhl, of the passport bureau at Washington, has declared that O'Donovan Rossa is not a citizen of the United States, although he has been voting here for a number of years on papers granted by Judge Larremore, in the Court of Common Pleas, on Feb. 21, 1871. Mr. Uhl holds that these papers are worthless on the ground that the qualification of five years' continuous residence was not complied with. Mr. Uhl's ruling on this subject accounts for Mr. Rossa's return from England last spring earlier than he intended. Mr. Uhl refused to grant him a passport, and he did not in consequence, visit Scotland and England, where he intended to deliver some lectures. Mr. Rossa has sent a letter to President Cleveland reciting the facts in the case and calling for Mr. Uhl's official scalp.

RECORD AGAIN BROKEN

Harry Tyler Makes a Mile in 2:05 1-5.

Great Day at Waltham for Lovers of the Wheel—Phenomenal Speed in Spite of Many Disadvantages—McDuffee a Close Second in the Exciting Race.

Waltham, Mass., Oct. 23.—Harry Tyler again made a sensation at the Waltham cycle park by riding the fastest mile race ever contested in the world, breaking both the even mile and three-quarter competition records, under extremely unfavorable conditions. On Sept. 13, at Springfield, Eddie Bald, of Buffalo, leaped into fame by winning a mile race against the fastest man in the world, lowering the world's competition record to 2 minutes 5 4-5 seconds. One year before, on the same track, George Taylor, of Waltham, had established a three-quarter mile record of 1:41 1-5. Harry Tyler, of Springfield, yesterday broke both these records at the same attempt, and Eddie McDuffee, of Malden, finished only about a wheel length, equal to about 1-5 second, behind; Tyler cutting the three-quarter record to 1:35 2-5, and the mile to 2:05 1-5.

Less than five hundred spectators were present when Tyler, Watson, Coleman, Eddie McDuffee and Nat Butler lined up in the one mile invitation race. It was so cold and damp that the men wore heavy sweaters and stockings. Fifty yards away was a tandem carrying Bainbridge and Gardiner to keep the racers moving at their best speeed. Tyler caught the coveted position a foot from the rear tire of the tandem and away he flew at a clip that was wonderful on such a day. He cut the quarter in 54 1-5 seconds, and the third in 43 4-5 seconds. The other riders were trailing close behind, but at this point Butler gave out and retired.

Tyler's feet moved faster as he warmed to his work.

The half was reached in 1:03, three seconds below record time. He reached the second third in 1:22 3-5, and then Coleman dropped out of the flying procession. At the third quarter the time was 1:33 3-5, and there Tyler jumped away from the tandem with McDuffee close upon him. Down the stretch they came without the positions varying a foot, and had not Tyler captured the new record, McDffee would have done so with a small margin to spare.

As there are no recorded competition records for the third and two-third miles, Tyler may claim them also, making four more world's records to his credit as a result of this race.

JAPS GOING TOO FAR.

Accused of Tampering with a British Dispatch Bag.

London, Oct. 23.—A dispatch to the Central News from Shanghai says that the British consul at Seoul states that a dispatch bag, which was officially and amply sealed, must have been opened while in transit from Chemulpo to Seoul.

This must have been done, the consul adds, with the knowledge of the highest Japanese officials at Seoul, because they have since shown that they were acquainted with the gist of the contents of the bag.

The consul has requested the foreign office to cable him instuctions as to what action he shall take in the matter.

The St. James Gazette prints a dispatch from Tien-Tsin, saying that information from a trustworthy source has been received there to the effect that negotiations for a peaceable settlement of the Chino-Japanese trouble are being carried on at Seoul.

Nothing of the peace negotiations at Seoul is known at the Chinese legation here. The statement that such negotiations are in progress is not believed by the officials of the legation.

Swamp Fire Near Akron, O.

Akron, O., Oct. 23.—For the last two days a fierce fire has been raging west of this city. It started in a swamp, but has spread into the highlands and 700 acres of timber and farming land has been burned over. The damage already done will amount to $45,000. All day Sunday, last night and to-day men and women have been fighting the flames. Many fences and hay-stacks have been burned. Houses and barns are safe, unless a strong wind should come from the west to north, in which case many could not be saved. One call has come to the city for three hundred men to fight the fire, but fearing they would not be able to collect their pay, only a few responded.

Ticket-of-Leave Men.

Boston, Oct. 23.—Under the provisions of the law enacted by the last legislature, three prisoners in state prison will be released to-day on ticket-of-leave, by the commissioners of prisons, with the consent and approval of the governor and council. Who the men are is not made public, but it is understood that one of the men is now serving a sixteen years' sentence, and that the other sentences were about ten years each. By the terms of the law the paroled prisoners must have served at least two-thirds of their sentences. Nine men were recommended for favorable consideration by the warden, but the commissioners reduced the list finally to three.

CATARRH

COLD IN HEAD

There's nothing so GOOD AS Cottolene

The new vegetable shortening. Wherever introduced, it drives lard from the kitchen, and indigestion from the household. It has been tried by every test, and has met every requirement. It is as much superior to lard as the electric light is to the tallow-dip. The only question now is, will you give your family the benefits which its use bestows?

There's nothing LIKE Cottolene

In composition, in healthfulness, in flavor, or in economy. Its success has called out a lot of imitations and counterfeits made for the sole purpose of selling in the place and on the merits of Cottolene. Avoid them all. They are made to sell and they are a sell. Get the genuine COTTOLENE.

For Congress, Eighth District—JOHN T. DUNN.
For Congress, Third District—JACOB A. GEISSENHAINER.

COUNTY DEMOCRATIC CONVENTION

At a meeting of the Democratic Executive Committee of the County of Union, held September 20, 1894, it was resolved to hold the County Convention on Wednesday, Oct. 24, 1894,

at 2 p. m., in

ARMORY HALL, BROAD ST., ELIZABETH,

to nominate candidates for County Clerk, Members of Assembly, and one Coroner.

AT REST.

Morgan S. Taylor.

The universal respect with which the late Morgan S. Taylor was regarded and the heartfelt sorrow of his friends, his fellow-churchmen and his business acquaintances were testified to at the funeral services held at 3 yesterday afternoon. The residence, 10 Rockview Terrace, was filled with people from Plainfield, New York and Brooklyn.

The services began with singing by a quartette composed of Miss Bessie Blair, Miss Gussie Runyon, W. W. Howland and Charles W. McCutchen. They sang very tenderly and feelingly "Just as I am, without one plea". Rev. Dr. D. J. Yerkes, pastor of the First Baptist Church, of which Mr. Taylor had been a member for 21 years, then read from the Scriptures and offered prayer. The quartette closed the services by singing the old-fashioned chant of "Nearer My God to Thee".

The interment in Hillside Cemetery was private, Dr. Yerkes reading from the Bible in the presence of the family and a few intimate friends. There were many beautiful floral emblems of respect, among them flowers from the firm of Townsend & Yale of New York.

C. C. COKEFAIR SUED.

Dispute Over the Payment of a $300 Note.

A suit to recover the amount of a note for $300, with interest and costs, was brought in the Union County Court yesterday against Charles C. Cokefair of Crescent avenue by Francis C. Armstrong, of Elizabeth, who is book-keeper for James S. Kendall, a lumber merchant of Whitehall street, New York. The note was given July 10, 1894, on the First National Bank, Plainfield, and was made payable to Kendall, who in turn paid it over to Armstrong. The note went to protest and on payment being demanded it was refused, hence the suit.

JOHN T. ON THE WARPATH.

Congressman Dunn was in town last night hunting up the authorship of the story that he sold the postmastership. He threatened prosecution, and said that he would have those who had sent him abusive letters summoned before the United States Commissioner.

Delightful Chrysanthemum Party.

A very pleasant time was enjoyed by all who were present at the home of Mr. and Mrs. John Kitchen last evening. Music was furnished by the skilful musicians, Samuel Frazee and Laurie Tanoto. Refreshments were served at 12, and dancing indulged in till early morning.

Among the guests were Misses Maggie and Edith Miles, George De Meza, Misses Ida and Belle Lewis, William Kitchen, Mr. and Mrs. John Kitchen, George Chandler, William Morrison, Judson Smalley, Miss Ada Woolston, Howard Woolston, Percy Emmons, the Misses Nellie Schutt, Josie Fritz, Lena and Minnie Smalley, Mattie Cook, May McLoughlin, Jessie Coddington, and Etta Blatz, Harry Coddinton, William Boyd of New Brunswick; Chauncey Colthar and Robert Clark.

Democratic Primaries.

At the Plainfield Democratic primaries last night the fullest harmony prevailed, and the following were elected:

County Convention Delegates—First ward, John Rafferty, John J. Kenney, Cornelius Laughlin, Stephen Davis, John F. McIntyre. Second ward, John Mortimer, John M. Dayton, J. G. Miller, E. C. Searing, E. E. Conklin. Third ward, Edward VanBuren, J. G. Shepard, James Clark. Fourth ward, Peter Blimm, John Bowman, E. D. Moffett, V. L. Frazee, John McCarthy, Peter Flynn, Ira Hurlbert, Fred Moore.

Members County Executive Committee—First ward, Walter L. Hetfield; Second, R. M. Stover; Third, E. M. VanBuren; Fourth, V. L. Frazee.

A Fine Piece Of Sculpture.

Those interested in works of art should take a stroll to Townsend's marble and granite works, and see the statue of the flower girl cut out of Italian marble, life size. It is certainly one of the finest pieces of work ever exhibited in Plainfield.

Karl's Clover Root will purify your blood, clear your complexion, regulate your bowels and make your head clear as a bell; 25c., 50c. and $1. Sold by all druggists.

Captain Sweeney, U. S. A., San Diego, Cal., says: "Shiloh's Catarrh Remedy is the first medicine I have ever found that would do me any good". Price 50c. Sold by all druggists.

Shiloh's Cure, the great cough and croup cure, is in great demand. Pocket size contains 25 doses, only 25c. Children love it. Sold by all druggists.

WON IN CHANCERY.

Marshal Line Gets the Property He Fought For.

SINGULARITY OF LAW ABOUT WILLS.

Line Was Left For Life the Use of a Farm, Which Was at His Death to Go to His Children—The Farm Was Sold By Creditors, and Now All the Rest of the Estate Is Held Liable to Make Good the Loss.

The law about wills is curious. James H. Line, assistant marshal of North Plainfield, has just won a Chancery suit for his wife and children which seems to show that it is sometimes better to be left a specified piece of land than to be left double its value in money. Mr. Line's father's will bequeathed money to all but James, and left to him only the use of a farm, located in Western Pennsylvania, as long as he lived, the farm then to be divided among James's children. Owing to business reverses, James's life interest was soon sold by the sheriff. This left the children's interests unharmed. But soon some Pennsylvania creditors of James's father got tired waiting for the executors to settle with them, they had the same sheriff to sell the whole farm to pay the debts due from the testator. Then there was nothing left for James or his children. The testator left a large amount of real-estate in Plainfield and North Plainfield, but nobody believed that this could be touched as there was not more than enough when sold, to pay the New Jersey debts of the testator and the money legacies already referred to. Some three years later Mr. and Mrs. Line, in the interest of their children, submitted the whole matter to counsel for a legal opinion. Having secured this, Mrs. Line bought up the life interest of her husband and then brought suit against the executor and about forty others, legatees and heirs who claimed to have first liens on the Plainfield property. Her claim was that the Pennsylvania farm ought to have been saved for her family even if it took all the rest of the estate to do it, and that since it had not been saved, she was now entitled to have the rest of the estate sold by order of court, and the proceeds applied to make good the loss. Two years have passed since this suit was begun. It ended Saturday with a decision of the Court of Chancery in favor of Mrs. Line and her children. Although none of the legatees have been paid a dollar, the Court orders (and even the opposing counsel gave up the fight and consented to the decree) and that all the New Jersey land shall be sold, and after paying the costs of suit, a gross sum representing the value of the farm during the last five years, be paid to Mrs. Line, and another gross sum, representing the value of the farm itself be put out at interest, the interest to go to Mrs. Line while her husband lives, and then the principal to go to her children. The balance is to be divided among the others who are mentioned in the will. The sale is required to take place within three months. Mrs. Line's counsel was Craig A. Marsh.

POCOHANTAS FAIR.

Iona Council Has An Auspicious Opening Night.

Iona Council, Degree of Pocohantas, the women's branch of the Red Men in Plainfield, opened their fair in Central Hall last evening. Both Paugh Caugh Naugh Sinque and Miantonomoh tribes were represented. The attendance was larger than usual at the first night of a fair.

The patriotic decorations made the room a scene of beauty. Flags and bunting and strings of fringed tissued paper covered every part of the hall. The dancing was, of course, the feature of the affair. Whitney Frazee furnished the music. No games of chance were operated. A voluntary entertainment is promised for every evening during the week. Thursday night N. H. Guttman's band will give a concert.

Those at the tables were the following:

Candy—Mrs. Angleman, Mrs. Radin, Mrs. Bowman.

Fancy—Mrs. Cox, the Misses Scheelein.

Apron and necktie—Mrs. Whitney Frazee, Miss Lizzie Sebring.

Soda water—Carl Kaerth.

Ice-cream—Mrs. J. Wm. Kline, Miss Kittie Cortwright.

The floor was in charge of Fred Canfield and Charles Holstein. The auctioneer of the evening was Justice Wm. Newcorn.

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR.

The Christian Endeavor sociable of the First Church of Christ is postponed from Thursday night to Nov. 15.

The opening social of the Christian Endeavor Society of the Congregational Church will be held at the residence of Mrs. Wm. VanAlstyne, 730 Watchung avenue, next Friday evening at 8.

MOST SERVICEABLE COLOR.

FASHION AND ECONOMY BOTH APPROVE BLACK CLOTHING.

An Easy Way of Home-Dyeing—Cotton Wool, Silk and Feathers Readily Colored a Handsome Black—Use Only Diamond Dyes—Absolutely Fast Black.

It is only within the last few years that it has been possible for an inexperienced person to dye a black that would not crock, fade or wash out. Even mill-dyed black goods were rarely absolutely fast.

The advent of three diamond dye fast blacks—for wool, for cotton and for silk and feathers—has changed all this. Now, with a ten cent package of one of these dyes, the first trial gives perfect success. The directions on the packages are so plain and simple that even a child can get better results than the experienced dyer could a few years ago.

The prevailing fashion for black stockings, feathers, gowns and cloaks, and the fact that anything can be colored with diamond dyes a black that will not crock or fade, explains their almost universal use.

The peculiar way in which the diamond dye fast blacks are made, gives them a great superiority over all other methods of home dyeing.

There are some forty other colors of diamond dyes, each of which is thoroughly reliable, and as superior to imitations as sunlight is to moonlight.

FIRE IN THE BOROUGH.

Somerset Street Shop Burned from an Unknown Cause.

Kalman Rottberg's dry goods and clothing store, 64 Somerset street, was burned out at 10 this morning. The stock is a complete loss, and the woodwork and the fixtures of the store are charred and will have to be replaced.

The cause of the fire is unknown. Today being a Jewish holiday, Rottberg and his two oldest children started to attend service in the Front street synagogue at 8:45 this morning. The twins followed and were allowed to go. Mrs. Rottberg remained at home with the other little one. She was upstairs cleaning up a room when the fire broke out. The store was filled with flames instantly.

Joseph Herold saw the fire and gave the alarm. Box 142 was pulled and Box 141 a second later. The first box sounded the gong. The blows were very indistinct as the steam was low.

The new hose wagon was delayed as the firemen waited to hitch the horses instead of pulling it out by hand. The fire was quickly extinguished. Mrs. Rottberg appeared to be almost crazed with grief as she went through the crowd looking for the twins who had slipped away with their father.

The building is a two and a-half story frame structure including Nos. 62 and 64. It is owned by Richard O. Elliott and is insured through Lyman & Petrie in the Orient Insurance Company for $1,500. The loss is about $100. Rottberg's insurance was in the German American, placed through J. C. Pope & Co. He had $600 on the stock, $300 on the furniture and $100 on the fixtures.

REPUBLICAN CONVENTION.

Assemblymen Renominated.

(Special by Wire to The Daily Press.)

Elizabeth, October 23.—The Republican Convention this afternoon renominated Codding, Cross and Burger for Assembly.

Benjamin Vail is chairman of the convention. Vincent Nash of Plainfield is one of the secretaries, and C. B. Corwin is on the Committee on Credentials.

The nomination for County Clerk has not been reached as this issue goes to press.

Through a Glass Darkly.

U. B. Crane of West Front street pasted several pieces of broken glass in a front window of his store Saturday, and placed a stone inside to make it appear as if the window had been broken. The shortest of the spectacled paper's staff came along at 3 in the afternoon and "investigated" the "accident". The spectacled paper accordingly printed the following:

"One of the large windows in U. B. Crane's store was found shattered this morning by a stone as large as one's fist which fell inside. In the middle of the glass is a large hole where the stone went through. There is no clue to the one who threw it."

CYCLING COMMENT.

Harry Kramer of Virginia, a traveling "world-renowned trick rider" began to perform on a high wheel last evening at 8. Policeman Cooney arrived and stopped the exhibition by the time he had attracted a large crowd. Kramer didn't have a permit to perform and he rode without a light.

EARLY INTELLIGENCE.

—The football eleven of Leal's School expect to go to Westfield tomorrow to play an eleven there.

—Mrs. Hannah McElroy of Chestnut street lost her footing and fell downstairs this morning. She was taken to Muhlenberg Hospital. She suffered intensely from internal injuries, and it is feared that the results of the fall may be serious.

Programme Arranged.

At the meeting of Queen City Lodge of Odd Fellows last evening the committee reported having arranged a programme for the third anniversary celebration next Monday night. Charles Rugg was elected representative to the Grand Lodge. H. O. Hance, T. S. Smith and Dr. L. S. Pocock were chosen delegates to the district meeting.

Removing an Old Landmark.

A. D. Thompson has sold to James Brown for $200 the old John Layton house on East Second street, and John Ammon and a force of men commenced today to take it down. The material will be taken to a lot on the corner of Leland and North avenues, Netherwood, and there again erected by Mr. Brown as a dwelling house.

"Beats All Creation."

The new TOILET SOAP we are selling at 10c. It is pure, good soap, to begin with; but more, in richness of perfume and in general style, it excels many of the costliest soaps in the market. 'Tis as good as a sachet powder to perfume your linen. TEN CENTS only.

AT REYNOLDS'S PHARMACY.

PARTICULAR MENTION.

H. A. Streuli of Hillside avenue returned last evening from Europe.

Rev. E. M. Rodman went yesterday to Hartford to visit friends there for a few days.

Dr. D. C. Adams and Capt. Doane are home from their Adirondack trip. Their party killed eight deer.

George Githens of Frohman's "Men and Women" company, is the guest of Alvah Carey of Prospect place.

Monte Scott and his brother Henry expect to leave tomorrow for Providence, where they will spend the Winter.

Abner Bartlett of 329 Park avenue was taken suddenly ill last night. Mrs. Bartlett has but just recovered from a severe illness.

Mrs. Henry Millman of 453 Webster place, is seriously ill at her home, and her husband and daughter are very much alarmed over her condition.

George Taggart has been elected a member of the American League of Racing Cyclists in recognition of his bicycle work for The United Press during the past season.

Godey's Magazine has a story in the August and September numbers written by Louis Baker. It is entitled "Out of the World", and is of additional interest to Plainfielders from the fact that the pleasing illustrations are by Jessamy Harte of Plainfield.

Mr. and Mrs. Leslie Mason of Bethel, Maine, spent last evening and part of today with their friends, Mr. and Mrs. W. C. Startup of Westervelt avenue. Mr. Mason has several mills and a large lumber interest at Bethel. He and his charming wife are infatuated with the beauties of Plainfield.

Miss Alice Boyd, daughter of the editor of New Brunswick's leading newspaper, was given a salmagundi party at the home of Mr. and Mrs. E. P. Williams, West Seventh street, last night. It was a delightful event, attended by Lady Cyclers and their friends. The prizes of a cobweb game were won by Miss Morrison, Miss Yerkes, Miss Struthers, Mr. Enyard, Mr. Curtis, Mr. Martin. Miss Boyd stays in Plainfield a few days as the guest of Mrs. C. T. Pond.

China Wants the War Continued.

Washington, Oct. 23.—The officials of the Chinese legation give an emphatic denial of the reports that China is negotiating with Japan for peace or that she will at this time seriously consider overtures of peace from any source whatever. "The winter season," said one of these gentlemen, "is so near at hand that hostilities must necessarily cease in a few weeks until warmer weather of next year. China, meanwhile, will continue her preparations for war. What conclusions may be reached during the interval between now and spring no one can foretell but the present sentiment of the Chinese people is for a continuation of the war, and the rejection of any proposals looking to an agreement of peace."

The Robinsons Indicted.

Buffalo, Oct. 23.—The court of sessions grand jury reported a joint indictment against Sarah and Clarence Robinson for the murder of Montgomery Gibbs on the night of April 28. The indictment charges them with premeditated murder, and also with murder in the first degree while perpetrating a felony. Assistant Superintendent of Police Cusack will leave for Albany to obtain from Governor Flower a requisition on the governor of Ohio for Clarence Robinson, who is in jail at Cleveland. He expects to bring Robinson here on Friday.

"Socialist Workers" Suppressed.

Rome, Oct. 23.—Many association known as "socialist workers," which have for some time past existed in various parts of the country, have been suppressed by the authorities on the ground that they tended to excite and foster class hatred among the people.

Municipal Ownership of Docks.

Boston, Oct. 23.—The merchants of Boston, through Alderman David F. Barry, presented a monster petition to the board of aldermen, praying for the municipal ownership of docks.

Say They Will Marry.

Syracuse, Oct. 23.—Rev. Frederick G. Bingley, of Boston, and Mrs. John S. Wells, of Rochester, who eloped from the latter city Oct. 2, have been located in this city. They have been living separately. Bingley has been preaching in the missions and churches of this city. Wells came to this city Saturday in quest of his wife. He shadowed the couple, and after they had parted had a stormy interview with Mrs. Wells. He will bring suit for divorce. Mrs. Wells and Bingley say that they will marry. Bingley has a wife living in Buffalo.

Buncoed Out of $5,000.

Waverly, N. Y., Oct. 23.—Chauncey Wheaton, a wealthy farmer, was buncoed out of $5,000 by a couple of "three-card monte" men. Wheaton drew the money from the bank, to show that he had it, and then won $6,000 more at he game. He saw both packages placed in a box and tied up, but when he reached home the box was empty. The sharpers escaped.

—Bound Brook and the Manhattans will bowl on the Manhattan alleys tonight.

—The reply of "American" to Rev. Father Murphy, is, with much other interesting matter, crowded out of this issue, to appear tomorrow.

HAPPY WEDDING CELEBRATION.

Original Poetry and Song by Guests Who Surprised the Host.

A very pleasant surprise party was given at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Dunham of West Front street last evening. The guests were all present before the arrival of Mr. Dunham, who is employed in Laire's hardware store. They were in a darkened room when he entered and completely surprised him. Thus he was happily reminded that it was his fifth wedding anniversary, and that his friends had gathered to wish him many happy returns of the day.

A collation was served at 10. After supper a speech was demanded from the host, and to that aptly made Elder B. W. Hand responded. An original poem was read by Mrs. William Dunham of New Market, and Mrs. Dunham sang a song of her own composition. The remainder of the evening was spent in social conversation and singing with Mrs. Hand as accompanist on the organ. The happy couple received many useful and valuable gifts, including an elegant Fifteenth Century bedroom suit.

GOOD TIME WITH 711.

Plainfield Arcanumites Have a Gala Night.

Nelson Hull was initiated at the meeting of Plainfield Council, 711, Royal Arcanum, last evening. Five propositions were received. Supervising Deputy McDonald of the District of New Jersey was present and made a speech on the progress of the order.

After the business of the evening had been transacted Messrs. Plant and Thompson of New York, two talented Arcanumites, entertained the members with songs and recitations, cigars having been passed.

The council will have an entertainment in the Casino the evening of November 20 when the Swedish Ladies Quartette, Humorist James J. Burdette, and local talent will take part.

HYMENEAL.

Conde-Scheidt.

Mrs. Elizabeth Scheidt and P. Ludwig Conde, the musician, were married last evening at 6:30. The ceremony was quietly performed at 308 East Front street by Rev. George Hauser, pastor of the German Reformed Church.

Mendelssohn's wedding march was played by Mr. Lang of Elizabeth, on the violin, Mrs. J. H. Buckley on the piano and Firman Ferrar on the 'cello. A supper was given afterwards to the members of the family and Mr. and Mrs. Buckley. At 10:18 Mr. and Mrs. Conde left Plainfield on a short wedding trip. The bride is the widow of Mr. Conde's cousin.

TO THE WORLD OF WOMEN.

For Mothers' and Daughters' Health.

Weak, nervous, delicate, overworked women are the ones that need a strength builder, a tonic for the nerves, and a cure for that awful internal trouble that is wearing out their lives. Thousands of women have found such in Dr. Kennedy's Favorite Remedy. Mrs. Christiana Beal, of Jonesport, Me., writes that her daughter had been a great sufferer from female trouble, and after repeated trials of doctor's prescriptions and other so-called cures, all of which gave no relief, she used Dr. Kennedy's Favorite Remedy and it permanently cured her.

If you have headache or any of the attending evils that are present in female complaints, use Favorite Remedy; it will build up quickly the run down constitution and bring refreshing sleep. It will dispel those tired looks and feelings, restore the nervous system and permanently cure you. Our daughters grow up weak and delicate; mothers can avoid such conditions by giving them Dr. David Kennedy's Favorite Remedy.

Children Cry for Pitcher's Castoria.

ADOPTED THE WAIF.

The Borough Foundling Falls Into Good Hands.

The baby abandoned on Councilman Winckler's piazza has been adopted. The name and address of the kind-hearted people who have received it into their home is withheld by their request.

The waif's new home is far from Plainfield. A well dressed woman came to town today and went away with Chief Marshal Pangborn and the baby this afternoon. They were last seen boarding a Blue Line at Bound Brook.

Catarrh Cannot Be Cured

with local applications, as they cannot reach the seat of the disease. Catarrh is a blood or constitutional disease, and in order to cure it you must take internal remedies. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, and acts directly on the blood and mucous surfaces. Hall's Catarrh Cure is not a quack medicine. It was prescribed by one of the best physicians in this country for years, and is a regular prescription. It is composed of the best tonics known, combined with the best blood purifiers, acting directly on the mucous surfaces. The perfect combination of the two ingredients is what produces such wonderful results in curing catarrh. Send for testimonials, free.

CITIZENS ORGANIZED AID

Splendid Results of One Year's Efforts.

FACTS AND FIGURES FULLY TOLD.

Plainfield's Leading People Have in This Society Conducted a Noble Work, as the Annual Reports, Herewith Given, Show in Interesting Detail.

The Citizens Organized Aid Association has accomplished great good, and satisfactorily tested plans for continued effort, in the year it has existed. This was evidenced at the first annual public meeting held last evening in Vincent Chapel. While the attendance was not as large as the importance of the occasion warranted, the hundreds of Plainfielders who are united for charitable effort in churches and societies were well represented by their ministers and officers.

The chairman was Vice-president Henry B. Newhall, who acted in the place of President Mason W. Tyler. Mr. Newhall opened the meeting with an address in which he reviewed the aims and acts of the Association. He spoke as follows:

It is impossible to determine the precise date when the idea was first conceived which finally resulted in the formation of the Citizens Organized Aid Association. After much preliminary thought and careful consideration and after several public meetings the association was formally organized in December, 1893. Col. Mason W. Tyler was elected president, and under his direction the officers and committees promptly undertook the work on the basis set forth in the constitution and as more fully detailed in a circular issued to the public early in the winter. We believe the work of the year has been wisely performed. We are glad to embrace the present opportunity of reporting to the citizens of Plainfield who have furnished the funds and in other ways sustained the association. This report will be made up largely from the reports of the various committees that have had the detailed work in charge.

The total expenses of the association for the year have been $429.05. This includes office rent, printing, salaries of agent and office boy, and all other expenses, showing marked economy on the part of those having our finances in charge. We have now in the treasury $25.77. The income of the association is derived from voluntary contributions, from regular annual membership dues of $2 each, and from life memberships of $50 each. Our Finance Committee has recommended the establishment of sustaining membership dues of $10 each. This recommendation will probably be adopted. We have no used for a large income but we hope for a large membership. The disbursement of money in the form of gifts to the needed is not contemplated nor provided for in our plans of work.

In our constitution the first object for which we were organized is stated "To be a centre of intercommunication between the various public, private and individual charities in the city. To foster co-operation between them, and to check the evils of the overlapping of relief". Through our committee we have secured the co-operation and sympathy of 24 churches. It is understood that in the interchange of information between the churches and our association no publicity will be given to the names of beneficiaries. The information given or received is considered as confidential and is used most judiciously. We are working cordially with 30 or 40 of the secular organizations in their efforts towards moral reform. We have been able by the co-operation of the King's Daughters circles, of which there are 20 in Plainfield, to give material aid in many families requiring just such peculiar help as seems appropriate for these young ladies to render with the money and youthful energy they have at their command. By the co-operation of a number of citizens who have loaned their carriages the prompt investigation of pressing and distant cases has been facilitated. Those having carriages who are willing to join the "Carriage Circle" are requested to send their names to Miss Tweedy, 125 Crescent avenue.

The co-operation of citizens has been solicited by the distribution of householders tickets, to be handed to all persons applying for relief. These tickets give the address of our central office, where all cases will be investigated and work provided for those in need of food, clothing or lodging. Many of these tickets have been handed to beggars and tramps but very few of such persons have presented them at the office. This shows that by far the greater number of those who apply from door to door are frauds, impostors and tramps. It is, of course, impossible to state to what extent the evils of overlapping of relief have been prevented, but we believe that by the cordial co-operation of churches, societies and citizens much has already been accomplished in this direction.

We believe that we show the truest friendship to those who are able to work, by helping them to find work. We believe we show the truest friendship to those in distress by bringing them into close and friendly relations with the churches or other societies who show themselves willing that we should co-operate with them in good work for any and all who need kindly aid. This co-operation, so desirable and so beneficent, can be extended during the coming year if every citizen will do his part, first, by becoming familiar with our work; second, by referring all applicants for aid to the agent at our central office; third, by positively refusing any gifts of money to unknown applicants; fourth, by using the householders tickets with the assurance that such tickets in the hands of any deserving person will surely save him from suffering and possibly help him to find work.

The second object of the association is thus stated: "To investigate thoroughly the cases of all applicants which are referred to the association for inquiry, and to send persons having a legitimate interest in such cases full reports of the results of investigation. To provide visitors who shall personally attend cases needing counsel and advice." Through our district committee and our efficient agent we have accomplished all this. The office hours of our agent have been from 9 to 11 a. m. Any application brought to her attention has been promptly and thoroughly investigated by her, and every such case has been reported to and considered by the district committee. Cases of distress requiring immediate relief have been taken care of by our agent without any delay, in such a manner as her good judgment has indicated, and have been reported for the consideration of the committee at the first opportunity. During the Winter and until April 1 the committee held weekly meetings, and since that date fortnightly. By use of the Card System complete and accurate reports of all cases investigated are kept in our office for the information of anyone having a legitimate interest in them.

Measures of helpfulness have been considered for 187 persons, many of whom have been relieved several times during the Winter. This number does not include the 144 men under our District Committee who were employed upon public work. The District Committee has considered appeals for provisions, clothing, rent, coal, medicine, medical attendance and for entire support as in the cases of helpless and friendless children. There have been 22 appeals refused as being unworthy or for other reasons; the other cases were approved and the necessary relief secured by the recommendations of our committee, through such church, society or individual, as seemed the most natural and proper channel. By far the larger number of applicants were recommended to and cared for by the Plainfield Relief Association. Other cases were referred, with full reports of our investigation, to the churches, chapels and societies, to individuals, and to the city and borough authorities. As far as is known every recommendation of our committee has received proper attention from the parties to whom applicants have been sent. Where necessary friendly visitors have been appointed to visit regularly persons who have been receiving relief. In this part of our work we have been very much aided by the well-organized system of friendly visiting carried on by the Plainfield Relief Association. All citizens can help by making use of our records when in want of employes, and by volunteering their services as visitors if needed.

The third object of our association is stated "To study the best method of providing work for the unemployed and if necessary to this end to establish a labor bureau". Perhaps the most important and well-studied effort to attain this object was accomplished by the special committee appointed before our association was organized. This committee, of which Hon. Alexander Gilbert was chairman, was furnished through the liberality of private citizens with the sum of $5,000, and arrangements were made to provide employment on public work. Eleven hundred dollars was placed at the disposal of the Plainfield Relief Association.

Immediately upon the organization of our association the responsibility of recommending and caring for the men who applied for such employment was placed upon our District Committee. During the Winter a large number of applications were carefully investigated by our agent and committee. Of those applying 144 men with families depending upon them were given public work at a total expenditure of $3,900. Where it was feared that the men might spend their money in the saloons, they were paid in groceries instead of money. It can hardly be said that we have established a labor bureau but our office is in charge of the Employment Committee and to some extent it has served that purpose, as upon our books can be found a full list of persons applying for employment. Since Dec. 26, 1893, when the office was opened, 180 persons have applied. The list has been used by 85 persons looking for employes and 61 persons have in this way found employment mostly by the day, as laundress, seamstress, general housework, useful man, etc. Applicants as a rule both men and women were ready to do any kind of work available as a means of support.

One method of providing work (and here we quote from the report of Committee on Employment) "was to secure donations of money with which to pay for work done in the home of those who had no money to pay for it. There are many instances, where, owing to real illness or to delicate health on the part of overworked mothers or aged women, the gift of a day's work in scrubbing or washing would be an incalculable boon". This method has been successfully tried, although only on a small scale; $18 having been contributed and used in this manner. We believe that this work can be extended with very good results either by a department of our own association or, perhaps, by the Relief Association.

Arrangements have been made to provide work for tramps to enable them to earn their food and lodging, but as a rule these persons will not work at all. Of the large number who applied either at our office or at private houses and who were referred to Mr. Holmes, 208 Madison avenue, to saw wood, very few ever accepted the work, preferring to pass on and beg or steal at the next convenient place.

The fourth object of our association is "To obtain from those unable to work, so far as may be necessary, suitable assistance from benevolent individuals, societies, churches", etc. This part of our work has been very large and varied. The details are such as do not belong in this report and are not made public. Every case coming to our attention has been carefully considered, and children and old people, as well as men and women temporarily unable to work have been cared for. This object will be facilitated and promoted as the people of Plainfield become more in the habit of calling upon us for our assistance and co-operation. It is with great pleasure that we are able to report that arrangements have just been completed, whereby the King's Daughters circles have procured at their own expense the regular services of a district nurse. This thoroughly competent woman will be under the direction of a committee of ladies and will be ready at any moment to take charge of such cases of sickness as may be properly recommended by this association, or other organizations, or physicians.

The fifth object of the association is "To engage in such measures of philanthropy and reform as the council shall deem wise". The care of the city poor is a matter which has received careful thought; correspondence has been carried on with other cities, and information has been secured which will be helpful in considering the question of a city poor-house or some other better plan than the present. The question of truancy from the public schools has been considered, and the appointment of a truant officer has been secured. The care of children deserted or neglected has been considered and correspondence looking towards more effective work in this direction has been had with societies and institutions in this and other States.

We believe that the most important work and that which will be the most far-reaching for the future good of Plainfield, is that which can be put forth for the children of our community. We hope that some easier and better means may be devised whereby children of unworthy parents may be protected and cared for and helped to become good citizens instead of paupers and criminals.

The sixth and last object named in our constitution is "To aid in the diffusion of knowledge upon all subjects connected with the work of the association." Our printing and publishing committee has issued circulars and has furnished facts connected with our work for publication by the newspapers and by notices to be read in the churches. Minutes of our meetings have been freely published by the city papers. Still further working to attain this sixth object, we have invited to be with us and to address us this evening a man who has had wide experience in such matters and who we know will be listened to with very great interest and profit in anticipation of our future and what we hope will be our larger and more successful work.

At the close of his address Mr. Newhall formally introduced Charlton T. Lewis, LL. D., president of the State Charities Organized Aid Association of New Jersey and president of the Prison Reform Association of New York.

Dr. Lewis made an entertaining and edifying address, and at its close the business part of the meeting was taken up. The secretary, Miss E. R. Leonard, read the minutes of the meeting held December 9, 1893. Besides the delegates from the different churches and societies and all the ministers of Plainfield, there were elected as members of the council the following: Mayor Gilbert, Mayor Needham, Mrs. Alexander Gilbert, Pliny Fisk, Mrs. J. K. Myers, D. P. Hall, S. A. Glenn, W. L. Saunders, Mrs. Horace Kimball, Mrs. A. W. Haviland, Mrs. H. B. Opdyke, H. F. Reynolds, Rowland Cox Mrs. Lawrence Myers, Dr. Edward Rushmore, G. H. Goddard, Mrs. J. W. Yates, Miss E. R. Leonard, C. J. Fisk, J. Doul Miller, C. W. McCutchen, H. B. Wells and L. V. F. Randolph. In addition to those persons who were nominated and elected to serve upon the Council, that body, by the terms of the constitution, includes all the officers and heads of committees of the Association.

On motion of Isaac L. Miller Dr. Lewis was given a vote of thanks. The meeting then adjourned.

Reports of the year's work which have been approved by the Council are:

REPORT OF CO-OPERATIVE COMMITTEE OF THE CITIZENS ORGANIZED AID ASSOCIATION OF PLAINFIELD, N. J.

It would seem unnecessary to say that "Organized Charities" to be successful must have the full co-operation of all churches and societies giving relief to the poor. To establish such co-operation has been the effort of this committee during the past year. It is glad to report at present date, 24 churches in sympathy with the principles of "Organized Charities", and willing to work in accordance with them. This co-operation has been aided by a pledge on the part of the C. O. A. A., to give no unnecessary publicity to the names of beneficiaries of churches, the information given to be used most judiciously. Of the secular organizations, numbering between 30 and 40, those whose objects are material aid and moral reform are working cordially with the C. O. A. A. Other associations specially for material benefit, in the interests of Masons, Odd Fellows, Friends and Soldiers make provision for dependent members, leaving little danger in the case of duplication of relief. Of equal importance has been the securing of the co-operation of the various circles of the King's Daughters, numbering 20 in Plainfield. These circles are capable of most efficient work, having money and much youthful energy at their command. They are becoming interested in the principles of the C. O. A. A., and in their selection of objects for work, will it is hoped avail themselves more and more of the investigations of the Association. The work of the Central office has been facilitated by the co-operation of residents of Plainfield, who have given to the agent of the office the use of their carriages two hours each month to aid her in making investigation, specially when the pressure of cases and distances were great. Thanks are due to Mr. Frank Day for the use of a carriage for several hours, when telephonic communication with private horses was cut off. During the past year this committee has taken in charge the distribution of the householders' tickets from door to door. The faithful use of these tickets is urged upon the householders of Plainfield. So long as persons give indiscriminately at the door or without knowledge of the case, there need be no surprise if the means of the givers be wasted by overlapping charity, and the characters of applicants be demoralized by encouragement in deception. The Committee on Co-operation desires to call attention to the responsible position of those who represent the churches and societies in the Council. They are asked to make special effort to explain the principles of organized charities, and to see that the relief given in these churches and societies shall be in accordance with these principles. To this end, it is very desirable that such persons shall be practically identified with the charitable work of the churches and societies they represent.

Respectfully submitted,
ELIZABETH TIFFANY, Chairman.

REPORT OF THE EMPLOYMENT COMMITTEE OF THE C. O. A. A.

A large part of the work of the Employment Committee during the past year has been the organization and supervision of our office work. Upon this point it is sufficient to say that economy and efficiency have been the two objects aimed at. We have employed a paid agent, as the work requires promptness and dispatch, qualities which cannot always be commanded from volunteer workers. Charitable people wish to feel sure that every case of real distress will receive prompt attention, and that cases of imposture will be exposed. To this end a central office where applications can be made and full records kept and a paid agent whose business it is to give each case prompt attention are indispensible. The Employment Committee has had no charge of the work done on the streets. That was in the hands of the committee of gentlemen who raised the money and was done by them through our agent, subject to conditions which they imposed. It was one of these conditions that the work should be given to married men only, leaving without provision the single men and the women, many of these latter having children dependent upon them. To find work for these has been the special province of the Employment Committee. The work has been a difficult one and in many instances we have been unable to meet the demands made upon us. In the brief limits of an abridged report it is impossible to give details of our work; underlying principles only can be touched upon. No small part of the work done by the committee has consisted in making a thorough study of the conditions surrounding their task and of the means used in other cities to solve the problem of the unemployed. As a result of this study we believe that permanent relief cannot be found through any artificial means of providing employment. Established industries already supplying the needs of the community in their various lines should not be interfered with by trying to find an artificial market for a similar product from relief work. Work must be found for those unable to find it for themselves, and the product of this labor must supply a genuine want in the community. Following this line, and aiming for steady and permanent progress in the right direction rather than for immediate and showy results, the committee have sought to find the needed work. They have not been wholly unsuccessful. There is work crying out to be done, but it is often found in the homes of those who cannot pay for it. There are many instances where, owing to ill-health on the part of overworked mothers or aged women, the gift of a day's work in washing and scrubbing would be a great blessing. Money has been kindly donated for this purpose, but a much larger sum could be wisely used, and every dollar so spent would confer a double benefit. Some work has also been found in small jobs here and there which often go undone because the householder cannot, at the moment, command service for the short time required. We have been able in some instances to give a single man enough of these small jobs to provide for his necessities until permanent employment has been secured. The committee believe, further, that it may be possible to organize the unemployed into working circles, the product of which shall suffice for the support of the individual members. Money would be needed for the initial expenses of such an enterprise, but food, clothes and shelter the unemployed must have, and in the end the community supplies them. Would it not be as well to provide in the beginning the money needed to set them at work to support each other. In the one case we witness the steady deterioration of a large and increasing class, while in the other we provide what is necessary to build up a worthy citizenship. In conclusion, the committee request the co-operation and support of the public. Any information asked for will gladly be given, and suggestions that may facilitate their work will be welcomed. Probably no more important question confronts the community today than the one now under consideration. In large cities the evil has grown so great as to be almost insurmountable and the fairest prospect of a true solution seems to be in small cities like our own, where the evil exists but in so small a degree as presumably to lie within the power of the community to control it. The difficulty of the work, however, is so great that we cannot hope to succeed without the hearty interest and generous support of all classes of citizens.

Respectfully submitted,
MIRIAM W. OPDYKE,
October 29, 1894. for the committee.

To the Central Council of the Citizens Organized Aid Association, Oct. 1, 1894:

The District Committee would respectfully report that the first work of the committee has been the consideration and the final disposition of the appeals made to the association for relief. To accomplish this the committee held weekly meetings until April 1, and fortnightly meetings after that date. It has been our pleasure to consider measures of helpfulness for 187 persons. This number does not indicate the whole work of the committee, for many of the applicants were before the committee several times during the Winter; neither does it include the 144 men under our care, who were given work upon the roads, and who, but for that work, might have been applicants for relief. Appeals have been made for provisions, clothing, rent, coal, medicine, medical attendance, and for entire support, as in the cases of helpless and friendless children. 22 appeals have been refused, as being unworthy or for other reason. The other cases were granted relief. It must be understood that the committee granted no relief but after full investigation we recommended worthy cases to the church or society from which it seemed most natural for the relief to come. By far the larger number of applicants were recommended to and cared for by the Plainfield Relief Association. Other cases were referred to each of the following churches or organizations: Crescent Avenue Church, First Baptist Church, Methodist Church, First Presbyterian Church, Hope Chapel, Warren Chapel, the G. A. R., King's Daughters, City of Plainfield through the Overseer-of-the-Poor, and the Township of North Plainfield. As far as is known no recommendation for relief has been refused by the organizations to which the applicants have been sent. Where it was necessary friendly visitors have been appointed. Through the kindness of the Central Council the District Committee has received the names of a large number of persons who may be called upon to act as friendly visitors. A special feature of our work was the oversight of the 144 men who were given employment upon the roads. It was our care to see that those alone were employed who had families dependent upon them, and that the families got the good of the men's wages, where it was known that the men would spend their money in the saloons they received special orders for groceries instead of money. In this way, it is hoped, that the $3,800 raised by special contribution and paid to the workmen, did the greatest possible amount of good to the greatest possible number of people. This Autumn the committee has taken great interest in the question of employment upon the sewers of those needing aid. 92 names have been recommended by Mrs. Woodruff to the contractor. The care of the city poor has occupied much of our time and thought. Several members of the committee have undertaken visitations to all the city poor, and have reported their condition and surroundings to the committee. A large correspondence has been carried on with other cities relative to the manner and the cost of caring for the city poor in other places. Much information has been gathered which will be helpful in finally deciding the question of a Plainfield City poor house. It may be of interest to mention that in spite of the stress of the past Winter the number of cases of those receiving permanent relief from the Overseer-of-the-Poor did not increase. However little this committee may have helped in bringing about this result in connection with the other agencies of relief, it is a matter of profound pleasure that such a Winter could have been passed, and that so much aid could have been given without a spread of the spirit of pauperism, and without a very material addition to the Overseer-of-the-Poor's list of those who will be forever content to let the city care for them. We have had before us the question of truancy from the public schools, and have secured the appointment of a truant officer. In the detail of our work we have been in communication with the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Children, and with houses and asylums and other institutions in this and other States. It has been a pleasure to have the constant attendance of Mrs. Woodruff at our meetings. Mrs. Woodruff has made full reports upon each case, has given the committee all needed information from carefully kept records, and has helped much by wise suggestion and advice. The committee is desirous only of being helpful, both to those who find it necessary to seek in escape from misfortune or to seek any kind of aid, and also to those who desire to give aid to others. Whatever information we possess is at the disposal of those who may be helped by it. This committee, through Mrs. Woodruff, received a large number of applications from tramps. These were referred to the wood yard, but did not report for duty.

Respectfully submitted,
G. KENNEDY NEWELL, Chairman.
DAVID P. HALL, Secretary.

WOMAN'S HEROISM.

FEW PEOPLE REALIZE IT.

What Heroic Efforts They make to Appear Cheerful and Happy.

[SPECIAL TO OUR LADY READERS.]

How many, think you, have any idea of the suffering endured by so large a proportion of the women of America?

Very few men have the slightest conception of the pain endured by so many women, even those of their own households, or the heroic efforts they make to appear cheerful and happy.

Maid of Orleans.

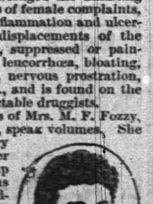
Women ought to be told just where the danger lies, for their whole future may depend upon their knowledge, and how to overcome it.

Lydia E. Pinkham solved the mystery after years of experience and study. She unerringly traced the cause of nearly all of woman's suffering to the womb.

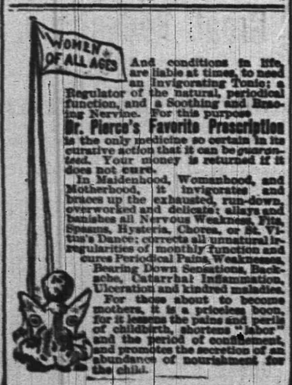
Other years followed and her Vegetable Compound was given to the world.

And now, after years of marvellous success, it is acknowledged the unfailing remedy for all forms of female complaints, ovarian troubles, inflammation and ulceration, falling and displacements of the womb, irregularity, suppressed or painful menstruations, leucorrhœa, bloating, flooding, backache, nervous prostration, kidney trouble, etc., and is found on the shelves of all respectable druggists.

Such cases as this of Mrs. M. F. Fozzy, of Campello, Mass., speak volumes. She says: "I was very sick. I did not ever expect to get up again. Menstruations had stopped suddenly. The pains all through my body were terrible. As a last resort I sent for a bottle of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and a box of her Liver Pills. I also used a package of her Sanative Wash.



"Relief came at once, and to-day I am a well woman. Menstruations regular, no backache, entirely cured of leucorrhœa and bearing down pains. Nothing equals Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.



And conditions in life are liable at times, to need an Invigorating Tonic; a Regulator of the natural, periodical function, and a Soothing and Invigorating Nervine. For this purpose is the only medicine so certain in its curative action that it can be guaranteed. Your money is returned if it does not cure.

Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription

In Maidenhood, Womanhood, and Motherhood, it invigorates and braces up the exhausted, run-down, overworked and delicate; allays and banishes all Nervous Weakness, Fits, Spasms, Hysteria, Chorea, or St. Vitus's Dance; corrects all unnatural irregularities of monthly function and cures Periodical Pains, Weaknesses, Bearing Down Sensations, Backache, Catarrhal Inflammation, Ulceration and kindred maladies.

For those about to become mothers, it is a priceless boon, for it lessens the pains and perils of childbirth, shortens labor, and the period of confinement, and promotes the secretion of an abundance of nourishment for the child.

GREAT LECTURE IN CHICKERING HALL, NEW YORK CITY.

The Vast Audience Departed in Deep Thought—Impression Will Last as Long as Time Endures—The Lecture Concerned Every One of Them.

(Special from New York City)

NEW YORK CITY, Oct. 22—"By what fragile threads hang the lives and destinies of men."

So said Dr. Greene in his great lecture on the nervous system last evening, in Chickering Hall, New York City. The name and fame of this well-known physician, of 35 West 14th street, New York City, are without parallel in the history of medicine, both from his marvelously instructive and fascinating lectures, and the incalculable good he is constantly doing with his wonderful remedies. No conception can be formed of the magnitude and growth of his practice, and the enormous sale of these harmless vegetable remedies all over the world.

The people all flock to his lectures, they hear his splendid descriptions of the human system in health and disease, and they go to their homes profoundly impressed with the remarkable ability manifested by the Doctor, and knowing there is at least one physician who thoroughly understands the treatment and cure of all forms of nervous and chronic diseases.

The Doctor's words are so powerful, and his descriptions of the various conditions of the nerves, blood, stomach, liver, bowels, kidneys and other organs in different forms of disease so vivid and clear, that the people feel by instinct that here is the one man who can cure them. They know, after hearing his lectures, that this is just the physician for whom they are looking. And they go to his office with a feeling of confidence and trust. They take his remedies, and in a time they are made strong and well. The nerves become strong, the blood pure and rich, the eyes sparkle with health, the step becomes firm and brisk, and they feel, indeed, as though given a new life.

One strong feature of the Doctor's lectures, as well as his consultations, is that he explains the different complaints so clearly that people understand just what their disease or weakness is. He explains the wonderful and delicate structures of the nerves, and how they are intimately connected with every organ in the body. The slightest weakness of the nerves deranges all parts of the system. They can stand just so much and no more.

So it is that the hard work and worry of the present day causes so many weak-nerved people, and tired, run-down constitutions. There never was a time when all forms of nervous and chronic diseases were so common. And is it any wonder, when we think of the millions of hard-working, struggling men and women? Everybody overworks in some way, and sooner or later all feel the effects in nervousness, worry, blood disorders, stomach, liver or kidney complaint, headache, pains, weaknesses or other ailments. These are just the specialties which Dr. Greene has made a life study, and the vast good which his marvelous remedies are doing has called forth the most from a land filled with sickness and suffering. These wonderful medical discoveries possess a power to cure disease which no other physician has ever been able to equal.

We prize our health above all things. We must have that. We would do anything to get it. It is suicide to neglect it. It has been given to Dr. Greene to be the discoverer of medicines which will positively cure all manner of diseases in their worst forms. In his immense manufactory are prepared remedies of the most wonderful healing power for every part of the body. Especially have they been successful in curing diseases of the nerves, blood, stomach, liver, bowels, kidneys, heart and lungs. Catarrh of the head, a most fearful disease if allowed to extend to the lungs, is quickly cured by his healing remedies.

If you are a sufferer from some ailment, and most of us are, consult this noted and successful specialist at once, and he will furnish you with the proper medicines to make you strong and well. His remedies cure. His office is at 35 West 14th st., New York City, where he is always pleased to consult with everyone, free of charge, personally or by letter.

Everything in this world comes to an end; so does life. See to it that you as long as possible, by keeping every part of your system in perfect condition. And it is of the utmost necessity that every part should be in good order. For if one organ becomes weakened or deranged, it very soon effects other parts, and often develops into dangerous diseases. For this reason we should always heed the slightest symptom, which is a warning, that something is wrong and needs attention.

Of great importance to the poor is the fact that Dr. Greene gives nothing for consultation. Formerly thousands were prevented from obtaining the best medical advice, as they could not afford to pay the doctors' large fees. Neither could those living at a distance from large cities spare the time or money necessary to make a trip to the city.

Right here is another of Dr. Greene's great offers. He has established a system of letter correspondence whereby any one may write him a letter, stating the symptoms from which he or she suffers, and he will answer it, giving a complete description of the case, telling just what ails the sufferer, and what to do to get well. He explains each symptom so clearly that each can understand what the trouble is. And all this costs nothing. Write him now. The countless number of cures he has made through his system of letter correspondence is amazing. They extend all over the United States, and, indeed all over the world. Without doubt by writing him, you, too, will regain your health.

MOST WONDERFUL OF ALL.

It Should Be Kept in Every Household in the Land.

Of all the Doctor's marvelous works, none has proved so widespread a blessing as that great medicine, Dr. Greene's Nervura blood and nerve remedy. Like a spider's web, with its millions of delicate threads, it stretches out its mighty arms in every direction and in every land, driving sickness and suffering before it, and leaving in its path, health, happiness, bright homes and rejoicing hearts.

The Doctor receives immense quantities of letters telling of the cures made by his wonderful medicine, of nervousness, weakness and exhaustion, headache, stomach, liver, bowel and kidney complaint, tired feeling, constipation and run down and debilitated system.

There are thousands of people who are not exactly sick, and yet who do n't feel well. There is something wrong; they are weak, nervous and tired, they do n't sleep well, and wake up unrefreshed. They cannot eat well, and their food does not strengthen them. The greatest cure in the world for all such conditions is Dr. Greene's Nervura blood and nerve remedy.

REINHART'S DEFENSE.

The Alleged Offenses Are Dated Before His Administration.

(Special by Wire to The Daily Press)

Chicago, Oct. 23—J. W. Reinhart's many friends will be pleased to know that the indictment found against him by the Federal Grand Jury in Chicago arising out of the rebates claimed to have been paid by him while an official of the Santa Fe road are not regarded by those in position to know as reflecting in the slightest degree upon him personally. In fact it is the unanimous opinion of the the best legal talent that the Grand Jury might as well have indicted the Shah of Persia for the offenses named, as Mr. Reinhart.

The offenses claimed to have been committed were in 1892, and during the presidency of Allen Manvel, deceased, and while Mr. Magoun was chairman of the board, and at a time when Mr. Reinhart had nothing whatever to do with the operating department of the road, his presidency beginning in March, 1893

[In this connection the following appears in The Sun:

"Joseph W. Reinhart, former President of the Atchison, Topeka & Santa Fe Railroad system, was asked about his indictment in Chicago last Friday for a violation of the Interstate Commerce law in granting rebates on freight to Nelson Morris, who also was indicted.

"'The indictments don't amount to anything:'—he said—'I fear them no more than if I was Mikado of Japan. They are purely technical.'"

—Holy Cross Brotherhood will give another of their popular musical and dramatic entertainments after the election excitement subsides.

—Sunday-school librarians as well as those who have charge of the selection of books for the Sunday-school, will find very helpful Dunning's little work on the "Sunday-school library", which has just been added to the circulating department of the Free Public Library.

So It Goes.

One feature of our business that causes us the best sort of satisfaction is the way people who get our prices and then shop around and finally come back and buy of us. It's only evidence that we are selling goods less than the other fellows.

TRY THESE.

We have decided to close out our Coat Department, as we want the room for other departments, and to close them out quick, we will sell every coat at cost and in many cases much less. Every coat must go.

Ladies', Gentlemen's and Children's Underwear—Never offered woolen goods as cheap as now. Children's natural wool shirts

REMARKABLE CURES

Of Recent Date.

A Statement from Ex-Mayor John Corson, Esq., of Clinton, N. J.

TO THE PUBLIC:

I acknowledge with the utmost pleasure the wonderful cure which Dr. Lighthill effected in my case.

I had been a sufferer from piles, which gave me constant pain and distress, during twenty long years, attended with frequent loss of blood and with great and painful protrusion of the pile tumors and rectum whenever my bowels moved.

I tried constantly to get relief from my sufferings, but to no purpose until Mr. Bryan, a friend of mine, who had been cured by Dr. Lighthill of the same trouble, recommended him to me, and he effected a complete and radical cure in my case also, and earned my lifelong gratitude.

JOHN CORSON.

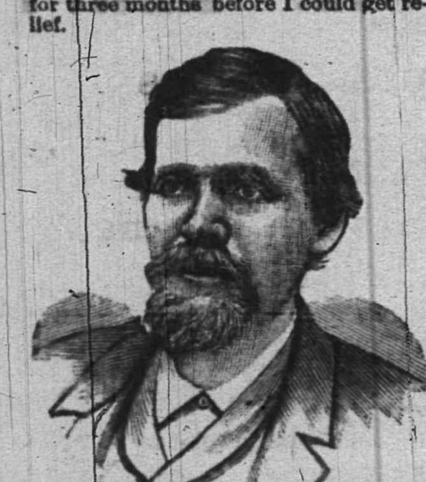
THE CASE OF MR. PETER G. EYCK, OF BISSELL, HUNTERDON CO., N. J.

Dr. Lighthill Effects a Complete Cure Where Ten Physicians Had Failed.

TO THE SICK, SUFFERING AND AFFLICTED:

For many years past I have been afflicted with bleeding piles. Every movement of the bowels was attended with loss of blood and with intense pain which lasted for hours and sometimes all day. My condition was aggravated by a prolapse of the rectum, which greatly increased my suffering and sometimes gave me most agonizing pains.

So great was my distress and so bad my condition that I sold my farm, not being able to work it any longer. At one time the protruding pile tumors became so highly inflamed and swollen that they could not be replaced, and I had to go to bed, applying hot poultices for three months before I could get relief.



I had been under the treatment of ten different physicians, some of New York City, Easton, Washington and elsewhere, without any benefit whatever, and had given up my case as hopeless, when, luckily for me, I heard of Dr. Lighthill's skill and success in such cases, and went to him for treatment, with the happy result that he effected a radical and permanent cure in less than four weeks's time; and I am glad to say that the entire treatment gave me neither pain nor distress.

I consider my cure perfectly wonderful, and so do all my friends and neighbors. I am confident that there is no case of piles which Dr. Lighthill cannot cure.

PETER G. EYCK,
Bissell, Hunterdon Co., N. J.

Dr. Lighthill

Vanity

is a virtuous vice. The world is better for it. It makes men ambitious — and it makes women careful of their personal appearance. It doesn't take much money to keep well-dressed now-a-days. Cleaning or dyeing makes it possible to use soiled or faded garments. And there's where our ax comes in. We are in the Cleaning and Dyeing business. Our cleaner is ready, and our dyer has his fall shades mixed.

Ask for our little booklet "Re-Freshing Thoughts." It tells about cleaning the mean's clothing.

REMARKABLE CURES

Of Recent Date.

A Statement from Ex-Mayor John Corson, Esq., of Clinton, N. J.

TO THE PUBLIC:

I acknowledge with the utmost pleasure the wonderful cure which Dr. Lighthill effected in my case.

I had been a sufferer from piles, which gave me constant pain and distress, during twenty long years, attended with frequent loss of blood and with great and painful protrusion of the pile tumors and rectum whenever my bowels moved.

I tried constantly to get relief from my sufferings, but to no purpose until Mr. Bryan, a friend of mine, who had been cured by Dr. Lighthill of the same trouble, recommended him to me, and he effected a complete and radical cure in my case also, and earned my lifelong gratitude.

JOHN CORSON.

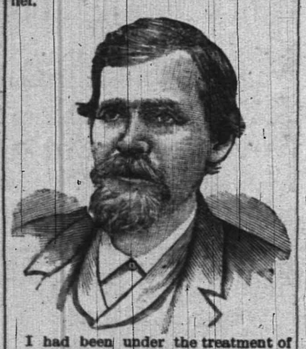
THE CASE OF MR. PETER G EYCK, OF BISSELL, HUNTERDON CO., N. J.

Dr. Lighthill Effects a Complete Cure Where Ten Physicians Had Failed.

TO THE SICK, SUFFERING AND AFFLICTED:

For many years past I have been afflicted with bleeding piles. Every movement of the bowels was attended with loss of blood and with intense pain which lasted for hours and sometimes all day. My condition was aggravated by a prolapse of the rectum, which greatly increased my suffering and sometimes gave me most agonizing pains.

So great was my distress and so bad my condition that I sold my farm, not being able to work it any longer. At one time the protruding pile tumors became so highly inflamed and swollen that they could not be replaced, and I had to go to bed, applying hot poultices for three months before I could get relief.



I had been under the treatment of ten different physicians, some of New York City, Easton, Washington and elsewhere, without any benefit whatever, and had given up my case as hopeless when, luckily for me, I heard of Dr. Lighthill's skill and success in such cases, and went to him for treatment, with the happy result that he effected a radical and permanent cure in less than four weeks's time; and I am glad to say that the entire treatment gave me neither pain nor distress.

I consider my cure perfectly wonderful, and so do all my friends and neighbors. I am confident that there is no case of piles which Dr. Lighthill cannot cure.

PETER G. EYCK,
Bissell, Hunterdon Co., N. J.

Dr. Lighthill

can be consulted daily (except Thursdays) on all CHRONIC, OBSTINATE AND COMPLICATED diseases of the human system of whatever name and nature, at his office and residence,

No. 144 Crescent Avenue.

Deafness, Catarrh and Diseases of the Head, Throat and Lungs successfully treated.

Piles of the most aggravated nature radically and permanently cured in a few weeks, without pain or detention from business, and all other rectal diseases are treated with equal success.

Mental and Nervous Derangements Epilepsy, Diseases of the Skin and Blood, Rheumatic, Neuralgic and Scrofulous Affections.

Diseases of the Heart, Liver, Stomach, Bowels, Kidneys and Bladder are successfully treated, even when other medical skill has failed.

CLEVELAND TO ASSIST

Will Take a Hand for the New York Democrats.

Even Rumored That He Will Make a Speech—Gen. Harrison Starts for New York—Gov. McKinley Also En Route for the East—Sickles Objects To Being Sacrificed.

New York, Oct. 24.—A story is current in democratic circles that President Cleveland will make public in a few days a declaration of his desire to see Senator Hill elected governor. It was also rumored, but only among the outsiders, that the president would probably make a platform speech in aid of the democratic ticket. It was given out that the information was contained in a letter written by a very prominent democrat in the confidence of President Cleveland.

Though the story regarding the president is believed to be true in one particular, there is incredulity expressed in regard to his making a public speech. Seldom has a president done so in a heated campaign and it is not believed that President Cleveland will establish the precedent.

Tammany hall and the state democracy have come to terms as to the congressional nominations, the compromise, it is said, being effected by Senator Hill and at a suggestion from the president. It is understood that General Daniel Sickles in the twelfth and James J. Walsh in the eighth, Tammany congressional nominees, will be retired and state democracy democrats substituted. President Cleveland, it is said, intimated that the democratic state ticket would suffer unless Tammany conceded somehing to the Grace faction, or in other words, withdrew nominees inimical to the policy of the administration.

McKinley Coming East.

Wheeling, W. Va., Oct. 24.—Ohio's chief magistrate inscribed a new shibboleth on the banner of his party and to the cry of "protection, prosperity and patriotism," he rushed like a whirlwind through the valley of the little mountain state. His first speech of the day was at Point Pleasant, W. Va., at eight o'clock in the morning, and at nine o'clock at night, thirteen hours later, he made his twelfth to an immense joint assemblage of West Virginians and Ohioans on the soil of his native state, across the river at Bridgeport. In his journey he passed through ten strong democratic counties and talked to miners, sheep growers, lumberman, oil producers, drillers and laborers, farmers, iron workers and representatives of a dozen other material interests. His reception at every place was enthusiast in the extreme. At the close of his meeting he made a flying trip to Columbia for the purpose of transacting some important official business. At eleven o'clock this morning he started for Pittsburg, en route to Buffalo, N. Y. and Philidelphia.

Stevenson in Missouri.

Springfield, Mo., Oct. 24.—The rural population of southwestern Missouri took a holiday and assembled along the line of railroad traversed by Vice-President Stevenson and party. At every small village hundreds of farmers and villagers assembled to greet the vice-president. An incident of the trip which bordered on the sentimental occurred at Lamar. Vice-President Stevenson had just finished a ten minute speech and was pacing up and down the platform when an old and refined looking lady dressed in widow's garments rushed up to him and after a hearty hand clasp said: "Well Adlai how do you do; I am so glad to see you." The vice-president for the moment was nonplussed and after a searching glance at the lady's features exclaimed: "Well, bless me, how do you do Alice. I have not seen you since we used to go home together from choir meeting." The vice-president's new found acquaintance chatted very pleasantly for five minutes. The lady was Mrs. Noel, of Lamar, and was formerly Miss Alice Smith, of Bloomington, Ill.

Senator Hill in Brooklyn.

Brooklyn, N. Y., Oct. 24.—Senator Hill spoke last night to an audience that packed the Academy of Music as it was never packed before and the streets for blocks away were packed with people unable to force an entrance into the hall. The boxes were occupied by ladies. Several hundred prominent democrats occupied seats on the stage. Conterno's band kept the crowd in good humor until a quater past eight, when Senator Hill appeared on the stage. Then there was a wild scene of excitement. Men stood on chairs and waived their hats and cheered. Women waived their handkerchiefs. The cheering continued for three minutes, when the senator began his speech, which was repeatedly interrupted by applause.

McAdoo To Speak for Hill.

New York, Oct. 24.—Assistant secretary McAdoo, of the navy has announced that he will address the coming democratic demonstration at Cohoes. This means that administration office holders are not forbidden to take part in the campaign. John D. Kernan of Utica, has written to Chairman Hinckley of the state democratic committee, volunteering his services on behalf of the state ticket.

Saxton Speaks at Glens Falls.

Glens Falls, N. Y., Oct. 24.—Senator Charles T. Saxton and Colonel A. S. Bacon addressed a large audience in the opera house here. The streets were in a blaze of red fire and hundreds of buildings and private residences were illuminated in honor of the visit of the republican candidate for lieutenant governor.

Will Not Locate in Pittsburg.

Pittsburg, Pa., Oct. 24.—The American Association baseball will not locate in Pittsburg, it having decided to abandon such intention. A. C. Buckenberger and L. Derey who have been looking after the club's interest have retired from furthur activity in th project and notified those willing to give the concern financial backing that as tuitable grounds could not be obtained, it was useless and ungroditable to continue the adventure.

EXPELLED FROM HAYTI

Alleged Outrage on an American Citizen.

Eugene Weiner Comes To Seek the Assistance of Uncle Sam—Accused of Conspiracy, He Is Forced To Leave Without an Opportunity To Prove His Innocence.

New York, Oct. 24.—The steamer Fontabelle, at this port from St. Thomas and other ports in the West Indies, just arrived, has among her passengers Eugene Wiener, an American citizen, who has been expelled from Hayti, accused of being an active agent in a conspiracy to overthrow the present governmept of that republic. Mr. Wiener is a native of New Orleans and has been in the general merchandise business in Jeremie, a seaport of Hayti, for the past twenty-six years. He He disclaims any connection whatever with the enemies of the republic, and states that the decree of expulsion issued by he secretary of the interior on Ocober 3, was unexpected. The decree was enforced by the chief of police of Jeremie, who only gave the suspected conspirator twenty-four hours to depart. Previous to embarking, he telegraphed President Hyppolite, through Governor General Durand, requesting an interview or a chance to prove his innocence, but was refused any extension of time. He was not given an opportunity to wind up his business affairs or arrange for the comfort of his wife and children, whom he was compelled to leave at Jeremie. He has come to his native country to seek the aid of the national authorities at Washington in his vindication, which he considers will be accomplished.

RUN ON A STOCK FIRM.

Geo. M. Irwin & Co., of Pittsbrg, Forced to the Wall.

Pittsburg, Oct. 24.—It is believed that George M. Irwin & Co.'s grain speculative pool, located in the Ferguson building of Third aveneu all but went to the wall yesterday under the pressure of heavy demands by depositors for their money. Shortly before noon payment was suspended. The throngs of panic-stricen people who want their money back, continued throughout the day to fill the corridors and elevators leading to Mr. Irwins office. They were turned away, however, for the most part that they will get it in five days. It is estimated that Mr Irwin payed out over $30,000 and that he has disbursed in all since the run began, about $75,000. The presence of mysterious influences, working successfully to keep up the people's faith in the pool scheme could be felt all day, and it was learned that Police Lieutenant Teeters, as well as several other police officers and detectives are depositors in Irwin's syndicate, and interested in his successfully weathering his storm.

There were no late developments concerning the whereabouts of the missing managers, G. W. Force, of the Consolidated Stock and Produce company, or of Wm. E. Delaney and Henry Delaney gave bail for a hearing on five additional cases charging conspiracy to fraud.

GEORGE CROCKER'S ROMANCE.

After Fifteen Years He Will Get the Wife of His Choice.

Minneapolis, Minn., Oct. 24.—Fifteen years ago George W. Crocker, of Schenevus, N. Y., was engaged to marry an heiress of that place but according to a complaint filed Jeannette Smith was also determined that Crocker should be her husband and it is claimed she charged him with seduction. In order to avoid any public scandal Crocker says he married her but immediately left her and has never lived with her. For ten years he lived in Colorado but hearing several stories was led to believe his nominal wife had become tired of her bargain. Crocker returned to Schenevus where he says he found his former fiancee still a single woman and his legal wife married to another man and living in Pennsylvania. After a meeting with his old love he secured a promise from her that if he could secure an absolute divorce from his wife she would marry him. Thereupon he came to Minneapolis and filed papers for divorce.

Indictment of the Robinsons.

Buffalo, Oct. 24.—The court of sessions grand jury reported a joint indictment against Sarah and Clarence Robinson for the murder of Montgomery Gibbs on the night of April 28. The indictment charges them with premeditated murder, and also with murder in the first degree while perpetrating a felony. Assistant Superintendent of Police Cusack will leave for Albany to obtain from Governor Flower a requisition on the governor of Ohio for Clarence Robinson, who is in jail at Cleveland. He expects to bring Robinson here on Friday.

Harvard Students.

Boston, Mass., Oct.24.—Usually the first of the statement in regard to the number of students in Harvard university is made in the university catalogue, which is issued in December. This year, however, unautrorized statements have been made in regard to the attendance so erronemous and so misleading that it has been thought best to give an official statement earlier than usual. The regesteration this year is in evry department larger than it was last year.

Burns Stays in Prison.

Albany, Oct. 24.—James Burns, of Syracuse, must stay in Auburn prison. The court of appeals affirms an order of General term, affirming a judgment sending Burns back to Auburn prison on an old sentance, after he had violated the condition of Gov. Flower's pardon by getting intoxicated and committing robery.

Strikers Beaten.

New York, Oct. 24.—The cloak and suit manufacturers held another meeting last night and Meyer Jonasson announced that he had received reliable inside information that the strike was won by the manufacturers and that the men were willing to return to work upon the old terms.

SALVATION ARMY.

Its Founder Addresses a Large Gathering of Auxiliaries in New York.

New York, Oct. 24.—General Booth, the founder of the Salvation army, addressed a large meeting of auxiliaries in Association hall. The auxiliaries are those who sympathize with the Salvation army movement. They wore red ribbons, at the end of which was attached a button containing a picture of General Booth. The Rev. Dr. Josiah Strong presided at the meeting.

When General Booth stood up to speak, there was great cheering. He thanked the auxiliaries for the reception they had accorded him. He said that when he first started his movement of "In Darkest England" there was a great outcry against him and he was accused of absorbing the money from churches and charitable institutions and diverting it into his own movement.

"I did no such thing," said the general. "I saw if England could afford to put up 2,000,000 pounds sterling for drink, she could cheerfully afford to pay 100,000 pounds sterling towards the scheme for the benefit of the submerged millions of men who want a chance to improve their condition."

The general then said he did not want any man or men to abandon his or her faith. The Salvation army has been a marvel in its development. We used to say that there were seven wonders in the world, but now there are eight and the Salvation army is the eighth.

General Booth then described the working of the Salvation army from its beginning and told of the hard struggle they had to gain a footing in England. He said that the success of the organization was due to the military government of the Salvation army and to the aggressive spirit of its soldiers; to the spirit of adaptation and to the spirit of self-denial which war prevalent in the army. The general then explained the simplicity of the belief of the Salvation army followers, and said there was room for all kinds of Christians in their ranks.

Carnegie Music hall was crowded to its utmost capacity in the evening by the vast crowd who came to hear Gen. Booth deliver his lecture on "Darkest England and the Way Out." Hon. Chauncey M. Depew was the chairman, and gathered on the stage around him, in addition to the staff officers both local and visiting, were many well-known clergymen. Earlier in the day Gen. Booth and the Salvation army legion, about 1,400 strong, were tendered a banquet at the Lenox lyceum.

ANNA GOULD HOME.

Several Sensational Stories About Her Are Thus Set at Rest.

New York, Oct. 24.—Miss Anna Gould and her brother, Howard Gould, who have just returned from abroad, are staying at the Waldorf. Both are in the best of health and spirits, and appear much benefited by their sojourn abroad.

The return of Miss Gould is important, inasmuch as it disposes of the convent stories so extensively commented upon by a foreign correspondent, and also for the nonce of all the titled marriages which Miss Gould was announced to be arranging for during her summer abroad. Her sister, Miss Helen Gould, has always avoided anything like publicity, and it is said that the younger sister has been brought into it by her brother's family, who thus furnish a living for space writers.

Assemblyman Matthews Trial.

Plattsburgh, N. Y., Oct. 24.—The preliminary examination of the Hon. Allen S. Matthews, Franklin county's assemblyman, on a charge of smuggling, is in process here before United States Commissioner Wheeler. Mr. Matthews, who lives at Fort Covington, is charged with smuggling some 340,000 pounds of wool. The information was laid against Matthews by two Canadians who claim they purchased the wool for Matthews and assisted in bringing it over. These same Canadians, being fugitives from Canada on account of smuggling from the United States, turned state's evidence in order that they could have some place where they could live.

Searle Fails To Make a New Record.

New York, Oct. 24.—Bicyclist Searle reached the City Hall at 12:15 o'clock, finished his latest ride from Chicago He was scheduled to make the distance in five days and 15 hours, but failed to approximate his previous record. He covered the distance in six days seven hours and thirty minutes. He was delayed in Utica by a collision with a dog, from which both he and his wheel suffered, compelling a halt for four hours.

Strauss Off for Europe.

New York, Oct. 24.—Nathan Straus, who declined the Tammany nomination for mayor of New York, left at noon for Europe on the steamship Aller of the North German Lloyd line Mr. Straus goes by advice of his physicians. His brief campaign experience resulted in a complete breakdown of his nervous system, and he goes abroad to recuperate his health.

Children Fight a Duel with Knives.

Hollidaysburg, Pa., Oct. 24.—Roy Davie and Dent Malloy, two little boys nine years old, of Duncansville, a little village one mile west of this city, quarrelled and fought a duel with penknives. Malloy drove his knife in his companion's abdomen and the little fellow's death is hourly expected.

Tax Collector Sentenced.

Bridgeport, Conn., Oct. 24.—Herman Snyder, former taxcollector of South Norwalk, who embezzled city funds amounting to $6,500 and was arrested last June, pleaded guilty in the superior court and was sentenced to one year in jail and ordered to pay a fine of $2,500.

CORRODES IN SALT WATER.

Unsuccessful Test of Aluminum for Ship Boats.

Washington, Oct. 24.—The navy department has just completed a test of aluminum as a material for ship boats with the object of determining its adaptability to naval uses with results that demolish some of the elaborate claims made for the new metal. On account of its comparatively light weight its utility on board ship would be almost inestimable, if it were not for the fact that it has been shown to be exceedingly susceptible to the corrosive action of salt water. Two sheets, one-sixteenth of an inch thick, were immersed for three months at the Norfolk navy yard. One was stated to be pure metal and the other slightly alloyed with nickel. The pure plate was thickly covered with large barnacles throughout its surface and was more or less pitted by the action of salt water. The alloyed plate was encrusted with smaller barnacles and was badly corroded, being perforated and eaten away over much of its exposed surface. This plate was as injuriously affected as a combination of iron and copper would have been with the same exposure. The claim that barnacles would not adhere to the metal was not substantiated in the smallest degree. In the opinion of naval experts it will not be advisable to build aluminum boats if they are intended to remain any length of time in the water, though its use may be advantageous on account of the great gain in lightness for metal work exposed to salt water only occasionally.

SHE WANTS A DIVORCE.

So Mrs. Shawger's Mother Is Appointed Her "Friend" in Law.

Newark, N. J., Oct. 24.—Mrs. Eva Shawger, 19 years old, made an application before Chancellor McGill that is a forerunner to a divorce suit. In the bill which makes Louis J. Shawger the defendant, Mrs. Shawger asks the court to appoint some one—the legal term is "a friend"—to conduct her intended suit for divorce. She is unable to sue her husband for divorce as she is a minor. The couple were married Oct. 11. 1891. in Springfield, and soon afterwards removed here, and lived happily until March last. They have no children. Mrs. Shawger says that in March her husband neglected her and failed to support her. In order to subsist, she says, she had to leave her husband and go to her mother's home. The chancellor granted an order making the young wife's mother her "friend" in law.

$15,000 Suit Settled for $600.

Newark, N. J., Oct. 24.—The suit for $15,000 damages which Mrs. Margaret Drain, the widow of Hugh Drain, had brought against Theodore Joralemon for the death of her husband, has been settled for $600, $100 of which is for counsel fees. Drain, who lived in Kearny, was killed while picking cherries on Joralemon's property in Belleville, on June 28, last. The coroner's inquest showed that Drain's death was due to a blow received on the head from a club in Joralemon's hands, and the grand jury found an indictment for manslaughter. Joralemon first pleaded not guilty, when brought before Judge Kirkpatrick, and then changed his plea to non vult, and was fined $500. The suit for $15,000 damages was to have come up for trial this week, but the settlement was effected by agreement of all parties concerned.

Briggsville Strikers Will Hold Out.

North Adams, Mass., Oct. 24.—The Briggsville strikers held another meeting and voted to hold out. They appointed a committee to present their demand of 15 per cent. and two hours to the company, the company being given discretionary powers. Some of the strikers are in no condition to hold out more than this week and the help will probably be at work next Monday.

AN OFF-HAND ROBBERY

The Aquia Creek Job Was Not Planned.

Searcey Makes a Full Confession—Only Two Men in the Work, He Says, and He Was Led In—Long Search for the Buried Plunder Through the Woods.

Calverton, Va., Oct. 24.—Before being brought to Fredericksburg, Charles J. Searcey, the Aquia creeek train robber made a confession which was taken down, put into typewritting and is now in the hands of the proper authorities. There were but two men concerned in the robbery, Morganfield and Searcey. They had known each other before and had talked of a scheme of that sort, but Searcey for sometime refused to go into it. They finally met in Washington and there agreed to rob a train, but fixed on no particular one. From Washington they came down to Fredericksburg and hanging about there for two or three days, staying in the woods most of the time, but coming into Fredericksburg several times. On the afternoon of the day of the robbery they walked over to Brook station from Fredericksburg and there waited for the north-bound train. They got on the train at Brook in the darkness behind the tender, having been hidden near the pickle factory under a box car. When the train stopped they had no particular reason for selecting Aquia creek as the spot for the robbery. Morganfield blew open the car door with dynamite, using a half stick with a fuse and cap in the end. Morganfield also entered the car, while Searcey stood outside and terrorized the passengers and train crew. After the robbery they got off the engine and struck northwest over the country road, going to Calverton station, in Farquier county, and then to Midland and Bealston and on by the Farquier White Sulpher springs, following the telephone line to Front Royal. Near Calverton they hid in the woods some of the goods they had gotten from the express car. After being brought here Searcey agreed to go and show where these things, consisting mostly of bonds and bank drafts, were hidden. On Monday he was taken in a team from Fredericksburg with Robert Pinkerton, of New York; Sergeant C. W. Edington, of Fredericksburg; Commonwealth Attorney White, for Stafford county, over the route traveled by him in trying to escape, to endeavor to locate the spot where the bonds had been hidden. Monday night the party spent with ex-Sheriff Hugh Adie, of Stafford. After breakfast with Mr. Adie the party set out to find the place where Morganfield and Searcey divided the money and hid the express pouch containing the bonds and drafts. Up through the Stafford road they went by Stafford's store on to Bristowsburg and to Calverton, Searcey trying to remember the road he and his pal had traveled, and the place he left the road, but when Calverton was reached he had failed to identify any of the road. From Calverton the party drove to Catletts and from there back on the road to Stafford's store. About three miles from Catletts, Searcey identified the place where he left the road and took to the woods. Driving into a field the horses were tied behind a hay stack and the search for the bag began. The shades of evening were falling and Searcey, handcuffed to Pinkerton, with Sergeant Edington, ex-Sheriff Adie and Commonwealth Attorney White spread out through the pines. Searcey had described the spot exactly but an hour's search failed to find it. It was getting dark when Mr. Adie called out that he had found the spot and all parties hastened up to where, under the roots of a blown down tree, just as Searcey had described, the bag was taken out. Its contents were not examined. The party drove at once back to Calverton where the bag was sealed and shipped to the Adams Express company at Washington. The party will spend the night here and drive back to Fredericksburg in the morning.

Walsh Is Not Out.

New York, Oct. 24.—James J. Walsh, the congressional candidate in the Eighth district has sent the following to the press: "I am placed in the race for congress in the Eighth congressional district by the people. I have not been approached at all on the subject. I am in the contest to remain until election day. I have nearly completed my canvass and I will win against a combination of anti-Tammanyites and republicans. Under the circumstances the people of the eighth district are certain to have a democratic representative in the next congress, and with God's help and the people's I will be the man."

May Have No Legislature in '95.

New York, Oct. 24.—A statement was given out at the democratic state headquarters to the effect that if the constitution adopted by the late constitutional convention is approved by the people at the coming election, there can be no legislature in 1895. The statement quotes Henry T. Utley, a lawyer, of Waterville, N. Y., who has "pointed out" the alleged defect in the amendment. Mr. Utley declares that provision has been made for a senate of fifty and an assembly of one hundred and fifty, but there is no provision for their election.

Sickles Enters a Protest.

New York, Oct. 24.—Daniel E. Sickles called on Senator Hill and Major Hinckley, chairman of the democratic state committee. It was said at democratic state headquarters that he made a vigorous protest, through Chairman Hinckley, against being taken off the ticket for congress, and intimated that if there were sacrifices to be made, there were others in the organization who could better be sacrificed than he.

Clevelands at Greenwich, Conn.

Greenwich, Conn., Oct. 24.—President Cleveland's party arrived in Greenwich on the New York express last evening and was at once driven to the Benedict place. It is understood that the president will leave for New York to-day and that Mrs. Cleveland and the children will remain until to-morrow.

GROENDYKE-RANDOLPH.

Charming Nuptials of a Plainfield Bride.

EX-FREEHOLDER G. W. F. RANDOLPH'S DAUGHTER.

She Is Happily Married to One of Somerville's Distinguished Sons, in the Presence of Friends Who Throng to Overflowing the First Baptist Church.

The first large wedding of the social season was the Groendyke-Randolph marriage in the First Baptist Church last evening. Nearly 900 persons, including many of Plainfield's best society people, were gathered in the church when the time for the ceremony came. Both the body of the church and the galleries on both sides were crowded, and late-comers were obliged to accept standing-room in the rear of the church.

It was a beautiful wedding with a lovely bride and a handsome groom. The contracting parties were Miss Florence Mabel Fitz Randolph, only child of Mr. and Mrs. George W. Fitz Randolph of West Front street, and John Barton Groendyke of Somerville. The popularity of the bride and the standing of the family among their many friends in Plainfield and the vicinity were shown by the representative gathering which witnessed the ceremony.

The church presented a showy appearance. It was brightly illuminated with electric lights and beautifully decorated in front with flowers and foliage plants. Florist Denton had arranged the decorations very tastefully. A low border of vines was at the base. Above rose a scattered line of white cosmos, showing out in pleasing contrast before a background of palms and evergreens and the dark walnut wood-work. Wide ribbons of white satin, tied with large bows, marked the part of the church reserved for the relatives.

At 7 the people began to arrive. From then till 7:30 L. H. Moore, organist of the Congregational Church of Brooklyn, formerly instructor of the bride, rendered a concerted programme on the church organ. At 7:30 the bridal party entered by the left aisle to the strains of the Lohengrin Bridal Chorus.

The bride, a charming brunette, looked lovely as she passed up the aisle, resting on the arm of her father. Her gown was of white satin, high-necked, with elbow sleeves and skirt en train. The veil was of tulle. The gown and the veil were trimmed with orange blossoms. Her only ornament was a costly diamond sunburst, a gift from the groom, which was fastened at the throat. She carried a bouquet of white bridal roses and maidenhair fern.

The maid of honor was Mayme Groendyke, the sister of the groom. She was gowned in white silk, trimmed with point D'Esprit lace. Her bouquet was of yellow roses. The ushers were H. L. MacCardell of Philadelphia, and W. E. Vroom, W. H. Gaston and Abram Whitenack of Somerville.

The groom entered from the right of the pulpit with the best man, H. C. Perley of New Rochelle. He met the bride before Rev. Dr. D. J. Yerkes, pastor of the church, who proceeded with the impressive Episcopal service. The bride spoke clearly and distinctly and her responses to the clergyman could be heard by all. Mr. Randolph gave his daughter away.

Mendelssohn's Wedding March was played as the party left the church. They drove to the handsome home of Mr. and Mrs. Randolph, 909 West Front street. Here a wedding supper was partaken of by the nearest relatives and a very few of the most intimate friends of the groom, who gathered informally to bid farewell to Mr. and Mrs. Groendyke.

The house was very prettily adorned with roses, pinks and chrysanthemums, sent by Mr. and Mrs. Miller of Norwalk, Ohio, friends of the bride. The flowers arrived as fresh as when picked just two hours before the bridal party left for the church. The guests included Miss Wall and Miss Rogers of New York; Mr. and Mrs. Wm. MacCardell and Miss Dellicker of Trenton; Mr. and Mrs. C. Wesley Jerolemon and cousin of Newark; Mr. and Mrs. Garner of Cranford; Mr. and Miss Letson of Stelton; Mr. and Mrs. Frank B. Mallory and Miss Sanderson of Flemington; G. H. Davey and Miss Davey of Elizabeth; John Groendyke, father of the groom; Miss Whitenack, Miss Carkhuff and Miss Sadie Vroom of Somerville; Mrs. James Groendyke of Chicago; Mrs J. N Groendyke and Sanford Groendyke of Lebanon; and Mrs. Smith and Miss Sadie Smith of Weston.

The presents received by the bride were of the most costly character. They included numerous articles of solid silver and many of the most exquisite pieces of china and crystal. The bride's present to the groom was a handsome gold watch. Mr. and Mrs. Randolph presented the happy couple with the house and lot 913 West Front street, next door to their own home. The deed was made out in Mr. Randolph's handwriting, and transferred the property in consideration of "love and affection and the sum of one dollar".

Mr. and Mrs. Groendyke left the house amid the parting wishes of their friends, who threw a shower of rice in accordance with the old custom. They started on the 10:10 train on an extended tour in the South. On returning they will go to New York to spend the Winter in a hotel, coming to Plainfield to take up their residence in their new house in the Spring. Mr. Groendyke is connected with the Metropolitan Life Insurance Company in New York.

COUNTY CLERK OLIVER

He Is Renominated Without Opposition.

(Special by Wire to The Daily Press.)

Elizabeth, Oct. 24.—Hon. F. C. Marsh was made Chairman of the Union County Democratic Convention here today.

James Potts of Elizabeth, is Secretary, and E. M. Van Buren assistant.

E. D. Moffett of Plainfield is chairman of the Committee on Credentials, and R. M. Stover is on the Committee on Rules.

For County Clerk Wm. M. Oliver was nominated by the secretary's ballot. James E. Martine made a rousing speech for him.

A. B. Cook of Bahway, Charles N. French of Fanwood, Frederick Clauss of Elizabeth and John B. Green of Westfield were named for Assembly.

Recess of 15 minutes was taken to select three nominees from them.

On reassembling, the secretary cast ballots for the nominations for Assembly of John B. Green of Westfield, Alford B. Cook of Bahway, and Frederick Clauss of Elizabeth.

—The committee on the Venino case made its report to Anchor Lodge last night and was continued.

—The last of the property of the Job Male estate, including bonds, stock, notes and chattels, were sold by T. J. Carey for Administrators E. R. Pope and J. W. Harrison this morning. The prices obtained were not considered very high.

—Cook & Co., are proceeding very irregularly with the construction of the sewers. Yesterday morning they laid 70 feet of twelve-inch pipe on Third street east of Plainfield avenue. Later in the day they went up the street and put in 100 feet of fifteen-inch east of Grant avenue. This morning the rain stopped work after a few lengths of eighteen-inch had been laid on Grant avenue south of Fourth street.

Italian Emigration.

Rome, Oct. 24.—A green book upon the subject of Italian emigration to the United States just issued shows that owing to instructions given by the Italian minister of foreign affairs to the Italian ambassador to the United States, the latter asked the federal government for assistance in favor of Italian emigrants. Regulations were finally adopted imposing a tax on the steamship companies for each emigrant carried. The amount of this tax will be sufficient to meet the expenses of the Italian agents and form the necessary bureau of assistance.

Cavalry Regiment Reunion.

Lock Haven, Pa., Oct. 24.—The 70th Pennsylvania cavalry regiment met in this city for their seventh annual reunion. At a business meeting these officers were elected for the ensuing year: President, F. R. Hutchinson, of Pittsburg; vice-presidents, Thos. McGovern, Carrick, Allegheny county, and S. W. Houghenbuch, Pittsburg; treasurer, Patrick McCabe, Smithport; secretary, Geo. F. Steahlin, Orwigsburg. Pittsburg was chosen as the place of meeting next year.

Coal Combination Broken.

Wilkesbarre, Pa., Oct. 24.—It is rumored here among coal men that the coal combination no longer exists. It is said the a large number of collieries in the Luzerne and Lackawanna districts will resume next week on the go-as-you-please principles without regard to the rules formerly in force regarding restriction. This movement is said to have grown out of certain disputes between several of the influential companies.

Noted Coal Operator Dead.

Wilkesbarre, Pa., Oct. 24.—Hon. Waddell, a noted coal operator in the Wyoming valley, is dead at his home in West Pittston of heart failure. The deceased was born in Edinburg, Scotland, in 1826.

Steamer Falcon Probably Lost.

St. Johns, N. F., Oct. 24.—The Peary expedition steamer Falcon, from Philadelphia for this port is overdue. It is feared that she will never be heard from again.

Local Weather Forecast.

Partly cloudy weather with light rains; variable winds.

False Rumor About Bismarck.

Berlin, Oct. 24.—A rumor spread in this city this morning that Prince Bismarck had suffered a stroke of paralysis. In response to inquiries, Dr. Chrysander telegraphed from Varzin that the rumor was unfounded; that the condition of both the prince and princes is satisfactory in spite of the prevailing bad weather.

Von Starhenberg Seriously Hurt.

Vienna, Oct. 24.—Lefutenant Count Von Starhenberg, who won the military ride between Berlin and Vienna in 1893, fell from his horse while hunting and when picked un was found to be suffering from concussion of the brain.

Fava Not To Leave Washington.

Rome, Oct. 24.—The report that Baron de Fava is about to leave the Italian embassy in Washington, is declared to be without foundation.

A Moral.

There was a man in a faraway town
Who thought him wondrous wise.
He swore by all the fabled gods
He'd never advertise.

His goods were advertised at last,
And thereby hangs a tale.
The ad was set in nonpareil
And headed "Sheriff's Sale."

Children Cry for Pitcher's Castoria.

When Baby was sick, we gave her Castoria.
When she was a Child, she cried for Castoria.
When she became Miss, she clung to Castoria.
When she had Children, she gave them Castoria.

WOLF HUNTING IN RUSSIA.

One Who Has Tried It Says It Is the Most Dangerous Sport.

Wolf hunting is probably the most dangerous sport there is. With a servant and a couple of fast horses attached to a sleigh, I have gone out and baited the grounds on numerous occasions. A fat hog tied to a tree never failed to collect a pack. The trouble was that it drew too many. The wolves would gather to the number of 200 or 300 and devour the pig. Then we would dash upon the scene and the fun would commence. They are as fleet as a deer. To say that they are as fleet as wolves would be more like it. They can outrun the horses every time, and if they are not picked off as fast as they come up, you might as well give up the fight and permit yourself to be devoured.

Imagine yourself making a running fight with a band of 300 hungry, maddened wolves and with the knowledge that if one of the fleet little brutes reaches your horses you are a dead man, and you can possibly imagine what a nervy sport it is. It requires a cool head and a good eye. If you miss your mark you're gone. Your only chance of safety is in keeping your horses up. It is generally a long fight. You look back and see the carcasses of the animals dotting the snow for a mile or two in your wake, and still they pursue you in great numbers. Slowly the pack thins out. Many have dropped bleeding to the ground. Others stop to devour the carcasses. The more that fall the more timid the rest become. When you finally outdistance the pack you have been through the most trying ordeal that the most ardent sportsman could wish.

I consider wolf hunting the most dangerous sport there is. Tiger hunting in India is tame beside it. If you go into the jungles of India to shoot a tiger, you are accompanied by a long retinue. You shoot your prey from the howdah of an elephant. If you miss your victim, there are twenty bullets ready for him before he springs. A person might as well go tiger hunting in a menagerie. The only unsatisfactory part of the sport which wolves afford is that after you are all through you havn't anything to show for your efforts. But it is great sport.—San Francisco Chronicle.

THE ADVANTAGE OF A FLAT.

"The Idiot" Furnishes Many Arguments for His Landlady.

In his interesting sketches in Harper's Bazar, John Kendrick Bangs illuminates the flat question by giving what "The Idiot," who is about to wed and go into a flat, tells Mrs. Pedagog, his boarding house keeper. She tells him that flats are terrible, to which he replies by saying: "Your feeling in regard to them is entirely different from that of a friend of mine, who has lived in one for ten years. He thinks flat life is ideal. His children can't fall downstairs, because there aren't any stairs to fall down. His roof never leaks, because he hasn't any roof to leak; and when he and his family want to go off anywhere, all he has to do is to lock his front door and go. Burglars never climb into his front windows, because they are all eight flights up. Damp cellars don't trouble him, because they are too far down to do him any injury, even if they overflow. The cares of housekeeping are reduced to a minimum. His cook doesn't spend all her time in the front area flirting with the postman, because there isn't any front area to his flat, and in a social way his wife is most delightfully situated, because most of her friends live in the same building, and instead of having to hire a carriage to go calling in, all she has to do is to take the elevator and go from one floor to the other. If he pines for a change of scene, he is high enough up in the air to get it by looking out of his windows, over the tops of other buildings, into the green fields to the north, or looking westward into the State of New Jersey. Instead of taking a drive through the park, or a walk, all he and his wife need to do is to take a telescope and follow some little sylvan path with their eyes. Then, as for expense, he finds that he saves money by means of a co-operative scheme. For instance, if he wants shad for dinner, and he and his wife cannot eat a whole one, he goes shares on the shad and its cost with his neighbors above and below."

"Yes, and his neighbors above and below borrow tea and eggs and butter and ice and other things whenever they run short, so that in that way he loses all he saves," said Mr. Pedagog, resolved not to give in.

"He does if he isn't smart," said the Idiot. "I thought of that myself, and asked him about it, and he told me that he kept account of all that, and always made it a point after some neighbor had borrowed two pounds of butter from him to send in before the week was over and borrow three pounds of butter from the neighbor. So far his books show that he is sixteen pounds of butter, seven pounds of tea, one bottle of vanilla extract, and a ton of ice ahead of the whole house. He was six eggs and a box of matches behind, but under the circumstances I think he can afford it."

In Doubt.

In arguing a point before a Judge of the Supreme Court, Col. Folk of the mountain circuit in North Carolina laid down a very doubtful proposition of law. The Judge looked at him for a moment and queried:

"Col. Folk, do you think this is law?"

The Colonel gracefully bowed, and replied:

"Candor compels me to say that I do not, but I did not known how it would strike your Honor."

The Judge deliberated a few moments, and gravely said:

"That may not be contempt of court, but it is a close shave.—Chicago Legal News.

AFTER LONG WATCHING

BILLY LEE ARRESTED.

TWO CHARGES FOR ILLEGAL LIQUOR SELLING.

Police at Last Secure Evidence to Warrant Holding the Long-Suspected Offender for Trial.

William Lee, ex-baseball player and perennial candidate for license, was before Judge Coddington this morning on two charges of selling liquor without a license. He pleaded not guilty, and trial was set for next Tuesday at 2 p m.

Lee's place is in West Third street between Muhlenberg place and Spooner avenue.

THAT CHESTNUT PARTY.

(Contributed.)

It was nearly eleven o'clock last Saturday morning, before Rector T. Logan Murphy and Superintendent Benjamin R. Western succeeded in getting the youngsters, connected with the Sunday-school of the Church of the Holy Cross off for their promised chestnut party. The way the officers, teachers and pupils of the school turned out was a surprise to everyone and "knocked into a cocked hat" all Superintendent Western's calculations for transportation. Connors' two large stages proved inadequate for the crowd, and a hasty visit to the nearest livery establishment had to be made for a third conveyance to accommodate the company. The start being made the stages with their jolly freight went up Grove street to Linden avenue, thence to Somerset street and by that thoroughfare to Warrenville, up hill and down dale, through picturesque Washington Valley, all aglow with beautiful autumn foliage. The first stage contained Mrs. B. R. Western, Mrs. W. A. Westphal, Miss Annie Murphy, Miss Lizzie Kiernan, Miss Jennie Brian, Miss Julia Philpitt, Miss Agnes Smith, Miss Fountain and members of the Bible class together with a bountiful repast. The second and third stages were freighted with the general school, the former under the control of Rector Murphy, while the latter, which held the smallest children, was in charge of Supt. Western. The members of the Library, Clarence Murphy, and Carl Gallup, together with Treasurer Henry M. Western, gave assistance in general, and kept a watchful lookout for the safety of the party, for the slightest accident to such a precious charge would have marred the pleasure of the excursion. About half a mile beyond Warrenville the party disembarked and entered the woods. The spot chosen was delightful, being one of great elevation, which permitted an extended view of the surrounding hills and valleys, all clad in the richest hues of the American autumn, which fairly danced in the bright sunlight and soft and hazy atmosphere. Boxes and bundles were soon unloaded from the stages and speedily a feast was spread under the shady trees for the youngsters, whose appetites had been sharpened by a five-mile ride and the excitement connected therewith. Sandwiches by the hundred, apples by the bushel, cakes by the dozen, and peanuts and fruits in generous quantities, all shared the same fate before the attack of the hungry excursionists.

The teachers finally succeeded in getting the children "too full for utterance" and then came a demand for games and swings and chestnut hunting. Half a dozen swings were soon seen plowing through the air to and fro amid the shouts and laughter of the happy throng; parties of chestnut hunters were organized and soon went off in the woods. Others wandered in twos and threes for a quiet little chat and perhaps an interview with the Miss Chipmunk or Mr. Grey Squirrel. Too early the hour for departure came, but not before generous Captain Hand, who had charge of one of the stages, appeared on the scene with a big bag of chestnuts which he had secured, by an "Alladin Lamp" process, from some mysterious "Old man in the woods". The scramble for chestnuts was great, but everybody got all that was good for them. "All aboard", shouted Superintendent Western, and a great rush was made for each of the stages. Noses were counted and all the children were found to be present and in good order. The swings were all taken down, except one, which was left for the children in the neighborhood to enjoy. Heads turned homeward, songs and merry-making filled the stages; the racket bringing the the quiet country folks to their windows and dooryards to see what was the matter, when out on the lawn there rose such a chatter. Too soon, indeed, was old Plainfield reached again, and the chestnut hunt of the Sunday-school of the Church of the Holy Cross was voted a great success, and among the things of the past.

EARLY INTELLIGENCE.

—The case of F. E. Miller against Mattox and Linke is returnable Oct. 30 at 2 p. m. in Justice Nash's Court.

—The sixth annual ball of the Plainfield Social Club is to take place in Central Hall election night. Frazee will play. The managers are Frank Vosseller, Chas. G. Wood and F. Smith.

—The Standard Insurance Company, through Agents VanBuren & Timpson, today gave to ex-Freeholder Vanderbeek a check for their share of the loss from the fire in his house two weeks ago.

—R. O. Elliott, owner of the partly burned building at 62-64 Somerset street, asks to thank the firemen publicly through The Daily Press. He says too much credit cannot be given them.

—The engineers in charge of the sewer construction make it a point to place the Y for the house connection in front of each lot where it will be most convenient for the owner in making the connection. They find frequently, however, that the tenants do not know on which side the landlord desires the Y to be placed. If property-owners will leave word at the houses where the Y should be laid the engineers will be glad to follow their directions.

PROBLEM OF PAUPERISM.

WHAT DR. LEWIS SAID TO PLAINFIELD PEOPLE.

Commends the Citizens Organized Aid Association as the Only Discriminating Means of Caring for the Worthy Poor.

The following brief synopsis of the excellent speech made by Dr. Charlton T. Lewis at the public meeting Monday night of the Citizens Organized Aid Association, was unavoidably crowded from the issue of yesterday:

I am not sure that I would have thought myself able to respond to the invitation of your chairman had I fully apprehended the precise character of the work in which you are engaged. For far from having a wide experience I have had comparatively little. My work has been limited to an effort to improve the treatment of criminals. Of the particular work which you have undertaken I have but a theoretical knowledge. It may be profitable, however, for us to consider together a few phases of the charities question.

The problem which civilization has to face, the greatest problem of the age, is the problem of pauperism. It is something new. It may be considered a product of civilization. Since the beginning generous men have always had a chance to help others, but the pauperism of this artificial industrial system is a condition which was unknown until the founding of modern civilization.

Taking into consideration the last four centuries there has been no country in the world in which a more Christian spirit, a more charitable impulse has been shown than in Great Britain. But in that country, as elsewhere, the problem has been dealt with spasmodically. It has been met with an impulsive, sincere effort for relief but without any organization to survey the field.

As a result the government took charge of the matter and everybody had to pay the poor-tax. Under this system. which existed up to a few years ago, everybody was entitled to support at the expense of the government. A large proportion of the people became paupers, a greater number giving up the struggle every year. This went on until the present system came.

In London men of great wealth have, with mixed motives, bequeathed enormous sums for almshouses, hospitals and other institutions until now the annual revenue is not less than £30,000,000. This would seem to be enough to make a great impression throughout the kingdom, but the result is the same as that of the old system. The Times investigation several years ago proved that the greater part of all this money does not reach the deserving poor. Most of it is absorbed by middlemen and commissioners and what little escapes their grasp serves only to increase the growth of the evils of pauperism.

The title of your organization and the purposes expressed in your constitution give the remedy. It is a startling phrase, "organized charity". Shall charity be organized? Shall pity be put in a straitjacket or the impulses of the heart be bound by rule? This would reduce charity to a corporation, a systematic arrangement with agents that would take away all the blessedness of giving.

But the difficulty is removed when we look at the other side. The work you have done could not have been accomplished in any other way. Such an organization adds to the efficiency of charity. Pauperism as it has grown in our cities is different from that of years ago. We have professional paupers who are only kept from being criminals by fear of jail. They take what should go to the deserving poor. Their devices to deceive us are so ingenious that we need an organization to investigate these cases No one person can do it thoroughly. If there is anything worse than withholding charity from deserving applicants it is the giving of so-called charity to the unworthy. This can be guarded against only by such an organization as the C. O. A. A.

Another gain in efficiency which is added by organizing is the reaching of many cases which cannot be found in any other way. The poor man who is thrown out of work and is struggling with his pride is the one we wish especially to reach. Only a portion of the money hitherto wasted by indiscriminate giving is required to relieve suffering if directed through the proper channels.

The corporation of mercy must be administered by its members in a spirit of personal charity. We must not make it an agent to relieve us of the duties of humanity but each must work as if he were alone. There are many whose duties leave them no opportunity to mingle with the needy. This organization affords them a share in the rewards and enjoyments of giving.

There is no reason why every one in the city who has intelligence enough to understand the cause and who is provided with shelter and food, should not take part in this systematic charity. If the whole of the city were organized there there would be no pauperism here and the problem would disappear. The longer we go on in this work the more we will carry it on with a personal feeling of sympathy for the poor.

THE OLD-FASHIONED STYLE

of pill gives you a feeling of horror when you see it and when you feel it. Like the "blunderbuss" of a former decade, it is big and clumsy, but not effective. In this century of enlightenment, you have Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets, which cure all liver troubles in the most effective way. For Indigestion, Constipation, Billious Attacks, Sick and Billious Headache, nothing has been found to equal these pills of Dr. Pierce's invention.

MR. S. BAKER, SR.

MR. SAMUEL BAKER, SR., of No. 161 Summit Av., Philipsburgh, N.J., says: "There is nothing that can compare with Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets, as Liver Pills. They have done me more good than any other medicine I have ever taken."

FIGHTING FOR LIFE.

A Suffering Woman Testifies.

Mrs. Henrietta Burton, of Janvier, N. J., writes: For a long time I suffered from a disordered stomach. My appetite was gone and what little I ate distressed me terribly. My health failed rapidly. I became very weak and feared I should never be well. After reading your "Guide to Health," I was encouraged to try Munyon's Dyspepsia Cure. Its action was so prompt that I soon felt like a new woman, and am now completely cured."

MUNYON'S STOMACH AND DYSPEPSIA CURE cures all forms of indigestion and stomach troubles such as constipation, rising of food, distress after eating, bloating of the stomach, palpitation of the heart, shortness of breath, and all affections of the heart caused by indigestion. It soothes, heals and invigorates stomachs that have been weakened by over-eating, or where the lining of the stomach has been impaired by physic and injurious medicines. Price 25 cents.

Munyon's Homœopathic Home Remedy Company, of Philadelphia, put up specifics for nearly every disease, which are sold by all druggists, mostly for 25 cents a bottle.

JUSTICE TO JERSEY.

PLAINFIELD WOMEN DISCUSS THEIR OWN LITTLE WORLD.

Geography and History Discussed—A Jersey City Candidate for the Bar Complains of Unjust Treatment.

An interesting meeting, the first of the season, was held by the Plainfield Branch Alliance of Unitarian and Other Liberal Christian Women in the parlors of All Souls Church yesterday afternoon. The attendance was large, and the women were much interested in the matters discussed.

The report of the Religious News Committee was given by the chairman, Mrs Leonard, It referred to the deaths of three prominent Unitarians, Dr. Oliver Wendell Holmes, Rev Dr. Grindall Reynolds of Concord, and Rev. John Hamilton Thorn of Liverpool; also to that of Prof. Swing of Chicago, a very liberal Presbyterian.

A report was received from Miss M. B Browne, the Plainfield delegate to the biennial meeting of the National Alliance. She told of the session of the Unitarian conference in Saratoga. The usual report of the postoffice mission, prepared by Miss E L Reynolds, was read.

The main topic of the afternoon was the "Geography and History of New Jersey". On this subject Mrs. E. W. Conklin read an interesting, instructive paper. Miss Katharyn Yates followed with an essay in which were presented very clearly many important points of the form of the State government and the laws affecting women as wives, mothers and property-owners

The peculiarities of the laws were also considered by Miss Mary Philbrook of Jersey City, who referred to her failure to be admitted to the bar of the State after she had successfully completed her study of law. Mrs. David P. Hall next read a selection from an essay written by C. W. Opdyke on "Justice to Jersey". With an informal discussion of the topics by a number of the women present, the meeting closed.

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR

In response to the call of President Irving L Brady of the Christian Endeavor Society of the East Third Street Mission, ten of the workers gathered at the home of L. W. Randolph, West Second street Monday evening, and formed themselves into a working council. Plans for the coming work of the year were discussed, and the meeting was a profitable one.

—Townsend. the granite-dealer of Somerset street, has a very handsome monument in his yard about completed for the plot of the late Charles Gill at Hillside. The class of work that, Mr. Townsend is doing is a credit to himself and an attraction to the cemetery.

—The canopy at the First Baptist Church for the Groendyke-Randolph wedding last evening was erected by Emil Scheidecker, The front of the church and the canopy were photographed by Edward Hogan yesterday afternoon. One of the pictures will be presented to the bride.

A YOUNG GIRL'S FORTUNE.

AN INTERESTING SKETCH.

Nothing appeals so strongly to a mother's affection as her daughter just budding into womanhood. Following is an instance: "Our daughter, Blanche, now 15 years of age, had been terribly afflicted with nervousness, and had lost the entire use of her right arm. She was in such a condition that we had to keep her from school and abandon her music lessons. In fact, we feared St. Vitus dance, and are positive but for an invaluable remedy she would have had that terrible affliction. We had employed physicians, but she received no benefit from them. The first of last August she weighed but 75 pounds, and although she has taken only three bottles of Nervine she now weighs 106 pounds; her nervousness and symptoms of St. Vitus dance are entirely gone, she attends school regularly, and studies with comfort and ease. She has recovered complete use of her arm, her appetite is splendid, and no money could procure for our daughter the health Dr. Miles' Nervine has brought her.

When my brother recommended the remedy I had no faith in patent medicines, and would not listen to him, but as a last resort he sent us a bottle, we began giving it to Blanche, and the effect was almost immediate."—Mrs. R. R. Bullock, Brighton, N. Y.

Dr. Miles' Restorative Nervine, is sold by all druggists on a positive guarantee, or sent direct by the Dr. Miles Medical Co., Elkhart, Ind., on receipt of price, $1 per bottle, six bottles for $5, express prepaid. It is positively free from opiates or dangerous drugs.

SECRETS AND THE CHURCH.

"AMERICAN" REPLIES TO REV. FATHER MURPHY.

Refers to Books in Which Protestantism is Denounced, and Indicates That Bigotry Prevails Outside the A. P. A.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE DAILY PRESS:—Father Murphy's laborious reply in last night's edition reminds me of what Isaac Grimes said of Aunt Dinah, "Ebery time she opens her mouth she done put her foot in it". Murphy says "The church condemns Clan-na-Gael, and all other oath-bound secret societies". The Free Masons and all Protestant orders, yes: but when has the church officially condemned Clan-na-Gael? The fact remains that none but good Catholics could belong to it, and that the members would give "the brotherhood preference in all matters of business, and will vote and work only for Irishmen for political office". And yet Murphy protests against Apaism! No one but the priests and members are supposed to know the secrets of the Ancient Order of Hibernians: this society is secret and oath-bound, yet the church has just enfolded this order to its bosom. And still Murphy is indignant at Apaism! There is the steel-ribbed, strike-in-the-dark order of Jesuits, a paragraph of whose oath reads, "I do further declare that I will help, assist, and advise all, or any, of his Holiness's agents, in any place wherever I may be, and do my utmost to extirpate the heretical Protestant's doctrine, and to destroy all their pretended power, legal or otherwise". And yet Murphy talks of American bigotry! When has the Catholic church, in this country, condemned this oath-bound, severely secret, un-American Order of Jesuits?

This gentleman swells with indignation against "American's" intolerance; reverend father, please turn to "Plain Talk About the Protestantism of Today", a book published by T. B. Noonan & Co. of Boston, and endorsed by Archbishop Williams, and on page 127 read the following: "It would be an insult to the Catholic clergy to compare with them the pastors of Protestant sects, as Protestantism is no religion, whatever they may say to the contrary, as its ministers have not the authority of the priesthood, no matter how hard they may try to have its appearance". What trash to teach a certain portion of our citizens! What a spirit to engraft upon the breasts of a section of the rising generation! And yet sweet Murphy protests against American's bigotry. Turn again to same book, page 55, and read: "To be a Christian is to be Catholic; outside of Catholicity you may be a Lutheran, a Calvinist, a Mohammedan, a Morman, a Free-Thinker, a Buddhist; but you are not, you cannot be, a Christian". If this is not bigotry of the worst sort, what is it? Yet, this is teaching which is given to a class of our citizens, prejudicing them against their Protestant neighbors; and yet Father Murphy opens his innocent eyes at the marvelous spread of Apaism. One more quotation, "If Catholics ever gain a sufficient numerical majority in this country religious freedom is at an end. So we say, so we believe". [Editorial in the Shepherd of the Valley, official organ of Bishop Hughes, January 26, 1852]. And yet, sweet Murphy loudly declaims against the bigotry of patriotic American organizations. Till our next,

AMERICAN.

Plainfield, Oct. 23, 1894.

NEWS OF NEAR NEIGHBORS.

Dunellen.

Miss Florence Diverty of Vermont returned home yesterday.

Postmaster Staats has gurchased another handsome horse.

The Misses Hunt have been entertaining friends from Westfield.

Miss Helen V. Dunham of Brooklyn is visiting Mrs. A. V. Dunham.

Mrs. J. Lyman returned to her home in Brooklyn, after visiting Mrs. M. J. Wheeler.

Miss Nancy Thomas and Miss Mabel Lewis returned yesterday from a visit to High Bridge.

The report that the post office is to be removed is not true. It was started in another paper and was wholly unwarranted.

Miss Maggie Twiname of England and her niece, Miss Clara Twiname of Salem Centre, New York, are visiting Mrs. Charles Dickenson.

"A Soldier's Story", by Major Calhoun, was given in a thrilling manner in the M. E. Church last evening by Alfred E. Pearsall of Westfield. It was rendered in song and story.

A prominent citizen of Dunellen talking about the location of the Plainfield sewer beds, said: "The outlet for the sewers will be in the Raritan river. Dunellen does not propose to have the beds near their line. There is enough influence and legal protection to give us our rights which we intend to have".

The trial between Paul Kratzel and Adam Seader took place yesterday afternoon in Maier's Hall. It was a hotly contested one. A large number of people were present who enjoyed the affair very much. Judge Coddington appeared for Kratzel and Lawyer George DeMeza for Seader. During the trial some very personal remarks were exchanged by counsel and the audience was very much amused. After an hour's talk which amounted to very little, Justice Storms granted a non-suit for Mr. Coddington. Mr. DeMeza will not give up the case but will continue it on the same grounds as in the first case.

The Eye.

The human eye seldom fulfils all the requirements of a perfect optical instrument. When, however, the error is slight it may be disregarded; but when sufficient to produce headache, pain in the eyes, or poor vision, it should be corrected at once by wearing properly adjusted glasses. If your eyes are causing you pain or anxiety call on Leech, Stiles & Co's specialist, who will be at 107 East Front street tomorrow from 10 a. m. to 5 p. m.

Republican Nominees.

The Union County Republican Convention yesterday nominated William Howard of Rahway as County Clerk. As told in yesterday's Press, Joseph Cross and John N. Burger of Elizabeth and Charles N. Codding of Westfield were renominated for the Assembly.

FOR MEN ONLY.

A Splendid Private Lecture to Men.

POWERFUL WORDS NEVER TO BE FORGOTTEN.

Chickering Hall, New York City, Has a Great Audience—Every Word Went Straight to the Heart—A Talk That Was of Great and Priceless Value.

(Special from New York City.)

NEW YORK CITY, Oct. 23—Men want to be strong. They want good health, sound bodies, vigorous constitutions.

They were told just how to obtain all these last evening, in that great private lecture to men, given by that noted specialist Dr. Greene, of 35 West 14th street, New York City, in Chickering Hall, New York City. People have learned that when this noted physician gives a lecture they will hear something they want to know, something that will greatly benefit them.

The Doctor has devoted his whole life to the study of chronic and nervous diseases. His treatment is so different and his success so much greater than that of any other physician, that his name and the wonderful cures he has made, and is making every day, are known in every household in the land. A man who can rise to such a conception of the action of medicines on the human system, has indeed well earned the title of the greatest living specialist.

His private lecture to men is one of the most important and valuable which he gives, inasmuch as it deals with that large class of nervous, weak men, which is so fearfully common. For what is more terrible than a physically and mentally weak man, with weak nerves, whose energy and ambition are gone. And yet this great country is filled with just such men, whose hopes have been blighted, ambitions paralyzed, and whose lives have proved failures because of weakened nerves and exhausted strength.

Thousands of young men of the brightest intellect, with unlimited brain power, and of the most splendid prospects, notice that they are not making the most of their abilities, that their power to work is falling short, and that they are for which they had reason to hope. Thousands of middle-aged men of undoubted ability, of indomitable perseverance and of the highest mental attainment have seen their power, little by little, go from them until they have been forced to abandon their lofty ambitions and give up in despair. Like the fine sands of an hourglass trickling through a minute opening, so their power, vigor and ambition unconsciously fade away, leaving them weak, enervated and unable to longer maintain their position in the business world. Thousands of old men, with whitened hair and hollow cheeks, have looked back upon a life replete with disappointments and failures, realizing when it is too late, why they have not succeeded, and with a sigh they have exclaimed, "Oh, that I had looked to my health!"

There are many causes which induce this condition of nervous and physical weakness, but the most destructive of all are those insidious and hidden sources which are so prevalent in this age.

How does this terrible affliction commence?

Nervousness, a growing desire to be alone, inability to fix the mind for any length of time, weakness, dull head, dimness of vision, impaired memory, gloom and depression of mind, headache and dizziness. There is a flushing of the face on the least excitement, a feeling of cowardice, unsteadiness of nerves, sleeplessness, trembling, loss of confidence; the thoughts wander, and the person wakes in the morning tired and unrefreshed, and with a bad taste in the mouth.

There is restlessness, trembling of the voice on excitement, irritability, a dull, cloudy sensation, aften attended by disagreeable feelings in the head and eyes, and the mind is easily confused. At times there is in the back and palpitation of the heart. There is a lack of force, energy and power and the ambition is gone.

These symptoms mean that the person is suffering from nervous debility, and that the whole nervous system is becoming exhausted and enfeebled. The consequences of this condition are most fearful. They cannot be depicted in language too strong, for the very hope of any success in life depends upon the person's recovery! Many a physical and mental wreck can be traced directly to this disease.

And what is the cure for this terrible calamity? What can they do to get well?

There is no man living who has done so much for this large class of patients as Dr. Greene, nor is there any branch of his practice in which this specialist has obtained such marvelous results. Seeing in his large practice the terrible results of this disease, and knowing the inability of other physicians to cope with it, and indeed the failure of most of them to recognize such a complaint, the Doctor determined to make this department a special study. He searched the laboratories of the world, devoting years of study and enormous sums of money to learn positively the action of every known medicine on these parts.

His success has far exceeded his greatest expectations. The combination of harmless, vegetable remedies he has succeeded in bringing together and compounding for this complaint, is most wonderful. He has prepared remedies for this terrible physical and nervous weakness in men, so potent in their healing and strengthening power, so irresistible in their effects, and so permanent in their results, that there is no case which cannot be cured by them. They strike right at the root of and under their vitalizing influence the down-hearted and despondent person soon begins to feel a new life within him, the eyes sparkle with health, the nerves become strong and steady, the mind regains its cheerfulness, the pallor and hollow cheeks disappear and the blood becomes rich and pure, sending renewed vigor and health throughout the system.

He feels himself ready for any undertaking; the gloom and depression have gone, the step is firm and buoyant and the heart cheerful with hope and ambition. This is what Dr. Greene's remedies are doing every day for these poor sufferers. They are making strong, able men out of weak, nervous sufferers, and surely no greater or nobler work was ever accomplished.

Physicians have always been in the habit of prescribing poisons for this disease, and the harm done by them is incalculable. Such poisonous drugs do not in the least build up and strengthen the system, they only impoverish the blood, weaken still more the already exhausted nerves, and make the patient worse than before taking them. Common sense will tell all thinking persons that harmless vegetable remedies which give renewed strength and vigor, are what are required in this, as well as all chronic and nervous diseases.

Thousands of unhappy sufferers all over the land are constantly being cured by his wonderful remedies. If you belong to this class, do not delay another moment, but consult Dr. Greene, take these remedies yourself and get well. For you will be cured just so surely as you take them. His office is at 35 West 14th street, New York city, where he consults with all, free of charge.

Another great blessing to these patients is the Doctor's system of letter correspondence. This enables men all over the United States, suffering from this disease, to consult him without leaving their homes, and absolutely free of charge. Write him a letter stating how you feel, and he will answer it, describing your complaint thoroughly, telling what to do to be cured, and the cost of the necessary medicines.

This system of treatment through letter correspondence has proved of incalculable importance as thousands of men are being cured by it who could never afford to come to the city, but who, by having the medicines sent them, at the low prices which the Doctor always charges, are enabled to be perfectly and permanently cured. Write him at once, if you cannot visit him at the office, 35 West 14th street, New York city, and we promise you a speedy and permanent restoration to sound and vigorous health

CZAR IN GREAT AGONY

One Dispatch Says He Cannot Live Three Days.

And the Czarena's Condition Also Causing Great Alarm—Dr. Grube, and Her Father, the King of Greece, Hastening to Livadia—She Is Said To Be in Danger of Collapse—The Czarewitch and Princess Alix May Be Wed To-day.

London, Oct. 24.—A central News dispatch from St. Petersburg says: "It is semi-officially announced that the wedding of the czarewitch and princess Alix will take place in the presence of the czar in the chapel at Livadia at two o'clock this afternoon. The princess joined the orthodox church yesterday. It is stated that on leaving Spala, the czar weighed 200 pounds-about 28 pounds below his normal weight, and that he now weighed only 140 qounds." The Berlin correspondent of the Central News says that an official dispatch from St Petersburg confirms the announcement that the marriage of the czarewitch and Princess Alix will take place to-day, unless the czar should become suddenly worse in the meantime.

The Daily Chronicle's Vienna correspondent says that a trustworthy dispatch from Livadia makes it doubtful whether the wedding will take place to-day or not, the czar being in great agony whaen the dispatch was sent.

The Standard's St. Petersburg correspondent says that the condition of the czarina causes anxiety, as she is said to be in danger of collapse. Professor Grube of the Kharkoff Medical institute has started for Livadia in haste. The king of Greece also is en route to Livadia.

Paris, Oct. 24.—The Figaro's correspondent at Livadia says the czar recently experienced thirteen hours of terrible suffering. The crisis of the disease, the paper further says, is now reached. His Majesty's condition showed a slight improvement, and the members of his entourage are more hopeful of his ultimate recovery. His physicians, however, consider his condition grave.

London, Oct. 24.—The Times's correspondent says that authentic accounts from Livadia regarding the czars state that yesterday evening his majesty's condition was slightly improved, though little change was noticeable

Vienna, Oct. 24.—Advices from a private source regarding the czars condition, received at the Russian embassy in this city, are not of a reassuring nature. They state that his death is looked for within three days.

St. Petersburg, Oct. 24.—Advices received here from Livadia says that there is no truth in the repor that the czarina is suffering from paralysis of the legs. Princess Alix arrived at Livadia, she was met at Alushta by the czarewitch, where they stopped for luncheon. After a short rest the journey was resumed, the route taken being through Yulta. The czarewitch and the princess sat side by side in the carriage, and during their progress through Yulta they were enthusiastically cheered by the crowd which had gathered to meet them. Upon arriving at Livadia Princes Alix at once made her way to the apartment occupied by the czar and czarina. Upon the conclusion of her call upon their majesties the princess, accompanied by the empress and other members of the imperial family, proceeded to the palace church, where services were held. Upon entering the church Princess Alix was received by the suite. The Grand Duke Vladmir, the eldest brother of the czar, and the grand duchess have also arrived at Livadia. Dr. Merschejewsky, who has been in attendance on the czarina, has returned to St. Petersburg.

Berlin, Oct. 24.—The Cologne Gazette prints a dispatch from St. Petersburg saying that immediately upon the arrival of Princes Alix at Livadia the final ceremonies of her reception into the Othordox church will take place, and then her marriage to the czarewitch will then be at once quietly celebrated. The personal appearence of the czar, according to a Livadia dispatch, has changed for the worse. His majesty's abdomen and legs are considerably swollen. He moves but little, except with assistance. In the event of the czar's death, Emperor William will send Prince Henry of Pussia to Livadia as his representative.

Southern California Shaken.

San Francisco, Oct. 23.—Despatches received in this city this morning show that southern California was shaken by several earthquake shocks shortly after 3 o'clock yesterday afternoon. At Los Angeles they were light and scarcely noticed, but at Oceanside, Sana Ana, San Diego and other places the tremors were more severe and drove people from the large buildings into the streets. The windows of several houses were broken and clocks were sopped at San Diego. A telephone message received thre from Campo, a small town on the Mexican border fifty-five miles east, says the shocks were very severe but the damage was not serious. The seismic disturbances were heaviest at San Juan Capsitrano, where, besides the breaking of windows, crockery of all kinds was shattered in many houses.

Reed Talks to Stockmen.

Chicago, Oct. 24.—Precisely at noon Hon. Thomas B. Reed, and the small party accompanying him reached the Union stock yards and were driven to the Exchange building, in front of which a pine board platform had been erected. Surrounding the platform, was a crowd of at least 2,000, composed of stockmen, cattle herders, yardmen and clerks, who vociferously cheered the man from Maine on his rising to address them. At the conclusion of his speech Mr. Reed was escorted to his carriage and driven to Packingtown, where he visited the big packing houses. Mr. Reed left for Minneapolis in the evening.

REMARKABLE CURES

Of Recent Date.

A Statement from Ex-Mayor John Corson, Esq., of Clinton, N. J.

TO THE PUBLIC:

I acknowledge with the utmost pleasure the wonderful cure which Dr. Lighthill effected in my case.

I had been a sufferer from piles, which gave me constant pain and distress, during twenty long years, attended with frequent loss of blood and with great and painful protrusion of the pile tumors and rectum whenever my bowels moved.

I tried constantly to get relief from my sufferings, but to no purpose until Mr. Bryan, a friend of mine, who had been cured by Dr. Lighthill of the same trouble, recommended him to me, and he effected a complete and radical cure in my case also, and earned my lifelong gratitude.

JOHN CORSON.

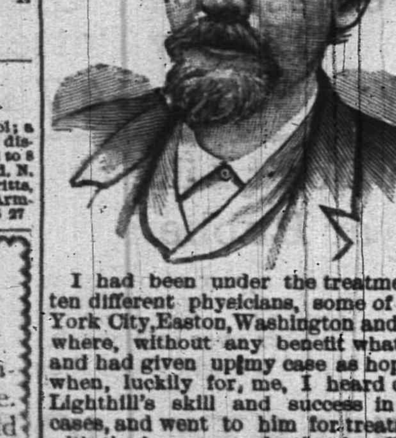
THE CASE OF MR. PETER G. EYCK, OF BISSELL, HUNTERDON CO., N. J.

Dr. Lighthill Effects a Complete Cure Where Ten Physicians Had Failed.

TO THE SICK, SUFFERING AND AFFLICTED:

For many years past I have been afflicted with bleeding piles. Every movement of the bowels was attended with loss of blood and with intense pain which lasted for hours and sometimes all day. My condition was aggravated by a prolapse of the rectum, which greatly increased my suffering and sometimes gave me most agonizing pains.

So great was my distress and so bad my condition that I sold my farm, not being able to work it any longer. At one time the protruding pile tumors became so highly inflamed and swollen that they could not be replaced, and I had to go to bed, applying hot poultices for three months before I could get relief.



I had been under the treatment of ten different physicians, some of New York City, Easton, Washington and elsewhere, without any benefit whatever, and had given up my case as hopeless when, luckily for me, I heard of Dr. Lighthill's skill and success in such cases, and went to him for treatment, with the happy result that he effected a radical and permanent cure in less than four weeks's time; and I am glad to say that the entire treatment gave me neither pain nor distress.

I consider my cure perfectly wonderful, and so do all my friends and neighbors. I am confident that there is no case of piles which Dr. Lighthill cannot cure.

PETER G. EYCK,
Bissell, Hunterdon Co., N. J.

THE POLITICAL FIELD

Movements of the Big Guns in the Present Struggle.

Gen. Harrison Arrives in New York and Consents To Make a Speech—President Cleveland Also in the Metropolis—Gov. McKinley Talks at Pittsburg and Leaves for Buffalo—Ex-Speaker Reed at Minneapolis—Wilson's Campaign.

New York, Oct. 25.—With President Cleveland a guest of Dr. Bryant at 54 west Thirty-fourth street, ex-President Harrison at the Fifth Aaenue hotel, ex-Vice president Morton occupying a suite in another hall, Senator Hill at the Park Avenue hotel, and Governor Mc Kinley enroute to the city, politics very naturally are at this time the principle topic discussed in the hotels, cafes and lobbies. The chief interest last evening lay in the outcome of Grace-Tammany congressional conference, as the matter had to be settled some way by midnight as all the nominations had to be filed by that hour in order to have the names printed upon the official ballots. All day long Senator Faulkner, who had the congressional campain intrusted to him by the national democratic committee, received callers in connection with the harmony arrangment in Kings county, and New York city. Messrs. Bell and Shepard each spent an hour with Senator Faulkner during the forenoon. After their departure the Senator said all that was required was to effect harmony in Kings county was a joint conference between the leaders and representatives of the democrat state committee. When asked about New York situation, Mr. Faulkner replied they had been at work upon the matter all day. They had, too, made some progress during the Tuesday afternoon and the noe in the conference at the Prak avenue during Tuesday afternoon and the one in the evening, which lasted until five o'clock in the morning. He declined to say what caused the hitch, or who was responsible, but ventured an opinion that it would be fixed to the satisfaction of all. He immediately after upset all such conclusions by saying—"No matter how blue things look, I am always hopeful.' Maj. Hinckley said at six o'clock that he still entertained hopes of harmony, but it was now more than apperent from his manner and tone that he had little or no confidence in the outcome.

An attempt was made to learn whether President Cleveland intended to register, but it proved futile.

New York, Oct. 25.—It was given out at democratic state headquarters that no result had been reached by Senator Faulkner in his attempt to harmonize the Bell and Shepard democratic factions in Kings county. No conference was held on either the Kings county or New York congressional ticket.

Harrison Will Speak in New York.

Ex-President Harrison's arrival in this city was the most important event at republican state headquarters. The ex-president dined with Levi P. Morton last evening. After dinner Chairman Hackett, of the republican state committee, saw the ex-president with the result that the latter will make a speech in this city for the state ticket. The date has not yet been decided upon, but it will probably be the latter part of this week or the early part of next. General Harrison will confine himself to national issues as he does not deem it wise to meddle with the situation in this state. Ex-Senator Platt was at republican headquarters last evening and said in the course of an interview that the democratic boasts that the Hill campaign was beginning to boom was "pure bluff and nothing more." He added that Hill was stronger on the day he was nominated than he is now. Asked why this was so, Mr. Platt said: "Because his nomination did not do what he thought it would do, viz.: unite the party. On the contrary it split the party wider than ever, so wide that he has been trying ever since to close the gap. You know," continued the ex-senator, "as well as I do how he has succeeded."

Fraud Charged in Philadelphia.

Philadelphia, Oct. 25.—The Record to-day says: "There are to-day no less than 30,000 names that have been fraudulenty placed on the assessors lists in Philadelphia for the purpose of returning false and enormous republican majority at the next election. The republican combine is bold because it imagines that it not only controls the machinery of justice as well, but "The Record" proposed to see whether it is possible to have a fair election and a fair count in this city next November. This morning, representing the Record and the democratic candidates on the state ticket an appeal to the courts (with evidence exibiting the extent of the proposed fraud upon the ballot box) will be made for the protection of the franchise and the punishment of the perpatrators of the outrage.

Tammany and Grace.

New York, Oct. 25.—One of the leaders of Tammany hall said to-day that all negotiations looking to a compromise with the Grace democracy on candidates for congress were off, and that the Tammany men would take part in no more conferences. No other meetings of the conference committees has been called. "Mr. Grace and Tammany are so wide apart, it is said, there is no possibility of their getting together. Another of the Tammany leaders said: "We went into the negotiations in good faith, willing to make concessions in the interest of harmony. The matter soon took such a turn that we quit in disgust."

Fassett at Plattsburgh.

Plattsburgh, N. Y., Oct. 25.—Senator Saxton spoke here to an audience that was limited only by the capacity of Weed's theatre. He confined himself to state issues. The speaker began by arraigning the democratic party, and especially its candidates, Senator Hill for attempting to raise false issues. He characterized the effort to raise the issue of religion as a shameless thing and one unworthy of a great political party. This is a free country, he said, and one of the vital features of the constitution is the guarantee that every man shall worship in his own manner. The republican party is the party of civil, personal and religious liberty. It never has been and never will be the party of religious intolerance, and the effort to associate it with intolerance must surely react upon the accusers.

McKinley in Pennsylvania.

Pittsburg, Oct. 25.—The republicans of the smoky city burnt red fire by the bushel, marched and counter-marched and yelled themselves hoarse last night. It was their largest demonstration of the present campaign, and specially intended as a recognition of the commencement of Governor McKinley's hurried tour through this state and New York. The governor reached Pittsburg at 6:30 and at 8 o'clock he was escorted to the old city hall by a procession composed of the Young Mens Republican Tariff club and kindred organizations. An audience of 3,000 awaited his coming and twice that number surged about the building and cheered to the echo as the police made a way for his carriage. When Mr. McKinley advanced to the front of the stage he was given another ovation. He plunged at once into a discussion of the tariff question. Speaking of what he characterized as the political revolution of 1894. At 11 o'clock the governor left for Buffalo. En route he will make several speeches.

Chairman Wilson's Campaign.

Wheeling, W. Va., Oct. 25.—Last night was democratic night here as the night before was republican night. The streets were alive, fully 10,000 people moving about and unable to get into the meeting places where Mr. Wilson and his party friends were to speak. The sky was red with fireworks. Both opera houses were used, the local democrats buying outright the theatres from the theatrical troupes showing at them. Each theatre, holding 1,800 people, were crowded to the pit. At the principal meeting, J. J. Wood presided and Mr. Wilson was the first speaker.

Mr. Singerly's Campaign.

Meadville, Pa., Oct. 25.—Guburnatorial candidate Singerly with his associates and their attending train of orators completed the third day of their hard campain in this republican stronghold. It was a brilliant finale to a most brilliant day and the meetings held simultaneously in the Opera house and Liberty hall were the largest and the most enthusiastic within the memory of the oldest inhabitant. It was a triumphant journey from Erie. Mr. Singerly spoke at every stopping place.

The President Visits "Dr. Syntax."

New York, Oct. 25.—President Cleveland visited the Broadway theatre last evening as the guest of Dr. Joseph D. Bryant. They were accompanied by Mrs. Bryant and Miss Bryant. The president and party occupied one of the lower proscenium boxes. The house soon began to fill up and, as soon as it became known that the president was present, he was greeted with marked applause. The president bowed his acknowledgments and then devoted his attention to the play of "Dr. Syntax," De Wolf Hopper's play.

Reed at Minneapolis.

Minneapolis, Oct. 25.—Following close upon Gov. McKinley, Thomas B. Reed, of Main, visited Minneapolis and last night 5,000 persons crowded Exposition hall and listened to the ex-speaker who discoursed on the issue of the day.

EFFECT OF THE NEW TARIFF.

Remarkable Increase of Exports from Europe to This Country.

Washington, Oct. 25.—American consuls throughout Europe are sending reports to the state department showing the remarkable increase of exports to the United States from their consular districts since the new tariff bill became a law. At Marseilles the business of the month ending Oct. 1, was the largest in the history of the consulate, being $15,328 in excess of September, 1892, the next month as to aggregate value of exports, and $205,777 in excess of the average of the preceding twelve months. The consul states that this increase is not confined to articles placed on the free list by the Wilson bill, but the proportion is approximately the same for all merchandise leaving the district. The value of exports for September 1893 and 1894 were respectively $71,269 and $343,856.

The consul at Sheffield reports a similar improvement in trade from that city to the United States.

Society Wedding at Springfield.

Springfield, Mass., Oct. 25.—The society wedding of the season was the marriage last night of Miss M. Louise Morgan, daughter of ex-Councillor Elisha Morgan, to Alfred Lees. The ceremony was performed in the First church by Rev. Dr. E. A. Reed, of Holyoke, assisted by Rev. Mr. Goodspeed, of Amherst, who has just accepted the call to be pastor of the First church. There were many costly presents including a loving-cup from the Wolf's Head society at Yale, to which the groom belonged, and a silver bowl from members of the governor's council of 1893. A large reception followed the ceremony.

Grand Salvation Meeting.

New York, Oct. 25.—Cooper union was crowded with salvationists, and their friends. The meeting was what is known in army parlance as a grand salvation meeting. General Booth led the meeting, and was assisted by Ballington Booth and Col. Damley. At the close of the meeting on invitation of the General, accompanied by salvation hymns and shouts of victory, about 48 persons went forward to the penitent bench, seeking salvation.

THE CZAR IS WORSE

His Death, It Is Feared, Now a Matter of Hours.

Also Said To Be Suffering Great Agony—Excitement over an Order for the Return of the Imperial Yachts—Conflicting Stories Regarding the Czarewitch's Wedding.

Paris, Oct. 25.—A dispatch from St. Petersburg, received late last night, says that private information received from the czar's chamber conveyed the information that the emperor was worse and that he was suffering great agony. His death, it was feared, was now a matter of hours.

St. Petersburg, Oct. 25.—Much comment was excited here by the news that the imperial yachts Polar Star and Tsarevan have been ordered to proceed to Piraeus. These yachts were ordered south some days ago, but, soon after leaving Cronstadt, were told to return. What the last change of plan means is not known.

The following is the latest official bulletin: During the day there have been no signs of somnolence. The emperor's appetite and spirits were better. The oedama increased somewhat."

Berlin, Oct. 25.—The St. Petersburg correspondent of the Koelnische Zeitung says it is rumored that the czar's physicians have hopes that he will live two or three weeks, and consequently have favored postponing the wedding.

London, Oct. 25.—The Daily News has this dispatch from St. Petersburg: "The official bulletins do not represent the situation to be as dark as it really is. The general opinion is that the beginning of the end has arrived and that already the czar is dying. It is not known whether the marriage has been solemnized. The silence is ominous, although it may be that the czar's condition and an operation delayed the ceremony. There are persistent rumors that the Princess Alix is still fighting a desperate struggle against the fanatical zeal of the orthodox clergy, who insist upon declaring her evangelical faith accursed. In the last days pamphlets have passed through the postoffice here summoning the people to demand the political rights which the dying czar has refused to grant them. The pamphlets are signed by the new revolutionary society called the people's rights party."

HARVARD OBSERVATORIES.

Nothing Known at Cambridge of the Reported Sacking at Arequipa.

Boston, Oct. 25.—Prof. Pickering of the Harvard observatory was seen with regard to the report of the sacking of the Harvard station at Arequipa in Peru. He said that he could not verify or refute any reports that he had heard as the authorities in Cambridge seldom have any telegraphic communication, owing to the fact that it costs some $3 for each word.

"I have hopes, however," he said in continuing, "that the report as published is distorted by being handed about from one country to another. I have strong hopes that the station that has been reached is that on El Misti and not that at Arequipa. My reasons for this are based on a letter which I received a short time ago from Prof. Bailey, who has charge of the work that is being done in Peru. Our main station is not much more than two miles from Arequipa. We bought some land there and erected a station, consisting of several buildings, including the residences, house for telescope and the accommodations for the other instruments. Here the headquarters are, and from here all other expeditions are made. In addition to this main station, we have had one near Lima, in the northern part of Peru. Fortunately, we had abandoned that before the insurrection had made much headway. The location of our sub-station there is now in the hands of the insurrectionists."

Created a Scene in Court.

Wilmington, Del., Oct. 25.—Michael Faino has been sentenced to be hanged on Jan. 25, 1895, for the murder of Carlo Ruva, on April 20 last. When sentence was passed upon him, Faino made a scene in court. He pounded his head with his fists, and cried wildly and could be heard for blocks. He had to be carried from the court room.

SAYS JAPS WILL WIN

Views of Li Hung's Late Military Adviser.

Major Richter Abandons the Attempt To Handle the Chinese Forces on Account of Their Demoralization and Their Knavish Officers—Ping-Yang Battlefield.

Vancouver, B. C., Oct. 25.—The steamer Empress of Japan has just arrived from the Orient. Among her passengers was Major Richter, on his way to Germany. Major Richter was military adviser of Viceroy Li Hung Chang. After two years in China Richter found that he could do absolutely nothing with the Chinese forces owing to the utter demoralization and the knavishness of their officers. He feels confident that Japan will come out on top in the present struggle. She has been preparing for it for years, not only in learning the art of modern warfare, but also seeking to understand the strong and weak points of her enemy. It is a well-known fact that, rightly or wrongly, there has been a great deal of umbrage among the Japanese against the partiality of the British fleet in the east toward the Chinese. The better class of Japanese no longer share in the fancy, and the impression now prevails that Admiral Fremantle and his officers are thoroughly impartial between the two belligerents. The best of sentiment now exists between the British fleet and the Japanese navy. It is difficult to decide whether the change is due to a better understanding on the part of the Japanese or a change of attitude on the part of the British naval officers. The Nippon says that the Chinese troops have erected six forts on the southerly bank of the Yalu river and fourteen on the northern bank. The force assembled to dispute the passage of the Japanese army into Manchuria is estimated at seventy thousand. Field Marshal Count Yamagata, telegraphing from Ping-Yang on the 27th ult., says: "No enemy found in Kasan on the 26th. In flying from the place left behind 200,000 rounds of ammunition and a quantity of military weapons."

The Chinese troops killed a number of persons and burned many houses in Kasan. In Ch-Hong-Ju several houses seem to have been burned. Ch-Hong-Ju is sixty miles by road from Waju, on the banks of the Yalu. If the Japanese army had reached Ch-Hong-Ju on the 27th ult., it ought to be in Waju very early in October. Recent events seem to confirm the forecast that no serious opposition will be encountered by the Japanese on this side of the Manchurian frontier.

The vernacular press teems with grave advice to the Japanese authorities as to how to conduct affairs after peace is restored. "Japanese statesmen have, indeed, a difficult task before them to bring the country out of such a war, richer and greater," says the Tokio Journal, and adds: "People speak of an immense indemnity to be taken from the Celestial kingdom, but is China in a condition to pay any large indemnity. People cry for annexation of land, but is that a wise step to take in view of the fact that southern China has considerable in contact with western powers, and in northern China the barbarous and intractable inhabitants could scarcely be brought under foreign rule. In fact, Japanese statesmen will find a white elephant on their hands at the conclusion of the war."

The Nippon advises the Japanese authorities not to lose sight of reforms in Korea since they were the ostensible reason for entering upon the war. Their neglect might engender serious difficulties with western nations. To accomplished reforms in Korea at present the Nipon admits is a big task. The Korean statesmen being effeminate, and what is worse, thoroughly jealous of each other, while at the same time not a small portion of the Korean nation is inclined to regard China as a better protector than Japan. Under such circumstances no reform in Korea is of more importance than the reform of the Koreans themselves and recommends that for that purpose Korean soldiers be used in the land engagements with China's troops. It does not think that they could in any way help the Japanese. It even fears that they might be worse than useless. Yet it advocates taking them with the Japanese army for two simple reasons—that they might thus be converted into something like men and that the alliance between Korea and Japan against China might not remain an idle declaration on paper.

Ping-Yang Battlefield.

London, Oct. 25.—The Morning Post has this dispatch dated at Chemulpo on Oct. 19: "The second force of Japanese left Seoul on the 15th to quell the rebellion of the Tonghako, who are impeding seriously the pacification of the country, stirring hatred and revolt wherever they appear. The Japanese are trying to check their agitation, and have scattered silver plentifully among the Koreans. It is said that in Seoul, alone, they have disbursed 100,000 yen. The road from Seoul to Ping-Yang is strewn with the decomposed carcases of horses and cattle. On the battlefield of Ping-Yang the stench is terrible. Many of the dead Chinese were buried hastily and with but a few handfuls of earth over their bodies. The graves have been washed open by the rains and the bodies are now exposed to the sun. Large numbers of sick Japanese have been brought here in boats by night. Most of them are suffering from dysentery. The arrangements of the Japanese hospitals are very defective. Officers who were present at Ping-Yang say that the Chinese infantry cut through the enemy's ranks, but the cavalry was annihilated, the horses sticking in the marshes, and going down by the score under the Japanese fire."

LADIES' DAY

Aroused their Deepest Interest!

Chickering Hall, New York City, Filled With Ladies.

Best Private Lecture Ever Given to Ladies.

Splendidly Illustrated. A Perfect Success.

These Lectures Grow Popular Every Year.

(Special from New York City.)

NEW YORK CITY, Oct. 24—Another grand lecture by Dr. Greene, in Chickering Hall, New York City. Out of that immense audience of ladies, there was not one to whom the Doctor's powerful words did not appeal most strongly. Indeed, there were very few who did not feel that he was talking directly to them, and describing their own complaints. He has a most remarkable power of describing disease and making all persons in his audience feel that he is speaking directly to them, telling them exactly what their trouble is.

It was another one of those private lectures to ladies, given by Dr. Greene, of 35 West 14th street, New York City, in Chickering Hall, New York City. Everyone has heard of this successful specialist, either through his instructive and valuable lectures, or his still more remarkable ability to cure disease, with his system of harmless vegetable remedies.

Dr. Greene has gone right on curing disease where all others have failed, until he has convinced the public everywhere that his system of treatment has a power to cure chronic, lingering and nervous complaints, which has not been equaled by any method of treatment. The Doctor knows that he is in the right, and he has proved to the people that he is honest and conscientious in his dealings with everybody.

There is no class of disease so prevalent as those complaints and weaknesses pertaining to women. The success which Dr. Greene has effected with this class of patients, is more than wonderful. He has made a special study of these complaints. He has fathomed their very depths, learned their causes, the exact nature of every part in and so skilfully and adroitly applied the action of his harmless vegetable remedies to the weakened and diseased parts, that there are almost no cases which cannot be cured, and certainly none which cannot be greatly benefited by them.

There are very few ladies of the present day who are in perfect health, who are not affected by some of those weaknesses and ailments peculiar to their sex. This is due to several causes. The peculiar susceptibility of women to various complaints, habits of life, dress, overwork, all conspire to produce those ailments which cause so much suffering among women.

The most prolific cause of all is overwork. Nearly all women overwork in some way. The busy housewife must keep her house in order, and to do this she toils early and late. With her it is constant work, and but little, if any rest. Household cares, anxiety, worry and work soon leave their traces on body and mind. The young working girl keeps at her task day after day, little suspecting how seriously she is undermining her health, and what an immense amount of suffering she preparing for her future. The society lady by a constant round of gaiety, exhausts her system and lays the foundation for innumerable complaints.

Is it any wonder that under these combined influences, woman, with her delicately constructed system, soon begins to languish? It could not be otherwise. Unmistakable symptoms soon develop. She feels tired, weak and languid, and notices a tendency to nervousness, and to worry over small matters which never before troubled her. The feeling of exhaustion gradually increases, until there is inability to secure the needed and the person wakes in the morning, tired and unrefreshed, and often with bad taste in the mouth. Loss of appetite soon follows, or it becomes variable, with impaired digestion and faintness at the stomach. She tires easily, and can do but little work without getting completely exhausted. There is often palpitation of the heart and shortness of breath.

The nervousness increases, and the person becomes restless, irritable and despondent. The weakness and tired feeling becomes more and more aggravated, until the poor sufferer feels tired all the time and does not seem able to do anything, every movement being an effort. Headache is often present, with pains in the side, back or abdomen. Local symptoms soon manifest themselves.

Many women allow this condition to continue, saying they have not the time to rest, the work must be done. This is a terrible mistake, for if something is not done soon, complete prostration will result.

There is no greater fallacy than to suppose, as was formerly the case, that many of these ailments are incurable. The remedies which Dr. Greene has discovered and prepared for all such complaints are so superior in their quality, and so durable in their results, that they positively and permanently cure all these ailments.

The Doctor has spent years in discovering and developing the specific action of the most potent healing vegetable remedies known to the scientific world. Always bearing in mind the exact nature of the part or organ to be treated, he has most skillfully adapted each medicinal quality to the precise organ and disease which nature intended. That delicate and subtile power of medicine to cure disease, when exactly and correctly applied, is thoroughly understood by him. He uses of any kind, believing and knowing from a long experience, that much more good can be done by the use of harmless vegetable remedies, and without the injury always produced by virulent drugs. The tremendous success which has rewarded the Doctor's labors is sufficient evidence that he is in the right.

There is no physician living who has had greater opportunity to observe and study this class of patients than Dr. Greene. He is the most successful specialist in curing female complaints ever known. By the use of his wonderful remedies, the person soon begins to feel her strength returning, the nerves grow strong, sweet sleep returns, the mind regains its buoyancy, the appetite and digestion become normal, the pains cease, and the local symptoms gradually disappear. The pale, thin cheeks become rosy and plump, the step light and brisk, the blood becomes rich and pure, and the person feels renewed life and vigor. She is well and strong once more, ready to look the world in the face, and to do her work with an energy and a will which she believed had gone forever.

We wish that every poor, tired out, complaining woman and girl all over this broad land, could realize the vast good which would come to them by taking the remedies. They would not hesitate another moment, but would seek the aid of this successful specialist at once, and get well. Don't wait, and work on from day to day, hoping that health will come to you, for it will not come. If you want health, you must take treatment for it, for nothing good in this world is obtained without effort.

The surest, quickest and most certain way to regain your health and become strong and vigorous, is to adopt the treatment so successfully prepared by Dr. Greene of 35 West 14th street, New York City. He has made the offer of consulting with everyone free of charge, either personally or by letter. His prices for his medicines are low, and within the reach of all.

PARTICULAR MENTION.

Chief T. O. Doane was confined to his home by illness today.

Ex-Councilman and Mrs. Ernest R. Ackerman registered at the New York Herald office, Paris, yesterday.

After an absence of nearly four months, Rev. Dr. J. L. Hurlbut is again at home at 325 West 101st street, New York.

The Press is notified that "Some very pretty cards are out, although written in German, announcing the engagement of Miss Minna Kukla of 813 Park avenue, to Gustave Koehler, a rich millionaire of Hoboken".

Miss Mary Luckey of East Fifth street invited a number of her friends to her home Tuesday evening to meet her friend Miss Ethel Staples. A number of games were played, after which refreshments were served.

Mr. and Mrs. D. S. Roberts are in Scranton today attending the funeral of their two-year-old granddaughter Myra, the child of their son William Roberts. The little girl fell a short time ago and a fatal attack of brain fever resulted.

EARLY INTELLIGENCE.

—The Union County Grand Jury today returned 68 true bills, and a presentment against all lotteries, they were discharged.

—A meeting of Saengerbund members and others will be held in the Turn Verein Hall tonight to organize an independent German lodge.

—The Plainfield Bowling Club entertained the Summit team last evening and defeated them in two games, thus winning three out four.

—J. Howard Leggett has received a fine new 6 foot bevel-glass show case for Huyler's candies, of which he receives fresh shipments constantly.

—A satisfactory and handsome trimmed hat for $1, or one for as much more as you want to pay, is to be procured at Mrs. L. Adams's, 111 East Front street.

—The National Fire Insurance Company of Hartford, Conn., through their agent, Henry G. Adams, on last Tuesday gave to ex-Freeholder Andrew Vanderbeek a cheque for their share of the loss from the fire in his house two weeks ago.

—C. W. Johnson, Dunellen's hustling real estate broker, has just completed a large exchange of property known as Charles E. Kenney's handsome residence on George street, for Luther Boice's farm in New Brooklyn. Mr. Kenney expects to move from Dunellen on the farm by November 1.

—Constable VanHorne arrested another man whom he suspected was insane this morning. This time it was John Costello, the one-armed man who works for the Edison Electric Lighting Company. Dr. Carman visited him in the lock-up and found that there was nothing the matter with him.

—A Westinghouse wire crossed a North Plainfield electric light wire at the corner of Rockview and Mercer avenue and burned it in two at 4 this morning. The commercial lights in the borough went out in consequence. Chief Marshal Pangborn found an end of the wire sputtering in the street at 8 and drew it away from its dangerous connection.

—The first fair of John Hand Camp, No. 28, Sons of Veterans, will open next Monday evening in Manning's new store 321 West Front street. It is held for the purpose of securing money to purchase uniforms. There will be a number of attractions and those attending are assured of having a good time. There will be no games of chance and those who have heretofore had objections to them will not hesitate to go and have an enjoyable time.

Authorized News of the Red Men.

A regular meeting of Paugh-Caugh-Naugh-Sinque Tribe of Red Men was held last evening. Andrew Hess was raised to the rank of warrior. An appropriation was made for the use of the Entertainment Committee. Senior Sagamore E. H. Clevely resigned because of business engagements. Junior Sagamore Charles I. Young was raised to the vacant office. At the next meeting a junior will be elected. Harry C. Runyon was appointed a committee to furnish to the papers and request the publication of announcements concerning the tribe.

SALVATOR'S TIME BEATEN.

Wonderful Performance of Johnson on His Wheel.

Buffalo, Oct. 25.—John S. Johnson rode a mile in the unparalleled time of 1:35 2-5 almost fourteen seconds faster than any single rider has ever covered the distance in the world; six seconds faster than any tandem has ever negotiated the distance and one-tenth second faster than the world's record for running horses—1:35 1-2, made by Salvator on a straight track at Monmouth Park, N. J., Aug. 28, 1890. The discrepancy between the running horse record and the fastest bicycle record has been a bitter thought for the cycle racing men for several years and innumerable attempts have been made in both this country and in England to reach the figures set by the great Salvator, but hitherto, all efforts have been of no avail. Johnson rode the course in heavy black tights and two thick sweaters, which tended to impede the free play of his muscles. But even with these impediments Johnson never budged from his position at the rear of the quadruplet, and when he crossed the finish line, his front wheel was laped on the rear wheel of the big machine. As the record-breaker and the pace-making quartette crossed the tape, the features of the men were absolutely indistinguishable. All that could be heard and seen was a roar, a flash of variegated colors and a cloud of dust.

Electrical timing arrangements were provided and each quarter was checked at both start and finish so that there can be no doubt of the accuracy of the performance. Johnson made his appearence on the course at about 5 o'clock and rode half a mile back of the starting line. The quadruplet started from this point at a lively pace, Johnson hugging the rear wheel and riding as if he had plenty left for the finish. The five riders dashed over the tape with the report of a pistol, Johnson lapping on the quadruple. They were going at a terrific clip. The first quarter was covered in 21 2-5 seconds, crowding closely the best record for a thoroughbred horse for the same distance. This was on the down grade quarter. In the second quarter which was up-hill they went the distance in 25 2-5 seconds, making the half in 46 4-5 seconds, four-fifths of a second slower than the half-mile record held by the California filly, Geraldine. When they struck the level course Johnson urged the quad men to do their best and they made the third quarter in just 25 seconds. Callahan and Seavey, on the quad showed signs of distress at the unheard pace and were inclined to slow up a trifle but words of encouragement from Johnson caused them to rally and from the third quarter to the coveted goal, they went very fast, beating the time for the second and third quarters. The time for the three-quarters of a mile was 2 4-5 slower than the three-quarters made by Domino last fall.

The pace in the stretch was wonderfully fast and when the quadruplet men crossed the line Johnson was a short foot behind the rear wheel and riding as if he had been out for an exercise heat. The official time for the mile was 1:35 2-5. Several club riders made the time 1:35 flat. Johnson said after dismounting that he finished well within the limit of his powers and felt confident that he can do a mile in 1:30 and will make the effort over the same course this afternoon.

Argument on the McKane Case.

Albany, Oct. 25.—The arguments on John Y. McKane's case will be heard by the Court of appeals Oct. 29. McKane appeals from the judgment of the general term affirming his conviction and sentence for violation of the election laws and defiance of the mandate of the courts. Copies of the return and minutes of the case covering nearly 10,500 follos and embraced in three volumes have been received by the clerk of the court.

Moonshiners in Brooklyn.

New York, Oct. 25.—Deputy Internal Revenue Collector Lochren and Captain Dick raided an illicit still at Bush street and Hamilton avenue Brooklyn. The men who had been working there escaped. Thirty gallons of spirits, one copper worm, five gallons of mash, half a barrel of molasses, ten empty molasses tubs, ten empty barrels and one iron still, with a capacity of twenty gallons, were seized.

Monument to Ex-Gov. Curtin.

Bellefonte, Pa., Oct. 25.—A movement is being started here to erect a $25,000 monument to ex-Gov. Curtin. The tablet will be of the finest marble, and surmounted by a figure of the old war governor and will be placed in the public square of the town. The Pennsylvania reserve association, the loyal legion and various soldiers organizations throughout the state have already tendered financial assistance.

Treaty Between Russia and France.

Paris, Oct. 25.—La Veritt states positively that a secret agreement between France and Russia, said to have been signed prior to the fetes at Cronstadt which followed the visit to that port of Admiral Gervais and the French fleet gives details of the terms in accordance with which the nations are to act conjointly should certain contingencies arise.

Big Asbestos Plant Burned.

Cincinnati, Ohio, Oct. 25.—The big asbestos plant of the Philip Carney Manufacturing company on Gilbert avenue between Sixth and Eight streets has been completely destroyed by fire. The loss on building, stock and machinery will reach $50,000; the insurance about $35,000. Seventy-five employes will be thrown out of employment.

Three Malay Chiefs Surrender.

Madrid, Oct. 25.—A dispatch from the governor general of the Phillipine islands says 1,000 men of the force sent to subdue the Malays on the island of Mindanao, are building fortifications on the left bank of the river Agut. Three of the most powerful of the chiefs against whom the force was sent, have surrendered.

PAIN BANISHED SLEEP.

A RHEUMATIC TELLS A WONDERFUL STORY.

Less Than Half a Bottle of Munyon's New Remedy Restored Him to Health.

James Buckley, 215 Washington street, Newark, N. J., says: "I have been suffering from rheumatism for a number of years. The pains were exceedingly severe and I could not sleep nights. The remedies I obtained did me little or no good, nor did the doctors whom I consulted. This had gone on, each recurring attack being more painful and prolonged than the previous one. I could not get relief until I commenced taking Munyon's Rheumatism Cure. Less than one-half a bottle drove all the rheumatism out of my system and I am as well and strong as I ever was in my life. I consider the remedy a wonderful one and take pleasure in recommending it."

Munyon's Rheumatism Cure is guaranteed to cure rheumatism in any part of the body. Acute or muscular rheumatism cured in from one to five days. It never fails to cure sharp, shooting pains in the arms, legs, sides, back or breast, or soreness in any part of the body in from one to three hours. It is guaranteed to promptly cure lameness, stiff and swollen joints, stiff back and all pains in the hips and loins. Chronic rheumatism, sciatica, lumbago or pain in the back are speedily cured.

Munyon's Homoeopathic Home Remedy Co. of Philadelphia. put up specifics for nearly every disease, which are sold by all druggists, mostly for 25c. a bottle.

AT REST.

Mrs. Phebe D. Martin.

Funeral services were held over the remains of Mrs. Phebe D. Martin at her late residence, 104 West Second street, yesterday afternoon. Many friends of the family attended. The floral offerings were very beautiful.

Rev. C. E. Herring, pastor of the First Presbyterian Church, of which Mrs. Martin was a member, opened the service at 2:30 by reading appropriate passages from the Scriptures. After prayer he delivered a brief discourse, speaking words of tender sympathy to the bereaved ones.

The interment was made in the Presbyterian Cemetery in North Plainfield. The pall-bearers were Freeholder J. Frank Hubbard, ex-Freeholder A. Vanderbeek, E. R. Pope and Assessor Joseph A. Hubbard.

CHURCH CHIMES.

The election of officers in the German Reformed Church has been postponed until Wednesday evening, Nov. 14.

The Christian Endeavor society of the First Church of Christ will hold the October social at the home of the President, Mabel VanMiddlesworth, 108 Liberty street, near West Front street, this evening.

The new Seventh-Day Baptist Church is winning fame everywhere, and attracting all possible conventions. It has just been designated as the next meeting-place of the Union County Sunday-school Association.

John M. Whiton, secretary, M. M. Dunham, member State Executive Committee, and S. F. Kimball, township secretary, are the Plainfielders elected to office Tuesday night by the Union County Sunday-school Association.

The Elizabeth Herald, speaking of the address of Rev. Dr. A. H. Lewis before the Union County Sunday-school Association, on "The Relation between Bible Study and the Future of Protestantism", says it was "able and interesting, and held the close attention of the audience". The Journal describes it as "an eloquent and forceful presentation of the theme".

The Committee on Entertainment for the Baptist State Convention to be held next week in the First Baptist Church, met in that church last evening after the prayer-meeting and completed their arrangements. It is expected that there will be about 600 delegates present. All the meetings will be especially interesting, and some of the most able workers in the denomination will be present and tell of the various departments of church work. No one can afford to miss the sessions of of the convention, and all will be welcomed.

A KNIFE

in the hand of a Surgeon gives you a feeling of horror and dread. There is no longer necessity for its use in many diseases formerly regarded as incurable without cutting. The Triumph of Conservative Surgery is well illustrated by the fact that RUPTURE or Breach, is now radically cured without the knife and without pain. Clumsy, chafing trusses can be thrown away! They never cure but often induce inflammation, strangulation and death. TUMORS Ovarian, Fibroid (Uterine) and many others, are now removed without the perils of cutting operations. PILE TUMORS, however large, Fistula and other diseases of the lower bowel, are permanently cured without pain or resort to the knife. STONE in the Bladder, no matter how large, is crushed, pulverized, washed out and perfectly removed without cutting. STRICTURE of Urinary Passage is also removed without cutting in hundreds of cases. THE ARROW AND THE SONG.

(Longfellow in the Light of Realism.)

I shot an arrow into the air,
It fell to earth and I knew not where,
But it struck a big boy on the head
And he thumped me until I thought I was dead.

I breathed a song into the air;
It fell to earth and I knew not where,
But the cat-calls told it had fallen flat,
And my stage career flunked out on that,
And then I guessed where it was at.

Long, long afterward under an oak,
I sat and thus to myself I spoke:—
Experience is the best of schools
But those that go there are mostly fools.

ONE LESSON OF THE SEA FIGHT.

The Importance of Naval Dock Yards. Idea From Germany.

One valuable lesson which officials of the Navy Department think has been taught by the great naval engagement between the Japanese and Chinese fleet at the mouth of the Yalu River is the absolute necessity of maintaining the navy yards, repair shops, and storerooms in readiness for instant service. According to the cable reports, both of the fleets engaged at Yalu sustained great damage. True, the Chinese lost many vessels entirely, but they still had a formidable force afloat, while scarcely a vessel of the Japanese fleet escaped without serious damage, mainly from the murderous fire of the machine guns. At the conclusion of the fight each side withdrew to their nearest respective dock yards for repairs.

Upon the efficient equipment and management of these dockyards very much depends in just such a case as the present. Each fleet is well-nigh disabled for further operations. If the Chinese yards, which are notoriously ill-equipped and mismanaged, are unable to complete the repair of their fleet for six weeks, which is about the time allowed here by naval experts, while the Japanese put their vessels in shape for service in two weeks as they count on doing, they will be masters of the Yellow Sea, and can inflict enormous damage on China, landing troops from transports at the very door of Pekin, the Chinese capital, and ravaging the coast. All of which demonstrates the great value of a good dockyard system.—Washington Evening Star.

WOMAN'S AGE OF RULE.

A Young Lady of Observation Declares that Captivation Ends with Youth.

"Some women fatigue me greatly," said a young lady of observation to the reporter, crumpling up a paper in one hand and reaching for a cigarette with the other. "Now here's one of them has been writing a lot of would-be sentimental stuff to the Bizarre, saying that women have two stages of captivation; the first that of physical charm, and the second that of experience, and that the second state is better than the first. Is it? Well, all I have to say is that I'm not in the least anxious to run for that sort of consolation stakes yet awhile. Just write it down, if you please, that youth is the period of power. I don't mean bread-and-butter youth, but the youth of physical charm, just as the writer says, 'when the bloom is on the cheek and the sparkle in the eye, when the flesh is firm and full, the teeth brilliant, the hair shining, the step light, and the shape lithe'—the years from twenty to thirty-five."

Stealing The Devil's Tunes.

"Why should the devil have all the best tunes?" exclaimed the famous Rowland Hill. The Salvation Army believes that he should not; so they have stolen nearly all of his satanic majesty's most familiar melodies and set them to salvation words. For so doing they are time and again severely criticised. But why this criticism? Do the fault-finders forget that some of the standard—in fact, most sacred tunes of the church to-day are of peculiar origin? For example, Mr. Jerome Hopkins, the American composer, gives an instance which is not generally known, viz., that the famous and beautiful tune "Coronation," to which we sing, "All hail the power of Jesus' name," was an old English pot-house song, the words of which were:

Oh, come, my jolly, hearty boys,
And drink as drink you can;
'Tis on the floor we soon shall roll
With whiskey, every man.

CORBETT ON LONDON AND PARIS.

The Champion's Opinion of European Capitals and of Jackson.

Champion James Corbett, who returned not long ago from a trip abroad, gives his opinion of London and the British, Paris and the Parisians, to a World reporter in these free and easy paragraphs:

I liked London in a way, and in a way I didn't. They don't treat a man right there, that is, the upper classes. They put two prize-fighters in the ring like rats, and if they don't go at each other they shout and urge them on. The best thing in London was the music halls. They are great. But in most ways London is not in it with New York. I don't think much of the English girls. They can't talk to you like the American girls can. Give me the American girls every time.

There wasn't much in London that impressed me. I went to see the Westminster Abbey. But I left the sight-seeing to my wife. I don't think much of this thing of chasing around looking at things. I passed Edinburgh Castle every day for a week, but I didn't care to go in, and I didn't go in. The House of Commons is a big building, of course. But London is a slow town.

But Paris, that's the town. That's the "hottest" place I ever struck. Why, life is one long holiday. Nobody seems to be working. Nobody seems to do anything. They are just out enjoying themselves. And, say, the boulevards and the Bois and the Champs Elysee and the cafes with the pretty girls marching by! That's the city for me, next to New York, of course.

The French like the American people right straight through and I don't believe the English do like them. I got on with the French well, though I couldn't say a word of their talk or they of English. I went everywhere in Paris. I'll say that I didn't overlook anything, and that covers the case. I saw everything—well, I wont go into details, but there's nothing slow about Paris. And the women are pretty and well dressed. I was going to say they were the prettiest and the best dressed women in the world, but I don't think they quite come up to the best of our New York girls.

Turning from criticism to war Corbett said:

The thing that I have most in mind just now is the fight with Jackson. I am willing to fight him anywhere to a finish. I thought he would be in New York when I got here. I don't understand why he is not here. I will fight him anywhere on six months' notice. It seems to me that ought to suit him. I want him to meet me face to face and talk over the arrangements. And whatever I have got to say to Peter Jackson, I'll say to his face.

I am out of condition now and I would want six months to get perfect. After that I am willing to meet him. And if he means business he'll be here in New York or let me hear from him. I expect to stay in New York until Aug. 14. Then I open in Asbury Park to play there until Sept. 3. After that I will be in New York again, at the American theatre. I may go back to Europe again, but that is indefinite. What I want is to hear from Peter Jackson.

AUTUMNAL BRIDALS.

Brilliant Weddings of Plainfield People.

LOVELY BRIDES & THEIR HUSBANDS.

The Fair Authoress of "How to Marry a Husband" Puts Her Theory in Practice—Editor Morrison's Daughter Married Under a Floral Electric Bell — Chrysanthemums in Favor.

SERRELL-CHILTON.

Miss Maud James Chilton, only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Bruce E. Chilton, was married to Samuel William Serrell, the celebrated electrical expert of West Front street, Plainfield, last evening at 8, in St. Johns Protestant Episcopal Church, Summit avenue, Jersey City Heights. Rev. E. L. Stoddard, rector, officiated. Miss Alice Pinkham of New York was the maid of honor. The bridemaids were Miss Maude Williams and Miss Clara Wilkinson of Jersey City. The bridegroom's niece, Miss Minnie Serrell of Plainfield, was flower girl. David Lenox of Plainfield was best man, and the ushers were W. S. Parmelee of New York, W. H. Negus, E. T. McLaughlin, Arthur Serrell, Edgar I. Serrell, nephews of the bridegroom, and B. Mortimer Chilton, brother of the bride. The ceremony was followed by a large reception held at the home of the bride's parents, 61 Duncan avenue, Jersey City Heights.

MAUD JAMES CHILTON.

Immediately on her introduction in Plainfield society through the Serrells, Miss Chilton became a great favorite. The charms of her personality, and her ability to entertain, together with her graces of heart and mind, won and kept the friendship of all she met. Plainfield therefore rejoices in her wedding to a prominent and popular townsman.

From its issue of May 25, 1894, The Daily Press repeats that this truly charming bride is destined not only to ornament a Plainfield household and heighten the brilliancy of the social seasons but also to make a marked success in literature. She is an original and daring writer. She began her career in letters only a year ago last Summer, when a manuscript was sent to the editorial rooms of the American Press Association entitled "How to Manage a Husband". It was thought to be the work of someone of ample experience in that most difficult calling, and bore the signature of Maud J. Chilton. The surprise of the editor can therefore be imagined when he learned that the writer of the breezy essay was a young lady scarcely 20 years of age and well known in society. Since then she has struck nearly every note on the keyboard of literature, an important venture being her latest novel, "Society's Protegee". Miss Chilton's family is one of the oldest in America. She is a direct descendant of Edmund Fanning, lieutenant governor of Canada. Her great-great-grandfather was the first Presbyterian minister in the United States. Dr. Geo. Chilton, the celebrated chemist, who was a professor at Yale, was her great-grandfather. Her grandfather was one of the earliest dry goods merchants in New York, while her father, Bruce E. Chilton, is an ex-member of the New York Stock Exchange. Miss Chilton evidently does not get her literary tendency from her life abroad. Educated in Paris, she was brought up with the belief that society was her goal, but like the modern woman she longed for a wider sphere, and she is developing that sphere as she progresses.

The New York Recorder says that Miss Chilton was one of the prettiest brides of all the weddings of yesterday, and adds that she is one of the brightest members and shining literary lights of the Twelfth Night Club.

DILLENBECK-MORRISON.

The handsome and talented daughter of Mr. and Mrs. T. W. Morrison, Miss Eleanor Tennent Morrison, was married by Rev. Dr. Chas. R. Barnes, at the home of the bride's parents, 11 Mountain avenue, last evening, to Clark Dillenbeck, of the Philadelphia & Reading Railroad Co's civil engineering staff.

It was a gem of a wedding, lustrously set. Autumn's loveliest bloom gave it rich coloring. All eyes gleamed with delight at the radiance. The house was thronged with people, and lavishly adorned besides with branches whose leaves were rich with the frost-hand's colorings. Ferns and chrysanthemums were entwined about the stairway balustrade. A floral arch curved above the trysting-place in the parlor, and from its centre swung a bell of flowers, among whose leaves and petals shone the fairy firefly flame of tiny electric lamps, cunningly hidden by Electrician Joseph Sohl.

The guests alighted at the entrance to a canopied carpetway running from curb to house. The veranda was enclosed and electric lighted, and therein stood Editor Morrison and his wife, who graciously and warmly welcomed everyone. The house was animated with gayety and ablaze with illumination, and there was an atmosphere of hospitality and freedom that gave delightful sociability to all.

Superbly gowned in white brocaded satin potrain, veiled with point-lace, and carrying a bouquet of white chrysanthemums, the bride made a regal picture. The soft, sweet music of the wedding march from Lohengrin was played during the entrance of the bridal party and during the ceremony. The bride came into the parlor reposing her hand on the arm of her father. She was attended by her maid of honor, little Miss Rita Pond, daughter of Mrs. C. T. Pond. Henry D. Morrison, brother of the bride, was best man, and introduced the bride to new friends as they proceeded to the floral arch. Proudly the handsome groom placed the circlet of gold on the willing finger, and for an hour after being pronounced husband and wife Mr. and Mrs. Dillenbeck stood beneath the bell receiving the good wishes of the throng.

The ceremony was at 7:55, and two hours later the happy young people scampered before a deluge of rice to a coach whose roof was adorned with old shoes and from whose axle clanced a surreptitious dinner bell. They went by 10:10 express on a wedding journey which includes a visit to the family homestead of the groom's parents in the northern part of the State, to Niagara Falls, and to the groom's Alma Mater, Cornell University.

Besides the music of Andrew Carpenter and assistants, to which dancing was enjoyed, the guests were entertained by solos by Mrs. George W. Morrison, a bride who was warmly received and who by her talents and graces won permanent popularity.

An excellent collation was served in style by Caterer W. J. Stephenson, and as souvenirs the guests received boxes of wedding cake tied with satin ribbon. The bride received many elegant gifts.

Mt. Pleasant, a suburb of Pennsylvania's capital, is henceforth the home of Mrs. Clark Dillenbeck, nee Eleanor Tennent Morrison.

The guests:

From Plainfield and vicinity—Mayor Gilbert, Rev Dr and Mrs Charles R Barnes, Editor H K Carroll of the New York Independent, and wife, Mrs R F M Chase, J H. Audsley, the Misses Audsley, Mr and Mrs Colles T Pond and Miss Pond, Mr and Mrs Fred S Green and Miss Ethel Green, Mr. and Mrs A L Force, Miss Amy Green, Miss Louisa Green, Miss Mabel Potter, William Hubbard, Miss Jennie Jefferys, the Misses Barrett, Miss Mary E. From New Brunswick—Editor Hugh Boyd of the Home News, and wife, son and daughter; Miss Florence Morrison, and J Edgar Powelson.

From Newark—Mr and Mrs Richard A VanZant, Wm Dixon, Mr and Mrs J J Stahl, Ray Mitchell.

From Bellefonte, Pa. — Mr and Mrs Frank H Thomas.

From Asbury Park — Mrs Katherine Meeker, Miss Louise Baker.

From New York—Mr and Mrs Thomas Moore, the Misses Emma and Lillian Dixon, Assistant U. S. Marshal Kennedy and wife, George W. Morrison and wife, Henry D Morrison.

WOODRUFF-MILLS.

Trinity Reformed Church was the scene of a chrysanthemum wedding, unusually pretty, last evening. Miss Phoebe Etta Mills, a niece of Mrs. Anna M. Gillem of 113 Duer street, was married to Frank Edmund Woodruff of East Second street.

The decorations in the church were very effective. The flowers were furnished by William B. Woodruff of Westfield and arranged by several members of the Whatsoever Circle of King's Daughters, connected with the church, to which the bride belongs. In front of the pulpit was displayed a mass of white and yellow chrysanthemums in a setting of ferns and palms. A few sprays of pink and white cosmos were grouped in the centre.

The time set for the ceremony was 6:15. For half an hour before the arrival of the bridal party Howard Case, a talented pupil of Edmund A. Embury of Washington avenue, rendered excellent selections on the organ. In the meantime the friends and relatives assembled. The middle blocks of seats were well filled when the appointed hour came. None but invited guests was admitted and those only by card.

The entrance of the bridal party was announced by the opening strains of the the Bridal Chorus from Lohengrin. The bride proceeded slowly to the altar through the central aisle, leaning on the arm of the groom. She was greatly admired by all for her pretty appearance and her perfect self-possession. She was becomingly attired in a gown of heavy corded white silk with iridescent pearl trimmings and a veil of tulle. Her bouquet was composed of large white chrysanthemums.

There were two bridemaids, Miss Mabel A. Woodruff, a sister of the groom, and Miss Emma Gillem, a cousin of the bride. Their gowns were of white dotted swiss with yellow chiffon trimmings. Each carried bunches of yellow chrysanthemums. Joseph H. Gay of Newark, a cousin of the groom, William G. Gaston of Somerville, and Frank L. C. Martin and John McLaughlin of Plainfield, were the four ushers.

The officiating clergyman was the pastor of the church, Rev. Cornelius Schenck. He awaited the bridal party in front of the bank of decorations. The organist continued to play softly as the minister spoke the opening sentences of the Reformed Church service. The responses of both the bride and the groom were heard as distinctly as the words of the pastor.

After the happy couple had been solemnly pronounced husband and wife they retraced their steps as Mendelssohn's Wedding March was being rendered, the bride bowing in smiling recognition of the greetings of her friends. The bride and groom passed down the aisle and out beneath the long canopy to the waiting carriage. They were driven to the home of the bride's aunt, where Laggren of Elizabeth had erected another canopy.

The house was filled with fragrant flowers. A large number of handsome gifts was displayed. A wedding supper was served and an informal reception given to a few relatives and intimate friends. At 8 the couple left to take the train. The four ushers, determined to have a parting demonstration on the cars, drove to the Netherwood station. Not finding them there they hurried to the Grant Avenue station, arriving just in time to board the train on which the bride and groom departed. They entered the car, showered the couple with rice and left the train at Evons.

Mr. and Mrs. Woodruff will spend a short time in traveling before returning to Plainfield. Early in the Winter they will begin keeping house in their residence, 109 Duer street, next door to Mrs. Gillem's home, which the groom has just purchased.

The out-of-town guests and a few Plainfield relatives passed the remainder of the evening very enjoyably at the home of Mr. and Mrs. William A. Woodruff. George Rogers furnished excellent music and the affair ended with a dance. The visitors included: Miss Chamberlain, the Misses Theresa and Laura Bickard, Clifton McNulty and Mrs. M. S. Westervelt of New York; Mr and Mrs. M. T. Gay, Herbert Gay and Miss Rachel Burnett of Newark; Mr. and Mrs. H. T. Crawford and Baby Elsie (her first appearance in society) of Williamsport, Pa.; Miss Timms of Orange; Mr. and Mrs. Walter B. Timms of Elizabeth; Miss Evelyn Taylor of Philadelphia; Miss Mills of Elizabeth; and E. A. Ross of Bound Brook.

BOVEY-HORSTMANN.

At a pink chrysanthemum wedding in Brooklyn yesterday afternoon the groom was a resident of North Plainfield, Jules C. Bovey of Somerset street. The bride was Miss Anna Horstmann, and the ceremony was performed at her home, 345 Atlantic avenue.

The marriage took place at 4:30. The parlors had been beautified by decorations of pink chrysanthemums and American, Swiss, German and French flags. The minister was Rev. Mr. Loch of Brooklyn.

The bride was attired in a handsome pearl gray satin gown with skirt en traine. The bridemaid was Miss Etta Horstmann, and the maid of honor Miss Alice Demarest of Plainfield. Louis Mouquin was the best man and George Quedens and C. Williamey acted as ushers.

At the reception which followed the wedding excellent music was rendered by Stein's full orchestra from New York. The supper was served by the celebrated caterer, Mouquin of New York. The array of presents with which the guests showed their appreciation was composed of costly and beautiful articles. They included solid silverware, lamps, a 183-piece dinner set, pictures, and glassware. The groom's gift to the bride was a large diamond brooch.

Mr. and Mrs. Bovey left at midnight for Washington by the Royal Blue line. On returning they will live at the home of the groom, 237 Somerset street.

The guests at the wedding were:

George Juedens, C Williamey, Miss F Rood, and L Myquin of New York city; Mr and Mrs H Kuhn, Mrs H Mouquin, Jr, and A Volz of Jersey City Heights; Mr and Mrs J B Bovey, Mr and Mrs William Demarest, Miss Alice Demarest, and Mrs T H May of Plainfield; Mr and Mrs Theesen, Miss Fannie Theesen, and H Theesen of Greenville, N J; J Horstman, Miss M Horstman, Miss H Horstman, J Niedermeyer, the Misses Niedermeyer, Mr Skardon, Mr and Mrs Fieldhusen, W Feldhusen, Miss H Feldhusen, Mr Dorgelok, Miss Nelder, Miss Obitz, Fred Obitz, Miss Josie Allisson, Mrs S Chambettez, Miss E La France, Mrs Bnrangee, Mr and Mrs Loch, Mr. and Mrs Sturken of Brooklyn.

SMITH-MOORE.

Charles Smith of Westfield and Miss Jennie Moore of Plainfield were married last evening at the residence of the bride's aunt, Mrs. James C. Lyons, Scotch Plains. Rev. Cornelius Schenck of Plainfield officiated. The house was tastefully decorated with Autumn leaves. The bride was very pretty, and the gallant groom was warmly congratulated and welcomed into the family. The wedding was private, only relatives being present. Noticeable among the many handsome gifts was a beautiful mantel clock, from the groom's employes. After a short wedding trip Mr. and Mrs. Smith will be at home in the new residence just completed by the groom in Westfield, where he is successfully engaged with his father in the coal and lumber business.

BARRY-LINES.

A quiet wedding was celebrated in St. Mary's Church yesterday afternoon at 4:30, when Miss Mary Lines of Park avenue was married to David Barry of West Fourth street. Rev. Father Smythe officiated. John Powers of Reynolds's Pharmacy was the best man.

A wedding supper and reception at their new home on Plainfield avenue was given in the evening by Mr. and Mrs. Barry. Music was furnished by Mr. MacDonald and dancing was enjoyed until 3:30 this morning

Among the guests were:

Mr and Mrs Frank Burke, the Misses Burke, P Casey, Miss Casey, James Conneely, Thomas Conneely, Jules Boutet, Mr and Mrs Hugh MacDonald, Garrett Kiely, Mr and Mrs Patrick Kiely, Miss Kiely, William Kiely, John Kelly, Miss Kelley, Mr and Mrs Keating, John Powers, and Garrett Powers of Plainfield; and Miss Lizzie Barry of New York.

Mr. and Mrs. Barry will leave tomorrow on a wedding tour and will afterwards take up their residence on Plainfield avenue.

POTTER-BOICE.

Miss Caroline Coriell Boice was married last evening to John Alfred Potter, editor of the Cranford Chronicle, at the home of the bride's mother, Jackson avenue. It was a quiet home wedding. Rev. C. E. Herring officiated. The wedding march was played by Miss Mabel V. Potter, sister of the groom. A wedding supper was served by Caterer Stephenson. The happy couple left by the 10:17 train for a trip to Niagara Falls.

HIGH SCHOOL NOTEBOOK.

The girls have had their turn at speaking in Assembly Hall. Tuesday morning Miss Franc Bailey and Miss Clara Force, both of the Senior class, gave recitations. The newspaper report of the Senior class was made Monday morning. Political news, information about the war in Cores and the latest reports of the Czar's health formed the most important topics discussed. The principals in the pronouncing match are hard at work collecting all the unpronouncable words in the English language; technical terms are not allowed so the numberless list of medical and scientific expressions cannot be used but there are enough without them.

The regular drill of the cadet corps was held Tuesday morning directly after morning exercises instead of after recess, as the Grammar school now have their singing lesson on Tuesday morning. The whole boys company was drilled together; the facings and the movements by fours were the principal maneuvery.

The Wednesday morning singing lesson under Principal Travell, has been lengthened this year from 9 until 10 instead of from 9 to 9:30 as it was last year, while the usual Thursday's lesson under Mr. Hazell of last year has been dropped, the Grammar school now having the entire period. That song, old but always a favorite with us, "The Heavens are Telling" has again been taken up and the High and Grammar schools will practice it to sing together. With a little more training it will be well worth hearing. A number of new leaflets have been ordered and will soon be tried.

The beginners Latin class have at length received their new books, and the boys of the Senior class have been amusing themselves for the last days covering them.

The members of the Kappa Delta Phi met Tuesday afternoon as a committee of the whole to discuss the question whether the Kappa Delta Phi shall be changed into a secret society or not. C. C. Gallup '96 acted as chairman and A. B. Crane '97 as secretary. The opinion of the greater part of the members was that the change should be made. Various plans were brought up discussed and committees appointed to revise the constitution, secure a design for pin, choose signals and a grip and make other arrangements necessary for a secret society. The committee of the whole will report at the next meeting when the matter will be brought before the whole society.

The programme for the next meeting will be the reading of the Kappa Delta Phi newspaper, the High School Record. Among the good things in store for it are a number of original witticisms by the High school boys, several interesting articles and a breezy letter from the enterprising reporter of the Junior class, besides notes from all the other classes.

The rain of Wednesday morning found a number of the boys with their wheels in school. Some rode home through the mud and rain while a number of both boys and girls remained in school, procured some lunch and enjoyed themselves despite the rain outside. NINETY FIVE.

JERSEY'S TEMPERANCE WOMEN.

If They Resolve Not to Patronize Stores Where Liquor is Sold, Some Plainfield Grocery Stores Will Suffer.

The Convention of the Women's Christian Temperance Union of New Jersey held its first business session yesterday in the Bergen Avenue Reformed Church, Jersey City, with about 350 delegates in attendance. Mrs. Emma Bourne of Newark is the President. The most gratifying victory of the year, it was considered, was the passage of the law introducing into the public-schools text books treating of the evil effects of alcohol and narcotics from a scientific point of view. The Secretary's report showed a total membership in the State of 6,169, and an increase of eight in the number of unions. Mrs. Vanderhoof of Brooklyn, the President of the Kings County Union, spoke of the rescue work of girls in Brooklyn, of the work in the lodging houses, and especially of the resolution passed by her union not to purchase articles at any store where liquor is on sale. There is a strong probability that a similar resolution will be passed by the New Jersey State Convention.

Today is taken up with the election of officers, the election of delegates to the National Convention in Cleveland, and additional reports of superintendents of departments.

Sons of America.

The Patriotic Order Sons of America which was organized last week in G. A. R. Hall met last evening, and their officers were installed by State Organizer Davis of Trenton. The new lodge starts off with a membership of 17.

The officers installed were: President Charles F. Stephens; Vice-President—J. Apgar; Treasurer—N. H. Saxton; Secretary—Walter Vail; Financial-secretary—Charles Burhans; Conductor—Robert Perrine; Outside-guard—Gillard Apgar; Inside-guard—J. Staats; Master of Ceremonies—W. S. Stratton; Past-president—H. S. Thatcher.

After the installation, refreshments were served to all.

Every One of Them Worth Your Vote.

Frederick Clauss of Elizabeth, John B. Green of Westfield, and A. B. Cook of Rahway, were unanimously nominated for members of the Assembly at the convention held in Elizabeth yesterday, by the Democrats of Union County. The county ticket was completed by the nomination of William M. Oliver for County Clerk and Dr. Thomas Dolan for Coroner. Both of the latter nominees are from Elizabeth Preparations have been made by Franklin Council, No. 41, J. O. U. A. M., to entertain their friends this evening in an elaborate manner. It is the seventh anniversary of the Council.

THE FLOCK TOO WORLDLY

REV. CRANE'S REVIVAL ROUSES TROUBLE.

The Plainfield Evangelist Stirs a Long Island Pastor Into Shaming His Congregation.

(From The New York Herald.)

The congregation of the East Avenue Baptist Church, Long Island City, has not been taking as much interest in the revival in progress there as Pastor Levi P. Griffin and Evangelist Arthur Crane of Plainfield thought it should, and this led to remarks by the pastor Tuesday evening which, it is said, may lead to a strife between the Baptists and Episcopalians in that city.

Revival services have been in progress for a week in the church, which is in the Hunter's Point section of Long Island City. The meetings have been in charge of Rev. Arthur Crane, assisted by the pastor and other Baptist ministers. The one thing that troubled the ministers was the coldness and indifference of the Baptists. A peculiar feature of the church is that it has quite a cosmopolitan congregation, many members of other faiths being constant attendants.

The evangelist and the pastor have made mild remonstrances, but with no result. Tuesday evening there was a small attendance, and the Rev. Mr. Crane said that unless the meetings were better attended he would give up. He asked all who were in favor of continuing the revivals to stand up. Only three of the congregation arose.

After a silence the pastor addressed the congregation. He said it was shameful that so much lethargy was shown by his people, and he regretted that they had not a better spirit of Christianity—that they did not show any interest in church affairs and were becoming worldly. In fact, he said, the statement that his people were becoming like Episcopalians was nearly true, in that the members were flying off to something worldly instead of their Christian duty. His arraignment was severe, and at its conclusion those present looked surprised. Episcopalians who were there looked decidedly uncomfortable at the insinuations against their faith.

Alfred L. New then replied to the pastor's remarks. He is a coal dealer in Long Island City, and is one of the church officers and superintendent of the Sunday-school.

He said he thought the pastor was mistaken in thinking that the members of the church were losing their spiritual standing or that they were becoming different and cold. He also said that the remarks of the pastor regarding the other faiths, representatives of whose denominations were present, were unjust to a certain extent, and ought to be retracted.

Mr. New yesterday would only say that the issue was one that belonged to the church, and not to the public. "It is a private matter", he said, "and cannot be helped by notoriety. All I said was for the church. Go and see the pastor."

When I saw the pastor, he said: "We are holding revival services in our church and on Tuesday evening the evangelist, Mr. Crane, talked on 'Nominal Christianity', and the needs of the church for a spiritual revival. In this connection, he said he thought the people did not desire this because they did not show any disposition to respond to such a call.

"In my remarks I did say that I had heard it said that my people were grieving away the Holy Spirit, and it was to test this that a rising vote was asked for. I also spoke against popular amusements, and said that those who loved them ought not to profess to be Christians. I then made some remarks on nominal Christians, with the design of waking my people up."

Regarding the statement about the Episcopalians, the pastor would neither deny nor affirm it, saying that if it had been understood in that way, the people had confused the Episcopalians with nominal Christians.

"During these services"—he said—"there have been frequent allusions to the different faiths by myself and Mr. Crane, and we are fully prepared to stand by our statements. If these remarks have created any talk outside of the church or in it I am very glad. The trouble is that conscience is troubling the members."

A YOUNG GIRL'S LIFE.

SOME INTERESTING FACTS.

The Story is the Same, No Matter What Her Station In Life May Be.

[SPECIAL TO OUR LADY READERS.]

No matter whether she walks to her daily toil or rides in her carriage in the park. No matter whether she is one of the millions or one of the few thousands.

Whatever her station in life may be, she is subject to the same physical laws, and suffers in proportion to their violation.

Girls' over sensitiveness and modesty often puzzle their mothers and baffle the physician. They withhold what ought to be told.

Thousands have found health and comfort through the counsel of Mrs. Pinkham. If you are sick, write her at Lynn, Mass.

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound saves the young girl from the danger resulting from organic disturbance, such as suppression or retention of menses or irregularity. COLD IN HEAD —Twenty-five New Brunswick Company 2 firemen were entertained by N. H. Guttman's band last evening. At the Crescent Hotel the visitors presented them with a crayon drawing of the house decorations displayed the day of the firemen's parade. Then the musicians took their guests to the different fire department houses and ended the evening at Iona's fair.

"There is Danger in Delay."

Since 1881 I have been a great sufferer from catarrh. I tried Ely's Cream Balm and to all appearances am cured. Terrible headaches from which I had long suffered are gone.—W. J. Hitchcock, late Major U. S. Vol. and A. A. Gen., Buffalo, N. Y.

Ely's Cream Balm has completely cured me of catarrh when everything else failed. Many acquaintances have used it with excellent results.—Alfred W. Stevens, Caldwell, Ohio.

RITCHIES MUST SETTLE

Decision in the Famous Copper Company Suit.

Judgments for $750,000 Entered Against Them and Eleven Days Given in Which They Must Liquidate—Ritchies' Manner of Business Questioned by the Court.

Cleveland, Ohio, Oct. 25.—Judge Augustus J. Ricks, sitting in the United States Circuit court, Northern Ohio district, has decided the famous suit involving the onership of millions of stock of the Canadian Copper company, Anglo-American Iron company, and Central Ontario Railway company. The suit has been pending in the courts for several years and grew out of the manipulations of the stocks of the three companies by James B. and Samuel R. Ritchie. Those interested in the deals with the Ritchies were ex-Senator H. B. Payne, Judge Stephen Burke, of Hocking Valley fame, the estate of H. B. Cornell and J. B. and George McMullen. The Ritchies sunk fortunes in the enterprises and something like a million and a half dollars were borrowed from the other stockholders named, the Ritchies giving large blocks of stock as collateral securities. When the failure of the enterprises became apparent to even the most sanguine of the stockholders, the Ritchies were sued for the amount borrowed. The counter claim of nearly a million and a half was set up for personal services of the Ritchies in manipulation of the stocks. The best legal talent in the state were engaged in the trial of the case and the fight was a bitter one. In deciding it Judge Ricks disallowed all of the claims of the Ritchies and entered judgments against them as follows: H. B. Payne, $500,000; McMullens, $270,000.

The Ritchies were given eleven days in which to liquidate the judgments. In event of their failure to do so the collateral securities were ordered sold. The sale will be advertised in all the financial centers of the world. If the amount realized from the sale of the stocks exceeds the amount of the judgments, the balance will be paid to the Ritchies. If their is a deficite securities held by the wife of S. R. Ritchie will be ordered sold by the court. In passing on the case Judge Ricks referred to S. R. Ritchie as a man who was bound up in the effort to make millions and in whose scruples he had very little faith.

New York Paper Mulcted.

New York, Oct. 25.—A jury in Judge Shipman's United States circuit court has awarded $7,000 damages to Albert E. Voight, an insurance agent of East Orange, N. J., in a libel suit against the Evening Post of this city. Voight was employed in 1893 by the American Casualty and Insurance company of Baltimore, and on his becoming employed by the Guaranty and Accident Lloyds company he was arrested for libel in writing to John E. Searles, a stockholder in the former company, a letter reflecting on the financial condition of the company. Voight's defense on the witness stand brought about the collapse of the Casualty company in 1893. The Evening Post printed an article on the trial containing an alleged statement by President Wm. E. Midgley attacking Voight's character. Voight sued Midgley for libel, but the suit was discontinued, Midgley declaring that he had not made the statement printed in The Evening Post. Voight, in his suit to recover $25,000 from the Post, testified that a retraction in the newspaper had been refused after one had been promised.

Reunion of "Little Mac's Followers.

Philadelphia, Oct. 25.—A score or more of generals and other officers who either served on the staff of General McClellan during the Civil War, or comanded divisions of the army of the Potomac, or held other prominent positions, met for the first time since the war yesterday when they were entertained at luncheon at the hotel Stratford by the McClellan Monumental association, prior to the unveiling of the statue of "Little Mac." The reunion was altogather informal but the greetings between the man who had served their country under McClellan and who came to Philadelphia to do honor to his memory, was in many instances effected

Must Marry a Gould or Vanderbilt.

New York, Oct. 25.—Henry D. Riley, the crank who was arrested in Newark a few days ago with a revolver in his pocket with which to kill a member of the Vanderbilt family, was arraigned in the Tombs court yesterday. Justice Ryan committed him for examination as to his sanity. Riley said that his father was confined in an insane asylum in Pennsylvania and had complete control of his mind. In this condition his father insisted that he marry either Gould's daughter or a Vanderbilt must be his wife. He could not get away from that impression, he said, as long as his father lived.

Bright Outlook at Guilford, Conn.

New Haven, Oct. 25.—Negotiations are almost concluded by Hughes Brothers and Bangs, of Syracuse, N. Y., to secure controle of the famous Sachams Head quarries in Guilford. It is belived that the quarries will soon start up with big contracts. The revival of the quarries means much work for the town, since several hundred men will be employed.

Increase in Treasury Gold.

Washington, Oct 25.—There is a gratifying increase in treasury gold. The net gold now amounts to $60,022,-123 nearly a gain of $1,500,000 in one day. The New York sub-treasury received about $200,000 in gold for retiring circulation, while Philadelphia received about $100,00 in exchange for notes. The treasury balance is $111,407,351.

REMARKABLE CURES

Of Recent Date.

A Statement from Ex-Mayor John Corson, Esq., of Clinton, N. J.

TO THE PUBLIC:

I acknowledge with the utmost pleasure the wonderful cure which Dr. Lighthill effected in my case.

I had been a sufferer from piles, which gave me constant pain and distress, during twenty long years, attended with frequent loss of blood and with great and painful protrusion of the pile tumors and rectum whenever my bowels moved.

I tried constantly to get relief from my sufferings, but to no purpose until Mr. Bryan, a friend of mine, who had been cured by Dr. Lighthill of the same trouble, recommended him to me, and he effected a complete and radical cure in my case also, and earned my lifelong gratitude.

JOHN CORSON.

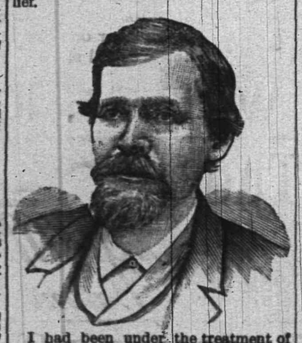
THE CASE OF MR. PETER G EYCK, OF BISSELL, HUNTERDON CO., N. J.

Dr. Lighthill Effects a Complete Cure Where Ten Physicians Had Failed.

TO THE SICK, SUFFERING AND AFFLICTED:

For many years past I have been afflicted with bleeding piles. Every movement of the bowels was attended with loss of blood and with intense pain which lasted for hours and sometimes all day. My condition was aggravated by a prolapse of the rectum, which greatly increased my suffering and sometimes gave me most agonizing pains.

So great was my distress and so bad my condition that I sold my farm, not being able to work it any longer. At one time the protruding pile tumors became so highly inflamed and swollen that they could not be replaced, and I had to go to bed, applying hot poultices for three months before I could get relief.



I had been under the treatment of ten different physicians, some of New York City, Easton, Washington and elsewhere, without any benefit whatever, and had given up my case as hopeless when, luckily for me, I heard of Dr. Lighthill's skill and success in such cases, and went to him for treatment, with the happy result that he effected a radical and permanent cure in less than four weeks's time; and I am glad to say that the entire treatment gave me neither pain nor distress.

I consider my cure perfectly wonderful, and so do all my friends and neighbors. I am confident that there is no case of piles which Dr. Lighthill cannot cure.

HE DID NOT REGISTER

Cleveland Will Not Vote This Year.

Neither Did He Send a Letter to Cooper Union Last Night Endorsing the Candidacy of Senator Hill. The Latter's Friends Somewhat Disappointed.

New York, Oct. 26.—That President Cleveland does not intend to vote in this city the coming election is now known to be a fact. The president left for Washington last evening without registering. The report that he had written a letter, endorsing Senator Hill, to be read at Cooper union last night, proved also to be unfounded. No letter from the chief executive was forthcoming. While in this city Mr. Cleveland gave no sign that the has indorsed the candidacy of Senator Hill.

The president's actions is a source of regret to the friends of Mr. Hill, who had expected that he would lend his pen if not his voice to aid the gubernatorial candidate in his canvass. For over a week Chairman John Boyd Thacher has almost daily told the political reporters that he had every reason to believe that the president would take the opportunity while on his way from Gray Gables to Washington to endorse Senator Hill's candidacy in some substantial manner. It was even rumored that Mr. Cleveland might make a platform speech, in which he would show his entire confidence in Mr. Hill as a candidate for governor of New York state. To-day Mr. Thacher said: "I have no reason to expect a line or a word of any kind from President Cleveland. I know that he was in town only through the authority of the press."

An hour or two before leaving for his train the president, accompanied by Dr. Bryant, got into a carriage and drove through Central park. The carriage went out through the Seventy-second street entrance to Riverside drive, thence to the hotel Claremont, at One Hundredth and Twenty-fifth street. The carriage stopped at the hotel entrance for a minute, and it seemed as though the president was about to get out when he changed his mind, spoke to the driver and the trip was continued. After a drive across Washington bridge, the carriage returned to Dr. Bryant's house. The president got out, seemingly cramped from his long ride, and entered the house. He was met at the door by one of the secret service men, who have accompanied him in his travels. Mr. Cleveland again refused to be interviewed except to say, "My visit is almost at an end."

The private car of President Roberts of the Pennsylvania road was placed at Mr. Cleveland's disposal, and he reached Jersey City a few minutes before 4 o'clock. In the carriage with him were Dr. and Miss Bryant. The party kept in the carriage and awaited the arrival of Mrs. Cleveland and the children, who left Greenwich, Conn., earlier in the afternoon. Mrs. Cleveland and the children were conveyed to Jersey City by the way of the boat, which connects with the train at Mott Haven. When they arrived, President Roberts' private car, containing the presidential party, was attached to the Washington special, which left at 4:30 o'clock.

McKinley's Work in New York State.

Buffalo, Oct. 26.—Governor McKinley made his initial speech for Morton, Saxton, and the entire republican ticket of the empire state at Dunkirk last evening and the event was signalized by the largest assemblage that Chautauqua county has witnessed since that memorable fifteenth day of May of 1852, when Daniel Webster, upon the occasion of the opening of the Erie railroad delivered an oration that is still preserved among the classics of eloquent speech. The republicans of Dunkirk turned out en masse to do honor to the visitor from Ohio, and they were reinforced by at least ten thousand men and woman of the same political faith from towns, hamlets and villages within a radius of forty miles. The Governor slept last night on a special car provided by the state committee, in order to be prepared for an early departure this morning. He is booked to speak at Batavia, Rochester, Canandaguia, Pittsford, Geneva, Seneca Falls, Auburn, Utica, and Syracuse.

Harrison To Speak Next Wednesday.

New York, Oct. 26.—Ex-President Harrison spent a very quiet day yesterday. He arose early in the morning as is his usual way and spent an hour or more writing. A large number of persons were on hand at the Fifth avenue hotel hoping to catch a glimpse of the ex-chief executive. Hardly had he left the room when ex-Vice-President Morton entered and the guests had an oppurtunity to see his former associate and gubernatorial candidate. Having finished his breakfast Mr. Morton went to Gen. Harrison's room where, together with Mr Platt, the two had a conference lasting half an hour. This concluded the general called a cab and was driven to the residence of his son-in-law, Robert J. McKee, where he spent the greater part of the day. Arrangements have been made for the general to speak at Carnegie hall on Wednesday evening. This will be his only speech in this state.

Stevenson in Brooklyn.

Brooklyn, N. Y., Oct. 26.—Vice-President Adlai E. Stevenson made his first appearance in the New York state campaign this year before a small audience at Tivoli hall in the southern part of Brooklyn last evening. The 22d ward campaign committee had charge of the arrangements and neglected to advertise and properly announce the coming of Mr. Stevenson. The reception which Mr. Stevenson received was in marked contrast to that given him when he spoke at the Academy of Music in the campaign of 1892, before a crowd second only to that which greeted Senator Hill last Tuesday night. Barely 500 people were present in the hall when the vice-president arrived at ten minutes before 9 o'clock. There were empty chairs on the stage and at the back of the hall.

CZAR AND CZARINA DYING.

Funeral and Wedding Coaches Arrive Together at Livadia.

Berlin, Oct. 26.—A dispatch from St. Petersburg to the Cologne Gazette says the czar heard the intimation of his physicians that his case was hopeless with great bravery. Upon hearing that it would be impossible to save his life, his majesty at once ordered the settlement of the matter of succession to the imperial throne and expressed a wish to bestow his blessing upon the czarewitch and Princess Alix.

It is the general belief in St. Petersburg that the marriage of the czarewitch has been postponed only for a brief period, but that the formal ceremonies of betrothal will take place almost immediately.

It is reported that when the czar was given to understand that his case was hopeless he remarked: "I is sad that a man of my years should have to die, though personally I do not cling overmuch to life. If God still deems my life of use to my dear country He will make me well."

The Lokal Anzeiger prints a dispatch from Livadia, confirming the reports that Princess Alix steadfastly refuses to anathematize her former faith in obedience to the rites of the orthodox Greek church, which requires such renunciation as a prerequisite to baptism. Even the efforts of the czar have not been successful in shaking her determination.

The swelling of the czar's feet increases, but by drawing off the water from them his body is much relieved.

A dispatch from Livadia, received here this morning, says the czarina is worse and a catastrophe is greatly feared.

London, Oct. 26.—A dispatch to the Pall Mall Gazette from Yalta says that the state carriages, trappings, etc., to be used on the occasion of the marriage of the czarewitch and Princess Alix, together with the regiments necessary to an adequate military display, have arrived at Livadia. It is also stated that the mourning coaches, garments of woe, etc., to be used in the event of the czar's death arrived at the same time.

The St. Petersburg correspondent of the Central News says: "Several persons have been arrested here for discussing in public places the theory that the czar's malady is due to poison. A private meeting of students was surprised by the police while discussing the situation, and all present were arrested. An immense quantity of mourning draperies has been taken to the Cathedral and stored in the ante-chamber. Similar preparations are being made in all the churches in the capitol.

WANT TO PLAY FOOTBALL.

Military and Naval Cadets Will Try To Have a Former Order Changed.

Washington, Oct. 26.—Government officials and influential citizens are making a determined effort to have Secretaries Lamont and Herbert rescind last year's orders and consent to further meetings of the army and navy on the gridiron. Just after the game at Annapolis last year the heads of the war and navy departments issued orders forbidding either the West Point or Annapolis team from leaving their grounds for football contests. The reason assigned was that the games take too deep hold on the minds of the cadets and middies, and that their studies are interfered with. Now that the football season is in full blast the middies and their admiring officers and friends are making strenuous efforts to have the contest established as an annual event. The rivalry between the two branches of Uncle Sam's warriors has always been very keen and the enthusiastic support heretofore given the contests is urged as a reason for their continuation. The game arouses general public interest in army and navy affairs and, the middies claim, does not interfere with their studies. They point to the fact that the football men in former years have stood well in their studies, the exceptions being no more numerous than would be found in the same number of students who do not indulge in athletic sports. The naval academy team is in excellent condition. Officers of the service subscribed a fund to pay a coach from Yale who has done effective work.

Sad Case at Ledyard, N. Y.

Auburn, N. Y., Oct. 26.—A harrowing scene occurred at an accouchement in the town of Ledyard, near Aurorie, this week, the details of which have just transpired. A mid-wife was called to attend Mrs. Ezra Williams and while engaged with her patient she placed her case of medicine within the reach of a two year old child. The latter managed to open the case and take enough morphine to produce death despite the efforts of the village doctor who was hastily summonded. Meantime the mother had given birth to a child and was doing well until she was thoughtlessly told of the poisoning of her first born. The shock killed her. The mother and child were buried in one grave yesterday.

Life Convict Pardoned.

Boston, Oct. 26.—Henry J. Gunn, sentenced to state prison in 1890 for life, for killing his father at Bridgewater, has been pardoned by Governor Greenhalge. At the time of his conviction and ever since there was a strong feeling that the verdict should have been for manslaughter and not for murder.

Recreant Husband Run Down at Last

New York, Oct. 26.—Joseph Fex shoemaker of Wyths avenue, Brooklyn, was paroled by Justice Walsh pending examination on a charge of abandoning his wife. Fex was arrested after eluding his wife for nearly four years, during which, she says, she has pursued him to various places in Canada and finally to Brooklyn.

REFUSE TO CONFER.

Manufacturers Send a Pointed and Positive Letter to the Weavers.

Fall River, Mass., Oct. 26.—The manufacturers have united in making their firm stand against the demands of the weavers for any form of compromise. In reply to the letter of Secretary Whitehead, of the Weavers union, asking for a conference, with a view to the settlement of the present differences the following has been sent by the manufacturers;

Mr. Whitehead, Secretary.

Dear Sir:—In reply to your communication of the 23d inst., I am instructed by the Cotton Manufacturers association to decline the conference you propose for the following reasons: For almost a year we have endeavored to operate our mills without reducing wages. Finding it impossible on account of the business depression, on August 6, notice of a reduction was posted, August 20, notwithstanding the fact that all other departments recognized the justice of our policy, the weavers, thought they knew better than the manufacturers what would be for the best interests of all, particularly took the management of the mills into their own hands and have dictated the policy for the past ten weeks. We claim that there is nothing in the present condition of the market conditions calling for higher wages than those named in the schedule. * * * In order that 25,000 operatives should have an opportunity of earning a living, we made a small pecuniary concession to the mule spinners, the same amounting to $350 upon a total pay roll of $150,000 per week, less than one-quarter of one per cent. At the same time we offered to restore the wages of all our employes on the expiration of sixty days if the market conditions remained as favorable as they were at the time the concession was made to the mule spinners. The mills were opened October 15, with every department full excepting the weaving, and more than 50 per cent. of the looms were in operation. This would seem to demonstrate the fact that a large majority of our operatives have been truthfully reported as desiring to go to work. Finding such to be the case, a minority of the weavers commenced a series of demonstrations which resulted in the intimidation of the working weavers, driving many of them from their employment. With these facts in view, any concession is out of the question. Believing that we have made the weavers a fair proposition and that with the schedule of wages offered they are given an opportunity to earn as good wages as are paid in any other large manufacturing centre in New England, we decline, as before stated, to grant your request for a conference.

Yours respectfully,
C. C. RUNSVILLE,
Secretary Cotton M'f'urers Associat'n.

Secretary Whitehead had nothing to say except that it appeared to him to be the employers determination to starve the weavers into submission.

YOUNG GORSUCH REVENGEFUL.

Determined To Fight Lawer Hubbard to the End.

Chicago, Oct. 26.—D. P. Hubbard, the Worcester, Mass., lawyer, was held in the criminal court by Justice Mahoney for shooting his young wife and Frank Gorsuch, her escort, while they were promenading on Evanstown avenue, on the night of September 27 last. Mrs. Hubbard declined to appear in court, notwithstanding the importunities of the youthful Mr. Gorsuch, who declined to drop the prosecution, and declare his intention of fighting the matter to the end. Fear of notoriety and not sympathy for Mr. Hubbard is said to be the cause of Mrs. Hubbard's non-appearance. When the case was called Mrs. Hubbard's attorney informed the court that Mrs. Hubbard, who was one of the prosecuting witnesses, was not in court, and that he desired a nolle prosequi entered, as far as she was concerned. Gorsuch's attorney objected to this, stating that his client was there to prosecute and that Mrs. Hubbard was the chief witness as well as one of the principals. But notwithstanding his objections, Justice Mafloney stated that he would enter the nolle, as far as Mrs. Hubbard was concerned. The attorney for Mr. Hubbard then announced that his client waived examination. Gorsuch was then sworn and after he had briefly recited the facts of the shooting the prisoner was formally held to the criminal court in $1,500 bonds. Hubbard was unable to give bonds and was taken to jail, where he will await the action of the grand jury.

Horrible Death of a Miner.

Wilkesbarre, Pa., Oct. 26.—Hugh Smiley, a miner aged 27 years, met with a horrible death. He was engaged in repairing a partition in shaft No. 1, of the Susquehanna Coal company at the time of the accident. He ascended the shaft about fifty feet and was then seen to fall towards the side of the shaft. An effort was made to reach him by other workmen, but it was too late. In the fall he was caught between the carriage and the wall and was ground to a shapeless mass.

REPUBLICAN FIGURES

What They Expect in the Coming Election.

That the Next Congress Will Be Organized by Republicans from North of the Potomac, That the South Will Produce Surprises and That Several Prominent Democratic Faces Will Be Missed—Also Victory in New York State.

Washington, Oct. 26.—Representative Apsley, vice-chairman of the republican campaign committee and now its acting chairman, has given out a statment as to the expectations of the republicans in the coming election. "From all the information and facts which we have obtained," said Mr. Apsley, "I feel fully warranted in saying that the situation to-day is more promising than is was ten days ago, when Mr. Babcock, before he left for the west, gave out this claim of 190 republican members of the fifty-fourth congress. In fact, from the reports that have since come in, I have no hesitation in making the claim that we will organize the house of the fifty-fourth congress by republican members from north of the Potomac river." Refering to the populists, Mr. Apsley said he belived there would be fewer of them in the fifty-fourth congress than in the present. His belief in this particular was based upon the ground, as he put it, "that a period of nineteen months of democratic misrule has brought the people back to sober, honest thought, and they do not want any more rank theorists to force absurd and experimental legislation upon the country."

Looks for a Surprise from the South.

While he was willing to be placed on record as stating that the republicans would organize the next house without the aid of the south, Mr. Apsley said he was confident a great surprise was awaiting the country from that section.

"Look out," he said, "for West Virginia, Virginia, Maryland, North Carolina, Tennessee and Louisiana.

"In New York," continued Mr. Apsley, returning to the north, "there are three elements that tend to our favor, any one of which is sufficient to overcome the majority of 25,000 that the democrats claim is normally theirs in the state."

These elements, Mr. Apsley enumerated as being the tremendous anti-Tammany and anti-Hill feeling which would bring out a full vote; the great lack of harmony in the democratic party itself wich was, he said, daily becoming greater; and, lastly, the resentment of the laboring classes towards the democratic party on account of the tariff. Mr. Apsley predicts that the election of Mr. Morton is safe by a large majority, and a gain of ten seats in the congressional election making the delegation stand twenty-four republican to ten democrats, instead of nineteen democrats and fifteen republicans as at present.

Would Not Go into Details.

The republican chairman declined to discuss the districts in detail, observing that the election was yet too far off to give the opposition the advantage of such information as the committee possessed. "I feel sure, however," said Mr. Apsley, "that there will be many of the best known faces now in congress missed when the fifty-fourth is assembled in March next. As to Mr. Wilson, he is, of course, the representative of his party, he stands to-day for its principles. His election would therefore be looked upon as an endorsement of the principles of the great party questions that are now so thouroughly debated throughout the country. The people in his district understand this, and from the information that we now have at hand, Mr. Wilson is already beaten in his race. Then, again, there is the district now represented by Mr. Holman. This district has always returned a democratic majority, but this year, it will be different. It is among the probabilities, in fact we are advised, that Mr. Holman, of Indiana, is already beaten. The same may be said about the district now represented by Mr. Springer of Illinois who seemed to have a life lease upon his seat in congress. But the people are about to reverse the verdict of former years, and to send a republican to represent them in the fifty-fourth congress. The information we have removes all doubt from my mind as to the salient point of the conflict before us. I have claimed merely that the fifty-fourth congress will be organized by republicans elected from north of the Potomac and that there will be a great surprise in the south, and that Mr. Morton will be elected governor of New York by a large majority."

Princeton's Eleven.

Princeton, N. J., Oct. 26.—The coaching force of the Princeton eleven has been strengthened by Jesse Riggs, '92, a contemporary of Heffelfinger, and James Blake, '94, who played full-back on last year's eleven. The cup offered by C. C. Cuyler, of New York, was won yesterday by the seniors, who defeated the juniors after already winning from the sophomore and freshman elevens. The only touchdown was scored by James, from which he kicked an easy goal.

Disbarred from Postal Service.

Washington, Oct. 26.—A bond investment company doing business at Toledo, Ohio, has been disbarred from sending matter through the mails, by the postoffice department, on the ground that the circulars relating to its operations are non-mailable. The postmaster general wrote a letter to the postmaster at Toledo directing him to refuse to transmit the correspondence of the concern, and to institute criminal proceedings in case it persisted in forwarding its circulars.

Republican Club Incorporated.

Albany, Oct. 26.—The Riverside Republican club of the city of New York has been incorporated with the secretary of state. The particular business and objects of the club are to promote the principles and the success of the republican party and to develop and cultivate the social acquaintance of the members.

MAY LEAD TO DIVORCES

Rev. McCrory's Preachings Causing Family Trouble.

Several Women Already Have Refused To Continue the Marital Relations—Numerous Engagements Among the Young People Broken Off—Sensation in Beaver Falls.

Pittsburg, Oct. 26.—The preaching of the Rev. Dr. W. J. McCrory, pastor of the Free Presbyterian church of Rochester, Pa., has created a sensation throughout the Beaver valley. His recent discourses, urging the application of the Biblical laws concerning unequal marriages has caused trouble in several homes and may lead to divorce proceedings. The havoc has been accomplished by the application of Mr. McCrory's favorite idea of "sanctification on earth" to the marital vows. Two years ago Dr. McCrory withdrew from the Presbyterian church because of the refusal of the Presbytery to recognize his primal belief and accepted doctrine of sanctification. A number of his people went with him and the Free Presbyterian church of Rochester was organized. Here the doctrines, so obnoxious to some, are freely taught, being the basis of the creed of the congregation. He based his statements on a portion of the verse of the sixth chapter of the Second Epistle to the Corinthians, which reads:

"Be ye not unequally yoked together with unbelievers; for what fellowship hath righteousness with unrighteousness, and what communion hath light with darkness."

On this text the divine descanted very forcibly and fervently. Following this base of reasoning, he argued that where a Christain and an ungodly one were so yoked together a great sin was committed and was repeated with each exercise of the prerogatives of the bond. These utterances created a small sensation among Dr. McCrory's followers who are implicit believers in the doctrine he preaches and the new doctrine on intermarriages was literally accepted. A dozen or more engagements between young people have been unceremoniously broken while in at least three instances women who have been for sometime married and are mothers of families have also accepted the doctrine and declined to further continue the marital relations. The disruption of conjugal relations, however, does not as yet extend to the extreme of open separation. In one of these instances the husband has given notice to his wife that he will no longer stand this interference with his prerogatives.

Dr. McCrory has proselyted extensively all through the populous valley at the junction of the Beaver and Ohio, and has believers in his doctrine of sanctification, not only in Rochester and Bridgewater, but in all of the six or eight towns in the territory mentioned. His new doctrine has taken firm hold among them and is accepted because it has not been silenced or disproven. The consequences are, however, certain to prove disastrous in a number of families.

Death of Dr. Helmbold.

Trenton, N. J. Oct 26.—Dr. H. T. Helmbold, the famous patent medicine man and one time millionaire, died at the state asylum for the insane above this city, aged about 56 years. He was suffering from chronic melancholia, but the immediate cause of his death was apoplexy. Dr. Helmbold became insane more than a dozen years ago. He was for a long period confined in the Norristown, Pa., asylum and was released through the efforts of the wife. His eccentric doings at Long Branch after that were the subjects of many articles in the newspapers and led to his incarceration in the Trenton asylum about two and a half years ago. He grew very violent at times and made numerous attempts to escape from the institution.

Death of Mary A. Woodbridge.

Chicago, Oct. 26.—Mrs. Mary A. Woodbridge, corresponding secretary of the Womens Christian union, died suddenly last evening at the residence of Mrs. C. E. Bigelow. Mrs. Woodbridge was known as "Miss Willard's right arm," and her death is the direct result of overwork. The remains will, be taken to Ravenna and the funeral will take place in that city tomorrow. Telegrams of consolation have been received by Mr. Woodbridge from Lady Somerset, Francis Willard and other prominent Christain Temperance union women.

Weston's Long Tramp.

Canajoharie, N. Y., Oct. 26.—Weston passed through Canajoharie at 6:40 p. m, at a rapid pace and arrived at Fort Plain at 7:45 on scheudule time, where he put up for the night, having covered 41 miles during the day. He seemed in good condition. The roads are heavy. Weston made the fifteen miles from Fonda to Fort Plain in three hours.

Off For Their Southern Trip.

Philadelphia, Oct. 25.—The university of Pennsylvania foot ball team will start on its annual southern trip to-day playing the university of Virginia in Washington this afternoon and the naval cadets at Annapolis on Saturday. Wharton will not accompany the men, as it was decided that his condition would not permit it. He is still confined to his bed.

For Selling Oleomargarine.

Wilkesbarre, Pa., Oct. 26.—Thomas Whalen of this city, doing business for a Pittsburg butter firm, was arrested and held in bail for a hearing on Tuesday next. He is charged with selling butterine and oleomargerine.

Snow and Wrecks on St. Lawrence.

Quebec, Oct. 26.—News just received from the lower St. Lawrence says that the north and south shores are covered with snow and several schooners have been reported lost during the last week in the storm.

Gale in England.

London, Oct. 26.—The gale was general in England yesterday. Several fatalities are reported. Several small vessels were wrecked. Some damage was done by the floods.

COTTOLENE IS MADE TO EAT

Made from clarified oil, expressed from Cotton Seed—as pure and golden as the Southern Sunshine which produces it.

For convenience in handling, there is added to this oil enough beef suet to make it a semi-solid.

The combination of these two pure natural products makes Cottolene, a shortening and cooking fat, with which in healthfulness, cleanliness, flavor and economy, nothing in the world can compare.

IMITATIONS are MADE TO SELL

To sell on the merits of the genuine. To sell by substitution; or by deception. To sell to the injury of the genuine, to the dissatisfaction of the consumer, to the detriment of the dealer, to the loss of all concerned—except the scheming counterfeiter himself.

If you wish the best food and the best health, you should insist that your cooking be done with genuine Cottolene. Refuse all contercits.

Sold in 3 and 5 pound pails.

MERRY AND USEFUL.

King's Daughters Are Happy in Providing for Others' Happiness.

The social meeting of the City Union of King's Daughters, held yesterday afternoon in the parlors of the Crescent Avenue Church, was full of interest and promise for the future. The various circles were well represented, and those who had commenced work this Fall reported their plans and operations.

The experiment of employing a nurse to care for the sick, unable to care for themselves, has been eminently successful. The services of the nurse engaged have been appreciated by those she has attended, and the King's Daughters who have contributed towards her support feel they have brightened the burdens of the unfortunate sick.

Tea, cake, and pleasant interchange of thought and expression followed the transaction of business.

Death of Garrett Hammeal

Garrett H. Hammeal died at his home, 50 Elm place, at 10 last evening, after an illness of two weeks. He was in his thirty-first year.

Mr. Hammeal's family consists of a wife and three small children, a boy and two girls. He had been employed by John H. Tier for some time. The funeral arrangements have not yet been made, but the services will probably be held at the house Sunday afternoon.

Firemen's Relief.

At a meeting of the Exempt Firemen's Association last evening, three members were dropped from the roll for non-payment of dues and assessments. The Association adopted the report of the Board of Trustees that no person shall hereafter be entitled to relief from the sick fund who is able to attend to business. Other important business was transacted for the benefit of the association.

Mrs. Bourne President.

The Women's Christian Temperance Union of New Jersey held its third session yesterday in the Bergen Reformed Church, at Jersey City. The day was devoted to routine work and county reports. The annual election resulted in the reelection of Mrs. Emma Bourne as president by 161 votes, her opponent, Mrs. I. H. Demarest, receiving 64. The convention closes this afternoon.

Judge Moore Sustained.

Indictments were handed into Court at Elizabeth yesterday against Adams, Shay and Shelley who were held for assault upon and robbery of Mrs. Elizabeth Furey of this city.

Further indictments were rendered against the New York toughs who assaulted Henry Guerrier at the Fanwood club-house. All having been held by Judge Moore for the Grand Jury's action.

The Sewage Farm.

The engineers in charge of the sewer construction were noticed this morning getting levels in the vicinity of Rock avenue and investigating the merits of the different tracts of land on which the councilmanic committee are getting options. They examined the land on both sides of Rock avenue, from Front street to Green brook.

Grand Master Coming.

Queen City Lodge, No. 226, I. O. O. F., will celebrate their fourth anniversary next Monday evening in their lodge room. A visit is expected from Grand Master Tussey of Elizabeth. An elaborate entertainment is in preparation.

Felled But Unhurt.

While crossing Front street near Park avenue, this morning, Randolph Dunham and a horse collided, and the man was thrown to the ground. Mr. Dunham received no injury, and was able to proceed on his way.

Household Goods Released.

The Central Railroad Company of New Jersey has requested Justice Moore to release from custody the household goods of Frank E. Miller held under judgment for a railroad claim.

Youngsters to Race.

FAINTED NEAR FLAME.

Narrow Escape of Mrs. Albert Moebins.

A LAMP EXPLODED BEFORE HER.

Charles VanNest Is Burned While Saving the Property—After the Excitement Is Over, Mrs. Moebins Faints Again.

In a fire at the frame apartment house of Eden L. Boice, 404 West Third street, last evening, a woman had a narrow escape from being burned to death.

Albert Moebins, an employe of S. M. Morrse's Hotel Grenada barber-shop, lives in rooms on the second floor, on the Central Avenue side of the house. The rear room is used as a kitchen and it was here that the fire started.

Mrs. Moebins was sitting at a table when a lamp which stood close by her head exploded. Fortunately the force of the explosion was exerted upward and away from the woman. The table, the floor and the wooden partition nearby were spattered with burning oil. The woman jumped back and managed to reach the hall; then she fainted and fell to the floor.

She recovered at once, however, and ran downstairs, alarming the other people in the house. Charles VanNest of West Second street happened to be passing. He hurried in and went upstairs, where he was soon joined by his brother, Theodore VanNest, who lives on the first floor. The heat was intense but the men obtained pails and began to throw water on the flames which by this time filled the room. The pump was just inside the door and was so near the fire that Charles burned his hands when he grabbed the pump-handle.

In the meantime the neighborhood was aroused and the alarm reached the electric light station. Box 41 was pulled and the West Second street hose wagons passed the station while the second round was being sounded. The extinguishers alone were used; the VanNest brothers had made good progress in putting out the flames.

The rain kept the usual crowd away from the fire. Chief Doane was out in spite of his illness. It appeared at first as if the fire had started from an overheated stove, but from Mrs. Moebins it was learned that the lamp had exploded. The woman fainted again after everything was over.

The house was damaged to the extent of about $50, the room having been burned out. The building is insured in the German American Company, through J. C. Pope & Co., for $2,500. The furniture belonging to the tenant was nearly new as the barber has been keeping house but a short time. It was not insured. The carpet in one of the rooms of Theodore Van Nest on the floor was soaked.

The Boice house was afire once before, on Thanksgiving Day.

HIGH SCHOOL NOTEBOOK.

Superintendent Maxson gave his regular Friday morning talk, this morning, on the Constitutional Convention that has just come to an end in New York. He spoke of the principal amendments proposed and their effect if they are adopted.

Arthur H. Serrell '93 now a student in Lehigh University, and Charles A. Angleman '92, who is at present studying law at the University of New York, visited the school this morning and every one was glad to see their familiar faces again.

The Senior class essays are due November 5. Those who do not write on "An Ideal Commonwealth" have their choice of the following subjects: Oliver Goldsmith's Works; The Saxon Milton; King Alfred; The Literary Friendship of Addison and Steele; Dr. Samuel Johnson and His Friends. Next month those who now write on one of these subjects will write on "An Ideal Commonwealth", while those that wrote on that subject will choose from this list. The reason for this is the lack of sufficient reference books.

The High School Record will not be read at the meeting of the Kappa Delta Phi this afternoon as it has not been completed, the contributions coming in at so late a date that it was impossible to have the paper ready in time. Instead of the paper each person will speak on any subject he likes.

The Grammar School was given one session Wednesday and yesterday on account of rain.

The run of the Bicyling Division of the P. H. S. A. A. was postponed last Wednesday until next Wednesday on account of the stormy weather. The run next Wednesday will go to Summit by the Washington Valley road and return by Springfield.

J. V. Beekman, Jr., '95 and Fred Corlell '95 will declaim in Assembly Hall some day next week.

The Senior class had a written test in geometry this morning, but the anticipation was worse than the realization.

NINETY-FIVE

Grist of the City Court.

John Kelly, a visitor to Plainfield, was drunk and misbehaved at the North Avenue station last night. He couldn't pay a $5 fine this morning, so he was committed to jail for 20 days.

George Gaebrer was arrested last night for trespassing on the trains of the Central Railroad. This morning he showed a Lehigh Valley ticket and explained that he had taken the wrong road. Sentence was suspended and he started for South Plainfield.

Practical Christianity.

B. S. Braider, one of the employes of Rice's grocery store on Duer street, is a public benefactor in the truest sense. Every Saturday night after the store closes, Mr. Braider of his own free will sweeps off the sidewalks surrounding the store, in order that the people may enjoy a clean walk on Sunday.

Sweets Sold by Sweet.

Preserves, cakes, aprons and plants are to be sold tomorrow afternoon in the Crescent Avenue Church parlors, by the Opportunity Circle of King's Daughters.

RAGAN IS COMING.

He Brings a Brand-New Series with Plainfield in It.

The Ragan lectures have become a feature of each season's entertainments in Plainfield, and the public will be glad to know that the famous traveler and delightful talker is coming here to tell us of new scenes. The celebrated lecturer has been for months engaged in preparing fresh material, and the series he is soon to give in Music Hall will be his best.

We all love George Washington, and it has been with a kindly affection that Mr. Ragan has been spending the Summer treading the paths the Father of His Country trod, learning much that has been hidden of the great man's life, and collecting views to illustrate the charming story he has prepared.

The Daily Press recorded Mr. Ragan's exploration of this section, when he was here, and having seen the local views he procured to incorporate in his "Footprints of Washington" is prepared to assure the public of a rare treat in that the opening lecture. It will be given Monday, Nov. 5, and is to be followed by "The Rhine and Switzerland", Wednesday, Nov. 28, and "The Yosemite and the Yellowstone", Saturday, Dec. 8. A full reserved-seat ticket for the course is only $1. Students may obtain reserved-seat course tickets at 75 cents. The sale of seats begins at Leggett's Pharmacy, corner of Front street and Park avenue, next Monday morning.

The Ragan lectures are a series of entertainments affording not only delight but also valuable knowledge.

WATSON TOO!

By Sly Detective Work the Old Offenders Are Cleverly Caught.

The police deserve great credit for cleverly securing evidence against illegal liquor sellers. They employed a detective of 20 years experience, got him a job in town, and he got in with the gang and spied to perfection. Even wary Michael Watson was caught. Watson appeared before Judge Coddington in the City Court this morning and pleaded not guilty to two charges of selling liquor, once Oct. 9, and once Oct. 12. His trial was set down for Thursday next at 2 in the afternoon. James McFadden furnished a $200 bond for Watson's appearance.

PARTICULAR MENTION.

Lawyer James P. Powers left town for Pittsburg last evening on important business.

Mrs. Jane Runyon of Park avenue, mother of J. D. Runyon, is visiting relatives at 123 Chilton street, Elizabeth.

J. E. Stewart and family of 662 West Seventh street, have returned from Becket, Mass., where they had been since October 4

Alfred Norbury has been appointed superintendent of Manayunk District for the Metropolitan Life Insurance Company. He takes hold Monday.

Mrs. S. B. Krom of Plainfield has been chosen at the State W. C. T. U. convention to represent Union County on the Committee on Resolutions.

Mayor Gilbert is being urged for a third term on the Republican ticket, and ex-Councilmen Spangenberg is being pushed for Mayor on the Democratic ticket.

Mr. Pinto and family of Glenside Park have moved into one of I. W. Rushmore's houses on West Eighth street near Grant avenue. Mr. Brown, formerly of Sandford avenue, is occupying another.

David Bodine having resigned as financial secretary of Franklin Council, No. 41, J. O. U. A. M., Theodore Kurtzhals, Jr., was elected last evening to fill his place. He was installed previous to the exercises of the evening.

A PROSPEROUS INSTITUTION.

The New Jersey Building, Loan and Investment Company, of Trenton, N. J.—The Largest Organization of the Kind in the State of New Jersey.

A very prosperous and progessive institution is the New Jersey Building, Loan and Investment Company. The company was incorporated in July, 1891, so that its record covers a period of a little more than three years. It is today the largest and richest institution of its kind in this State. Its officers and directors are as follows:

Hugh H. Hamill, President, President of the Trenton Trust and Safe Deposit Company.

John G. Scudder, Vice President, Vice President First National Bank.

William G. Moore, Treasurer, Cashier of the Trenton Trust and Safe Deposit Company.

James C. Beebe, Secretary.

Owen H. Locke, merchant.

Barker Gummere, Jr., Clerk of Mercer County.

James H. Durand, counselor-at-law, Rahway, N. J.

Charles J. Parker, President First National Bank, Manasquan, N. J.

Hon. B. B. Hutchinson, counselor-at-law.

The authorized capital of this company is $10,000,000, and shares are issued at $100 each. Money is loaned to members on very easy terms, and it is possible for almost anyone under the company's plan to acquire a home.

This company writes a definite contract specifying the exact number of payments that will be required from the members on each share of stock, and also takes a mortgage for a definite period. It is the only building and loan company doing business on a general plan that allows its members to withdraw the amounts paid in at any time after six months from the date of their certificate, and pays them back every cent that they paid on their stock. Nothing is deducted for expenses and provisions are made in the articles of association and by-laws whereby any amounts taken to defray expenses shall be returned to the member wishing to withdraw.

The following table shows the company's growth in resources up to June 30, 1894:

ASSETS.

December 31, 1891	$ 5,434 50
June 30, 1892	20,913 29
December 29, 1892	51,372 25
June 30, 1893	104,182 48
December 31, 1893	169,068 92
June 30, 1894	219,496 63

The October report brings the assets up to more than a quarter of a million dollars.

During the last fiscal year the company doubled its assets, declared and credited to stock 12 per cent. in dividends, and more than doubled the number of local branches. It confines its business entirely to this State, (New Jersey), and has 125 local branches and over 3,000 members.

This is certainly a remarkable record to have been made during such times as the country has been passing through.

The company, furthermore, has never lost a dollar and never made but one foreclosure, and even that one did not result in any loss.

Having done so well in "hard times" it is reasonable to suppose that still more rapid progress will have to be recorded of the more prosperous times that are now beginning.

H. O. Newman is the secretary of the Plainfield Branch, and will be pleased to give any further information desired and receive applications for membership.

Plainfielders Indicted.

Constable Amos Moffett says that he never before saw so many prisoners before the bar at one time as in court this morning.

There were 65 indictments. Frank Haulenbeck, junkman, and James Nolen, switchman, pleaded not guilty to stealing Jersey Central metal.

Their trial was set for Nov. 3. Their pal Keefe, also indicted, has disappeared.

George Watson of Evona for stealing shingles from E. R. Ackerman was indicted and will plead tomorrow.

Joseph Comeki for stealing Y. M. C. A. planks will be tried Nov. 1.

Here's That the Parks Win!

At the Elizabeth Whist Club rooms Wednesday night was organized the New Jersey Whist Club League, composed of the Park Club, Fanwood Whist Club, Elizabeth Whist Club, Montclair Club, and the Garfield Club of Newark. These clubs comprise the expert whist players of the State. It is proposed to have a tournament, and during the Winter will play the New York and Brooklyn clubs for the inter-State championship.

Catarrh Cannot Be Cured

with local applications, as they cannot reach the seat of the disease. Catarrh is a blood or constitutional disease, and in order to cure it you must take internal remedies. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, and acts directly on the blood and mucous surfaces. Hall's Catarrh Cure is not a quack medicine. It was prescribed by one of the best physicians in this country for years, and is a regular prescription. It is composed of the best tonics known, combined with the best blood purifiers, acting directly on the mucous surfaces. The perfect combination of the two ingredients is what produces such wonderful results in curing catarrh. Send for testimonials, free.

Detectives Guard the President.

Washington, Oct. 26.—The President and Mrs. Cleveland, the two little Clevelands and their nurses arrived here at 10:10 last night over the Pennsylvania railroad. Private Secretary Thurber had two carriages in waiting for the party and they were driven immediately to the executive mansion which has been thoroughly renovated during their absence. Two private detectives walked, one on each side of the president, guarding him closely.

Women Against Tammany.

New York, Oct. 26.—The Woman's Municipal league an anti-Tammany organization held a mass meeting in Cooper union, which lacked neither enthusiasm nor numbers. The big hall was comfortably filled with woman from every walk of life. On the stage was Mrs. Charles R. Lowell, the organizer of the Woman's Municipal league and about fifty of her committee-women. President Seth Low acted as chairman.

DUNELLEN'S DISGUST.

The Thrifty Borough Shows Fight Against Plainfield.

SHE WANTS NO SEWAGE FARM.

Leading Citizens Sound the Battle-Cry—They Won't Let Plainfield Do to Dunellen What Plainfield Declared Might Be a Nuisance to New Brunswick.

Dunellen citizens are still engaged in heated talk concerning the proposition to place the Plainfield sewage disposal farm on her borders. The columns of The Weekly Call are full of bitterness.

Harry M. Webb says: "The mere talk of putting in the sewer dump near us has rendered property unsalable, improvements contemplated have been stopped, and property owners are trying to dispose of their property, with no bidders. My arm, my voice, my pocketbook, small as they are, will be found fighting to the end, and in speaking thus, I voice the will and determination of every citizen of Dunellen. I did not locate in Dunellen, famed far and near for her healthfulness, to have the filth of Plainfield dumped in my back yard, and I do n't propose to be run out of town so long as I am able to fight. Peaceably if possible, but forcibly if we must, shall be our war cry, and the best man wins. Build your sewer if you will, but rest assured that you will never operate it, so long as you try to dump the sewage where it is proposed to."

Dr. P. W. Brakeley writes: "People who are tired of New York, Brooklyn and other large cities and are seeking homes where they will have more room to breathe and expand themselves will not care to take up their residence in Plainfield or Dunellen if they discover that we are pouring out on top of the earth material which they were taught to avoid even when running under the ground."

Dr. M. J. Whitford shows how widespread would be the blight of the sewage germs, and adds: "It is reported that the authorities of Plainfield are now stating that their plan is only to be an experiment at first, which will be abandoned if not successful. Admitting the probability of Plainfield's conducting such a costly experiment, should we then submit tamely to such an experiment upon foul sewage under our very eyes and nostrils, as it were? Heaven forbid!"

Alfred B. Nelson, civil engineer, declares there is no necessity for Plainfield to use filter beds. "In this letter"—he says—"I am using the information I gathered at the meeting with the Plainfield sewer committee. According to their own estimates they can build an outlet sewer to discharge by gravity into the Raritan river, near the dam below Bound Brook, for less than $100,000, and if the city of New Brunswick should prevent such discharge, on account of its becoming a nuisance, they could carry it down the river through a sewer to a point below New Brunswick, where it could not possibly be a nuisance, for $5,000 per mile, or say five miles, for $25,000. This, by the sewer committee's own figures, will give a gravity discharge for less than $125,000, which will annoy no one, destroy no property, cost practically nothing to keep in order, and fill no one with fears of contagion. You will note that they make provision in their estimates for its becoming a nuisance to New Brunswick, and yet say it will be no nuisance to us. The ton per diem of solid matter held in suspension in 1,000,000 gallons of water will be so thoroughly diluted and destroyed by being poured out at our doors that we cannot discover it, but dilute to the extent of one ton in 600,000,000 gallons (about the average daily flow of the Raritan river) and it immediately becomes a nuisance; that is, one pound dissolved in 500 gallons is indiscernable at Dunellen, but the same pound dissolved in 300,000 gallons becomes a nuisance at New Brunswick. A special and peculiar freak of nature. We do not understand it. Mr. Editor, these few facts I gathered from the Plainfield committee, and I give them to you to use as you think best; and in comment I will only ask: Do the citizens, the voters, the taxpayers, of Plainfield, know what their sewer committee is doing? Do they know that they are going to put in a system at great expense, which will take several thousand dollars per year to keep in proper working order, which is only an experiment at best, and which I (and not I alone) am confident they will be obliged to abandon, when, with but slight additional first cost, they can put in a discharge into the river which will be sure, permanent, inoffensive and free of expense for future maintenance? I feel that Dunellen has just cause for alarm and indignation, and if the Plainfield Council insists on dumping its refuse near our borders we will be justified in fighting it to the bitter end."

A. F. Todd gives assurance that "if, under cover of the law, the sanction of the courts, or the sanction of the State Board of Health, or under the plea of the supreme good of Plainfield, the project is ever carried out, the feeling of Dunellen and Evona cannot be anything else than that of indignation, disgust and supreme contempt."

Only one more convention is to be held to nominate a Member of Assembly from this district—that of the Prohibition party. In discussing the Assembly nominees of the two great parties the other day, a quiet citizen remarked that it would be a good plan for the third party to nominate Charles Benton VanWinkle, and thus assure one of the members of the popular law firm of Green, Codding & VanWinkle a seat in the lower house.

FRANKLIN CELEBRATES.

FOR SEVEN YEARS IT HAS BEEN LABORING ZEALOUSLY.

Rev. Mr. Richardson Commends Its Career and Urges It on in Loyalty to American Institutions.

Seven years ago, on Oct. 6, 1887, Franklin Council, No. 41, J. O. U. A. M., was instituted in the old Knights of Pythias lodge rooms in the Steile Building. Since that time the lodge has been steadily growing, both in interest and numbers, until now it stands among the leading in the State.

The members have taken a deep interest in the work of the order, and the principles being purely American have been the means of gaining for it many stanch friends as well as members.

Its officers have been well chosen, and the success of the order can be attributed largely to the men of sound judgment who have guided its affairs in a business-like manner.

Last evening the members and their friends gathered in the lodge room and celebrated the seventh anniversary of the lodge. The attendance was large, and the entertainment excellent in every particular.

The programme was in charge of the Good and Welfare Committee, of which Charles I. Young is chairman. He was assisted by Williard V. Sutton, Theodore A. Kurzbale, Jr., John Beekman, N. H. Guttman, assisted by a harpist, rendered a pleasing overture as an opening number on the programme. Chairman Young then read a letter from Rev. J. W. Richardson, who was to make the address and was prevented from so doing on account of ill-health. The letter reads:

"Dear Brethren: I regret exceedingly that on account of ill-health I do not dare to go out into the damp chill of the present evening weather, and therefore I shall not be able to perform the delightful task allotted me in your anniversary exercises. I wish the Council a joyous anniversary. May your years of usefulness be continued. May the principles you advocate grow in power, until every true American, native and adopted, shall feel that he is guilty of neglect, if his voice and ballot are not consecrated to the work of maintaining the integrity of the present public school system. Let your voices be earnest in supporting, and active in propagating the truly American sentiment, that in the United States, there is not room for two rival school systems. One American school system; one flag floating from every school-house; no public money for sectarian instruction; is the watchword of every true J. O. U. A. M. I am

"Sincerely your friend and brother,
"JOHN W. RICHARDSON."

The reading of the letter produced the heartiest applause.

Frank Splane was introduced and pleased all with his German dialect which was very amusing. Joseph Martin and Elias Southard followed with an excellent rendition of "Larboard Watch" their voices blending in sweet harmony. They were recalled and gave another selection. Albert Ford, who is always a favorite, delighted the audience with a reading. This was followed with a very laughable dialogue, "The Traveling Agent". The parts were well taken by Miss Herman, Miss Burdick, Frank Splane and Charles Bryant, and won much admiration.

Another recitation was given by Albert Ford, and a vocal selection by Messrs. Martin and Southard received loud applause, as did also the recitation by Frank Splane. Dr. Bedford was called on, and was cordially received and his excellent singing was very much enjoyed.

This concluded the programme, and all were invited to adjourn to the banquet room and have supper. After supper all met in the main room and danced the hours away to Guttman's music.

MT. OLIVE GROWS.

Extensive Improvements on Baptist Church Property.

Extensive improvements were commenced yesterday on the Mt. Olive Baptist Church. An addition is to be built on the rear of the church, 14x28, to accommodate the increasing attendance of church and Sunday-school. The church proper will be decorated, and when completed will present an attractive appearance. The steps in front will be altered, so as to afford an entrance on both sides of the main door. The entire cost will be $700. Baker & Young have the contract, and they intend having it completed by the middle of December.

'Possum Lay Low.

A bartender last night traded to a German citizen who had a little more liquor than was good for him, an opossum for a dog. It was an amusing sight to see the pair, the little animal in the lead, followed by his zigzag owner going up Somerset street. When opposite Uncle Peter Wooden's residence they parted, and the opossum now is safely housed under the barn of Uncle Peter, near a friendly corn field, and the German is looking for his "hundt".

MOTHERS

and those about to become mothers, should know that Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription robs childbirth of its torture, terrors and dangers to both mother and child, by aiding nature in preparing the system for parturition. Thereby "labor" and the period of confinement is greatly shortened. It also promotes an abundant secretion of nourishment for the child.

South Bend, Pacific Co., Wash.
DR. R. V. PIERCE, Buffalo, N. Y.:
Dear Sir—I began taking your "Favorite Prescription" the first month of pregnancy, and have continued taking it since confinement. I did not experience the nausea or any of the ailments due to pregnancy, after I began taking your "Prescription." I was only in labor a short time, and the physician said I got along unusually well.

A STANCH PLATFORM.

This Shows Just Where Democracy Stands, on the People's Side.

At the Union County Democratic Convention Wednesday, when were nominated the excellent candidates whose names now adorn the masthead of this paper, the following stanch platform was adopted:

We, the representatives of the Democratic party of Union County in convention assembled, unflinchingly register our adherence to the cause of "Tariff Reform", and declare our fealty to the principles of an economic government administered by the people, for the people and not by an oligarchy of manufacturers, who under a pretense of protecting labor seek to enrich themselves at the expense of nine-tenths of the people.

We denounce as fraudulent the attempt of the Republican leaders to shoulder on the Democratic party the responsibility for the widespread depression in business, which not only prevails in the United States but affects every civilized country in the world, and even extends to Australia. If the panic has been unusually severe, it is due to causes which can fairly be ascribed to the Republican party, which was in power up to the very beginning of the hard times. To its misrule and a policy which fostered the business of a few to whom the great mass of our people had to pay tribute, increasing the cost of living to the farmer, the clerk and the man of small income, to make sudden fortunes for some and maintain enormous dividends on fictitious capital to others, to this policy, we insist, the hard times are largely if not altogether due.

We affirm our full faith in the principles of the Democratic party—the principles of freedom, political, religious and economic.

We favor sound money, and demand of our public officials, rigid, honest and strict economy in the expenditure of public money.

We honor the Democratic President for his unswerving fidelity to principle, for his efforts to secure the passage of the Wilson Bill, and for his patriotic course in insisting on the repeal of the Sherman Bill.

We commend those Democratic Senators and Representatives who upheld the President.

We denounce the Republican party for its subserviency to trusts, its religious intolerance and its refusal to lighten the burdens of taxation.

In view of the approaching election of a United States Senator, we recognize the paramount importance of nominating only such men for legislative positions as will worthily represent the best sentiments of the Democratic party.

We condemn the Republican Legislature for its failure to pass any of the bills presented in behalf of organized labor.

We promise the people of Union County that when the nominees of this convention are elected they will aid in securing an intelligent, economical and efficient management of public affairs and the enactment of wise and conservative laws.

As the representatives of the Democratic party, always the friend of religious and political liberty, we denounce the attempt of any secret organization to establish a religious test as a qualification for public office or private employment.

We believe in religious liberty for all.

We endorse the course of our representative in Congress, Hon. John T. Dunn, and pledge to him our most enthusiastic support.

We endorse the administration of the Democratic Governor of New Jersey, the Hon. George T. Werts, for his opposition to the partisan course of the Republican Legislature of 1894

We strongly condemn the Republican Legislature for its violation of the pledge upon which its members were chosen, its subserviency to railroads and all other corporate interests.

And further be it resolved, That it is eminently proper that a convention embracing a large number of delegates from the cities of Elizabeth and Bahway should express the profound gratitude which the taxpayers of those cities have felt toward ex-Gov. Leon Abbett for his valuable services rendered, while the Chief Executive of this State, to them in their severe financial troubles, and that the happy termination of those troubles compels them to take this occasion to give expression to their gratitude.

FAREWELL TO MISS PALMBURG.

She Goes to Do Good Among the Heathen of Far Cathay.

An informal reception was given in the Sunday-school room of the Seventh-Day Baptist Church last evening. It was a farewell greeting to Miss Palmburg, who leaves the first of next month for China to take up her work there as a medical missionary.

A large number of Christian Endeavorers and other members of the congregation was present. Odd games with implements provided by the committee, music and social greetings made the evening pass very pleasantly and quickly. Miss Carrie Randolph and Miss Bessie Titsworth played selections upon the piano and Miss Lizzie Allis sang a solo. Refreshments were served by the following committee: Miss Bessie Titsworth, chairman, Mrs. Joseph Miller, Robert Randolph, Sidney Titsworth and Miss Ida Randolph.

CHURCHES ARE WARNED.

UNION COUNTY GRAND JURY GIVES SHARP REBUKE.

Points Out the Inconsistency of a War on Race-Tracks When There is Gambling Within the Temple.

Following is the full text of the presentment of the Union County Grand Jury against lotteries, briefly referred to in The Daily Press of yesterday. It is a scathing arraignment:

UNION OYER AND TERMINER AND GENERAL JAIL DELIVERY.

OCTOBER TERM, 1894.

The Grand Inquest in and for the body of the County of Union:

Present, That we find upon investigation that the particular case concerning a lottery alluded to by His Honor, Justice VanSyckel, in his charge to us upon the opening day of this term was not within our jurisdiction.

After a careful consideration of the entire subject we have concluded to bring into court this presentment of facts.

The Constitution of our State absolutely prohibits lotteries; and our courts have held that the distribution of presents as prizes at public exhibitions or entertainment, by chance, is a lottery; the revised statutes of our State declares that "All lotteries for money, goods, wares, etc., etc., shall be and are hereby adjudged to be common and public nuisances"; and the statutes further provide that if any person shall either sell or offer to sell any ticket or chance in any lottery he shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor for which he may be imprisoned in the State prison for a term of one year; our courts have also held that any place in which illegal practices are carried on (such as holding a lottery) becomes a public nuisance and may be indicted as a disorderly house, and that those who in any wise contribute by their service or presence in conducting such an establishment may themselves be indicted for keeping a disorderly house.

We cannot close our eyes to the fact that it has become a prevalent evil among many churches, clubs and various organizations of this county to raise money for various purposes by means of what the law has clearly adjudged to be a lottery; especially is this so at this particular season of each year before our election; men holding public office, those who have been placed in nomination by the various political parties for office, as well as citizens at large, are importuned by not only officers of these organizations, but also by women and children who are sent out to peddle the tickets; we feel assured that many engage in this practice innocently, not knowing they are violating any law, while others know it to be illegal and simply rely upon the excuse that a charitable end justifies an unlawful means.

We believe that churches, clubs and societies formed for the purpose of improving the moral tone of their members or patrons are the most flagrant offenders against lottery laws in our county. Within the past few days it has been publicly announced in one of the Elizabeth papers that at a church fair to be held in the near future $500 worth of stock is to be raffled off.

In order to stop such practices and to give ample notice to all of our citizens that those who engage therein are liable to indictment, we have determined to make this presentment and refrain from presenting indictments.

We particularly address ourselves to clergymen and officers of the various churches in this county who have heretofore violated this law, and who contemplate further violations thereof, and call their attention to the inconsistency of any crusade against pool rooms or races while they, under the cloak of religion, are permitting equally unlawful practices to be carried on for their own pecuniary benefit, thereby to some extent justifying the opinion of some that if the pool rooms and races were run for the benefit of these offending churches the practice would have been overlooked.

We believe that the insidious way in which so many varied schemes are concocted and justified because the object is a good one, is demoralizing, in that they confuse the ideas of right and wrong, especially among the young people of our county, and that the clubs and other organizations that sanction them neutralize in this way a large portion of the good that they may in other ways do.

This presentment is therefore made in the hope that it may be the means of blotting out this evil, and making it unnecessary for a subsequent Grand Jury to present at the bar of justice for trial as criminals the several people engaged in these unlawful practices; and we respectfully request the Court to cause this to be published in the newspapers throughout the county. E. R. POPE,
FREDERICK C. MARSH, Foreman.
Prosecutor of the Pleas.

October Social.

In spite of the storm about 30 people attended the October social of the First Church of Christ last evening. It was held at the home of Henry Van Middlesworth, 108 Liberty street. Miss Mabel Van Middlesworth, president of the Christian Endeavor Society, was the hostess.

A delightful time was the reward of those who attended. Games and refreshments were enjoyed in the parlors until with social conversation and singing the evening was ended. The committee in charge of the affair included Mrs. Henry Van Middlesworth, Elder B. W. Hand, and Mr. and Mrs. George Smith.

Homemade Chowder.

Another new departure has been undertaken at the enterprising seafood market of Rogers, 232 West Second street. He will prepare and serve ready for cooking, every Friday and Saturday, the best homemade clam chowder that ever satisfied the palate of a hungry man. This choice chowder he will sell for 15 cents a pint, or 25 cents a quart, and will deliver it any time Friday or Saturday. Try it this week, you'll want it every week.

TORTURED THIRTY YEARS.

His Suffering Ended After Using Munyon's Rheumatism Cure.

Mr. George Smith, of Tacony, Pa., says: "I suffered from rheumatism for 30 years, and had so many severe attacks that some of my joints were twisted out of shape. At times I suffered terrible pain, and, although I tried many remedies, I never obtained any permanent relief until I procured Munyon's Rheumatism Cure. The action of this remedy was wonderfully quick, and although I have only taken a small quantity, I consider myself permanently cured."

Munyon's Rheumatism Cure is guaranteed to cure rheumatism in any part of the body. Acute or muscular rheumatism cured in from one to five days. It never fails to cure sharp, shooting pains in the arms, legs, sides, back or breast, or soreness in any part of the body in from one to three hours. It is guaranteed to promptly cure lameness, stiff and swollen joints, stiff back, and all pains in the hips and loins. Chronic rheumatism, sciatica, lumbago, or pain in the back are speedily cured.

Munyon's Homœopathic Home Remedy Company, of Philadelphia, put up specifics for nearly every disease, which are sold by all druggists, mostly for 25 cents a bottle.

HOME-GATHERING TEA.

Methodists Enjoy Life at a Vincent Chapel Sociable.

A home-gathering supper was the means used by the Ladies Aid Society of the Methodist Church to attract people to Vincent Chapel last evening. The people went, although the weather made the trip unpleasant, and from 6 to 10 they ate supper and enjoyed a programme of voluntary numbers.

The platform was prettily decorated with palms and cosmos. The tables were arranged at the right side of the room beneath the gallery. The following programme was excellently rendered:

Piano solo, Miss Maude French; vocal solo, William Runyon; song, Mr. Band; banjo and vocal solos, Fletcher Hallock; cornet solo, Raymond McGee; composite recitation, Miss Trenham and Miss E. French.

The committees who managed the various details connected with the supper were:

Executive Committee — Mrs. L. M. French, Mrs. N. W. Pike, Mrs. O. L. Jenkins; Supper Committee—Mrs. D. Davis, Mrs. S. Baker, Miss Phillips, Mrs. Honan, Mrs. Rugg, Mrs. H. The Human Electrical Forces!

How They Control the Organs of the Body.

The electrical force of the human body, as the nerve fluid may be termed, is an especially attractive department of science, as it exerts so marked an influence on the health of the organs of the body. Nerve force is produced by the brain and conveyed by means of the nerves to the various organs of the body, thus supplying the latter with the vitality necessary to insure their health. The pneumogastric nerve, as shown here, may be said to be the most important of the entire nerve system, as it supplies the heart, lungs, stomach, bowels, etc., with the nerve force necessary to keep them active and healthy. As will be seen by the cut the long nerve descending from the base of the brain and terminating in the bowels is the pneumogastric, while the numerous little branches supply the heart, lungs and stomach with necessary vitality. When the brain becomes in any way disordered by irritability or exhaustion, the nerve force which it supplies is lessened, and the organs receiving the diminished supply are consequently weakened.

Physicians generally fail to recognize the importance of this fact, but treat the organ itself instead of the cause of the trouble. The noted specialist, Franklin Miles, M. D., LL. B., has given the greater part of his life to the study of this subject, and the principal discoveries concerning it are due to his efforts. Dr. Miles' Restorative Nervine, the unrivaled brain and nerve food, is prepared on the principle that all nervous and many other difficulties originate from disorders of the nerve centers. Its wonderful success in curing these disorders is testified to by thousands in every part of the land.

Restorative Nervine cures sleeplessness, nervous prostration, dizziness, hysteria, sexual debility, St. Vitus dance, epilepsy, etc. It is free from opiates or dangerous drugs. THE LIQUOR PROBLEM

Practically Nothing Accomplished in Years.

Review of the Experience with Local Option, Prohibition and High Tariff—Steady and Rapid Increase of Consumption of Spirits—Interesting Lecture by Prof. Gould.

Philadelphia, Oct. 26.—At the twenty-sixth session of the American Academy of Political and Social Science, which was held here last evening, Dr. E. R. L. Gould, lecturer on social science and statistics in the Johns Hopkins university, delivered the principal address, speaking on the subject, "The liquor problem; its scientific treatment."

The speaker reviewed the experience of the United States with prohibition, local option, high license and state monopoly. Results in a general way, he said, show that practically nothing has been accomplished. The consumption of all kinds of liquor in 1850 averaged 4.05 gallons per inhabitant; in 1893 it was 17.04 gallons, more than a four fold increase. In 1874 the per capita consumption of spirits was the same as to-day—1 1-2 gallons; wine drinking has remained stationary, but beer drinking has more than doubled. The prison population advanced 358 persons, per million inhabitants during the last census period, the increase being greatest in those states containing the largest city population. There is now one saloon for every 250 inhabitants in the 257 most populous cities of this country. These facts go to show that our situation is quite unsatisfactory. Shall we let things alone trusting to a great wave of moral enthusiasm to put matters right, or shall we go on trying faith cures and mild homeopathic specifics?

Favors the Norwegian Plan.

These questions must be answered in the negative. The only proper policy is to study the liquor problem on all sides as the committee of fifty are doing and in the meantime, adopt the Norwegian company system, the essence of which is the elimination of private profits from liquor selling, and the conduct of the traffic under the strictest possible safeguards in the public interest. The Norwegian system combines all the merits of local option and high license, with the additional advantages that private profits, political alliances, gambling and immorality in connection with drinking places are utterly destroyed. Reduction of licenses to the lowest possible limit, refusal to sell a sufficient quantity to produce intoxication, early week day and absolute Sunday closing, insistance on cash payments are also salient features. The Norwegian plan is recognized by the most intelligent temperance men in Scandinavia as the stepping stone to the ultimate prohibition, and the testimonies of the head of the Good Templars of Norway, and the editor of the official organ of the Norwegian Total Abstinence society, amongst others, were quoted in proof. It encourages country districts and small towns to forbid licensing altogether, while in larger municipalities, where experience shows drink will be had in spite of all prohibitions, a monopoly of trade is given to a commercial company composed usually of the best and most public-spirited citizens who abominate the whole business, and who, denouncing all personal profit, take hold only to more effectually throttle it. Liquor selling is not in any way made respectable under this system, rather the effect is that saloons come to be regarded as reformatory institutions. Indeed, the saloon as we know it to-day is abolished—the chief consideration in all temperance reform.

Good Results in Sweden.

The principal merits of the Scandinavian plan were discussed and statistics quoted showing the great reduction in per capita consumption of spirits (beer is not controlled by the companies), which had been accomplished under its influence, in spite of the unfavorable effects of climate and the prevalence of hard drinking customs. Comparing 1874, the year when the first Swedish company at Gothenburg acquired its full monopoly, with 1892, the per capita consumption of spirits in Sweden declined from 3.55 gallons to 1.7 gallons; in Norway from 1.7 to 0.82 gallons; while in the United States the quantity remains stationary at 1 1-2 gallons.

Killed by a Jeweller's Burglar Trap.

Utica, N. Y., Oct. 26.—Stewart A. England, aged 17 years, was instantly killed last night by a shock of electricity received from the combination knob of Jeweler Goldstein's safe. Goldstein had connected the safe with the wire furnishing current to the motor running his lathe, as a protection against burglars. England and a companion were in the store examining some goods and the latter dared England to touch the knob. He touched the combination and immediately fell dead.

New England Receivers' Certificates.

Boston, Oct. 26.—Judge Colt in the United States circuit court has entered an order authorizing the receivers of the New York & New England Railroad company, to issue receivers' certificates to the amount of $684,629. The money realized from the sale of these certificates to be expended only in the manner and for the several purposes set forth in the order.

Accused of Poisoning Her Husband.

Parkersburg, W. Va., Oct. 26.—Jas. Drummond, a land owner and stock raiser, who resides near Elizabeth, died yesterday, with every symptom of poison. Mrs. Drummond, who was a widow before she married Drummond last August and a young man named Hamrick, a former lover of the woman, are under arrest.

HAVE YOU HEARD?

A Little Secret Whispered for the Ladies. This Secret is Not Only for Young Ladies, but for the Mothers of Families and for All Interested.

MRS. E. L. TAYLOR AND DAUGHTER.

Wonderful and extraordinary events among well-known women strongly and powerfully interest all. This country is filled with noble-minded women who earnestly desire to promote the welfare of their sex. One of the brightest and most intellectual of these is Mrs. E. L. Taylor, who resides at 17 Baker Block, Main st., Ticonderoga, N. Y. She says:

"A year ago I became fearfully nervous and completely run down so that I was obliged to stop work. I got so that I could hardly eat anything and what I did eat distressed me terribly. I had nervous prostration and dyspepsia, and was terribly weak.

I tried physicians and medicines but all to no good. I had heard much about the wonder of Dr. Greene's Nervura blood and nerve remedy and began to feel that it would do me good. I determined to try it. After commencing it, I began to feel better almost immediately and steadily improved under its wonderful influence.

"After taking five bottles I was completely cured of all my complaints, and was a perfectly well woman. I cannot tell you how thankful I am for having taken Dr. Greene's Nervura blood and nerve remedy. I advise every one to use it, for I know the good it did me and what it is doing for others."

The positive and straightforward statements made by the fore-sighted and deep thinking men and women who are cured Dr. Greene's Nervura blood and nerve remedy, gives to these testimonials such strength and influence that everybody acknowledges the genuine worth and marvelous power to cure of this wonderful medicine.

Everybody takes Dr. Greene's Nervura blood and nerve remedy for it cures.

It is not a patent medicine, but the prescription of the most successful living specialist in curing nervous and chronic diseases, Dr. Greene, of 35 West 14th st., New York City. He has the largest practice in the world, and this grand medical discovery is the result of his vast experience. The great reputation of Dr. Greene is a guarantee that his medicine will cure, and the fact that he can be consulted by any one, at any time, free of charge, personally or by letter, gives absolute assurance of the beneficial action of this wonderful medicine.

CHINES PUT TO FLIGHT

Story of the Engagement on the Yalu

Thirty-five Hundred of Li Hung's Warriors Flee Before the Japs—Anxiety To Take Moukden Before the Mikado's Birthday—Health and Spirits of Japan's Army.

London, Oct. 27.—A dispatch from Yokohama says intelligence just received from the Yalu River shows that in the battle fought Thursday between the Chinese and Japs 3,500 Chinese troops were utterly routed. Dispatches received at Chemulpo from Wi-Ju give additional details of the battle fought between the Chinese and Japanese across the Yalu River.

General Nodzu, the Japanese Chief of Staff, it appears, succeeded in getting the main body of the Japanese army across the Yalu River without mishap before daylight on Thursday. Then Colonel Sato was sent forward at the head of a flying column on a reconnoitering expedition, and he discovered the enemy occupying a fortified position near the village of Fushang, on the right bank of the Yalu.

In spite of the fact that he had no artillery at his disposal, Colonel Sato immediately commenced an attack upon the Chinese, and a fierce fight followed. The Chinese fought desperately and stubbornly. The attack began at 10 o'clock in the morning and lasted until noon, when the Chinese began wavering, broke and eventually retired in great disorder, falling back upon Kulienchas.

The troops commanded by Colonel Sato, after the Chinese had retired, set to work upon the demolishment of the fortifications of Fushang. Inside the fortifications they found 200 Chinese dead. The Japanese also captured a number of prisoners, among whom was a Chinese officer, who stated that the position was held by eighteen battalions of Chinese troops.

The Japanese, escorting their prisoners, then marched in the direction of General Nodzu's main body, with the intention of rejoining it.

The number of Japanese wounded is not known. The Japanese lost five officers and ninety men killed and wounded.

Later dispatches said that the Chinese outposts were falling back upon Kulienchas, where it is expected that the only really determined stand of the Chinese in Manchuria will be made.

It is understood that Field Marshal Yamagata's plans are completed in every detail for inflicting what he hopes will turn out to be a crushing blow upon the Chinese. Several columns of Japanese troops are acting in concert after the manner adopted by the Japanese commander at the battle of Ping-Yang, and it is expected that they will deliver a simultaneous attack upon the Chinese position. If the Japanese Field Marshal's plans are carried out, it is probable that the network of the invaders will be completed around the Chinese position by midnight on Saturday, thus enabling the Japanese to proceed to the attack at dawn on Sunday.

Some doubts are expressed among the Japanese commanders as to the reputed strength of the Chinese position at Kulienchas, and General Nodzu is said not to be quite certain himself, although spies and prisoners have furnished various reports on the subject.

It is reported that the Chinese batteries at Kulienchas have been increased from three to eleven; but, on the other hand, rumor has it that it is extremely doubtful whether all these batteries are fully armed.

All reports join in saying that the esprit de corps and health of the Japanese troops is excellent, and it is said to be the universal ambition of all classes of the service to capture Moukden before the birthday of the Emperor of Japan, which occurs on Nov. 3.

London, Oct. 27.—A dispatch to the Times from Tien-Tsin says that thirty-seven transports were sighted Wednesday making toward Tatung-Kao (Hai-Yun-Tau?), near the scene of the late naval battle. The Yokohama correspondent says it is believed in that city that the second Japanese army, numbering 22,000 men, landed at Shang-Ting north of Talian Bay, on Tuesday.

READING RAILROAD.

Statement of the Business for the Month of September.

Philadelphia, Oct. 27.—The statement of the business of the Philadelphia and Reading Railroad Company for the month of September shows gross receipts of $1,785,150.90; expenses, $962,927.35, thus leaving a profit in operating of $822,223.35. Net receipts from other sources were $18,172.72, making a total profit for the month of $840,396.27. From this the following deductions are made:

Equipment payments, $156,651.81; terminal trackage, $50,000; improvements at Broad street and Lehigh avenue, $43,866.17, and other improvements and renewals, $86,409.30; one-twelfth of current year's fixed charges, $705,000, a total deduction of $1,041,927.28, thus leaving a deficit for the month of $201,531.01. For the corresponding month of 1893 the deficit was $5,011.52. The total deficit for the fiscal year to date is $1,498,077, an increase of $439,483.51 over the corresponding period of 1893.

The statement of the business of the Philadelphia and Reading Coal and Iron Company for September shows gross receipts of $1,793,033.85. The gross expenses were $1,805,555.88, made up as follows: Operating expenses, $1,744,987.88; colliery improvements, $48,537.61; expenditures for permanent improvements, etc., $12,030.39, thus showing a loss from mining of $12,522.03. To this is to be added $122,209.29 for one-twelfth of the current year's fixed charges and thus leaving a total deficit for the month of $134,731.32. For the month of September, 1893, there was a surplus of $100,572.28. The total deficit for the fiscal year to date is $1,086,390.53. For the corresponding period of 1893 the deficit was $629,360.11.

Reading's Coal Business.

Philadelphia, Oct. 27.—A prominent official of the Reading Railroad, and one thoroughly conversant with the coal business, said, in speaking of the alleged threatened coal war: "I am not a prophet and will not attempt to say what may occur in the future. So far as the coal situation is concerned, the actual situation to-day, as far as the Reading is concerned at least, is that we are selling all the coal we are mining, and for the past two months, owing to the restriction in production, we have sold considerably more coal than we have mined—at least 100,000 tons more—and in consequence thereof have very materially reduced our stock of coal on hand.

Treasury Gold Reserve.

Washington, Oct. 27.—Another large increase in the gold reserve occurred yesterday. It now amounts to $61,140,539, which is $1,624,084 more than it was three days ago, when the improvement began to be marked. Yesterday's increase was about $500,000. The cash balance in the Treasury now amounts to $112,711,431.

Springfield's Corn Festival.

Springfield, Mass., Oct. 27.—Military night at the Corn festival attracted 2,300 people. Captain J. G. B. Adams was present and many veterans and prominent Grand Army men. John L. Britton, eighty-nine years old, who was a drum major in the war, beat the roll-call, and there were other interesting features.

MINERS BURIED ALIVE.

Frightful Accident in a Michigan Mine.

Iron Mountain, Mich., Oct. 27.—One man was instantly killed and eleven others were entombed alive in the Pewabic mine. The accident was due to the collapse of the sandstone which roofed the room on the fourth level, where the men were at work. Frank Corbora's body has been recovered. An immense mass of rock, iron ore, and broken timber, fifteen feet in length, has to be cleared away before the fate of the other men can be determined. Superintendent Brown is confident that all but three will be taken out alive, and has hopes of all.

Detroit, Mich., Oct. 27.—A special to the Journal from Iron Mountain says: Your correspondent has just returned from a trip to the Pewabic mine. Following is the correct list of entombed men: Thomas Penglaz, William Oliver, Samuel Husband, George Wilcox, Stephen Allen, William Baird, George Porene, John Thomas, George Rickards, Peter Hellberg and John Farrell. Peter Hascoe, the shift boss, the only man who is known to have escaped uninjured, says that the accident was caused by running water eating away the sandstone capping in a room 100 feet in height on the third level.

This immense mass of rock, weighing hundreds of tons, crashed down through the floor of the level, carrying away everything to the fourth level, on which the men were working. He heard the crash of broken timbers, and just managed to make his escape.

To cut a road through this wreckage to the room in which the men are entombed is a work of difficulty. The walls have to be heavily timbered as the work progresses, in order to avoid another fall of ground.

Iron Mountain, Mich., Oct. 27.—The rescuers had dug to within eight feet of the men last night at midnight, and some of them, at least, are still alive, as a distinct tapping can be heard on a pipe leading to where the men are entombed. It is now thought probable that at least some of them will be taken out alive, but the rescue can hardly be effected before daylight to-morrow.

DRAMATIC SCENE IN COURT.

Exciting Times During the Arraignment of Mr. and Mrs. Robinson.

Buffalo, N. Y., Oct. 27.—The defense which the Robinsons will put up to the charge of murdering Montgomery Gibbs was shown plainly in the Court of Oyer and Terminer before Judge Lambert, when the husband and wife were both arraigned on the charge of murder in the first degree. They will deny the story that has been told. Clarence will go back on his story implicating his wife, and Sarah will deny the story which she told implicating her husband.

The scene which was enacted in court this noon was most dramatic, for the husband and wife have not seen each other since they parted in Cleveland.

Robinson was first brought into court and the indictment read accusing him of murder in the first degree. He pleaded not guilty. Then Mrs. Robinson was brought in.

When the indictment charging her with the same crime was read and she was asked how she pleaded, she answered in almost a shriek, "Not guilty!"

Then she jumped from her seat and craned her neck all over the court room looking for her husband. She stood on her tip toes and seemed to pay no attention to the proceedings in her desire to get a look at "Clarence."

Robinson then informed the Court that he had retained as his counsel Willard W. Saperstone, who has been acting in that capacity for Mrs. Robinson.

The prisoners were then led from the court room. Some delay at the door brought husband and wife within a few feet of each other, and, breaking away from the deputy, who had her in charge, Mrs. Robinson threw herself into her husband's arms.

They kissed each other with passionate eagerness and the officers were obliged to use force to separate them.

They were confined in cells in different parts of the jail. District Attorney Kenefick has not decided when he will move for their trial.

AFTER THE COOK GANG.

Now 150 Marshals and Indian Police on Their Trail.

Wagoner, I. T., Oct. 27.—The pursuit of the Cook gang by the Deputy Marshals and Indian police is being continued. There are now 150 Marshals and Indian police on the track of the gang. A portion of the gang was sighted at Lenapah yesterday moving in the direction of the Osage country. A big dance is to be given at a country residence just north of Lenapah tonight and it is expected that the Cook gang will be there.

A posse of thirty United States Marshals with their horses was dispatched to Claremore, on the Missouri Pacific Railroad, to make a raid on the gang in case they show up at the dance. It is generally believed that the gang has now divided into two squads. On Wednesday night "Cherokee" Bill stopped fifteen miles northeast of here and got his favorite horse, which he had left in pasture for the summer. On Wednesday one of the Cook gang in conversation with a camper on Grand River, north of here, exhibited two sticks of dynamite and said: "We will have the 'Katy' train and we propose to blow it to h—l and have the stuff out of the through safe, as well as the local stuff." It would not be a surprising thing to the people if that threat was carried out in the next ten days.

New Counterfeit $5 Bill.

Washington, Oct. 27.—There is a new counterfeit five-dollar bill come to town, but according to the report issued by the Secret Service Bureau it should not be very dangerous. It is of the issue of 1891, and bears what is intended for a picture of Major-General "Pap" Thomas, but which evidently more resembles a battered prize fighter. Chief Hazen says: "The note appears to have been printed from a poorly executed etched plate. The portrait of Thomas is miserable, the right eye being entirely closed and the left has a bulged appearance; the nose is very crooked, and the hair and whiskers disordered and streaked with black and white patches."

St. John's, Oct. 27.—The steamship Portia, from New York, arrived here last night. She saw no signs of the steamer Falcon. Officers of the Portia believe the Falcon went down in the gale on Oct. 5. Bowring Bros., the owners of the Falcon, have given her up, and it is not expected that any of the missing steamer's crew have been saved.

The Lorraine Mills' Strike.

Pawtucket, R. I., Oct. 27.—The strike of the worsted weavers at the Lorraine mills appears further from settlement than ever, A. G. McColl stating that he cannot see his way clear to restore the old price list.

CZAR MUCH BETTER.

It Is Understood That He Will Now Go to Corfu.

London, Oct. 27.—Dispatches received at the Russian Embassy here from Livadia say that the Czar is much better, and that he breakfasted with appetite and energy. A dispatch to the Chronicle from St. Petersburg says that every military member of the imperial family is decidedly for peace. The Czarewitch has shown an earnest desire in this direction. The dispatch adds that the usual winter gayeties will be impossible. Retail trade is dull.

Plymouth, England, Oct. 27.—The Russian imperial yacht Pole Star has left this port for Livadia, where it is understood she will take the Czar and the imperial family on board and carry them to Corfu.

Berlin, Oct. 27.—A special service, at which prayers were offered for the recovery of the Czar, was held at the chapel of the Russian Embassy here. Emperor William was present at the service, and commanded the presence of the royal Princes, the aide-de-camp, the general commanders of regiments, the Berlin garrison staff and the officers of the Alexandria regiments.

St. Petersburg, Oct. 27.—The following bulletin was issued at 11 o'clock:

"The Czar slept fairly well last night, and his appetite this morning is good. There are no somnolent or convulsive symptoms. The oedema has increased."

This bulletin is signed in the regular manner by the physicians in attendance.

VICTORIA WOODHULL BACK.

She Arrives from London To Arrange for Publishing Her Magazine.

New York, Oct. 27.—The Cunard line steamship Lucania brought, among many other prominent persons, last night, a woman who twenty years ago was one of the most talked-of women in this country. She arrived here in the person of Mrs. J. B. Martin. She was in the old days Victoria C. Woodhull, who with Tenny C. Claflin lectured in this country and roused the gossips of society throughout the entire world. Mrs. Martin was accompanied here by her husband, Mr. J. B. Martin, a wealthy Englishman, and her daughter, Miss Lulu M. Woodhull, who assists her mother in editing The Humanitarian, a monthly magazine managed, owned and edited by Victoria Woodhull-Martin in London. Mrs. Martin intends publishing The Humanitarian in this city and London simultaneously, and has come to this country to make arrangements to that end. Mrs. Martin is still enthusiastic on the subject of finance and has studied and developed the question up to the present day. She has received offers from managers in several of the large cities of the country, including Boston, Chicago and New York, to lecture on this and other subjects, and will in a few weeks conclude arrangements to speak in these cities.

POLITICAL ASSESSMENTS.

Result of Mr. Roosevelt's Investigation of the Philadelphia Charges.

Washington, Oct. 27.—"In reference to the charges of political assessment at Philadelphia," said Civil Service Commissioner Roosevelt, "the commission finds after the investigation that there has been very little attempt at assessment in either the post-office or custom house, so far as the classified service is concerned, the majority of the clerks, carriers, etc., being left free to contribute to either party as they wished. In the mint the condition of affairs was much the same as at the Pittsburg internal revenue office. Most of the employes were men appointed for political reasons from the ranks of the dominant party. These people have received circulars asking them to contribute, and again reminding them of their failure to contribute if they did not do so on the first request. Apparently there was no violation of the law committed in the way these circulars were sent, and there was certainly no duress exercised by the head of the mint on his subordinates to make them contribute. Until offices like the mint are classified they cannot be taken out of politics, and until they are taken out of politics they will always be good fields for the operations of the collector of political assessments."

Situation at Fall River.

Fall River, Mass., Oct. 27.—The State Board of Arbitration failed to make any satisfactory settlement of the troubles in this city by their visit here. The manufacturers will not recede from their position outlined yesterday. To-day a meeting of the weavers will be held and the question of remaining out longer or throwing down their hands will be voted on. Secretary Whitehead thinks the weavers will not return to work, and says the manufacturers' letter is an evasion. He says it was written more in a spirit of revenge than it was with dealing with the question at issue.

VON CAPRIVI IS OUT

Zu Eulenburg's Resignation Also Accepted.

Pirnce von Hohenlohe-Schillingsfurst Offered the Chancellorship—Several Stories Regarding the Retirement of Caprivi—Comments of the English Press.

Berlin, Oct. 27.—The report that Chancellor von Caprivi has handed his resignation to the Emperor is confirmed. Count zu Eulenburg, president of the Ministerial Council, has also resigned. Dr. Miquel, Prussian Finance Minister, has been appointed president of the Council, and Prince von Hohenlohe-Shillingsfurst, Governor of Alsace-Lorraine, has been offered the Chancellorship.

London, Oct. 27.—The Central News correspondent in Berlin sends this dispatch concerning Caprivi's resignation:

"Count von Caprivi resigned on the 23d, but the Emperor called upon him and persuaded him to reconsider his resignation. The relations between the Chancellor and Count Bothno zu Eulenburg, however, grew more strained. First Eulenburg and then Caprivi asked to be retired today, and the Emperor promptly dismissed them both.

"The Emperor is credited with holding the opinion that the separation of the Chancellorship and Prussian Premiership has been a failure, and that it is imperative to reunite them. Among the many reports as to the cause of the crisis is one that Caprivi displeased the Emperor by expressing disapproval of His Majesty's speech at the recent presentation of colors to 132 regiments. The Emperor then hinted that the half battalions would soon be made full ones. The Chancellor not only disapproved of this speech, but also opposed the publication of it in the Reichsanzeiger. It is due to his opposition that the speech has not yet appeared in official form."

The Morning Post's Berlin correspondent says: "Everybody with a sense of fair play denounces the despicable intrigue of the Agrarian and Bismarckian reactionist groups against Count von Caprivi. The Socialists will rejoice because the dread of them, although they did not raise a finger, has been sufficient to plunge the empire into a crisis."

The Daily News correspondent in Berlin says of Caprivi's fall: "After the conference with the Federal Ministers the Chancellor had an audience with the Emperor, who is understood to have approved of his Minister's proposals in everything. It was settled that he should remain. The only difficulty was in bringing about tolerable relations between Caprivi and Eulenburg, whose antagonism was an open secret. The matter had assumed the character of a personal quarrel which, in the interest of the authority of the Government, had to be settled. This seems to have been the cause of Caprivi's fall. The Emperor had the alternative, Caprivi or Eulenburg, and he decides in favor of the latter. It may be, also, that His Majesty was annoyed by the Government papers which so openly expressed satisfaction at Eulenburg's defeat in the conference.

"It is not known whether the Chancellor previously informed His Majesty of his intention to convoke the Federal Ministers; if not, the reason of his fall is clear. It was an imperial reprimand. Bismarck's conference with Windthorst without the Imperial knowledge really caused Bismarck's fall, and the present situation is somewhat similar to the one in the spring of 1890. Bismarck will enjoy a happy day. By his hand his successor has at last been overthrown and under similar circumstances. Caprivi's fall is a purely domestic affair and in no way affects Germany's foreign policy. A more active course in colonial affairs possibly will take place, for Caprivi always was averse to colonial adventures. The event must, however, affect Germany's position in Europe. At home the removal of Caprivi must arouse the greatest apprehensions in German liberal quarters. Although a thorough conservative he was not a man of force.

The Standard says editorially: "The crisis is astonishingly sudden. If either Minister had to go we would have supposed he was Eulenburg, inasmuch as Caprivi was credited throughout the difficulty with holding the trump position. It may well excite serious feeling, as Bismarck resigned the reins in deference to the demands for a new course. Is it to be inferred that Caprivi's resignation implies the adoption of a yet newer course?"

The Daily News comments: "It is the Bismarck business all over again. The Emperor probably will take things into his own hands for a while. He is an astonishing sort of imperial ruler, a bewilderingly incongruous mediaeval figure in the center of modern Europe. It is a German question altogether, and a stranger may regard the crisis from the pictorial point of view."

The Times correspondent in Berlin says: "In political circles, whether friendly or unfriendly to Count von Caprivi, there is absolutely no explanation obtainable of the reasons which led to this sudden coup de theatre. It is idle to speculate at present on the consequences. I am assured on good authority that the issue was purely personal at the last, and quite incommensurate with the grave results involved. After he visited Caprivi, the Emperor was the guest of Count Philip zu Eulenburg, whose brothers are the Prussian Premier and the Marshal of Ceremonies. It might therefore be inferred that the Emperor yielded to the influence of the Eulenburg family, with whom he has always been intimate, but the resignation of Count Botho zu Eulenburg hardly bears out the inference."

Paris, Oct. 26.—The Petite Bourse was much depressed by the news of Chancellor Von Caprivi's resignation.

Where Barnstormers Are Safe.

Ebensburg, Pa., Oct. 27.—According to a decision just rendered by Judge A. V. Barker, it is not a crime to jump a board bill in Pennsylvania if no false pretences have been resorted to. George Hoover, of Morrellville, skipped a board bill last week and was sentenced to thirty days in jail for it by Justice of the Peace D. S. Burkhardt. The Cambria County Commissioners made a test of it, took out a writ of habeas corpus and had Hoover taken before Judge Barker, who decided he had committed no crime under the law and was therefore illegally imprisoned, so he was discharged.

Price of Stamped Envelopes Reduced

Washington, Oct. 27.—Third Assistant Postmaster General Craig returned from Holyoke, Mass., where he has been inspecting the factory making stamped envelopes. He found everything progressing and the work of the first order. General Craig says that on Jan. 1 a reduction will be made in the price of stamped envelopes, because they are now made cheaper than formerly.

Raid on Lottery Den at New Haven.

New Haven, Oct. 27.—The police made another raid last night on a lottery den in Lamar Block, on Crown street. Over two thousand tickets in a drawing to take place in November were captured. No arrests were made, but some are looked for.

Injured by a Trolly Car.

Worcester, Mass., Oct. 27.—Mrs. Alice Deacon, twenty-six years old, was struck by an electric car on Lincoln street last night and sustained a fractured skull, ribs and arm. She will probably die.

SHUTS OUT OUR BEEF

Germany Probably Begins a Policy of Retaliation.

Claimed That Cattle Shipped from the United States Is Affected with Texas Fever—Believed in Washington That Our Discrimination Against German Beet Sugar Is at the Bottom of the Trouble.

Washington, Oct. 27.—The German Ambassador has formally notified the Secretary of State that in consequence of the introduction of Texas fever by means of two shipments from New York, the importation of fresh beef and cattle from the United States to Germany will shortly be prohibited. In his official note, Baron Von Saurma-Jeltsch adds, in regard to cargoes afloat, that shipments made from the United States up to the 28th of October will be permitted to enter German ports only on condition of being slaughtered immediately upon landing.

The Department of State makes public the notice for the information of intending shippers of live cattle and fresh beef intended for German ports, but officials decline to comment upon the matter, declaring that they have no further information regarding the cause of this action of the German Government. It is thought, however, that this marks the commencement of a policy of commercial retaliation against the United States on account of the discrimination against German beet sugar in the new Tariff law.

The Department of Agriculture, which maintains a careful inspection of cattle and meat products exported, insists that it is impossible that cattle affected with Texas fever or any similar complaint could have been shipped from New York, as claimed by the German officials. No reports have been received which indicate that this disease or any other could have recently been exported from the United States. Cattle are not expected to arrive in perfect condition in foreign ports after the long sea voyage, particularly at this season of the year, when vessels are liable to have rough passages, due to the stormy conditions which prevail on the Atlantic. The feverish condition thus produced by the sea voyage is probably what is called "Texas fever" by the German Government.

No complaints have been received from other countries. The note of the German Ambassador is the first intimation that the Germans had any fault to find with American exportations of cattle. The Department of Agriculture will be called upon to investigate the complaint made by Germany, and Secretary Gresham, it is expected, will send a protest against Germany's action to that Government through the American Ambassador at Berlin.

HILL TO STATE DEMOCRACY.

He Sends a Letter Expressing Thanks for Their Support.

New York, Oct. 27.—The following letter from Senator Hill was read last night at the State Democracy mass meeting:

New York, Oct. 25.

Hon. W. R. Grace, Chairman Executive Committee.

My Dear Sir: I am in receipt of your kind invitation to address the New York State Democracy organization at its ratification meeting of the State ticket, to be held on the 26th inst. I regret that engagements previously made to speak in the interior of the State will prevent my acceptance of the invitation.

"I am gratified that the Democrats represented by the organization, in whose behalf your invitation is extended, realize the importance of the present campaign and propose to loyally support the Democratic State ticket nominated at Saratoga. The election in this State involves the supremacy of the Democratic party; it involves the approval or disapproval of the Federal Administration; its result will largely shape the destiny of our party in the future.

"Expressing my appreciation of the support of the Democrats of all factions regardless of local or past differences, and with my best wishes for the success of the Democracy everywhere, I remain, your fellow citizen, DAVID B. HILL."

Falcon's Crew Not Landed.

St. John's, N. F., Oct. 27.—A report has been circulated here that the crew of the steamer Falcon, which sailed from Philadelphia for this port twenty-three days ago, had arrived safely in Bermuda, though the steamer had been lost. Investigation showed the report to be without foundation. Captain Ash, of the Red Cross steamer Portia, from New York, which arrived last night, thinks that the Falcon is not above water, though he admits there is a chance of the crew having been saved by a sailing vessel. Henry G. Bryant, the leader of this year's Peary auxiliary expedition, has telegraphed to friends here expressing fears that the Falcon has been lost. Much sympathy is expressed here for the relatives of the ship's company. The crew numbered sixteen all told. Thirteen were married.

Troops Massing Near the Frontier.

City of Mexico, Oct. 27.—Troups are drilling and massing at certain points in Guatemala, near the Mexican frontier, notably at Retalhuelen, and a large review is in progress at Quezaltenango, under the command of General Jose Marin Miron. Senor Jorge Munoz, the new Guatemalan Minister of Foreign Affairs, is said to be averse to a friendly settlement with Mexico. Emilio, the special Guatemalan deputy to Mexico, will start for Mexico on Nov. 10. Frontier Mexican towns are calling on the Government for troops to protect them in the event of raids from Guatemala, but no one here believes that war is imminent.

Morganfield Is Morgan.

Neeleyville, Mo., Oct. 27.—Chief of Police Flanagan, of this city, suspected when he read of the capture of Morganfield, one of the Virginia train robbers, that he was really Charles A. Morgan, who has made his home here with his young wife for the last two years. The Chief's suspicions were confirmed by the receipt of a photograph of Morganfield showing that he and Morgan were the same persons. The train robber was in the habit of leaving his home for a month or two at a time. He departed the last time nearly two months ago, and not even his wife knew of his whereabouts.

Another Defaulter.

Hartford, Conn., Oct. 27.—J. Allen Francis, teller of the City Bank of Hartford since 1856, is a defaulter for about $23,000, has confessed and is now in jail. He makes no explanation of his use of the stolen funds. The American Surety Company is on his bond for $10,000, and he has turned over a few thousand dollars, so that the bank will not lose over $10,000. It has a capital of $440,000 and its net surplus after deducting the entire defalcation amounts to $126,000. Francis is a single man and has a large acquaintance.

Shipwrecked Crew Landed.

Liverpool, Oct. 27.—The British steamer Engineer, just arrived here from New Orleans, landed the crew of the American bark George W. Sweeney. The Sweeney sailed from Philadelphia for Galveston Oct. 2. She was abandoned and set on fire in lat. 31, long. 72, on October 11. Her cargo had shifted and she was beamended.

THE BUSINESS OUTLOOK

Situation at Present Not So Hopeful.

Advices Based on the Practical Conclusion of Fall Trade and Delay in Demand for Holiday Goods—Depressing Tendencies Rule the New York Stock Market.

New York, Oct. 27.—Bradstreet's review of the business situation for the week just closing shows conditions not so hopeful as they were during the month of September and the first half of the present month. Merchants interviewed in various portions of the country report in some instances the condition of business as not having realized anticipations, and at other points that the recent bright outlook for trade is modified. Such advices are based in part on the practical conclusion of the fall trade and delays in demand for holiday goods. Dealers in dry goods, clothing, groceries, shoes, hats and a few other lines have had relatively the more satisfactory volume of business, although in many instances fault has been found with the totals shipped. General trade continues checked throughout some portions of the regions supplied by Kansas City, St. Louis, Omaha, Minneapolis and St. Paul, due to unseasonably warm weather. At the South low prices for cotton continue to affect business unfavorably, many larger merchants being more cautious as to granting credits to interior merchants. Throughout a large portion of the region between Ohio and the Northwest, interior jobbers will continue to carry small stocks throughout the winter. Eastern dry goods jobbers report only low-cost goods moving with any freedom, and the outlook for a settlement of the Fall River strike less favorable. Domestic fleeces are depressed by freer offerings of Australian wool at concessions. The outlook for a war among the coal roads is not so bright as late reports indicate, it being unlikely that the producing and carrying companies will enter into an active antagonism until the results of the attempt to advance prices for November with unrestricted mining are ascertained.

Bank Deposits.

Reports to Bradstreet's from 1,117 national, State and private banks of discount at 122 cities in the United States show total deposits September 1 last of $1,935,000,000, an increase of about $510,000,000 since Sept. 1, 1893, just after the panic, but a gain of only one-half of 1 per cent. since May 1, 1894. Compared with May 1, 1893, just before the panic, the increase in total deposits is only $155,000,000, about three-quarters of the probable average increase of deposits within like periods of sixteen months in preceding years, as indicated by returns from all national banks to the Comptroller of the Currency. Total loans Sept. 1 last aggregated $1,808,000,000, an increase of only $77,000,000 since May 1, 1894, and of only $187,000,000 since Sept. 1, 1893, just after the panic, as contrasted with an increase of $510,000,000 in deposits since the panic ended. More striking than this is the net decrease in total loans of Sept. 1, 1894, of more than 2 per cent. compared with May 1, 1893, just prior to the panic. Reports to Bradstreet's from 850 savings banks at 85 cities, with deposits aggregating five-sixths of the grand total of all savings banks deposits, indicate that withdrawals from such institutions, for a variety of motives, since May 1, 1893, have aggregated $113,000,000. Sums due depositors in savings banks were $49,000,000 smaller on May 1, 1894, than on Sept. 1, 1893, about 4 per cent., and had increased within four months ending Aug. 31 last not quite $20,000,000, less than 2 per cent.

Stock Market Dead.

Stagnation and depressing tendencies rule the New York stock market. The coal stocks are depressed by the demoralized condition of the anthracite trade and a belief that the advance in coal prices cannot be maintained. Speculation is at a standstill, and the market, though partly relieved as to immediate gold shipments, is inclined to wait for the results of the election and the anticipated development of public interest. Bonds are slow but firm.

The reactionary tendency of prices for staples continues prominent, but Indian corn finally shows a fractional advance. Wheat is off ¼c., oats ⅞c., pork 25c., lard 15c., sugar ⅛c., cotton ⅛c. and print cloths ⅛c.; iron and steel have sold lower or as low as the lowest; domestic wools are weaker, and the rush of low-grade cattle and hogs to market has sent prices down to 10@15c. Total bank clearings throughout the United States for six business days ending with Thursday this week amounted to $912,000,000, against $950,000,000 last week, a decrease of about 2-5 per cent., and as compared with $919,000,000 in the corresponding week of October last year, a loss of about one-third of 1 per cent. But when compared with the total of the like week of October, 1892, the decrease is seen to be $258,000,000, or 22 per cent. Business failures throughout the United States this week number 221, against 253 last week, and as compared with 329 in the like week of 1893, 220 in 1892 and 205 in 1891.

Boston merchants are meeting daily needs only, shoe manufacturers alone reporting quite active movement. At Providence manufacturing jewelers are still active, as are makers of other holiday goods. Philadelphia textile operators do not regard the near outlook as very encouraging. General trade is very quiet, except with a few at Buffalo. Pittsburg's advices do not show material improvement, and at Baltimore the season is ended with the volume of business greater than last year, but prices very low. Demand for staples is moderately active West at Cleveland, Cincinnati, Louisville, Kansas City, Des Moines, Milwaukee, Minneapolis, St. Paul, Duluth and Portland, Ore. Dry goods and clothing remain relatively most active at Chicago, where, as at St. Louis, there has been no gain in volume of goods distributed within a week. Omaha's advices are that sales of staples this week are less than in a like period one year ago.

Picked Up in the Indian Ocean.

Baltimore, Oct. 27.—Captain Davies, of the steamer Ping Suey, reports: Aug. 30 picked up seven German musicians, passengers on steamer Brilinger, bound from Brisbane, Australia, to London. The Brilinger was aground on Gafor Island, Indian Ocean. Her captain and crew had gone ashore to explore the island and seek assistance, leaving the passengers aboard. Three days had elapsed since the crew left the vessel, and there being no provisions at hand, the passengers were nearly famished.

Big Quarries Attached.

Easton, Pa., Oct. 27.—The Sheriff has levied upon the property of the Edelman Bros.' slate quarries at Edelman's, this county, to satisfy a claim of $15,000 held by the First National Bank of Easton. The quarries are among the largest in this section, and have been idle for some time.

New York Police Indictments.

New York, Oct. 27.—It can be stated with almost certainty that indictments have been found in several of the police cases. An official in the District Attorney's office said that the office might be very busy to-day attending to bail bonds.

Smith and Van Heest Fight a Draw.

Buffalo, Oct. 27.—The fifteen-round fight last night between Solly Smith and Johnny Van Heest resulted in a draw.

Ex-Councilman Spangenberg declares that he is not seeking the mayoralty, nor any other political position in Plainfield. His friends are seeking to persuade him, however.

The Hunterdon Gazette, Republican, asks: "Are the luxuries of life as easy to get as they formerly were?" We say no, but the necessities of life are much easier to get than when taxed as under the McKinley bill.

The Daily Press "Want and Offer" ad for an amanuensis brought 30 available responses. The ad was ordered out yesterday, but by mistake was re-inserted last night. That brought 9 more applicants. Daily Press ads produce results.

Westfield is progressive. Her Town Committee last night decided to grant franchises for the electric trunk railway, and set November 12 as the date for passage of the legislation. That New York-Philadelphia road is bound to get to Plainfield.

Advertising pays. Especially does it pay in The Daily Press. Rogers the seafood man decided on a new venture, homemade clam chowder. It was mighty good chowder, and The Press boomed it. Rogers had a tankful of it, but 'twas gone by noon today, and still the orders kept pouring in all the afternoon.

The last Republican Legislature made a direct strike at the workingmen and women of the State when it smothered at the direction of the great insurance companies, the bill which proposed to compel Industrial Insurance Companies to give a paid-up policy to any person who had continually paid premiums. Through pressure of hard times many a man who had taken out a policy found it impossible to continue his weekly payments—hence the workingmen caused to be introduced into the Legislature a bill for relief. It did not suit the moneyed institutions, which had fattened through lapses in payment and forfeiture of policy. It was shown by the workingmen that from this cause alone one insurance company had reaped from the hard earnings of the frugal people 40 or 50 times as much as the amount of their death policies. This should and will be remembered.

CHURCH CHIMES.

"The Churches and Good Government" will be the subject of Rev. Hobart Clark tomorrow evening.

Rev. C. W. Bolton of Pelhamville, N. Y., will officiate in the Church of the Heavenly Rest tomorrow.

Rev. James E. Holmes of Mamaroneck will exchange pulpits with Rev. C. E. Herring of the First Presbyterian Church tomorrow, preaching both morning and evening.

The Industrial Christian Alliance of New York will tell in the Crescent Avenue Presbyterian Church tomorrow evening, the story of its remarkable work during the past three years among the helpless and hopeless class of men in the metropolis. Plainfield people are interested in this work. In a sense it was born here, F. C. Harder and Drs. Lewis and Richards being among the incorporators of the institution, while many Plainfield citizens are among its supporters. The meeting tomorrow will be addressed by A. W. Milbury, Secretary of the Alliance, by several of its employes, and by Drs. Richards and Lewis.

THE SECRET ORDERS.

Howell Division, S. of T., is arranging a lunch-box social to be given next Tuesday evening.

Franklin Council, No. 41, J. O. U. A. M., will give their third grand fair in Central Hall Nov. 12 to 17.

After enjoying a good of the order programme last evening Miantonomoh's members adjourned to Iona's fair.

M. H. Rothschild and M. H. Haym, delegates of the G. O. F., of Savannah, paid the Plainfield lodge a visit yesterday, and saw the sights.

The promoters of a German lodge are not discouraged by their failure to organize Thursday night. They will meet next week, and hope that those who were kept away by the storm will then attend.

George W. Moore, assisted by several comrades from Winfield Scott Post, No. 73, G. A. R., will inspect Department Commander Shields's Post in Finmington, Nov. 14. Winfield Scott Post, No. 73, will be inspected by Joseph A Sedam Tuesday, Nov. 27. W. O. Smith of Post 73 will inspect Robert Boggs Post, No. 67, of New Brunswick, Wednesday, Dec. 12, and Charles S. Olden Post, No. 44, of Metuchen, Tuesday, Nov. 20.

HOTEL GUESTS BURNED TO DEATH.

Seattle, Wash., Oct. 27.—A fire which resulted in the death of at least twelve persons and the injury of three more broke out in the West Street House at Columbia and West streets about 1 this morning. At 3 the fire was under control and a investigation of the ruins was made. All the dead were burned beyond recognition.

BUYING A SEWAGE FARM.

ITS LOCATION ON JEFFERSON AVENUE.

Part of the Purchase Money Paid.

It is understood that the city has definitely decided on the location of the sewage farm. The spot chosen is on Jefferson avenue near the mountain. It is known as the Brokaw farm and is situated in North Plainfield Township almost directly under the Rock.

It was formerly owned by the late George Smock, and the present owner is Isaac Brokaw of Brokaw Brothers, New York clothiers.

The occupants are T. T. Barrett and son John Y. Barrett, who call it Rockview Farm. It consists of 175 acres. Part of the purchase money was paid yesterday.

EARLY INTELLIGENCE.

—Joseph Pike tells his friends he is going on the stage.

—The city fire department has had six fires so far this month.

—John Force's dog was restored to him through a Daily Press ad.

—Do you need gloves for tomorrow? Hallock sells Dents; they are the best.

—Mr. Woltmann's dog "Jocko" has been regained through a Daily Press ad.

—A. G. Fisk's lost dog was recovered through one day's advertising in The Daily Press.

—Samuel Kriney of West Front street caught a large carp in New Market pond this morning.

—Justice Newcorn is to try the case on contract of Harry Werner against Arthur Stevens next Friday.

—The landlord and tenant case of Vail against Matthews will come up in Justice Nash's Court Oct. 31.

—You will find White of Plainfield's advertisement brimful of information that will be of interest to you.

—Drake's elegant new Opera House, Elizabeth, will tonight present "Wang" in its complete metropolitan shape.

—A horse owned by Davis & Stevens was successfully treated for a very severe case of colic by Dr. L. S. Pocock last night.

—The case on contract of the Stanley Wood Turning Company against John Chandler will be tried by Justice Nash Nov. 1.

—Gilbride & Lodge, the enterprising new cigar dealers of North avenue, have had a showy sign painted by Theodore Vroom.

—Gilbert Murray, whose ability and experience as a clipper of horses are widely known, is on duty at Roberts's livery stable.

—Several merchants of the city and North Plainfield are organizing a party to go hunting in Bucks County, Pennsylvania, next week.

—Postmaster Hetfield has had a new sorting desk built for the Netherwood route. It was built by Andrew Godown and finished in oil by Woolston & Buckle.

—Putnam & DeGraw have just received an elegant line of percale shirts, two collars and a pair of cuffs with each one, which they offer for $1. There are several colors from which to select.

—The Postal Telegraph strung the wires for its first district of messenger call boxes along Front street yesterday. The second district is being put in working order today. The wires have been dead for five months.

—"No. 2" is the singular name given to a size of coal which Thorpe & Ivins are handling, and as it is sold at a dollar a ton below other sizes, perhaps it may be said of it: "A coal would burn as well by this as any other name".

—A Hallow e'en sale of homemade cakes, pies, canned fruits, and candies, will be held in the vacant store next door to Rockfellow's grocery store, 326 Park avenue, Wednesday evening, Oct. 31, for the benefit of the "Y's".

—Marsh, Ayers & Co. begin work on the exterior and interior of E. A. Overton's Rockview avenue house Monday. The interior will be finished with handsome pressed goods and Linerusta Walton. They also start on the exterior of E. L. Finch's house Monday.

—Steadily progressing, satisfying everybody, Boice, Runyon & Co. are doing the same reliable business as ever, at the old stand, Park avenue, head of North. They keep their immense stock under cover, and fill orders promptly and with complete satisfaction. That great building help, Adamant Wall Plaster, also is for sale by Boice, Runyon & Co.

RAPIDLY BREAKING DOWN

MRS. S. BATES TELLS THE STORY OF HER SUFFERINGS.

How She Was Cured By Munyon's Little Pellets After Physicians Had Failed.

Mrs. S. Bates, of Cecil, N. J., adds her testimony to that of the thousands who have been saved from a life of suffering by Munyon's Remedies. She said: "I had suffered greatly with indigestion and stomach trouble. Everything I ate distressed me, I was nervous and fretful and rapidly breaking down. Physicians had failed to help me, nor did any of the many remedies I took relieve me until I began using Munyon's Dyspepsia Cure. The result was astonishing. After taking but three doses I felt greatly improved, and after taking one 25c. bottle I was entirely cured."

Munyon's Stomach and Dyspepsia Cure cures all forms of indigestion and stomach troubles such as constipation, rising of food, distress after eating, bloating of the stomach, palpitation of the heart, shortness of breath and all affections of the heart caused by indigestion. It soothes, heals and invigorates stomachs that have been weakened by over-eating, or where the lining of the stomach has been impaired by physic and injurious medicines. Price 25 cents.

Munyon's Homoeopathic Home Remedy Company, of Philadelphia, put up specifics for nearly every disease, which are sold by all druggists, mostly for 25 cents a bottle.

PARTICULAR MENTION.

Chas. Potter has secured a new patent for a web-supporting device for printing presses.

Letters have been received from John Daly telling of his safe arrival in Barbadoes, en route to Para, Brazil.

Lewis Lowrie, of Reynolds's Pharmacy, concludes his vacation by a visit to "Wang" in Elizabeth to night.

Rev. Thomas Bosling Howlett of Philadelphia is stopping with relatives on Elmwood place for a few days.

Mrs. E. I. Kelly of Newark returned home today after a visit with her brother, John Smalley of Manson place.

The Chrysanthemum Circle will give an invitation Hallow E'en dance in the Fanwood clubhouse Wednesday evening.

Mrs. W. E. Delta of Brooklyn is visiting her aunt and cousin, Mrs. S. O. Horton and Mrs. Emily Cory, of 55 Somerset street.

Samuel Boss has removed from the corner of Front street and Central avenue to Central avenue, corner of Fifth street.

Mrs. William Dean, who has been spending the Summer in South Plainfield, leaves this evening with her son for Atlanta, Ga.

A birthday surprise party was given to Harvey Morrison, son of Joseph Morrison of Watchung avenue and Fourth street from 2 to 4 this afternoon.

Mrs. S. R. Kroon has been continued for another year superintendent of the tobacco and narcotic department of the State W. C. T. U. for the coming year.

The home of Editor Charles Bullman of The Safety Valve, at 803 Third place, has been unusually happy since Thursday night, when a nine-pound baby girl arrived.

Mr. Kemnler died today at his home between Dunellen and Bound Brook. He was 60 years of age. The funeral services will be held at the house Monday afternoon at 2.

The eight-months-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Peter McDonough of 611 West Third street died this morning. The funeral services will be held tomorrow afternoon at 2:30 from the house.

Mr. and Mrs. William M. Runyon have rented their cozy home, 314 East Front street, to Mr. Havens and family, for the Winter from Nov. 1. Mr. and Mrs. Runyon will spend the Winter boarding in New York city.

Invitations have been issued for a social party at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Norbury, 189 North avenue, next Wednesday evening, when the sixteenth birthday anniversary of Miss Florence Norbury will be celebrated.

John M. Lewis of Grove street was best man Thursday night at the wedding of his friend, Robert W. Stead of Elizabeth, to Miss Alice W. Heald at 144 Rahway avenue, that city. Rev. E. T. Tomlinson officiated.

John Raymond, for many years a resident of Plainfield, and after whom Raymond avenue was named, called at The Daily Press office today. He will visit for a few days his daughter-in-law, Mrs. Charles Raymond, in Scotch Plains.

CYCLING COMMENT.

Counselor W. K. McClure is a graceful rider of the pneumatic.

The Crescents expect to have 25 riders start on the century run next Tuesday.

The bicycle race of the Richmond street boys, scheduled for this morning on the Fanwood-Scotch Plains course, was postponed till next Saturday.

Monte Scott leaves for Providence this afternoon. His racing clothes have been packed in camphor, but they may be used again this Winter if the southern tracks and 25-mile roads seem attractive to the Plainfield favorite.

The riders are after Cycling Monte's 5 to 25 mile records that he made here Oct. 12. W. DeCardy of Chicago sets up a claim for 25 miles in 1:03:52½ October 19, and after a week's rest, five miles in 12:04 and ten miles in 24:13½. These would beat Monte's records, but then DeCardy rode on a mile circle in Garfield Park, which comes pretty near to being a track, and the course was 400 yards short, although the officers say they allowed for this. E. A. Nelson of Springfield talks about another five mile record in a park, 11:08.

—The Somerville Democrat says: "James C. Field, of the old-established Somerville Pharmacy, has received the contract from the State to furnish all the drugs for the State prison for one year from November 1. Mr. Field is a hustler, and we are glad to see that he is extending his business." Mr. Field was formerly in business here, and visited Plainfield friends last night.

AT REYNOLDS'S PHARMACY

A BROADWAY CORNER BURNED.

Loss of $250,000 at Leonard Street.

New York, Oct. 27.—Flames burned off the northwest corner of Leonard street and Broadway at about 8 this morning and had penetrated well in towards the centre of the compact square of businesshouses before they were got under control. About $250,000 damage was done, but the property was pretty well insured and the structures destroyed are old, out of keeping with those on the other three Broadway corners, so that the loss is expected to have a compensation in the erection of larger, more modern buildings.

Why Mr. Cleveland Did Not Register.

One of the managers of the Democratic campaign said this morning that on the authority of an eminent lawyer of New York city he was able to state that President Cleveland no longer possessed a right to vote there. The President, he said, had requested an opinion from his old law firm and they after a careful examination of the question, had decided that the President could not vote in New York State. This, the manager continued, explains the President's failure to register.

—Housewives praise the home-made clam chowder Rogers is selling.

—J. W. VanSyckel, the North avenue butcher, has just received a large stock of fine Spring turkeys. They are nice ones. Call and see them.

—Dr. Robert Barclay of St. Louis writes to the "Town Clerk of Plainfield", asking what record exists of one John Barclay who was born here in 1702. City Clerk MacMurray has turned the letter over to Secretary Newman of the Board of Health.

—Charles H. Larkin is in town today and was welcomed by his old friend The Daily Press. Inasmuch as the manager of Music Hall has failed to give the coming of Mr. Larkin's show the publicity it deserves and the advertising it was promised, The Press in justice to Mr. Larkin assures the public that in Gorton's Minstrels he presents a great entertainment. The excellent street parade of this noon will be repeated at 6:30 this evening for the sake of those whose Saturday Sabbath ends at sunset.

GOV. PECK AND THE DRUMMER.

How the Author and Politician Silenced a Traveling Defamer.

They tell a characteristic story of George W. Peck. When his fame as the author of the bad-boy experiences was at its height and while he was actually rolling in riches Peck made a trip to California, partly for rest and partly to see the country of which he had heard so much. A notoriously poor dresser, he was at this particular time very shabbily clad, and in his coarse, ill-fitting garments you would hardly have recognized the man everybody was talking about, and the man, too, whose check was good for a cool $100,000. One day, crossing the plains, Peck was curled up in a seat in the smoking-car, when his attention was attracted to a group of drummers across the aisle.

The train boy had just gone through the car vending his literature and the drummers were discussing the book called "Peck's Bad Boy." One of the party—a particularly noisy fellow—boasted of a personal acquaintance with the author of the book—yes he knew Peck intimately and forthwith he proceeded to regale his friends with elaborate stories of his experiences with the Wisconsin humorist. From his point of vantage across the way Peck listened in silent surprise to the preposterous inventions of the fellow, and his amazement deepened into horror and chagrin when the garrulous drummer, encouraged by the interested countenances of his hearers, pursued his discourse to the extent of narrating, with scrupulous attention to detail, the incidents of an alleged spree which "me an' Peck" once enjoyed together.

You can fancy how wroth poor Peck became when he heard himself pictured as the veriest sot and libertine, for if there are virtues upon which he prides himself they are his temperance and his morality. Having heard himself dragged by this superb liar through the boozing kens and low resorts of Milwaukee, Brother Peck finally arose, gathered himself together and broke in upon the mendacious drummer's narrative. He said that he had known Peck a great many years and was able to declare that Peck never tasted liquor and never visited disreputable places. Warming up to his business in hand, Peck dilated with severity upon the evil practice of falsely laying claim to acquaintance with people, a practice too often indulged, by vulgar, noisy persons.

He concluded his castigation of the offender by disclosing his identity, by denouncing the blatant drummer as an impostor, and by saying: "Hereafter, sir, when you are tempted to lie about me, pray let your fancy concern itself with me alone. When you report that I am a libertine you reflect upon my home relations, and that is an offence which I shall not tolerate. You may advertise me as a fool, as a drunkard, as a thief, but be precious careful not to libel or slander me in such wise as to wrong and pain those whose relations to me as wife and children are my paramount, sweetest, tenderest, most sacred consideration.

The story goes on to relate that by the time Peck concluded his remarks the loquacious drummer had shrivelled up into such a little wad that you could almost have plugged a keyhole with him.—Chicago Record.

Small Pay for Big Work.

A man who answered an advertisement for foreman on a farm in Hampshire, England, recently, found out that he was expected to oversee all the labor on a farm of 2,000 acres, on which were 36 cart horses and 800 sheep, to get the men up early in the morning and keep them at work all day, to look after the carts and tools, keep accounts and so on. In payment for this he was to receive the use of a cottage and eighteen shillings ($4.50) a week.

A Revival of Archery.

There seems to be a revival in England of archery, the contrast between the hurried movements and unbecoming glow of the feminine lawn tennis player on one side and the graceful and stately calm of the fair archer, on the other, being altogether to the advantage of the latter. It is a graceful diversion and one at which Queen Victoria excelled thirty-five years or forty years ago, when archery was one of her favorite pastimes.

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR.

Topic For the Week Beginning Oct. 28. Comment by Rev. S. H. Doyle.

TOPIC.—What Christ heals and how.—Matth. viii, 5-17.

In the topical reference we have recalled to us two familiar instances in which Christ when upon earth healed diseases of the body. The first is the case of the centurion's servant, because of the great faith of whose master Jesus healed without going to him. The second is the case of Peter's wife's mother, who was sick with the fever.

In these cases and in many others in the gospels we see Christ represented as the healer of the bodies of men. Now, can it be doubted today that in case of sickness it is right for us to pray unto our Lord for His blessing upon the means that are put forth for the recovery of the sick? But we have no encouragement in the word of God to pray that Christ would use his miraculous power in healing the diseases of our bodies today.

1. What Christ heals. Although we have no reason to look upon Christ today as the particular physician of our bodies, yet the Bible still represents him as a physician. But it is in the sense of the physician of our souls that we are to specially look upon Christ. The soul of man is sick as well as the body. It is stricken with the terrible disease of sin, that is as deadly as the bite of the poisonous serpent, and that is as incurable as the dreaded disease of leprosy, so far as human methods are concerned. It is this disease that Christ came into the world to cure, and He can and does heal and cure it. He also heals all the minor diseases that result from sin, such as trouble and sorrow, and all the heartaches that go with it.

2. How does Christ heal? Christ received the ability to cure sin and its results from God by bearing in Himself the penalty that should have come upon man as a result of sin. He "Himself took our infirmities and bore our sicknesses." It was thus that He was able to heal us. But there is one thing for us to do to be healed. We must have faith in Christ; accept Him as the physician of our souls. The best physicians cannot heal unless their patients follow their directions. The centurion believed in Christ, and his servant was healed as a result of his faith. As a result of our faith our sins are forgiven, our souls are healed. "Believe in the Lord Jesus Christ, and thou shalt be saved."

For Pastors to Consider.

No earnest, Christian young people can work on month after month to keep up a strong, energetic society if their efforts are treated with indifference. These drop out one by one, and the society begins to fail, and is it altogether the fault of the society?

The church takes its missionary society, its benevolent society and its Sunday school into full fellowship. It keeps itself always in touch with the work of these different departments. It knows what they are doing and stands ready to help each along its line of work. In short, it recognizes them as a part of the church.

When the church chooses workers in these different lines, it selects the best material for these positions and sees that they do their work well. If a church establishes a mission, it gives this branch strong, reliable helpers, and, above all, it keeps an interest and an oversight in its welfare.

Is the Christian Endeavor society any less a part of the church? Has it any less right to assistance? Should it not be given leaders that make it strong? Has the church any less responsibility in regard to its management? There are numberless ways for the church to fulfill its duties to the Christian Endeavor society. The first and most essential is for the church to show its society that it wants its help, and that it is interested in its work.—Illinois Union.

Religion Is No Burden.

I remember a friend of mine who had gone far into what is called "a life of pleasure" telling me when he became a Christian that what surprised him most of all was this: He had always looked on religion as a burden which he knew he ought to carry, but he found that it was something that carried him and his burden too. He said also that he had enjoyed in a single week after he was a Christian more real pleasure than in all the years he devoted to what is termed the pursuit of pleasure. I am convinced this is the view of religion needed in a great city where the individual is lost in the great multitude.—James Stalker, D. D.

Endeavor In England.

The editor of the English national Christian Endeavor organ wisely says that "C. E." should stand for "converts expected."

A Christian Endeavor picnic lately held in London entertained 150 children. The entire affair was got up within a week by the simple use of Christian Endeavor co-operation.

One of the most pleasing features of the marked advance of Christian Endeavor in England last year was the fact that 5,878 members of Christian Endeavor societies joined the church.

Bird Raptures.

The sunrise wakes the lark to sing;
The moonrise wakes the nightingale.
Come darkness, moonrise, everything
That is so silent, sweet and pale,
Come, so ye wake the nightingale.

Make haste to mount, thou wistful moon;
Make haste to wake the nightingale.
Let silence set the world in tune,
To hearken to that wordless tale
Which warbles from the nightingale.

O herald skylark, stay thy flight
One moment, for a nightingale
Floods us with sorrow and delight.
Tomorrow thou shalt hoist the sail.
Leave us tonight the nightingale.

Dr. and Editor Morse Finds Great Curative Qualities in a Simple Remedy.

(From Westfield N J, Leader, Sept. 5, 1894.)

We believe in being fair, and if we know ourselves we are fair. The fact of the Editor of the Leader being a physician of the old school encourages some people to ask why we kick quacks and quackery. We do hate charlatans the worst way. That's a fact. But every proprietary medicine is n't a quack medicine. In some of them we believe as devoutly as we do in calomel and quinine. There, for example, is Dr. David Kennedy's Favorite Remedy. It has our faith. We know of its therapeutical value because of knowledge of its efficacy. In this laboratory it has fully approved itself as containing just those ingredients which every physician knows the materia medica to indicate for the disorders for which the remedy is prescribed. In clinical experience its further proof has not been wanting, as we have reason to know. We have no hesitancy in saying that we should prescribe the Remedy in any case where it is really indicated.

Dr. David Kennedy's Favorite Remedy has no rival as a blood builder and nerve food. It has met with unparalleled success in the treatment of all diseases of the skin, liver, kidneys and the blood. It restores the disordered liver to a healthy condition, and effectually cures the worst cases of habitual constipation. It has cured cases of Bright's Disease, erysipelas, rheumatism, dyspepsia, gravel, diabetes, bladder and urinary troubles, where all else has failed. It is a certain cure for all the diseases and weaknesses peculiar to females and affords great protection from attacks that originate in the change of life. Dr. Kennedy's Favorite Remedy is for sale by all dealers in medicine at one dollar a bottle or six bottles for five dollars; which brings a treatment within the reach of all.

ASK THEM Why?

Ask the men who are making imitations of COTTOLENE, the new vegetable shortening, why they give up lard and try to trade on the merits of COTTOLENE? Perhaps you can guess why.

ASK HIM WHY?

Ask the grocer who attempts substitution, why he tries to sell an imitation when people call for that pure, palatable and popular vegetable shortening, COTTOLENE? Perhaps you can guess.

ASK YOURSELF Why?

Why should not YOU use COTTOLENE, instead of lard or any other compound, for all cooking purposes? It has the highest possible endorsement; from Physicians as to healthfulness; from Cooking Experts as to superiority; from housekeepers as to economy. Use COTTOLENE and stick to it.

WOMEN AND HOME.

A FAIR PHYSICIAN SAYS SINGLE LIFE IS A FAILURE.

She Counsels Early Marriages and Declares Against the Present Century Movement of Independence. A Woman must be Queen of Something, Why Not of Man.

"Can women be as happy unmarried as married?" said a prominent physician, who has had opportunity to study the question, the other day. "No, I do not think so. In the first place, an unmarried woman has not the same sort of youth preserving interests that a married one has. Moreover, unless she is a woman of remarkable character she cannot fail to grow more or less 'set' and selfish; and it is surprising to know how much mental states affect the health. "Why," continued the doctor, warming to her subject, "I believe that half the cases of neuresthenia and nervous depression in my practice are caused, not by overwork, but by the need of some absorbing interest. The average woman must have a place where she is supreme, not only over the inanimate objects, but over live beings. She must have intense personal interests. It is not enough for her to be a part of the big machine."

The doctor paused and looked as though she were reflecting on the sad lot of numerous patients. Then she roused herself and went on:

"It isn't so bad when one is twenty or twenty-five. But it's a little worse when one is over thirty, and sadder and more trying still after forty. At first the enthusiasm, the novelty and freshness make life interesting enough and full enough, but little by little the glamour fades and her profession is not enough. Women are so constituted that they live largely in the emotions. They need a home—an a home means husband and childr n. There are very few women large-souled and broad-minded enough to expend their affections wisely, to keep their hearts young and fresh through such remote and impersonal means as hospitals and flower missions. There are a few, of course, but cheery, unselfish and young as they manage to keep themselves one always feels that even they would have been happier married.

"One great trouble with this present hue and cry about woman's work and her independence," continued the doctor, "is that it makes the young women put off thoughts of marrying until it is too late. I don't mean too late for them to marry, but too late for them to grow into adaptability with their husbands. The years after a woman is first through school and has had her first experience of life, either professional or social, are years of settling down. If she gives herself up to her 'career' and to 'living her own life' and all that, she rapidly gets into a state where she is really unfitted for matrimony. She may find her career, with all its attractions and possibilities, unsatisfactory, but at the same time it is difficult for her to grow into domestic life after a few years of professional life. It is all a problem," continued the doctor, sighing, "and I dare say it will not be settled in one day."

With which gloomy conclusion and a sigh the doctor abandoned the question.

Two Stories of Old Hickory.

General Armstrong, Assistant Commissioner of Indian Affairs, thinks that Andrew Jackson was one of the greatest men this country has ever produced, and has a number of stories which were told him by his uncle, who was an intimate friend of Old Hickory. One of them is very characteristic of the man.

Lewis Cass, Secretary of War, was over at the White House one day with some important papers for the President to sign, among them being a court martial findings.

"Cass, what is this?" inquired Jackson, as he was about to write his name to the document.

"It is a court martial," answered Cass.

"What have I to do with it?" asked the President.

"It dismisses an officer from the service, and the President must sign such orders.

Jackson toyed with the paper and said, musingly. "Dismisses him from the army, eh? Why?"

"Drunkenness; getting drunk and falling down on parade, or something of that kind," answered the Secretary.

"Who ordered the court?" asked Jackson.

"General Scott," answered Cass.

"Who is it?" inquired the President, with more interest.

"Inspector-General Kraun," replied Cass.

"What!" shouted Jackson. "My old friend Kraun! Cass, just read what that paper says."

The Secretary read the usual form of the court martial sentence in such cases. The President then took the paper and wrote across the bottom where he was about to sign his name:

"The within findings are disapproved, and Col. Kraun is restored to his duty and rank."

He passed the paper back to Secretary Cass and said with his usual vehemence: "By the Eternal! Cass, when you and Scott serve your country as well as that man has you can get drunk on duty every day."

A young man from Tennessee, son of a friend of Gen. Jackson's came to Washington for a place. He looked about and found what he wanted. It was in the War Department, and filled by a very efficient Whig, whom Secretary Cass would not remove. The young man told Jackson the situation, and Cass was sent for.

"Cass," said the President, "this young man, son of my old friend, says you have got a place in the War Department filled by a Whig which you won't give him."

Secretary Cass explained that the duties of the office were of a peculiar kind, and that he could get no one to fill the place if the man now in it should be removed. Jackson flared up.

"By the Eternal, Cass, do you mean to tell me you have an office in your department filled by a Whig which can't be filled by a Democrat? Then abolish the office!"

The young man got his place.

The Burglar Was Converted.

A well-dressed stranger walked into Squire Kearney's office in Hartford, Ind., and, after exacting a promise of secrecy, placed a gold watch and $200 on a table. He then told the particulars of a burglary which occurred in that town several months ago.

"I was that burglar," said the man, "and here are the articles I stole." He said he had recently been converted while attending a prayer meeting at Bluffton.

WHY HENRY WATTERSON WRITES.

An Accident Spoiled Him for a Pianist. His Daughter's Art.

In a sketch of the marriage to William A. Miller to the daughter of Henry Watterson, the accomplished editor of the Louisville Courier Journal, the New York Herald says: Mrs. Miller, who inherits her father's love for music and taste for literature, is probably one of the finest amateur pianists in this country; in fact, there are many professionals who might hesitate to play before her; she is especially devoted to some kinds of Spanish music.

Her taste in literature is as keen and critical as her talented father's. Many times she has been his assistant in his lighter works and reading hours.

Since she finished her school education, Mr. Watterson has made somewhat of a companion of her. He often speaks with warmth and pride of her achievements. Perhaps, nowhere is he seen to such advantage as in his own home, surrounded by his family, where he becomes a child among his children.

It is not generally known that accident made Mr. Watterson a writer; but such is the case. When a very young man it was his ambition to become a great musician, and he devoted his attention to the study of the piano; but an accident to his thumb hindered him so disastrously in his execution that he decided to turn his attention to the pen.

When Christine Nilsson first came to this country she had a letter of introduction to Mr. Watterson, and the first time she ever heard "Way Down Upon the Suwanee River" was when it rippled from his fingers in soft chords on the piano.

She was enraptured, and made him teach her, note by note and word by word, the plaintive ballad, which lives in the hearts and memory of all who ever heard the beautiful singer, whose voice made it world famous.

MEDICAL QUALITIES OF APPLES.

Why They are Considered the Best Fruit to Eat.

In all temperate climates the apple grows freely, and might be obtained in practically unlimited quantities. That it is not more used than it is is probably due to the fact that, being so plenty, it is undervalued. Yet almost every one likes the fruit in some fashion, and it should form a part of at least two meals out of every three during the year round; for even when the fresh fruit is not in season, canned, dried, or "evaporated" apples may always be had.

"Chemically," says a writer in the North American Practitioner, "the apple is composed of vegetable fibre, albumen, sugar, gum, chlorophyl, malic acid, gallic acid, lime and water. Furthermore, the German analysts say that the apple contains a larger percentage of phosphorus than any other fruit or vegetable. The phosphorus is admirably adapted for renewing the essential nervous matter—lecithin—of the brain and spinal cord. It is perhaps for this reason—though but rudely understood—that the old Scandinavian traditions represent the apple as the food of the gods, who, when they felt themselves to be growing feeble and infirm, resorted to this fruit to renew powers of mind and body."

Not only the phosphorus, but the acids of the apple are of singular use for persons of sedentary habits, whose livers are apt to be too slow of action. These acids aid the liver in its work of eliminating from the body the noxious matters, which, if retained, would make the brain heavy and dull, or, in time, would cause rheumatism, jaundice, or skin eruptions, and other allied troubles.

The malic acid of apples, either raw or cooked will neutralize any excess of chalky matter engendered by eating too much meat.

Ripe apples are probably the least fermentable of all fruits, except possibly the banana. For this reason ripe and sound apples may be eaten by most persons in even the hottest weather; but even the apple is safest when cooked.

We have the support of eminent medical authority in saying that the most healthful way to cook apples is to pare and core them, and bake in a moderate oven. If the apple is of a quite sour variety it may be necessary to add a little sugar, putting about a saltspoonful in the hollow whence the core was extracted. The next best way to cook them is stewing. Contrary to common belief, apples baked in their skins are the least healthful of cooked apples.

Fraulein Alice's Wedding Notice.

Fraulein Alice, the popular actress of Berlin, announces her coming marriage: "To all my friends and acquaintances: I desire herewith to make known that I am about to appear in a new character, which I have never yet performed. The drama is called 'Marriage' (Die Ehe). The part of the hero will be taken by Herr Hans E——. Upon him it depends whether the play will be a a comedy or a tragedy. It will certainly not be a farce, for we are both of us terribly in earnest. Besides, all my married friends tell me that in 'Marriage' there is nothing to laugh at."

THE SUN'S FASHIONS.

WOMEN ARE THINKING AND DRESS IS THE SUBJECT.

Fall Fashions in Full Fledge. Beauty and Extravagant Richness of Materials. The New and Fashionable Colors. Combination Gowns. Making Over Old Dresses.

The aristocratic elegance and fetching possibilities of winter fashions are fast crowding out the shirt-waist simplicity of summer, and while this transformation is going on we must wait for developments and meanwhile make the most of the speculative suggestions which present themselves. There can be no doubt about the beauty and extravagant richness of materials or the ruinous amount required to complete one garment, so every woman can indulge her inclination for shopping with perfect confidence that it is impossible to get too much of anything. It has evidently been ordained by the powers behind the throne, that those who wish to be in the height of fashion must waive all their commendable ideas of economy and never stop to count the cost. Velvet and fur are the reigning favorites for elegance of costume, and nearly every gown which is not made entirely of velvet has a touch of it somewhere.

Many of the new clothes are patterned in black on color, and frieze suitings in dark shades, with flat, tiny loops of light color, or in black on red, blue or brown, are among the new goods. Plain cloths are sure to be worn, and tweeds, both rough and smooth, with every mixture of color interwoven, are a favorite material for travelling and morning wear. Periwinkle, or hyacinth blue, in a variety of shades is doubtless the most fashionable color of the season, and is used in cloth, moire and velvet. The only objection to this lovely color is that it is very trying to most women, and only those who are the possessors of a clear, fresh complexion can wear it with certainty that it will be becoming.

Many of the autumn gowns are made in combination with some striking color, such as brown with a crude green, blue with fawn, tan and mauve, and dark blue with red, which must be a bright shade or the effect is not good.

A pretty walking costume of periwinkle blue cloth has a plain full skirt, braided around the bottom and up each side to the waist with braid of a darker shade, which has a touch of cream white in it. The round vest of cream-white silk has a braided belt, and the Spanish or Eton jacket effect, which is being made so much by Felix, has folded revers and a wide collar, which is square in the back, of cream-white silk braided to correspond with the skirt. Revers are either very broad or else not worn at all, and in many cases, where the bodice is cut away to show a vest, revers are entirely dispensed with and the edge is finished with a band of galon.

The growing amplitude of skirts at the bottom is not at all displeasing, now that all street costumes must be made to clear the ground. They fit as closely as ever on the hips, and the one in the illustration shows the full, expanding sides closely gathered over the hips, plainly gored in front and box plaited in the back. Tailor's canvas is used to stiffen skirts at the bottom, and in some instances whalebone hoops are concealed under frills placed inside the skirt.

A very pretty and youthful gown of silk, suitable for many occasions, has a simple bodice, shirred around the neck and trimmed with embroidered cream muslin and bands of plain silk, or velvet if preferred. The embroidery is gathered through the middle, under the band, and this extends entirely around the armhole, joins the front underneath, and a loose jabot falls from the rosette in front to the under arm seam. The skirt has full godet plaits in the back and a narrow fold of plain silk around the bottom.—N. Y. Sun.

POETRY OF BANK NOTES.

The Itch for Scribbling Spares Not Even Paper Money.

Much of the writing found on old bank notes is due to the love of scribbling possessed by many persons. Much of it is ridiculous rhyme unworthy of repetition; but occasionally it is smart and apposite to the purpose of bank notes. A sample or two of such writings may be given. On an English pound note appeared the following:

> Ye ugly, dirty little scrap!
> To look at, hardly worth a rap;
> And yet I'll give my hearty vote
> None can produce a sweeter note.

Another inscription:

> It's odd that any man should wish
> A dirty, scrabbit rag like this;
> Yet mony a ane would cut a caper
> To get a wheen sic bits o' paper.

A contribution to bank-note literature is found in Lockhart's "Life of Scott." Lady Louisa Stuart sent the great novelist a copy of some lines which were written on a guinea note then in possession of Lady Douglas. They were as follows:

> Farewell! my note, and wheresoe'er ye wend
> Shun gaudy scenes, and be the poor man's friend.
> You've left a poor man; go to one as poor,
> And drive despair and hunger from his door.

Sir Walter expressed himself as very much pleased with these lines.

SKIRTS EIGHT YARDS ROUND.

But the New Reception Frocks are Confections, for All That.

If clothes count for aught the plainest debutante may be a picture this season. Her evening frocks are dreams of beauty, but the amount of material required to produce the effect will startle the individual who pays the bill.

A most fashionable skirt is known as the Ripple. It measures eight yards around the bottom. The skirt is perfectly plain and lined with crinoline or haircloth.

Another charming frock for dinner has a plain eight-yard round ripple skirt of Nile green satin. The round bodice is also of satin, covered with fine Brussels net. From yoke to girdle are bands of Nile green satin ribbon, each one outlined with narrow pearl and silver trimming. The yoke is adjustable, and across the front rosettes of green velvet are fastened. The short sleeves have the effect of fluffy balls. They are formed of frill after frill of Brussels net. Bows of green satin finished with pearl and silver trimming are used as epaulettes. The long gloves worn with this frock match the satin in color.

The Collarettes Now.

While there is a certain attractiveness about the girl in a stiff shirt front, linen cuffs and mannish tie, it is to the woman whose throat is muffled in clouds of lace and over whose wrists and hands falls an entrancing veil of lace that our hearts go out.

This year comes a variety of neck and throat ornamentations, draperies for plain bodices, that will make a pretty woman more charming and a homely one less plain. They are called collarettes, and are artistic in color and design. They are economical, too, for with several a woman can beautify and change the appearance of a waist to look like a different one each time.

Amusement for Two.

A good story is told of William Swisher, one of the veterans who was present at the Grand Army encampment in Pittsburg. He was in a Colorado town not long ago, without money, but with a great thirst. He was sizing up a saloon outfit from a corner seat, when a Westerner invited him to have a drink.

"No," replied Bill deliberately, "I will not drink to-day."

"Won't you, Mr. Boiled Shirt?" replied the cowboy. "We shall see." Then he turned to the bartender. "Put ten whiskey glasses along the bar in a row. Now fill em up."

When they were filled he drew a pistol and cocked it.

"Drink down the line," he commanded.

Bill slowly drained each glass. When the last was down, he placed it on the counter, set the ten glasses in line, and turned to the cowboy.

"Now mister," said he, "if you have 'em filled again I'll drink my way back."

THE DUCHESS.

She was not only a duchess, but she looked like one, of the best Du Maurier type. She was lovely, tall and graceful, with the light of youth and health in her eyes.

As his grace was an invalid, his wife was much in evidence, taking exercise on deck, with a long, swinging stride, which was the envy of all the other women on the ship. During the first day she was very friendly to her fellow-voyagers, but some impertinent questions vexed her, and she became glacial.

Johnny McQuiston declares that he felt like kissing the shiny brass plate on the after stairway, which introduced him to that armful of loveliness. There was a nice rolling sea on, and some breeze; and Johnny had gone to seek a heavy coat, and was deckward bound when her grace, in descending, slipped on the brass and went bang! into Johnny's arms. It was no joke to prevent that tall young woman from grief, and Johnny gasped and clinched his teeth hard, as he held manfully to the railing with his left arm, and hugged his real live duchess with his right.

She thanked him prettily for his aid and nodded affably when she came on deck and met him at the companionway door, where he was waiting for nothing in particular if it were not for that nod. The roll continued to befriend him, for he had to help her to her chair, and there, in order to continue some vague landman's comments on the voyage, he sat down beside her, and in this way the acquaintance began.

It was the manner Johnny sang hymns, however, which cemented the acquaintance, and even opened the door to friendship. He used to think of the farmhouse and his mother when he sang "Abide With Me," and the other familiar music, and it came out in the look in his eyes and his earnest manner—and besides, his voice was clear and sweet as his mother's memory. He had a dashing way of singing the new comic opera hits or music hall ballads, but a dignity settled upon him when he sang a hymn that affected the Duchess even more than it did other people. For a young woman of society, she was unusually religious, and the blood of the champion John Knox tingled within her now and then.

"You forget all about me when you are singing sacred songs," said the Duchess, approvingly. "And I like it," she added, looking at him frankly with great gray eyes.

"I am generally thinking of my mother —and she is not with me any more," replied Johnny, sturdily.

"You could sing yourself into fame, I dare say," she said graciously.

"I did sing myself into a trip to Europe," he said, laughing.

"I don't know if I told you I was a newspaper man," began Johnny.

Well, one day I was sent to write up Mortimer's new house. He's about the biggest man we have on Wall street, now, and he has just done up a palace. He was at home, and showed me about civilly, for he was proud of planning most of the place himself. Finally, we came to the music room, and there was a splendid piano open. I don't know how it came about, but I sat down and rambled along with the air of 'Watchman, Tell us of the Night.'

" 'Can you sing that?' asked Mr. Mortimer. I sang it, and for half an hour he kept me there singing one old hymn after another. I could see he was in deep thought about something, but he didn't explain. As I was going away, he said: 'You won't put the hymn singing into your article, will you?' and he nodded approvingly when he said it was only a side issue. That was two months ago. About a week later I met him on the street, and he stopped and shook hands. Our big men, as a rule, don't do that unless they want something put in or kept out of the paper, and I wondered what was up. He talked about my article and said something nice, and then asked abruptly: 'Have you any money saved?' Of course I was startled, but I said I had about $600 and some stock worth about $1000 more. 'Go get it and bring it to my office in half an hour,' said he, and off he went. I did as I was told, and he gave me a receipt, and all he said was: 'Come here Monday week.' There were lively days in the stock market after that, and I wondered if my money was having any share in it. On Monday I went to his office and asked if he was in. The managing clerk said he was in Boston, and I felt sick. 'You're Mr. McQuiston, I believe?' said the clerk. 'Yes, and Mr. Mortimer told me to come here to-day.' 'Here's a note for you,' said he, and he handed me a big envelope. 'Please give me a receipt.' I waited until I was out in the street, and then I opened the package. There was my stock, two checks and a note, which said:

'Enclosed is your margin and profits for the sake of the thoughts you awoke in me. Mortimer.' One check was my own, that I had given him, and which he had not presented for payment. The other was $4000, and I took a holiday, and here I am."

"Oh, that was jolly in him, wasn't it?" cried the duchess, delightedly. "And I'm sure you deserved it. Here's my husband, you must tell him all about it, too."

This was the way the duke was drawn into it, and a very genial, earnest young man he proved to be, who seemed to endorse everything his wife did, and so endorsed Johnny, whose glory among his companions grew to great proportions thereat.

They parted at Liverpool, and there was given to Johnny a cordial invitation to come and call at Essex House, the London house of their graces, and he was left to wonder if he should ever see them again, but in the excitement of landing in London this was soon forgotten in the delight of saying, "And so this is really Piccadilly, and that green place ahead is Hyde Park?"

His duchess had become a lovely shadowy recollection, when one day, in one of the catacombs which bisect the Langham Hotel, he almost collided with a lady who caused him to exclaim: "The Duchess!" The lady was as much startled as though Johnny had cried "The devil!" and he stammered some apology.

"Gracious! How much she looked like the duchess. I wonder who she is?" thought Johnny.

"What on earth did that man mean by shouting about the Duchess?" thought Miss Nellie Thurston, of Philadelphia, as she hurried to her rooms. "I'm sure he's American—I guess I'll tell auntie."

The next day, in one of the rooms of the national gallery, Johnny came upon the young lady in undoubted distress.

"Can I do something for you?" he said, in his frank, pleasant way.

"Thank you; I am in rather a mess," she answered gratefully. "I have lost auntie. I almost always do lose her in a picture gallery, for I wander about, and she sits down in some corner and adores an old master. To-day it happens she has no purse, and she will want me."

There was so much relief in Mrs. Thurston's face when they finally found her that Johnny felt encouraged. Mistress Nellie had, in the short time that they were together, concluded that he was much better than he looked, and was not to be lightly cast off in a land where pleasant and companionable fellow countrymen were not too plentiful.

After that matters hurried themselves. They are apt to do this in hotels and journeyings and saunterings. Johnny fell into a sort of trance, wherein his unconsciousness seemed boldness and Miss Nellie began to ask herself questions. As for Mrs. Thurston, the aunt, she soon lost any doubt as to her own conclusions, and declared that she intended either to leave for the continent, regardless of comfort, or to ask Mr. McQuiston to continue his travels.

There was a cricket match on between Eton and Harrow—one of the notable matches of the year—and Johnny had hired the neatest turnout he could find to convey the trio to Lord's grounds. There was some battling before the elder lady would consent to go, and the younger finally declared that she would give Mr. McQuiston a hint of the brewing storm. Thus bribed, Mrs. Thurston sat in gloomy state until they found a place among the carriages and coaches from which to watch the people, for the game was quite beyond their grasp.

From sheer perversity, and perhaps from other motives as well, Nellie treated Johnny with an amount of cordiality and freedom she had never shown before, and even allowed her voice to drop into something akin to a whisper, when Mrs. Thurston in a polar voice, exclaimed:

"Nellie, have you told Mr. McQuiston?"

Johnny looked up in surprise, while guilty Nellie blushed and paled, and finally gasped, as the situation became plain, and her aunt's intentions flashed upon her.

She glanced appealingly at the old lady, and was astonished to see her looking up at something on a coach which stood next their carriage.

"I declare!" exclaimed the aunt at last. "Why, Nellie, there is a lady who is the image of you—only she is a little older. Look!"

Johnny followed the direction of Mrs. Thurston's glance, and cried, "It's the duchess!"

"Who?" said Mrs. Thurston, in a shrill whisper.

"The duchess of Essex," replied Johnny excitedly.

"Do you know her—to speak to?" again in a shrill whisper, excited and eager now.

"Is that the lady you mistook for me at the hotel?" exclaimed Nellie.

Dressed in a white costume, simple and yet bewildering, and a little white bonnet, with eyes bright and voice merry, the duchess looked like one of those you associate with Gainsborough. She answered Mrs. Thurston's question by glancing down, and on catching a glimpse of Johnny, exclaimed, "Why Ned, here's Mr. McQuiston!" and her long, shapely arm descended toward Johnny, who stood up and looked as delighted as he felt.

The duchess told Johnny afterward that she guessed it all at a glance, and acted accordingly; and you can depend upon it, he is willing to swear to any assertion she makes.

"Help me down, Stanley," she said to the gentleman next her, and in an instant she stood beside Johnny on the sod.

"Do you think it nice in you not to have come to Essex House all this time?" she said reproachfully. "I've been telling some people about you, and they think I'm only giving them travelers' tales, for you never show you know. May I know your friends?"

When Johnnie recovered his wits the duchess was in the carriage beside Nellie, telling Mrs. Thurston that she had been struck by the likeness Nellie Thurston bore to herself, and this was followed up by other gracious speeches, climaxed at last by an invitation to call at Essex House.

"Will you come now and sing hymns for me, sir?" whispered her grace, as she stood with Johnny's hand in hers.

"Come!" he blurted out, "I'll go and sing till you order me out of the house."

The duchess laughed and murmured: "Is it so bad as that? Well, she is lovely, and you are fortunate. Bring her to see me Saturday morning at 11."

"What were you asking me, auntie, when the duchess spoke first to Mr. McQuiston? You wanted to know if I had told him something," asked Nellie, coolly, as they drove home through the pretty streets of St. John's Wood.

"I am sure I don't remember, dear," said Mrs. Thurston, innocently.

"Shall I tell Mr. McQuiston to go away before the duchess' reception, auntie?" Nellie asked that night, as she stood before the door of her aunt's room, candle in hand.

"Certainly not. Why, he is to take us there."

"May I tell him to stay."

"Of course not; there is no need of saying anything. He seems like a very sensible young man, and needs no coaching."

"Coaching, auntie? Fie, why that's slang. And suppose in this coaching he asks me if I will let him drive, what then?"

"Don't be foolish, child. He has no such ideas in his head. Don't be foolish."

"I'm rather afraid I shall be," said Nellie, but she said it to the candle after she closed the door.

It was some months after this that Mrs. John Arlington McQuiston (Johnny's middle name has been drawn from obscurity into active life), looking at two tall Sevres which stood beside the library fireplace, remarked to her husband:

"John, dear, do you know, I believe auntie would like to have the duchess' letter framed and hung between the vases she sent us."

Johnny, who was busily looking over manuscript, smiled, but said nothing.

"I don't think you are half enough grateful to your duchess, John," continued Mrs. John.

"Oh, yes," said John, and he came to his wife's chair and rumpled her brown bang with a caressing hand, "but you see she is outranked now by my queen."—Parker L. Walker in Boston Home Journal.

Vanity

is a virtuous vice. The world is better for it. It makes men ambitious—and it makes women careful of their personal appearance. It doesn't take much money to keep well-dressed now-a-days. Cleaning or dyeing makes it possible to use soiled or faded garments. And there's where our ax comes in. We are in the Cleaning and Dyeing business. Our cleaner is ready, and our dyer has his fall shades mixed.

NEW YORK CHAT.

EVENTS AND FANCIES DISCUSSED IN THE METROPOLIS.

How Many Millionaires Has New York? Men Whom the Income Tax Will Hit Hard. Hunting the Hussar's Gold. Other Facts and Fancies.

How many millionaires in New York? opinions differ, and the correct number no one knows, for a man may often be in doubt himself as to whether or not he is a millionaire. The World says there are one thousand millionaires in New York and Brooklyn, and it publishes a list of their names to support its assertion. Some of the persons put in the millionaire class will doubtless deny the charge when the income taxer comes around, and in a number of cases the denial will doubtless be warranted by the size of their fortune.

It was in connection with the tax that the list was given, and, including the very rich men, it was estimated that Greater New York would furnish one thousand men whose average tax would be $3,000 each. The largest contributor to the tax fund, according to the figures given, will be William Waldorf Astor. His fortune is estimated at $120,000,000, and his income is placed at $8,900,000, a very large sum for the principal, being almost seven and one-half per cent. John D. Rockefeller's fortune is named as $125,000,000, but his income is smaller by more than $1,000,000, being estimated at $7,611,250, or a little more than six per cent. Only one other fortune, that of the Jay Gould estate, is placed in the $100,000,000 class, this going in at even figures. The income is estimated at $4,040,000 while that of Russell Sage, who is credited with $90,000,000, is put at $4,500,000. Then come Cornelius and William K. Vanderbilt, with $80,000,000 and $75,000,000 respectively; Henry M. Flagler, and William Rockefeller, $50,000,000 each; John Jacob Astor and the Moses Taylor estate, $50,000,000; Mrs. Hetty Green, $40,000,000; F. W. Vanderbilt, $35,000,000; George W. Vanderbilt, Percy R. Pyne and wife, H. O. Havemeyer and wife and the Singer estate, $30,000,000 each; J. Pierpont Morgan, Robert Goelet, and the Schermerhorn estate, $25,000,000 each, and the following each $20,000,000: Ogden Goelet, C. P. Huntington, David Dows estate, Elbridge T. Gerry and wife, J. A. Bostwick estate, Theodore A. Havemeyer, W. Sloane estate, Henry Hilton, Andrew Carnegie, Amos R. Eno, William C. Whitney, William P. Furness estate, D. O. Mills, Mrs. Elliot F. Shepard, Mrs. W. D. Sloane, Mrs. H. McK. Twombley and Mrs. William Seward Webb. Twenty persons or estates with $10,000,000, and 31 with $5,000,000 or more are given.

There may a time come when hunting for the gold of the British war ship Hussar will cease, but, from the present outlook, that time is far distant. The seekers for the $4,800,000 alleged to have gone down with the ship at Hell Gate, are as hopeful now as they were fifty or seventy-five ago, and each new hunter is confident that his way will win. The latest treasure seeker is George W. Thomas, of East Orange, N. J., whose machinery operates on the suction principle, and this he asserts works admirably. He says that he is satisfied that he has located the wreck, and he is delving among the rocks with visions of gold half hiding the new machinery—visions that, if past experience is worth anything, will never be realized.

The application of Edison's latest invention to a play, enabling one artist to give a whole drama, representing the various characters by means of pictures, was one of the late entertainments of the metropolis. The play, or story is called "Miss Jerry," and tells how a young lady, imagining that her father is financially embarrassed, secures a position as reporter on the New York Daily Dynamo, and finally marries the city editor.

The pictures, of which there are about 250, follow the story very closely, and show the incidents of Miss Jerry's daily life, her interviews, amusements, reveries and courtship; a number of New York scenes, such as Madison Square, Washington Square, the Fifth Avenue Hotel, Brooklyn Bridge, the interior of Mr. Depew's private office in the Grand Central Depot, with an admirable series of the genial Chauncey being interviewed by Miss Jerry, and a host of interesting sketches and views.

The photographs were all taken from life by the carbon process and reproduced on the screen by the aid of a stereopticon. Musical illustrations were played on the piano and organ by Mr. John Hyatt Brewer. As a whole it was a very successful effort to amplify and adapt the illustrated magazine for the purpose of a reading, and was warmly received by an audience that included among its numbers President Seth Low of Columbia College, Mr. William Dean Howells, Mrs. Edmund Clarence Stedman, Miss Christine Terhune Herrick, Mr. Henry Abbey, Mr. Henry Marquand and Mr. Arthur Stedman.

Justice Voorhees gave the "Georgia Magnet" some cheerful advice when she wanted him to compel a boarding-house keeper to release her trunks, which had been seized to enforce a demand for extra compensation on account of attention to Mrs. Abbott's many callers. The Justice made the suit returable the next day after the first hearing, when the magnet said, pleadingly:

"But, Judge, I need a costume for to-night's performance, and besides, my trunks may disappear."

"Oh, well," replied the Justice, "I think you can get along very well to-night with the dress you have, and as for the trunks—why, just increase their specific gravity in that peculiar way of yours, and they will be all right.

Rosa Bonheur's Greatest Honor.

Rosa Bonheur's pictures have had the nail of honor in every great exhibition throughout the art world for the last thirty years. She has the cross of the Legion of Honor and a casket filled with decorations, but the one honor she prizes above all the rest is the proclamation issued by Crown Prince Frederick, during the occupation of Paris, in 1870. Although comparatively little mischief was done by the Prussian soldiers at the close of the siege, an order was issued to the troops, commanding "absolute protection and unqualified respect for Mlle. Rosa Bonheur, not only because she belongs to the world of French art, but because she belongs to the world."

VICEROY LI HUNG CHANG.

How the Chinese Statesman Appeared Before His Fall.

We all stood to show our respect for the prime minister whom General Grant included among the three greatest statesmen of his day. The viceroy was preceded by two body-servants. We stood before a man who appeared to be over six feet in height, although his head and shoulders were considerably bent with age. His flowing dress was made of rich colored silk, but very plain, indeed. Any ornamentation would have been a profanation of the natural dignity and stateliness of Li-Hung-Chang. With slow pace he walked into the room, stopped a moment to look at us, then advanced with outstretched hand, while a faint smile played about his features and softened the piercing glance of his eyes. He shook hands heartily in the foreign fashion, and, without any show of ceremony, led the way into an adjoining room, where a long council table extended over half the length. The viceroy took the arm-chair at the head, and motioned us to take the two seats on his left, while Mr. Tenney and the viceroy's son sat on his right.

For almost a minute not a word was said on either side. The viceroy had fixed his gaze intently upon us, and, like a good general, perhaps, was taking a thorough survey of the field before he opened up the cannonade of questions that was to follow. We in turn were just as busily engaged in taking a mental sketch of his most prominent physical characteristics. His face was distinctly oval, tapering from a very broad forehead to a sharp pointed chin, half obscured by his thin gray "goatee." The crown of his head was shaven in the usual Tsing fashion, leaving a tuft of hair for a queue, which in the viceroy's case was short and very thin. His dry, sallow skin showed signs of wrinkling; a thick fold lay under each eye, and at each end of his upper lip. There were no prominent cheek-bones or almond-shaped eyes, which are so distinctively seen in most of the Mongolian race. Under the scraggy mustache we could distinguish a rather benevolent, though determined mouth; while his small keen eyes, which were somewhat sunken, gave forth a flash that was, perhaps, but a flickering ember of the fire they once contained. The left eye, which was partly closed by a paralytic stroke several years ago, gave him a rather artful, waggish appearance. The whole physiognomy was that of a man of strong intuition, with the ability to force his point when necessary, and the shrewd common sense to yield when desiring to be politic.—Messrs. Allen and Sachtleben in the Century.

TALMAGE ON DANCING.

With Hugolike Phraseology the Clergyman Scalps Terpsichore.

In a recent diatribe on dancing the Rev. Dr. Talmage says:

"On with the dance! Flush and rustle and laughter of immeasurable merry-making. But after a while the languor of death comes on the limbs and blurs the eyesight. Lights lower. Floor hollow with sepulchral echo. Music saddened into a wail. Lights lower. Now the maskers are only seen in the dim light. Now the fragrance of the flowers is like the sickening odor that comes from garlands that have lain long in the vaults of cemeteries. Lights lower. Mists gather in the room. Glasses shake as though quaked by sullen thunder. Sigh caught in the curtain. Scarf drops from the shoulder of beauty, a shroud. Lights lower. Over the slippery boards in dance of death glide jealousies, envies, revenges ill-luck, despair, and death. Stench—the lamp wick almost extinguished. Torn garlands will not half cover the ulcerated feet. Choking damps. Chilliness. Feet still. Hands closed. Voices hushed. Eyes shut. Lights out."

OUGHT TO BE AN AMERICAN.

The French Author of Jonathan and His Continent Writes of John Bull & Co.

Max O'Rell's new book, "John Bull & Co.," is well worth reading, if only for the high spirit of the author that flows through its pages. One would think that even Max O'Rell would find it hard to say anything new of a subject that had been pretty well threshed out, and of which he had done as much of the threshing as anybody else, but he does say a good deal that is new and a good deal that is amusing. And, after all, it is the way one treats a subject rather than the subject itself that makes it interesting. Mr. Blouet begins his book by telling us that France is the foremost country in the world—a fact, he adds, "which it would be puerile to seek to prove, seeing that the French admit it themselves." Then he goes on to say that the Frenchman always pities foreigners, though he thinks them vastly amusing. "He looks upon the Belgian as a dear, good simpleton, the Italian, as a noisy nobody, the German as a heavy, pompous pedant; he thinks the American mad and the Englishman eccentric and grotesque." And then he adds that his own way of looking at these things is very much the same.

The ladies of the countries that he visits always interest Mr. Blouet, and he naturally describes the Canadian lady, who he says is "a happy combination of her English and American sisters. She has the physical beauty, the tall, graceful figure, and the fine complexion of the former, allied to the decided bearing, the naturalness, the frank glance, and the piquancy of the latter. If, added to these one could have the shrewd common sense and the irresistible charm of the Parisian, the result would be a really ideal woman. The amount of outdoor exercise taken by Canadian women in their winter games and pastimes goes far to explain the beauty of their complexions. The air of Canada is dry, the houses are heated in the same way as American houses, yet these two things, often advanced as the cause of the American belle's pallor, do not prevent the Canadian women from having brilliant complexions."

REMARKABLE CURES

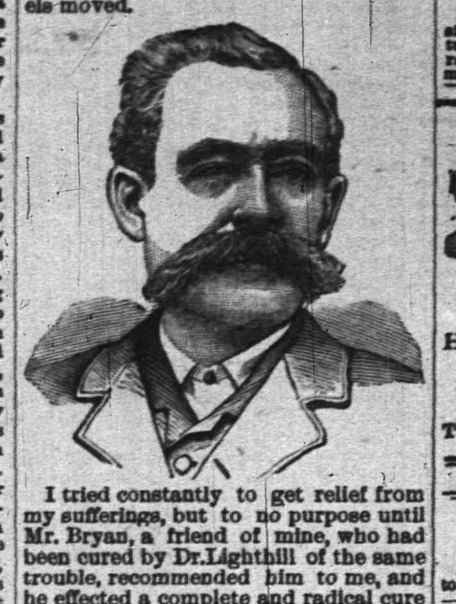
Of Recent Date.

A Statement from Ex-Mayor John Corson, Esq., of Clinton, N. J.

TO THE PUBLIC:

I acknowledge with the utmost pleasure the wonderful cure which Dr. Lighthill effected in my case.

I had been a sufferer from piles, which gave me constant pain and distress, during twenty long years, attended with frequent loss of blood and with great and painful protrusion of the pile tumors and rectum whenever my bowels moved.



I tried constantly to get relief from my sufferings, but to no purpose until Mr. Bryan, a friend of mine, who had been cured by Dr. Lighthill of the same trouble, recommended him to me, and he effected a complete and radical cure in my case also, and earned my lifelong gratitude.

JOHN CORSON.

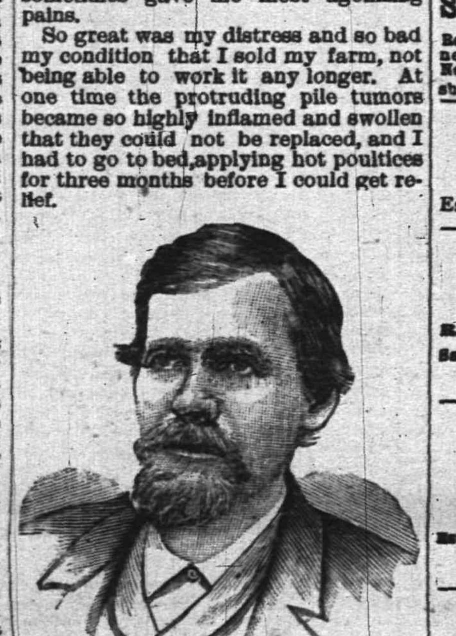
THE CASE OF MR. PETER G. EYCK, OF BISSELL, HUNTERDON CO., N. J.

Dr. Lighthill Effects a Complete Cure Where Ten-Physicians Had Failed.

TO THE SICK, SUFFERING AND AFFLICTED:

For many years past I have been afflicted with bleeding piles. Every movement of the bowels was attended with loss of blood and with intense pain which lasted for hours and sometimes all day. My condition was aggravated by a prolapse of the rectum, which greatly increased my suffering and sometimes gave me most agonizing pains.

So great was my distress and so bad my condition that I sold my farm, not being able to work it any longer. At one time the protruding pile tumors became so highly inflamed and swollen that they could not be replaced, and I had to go to bed, applying hot poultices for three months before I could get relief.



I had been under the treatment of ten different physicians, some of New York City, Easton, Washington and elsewhere, without any benefit whatever, and had given up my case as hopeless when, luckily for me, I heard of Dr. Lighthill's skill and success in such cases, and went to him for treatment, with the happy result that he effected a radical and permanent cure in less than four weeks's time; and I am glad to say that the entire treatment gave me neither pain nor distress.

I consider my cure perfectly wonderful, and so do all my friends and neighbors. I am confident that there is no case of piles which Dr. Lighthill cannot cure.

STIRRED BY RELIGION.

HISTORY OF SCOTCH PLAINS REVIVALS OF THE PAST.

Interesting and Valuable Discourse by Pastor Braker.

Pastor Braker of Scotch Plains preached last Sunday from Joshua XXII: 1-9, and compared the text to the good old days of the Scotch Plains Baptist Church.

In the course of his remarks the preacher said that there were points of interest in this story taken from the Bible corresponding with the history of our church. We stand like Paul, with an eventful past, looking at the midnight vision of the man of Mascedonia, urging to greater achievement. The history of the church has so many notable events, that it would be impossible to recount all, so the one feature only shall be emphasized and that is with reference to special revival work in the past. For if the present sign of our church life are indications of anything, it is that God is preparing us for special evangelistic work. Permit me then to recount to you the time of gracious reviving in the past, that there may be an encouragement for us to work the works of God. The earliest history of any revival in the church, is that of 1764, but it is presumed because of the additional membership of the church, (compared to that of 1747), that there were two or more revivals of religion. Rev. Mr. Locke, who preached the centenary sermon in 1847, mentions eight revivals; the first in 1764, when sixty were added to the membership of the church; the second in 1786, when seventy were baptized; this work continued through the years 1787 and 1788. In the year 1797 fifty professed the Lord, and were taken into the church. The next revival of interest was in 1808 and 1809, when forty made a confession of faith in the Lord Jesus Christ. In the year 1825, thirty more accepted the Lord as their Saviour and united with the church, and in the year 1832 fifty more were added to the church. In 1837 Rev. Mr. Rogers was pastor of the church. During the early Summer Wolf's swamp, (near what is now the Fanwood Station), was on fire, burning fiercely and endangering property. The men of the town, after their day's work was over, would battle with the flames until late at night, but the fire continued to burn fiercely. At last it assumed such a serious aspect that the Christian people of the town determined on a day of fasting and prayer to ask God to send rain to extinguish the flames. The day set was July 4, 1837. At the meeting Mr. Rogers asked his son-in-law Mr. Waite to make an address. Mr. Waite asked some of the brethren to speak a word; there was prolonged silence. He arose and said "My brethren, there will be no silence in heaven". This remark was the signal of a most profound religious movement in the church. Many were baptized, two of them are still members of the church, (the preacher referred to Mrs. Darby Miller of North Plainfield and Mrs. Nathan Marsh of Scotch Plains. They were both present at the service). The next revival was under the Rev. Mr. Rhue it began at the Jackson school-house on Terrill road, but was transferred to the old school-house, Scotch Plains. Mr. Rhue; was taken sick during this revival and his life was despaired of. Special prayers were offered for his recovery. He was spared and the work of grace progressed during his illness, and the manifest answers to the prayers offered at the meetings assumed even greater impulse, and many were received into the church. Some of them are still living and retain their membership in this grand old church. A revival which many of you in the audience remember was that held by Rev. Mr. Brown. After pleadingly preaching the word of God for four successive nights, an invitation to the unsaved was given. This proved to be one of the largest revivals the church ever had. During the next pastorate (Rev. Mr. Luke's) no special revival work was done, but under Dr. Buchanan's leadership, during the first Winter of his pastorate, souls were converted by the score. These were not the only revival services under his leadership, but were the most notable. The next revival of religion was under Dr. Parks, and was remarkable, because the church had just passed through two years of litigation. There were differences of opinion, and the legal suit had left the church in a state of spiritual indifference, but by his skilful management and with the co-operation of two evangelists, the church was the scene of many happy conversions. And now, my people, in conclusion, it has been my purpose to stir up your minds in holy remembrance; that while we review the history of revivals in the past, we may take new courage. Nay, hear His command—"The land is before you; go ye in to possess it". Let us of this generation take the hands of those trembling with the memories of the long ago, bearing in our hearts devout reverence for them and the scenes upon which their eyes looked, and do even greater achievements than they did, for the voice of the faithful past calls out for a larger future.

And Yet Much Jersey Pipe Is Used.

It is not generally understood why Cook & Co. go to the Ohio Valley for pipe when New Jersey has potteries within the State. The reason is that the specifications on which the contract was made call for pipe equal to the best productions of Ohio. New Jersey pipe, it is alleged, has not been found that is up to this standard, although the engineers have tested even selected samples sent out by the works in this State.

Hare and Hounds.

A hare and hound chase took place this afternoon at 2. The start was made from the corner of Westervelt and Grandview avenues, and will be less than five miles. Raymond Carroll and Joseph Kaing are the hares, and were given 15-minutes start. Among the hounds are Chauncey Stout, Louis Hummer, Orrin and Irving Dodge, Clifford Braider, and Will Jeffrey. William Buell will be timekeeper.

SOON OUT.

Plainfield's Fire Committee Sees a Quick Response to a Quickly Ended Blaze.

A board partition within half a foot of the boiler in W. D. Manning's kindling-wood factory, 28 Elm place, caught fire at 9:30 last evening. The flames appeared on the outside of the low shed at once, and several of the neighbors saw them Mr. Manning started to put out the fire by throwing water on it, while others ran to Box 15. John H. Blimm of East Third street pulled the box.

Councilmen Fisk, Bird and Erickson of the Fire Committee were in Chief Doane's office with Assistant Chief Murray, it being the regular meeting night. The committee hurried down stairs, not caring to try a slide down the pole, and had an opportunity to view the practical workings of the quick-hitch system.

The firemen anticipated a bad fire when they learned that the blaze was in the woodyard, but in spite of the excellent time they made the flames had been extinguished by Wm. Addis's hose before the apparatus arrived. The only damage done was the charring of a few boards.

WASHINGTON ROCK.

It Holds an Important Place in Ragan's Newest Lecture.

When Plainfield people crowd into Music Hall the evening of Monday, Nov. 5, to renew the delightful acquaintance of H. H. Ragan, the prince of travel tellers, they will find their own locality occupying an important part of the charming new pictorial lecture he has prepared for them. Mr. Ragan has explored thoroughly all the territory necessary for a complete story of "The Footprints of George Washington", and central New Jersey plays an important part in the masterly discourse Mr. Ragan will present. The views are of the superb perfection for which Mr. Ragan is noted, and include our own beloved Rock and the Harberger House on West Front street where Washington stopped to rest.

The sale of seats for this matchless series of instructive entertainments begins next Monday morning at Leggett's drug store, Front street and Park avenue. You'll get big profit on your dollar.

A Successful Association.

The Plainfield Building and Loan Association makes a very satisfactory showing. It was organized in March, 1884. The first series will run out in about eleven years. The second series is doing still better. It has been running seven years and has made an average of fourteen per cent. and this series will no doubt mature inside of ten years from the date of its commencement. The third series has done even still better. And the investments have been made in such a manner that no loss has been maintained by the association. Nearly all the investments are on first mortgage on real-estate in Plainfield. Full particulars regarding the manner of running the association can be obtained from any of the following officers: L. E. Barkalew, President, B. F. Coriell, Secretary, or W. R. Codington, Treasurer. A fourth series is now being opened.

A Tea.

The women of the Park Avenue Baptist Church gave a "tea" at the residence of Charles A. Haynes, 826 First place, yesterday afternoon, which was largely attended. Mrs. J. W. Johnson, Mrs. Chas. A. Haynes, Mrs. J. W. Richardson, Mrs. James Middledith, Mrs Fred Fish, Miss Alice Coard, Miss Annie Wyckoff, Miss Alice L. Haynes and Miss Lucille Prittie were present and by their kind attention added very much to the pleasure of the occasion. The music was fine and decorations consisting of palms, tropical plants and cut flowers were very tastefully arranged.

Sewer Delay Causing Comment.

The delay of the sewer construction because shipments of pipe ordered are slow in coming continues to excite considerable comment. A plumber said last evening that if a similar delay is to be experienced in getting the thousands of feet of standard quality 4-inch pipe for house connections, it would be well for the local plumbers to begin to send their orders to the Ohio valley at once.

Boehm's Bargain Bazar.

New goods are coming by every train to equip the new household department at Boehm's. That popular house is preparing to break all records Monday, and meanwhile is doing a great business in dinner and tea sets sold at half their proper value. The dry-goods business there continues to flourish as of yore, and the new ventures keep pace with the old successes.

Watson's Patrons on the Anxious Seat.

Michael Watson's arrest for illegal liquor selling started considerable gossip in the West End last evening. Many of the men wondered if they were booked to be called as witnesses for either side. The secret service official who procured the evidence spotted a number of his comrades.

Local Talent.

E M. Odam is making favorable progress in his work of organizing a dramatic company, and expects soon to have a rehearsal.

YOUNG SPIRITS,

a vigorous body and robust strength, follow good health. But all fail when the vital powers are weakened. Nervous debility and loss of manly power result from bad habits, contracted by the young through ignorance of their ruinous consequences. Low spirits, melancholia, impaired memory, morose, or irritable temper, fear of impending calamity and a thousand and one derangements of body and mind, result from such pernicious practices. All these are permanently cured by improved methods of treatment without the patient leaving home.

A medical treatise written in plain but chaste language, treating of the nature, symptoms and curability of such diseases, sent securely sealed in a plain envelope, on receipt of this notice, with 10 cents in stamps, for postage. Address, World's Dispensary Medical Association, Buffalo, N. Y.

County Clerk William M. Oliver, Democratic Candidate for Re-election.

Through the courtesy of the Elizabeth Herald, The Daily Press is enabled to publish this excellent likeness of a man for whom every voter in Union County can with honest pride cast his ballot. William M. Oliver is not only one of the most popular young men in the county, but one who has in his service to the county in the office of County Clerk in the last year proved himself one of the most competent officials the county has ever had. In this commendation of his services both Republicans and Democrats are agreed. The Daily Press would reassert its editorial of Oct. 17: "Only one candidate should be mentioned in the Democratic Convention for the office of County Clerk, and the nomination ought be accorded to him by acclamation. That one candidate has high standing in the business and social life of the county, he is respected by all, and held in warm affection by many. The masses of both parties love him for his sincere kindnesses to the people; he proved his qualities by his generous donation of much of his first year's salary to the widow of his predecessor. He is already County Clerk, and has been a most creditable official. By all that is just and proper the nomination and the election belong to William M. Oliver."

HIGH SCHOOL NOTEBOOK.

The report cards of the High School are due the first of next month, and everyone is looking with interest to see what his marks are since school began. The beginners Physics class are deep in the mysteries of Specific Gravity, while the advanced class are studying Sound, and almost every day have music equal to any country orchestra. The Zoology class are still at work dissecting specimens of the man-footed family. Twilight is keeping the Astronomy class hard at work. The evening outing of the class was postponed until next week owing to the cloudy weather.

The regular meeting of the Kappa Delta Phi was held yesterday afternoon. Instead of the High School Record being read, each member gave a two-minutes talk on any subject he chose. The following subjects were spoken upon: G A Horne '95, Aerial Navigation; C B Morse '95, Politics in the Coming Election from a Republican Aspect; Henry Eggerding '96, State of the Navies of the World; J H Craig '96, The System of Sewerage to be Tried in Plainfield; Lewis Rand '96, Politics in the Coming Election from a Democratic Aspect; Ernest Rapalje '97, The North Pole; C C Gallup '96, The Skill Needed in Planning a Successful Sewage System; J V Beekman, Jr., '95, The Climax of Plainfield's Improvements; A B Crane '97, An Outline Sketch of the United States Government from the Time of the Landing of the Pilgrims.

Lewis Rand, as programme committee for November, reported that at the next meeting each member would be expected to give a reading from some American author. The authors were assigned as follows: Emerson—J V Beekman, Jr., '95; Longfellow—Ernest Rapalje '97; Lowell, C C Gallup '96; Whittier, Henry Eggerding '96; Holmes, Lewis Rand '96; Everett, Charles Noble '96; Hawthorne, J H Craig '96; Irving, A B Crane '97; Prescott, G A Horne '95; Webster, C B Morse '95; Barton, H B Drake '95; Bryant, E I Serrell '95; Poe, Walter Hetfield '98; Calhoun, T W Cornwell '96.

The Fall public meeting was postponed indefinitely, and arrangements were made for a mock trial on Nov. 16.

The election of officers closed the meeting and the result was: President, Charles B Morse '95; Vice-president, Ernest Rapalje '97; Secretary and Treasurer, Henry B Drake '95; Critic. Lewis Rand '96; Sergeant-at-arms, J Hazelwood Craig '96

The High School Lyceum met yesterday afternoon at 4 and held a "spots" talk. The subjects spoken on were: Governor's Island, Llewellyn Bull 96; The High School Fountain, a series of very witty remarks by F Wilbur Cornwell '96; Plymouth, Mass, H B Drake '95; Marblehead, Mass., C C Gallup '96; Pemiquid, G A Horne '95; The Baptist Church yard in Scotch Plains and some of the epitaphs there, H O Nightingale; Benson Muses, C B Morse '95; Morris Plains Lunatic Asylum, Ernest Suffern 97.

During the business session the work for the year was talked over and various plans brought up to forward the interest in the Lyceum. The programme for Nov. 9 was arranged and will consist of a debate on the subject:

Resolved, That the French language is more beneficial than the German.

The affirmative will be ably defended by F W Cornwell '96 and H O Nightingale '96, while C C Gallup '96 and C B Morse '95 will speak for the negative.

The bimonthly election of officers was held and resulted as follows: President, Henry B Drake '95; Vice-president, F Wilbur Cornwell '96; Secretary, George A Horne, '95, Treasurer, Elwood Sebring '95; Critic, Charles B Morse '95; Sergeant-at-Arms, Ernest Suffren '97.

NINETY-FIVE

To Settle the Schedule.

H L. VanEmburgh of the Plainfield Bowling Club, S. W. Sharp of the Cranford Country Club, and Mr. Shepperd of the Arthur Kulls, constitute the bowling League Schedule Committee which meets here Monday night. They will make their report the next evening.

THEIR EIGHTH ANNIVERSARY.

Dunellen Endeavorers Review a Successful Career.

The Christian Endeavor society of the First Presbyterian Church of Dunellen celebrated its eighth anniversary in the church last evening. The attendance of members and friends was large and the exercises were interesting.

All joined heartily in singing "Bringing in the Sheaves" and "Onward Christian Soldiers", after which the pastor, Rev. A. I. Martine, opened the meeting with Scripture reading, I John, III chapter, and prayer. The hymn "Blessed Assurance" was then sung.

On account of illness the secretary, Miss Maude Benton, did not read a report. It will be given at the next business meeting of the society.

The treasurer's report was read as follows: Oct. 18, 1893, balance in treasurer, $105.96; Oct. 18, 1894, balance in treasury, $246 45; disbursements, $206 24; balance now in treasury, $40 21.

The Rev. A. I. Martine then introduced the Rev. J. W. Trout of Elizabeth, who gave an excellent talk on "Good Citizenship". Mr. Trout is one of the best speakers ever heard and he held the individual attention of his audience from beginning to end. The principal points of his address were: "Loyalty to Good Citizenship, and Self Obedience". The subject was treated in a masterly manner.

At the conclusion of the address, the pastor offered prayer and the congregation sang that favorite hymn, "God be with you till we meet again". The Christian Endeavor benediction by the Endeavorers brought to a close a most profitable and interesting meeting.

C. E. SOCIABLE.

Congregationalists Enjoy Watchung Avenue Hospitality.

The hospitable parlors of Mrs. William VanAlstyne of 730 Watchung avenue were crowded last night with the enthusiastic Christian Endeavorers of the Congregational Church who came to attend the first Fall sociable of the Christian Endeavor society. Recitations, and vocal and instrumental solos were well rendered and enjoyed by all, and a clothes-pin race between two sides furnished fun for everyone, while a potato race between a young woman and a young man made the whole house shake with the shouts of laughter of the lookers-on. Cake and chocolate were served and then all drew around the piano to sing college songs.

It was one of the most successful, if not the most successful sociable, ever held by the society, and reflects great credit on the Social Committee who were untiring in their efforts to make a success of it, and that they succeeded all who were present will testify.

F. E. Miller's Lawsuits.

Although a venire was issued by Justice Nash yesterday the claim of right of property of Hattie M. Miller on property levied on by Constable Mattox as Frank E. Miller's was not tried this morning. Ex-Judge W. R. Codington, Mrs. Miller's counsel, had shown proof that the property belonged to her, and as the goods were returned the case was dropped. The damage suit of Mr. Miller against Constable Mattox and Frank Linke will come up next Tuesday.

Don't Wait.

If in sewing, reading or other occupation, you notice the slightest tendency to straining of the eye, you should consult an optician at once. A visit to Collier's, 103 Park avenue, will insure you a free examination of your eyes, and you will get reliable advice as to the treatment, if any, they may require.

That'll Be Good.

When the house sewers have been finished Plainfield is to have several storm sewers running to the brook which will furnish better drainage along the streets in the lower portions of the city.

—Ragan is coming.

COUNTRY CLUB ROBBED.

EVIDENTLY THE BURGLAR HAD A KEY.

Cigars, Cuffs, Billiard Balls, and a Vase, Stolen During the Night.

A peculiar robbery was perpetrated at the Country Club-house some time after 1 this morning. The thief was evidently acquainted with the place, and Steward Randolph thinks it probable that he was formerly an employe there.

The help finished work at 1, and went to their bedrooms on the attic floor. The robbery was discovered when they went downstairs this morning. The window and door fastenings had not been disturbed, so the intruder must have had a key or hid in the house before it was shut up for the night.

The articles missing were a glass case of cigars, an imported vase, 16 billiard balls and a pair of cuffs. The cigars were worth about $30. The case was found on the tennis grounds with the glass smashed in. The cuffs belonged to one of the waiters, who had left them on a shelf in the kitchen. The vase was probably taken to carry the cigars in. No silverware or other valuable goods was taken. Chief Grant examined the premises this morning as soon as the steward notified him.

THIS TELLS THE STORY.

FROM ATLANTIC TO PACIFIC

Praises Come, Unlimited, Heralding the Success of One Woman's Work.

[SPECIAL TO OUR LADY READERS.]

From all sections of this great country. No city so large, no village so small, but that some woman has sent us her words of joyful thanks for health restored.

From San Francisco Mrs. Detwiler writes, from her Laurel Ave. home, that she unwisely left her room all too soon when her baby was born.

The result was an aggravated case of displacement of the womb that wholly prostrated her.

The doctors tried medicines, apparatus, and she suffered everything.

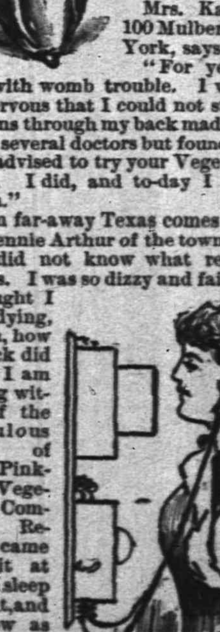
"I decided to try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. The effect was wonderful, and, thanks alone to her, I am now well."

Mrs. Kate Morris, 100 Mulberry St., New York, says:—

"For years I suffered with womb trouble. I was so sick and nervous that I could not stand or sit, the pains through my back made me crazy. I tried several doctors but found no relief. I was advised to try your Vegetable Compound. I did, and to-day I am a well woman."

From far-away Texas comes word from Mrs. Jennie Arthur of the town of Taylor:

"I did not know what rest was for months. I was so dizzy and faint at times I thought I was dying, and, oh, how my back did ache! I am a living witness of the miraculous effects of Mrs. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. Relief came with it at once. I sleep all night, and am now as well as ever in my life."



From the great state of Pennsylvania, Mrs. L. Travis, of Thurlow, tells a similar story of utter misery resulting from womb trouble; all the fearful results of this dread trouble was upon her when the Lydia Pinkham Vegetable Compound came to change the whole current of her life, and she ends up her letter by declaring: "I owe all to you." Thousands of other names are here. Let your faith lead you to the certain remedy for all your troubles. Your druggist has it for you.

114 Park avenue, Plainfield.

Will demonstrate to its patrons tomorrow that New York dry goods house prices for Furs are simply not in it with them. They promise to offer dress trimmings and capes at 50 to 100 per cent. below the lowest New York prices. They are doing this to show Plainfielders that they can buy cheaper at home than elsewhere. Besides they guarantee for wear every article they sell.

Two Ways

of doing business. One way that belongs to the other fellows—of getting all they can for their goods.

The other way—our way of giving all we can for your money. It's the reason we are always so busy. We have so many good things

Like These

Poor Chinesee he bolly sick,
All the same he got lick.
Japan man makee muchee racket,
Aug Li Heung loose his yellow jacket.

But—It don't make any difference in the price of China matting. We put on sale today 100 rolls of fine matting 10 to 12c per yard.

Fine Millinery—The immense business that our millinery department is doing speaks for itself. The style, work and moderate prices that we ask for high class millinery is the good reason for it.

Coats for Ladies and Children—Few New York houses show as complete an assortment as we do and we know our prices are much lower.

To introduce our 6 hook W. B. corset we will sell them for 93c value $1.25

For $2.98 we give a choice of 100 different styles of the latest novelties in dress good, 7 yds dress goods, 5 yds skirt lining, 2 yds silesia, all for $2.98. The goods are all wool and worth 50c yd.

Ladies ribbed vests and pants 27c. Gents gray shirts and drawers 37c. Childrens natural wool shirts and pants

Size 16, 18, 20, 22, 24, 26, 28, 30.
5, 10, 15, 18, 20, 22, 24, 26c

Plain black satine 6c yard.

36 inch black and blue dress flannel 13c.

36 inch novelty dress goods 25c.

To Horse Owners—That lot of 5-a blankets advertised last week is going fast. You know what 5-a blankets are and when you can buy them 25 per cent. less than their value, dont miss the chance.

IN THE METROPOLIS.

FACTS AND FANCIES CONCERNING NEW YORK AFFAIRS OF INTEREST.

The Famous Fire Fighters. An Alarm Sent in by a Cat. The Interesting Polyglot Beggar. Golf is Popular. Some Society Items.

New York may be lacking in some ways, but in the matter of fire protection it does not acknowledge a superior anywhere. The fire department is almost perfect, and wherever one hears the thrilling clamor of the fire bells, he knows there are brave, skilled men on duty. Speaking of their skill, an up-town resident the other day compared the driving of the big engines with the fine display of the British soldiers who exhibited in this country last year. The artillery of the soldiers was driven between obstructions little wider than the wheels with remarkable dexterity, but the New Yorker thinks the driving of the fire engines shows no less skill. He says: I am living in the neighborhood of a fire engine that lies in a cross street just off an avenue in which the elevated railroad runs. Well, you ought to see the engine turn into the avenue, from the street, between the pillars, going to a fire. Of course the pillars are very much further apart than the artillery obstructions were, but they are taken on a curve instead of going straight, and then, too, they are rigid and immovable; to hit one with the horses on the jump would mean to wreck the engine or at least to disable it, and there must not be any mistake; and there isn't. They go down the avenue on the gallop and they turn out between the pillars with the same swift certainty. Good driving? Why, it makes you laugh to look at it; and just the same kind of driving is done by all the men in the department every time they go to a fire."

While on the subject of fires a queer little story from Brooklyn may be mentioned. A private call for fire engines went from a house on Willow street, Brooklyn, early one morning not long ago, and the neighborhood was startled by the sudden appearance of firemen. The occupants of the house were awakened, but failed to discover any trace of a fire, and the firemen went away angry. The alarm had been sent out through one of the district telegraph call boxes, the signals from which will summon a messenger, a policeman or a fire engine. Nobody in the house would admit having sent such a call, but yesterday there was a development which cleared up the mystery. There is a very clever cat in the house, and yesterday forenoon tabby was caught playing with the lever of the alarm box. The little ebony knob attracted her attention, and she pulled it down with her claws. Tabby had sent in the alarm.

If when walking on any of the cross streets in the vicinity of Grace Church you hear a mumble of jargon at your shoulder, and, turning, find that it comes from a stout, sodden-faced young fellow, you may know that you are in the hands of the polyglot beggar. As soon as he finds that he has attracted your attention, he ranges alongside and fires a German broadside at you. You shake your head, and he brings a French volley into play. Another shake of the head, and he rakes you with Italian. All these failing, he hauls down his foreign flags and boards you with the question in broken English. "Are you acquainted well with here?" The pirate is so "mild-mannered," and the implied compliment of your speaking strange tongues is so pleasant, that you answer him smoothly, and then, holding you with his eye, of the Ancient Mariner pattern, he sheers off to the edge of the sidewalk, with you in tow, or else warps you into the snug haven of a doorway, and starts to spin his yarn of the storms and shoals of the great city. The plunder is generally a nickel or a dime, but it is a question if the entertainment in the fine art of mendicancy is not worth the money.

Those people who imagine that golf is not advancing in popularity in this country, or who think that the derision levelled at it has had the effect of killing off enthusiasm for the game, are not conversant with the real status of the latest importation into the extensive list of sports in which Americans indulge. Golf is here, and it is not only firmly established in Newport, Southampton, Yonkers, the Oranges, Boston, Chicago and Philadelphia, but it has been taken up by enthusiasts in literally scores of small cities and towns in the Eastern States. The manufacturers of golf toggery and implements are in communication with literally hundreds of towns where interest in the sport is evidently already well grounded. The theory that the passion for golf is a form of anglomania will cause a smile in England, where they look upon golf as a Scottish game. The game has not only got into cartoons in the comic papers and corners, but into verse as the following sample from the World proves:

Have you joined the Golf Club yet—
You who would be of that set
Which includes the cream of Gotham's sons and daughters?
Where the swells of high degrees
May be swagger as they please
Without troubling with a trip across the waters.
Where the Highland caddie blinks
At the jolly golfing links,
And you pay for things in sterling pounds and pence;
Where you chat in Cockney slang
And discard your Yankee twang
As a thing of most unpardonable offense.

Queer things happen in the big hotels of New York, and some of them are chargeable to bridegrooms. At the Brunswick the other day a very pretty young woman, accompanied by a young man, entered the office of the Brunswick, and after engaging a suite of rooms the gentleman wrote, "A. Samuels and wife," on the register. Then he leaned over the desk and quietly informed Clerk Morrison that he was to be married in a few hours and thought it best to engage the suite in advance. Later he and his bride returned to the hotel.

Mr. and Mrs. Edwin Gould are finding rural felicity at their seat in Tarrytown, where the former is trying his skill in four-in-hand driving. As to the town house of the young couple, it is evidently regarded as an encumbrance, and is to be disposed of at the earliest opportunity.

Maid servants in New York are governed in their choice as to mistresses by the region in which the latter live. The best servants refuse to consider offers from persons living outside certain fashionable or semi-fashionable places. Some will not go to the east side below Fourteenth street, and many disdain Harlem as they do the country unless the offer comes from a rich family with many servants.

GOV. WILLIAM MCKINLEY.

A Man of High Character, Often Mentioned for the Presidency.

No one sees the strong, leonine face of William McKinley, Governor of Ohio and father of the last Republican tariff bill, without trusting the man, whatever may be thought of his politics. Opinions differ as to the wisdom of his economic views, but of his integrity and ability there is no question, and it is recognized that while he may be wrong he cannot be dishonorable. In a national convention there was a movement, after a number of ineffectual ballots, to give him the delegation of his State, which had been elected for Senator Sherman, when he decisively prevented this by declaring that he would not accept a nomination that came to him under such circumstances, even if Ohio could secure it. His declaration showed the kind of a man he is.

In the last convention the opposition to Gen. Harrison was divided between Blaine and McKinley; and in the next, many believe the name of the Ohio man will lead all the rest. But, as a sagacious man has observed, "onearthly things is mighty onsartin," and nothing is more uncertain than the action of a political convention whose date is two years in the future. At present, Gov. McKinley is one of three men most often named as probable nominees.

GOV. WILLIAM MC KINLEY.
[From the N. Y. World.]

After the passage of the McKinley bill some of the American women were inclined to regard him with disfavor; but when they learned how notably kind he was to his wife, whose health is delicate, they relented and were ready to say that such a man must be all right.

Gov. McKinley is a poor man, and his public and private life are alike free from stain. In personal character he is the kind of man the country needs in public office, for he is brave and honest, and he adds to these qualifications ability of a high order. If fate and the Republican voters should put him in the President's chair, many people would deplore his politics, but none would feel ashamed of him, or would expect anything from him that was not consonant with the character of an able and high-minded man.

LITTLE THINGS WORTH NOTING.

Honeymoon Apartments and Other Matters of Interest.

At one of the Washington hotels there are special suits of "Honeymoon Apartments," each one of which is fitted up to suit a peculiar type or color. Blonde, brunette, or nut-brown brides are thus specially catered for.

The Peary baby is named "Marie Ahnighito." The latter name is believed to express something very pretty, but Mrs. Peary has not been let into the secret, it seems. She says she does not know what it means.

The population of France has steadily decreased in the last twelve years. This is due to the birth rate falling below the death rate rather than to emigration.

Some of the Transvaal gold deposits have been traced to a depth of 2,400 feet. What ages of time it must have taken to cover those washings so deep!

There's perhaps more money in copper than in gold. Anyhow, the Tamarack Mine Company in Michigan has chased the baser yellow metal about 4,000 feet underground.

Clockless Tribes.

Liberia, in Africa, has neither clock nor timepiece of any sort. The reckoning of time is made entirely by the movement and position of the sun, which rises at 6:00 A. M. and sets at 6:00 P. M., almost to the minute the year round, and at noon it is vertically overhead. The islanders of the South Pacific have no clocks, but make a curious time marker of their own. They take the kernels from the nuts of the candle tree and wash and string them on the rib of a palm leaf. The first or top kernel is then lighted. All of the kernels are of the same size and substance, and each will burn a certain number of minutes and then set fire to the next one below.

The natives tie pieces of bark cloth at regular intervals along the string to mark the divisions of time. Among the natives of Singar, in the Malay Archipelago, another peculiar device is used. Two bottles are placed neck and neck, and sand is placed in one of them, which pours itself into the other one every half hour, when the bottles are reversed. There is a line near by also, on which are hung twelve rods marked with notches from 1 to 12. A regularly appointed keeper attends to the bottles and rods, and sounds the hour upon a gong.—Newcastle Chronicle.

A FISH'S REVENGE.

A Big Muskallonge the Cause of a Girl's Drowning.

Here is a pathetic fish story from Rogers city, Michigan:

William Cooper, of Fisher, this county, went fishing a few days ago, and took his four-year old daughter with him for company. The little one did not come back.

Cooper hooked a big muskallonge. It was a fighter, and he had no sooner got it in the boat than a fierce struggle began. As he was trying to seize it, it suddenly opened its gills and Cooper thrust his hands within them. The gills of the muskallonge are armed on the inside with sharp, inward bent bones. Those of the captive monster closed upon Cooper's hands and gripped them so closely that he could not free them. A swish of the muskallonge's tail at that instant knocked the little one overboard. Her father, being held fast could not rescue her, and she drowned before his eyes.

DRAMA AND OPERA.

EVENTS DISCUSSED BY PLAYERS AND PLAY-GOERS.

Something About Opera. Lillian Russell and Her Engagement by Abbey. Big Salaries. Tom Gould to go on the Stage. Mansfield Protests.

Grand Opera is a luxury, and an expensive luxury. It is no more a necessity than is a century plant in your bay window. But it is a sign and a symbol of a matured taste, and in some sense a guarantee of superfluous wealth. The capitals of the world must have it for pretty much the same reason that the millionaires must have their yachts. It has not, at least in this country and up to this time, drawn its sustenance and support from the people. It leaned helplessly upon a class—I had almost said a coterie—who regarded it as an appendage of culture. Consequently its history in this city is the history of dilettanteism, Brummagem taste, strained mimicry of foreign cities, of wrecked impressarios, melodramatic stockholders, struggling prime donne and struggling chorus singers. Some of the pioneers of grand opera are walking our streets yet, carrying their furrows and their sad reminiscenes with them, many more are dust, having laid their broken hearts away in forgetfulness. It has been half a century's problem whether to pull the people up to grand opera, or let grand opera down to the people, for there was, in spite of academies of music and the showy patrons who subsidized when they felt like it, and let the thing go by default when they didn't—a growing notion that the people were in some way a necessity of successful opera.

The method adopted by Mr. Abbey to make grand opera popular is easily seen by scanning the list of thirty-seven operas to be produced this season. Of the three dozen and odd compositions on the list, but three are Wagner's and these are the tuneful ones. "Tannhauser," "Die Meistersinger" and "Lohengrin." Gounod, Meyerbeer, and Rossini contribute three each, Verdi six, and Mozart, Saint Saens, Donizetti, Massenet and A. Thomas each two. The Wagner enthusiasts will hardly be satisfied with this treatment of the great German, but the selection recognizes a popular demand for tunefulness rather than tragedy; for sweetness rather than thunder, and it undoubtedly reflects the wisdom which Mr. Abbey and the producers of opera have learned in the dear school of experience.

Some of the people addicted to speculation are wondering whether Mr. Abbey will make anything from his engagement of Lillian Russell at $1,500 a week, and a bonus of $17,500 to Canary & Lederer for her release. This is an advance of 50 per cent. upon the salary she has been getting, and is more than Tony Pastor paid her for a year in the old days of her beautiful girlhood. For more than a decade Miss Russell has constantly increased her value as a singer, and she has done it by hard work, and by following with judicious energy the promptings of her great ambition. To make Mr. Abbey's bargain a good one she must bring into his treasury nearly $100,000 before next June, and her employer is confident that she will do it.

Apropos of salaries Mr. Abbey makes some highly interesting statements concerning the great amounts earned by artists that he has managed. He says that in the twenty-eight weeks of Henry Irving's last tour in this country the receipts were $725,000, almost touching $4000 one night, and aggregating $61,400 for fourteen performances in San Francisco. He took in $40,000 for two weeks of Bernhardt in the same city, and $43,883 for nine appearances in Boston. During the six and a half months of the spectacle "America," in Chicago, at Fair time, the income was $1,000,000 and the outgo only a little more than $100,000. Mr. Abbey says he has paid to Patti and Bernhardt over $1,000,000 each.

Oscar Hammerstein, who hissed pretty Mlle. Di Dio in the play house that he rents to Koster & Bial, and then undertook to evict his tenants, has made a failure of his effort. The leesees won in the legal contest, and, incidentally, the character of Mr. Hammerstein was subjected to attack, if not calumny. The attorney for Koster & Bial declared that Mr. H. was a confessed liar and perjurer, and made other remarks calculated to displease a sensitive man.

Richard Mansfield is an exceedingly capable actor—many believe the best and most promising on the American stage; and he partly believes this himself, and is inclined to rebel when his treatment is gingerly. Of late he has been having trouble with theatrical managers, whom he censures jointly with the public saying:

"When I try my best to advance the drama in this city, I not only am neglected by the public, but I have to contend against the most unprofessional methods preticed by certain managers, who as soon as an actor of my company shows any ability, try to win him away from me, by offering him a premium. Is that fair? Is that just? Is it professional? What chance have I against such methods? I give you my word I spend every cent I make on the road in trying to give the New York public good drama, and this is the return. I produce a play like Arms and the Man and I play to empty benches. I work night and day, I put my whole strength into it, and the public flocks to see the foreign actor who puts a lot of scenery on the stage and mumbles and stumbles through his lines. I try to teach my people, and as soon as they begin to show merit, as soon as they begin to give me some return for my efforts they leave me because some other manager offers them a dollar or two more a week. I have no redress; I can only protest. Sometimes I think I will give New York up altogether. I have a splendid offer to establish a theatre of my own in Washington, and I am debating now whether or not I shall accept it."

Six New Brains a Year.

It has been estimated that we get a complete new outfit of brains about every two months. The duration of a nerve's life is about sixty days.

Each nerve cell has its own independent functions, subordinate to the higher functions of the whole brain en masse, and the latter acts as a sort of "boss" or overseer to the individual actions and life of each separate cell. Each cell is destroyed and renewed every two months, so we each get six brand-new brains per year.—Boston Globe.

REV. CHARLES H. PARKHURST.

A Man Whose Name Strikes Terror to Evildoers of New York.

A few years ago, a friend said to the writer that the finest, most intellectual sermons heard in New York were delivered by Rev. Dr. Charles H. Parkhurst, in the Madison Square Prebyterian Church. Of their high character there was no doubt, and the ability of their author was recognized. But none guessed that the pale, scholarly divine was a warrior with whose name the metropolis would be ringing in 1894, and whose fame would carry dread to every corruptionist of the metropolis. But so it is, and the political and official circles of the metropolis have, through him, received such a shaking up as has seldom been seen. The startling disclosures of the Lexow Committee; the disgrace of bribe-taking policemen, and the other events tending to the purification of New York had their inception in the work of Dr. Parkhurst.

In a long study of the character of this remarkable man a writer in the New York Herald says:

In person, Dr. Parkhurst is a rather small, fine bred, extremely gentlemanly man, whose spiritual workings display themselves in every motion of the physical machine. He is eloquent and animated in every organ and member as he is in every thought or word. That wonderfully native quality of nervous activity which the world dignifies with the adjective "American" essentially belongs to him. His intellectual and vital electricity constantly flashes and sparkles. One can really see in him, most perceptibly, too, the perpetual play of what science calls "co-ordination." His gestures, his smiles, his frowns, the flash of his eye, the curl of his lip, are instantaneous translations of an idea in the brain, an emotion of the heart, a decision of the mind, a mood of the spirit.

He abhors wrong. So he would, if he could, even persecute those who practise and permit wrong. It is because of his detestation of the wicked act that he draws the sword and smites the wicked agent. It is a distinctly human passion, his work of reform; a distinctly human note, pitched to a distinctly spiritual and supernatural key.

REV. CHARLES H. PARKHURST, D.D.
[From New York Herald.]

He is distinctly American, too, in that he always gets down to strict business. His very discussion of his own methods has the exactness of the counting house. He applies the logical solvent of pure mathematics to all moral problems. Tropes and metaphors and abstract treatment lie centuries behind him. His are not only the methods of to-day; they are the strategetics of the United States. He wages a spiritual as well as a moral war, according to the tactics of the city of New York. His beliefs and convictions are the beliefs and convictions of all the ages. His application of them is in the spirit of 1894, in the dialect of Tammany Hall.

Another of his strongest characteristics is his American passion for always being in harness. Once embarked in a specific task, he is simply tireless in following it to its very conclusion. His clerical duties, his parochial work, his tender ministrations to the dying and the sick, his rounds of pastoral consolation and cheer are never intermitted for a moment or minified in the slightest degree, but every day of the Lexow sessions, all the same, he may be seen, not by any means in a conspicuous seat, with head cocked on one side, his eyes full of fire and interest, his mobile lips moving in whispered commentary, his expressive face now lit up, now cast down by the flow of the testimony, the great, unswerving auger goes deeper and deeper down into the apparently unfathomable mind. There he is. There he remains.

WAS AT SHAKESPEARE'S FUNERAL

Dr. Arbuthnot Looking for the Tomb of an American.

Among the passengers who arrived on the Lucania a few days ago, was the Rev. Dr. G. Arbuthnot, rector of Holy Trinity Church, Stratford-on-Avon. Dr. Arbuthnot, who is an eminent Shakesperian scholar, and who for fifteen years has been custodian of the poet's tomb in Holy Trinity, is visiting this country for the first time.

Although the object of his visit is one of recreation and pleasure principally, he will devote some time to furthering his Shakesperian researches.

He is especially anxious to discover the grave of an American who attended Shakespere's funeral, and whose body is supposed to have been buried somewhere in Virginia. With this purpose in view he will make a thorough search through that State.

"You Americans," he said, "I consider, far better Shakesperian scholars than we Englishmen; possibly you may be a little too ardent;" he added, with the suggestion of a smile. "We scarcely relished paying £2,000 for Anne Hathaway's cottage and £500 more for the furniture in order to keep it from journeying to the World's Fair."

Dr. Arbuthnot, in the course of his pastorage at Holy Trinity has made many friends among the American pilgrims to the tomb of the poet, and he looks forward with much pleasure to meeting them again. He will travel across the continent while here and on returning he will leave the city shortly for San Francisco. He will visit Florida and other winter resorts. In Philadelphia, he will be the guest of Dr. Furniss, whom he considers one of the foremost students of Shakespeare.

Catarrh Cannot Be Cured

with local applications, as they cannot reach the seat of the disease. Catarrh is a blood or constitutional disease, and in order to cure it you must take internal remedies. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, and acts directly on the blood and mucous surfaces. Hall's Catarrh Cure is not a quack medicine. It was prescribed by one of the best physicians in this country for years, and is a regular prescription. It is composed of the best tonics known, combined with the best blood purifiers, acting directly on the mucous surfaces. The perfect combination of the two ingredients is what produces such wonderful results in curing catarrh. Send for testimonials, free.

CRANK AFTER CLEVELAND.

He Was on the Train with the President and Didn't Know It.

Elkton, Md., Oct. 27.—President Cleveland and a crank who is on his way to Washington to see the Chief Magistrate were fellow passengers Thursday. When the Congressional express, to which the President's private car was attached, arrived here, a man, who gave his name as Charles D. Walters, of Atlantic City, N. J., alighted. He says he has been proclaimed Major-General of the army. Admiral of the navy and a superior officer over President Cleveland, and is going to Washington to assume his position and draw his pay. Walters is a tall, slender man. He is dressed in a navy blue military coat heavily braided, and wears an army officer's cap. He did not know that the President's car was attached to the train, but says he will call upon him when he arrives at the Capital.

Registration in New York.

New York, Oct. 27.—Yesterday was the third day for registration for the coming election. In the three days 265,139 voters registered. The first three days in 1892, 272,152 electors registered, and in 1893 the registry books showed a total for the three days of 207,733.

Want Them To Fight in Mexico.

New York, Oct. 27.—A letter was forwarded by Gray Latnan, vice-president of the Kinetoscope Exhibiting Company, to James J. Corbett and Bob Fitzsimmons offering a purse of $50,000 for the fight, which they want to take place in Mexico, where there will be no danger of official interference.

Carlisle Undecided.

Washington, Oct. 27.—Up to a late hour Secretary Carlisle had not decided to accept the invitation to speak in New York and Brooklyn next week. He still has the matter under advisement and may not come to a conclusion for a day or two yet.

THE PASSING OF PEACE.

FRIENDS PROTEST VAINLY AGAINST TROLLEY INVASION.

Through-Line Cars to Swing Their Corner and Speed Through the Street Which Has Lost Its Name.

A representative of the electric traction company whose cars will halt in Plainfield for New York and Philadelphia passengers, is reported as saying that the connection with the present Plainfield system will be made through Third street at North avenue.

The Friends naturally object to having the cars swing their corner, and refuse to give consent. Signature for only 7 feet more on Third street is needed, however, to establish Third street as the route, and the company will procure the control by purchase if necessary.

The Friends meetings are now considerably disturbed by the steam cars, and the prospect of having to endure the clang of trolley bells and grind of trolley wheels disturbs the serene composure of the esteemed sect for whom peace and quiet have such charms.

INDUSTRIAL ALLIANCE.

WORTHY CHARITY FUND EXPLAINED TO PLAINFIELD.

Wise Philanthropic People Believe in Making Dependents Pay for What They Get.

A worthy charity was explained to a large congregation in the Crescent Avenue Church last evening. Secretary Arthur V. Milbury of the Industrial Christian Alliance of 170 Bleecker street, New York, presented the needs and told of the work of the Alliance

Rev. Dr. W. R. Richards, one of the incorporators, introduced Mr. Milbury with words of praise for his institution. The secretary described the different features of the home where men are taken from the streets, sheltered, given work which helps support them, and finally placed in situations where they can be found. Five men from the home, well-educated, cultured men, told of their own experiences. Rev. Dr. A. H. Lewis followed with a brief address in which he compared the work with that of the early church in the days of the Apostles. Dr. Richards then asked the people to contribute to the support of the Alliance and a collection was taken up. Mr. Milbury thanked the people very cordially and had circulars of the society distributed as the people left the church.

PASTOR HOWLETT HERE AGAIN.

The Former Plainfielder Preaches an Eloquent Discourse.

In the First Baptist Church yesterday Rev. T. R. Howlett preached in the evening. Mr. Howlett was formerly pastor of the Second Baptist Church of this city, now Park Avenue. Much sympathy was felt a few years ago among his many friends over his loss of a foot by a railroad accident. His theme Sunday evening was "Salvation: Its Source and Its Course." His texts were: "Salvation is of the Jew," and "He shall be the glory of This People Israel." Mr. Howlett showed that while salvation originated among the Jews, its course had not been among them but among the Israelites. In Christ's day they were called "The lost sheep of the house of Israel" and the "Sojourners of the dispersion". They live in their descendants, the English speaking people, or Anglo-Saxons. Wherever they dwell is heard the song "In the Cross of Christ I Glory", while their ministers thunder out the words: "There is no other name given under Heaven whereby we must be saved."

Mr. Howlett was heard with much interest and warmly greeted by many of his old friends. Mr. Howlett is the author of a book entitled "Anglo-Israel and the Jewish Problem" which is very highly spoken of.

Fair for a Parsonage.

Their edifice having been completed, the members of the German Reformed Church are contemplating the erection of a parsonage for their new pastor. To raise money for this purpose a fair will be given in the store, 43 Somerset street, formerly occupied by the Singer agency, during the week beginning Monday, November 5. The proceeds will be added to the building fund.

One of Plainfield's Jewels.

The ugly outside scales are being taken off the Y. M. C. A. Building, and the structure is revealed in newer beauties. Handsome store fronts now show forth, and through the plate glass elegant stores tempt the enterprising merchant to move in. The building is a great thing, all through.

Making Cycling Safe.

Street Commissioner Meeker's men have been filling in the ruts on East Front street as far out as Terrell road which the hay-wagons have cut. A cycler who slipped into one the other night had both of his pneumatic tires stripped from the rims as the wheels caught on the ruts.

BRONZE MEDALS FOR SURVIVORS.

The Start Will be from the Club House at 5 a. m.—Dinner in New Brunswick —Home Again at Supper Time.

The schedule of Crescent century tomorrow has been changed, it having been found that the distances were miscalculated. The start is from the club rooms, Trade Temple, East Second street, at 5 tomorrow morning. Dinner will be eaten in New Brunswick instead of in Trenton. Survivors' medals of bronze have been provided. Other details have been arranged by Captain Haynes, and it is expected that 20 members will make the try.

The schedule arranged is:

Leave Plainfield—5 a. m.
Somerville—6:25.
Belle Mead—7:25.
Hopewell—9.
Pennington—9:30.

EXCITING AND DANGEROUS.

This Runaway Came Near Being Serious in Its Results.

Isaiah Coriell of Mt. Horeb drove to Plainfield Saturday with a flaxy bay colt hitched to a light sulky. At 3:30 he was going along Duer street when the colt became frightened at the sight of two boys and a goat.

The animal plunged and ran into a vacant lot next to the house of Louis J. Wiegel, 129 Duer street, jumped two fences and was finally caught on Rockview avenue.

The sulky was left behind at the first fence. The wheels were spread apart and it was badly wrecked. Mr. Coriell's forehead and face were severely gashed. His wounds were bandaged at Mr. Wiegel's residence and he went home in the evening.

LARGE CHURCH ACCESSION.

Nine New Members Received in German Reformed Fellowship.

The success which is attending Rev. George Hauser's earnest work in the German Reformed Church was shown last evening, when 9 new members were received. Many of the old members who had stopped attending service are returning and a general revival in spiritual interest has come with the new pastor.

A Beautiful Token.

Mr. and Mrs. Hillebrecht, of New York, for years the faithful janitor and janitress of the large flat-house owned by the late Charles P. Leggett, came yesterday to visit the grave of their late employer, and placed thereon a beautiful wreath of laurel leaves, on which were placed thirty-three full-bloomed marechalniel roses, in memory of the full years of his life, and one bud for the year not finished. This was a beautful and touching remembrance of him who was to them as to all, a true friend.

Fights Earthly Fire, Too.

The Crescent Avenue Church is among the Plainfield buildings best protected against fire. In six places where water would be needed most are trap doors, each of which opens above a faucet with 50 feet of hose attached. Nothing remains to be done in case of fire but the opening of the valve as the connections are ready for use.

An Angel Sociable.

Thursday evening of this week an Angel Sociable will take place in the Emanuel Baptist Church, Fillmore avenue, for the benefit of the church. On second Sabbath in November a grand rally will also take place for the same purpose

Chimney Fire.

A chimney in the house 202 West Fourth street, occupied by Charles M. Wilson, caught fire at 2 yesterday afternoon. Howard Wilson hurried for an extinguisher, but before he returned the fire had been extinguished.

Guilty Watson.

George Watson of Plainfield pleaded guilty to the larceny of three bundles of shingles, and was admitted to bail, in the County Court Saturday. Sentence in his case will be pronounced Nov. 3.

WANTED TO STOP.

GOV. MCKINLEY FELL IN LOVE WITH PLAINFIELD.

But the Jersey Central Was Out to Break the Record, and He Stayed Aboard.

The great and only McKinley got a lightning glimpse of Plainfield from a Jersey Central car window, Saturday afternoon, and said he wished he could stop over and see the town. But as the train was humping for Bound Brook at a fifty-second gait, he didn't get off.

"It's a beautiful place,"—said the man from Ohio—"and I'd enjoy inspecting a town that is educating New Jersey in stalwart Republicanism. It must be the paradise of earth, or Roswell Horr would n't have moved there."

The Central Railroad of New Jersey also came in for warm praise from the Governor. The smoothness, speed and safety of the ride were characteristic of the road.

The trip from Jersey City to Philadelphia was the quickest in the records of the New Jersey Central and Reading roads, the distance of ninety miles from station to station, being covered in eighty-eight minutes.

TEMPERANCE REVIVAL.

CONTINUATION OF THE MEETINGS IN MUSIC HALL.

S. J. Sloane Talks on Individual Responsibility for the License Evil.

The second of the series of Sunday meetings was held by the W. C. T. U., in Music Hall yesterday afternoon. The lower part of the house was well filled. A chorus of members of the Union occupied the stage.

Devotional exercises were opened by Rev. Mr. Scudder. Horace J. Martin led the singing of Gospel hymns. Mr Scudder made a short address on the constitution and the liquor seller. He showed that no one had an inherent right to deal in liquor and therefore the people alone could have given the saloon keeper a license.

The speaker of the occasion was S. J. Sloane of Newark. He sought to arouse the feeling of personal responsibility which every citizen should realize in considering his part in the liquor traffic. Every Christian should, like the Methodists, look upon voting for license as a sin. When cholera came the people were quick enough to rise and protect themselves. When the race-track laws were proposed the people hurried to have them voted down. Yet they allowed the liquor business to go on. They even regulated it by license, making it more "respectable" and thus more inviting to young men.

At the close Miss Peck announced that another meeting would be held next Sunday, although no speaker had yet been engaged. John G. Wooley of Chicago, the celebrated temperance lecturer, would speak in the hall Nov. 14 The meeting ended with the singing of "Where Are the Reapers?"

PROGRESSIVE HOPE.

A Quartette of Items From the West End Chapel.

On Sunday, Nov. 11, Communion service will be held in Hope Chapel. A large accession is expected as a result of the Gillam revival.

A sewing class will be started in Hope Chapel tonight. Those of the West End who wish to join will be taught the needlework art by a competent instructor.

The Young Men's League of Hope Chapel has resumed activity. The first Fall meeting will be held this evening at 8:30.

Janitor Stewart has had a section of the Powers fence removed so that a short cut is again possible for the worshipers who were compelled by the fence to make a detour. The janitor has also relaid the board walk.

PROSPEROUS POND'S.

Many Hands at Work, and Change of Hours Shutting Out Half-Holiday.

A change in the hours of labor at the Pond Machine Tool Works began today. The men now go on duty at 7, instead of 6:30 as heretofore, and stay on duty Saturdays till 4:30 instead of quitting at noon. Work is brisk, and new hands are constantly being taken on. Old employes who were laid off are given preference.

$3,000,000.

A Dunellen Capitalist Invests in a Big Thing.

Walter R. H. Hardingham of Dunellen is one of the six incorporators of the International Development Company, formed for the purpose of owning, operating, and leasing coal mines in Kentucky. The concern has an authorized capital of $3,000,000, and the incorporators paid in $2,000 before filing papers.

LIVELY FOOTBALL.

WESTFIELD AND DUNELLEN EVENLY MATCHED.

Dunellen's Claim to a Victory, in Spite of the Evenly Balanced Score.

By far the best contested football game that any eleven of this vicinity has played lately, was played at Dunellen Saturday afternoon between the elevens from Dunellen and Westfield. Although the Westfield boys averaged twenty pounds heavier than the Dunellenites, the score stood 6 to 6 when time was called.

The two elevens lined up as follows:

DUNELLEN.		WESTFIELD.
V. F. Green	left end	J. Vought
A. B. Crane	left tackle	W. Woodruff
G. Richardson	left guard	J. Morrow
E. Hardingham	centre	C. Bussing
E. Lotzeaux	right guard	W. Sansen
A. Perrin	right tackle	H. Randolph
D. Richardson	right end	W. Bussing
S. Perrin	quarter back	W. Roberts
E. I. Serrell	left half back	A. Coger
F. H. Freeman	right half back	C. Carberry
G. Cathcart	full back	J. Wherry

Play was called shortly after 4 with the ball in the hands of the Dunellen boys. On the kickoff Cathcart sent the ball almost to the Westfield goal where Coger picked it up and started down the field soon to be thrown by Green. After several plays resulting in no gain, Dunellen got the ball on a fumble. Then the ball was passed to Freeman who circled the left end and was only stopped after he had cleared twenty yards. Three more were gained by Serrell around the other end. Cathcart went through centre for four more, and after several smaller gains, Serrell, aided by good interference by Freeman and Cathcart, ran around the right end and made a touchdown within ten minutes after play began; Cathcart kicked the goal. Score 6 0 in favor of Dunellen. Again the ball was kicked off and the game continued Freeman and Serrell ran around the ends and Cathcart gained through centre while the Westfields made their gains by pushing their full back through the centre.

The first half ended with the ball on the Westfield's twenty yard line and in possession of the Dunellen players.

After an interval of ten minutes the teams lined up for the second half.

Westfield lost the ball and Voight kicked it down the field where Green caught it and ran twenty yards before Woodruff downed him. Freeman gained twenty yards more by a run around the left end. In the next play, the Dunellen backs fumbled the ball and Bussing fell on it. Then slowly Westfield forced the ball toward Dunellen's goal by repeatedly bucking the centre. Wherry and Coger gained yard after yard and at last Carberry was forced over the goal line after which Vought kicked the goal making the score 6-6. Cathcart kicked the ball to Westfield's ten yard line where Coger picked it up but was downed immediately by a fine tackle by Green.

The ball moved up and down the field remaining in Westfield's territory most of the time. Time was called with Dunellen having the ball on Westfield's twenty-five yard line.

M. Dryden of Plainfield acted as referee and J. C. Mangan of Westfield as umpire. The features of the game was the splendid playing of the Dunellen eleven, especially the running of Freeman and Serrell, and the exceptionally fine tackling of Green. Dunellen may look upon this game as a real victory, considering the decided difference in weight. The Dunellens will play at Westfield next Saturday.

Churches and Good Government.

Rev. Hobart Clark preached in All Souls Church last evening on "The Churches and Good Government". His text was Ezekiel 44-23—24: "They shall teach my people the difference between the holy and the common, and cause them to discern between the unclean and the clean, and in a controversy they shall stand to judge. According to my judgments shall they judge it."

He said that Ezekiel spoke to the priesthood and the people who are God's chosen priesthood should raise the world to God's standard. He referred briefly to the work of reform in New York city.

$100 Made Each Night.

The profits of the fair held by the C. Y. M. L. in the Lyceum were $600. The Reception Committee will meet this evening to decide upon giving a dance in honor of the young women who assisted at the fair. The dance will probably be arranged for Thursday evening.

No Individual Competitions.

The Lyceum's ten-men team will bowl in the Diocesan Union this season. Ten players and ten substitutes will be selected by Captain Lynch and the Bowling Committee without holding an individual tournament. The schedule will be arranged next week and the series will begin about Nov. 15.

Conference of Unitarians.

The tenth annual meeting of the Unitarian Conference of the Middle States and Canada will be held in the First Independent Christ Church, Baltimore, November 13 and 14. Rev. Hobart Clark of All Souls Church is ex-officio a delegate.

AFTER THE CAPTAINS.

Devery and Stephenson to Be Indicted.

NEW YORK'S POLICE SCANDAL.

Grand Jurors Anxious to Make a Complete Job Before Adjournment.

New York, Oct. 29.—It was stated this morning in the Criminal Court building, from an authoritative source, that the Grand Jury would certainly present indictments against at least two of the three Police Captains who have been dismissed by the Commissioners.

The Grand Jury will probably adjourn Wednesday, unless Judge Cowing decides that the public interests demand further attendance. It is known that the jurors are anxious to make a complete job of the police business before adjournment.

Indictments against ex-Capts Devery and Stephenson may be looked for at any moment. Their cases, it is said, have already received some consideration.

In the case of ex Captain Cross of the Fifth street station there is said to be a probability that no action will be taken. It is not unlikely that the jury has disagreed as to the strength of the evidence against Cross.

The last days of the jury promise to be very busy in view of the necessity of passing upon illegal registration matters which are crowding in thickly, as well as getting rid of the remaining police cases.

TEN YEARS FOR MURDER.

Thoms F. Burke, the old man who set the trap gun which exploded and killed Henry Bergmann of South Beach several months ago, was sentenced in the Court of Oyer and Terminer at Richmond, S. I., Justice Cullen presiding, to ten years in Sing Sing. Burke's counsel, William M. Mullen, entered a plea of manslaughter in the second degree, which was accepted by the prosecution.

A YOUNG SAFE ROBBER

Detective Sergeant Zellenger of the Chicago police early this morning, with the assistance of Detectives Grady and Dolan of the Thirteenth Precinct, Williamsburg, arrested 15-year-old Isaac Steinberg at the home of his uncle, 690 Park avenue, Brooklyn.

The lad is wanted in Chicago, where he is said to have been implicated in the robbing of a safe of $5,000 worth of diamonds and $200 in cash.

THE FALL RIVER STRIKE OFF.

Fall River, Mass., Oct. 29—Secretary Whitehead of the Weavers' Association said this morning that the strike would be declared off today.

CHURCH CHIMES.

A consecration meeting will be held by the Y. P. S. C. E. of Trinity Reformed Church tonight at 8.

The first meeting of the New York League of Unitarian Women will be held in the Church of the Messiah, Park avenue and Thirty-fourth street, next Friday morning at 11. A number of Plainfield women will attend.

Rev C. L. Goodrich of the Congregational Church preached yesterday morning on Good Government. He spoke of the relation of the pulpit and politics, the duty of every citizen, and how many of the citizens of the present day fail to carry it out.

The semi-annual meeting of the Woman's Baptist Foreign Missionary Society of New Jersey will be held tomorrow afternoon at 2 in the lecture room of the First Baptist Church. Madame Barrakat of Syria, a woman of rare ability and thrilling eloquence, will address the meeting.

Local Preacher George A. Lewis of Manning avenue has taken charge of the Union Methodist Church in Millburn. He drives over every Sunday morning. Rev. James W. Lomax, formerly of Plainfield, was the pastor there until a short time ago when he was transferred to a charge in Madison.

THE SECRET ORDERS.

The Anniversary Committee of Queen City Lodge met in Justice Mosher's courtroom Saturday evening to arrange a programme for the celebration tonight.

The fair of John Hand Camp, No. 28, Sons of Veterans, opens this evening in Manning's new store, 221 West Front street. A liberal display of fancy articles will be on sale, also excellent refreshments.

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR

The regular meeting of the Christian Endeavor society of the Congregational Church was held last evening and was of more than usual interest and very largely attended. Special music was furnished by a male quartette composed of Messrs. Martin, Timmis, Raynolds and Jessup.

TO PAY FOR THE NURSE.

MATERIAL HELP IN A MOST LAUDABLE ENDEAVOR.

Crescent Avenue King's Daughters Improve an Opportunity to Raise Money for the Free-Nurse Fund.

The Opportunity Circle of King's Daughters of the Crescent Avenue Church held a sale Saturday afternoon in the parlors of the church. The proceeds, which were gratifyingly large, will be the contribution of the Circle to the fund which the City Union of Kings Daughters is raising to engage a nurse to care for the poor in illness.

The articles sold were cakes, preserves, aprons and plants. They were displayed on five draped tables and were very readily disposed of, nothing remaining unsold. Those who managed the sale were Mrs. DeGraff, the President of the Circle; Mrs. F. C Harder, the Misses Elliott, Mrs. E. F. Ege and Mrs. Craighead.

COLORED METHODISTS.

Pastor Henry Has Aroused Fresh Interest Among the People.

The first services after the dedication were those in the Mt. Zion A. M. E. Church on West Fourth street near Plainfield avenue, yesterday. In the morning the pastor, Rev. T. A. V. Henry, preached on power of prayer. Rev. J. E Groves of Elizabeth talked in the afternoon on "The Lord has chosen the weak to confound the strong". Rev. W. H Giles of Newark preached an encouraging discourse.

The large congregations showed the interest which Pastor Henry has revived among the colored Methodists. Only six members were in good standing when the flock worshiped in the old building on Third street. Now there are 16 members The church debt has been reduced to $500

The building is 24x40 and two stories and a-half high. The painting has not yet been completed, Carpenter John Hartpence being busy on a house in Bound Brook. It is lighted by electricity, is being furnished nicely and is a complete and convenient building for the congregation.

HORSES RESENT ABUSE.

Their Nerves Were Tried by Trolley, and Their Temper by Whip.

A spirited team of horses belonging to Randolph Stelle was standing in front of the First Baptist Church yesterday forenoon, in charge of the coachman.

Just as the people came out of church a trolley car passed, making the horses rather nervous, whereupon the man in charge began applying the whip vigorously. The animals were thrown into a frenzy, and became unmanageable. One of them fell down and the other rolled over him, breaking the wagon pole.

Several men standing near ran out and caught the infuriated horses, and after much difficulty succeeded in quieting them.

The horses were taken home, and later in the afternoon the wagon was removed.

AGAINST THE A. P. A.

Catholics Urged to Resist All Attempts at Religious Oppression.

In St. Mary's Church yesterday morning Rev. Father Smyth strongly denounced the A. P. A., although he mentioned no names in doing so. He urged the people to do all they could to down any movement made against their church. They should not only pray that all such efforts be in vain but they should use all legal means to defeat those who opposed a man for office because of his religious belief. All such opposition would come to naught, but the Catholics should not give it a chance to live.

Harvest Music.

The special harvest festival services in the Church of the Holy Cross yesterday were well attended. Excellent music by the vested choir conducted by George F. Hoskings was the feature of the day.

The morning and afternoon music was appropriate to the day, the programme published in The Press Saturday being followed. The text of Rev. T. Logan Murphy's morning discourse was Galations, 6-7, "Whatsoever a man soweth that shall he also reap".

Plainfield's Artist-Artisans.

The Artist-Artisans School, on West Twenty-third street, New York, of which John Ward Stimson of West Seventh street is superintendent, will open for the season next Friday afternoon. Olaf Saugstad of this city is one of the teachers, and several Plainfield pupils will resume their studies there.

A Faithful Steed.

The favorite family carriage horse of Robert Clark of Washingtonville that was injured by a fall on Somerset street three weeks ago, died. Everything possible was done to save its life, even to placing the animal in a sling in the barn, but lockjaw set in, and the poor creature died in great agony.

IS DEATH PAINFUL

COMFORTING POSSIBILITIES OF PAINLESS DISSOLUTION.

A Suggestion that the Fear of Physical Suffering in Death is Groundless. Many Interesting Statements by Famous People from Socrates Down.

Many people, through fear of death, are all their lives subject to bondage. The questions—How shall we die? When shall we die? and Where shall we die? are continually worrying them. Indeed, there have been several suicides caused by this haunting terror of death. The thought of it made their lives insupportable, and they killed themselves in order to know the worst. And yet it is quite possible that in respect to the physical sensation of dying we resemble Don Quixote, when he hung by his wrist from the stable window and imagined that a tremendous abyss yawned beneath his feet; Fate, in the character of Maritornes, cuts the thong with lightsome laughter, and the gallant gentleman falls—four inches!

When Louis XIV. lay dying—"Why weep you?" he asked those who surrounded his deathbed. "Did you think I should live forever?" Then, after a pause, "I own death had been harder." Dr. Usher was another who was agreeably surprised by his experience of dying. His last words were: "If I had strength to hold a pen I would write down how easy and pleasant a thing it is to die." A charming actress who had been twice almost drowned told a friend that dying was the nicest sensation that she knew. The late Archbishop of Canterbury, as his "agony" befell, quietly remarked: "It is really nothing much after all."

Hundreds of other last or nearly last sayings of dying persons might be cited to prove the truth of Pliny's remark that the departure of the soul frequently takes place without pain, and sometimes even with pleasure. If the dead could come to life again, they would all, or nearly all, we have no doubt, tell us that Walt Whitman spoke the truth when he said that Whatever happens to anybody it will be turned to beautiful results,

And nothing can happen more beautiful than death.

And again:

All goes onward and outward, nothing collapses
And to die is different to what anybody supposed—and luckier!
Every moment dies a man.
Every moment one is born.

The first experience—at least, in the case of death by old age—is as natural as the second; why should we think that it must necessarily be more painful? Certainly, if some men died and others did not, death might be considered an enemy; but being universal it cannot be.

A man said to Socrates, "The Athenians have condemned you to death." "And Nature," he replied, "has condemned them." We do not think that death should be looked upon as the condemnation of nature, but rather as its happy release. This was the light in which Columbus viewed it. When he was old and chained in prison it was a relief to him to think that soon he would "sail forth on one last voyage." Though more happy in her life than the great discoverer, the famous mathematician, Mrs. Somerville, could thus speak of the same voyage: "The Blue Peter has long been flying at my foremast, and now that I am in my ninety-second year I must soon expect the signal for sailing. It is a solemn voyage, but it does not disturb my tranquility. I trust in the infinite mercy of my Almighty Creator."

By the ancient Greeks death was considered simply as a destroyer. To them it was the last and most bitter of foes. Achilles in Hades says to Odysseus: "Nay, speak not comfortably to me of death. Rather would I live upon the earth the hireling of another than bear sway over all the dead that are no more." The Christian is saved from this "inward horror of falling into naught." To him death is not the king of terrors, but the tender consoler; not the end of life, but the beginning of a higher and nobler state. And surely to an over-wrought and weary age this conception is very soothing:

Sleep after toyle, port after stormy seas,
Ease after warre, death after life, doth greatly please.

"I look upon death," says Franklin, "to be as necessary to our constitution as sleep. We shall rise refreshed in the morning."

General Stonewall Jackson, when told that he had only about two hours to live answered: "Very good; it is all right. Order A. P. Hill to prepare for action. Pass the infantry to the front rapidly. Tell Major Hawks——" Presently a smile of ineffable sweetness spread itself over his pale face, and he said quietly and with an expression of relief: "Let us cross over the river and rest under the shade of the trees." And then, without pain or the least struggle, his spirit passed away. We should all be able to pass over the dark river of death bravely if we hoped and trusted as truly as did this Christian soldier, to rest under the Tree of Life upon the other side.

So live that when thy summons comes to join
The innumerable caravan which moves
To that mysterious realm where each shall take
His chamber in the silent Halls of Death,
Thou go not like the quarry slave at night,
Scourged to his dungeon, but sustained and soothed
By an unfaltering trust, approach thy grave
As one who wraps the drapery of his couch
About him and lies down to pleasant dreams.
—Rev. E. J. Hardy in Sunday Magazine.

How the Bride Dresses in France.

When the French bride marries she does not assume the hymeneal white satin, as is our custom, if her family or her husband are in mourning, but goes to the altar in simple white muslin, as Mr. Sadi Carnot's bride did a few weeks ago. Though in view of the late President's tragic death it seemed somewhat soon for the wedding, Mme. Carnot herself wished that it should take place, as it accordingly did, but with so much privacy that not even a single relative except those immediately connected with the young people was informed. The bride's family wore costumes of pale gray and violet, while the Carnot ladies were, of course, in deepest mourning. The bridegroom's mother appeared deeply moved during the service, and an air of silence and sadness hung over the bridal. Mlle. Chiris was an especial favorite with the late M. Carnot and is extremely pretty. She had no ornaments, except a bouquet of white roses, with some fastened into her simple dress. The Lady Chapel of St. Pierre de Passy, in which the marriage took place, was adorned with similar flowers, but there were none in any part of the church.—Chicago Tribune.

THE PASSING OF THE BOOT.

Some Trade Effects of the Increased Use of Shoes by Men.

The diminished use of boots is a matter of concern to the manufacturers of them and to the producer of heavy leather and heavy calf skins. Twenty years ago the calf boot industry was a leading one in New England. Whole towns were studded with factories which produced calf boots exclusively. For a decade the sale has been gradually falling off, and to-day it is of hardly any importance.

A few manufacturers of shoes include boots as a specialty, but the demand is too light to amount to much.

They were extensively worn. Many men prefer them to-day, though the number is growing less. The old-fashioned stoga boots were formerly sold in large quantities; they are well-nigh obsolete. There followed a demand for a lighter and more stylish article. A kip boot of fine texture was produced, about equal in appearance to the best calf boot, but this, too, has fallen somewhat into disuse, and the sales this season are scarcely over one-half the usual amount. Where there were twenty factories producing boots exclusively, there is now not one.

Even the farmers are using heavy shoes instead of boots, and if it becomes a necessity to wear long-legged boots they buy rubber. Twenty years ago the entire product of Salem and Peabody was heavy boot and brogan leather. To-day there are less than half a dozen tanners making it. Brogans and plough shoes are indispensable in many sections of the country, but there are comparatively few exclusive manufacturers of these now. The Creedmoor, the Dom Pedro, English ties and Creole congress are supplanting them. The decline in the consumption of calf boots affects the tanners of calf skins.—Shoe and Leather Reporter.

THIS HACK A BONANZA.

Fifty Dollars for a Carriage Ride During the Gold Fever.

"Kate Hayes used to give me $50 a night for driving her from the Razette House to Maguire's Opera House—$50 a night, mind you, in 1850. And that was nothing in a day's work. Why, I've often—especially of a day when the steamer came in from Panama and with the mails aboard—why; then I'd get $25 a trip from the dock to the Razette House or the Tehama, as it chanced, and ten trips was nothing for an easy day."

That was what Colonel Mike Brannigan of El Paso, said to a San Francisco Examiner reporter. He is running hacks there now and making money with them. But, bless you, what is the money of to-day to the big fat slung that used to roll around in the 50's? What is a five dollar piece for an hour's job compared to the shining showers of glittering gold that came for hack hire in the days gone by?

And, to think of it, there was only one hack in all California—one solitary carriage—and Mike Brannigan owned it.

He did not own all of it, of course; that would have been a monopoly too great, even in a country that reeked with gold; but he held a third interest in the outfit. Jim Travers and Johnny Crow held the rest. An Australian had brought over the rig from Sydney, and they bought it from him for $1,000. Horses they picked up at $150 a pair.

Why, there was Kate Hayes, I told you of before; the Limerick butcher paid $1300 for first choice of seats when she showed at Sacramento in '54; she was from Limerick, too, you see. She sang better than Patti and Jenny Lind put together, and when we got our new carriage from Brewster's in '54, she paid $300 for the first ride in it. Two hours, it was, and four horses.

Then duels was useful and paid well. There was always $75 in a duel. It was at St. Meteo they generally fought; for though it was all right to get into a shooting scrap on Montgomery street, the Sheriff used to chase the boys if they went potting at each other after thinking the matter over all night.

The first one I had on hand was between Ned Tobey and another young fellow—I forgot his name, Hall McAllister was Tobey's second, I remember, and four shots were fired, though nobody was hurt. Then I took out Miles D. Truitt when he fought Colonel Washington the newspaper man. The Sheriff chased us all over the sand hills, but the affair came off all right, and Washington wounded Truitt in the shoulder. Another time General Walker had a row with Joe McKibben, and I drove out the General and Colonel Kewen, who was seconding him. All such matters was a sure $75.

In order to satisfy scientific men as to the real cause of Prof. Helmholtz's death, says the London Telegraph's Berlin correspondent, a post-mortem examination was made at the desire of his relatives on Sunday, the chief result of which is as follows: As a consequence of the paralytic strokes, the left portion of the brain was considerably softened, while the right portion was perfectly normal and sound. The brain displayed unusually numerous cerebral sinuations, such as are known to be generally observed in the brains of persons of very great intellect. The physicians and pathologists who conducted the examination were extremely interested with what they saw, and a cast of the brain was immediately taken. Other organs of the body showed some signs of disorder, but in his lifetime the deceased had not experienced any inconvenience therefrom.

I had a very interesting time of it Sunday. Sandson the strong man, spent the day with me."

"Really? He must be a wonder, that fellow."

"He is; but he met his match Sunday afternoon. My small son's nurse went out, and Sandson undertook to play with the boy. He went to bed at seven o'clock absolutely broken down."

PULLMAN AS A POET.

He Made Verses Before He Made a Fortune Building Cars.

It is known only to a few of the curious bibliophiles that Mr. George M. Pullman was at one time an author of much promise. Before he went in for making beds and money he made verses. A little volume which appeared in 1865 from the Cincinnati press of Arthurson & Lohm is the first, and as far as is known the last of Mr. Pullman's contributions to American literature. The title of the book is "Wreaths of Fancy," and the author signs only with his initials, "G. M. P." This abbreviated signature need throw no doubt upon the authorship. The late Mr. Poole, librarian of the Chicago Library and of the Newberry Library of that city, catalogued the volume as follows:

Pullman—George M.—Marchese di Pullman, order of the Italian Court, etc.
"Wreaths of Fancy," poems, 16mo., one edition, Arthurson & Lohm, Cincinnati, 1865. Rare.

Mr. Pullman's poems have all the resilience and gayety of youth; for him the birds are always singing; the roses are ever fragrant; even love does not treat this favored poet with vindictiveness. There are not wanting, however, tragic moments which show that the young poet shared the fate of his brothers, who learned in suffering what they told in song. The dedication is as follows:

These tokens of the happy hours
I spent among the birds and flowers,
When Hope was hovering above me—
Ere yet I knew the bitter guile
The false fair hides beneath a smile—
I dedicate to those who love.

In a lighter vein are the anacreontic verses beginning:

I hate all the words in hydro,
I hate both steam and ice,
I hate all water—bring hither
The flowing bowl! That's nice.

Since I have opened Mr. Pullman's volume at these gayer pages I might quote what I deem his most charming piece of fanciful verse.

THE CHAMELEON CHILD.

She was an orphan child; her aunt,
Amanda, rowed her day and night,
And starved her, too, until from want,
The little Jane was thin and white.
She was a patient, orphan child,
But wiser orphans have been seen;
In fact, though neither bad nor wild,
She seemed, at times, a trifle green.
Her only dress was cotton, think!
One day, while walking in the rain,
The dress began to shrink and shrink—
Red as a beet was little Jane.
When this her cruel aunt did see,
She took a large and limber shoe,
Then laid the child across her knee—
And little Jane was black and blue.
So fast she changed from shade to shade,
She hardly knew herself, poor elf!
"I hope this color will not fade,"
Said little Jane, and died herself.

Cynical Views of Life.

Mr. Walter Besant is usually a writer of the optimistic school, but the following quotations from him give us some cynical views of life as it is lived: "Out of ten men nine are born to work for the tenth. Resolve to be the tenth. Without trampling, the cleverest cannot get rich. The consolation of those who fail is to depreciate those who succeed. The greatest things are done by the greatest fools. Wise men never attempt anything. When you lose a leg begin at once to practice with a wooden one. Men's motives are mercifully hidden by their shirt fronts. Observe moderation in all things—especially in virtues. The best way to make a man honest is to make him ashamed of being found out. There may be pride even in confessing mistakes. Everybody says that gentle birth is an accident, and everybody treats it as an achievement. The most charming attribute of friendship is the right of candor."

WHY HE WAS SAD.

They bid me laugh, and with mirthsome wiles
And the laughing jests of the free and gay,
They seek to call to my face the smiles
That mock the joy that is far away.

They bid me sing with the merry crowd.
But the mocking chorus goes on and on;
How can I laugh when the heart is bowed,
And the back suspender button gone!
—Bob Burdette.

In No Need of Pie.

"Madam," said Meandering Mike, when, in response to his request for food, she offered him pie, "do you remember a year ago when ye gave a sufferin' feller-creature a pie?"

"I believe so."

"Madam, I'm that man."

"Was it good?"

"Good! It saved my life. There was an unfeelin' farmer that fired a box of tacks right fur my heart at short range. I hed yer pie buttoned up inside my vest, an' here it is—full o' tacks, ez ye kin see fur yerself. It ain't near wore out, and I won't need another to take its place fur a year yet."—Washington Star.

Hauin's Scheme to Reach the North Pole.

To reach the North pole an architect, M. Hauin, has proposed to the Geographical Society of Paris the construction of wooden huts one or two days' journey apart. He considers Greenland the most favorable locality for an experiment of this kind. Each of the huts would become in its turn a base of supplies for the construction of the next. As the distance to be covered is about 900 miles, a score of huts would be necessary to establish a route to the pole.

One Wish He Wouldn't Gratify.

I made a vow when Jennie said she'd have me—
She, young and pretty; I, so old and gray—
To gratify her every whim and fancy,
And always keep her feeling bright and gay.
But she was doomed to utter disappointment,
One cloud I won't remove from Jennie's life.
Although I roll in wealth—for I've discovered
She wants to be my widow—not my wife.

A WALTZ WRITER.

JOHANN STRAUSS HAS CELEBRATED HIS GOLDEN JUBILEE.

Good Stories of the Composer to Whose Inspiring Music Millions Have Danced He Writes Music on About Everything, Bank Notes, Cuffs, etc.

Johann Strauss, the famous composer whose incomparable waltzes are known to all music lovers, celebrated his fiftieth anniversary as a musician a short time ago. Perhaps the best known of his waltzes is the "Blue Danube," an exquisite composition:

A critic once said of Herr Strauss that he thinks and dreams music, and that is literally true. In his beautiful house in the Apfelgasse, Vienna, and on his estate in Schonau, in Lower Austria, small pieces of music paper are strewn about in every room, lying on every piece of furniture and filling every pocket of his clothes. Sitting before a sort of harmonium, he usually works in the early hours of the morning; but, in reality, he never ceases composing. He is very fond of playing cards, especially the Viennese game of tarok, and he likes playing billiards, gardening and also chatting with friends. But, however occupied, he constantly composes; and when an air, which, later on, is elaborated into dance music, or to part of an operetta, has taken form in his mind, he uses the scraps of music paper lying about to fix it on the spot. Many a game of cards has he thus lost, to his utter despair, for he is an inveterate card player. But music is his very soul and life, and every thought of his is music. Some years ago I had the pleasure of being constantly in his company at Ostend, and during dinner I saw him fill the cuffs of his shirt with notes.

An amusing story is told in his household. He once awoke in the night, having dreamed a beautiful air, and not wishing to disturb his wife by striking a light, he felt on the bedroom table for a paper and pencil, and finding only the latter he wrote down letters instead of notes on the sheet under him, and happily they were easily distinguished and copied into notes the next morning. The melody thus preserved appeared as the "Donauweibchen Walzer," and was also used for the operetta "Simplicius" in which, being sung by the popular artist Joseffy, it gained the highest favor with the public.

Here is another anecdote, which was circulated some time ago:

"Strauss and his wife were enjoying a quiet walk in the park at Schonau the other day, when suddenly the composer exclaimed, 'My dear, I have a waltz in my head: quick, give me the inside of a letter or an envelope to write it down before I forget it.' Alas! after much rummaging of pockets it was discovered that neither of them had a letter about them—not even a tradesman's account. Johann Strauss' music is considered light, but it weighs heavy as lead on his brain until he can transfer it to paper. His despair was heartrending. At last a happy thought struck Frau Strauss. She held out a snowy linen cuff, and Johann smiled. In two minutes it was manuscript. Then its mate shared the same fate, then Frau Strauss' collar, then—not another scrap of starched linen on which to conclude the composition. His own linen was limp colored calico—no hope there. Johann became frantic. He was much the worse for having been allowed to write three-quarters of the waltz. He was just on the point of dashing off home like a madman, when another happy thought struck Frau Strauss. She plunged her hand into a capacious pocket, fished out a purse, opened it, and displayed to his delighted gaze a bran new hundred gulden-note. Hurrah! The entire finale was written on the bank note, and then Johann Strauss relapsed into his usual placidity."

With Johann Strauss the real rulership of the Strausses will come to an end. His brother, Edouard, is a brilliant conductor, but he is not gifted with the genius of Johann. There was another brother, Josef, who died while comparatively young. He was giving concerts in Warsaw. One night after he and his wife had retired a crowd of drunken officers dragged him out of bed and demanded that he play for them. They had a mob of intoxicated women with them, and demanded a waltz. The angry composer refused. He was set upon and beaten into insensibility. He was removed to Vienna, and died within a few days.

Four Honeymoons With One Bride.

Philip Stutz, a farmer of this county, and his wife Mary have had a remarkable matrimonial career. Being lovers in childhood they were early married, but, failing to agree, were divorced. After a few years they came together and were remarried. Again were they divorced and remarried, and even again did they secure a divorce, and a few weeks ago were remarried at New Albany, thus being three times divorced and remarried. Mr. Stutz is well to do, and, as evidence that his wife can maintain herself in single blessedness, she was, when last married, the owner of a large millinery store in New Albany.—Indianapolis Journal.

MYSTERY OF MAGIC.

HERMANN EXPLAINS HOW MANY TRICKS ARE ACCOMPLISHED.

Bullet Catching Feats are Easy. Hindoo and Arabian Illusions That Have Puzzled Thousands of Travelling People.

No doubt that, stripped of its impenetrable mantle of mystery, bereft of the word "mysterious," thrown open to the gaze of the curious, fully explained to those in search of information, magic would not be sufficiently interesting to entertain any but the most ardent seekers of knowledge. It is the weird and mysterious that have protected it since the history of man began, and it is the mystery that will protect it while it continues to interest and entertain modern audiences, as it did when magic was the form of religion and magicians were the favored, petted priests of the ancients.

The cane trick. One of the Hindoo fakir's performance most frequently described, and considered the most marvellous, is the turning of a walking stick into a serpent. In the Scriptures the turning of the rods into serpents is alluded to, but not explained. Modern writers tell of Hindoo jugglers who will walk into the centre of a circle of spectators, take a walking stick from the hand of some one in the audience, cast it upon the ground, when it will at once begin to squirm, and finally change into the dreaded cobra di capello of Asia.

Now the performer is described as being without apparatus, confederates, scenery or wardrobe, as giving his entertainments on the bare ground, and as doing it in such a manner as to defy detection. Described in this way, the performance is truly wonderful, but let me describe it.

The circle of spectators is formed, and the performer enters the ring, clad in the ordinary Hindoo street dress, which affords magnificent opportunities for concealing anything he may require in his entertainment. When ready to change some one's walking stick into a serpent he approaches the holder of the cane, takes it from him, seizes it at each end, raises it slowly above his head then draws it gradually through his hands and slips off his mantle—being nothing more or less than a common sheet—puts the cane beneath the sheet, then grasps it at each end and lays it on the ground, carefully covered with the mantle.

Now, when the performer put the cane underneath his cloak he brought one end of it to his waist, where he grasped the end of the cane and the head of the cobra—which was concealed in the commerabund, or sash around his waist—drew the snake and the cane together from beneath the cloth out to the full length, and laid them on the ground, where to all appearances, there was nothing but the cane beneath the cloth, but where in reality there were the walking cane and the cobra, lying side by side. In a few minutes the cobra, realizing that he is free, begins to move about. It is then that the cane and cloth are removed, and it is thus that the walking stick is turned into a serpent.

So marvellous was the announcement that a performer would allow himself to be fired at with powder and ball that the French government employed Robert Houdan to go to North Africa and convince the Arabic chiefs that the Frenchman was a very superior individual. His mission was to strike terror into the hearts of the Arabs by showing them that a Frenchman might at will render himself bullet proof, and it is recorded that Robert Houdan took a pair of dueling pistols and loaded them with powder furnished by the Arab chiefs, and with leaden bullets marked by them he received the fire of these pistols without sustaining the slightest injury.

After bullets previously marked had been loaded into pistols furnished by the Arabian chief and well rammed home the chief fired point blank the length of a diniug room table at the magician. He smilingly caught it between his teeth and returned it to the Arab to the astonishment of all present. Then Houdan picked up the remaining pistol on the table, and with the remark, "Your aim is not as deadly as mine," he fired against the white wall of the room and caused a spot of blood to appear exactly where the bullet struck.

This feat was performed in this manner:—

The pistols were of large calibre, and Houdan had prepared himself for the trick by running melted wax into the bullet mould, allowing it to remain long enough to partly cool, the mould was inverted and the hot wax was allowed to run out, leaving a thin shell the shape and size of an ordinary pistol bullet. The hole where the hot wax escaped was sealed up and the whole bullet thus created was blackened with lamp black, so that it resembled a regular leaden bullet. Then the performer took another whole wax-bullet with a little thicker shell than the first one and filled it with bullock's blood, which was sealed in and the bullet discolored.

On the night of a performance, which was at the close of a dinner, he took the two leaden bullets handed him by the chief, examined the pistols, saw that they were empty, and in their presence put in two charges of powder; then he caused the bullets to be marked and returned to him. He dexterously palmed the leaden bullets and substituted those made of wax, the one that was to be fired at him was dropped into the barrel of the pistol and the wad over it was rammed down sufficiently hard to reduce the wax to powder, which was harmless the length of the long dining room table. He then took the one containing the blood and fired it at the white wall, he having been careful not to break it by ramming it too hard. The effect on the Arabs was indescribable, and there is no doubt that Houdan's trip to the North of Africa resulted as he intended, for the benefit of the French government.

I remember once but a few years ago, entertaining some friends in Cincinnati with some interesting palming and changing performances.

A young man came up and asked me if I could transform a silver half dollar into a ten dollar gold piece. As a matter of course I assured him that I could do so. I took his half dollar, presto change, and it was a ten dollar gold pice. It was shown to the spectators, pronounced genuine, when the innocent young man took it and slipped it into his pocket, and saying, "thank you," walked out of the room,

I had entertained my friends, I had complied with his request, but it cost me just nine dollars and a half to do it.

THE WAY TO WALK.

Head Up, Stomach in, Torso in Repose and Toe Down First.

American women are pretty and witty and wise, but they don't know how to walk.

"Horrors, how your women walk," the Englishmen say. Ladies' tailors in New York say the very same thing. Unless a man is in love with her it is a punishment to walk with the modern woman. This is what a Yale College man says about the New York girls:

"In rocking chairs they are bewitching. In the dance they are poetry personified. But in boots and gowns on the road cows are not clumsier."

Most women walk from their necks; their shoulders go forward and back; their arms swing, their hips wiggle, their knees rotate and their skirts flop. In this wobbling command of the body is lost and the alternate pitching of the weight from one foot to the other is both noisy and exhaustive.

The typical English woman has two essential charms—a low voice and a graceful walk. Her movements are quiet. She may not be altogether unconscious, but she is calm. Usually she is long waisted. She cultivates the lines between her shoulders and hips. She wears a belt. The belt business is only a trifle below the tea traffic. That belt never slips its moorings. She may or may not walk up to it, but she never walks above it. From the belt up she is calm, commanding and grand.

Some foreigners suppose that the English women study the army; others claim that royalty is the model. They certainly have good shoulders, and they wear their bonnets like crowns. Mme. Albani said of Queen Victoria: "She is the grandest little woman I ever saw." And our own critical Mrs. Sherwood never tires of extolling the majestic carriage of Her Majesty.

One of the most successful and beautiful artistes on the musical stage walks most clumsily, although she has spent hundreds of dollars for lessons. It is so amusing to hear her come down a terrace or staircase that scenes of the sort are never used when they can be avoided. A model in motion, who has lived abroad a long time, and who carries herself with regal grace, was taught how to walk by her father, a military man. She is a truthful woman.

"I never wore out a shoe or a boot in my life," she says. "I give my shoes away at the end of the year because the linings are soiled. But I never turned a heel or broke the sole of a shoe. I claim that a lady—or, if you prefer the term, a gentlewoman—has no business to wear out leather. A gentlewoman has gentle ways. She moves softly, steps lightly. She is simply gentle; I am gentle. I can go around the room as softly as a cat. I claim, too that only a vulgar woman walks noisily in boots. If she were cultivated, and knew how to walk, she would walk on her heels. That throws the weight of the body straight down. Of course there is a noise. Take a long step, step from the hips, and step on the front of the foot and the weight is divided along curves and noiselessly carried.

"Before a woman can walk gracefully she must stand properly. One of the prettiest lines in the figure is a bell back, often referred to as the grace-hoop line. It makes a natural bustle. When it is lacking pads are put in the skirt bands to throw the draperies out. To cultivate this bell-back the stomach must be subdued. Stomachs in evidence are always disfiguring; and in women disgusting. Stand so as to throw the stomach in, and there is the secret of a fine back and an admirable carriage. For the finishing touch look up.

"Now for the walk. First of all, keep as quiet as possible. Hold the body. There should be repose from the head to the hips. Take long steps. Walk on a line for practice. Give the knees play, but not loose play. Let the heels be the last part of the foot to touch the ground. Walk slowly. A lady should never be in a hurry, nor in anything heavy. Double soles, calf-skin, cow-hide, furs and broadcloths are, in my judgment, garments fit only for clumsy animals."

THE MOST NORTHERN TOWN.

Hammerfest Enjoys that Distinction. Its People.

At Hammerfest, the most northern town in the world, there are no trees, but plenty of rocks and stones, some green grass, pots of flowers in the windows to catch every ray of the sun, and brown moss on the hills. I saw a young man in a store. He had been to Chicago to the World's Fair; his parents were in America, at the far West, but he preferred Hammerfest. I said: "You have no trees, no shrubs!"

"No, I can do without trees. I have the stones and rocks," he replied. I inquird for the cod-liver oil works. I am referred to an officer—the harbor-master—who has been all over the world as a sea captain. He stops some loaded carts to show me the dried codfish ready to be shipped; then we go to the factory, which has vats, hogsheads and furnaces where the livers of millions of the cod are boiled up to extract the oil so much in use.

From Hammerfest we sail six hours longer before we reach the North Cape. The sea is rough, the day cloudy and rainy. Soon we come to Bird Island, Svaerholi, two hours from the cape. The island is full of birds. When the officer fires a gun they fly off in multitudes. They are sea gulls, with long wings and the body of a fish.

Then we skirt a long chain of rocky cliff, the beginning or the end of the earth's formation. Snow and green grass is the view, and the Arctic Ocean at our left. We reach the North Cape and are rowed ashore in small boats. The men who keep the restaurant, when they see the steamer, run like goats up the mountain. We take Alpine staffs and climb slowly the bluff of three hundred feet, and the longer incline to the entrance point, 970 feet, where a monument tells that King Oscar II. ascended the cape in 1873. It is midnight, and is like noon of a cloudy day. We gather bouquets of flowers—yellow, purple, blue, pink—that bloom along the zig-zag path and at the base of the cape, they bloom on our table for many days. We descend the mountain, return to the ship and try to catch fish. The officer catches a fine codfish, but the rest of us throw the lines in vain. Now the ship turns about, and we set our faces toward the south, where the sun shines more days in the year, if it does not shine at midnight. But Norway is the only land in the world which has the North Cape and the gorgeous skies of the midnight sun.—Boston Transcript.

GENERAL MILES.

HE WILL SUCCEED GENERAL SCHOFIELD IN COMMAND OF THE ARMY.

A Great Indian Fighter Who Tamed Sitting Bull, Chief Joseph and Geromino. His Persistence Conquered the War Department. What a Soldier Says of Him.

In September, 1895, Gen. Schofield, after forty years of service in the army of the United States, will reach the age of sixty-four years and will retire from active duty. His successor will be General Miles, the famous Indian fighter.

General Nelson A. Miles, was born in Massachusetts in 1830, and after receiving an ordinary education, he took a position in a Boston store. Then the war broke out, he enlisted as lieutenant in the Twenty-second Massachusetts regiment, and he distinguished himself by bravery in many battles. He was wounded at Fair Oaks and Malvern Hill, and again at Chancellorsville, the wound there being, it was feared, fatal. He speedily recovered, however, and in the battles before Richmond, he commanded a brigade.

His record in the war of the Rebellion was so good that when it was over he was a Brevet Major-General, and in October, 1865, he received the full commission. His chief fame, however, rests upon his skill and bravery as an Indian fighter. He has been the most successful commander ever sent against the hostile red men, and they have come to so fear him that the announcement that General Miles was after them was enough to make the bravest band run or surrender.

In 1870 he went after the Cheyennes and Arapahoes, and when he got through with them they had had enough fighting to last them a great many years. In fact, the memory of the thrashing he gave them is yet a wholesome and restraining influence.

After the Custer massacre, General Miles was left by Gens. Crook and Terry to watch Sitting Bull, but, instead of watching him, he went after the bloody chief, and although the snow was two feet deep, he crushed the wily savage. For this campaign in the snow the Sioux called him "Bear Coat."

His next achievement was the capture of Chief Joseph of the Nez Perces, after a pursuit of about 4,000 miles. His most important and difficult task was the conquering of Geromino, and his band of

GEN. NELSON. A. MILES.

Apaches. Hidden in the Bad Lands, they defied the troops, but General Miles went after them, and he didn't give up until they were captured and subdued. Across rocky barrens, under a burning sun, Gen. Miles led his troops, the men clad only in light underclothes, until the long chase ended in success. In his Indian campaigns he seemed to know no such word as fail, and the Indians came to expect defeat whenever General Miles was on their track.

Another incident will serve to show his persistency in a matter outside of fighting. The Cheyennes had murdered a settler, and carried off two little girls. Gen. Miles rescued the girls and then wrote to the War Department asking that enough money be appopriated from the annuities of the Cheyennes to educate them. No action was taken on his request, and he wrote again with similar result. He kept writing, and said he should not quit until he got the money, and he didn't. And the girls were educated.

A soldier said when the General was sent East, "The boys out West will be sorry. We knew when old 'Bear Coat' was leading something had to give way. Just say his name to a red devil, and he'll be as good as a Sunday-school meeting in a minute. He never asked us to go anywhere he wouldn't go himself, and we'd follow him through hell. We did pretty near, I'm thinking, when we were after old Geronimo."

The stories told of his Indian campaigns are legion, and they show that in courage, in sound common sense, and in the quality which inspires confidence in the men he leads, General Miles has had few equals among the nation's military leaders.

Lord Clivebrooke on Marriage.

The hero of "The Bauble Shop" has a breezy conversation on marriage with Lady Fennell, who remarks:

"Now, you wretch, how is it you aren't married?"

"I can't find the right woman for a wife."

"What sort of a wife do you want?"

"I don't know the sort of wife I want, but I know the sort of wife I don't want."

"Well, what sort don't you want?"

"The sort of wife all my friends have married."

"You don't like your friends' wives?"

"Oh, yes, they'll do very well—for my friends, and I don't mind them for an hour or two at dinner—if the dinner's a good one."

"How is it that people marry those whom they'd never think of asking to dinner?"

"A dinner engagement is a serious thing."

"More serious than marriage?"

"Most people would think twice before breaking a dinner engagement.

Sure there is as much of banter and espieglerie in all this as there is of cynicism. Clivebrooke says these things because they amuse him and others, not because he believes in them.

REMARKABLE CURES

Of Recent Date.

A Statement from Ex-Mayor John Corson, Esq., of Clinton, N. J.

TO THE PUBLIC:

I acknowledge with the utmost pleasure the wonderful cure which Dr. Lighthill effected in my case.

I had been a sufferer from piles, which gave me constant pain and distress, during twenty long years, attended with frequent loss of blood and with great and painful protrusion of the pile tumors and rectum whenever my bowels moved.

I tried constantly to get relief from my sufferings, but to no purpose until Mr. Bryan, a friend of mine, who had been cured by Dr. Lighthill of the same trouble, recommended him to me, and he effected a complete and radical cure in my case also, and earned my lifelong gratitude.

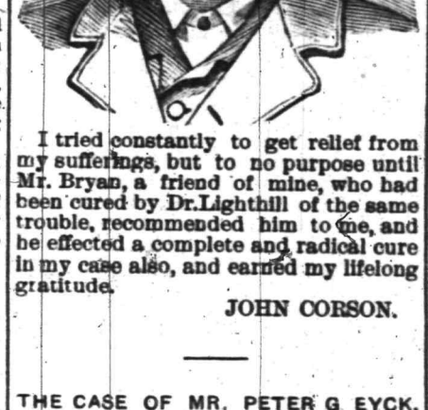
THE CASE OF MR. PETER G EYCK, OF BISSELL, HUNTERDON CO., N. J.

Dr. Lighthill Effects a Complete Cure Where Ten Physicians Had Failed.

TO THE SICK, SUFFERING AND AFFLICTED:

For many years past I have been afflicted with bleeding piles. Every movement of the bowels was attended with loss of blood and with intense pain which lasted for hours and sometimes all day. My condition was aggravated by a prolapse of the rectum, which greatly increased my suffering and sometimes gave me most agonizing pains.

So great was my distress and so bad my condition that I sold my farm, not being able to work it any longer. At one time the protruding pile tumors became so highly inflamed and swollen that they could not be replaced, and I had to go to bed, applying hot poultices for three months before I could get relief.



I had been under the treatment of ten different physicians, some of New York City, Easton, Washington and elsewhere, without any benefit whatever, and had given up my case as hopeless when, luckily for me, I heard of Dr. Lighthill's skill and success in such cases, and went to him for treatment, with the happy result that he effected a radical and permanent cure in less than four weeks's time; and I am glad to say that the entire treatment gave me neither pain nor distress.

I consider my cure perfectly wonderful, and so do all my friends and neighbors. I am confident that there is no case of piles which Dr. Lighthill cannot cure.

Vanity

is a virtuous vice. The world is better for it. It makes men ambitious—and it makes women careful of their personal appearance. It doesn't take much money to keep well-dressed now-a-days. Cleaning or dyeing makes it possible to use soiled or faded garments. And there's where our ax comes in. We are in the Cleaning and Dyeing business. Our cleaner is ready, and our dyer has his fall shades mixed.

Ask for our little booklet "Re-Freshing Thoughts." It tells about cleaning men's clothing.

A CHANGE IN MAKEUP.

Readers of The Daily Press are familiar with the fact that there has long been in its columns a struggle for space between the general news of the "reading" columns and the no less valuable mercantile news of the ads. The steady growth of business necessitated the issuance of frequent supplements, and the six-page Press became the biggest (as well as the best) of Plainfield dailies.

But as the form was inconvenient a change of makeup was decided on, and several months ago machinery was ordered to make The Press what it is today, an 8-page paper, pasted, trimmed and folded as fast as printed.

Delay in the manufacture and shipment of the improved machinery, and the annoyance of mechanical difficulties that had to be overcome, hindered the transformation. But now the 8-page Daily Press is a handsome reality.

To the public whose undiminished patronage has brought The Press into this era of new prosperity, the publisher is duly grateful. The Press has a record of loyal devotion to the best interests of Plainfield, and it will ever strive to fulfil its duty to this growing centre of representative American homes.

The Press is for Plainfield people, and the Plainfield people are for The Press.

And may we all together prosper!

THE MAYORALTY.

It was with regret that The Press announced a few days ago that friends of Mayor Gilbert were urging his renomination. The Press is a true admirer and true friend of Mr. Gilbert, and trusts that he will not be led at this stage of his successful career into making a political mistake.

The public has no love for the third-term idea, no matter who the candidate, and there are influential people of his own political party who would oppose Mr. Gilbert in the mayoralty canvass (were he nominated) in retaliation for what in the line of strict duty to the taxpayers he was compelled to do in frustration of their plans.

Mr. Gilbert is a most estimable man, a most excellent executive. He has done large public service, and the sewer enterprise now under way is chiefly a success because of his energetic engineering. It is because his friends feel that he ought to stay at the helm till the sewers are finished, that they now urge his re-election. Even Councilman Fisk, logically the Republican candidate for Mayor, has stayed with his own hand the wave of popularity accumulating in his favor, and is canvassing with his accustomed liveliness for Mr. Gilbert.

Mr. Gilbert's friends are overzealous. If they expect Elizabeth to fulfil her promise of helping nominate him for Congress when the time comes, they should reserve him till that campaign. Today the County regards him as a strong man, because of his past majorities. It would be unwise to run the risk of weakening him in popular estimate by forcing him to compete against a strong element that is now hostile but that will be won back to fealty under his standard as time develops appreciation of his wisdom and good rulership.

The Spokane papers are still talking about what they term the "moral volcano" that has been aroused in Plainfield over the Venino case. They quote the chronicles of The Daily Press in full, and of no other paper but The Daily Press, in keeping the people of Venino's new western world informed of the facts. Venino finds that he is unable to defend himself against the expose, and weakly asks the public "to withhold judgment till the matter has been passed upon by the proper tribunal".

A united Democracy in Somerset County means success, and at no time in years has there been a brighter prospect than the present. The Democracy is now solidified in this county, and with such a prominent and popular citizen on their ticket as is their candidate for Assembly, Andrew Lane of Neshanic, there is absolutely no doubt as to the result of next Tuesday's vote. Mr. Lane is engaged in the milling business at Neshanic, and is well known in North Plainfield, where he has many friends.

Whatever new thing is wanted, Edison supplies. He has just sent to the Suburban Traction Company a box of Ogden magnetic sand, which, he thinks, will render perfect electrical connection through snow and ice and prevent all slipping of wheels on trolley cars in winter weather. The sand is from Mr. Edison's mine at Ogden, this State, where he is testing his magnetic ore separator.

Time was (not far back) when the Saturday night trade in Plainfield was but a small percentage of the rush that is seen in the stores these times. The change has been wrought by the effective advertising done Fridays by the leading merchants to boom big trade Saturday. Watch the Saturday night crowds: they flock into the stores of the tradesmen who have big special ads in The Daily Press of the night before.

Thomas Nevins, the millionaire contractor whose money built the Plainfield Street Railway, is unhappy. He comes back from Ireland reporting his inability to buy Killeen Castle. He is forced to content himself with an estate of 175 acres, 20 miles from Dublin, and will enjoy the use of the American dollars he has accumulated since he landed here a poor emigrant.

With its improved equipment and increased facilities, The Daily Press will give prompter news service and speedier delivery than ever. Subscribers will have their favorite paper quicker than their evening meal, with the world's newest history recorded right up to the hour of going to press.

If you are not a citizen and have a right to naturalization, your place tonight is in Elizabeth, where Judge McCormick will hold Court to issue papers to America's adopted people.

Elizabeth churches are acting wisely in heeding the Grand Jury's warning and abandoning the lottery devices of their fairs.

Your manhood and citizenship demand that you register and vote. Tomorrow is the last day for registration.

RALLYING THE RANKS.

(From The Elizabeth Herald.)

Congressman John T. Dunn, in a speech before the Fourth Ward Democratic Association in Elizabeth Friday night, boldly stated the only cause that could make defeat possible to the Democratic party in this county in the approaching election.

With the fearlessness that is one of his strongest characteristics, Mr. Dunn declared that if the Republicans should be victorious it would not be due to the will of the majority of the people, to McKinleyism, or to lack of faith on the part of the people in the principles of Democracy, but solely to men who would be traitors to their own party by refusing, on account of personal differences, to cast their votes.

Such men should pause and consider the effect of their action on the future of the party. There are other elections in other years to come, and political fate has an unpleasant way of dealing with men as they deal with others.

Let the party present a united front to the enemy, and march with unbroken ranks to victory.

CYCLING COMMENT.

The lovely weather allured many cyclers to the vicinity of Plainfield yesterday.

After many attempts to get away from his Plainfield admirers, Monte Scott managed to leave Plainfield for his mother's home Saturday.

The young host received many pretty pretty presents.

A WINNING TICKET.

(From The Summit Record.)

The ticket nominated on Wednesday, at the Union County Democratic Convention, is one that every good citizen will take pleasure in supporting. The candidates selected are men of the highest character and cleanest record, and their election will be a guarantee that the interests of the people are to be guarded, in the administration of the offices for which these men have been nominated.

The candidate for County Clerk, Wm. M. Oliver, has, by a year's management of that important office, proved his entire fitness for its responsibilities and has established a claim for re-election that the voters of Union County ought to recognize and honor.

The candidates for the Assembly, Messrs. Clauss, Cook and Green, are men whose past life proves their trustworthiness and the entire propriety of giving them charge of the interests of Union County, in the House of Assembly.

Frederick Clauss belongs to that sturdy race of Germans, who have served as such a strong, conservative force for good government in this State. As an Assessor in Elizabeth, for many years, he has proven a faithful public servant and as he said in his speech of acceptance, if elected he will discharge his duties in a manner that will satisfy the expectations of every honest man.

Alford P. Cook of Rahway served for two years as clerk of the Board of Freeholders, and in that capacity, became thoroughly familiar with the needs and conditions of the various sections of this county. As a citizen of sterling honesty and a campaigner of varied resources, he can be depended on to conduct a vigorous canvass for the office for which he has been nominated.

The third candidate John B. Green, of Westfield, is perhaps the ablest of the Democratic nominees and seems likely to prove the most popular with the masses. His speech before the convention demonstrated that he is a man of a high order of ability and makes it likely that he will become one of the leaders of the Legislature at no distant day.

Taken as a whole, the Democratic ticket is one that invites the support of all men of honesty and independence. Those who support it, know that its success will prove that Union county is not allied with the corporations of the State, and not fettered with the bondage of Sewellism.

A STRANGE CASE.

How an Enemy was Foiled.

The following graphic statement will be read with intense interest: "I cannot describe the numb, creepy sensation that existed in my arms, hands and legs. I had to rub and beat those parts until they were sore, to overcome in a measure the dead feeling that had taken possession of them. In addition, I had a strange weakness in my back and around my waist, together with an indescribable 'gone' feeling in my stomach. Physicians said it was creeping paralysis, from which, according to their universal conclusion, there is no relief. Once it fastens upon a person, they say, it continues its insidious progress until it reaches a vital point and the sufferer dies. Such was my prospect. I had been doctoring a year and a half steadily, but with no particular benefit, when I saw an advertisement of Dr Miles' Restorative Nervine, procured a bottle and began using it. Marvelous as it may seem, but a few days had passed before every bit of that creepy feeling had left me, and there has not been even the slightest indication of its return. I now feel as well as I ever did, and have gained ten pounds in weight, though I had run down from 170 to 137. Four others have used Dr. Miles' Restorative Nervine on my recomendation, and it has been as satisfactory in their cases as in mine."—James Kane, La Rue, O.

Dr. Miles' Restorative Nervine is sold by all druggists on a positive guarantee, or sent direct by the Dr. Miles Medical Co., Elkhart, Ind., on receipt of price, $1 per bottle, six bottles for $5, express prepaid. It is free from opiates or dangerous drugs.

The Sewer Beds.

Misinformation resulted in the report Saturday that the Barrett Rockview Farm was to be purchased for sewer beds. The report arose from the fact that refusal of the George Smock farm, occupied by the junior Mr. Barrett, was secured by the city from Mrs. Penfield.

Uncle Peter's Illness.

Uncle Peter Wooden fell while he was chopping wood by his home at 9 this morning. He was unable to rise without the assistance of several men who were passing by. They thought at first he was dead, but he soon recovered from the shock.

HIGH SCHOOL NOTEBOOK.

Both the girls and boys had their turn at declaiming in morning exercises today. There were recitations by Miss Valentine Chandor, Miss Helen A. Hazen and John V. Beekman, Jr., all of the Senior class. There will be other recitations tomorrow morning.

The Astronomy class will meet this evening to examine the stars together, if it is not too cloudy.

Several of the electric bells that announce the change of periods have got out of order, so the old gong in the hall has to be used. It seems like old times.

The candidates for the football eleven have been summoned to meet in the Willow avenue cricket grounds for practice this afternoon. Manager Horne has decided to get up a strictly school eleven, and play other elevens of like character. It is rather late in the year to organize a football eleven, but still it is "better late than never".

The destination for the bicycle run of the P. H. S. A. A. has been changed from Summit to Short Hills, where the riders will visit the chrysanthemum show. Plans are also being made for a run to Short Hills some Saturday afternoon, to which the young ladies will be invited.

GENESIS OF SWEET MARIE.

Cy Warman Tells How He Wrote it, and Something of the Music.

Everybody has heard "Sweet Marie," and admired it. Many have heard it too often, but the sweetness of the song never quite vanishes, even when its melody begins to have a chestnut flavor. In an article in the New York Press, Cy Warman tells this story of the famous song:

The sun had just gone down behind the hoary hills, flooding the June twilight with its gold and glory. Having finished my dinner, I had strolled out to take a turn beneath the maple trees that line the walk about the courthouse. Honey laden, homeward bound, belated bees droned in the trees, and all the world seemed filled with the sound and scent of summer.

Here would I walk and watch out the flying day, and breathe the pure air fresh from the snow fields of the North. Here, too, I hoped to win a good night smile, for down this way she was to pass to the theatre—with another man. I was turning the corner when she came. Face to face we met, and such a smile! There was a world of tenderness in it, and, with a man's conceit, I fancied there was something back of it.

I wondered, too, if she had guessed my secret, and while the sound of her carriage wheels were still in my ears I said, half aloud:

I've a secret in my heart.
Sweet Marie;
A tale I would impart,
Love, to thee.

And then, as a man having been drunk with wine imagines that everybody knows it, I felt that my secret was out, and I had gone less than a dozen yards when I finished the half stanza:

Every daisy in the dell
Knows my secret—knows it well.
And yet I dare not tell Sweet Marie.

Then the whole song came rushing upon me like a mountain stream after a cloud-burst. Like a gleam of glory in a gob of gloom it came fast, and flooded my soul and filled me with lustless joy. On I walked, sang my new song and gloried in it as a happy mother glories in the first faint smile of a new born babe.

The following summer I gave the poem to General David S. Stanley. He submitted it to Mr. Dana; it was accepted, and on the following Sunday received some editorial mention, and I rejoiced anew.

I think it was ex-Congressman Belford, the "Red Headed Rooster of the Rockies," as he was known in the House, who first advised me to have the verse set to music.

Raymond Moore was in Denver at the time and I persuaded him to call at my office. When I read the song to him he snapped his fingers—tears of enthusiasm stood in his eyes as he declared that it would make "the sweetest song ever sung."

Out of the third stanza, which began originally:

Not the sun-glints in your hair,
Sweet Marie,
Nor because your face is fair,
Love, to see;

I made a chorus, had my stenographer copy it, then holding the revised copy in his hand he began to hum. "Something sweet and slow," he said, "like this;" then he sang exactly as a million mouths have sung since:

"Come to me, Sweet Marie,
Sweet Marie, come to me."

I repeated and remembered the notes he sang, and when a year later Will T. Carlton came to the footlights in the Broadway Theatre and sang the song, I was glad to note that Mr. Moore had not varied a shadow from his first inspiration.

The Barefoot Fad.

Barefoot women are supposed to be oftener seen among the peasants of Europe and the lower classes in our own country than anywhere else; but this may all change before long, since Dame Fashion has set the seal of her approval upon the custom, though as yet she would confine it to the privacy of my lady's boudoir, or to very informal and semi-private mornings in the drawing-room. The fad originated in the treatment of the celebrated German physician, Kniep, who, among other things, required his patients to take a run in their barefeet every morning, no matter what the weather. He was successful in his practice, and it became fashionable to go to him, and hence to adopt his methods. Mme. Sara Bernhardt, it is said, spends her mornings, either when alone or when receiving visitors informally, in her bare feet. In two of her plays she appears barefooted, though part of the time her feet are tied to sandals. It is unnecessary to say that this fashion is not likely to be adopted by any but women who have pretty feet. It has already resulted in greater attention being given to the feet, and many persons have their toe nails trimmed and polished as carefully as they do their finger nails. There is something to be said in favor of the practice, since it hardens the feet and renders them less sensitive.—From "Chat," Demorest's Magazine.

PUBLIC OFFICE A PUBLIC TRUST.

This Truism Did Not Originate With Mr. Cleveland.

The author of the phrase so often attributed to Cleveland's genius has been traced back to the eighteenth century. The successive steps by which this has been accomplished are here indicated:

In 1882, two years before Mr. Cleveland's nomination for President, the Hon. Dorman B. Eaton, in one of his letters on civil service reform, had advanced the idea that "Public office is a public trust."

In 1881, a year before Mr. Eaton got hold of the idea, the Hon. Thomas L. James in one of his annual reports as Postmaster-General under Arthur, had used the words, "The public service is a public trust."

In 1876, writing his letter accepting the nomination for President, the late Mr. Rutherford B. Hayes remarked that "Public office is a trust."

And still earlier, in 1864, Mr. Justice Field, of the United States Supreme Court, had remarked in the course of his opinion in the case of the Tool Company against Norris, that "Public offices are trusts held solely for the public good."

That was not the first the idea had been uttered. Daniel Webster delivered an address in Boston on Oct. 12, 1835, in which that immortal orator resonantly pronounced the words, "It is time to declare that offices created for the people are public trusts, not private spoils."

But the idea was not original with Webster, or indigenous to American soil. In 1790, Lord Chancellor Loughborough, previously known as Alexander Wedderburn, rendered an opinion in the case of Garforth against Fearon; and formulated the maxim that "Public office is deemed by law to be a place of public trust."

That carries back "Public office is a public trust" more than a century. Very likely it might be traced back still further.

The phrase "Public office is a public trust" in just those words, has never been spoken or written by Mr. Cleveland; Judge Cooley, from Dorman B. Eaton, from ex-Postmaster-General James, from Rutherford B. Hayes, from Mr. Justice Swayne, from Mr. Justice Field, from Daniel Webster, from Lord Loughborough.

The best evidence is to the effect that the phrase was injected into the politics of 1885 by the Hon. Daniel S. Lamont by whose order it was placed as a motto upon a certain campaign document issued from the Argus office in Albany just after Mr. Cleveland's nomination at Chicago.

Total Depravity.

"Was it drink that brought you to this place?" asked the young woman who was engaged in philanthropic work.

"No, miss," replied the hardened offender. "'Twas the lack of it. I was that done up wid thirst that I tried ter steal a keg o' beer."—Washington Star.

York is Collecting Stamps.

The Duke of York has lately taken a great interest in collecting stamps. As few men have his opportunities, his collection should become a notable one. He recently made an application to the Agents General of most of the Colonies for specimens of the philatelic issues of the various countries they represent. All of the Colonial Governments, of course, responded, and sheets of the stamps were forwarded to him. The Tasmanian contribution required a number of reprints, which were made at that Government's expense. Some rare stamps are expected from New Zealand, which have not had sufficient time as yet to respond to the request of His Royal Highness.

BALTIMORE SENSATION

Two Women Claim the Sinclair Fortune.

An Estate of Nearly $900,000 Involved—Claimed That the Millionaire Was Never Divorced from His First Wife—Mrs. Sinclair No. 1 If Deceased.

Baltimore, Oct. 29.—It caused something of a start in Baltimore's highest business and social circles when the news came that a legal action had been begun in Brooklyn N. Y., which recognized two women as claiming to be the widows of the late William Sinclair of Cantonsville. The Sinclairs have been moving in the highest society in Baltimore and the statement that another women besides Mrs. Phoebe Sinclair of Cantonsville claimed to be Sinclair's widow caused much wonder. Mr. Sinclair came to Baltimore from Brooklyn in 1871. He had been in the hemp and woodenware business in New York. Shortly after his arrival here he succeeded Gen. O'Donnell as president of the Consolidated Gas company. About 15 years ago, it is said, Mr Sinclair was divorced from his first wife and a few years later married Mrs. Phoebe S. Taylor, the daughter of Col. Coleman, the owner and proprieter of the Carrolton hotel of this city. While separated from his first wife, but before applying for a divorce, Mr Sinclair purchased some property in Florida and gave it to her. It is stated that the first Mrs. Sinclair died there three years ago. Mr Sinclair died last July leaving an estate valued at $1,700,000. He left no will and half of that amount will go to his widow. Mrs. Phoebe S. Sinclair, the second wife and widow lives at Canton ville.

The estate has been in the hands of the administrators for over two months. Mr Sinclair left a number of relatives in Brooklyn who are heirs to half the estate. A dispatch from Jacksonville last night says: Wm. Sinslair married Rosalie Perpall, about eighteen years ago. The Perpall family is one of the oldest and best known families in Florida, Mrs Sinclair was a devout catholic, and it was said that he was the bone of contention that eventually caused a separation in 1890. Mrs. Sinclair resided at St Augustine for several years, It was generally belived that she was very wealthy, In 1888 she went to Atlanta, Ga., and friends here lost track of her until three years ago. She was then taken to a hospital in St Augustine, where she died after a few weeks illness. Just before death Mrs Sinclair wrote a will, bequeathing property which she valued at $300,000 to Catholic institutions but only $15,000 worth has been found. The physcian who attended Mrs Sinclair in her last illness and witnessed the will, says the lady was of unsound mind. F. E. Perpall of St Augustine was made executor of the will and represents the other seven heirs in this state. Their attorneys claim that no divorce was obtained by Mr. Sinclair, at least no record of it has been found in New York, Maryland, or Florida.

ALMOST A LYNCHING.

Police Rescue a Negro from a Mob Near Baltimore.

Baltimore, Oct. 29.—The village of Brooklyn, Anne Arundle county, was thrown into a state of considerable excitement by a crowd of 200 men gathering about the jail, with the declared intention of lynching a negro accused of an attempted felonious assault on a defenseless white girl who was quite a village belle. Chief of Police Harry Acton telephoned to this city for assistance. A squad of eight policeman was sent to Brooklyn at once. They surrounded the jail and drove back the crowd, put the prisoner into a patrol wagon, heavily manacled, and whipped the horse into a gallop. Almost before the crowd realized what had happened the possible victim of lynching was gone The negro is Henry Lenard aged fifty, His intended victim was ninteen years old. Miss LousiaSchwaub. The assault was made a week ago, but the negro had just been captured.

Arrested at Prayers.

New York. Oct 29.—The congregation of St James church, on James street, between Madison street and the Bowery were surprised at high mass yesterday, to see Saxton Daniel G. Daly go up to an Italian, on his knees engaged in prayer, and take him out to the vestry. The man was Sbezzie John Bettista, thirty-five years old. In the vestry Officer Baker, of the Fourth precinct, found on the man $27 in bills and ninety-five cents in dimes and nickels.

About ten minutes before the services began Bettista bought a ticket for a seat from the sexton, giving a half dollar and receiving forty cents in change. Mr Daly found the coin to be counterfeit, and the prisoner was locked up on the saxtons complaint.

During July and August a number of counterfeit half dollars were passed at the church. On one occasion two men were caught and a search revealed that they had $27 and $9 respectively in their possession. This money consisted of half dollars and quarters, all of which were counterfeit. They were allowed to go.

Besides the cases that have occurred at St. James church, many instances of a similar nature have been reported from the Church of the Transfiguration on Mott street and the Church of St. Therespa on Rutgers and Henry streets.

Echo of the Debs Strike.

Pueblo, Col., Oct. 29.—In the cases against the twenty-six American Railway union men on trial in the United States district court, the jury found Shaw, Cary and Jones guilty of obstructing the administration of justice, and fixed the penalty at three months in jail. Eight were found not guilty and the jury disagreed on the rest. All were charged with being connected with the disarming of deputies at Trinidad during the late railroad strike.

Fire in a County Jail.

Cedar Rapids, Ia., Oct. 29.—The county jail of Black Hawk county, at Waterloo, was fired by an incendiary last night. The prisoners were rescued, but not before the flames had eaten into the cell room. The entire structure was destroyed.

SPITE AND DYNAMITE.

Persistent Attempt To Murder a Miner Who Returned To Work.

New York, Oct. 29.—A Herald special from Mansfield, Pa., says: David Steen, one of the prominent coal operators of this valley, discharged about fifty of his miners about six weeks ago. They were men who had taken active part in the riots last spring, and Mr. Steen thought they were preparing for another outbreak this winter. One of the men, Joseph Linell, was taken back, but Mr. Steen refused to employ the others. The latter tried to compel Linell to stop work, but he refused. They then swore vengeance on him. Linell lived alone in a small shanty, near the mines, but, fearing the threats of the discharged miners, he moved to the boarding house of Mrs. Elizabeth Adams. The latter was told she had better refuse to entertain Linell, but the plucky woman defied the miners and took Linell in. Linell has been in the habit of sleeping in a room at one end of the house, but on Friday night did not occupy his regular room. The town was shaken by an explosion of dynamite at three o'clock. One end of Mrs. Adams' house was shattered. Linell's bed was blown through the roof. The explosive had been thrown through the window and exploded almost under the bed. The persons who threw the stick of dynamite found Linell had escaped them. They then went to his shanty, where it was thought he might be, and the place was bombarded with dynamite. The shanty was blown to pieces. It was evidently the work of the men whose displeasure Linell had incurred by returning to work and one of their number is under arrest.

MEXICAN RAILWAY EARNINGS.

The Approximate for the Whole System Increased.

City of Mexico, Oct. 29.—In the nine months past the earnings of the Mexican railways increased 48 per cent. as compared with the same period in 1893. In September last the railways showed an increase of 8 per cent. over September, 1893. The gross receipts of the Vera Cruz railway during the week amounted to $61,210 against $57,480 in the corresponding period of 1893. The gross earnings of the Mexican Central railroad were $88,634 against $79,030 for the same week last year. The approximate gross earnings of the Monterey Mexican Gulf railway for the month of September were $90,000 against $67,000 for the same period last year. The gross receipts of the Inter-Oceanic were $42,000 against $34, 000. The approximate earnings of the Mexican Central whole system were $172,000 against $183,000 during the corresponding period last year.

Rabbi Weil Not Othodox.

Bradford, Pa., Oct. 29.—At the request of his congregation Rabbi Weil, of the Beth Zion Hebrew Reformed congregation, is about to retire from the ministry in that church. His recently published book, "The Religion of the Future" indicates that the learned Rabbi has stepped beyond the pale of orthodoxy and that to some extent he has accepted the philosophy of spiritualism and he is greatly interested in physchial researches. Mr. Weil was seen by a representative of the United Press and talked freely on the subject of his dismissal. "I will engaged in lecturing," he said. "After January 1, I expect to fill several engagements here and will speak also in other cities. I have outgrown the environments of orthodox Judaism and am in favor of advanced ideas in religious matters. A 'reformed' congregation should not oppose reform and my ideas are in favor of progress at all times." Rabbi Weil is an able writer and fine speaker. He held the Beth Zion pulpit for fourteen years.

Was He a Swindler?

New Haven, Conn., Oct. 29.—A man giving his name as "J. P. Arons," registered at the New Haven house on Wednesday. He claimed to be an artist and spent some time canvassing in aristocratic circles for orders for a fine line of art works. To some he claimed to be J. P. Burgess, a son of the famous artist of that name. A prospective customer called at the New Haven house to inquire about Burgess and spoke of him in such a way that Arons was at once suspected. When spoken to Arons was much confused, settled his accounts and left the city immediately. It is supposed he intended to work a swindling game in this city.

Tragedy Near Milan, Ala.

Milan, Ala., Oct. 29.—Several days ago William Milford, a young farmer, disappeared from his home. His aged father was also missing. Yesterday the old man's corpse was found in the woods near his home with his head flattened out by a club and his pockets rifled of several hundred dollars which it was known he had started to take to a neighboring town to put in the bank. Officers were put on his son's track, and found him in a deserted log house 20 miles from home. He confessed the murder of his father, gave up the money, swallowed a bottle of morphine and whisky mixed and soon died.

New Mexican Railroad.

Cuernavaca, Mexico, Oct. 29.—The department of public works of Mexico has just approved the location of the line of the Mexico, Cuernavaca & Pacific railroad from Cuernavaca to the port of Acapulco, on the Pacific coast, a distance of 175 miles. The route of the road is through the towns of Puente de Ixtla, Iguala, Taxco, Chilpancingo and the richest agricultural section in tropical Mexico. Colonel J. H. Hamson, of Kansas City, is president and general manager.

Church Troubles.

Bellefonte, Pa., Oct. 29.—The Dubsites portion of the Evangelical church in Centre county have concluded not to submit to the recent decision of the supreme court granting the Esherites all the church property. They mean to make a fight for the property here. The property in this county is valued at several hundred thousand dollars.

Langtry in Society Plays.

London, Oct. 29.—Mrs. Langtry and her company sailed for New York on board the Paris. During her American tour Mrs. Langtry will rely upon society plays at first and later upon Shakespearean productions. She hopes to appear first in New York if she can get a theatre there, but her programme is still unsettled.

THREE BLOWN TO DEATH

Dastardly Dynamite Outrage at Wilkesbarre.

A Hungarian Miners' Camp Blown Up by Robbers—Dynamite Sticks Set Off by a Battery—Failure of a Part of the Explosive To Go Off Saves Many Lives.

Wilkesbarre, Pa., Oct. 29.—A dastardly outrage was perpetrated at 5 o'clock this morning wherin it was premeditated by the scoundrels to sacrifice 50 or 60 lives by sending then into eternity with a force of dynamite. The motive was undoubtedly robbery and it resulted in the instant death of three Hungarians while a large number were injured, eight of whom are in a serious condition. The dead are: Frank Novako, aged 23, single. Mike Colletz, aged 40, wife and four children in Hungary. George Silotzki, aged 28, wife and two children in Hungary. The injured are: John Colletz, Mike Koshitz, Kasha Grattarick, Mike Uritz, Blazak Croll, Fahr Kotzak, Anthony Lucklich, Uritz Misko. Several of the injured cannot posibily recover.

McDonald and Sayre, railroad contractors, are building a second track of seven miles on the Lehigh Valley cut-off and at a point one mile from Fairview in the wilds of Wilkesbarre mountain a Hungarian camp was located which was presided over by Mike Urklowitz and wife. The camp consisted of a rough building 30 feet square constructed in the midst of the scrub oak besides the track. During the night, as is always the custom, three of the sixty Hungarian borders, men and women, set up on watch and were whiling the time away playing cards. Sometime during the night a party, the number being unknown, of desperadoes secured a battery and brought it to the railroad track in front of the camp and connected it with wire, completing a circuit to each corner of the camping house. A tool chest standing nearby was broken open from which were taken a number of dynamite sticks which were distributed beneath the building. The circuit completed, it was but a moment's work to turn on the battery setting off the dynamite. However in the haste with which the miscreants worked, they made a faulty connection at the battery, and when it was turned on but one and certainly not more than two of the dynamite sticks exploded. Frank Novako who was one of the party playing cards on the first floor was instantly killed, both legs being blown off at the knees. The building totally collapsed and was shivered into slivers excepting one half of the roof which sank in, partially covering the debris. The two men with Frank Novako at the table were scarcely injured at all, while the others killed and injured met their fate from the collapse of the building. Occuring before daybreak as it did, the condition of the unfortunate foreigners was deplorable and in their frenzied condition they knew not what way to turn or how to act. The force of the explosion was so great that the earth was torn up about the site of the camp, and the effects in the line of baggage, cooking utensils, ect., were scattered in every direction. As is the custom of the Hungarians those who were uninjured at daybreak commenced collecting their shattered goods and chattles and by noon a large number of the men had prepared to take their departure, having no concern and paying no attention to their dead and injured countrymen. The Lehigh Valley Railroad company sent out a wrecking force wtih physicans, detectives and the coroner. Upon its arrival the injured men were cared for by the physicians, placed on the train and brought to the hospital here and the bodies of the dead were also brought here and prepared for buriel. The detectives have arrested Mike Urklowitz, the boarding house boss, as a witness. They profess to believe that he can give evidence that may lead to the detection of the men who committed the outrage.

Knocked Down and Robbed.

Jersey City, Oct. 29.—Thomas C. Callaghan, of 173 Ocean avenue, while going home early in the morning, was knocked down at Jackson and Kearney avenues, and left unconscious on the sidewalk after being robbed of $27, a gold watch, two diamond studs, a silk hat and an overcoat. He was found half an hour later by the police and a physician said he had been sandbagged. When he revived he gave a description of his assailant and the police arrested Cornelius Clayton, a peddler living at 87 Ege avenue. The stolen property was found in his house and he was sent to the county jail.

Wants $5,000 for Slander.

New Haven, Conn., Oct. 29.—Frederick Bissell of this city has retained counsel to bring suit against the Waterbury Globe to recover $5,000 damages for slander. In Saturday's edition of the paper it was stated that Mr. Bissell had collected money for a number of people and left town. The same article stated that Bissell used other people's money in riotous living. Three or more suits are threatened because of things said in the same issue.

Coxey's House Burned.

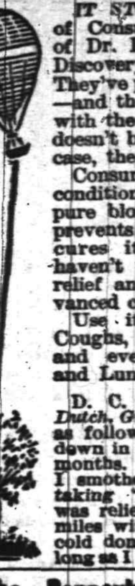
Massillon, O., Oct. 29.—The handsome residence of J. S. Coxey, at Coxana, four miles north of this city, burned to the ground last night. A number of outbuildings were also destroyed and but few household effects were saved. The origin of the fire is unknown, but it is supposed to have been the work of incendiaries. The loss is estimated at $10,000.

A Victim of the Cook Gang.

Tahlequah, I. T., Oct. 29.—Richard Crittenden is reported to have been murdered by the Cook gang. Crittenden was a member of the sheriff's posse that first attacked the outlaws and drove them to their present business. He soon afterward joined the gang but was murdered for fear he would betray them.

Local Weather Forecast.

Fair; east winds, shifting to south; warmer.



IT STOPS THE PROGRESS of Consumption. The makers of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery are certain of it. They've proved it for years past—and they're willing to sell it with the agreement that if it doesn't benefit or cure, in every case, they'll return the money.

Consumption is that scrofulous condition that comes from impure blood. The "Discovery" prevents it, if taken in time; cures it completely, if you haven't waited too long; gives relief and comfort, even in advanced cases.

Use it in severe, lingering Coughs, Asthma, Weak Lungs, and every Bronchial, Throat, and Lung Affection.

D. C. ROSENBALM, Esq., of Dutch, Grainger Co., Tenn., writes as follows: "I had been going down in strength and weight for months. I was not able to stir and I smothered very often. After taking 'Discovery' my cough was relieved, I could walk three miles without trouble, catching cold don't distress me now. As long as I live I'll praise 'G. M. D.'"

A Moral.

There was a man in a faraway town
Who thought him wondrous wise.
He swore by all the fabled gods
He'd never advertise.

His goods were advertised at last,
And thereby hangs a tale.
The ad was set in nonpareil,
And headed "Sheriff's Sale."

STRANGE WAR STORIES

Japan Wants Big Indemnity from China.

Flagrant Frauds Perpetrated by Chinese Officials—Cannon Balls Made of Clay—Deeds of Heroism Among Japanese Troops—Confiscation of Sheng's Property.

Washington, Oct. 29.—The Japanese legation received a dispatch which confirms dispatches from Shanghai, of a second victory of the Japanese army under Marshal Yamagata. The telegram is dated from Hiroshima and reads as follows: "Before dawn of Oct. 26 our army under Marshal Yamagata attacked Kiu-Len-Cheng, one of the important strongholds upon the Chinese frontier. The place was defended by 16,000 Chinese troops under Generals Liu and Song. They fled after offering only a slight resistance and the Japanese forces took possession of the fortifications and the city. They captured thirty large field guns, an immense quantity of rice, food of other kinds, etc., and more than three hundred tents. The Japanese loss was twenty killed and eighty-three wounded. The Chinese lost more than two hundred killed. The exact number of their wounded is not known."

It is believed at the Japanese legation that the General Liu mentioned in this dispatch in the noted Chinese commander who played such a prominent part during the Tonking difficulties, and to whom it was recently reported Viceroy Li had offered the chief command in the Chinese army.

Some interesting intelligence from the seat of war in the east is contained in recent mail advices at the legation. In the opinion of the Japanese press, there can be but one termination of the present struggle, and that is the total overthrow and humiliation of the Chinese arms. The Nippon leaves it to the judgment of the cabinet to determine what terms shall be dictated to the middle kingdom after the fall of Peking, which event it speaks of as though it were an accomplished fact. It advises the government, however, that China is ready at any time to resort to perfidity and foul play and therefore, whatever promise she makes must be guaranteed by ample security. Speaking of the war indemnity which China must pay, the Nippon suggests a sum amounting to ten times as much as the actual war expenses incurred by Japan; a sum sufficient for improving the military system of Japan; also to dictate such terms as will materially lessen the fighting capacity of China; to make China pay at once the whole sum agreed upon withdrawing the Japanese forces from her capital; to make China agree to the temporary occupation of a part of her territory if the payment be in several installments or as an alternative taking from China so much of her territory as may be useful to Japan from an economic or a military point of view.

An essentially Oriental story is told in Tien-Tsin illustrating the venality of some of the Chinese officials. A gentleman residing in that city ordered a Chinese mason to bring the necessary clay to make some repairs in his fireplace. The mason appeared the next day with a cartload of what appeared to be cannon balls, but which were really sundried globes of clay painted black. Some time before hostilities with Japan began, Viceroy Li inspected a number of vessels belonging to the northern squadron. Many of the ships were insufficiently supplied with ammunition, the money paid out for that purpose having been otherwise "appropriated." As this story would probably not meet with the approval of the viceroy, a number of bricklayers were at once set to work manufacturing "fake" cannon balls out of clay, after which they were painted black. These innocuous missiles were then smuggled aboard several of the vessels and when the inspection was held proved a complete success.

Numerous deeds of heroism are recorded among the Japanese troops. While a body of newly enlisted men were marching to the front one of the soldiers was taken violently ill. He was removed to the nearest hospital, but refused to unclasp his sword belt or surrender his gun to the attending physicians. That death was near, he knew, and he deemed it a disgrace to die before fighting for his country, his gun was a precious charge and he would hold it to the last. And so, clasping the gun to his dying breast, in full uniform, he calmly met his death.

No less heroic was the act of a bugler in the battle of Song-Hwan. He had been told to blow the charge, and had just given a blast when a bullet struck him full in the breast, inflicting a fatal wound. Several of his comrades ran to raise him, but he and they at once saw that nothing could be done. They told him to lay the bugle aside, urging that any fresh exertion would only make the hemorrhage more quickly fatal. His sole reply to this was to raise the bugle once more and for the last time to his lips, and with a final clear ringing "charge" the bold spirit passed away.

London, Oct. 29.—The Shanghai correspondent of the Central News says all the Soochow property belonging to Sheng, the taotai of Tien-Tsin, has been seized and sealed by the governor in obedience to orders from Pekin. Sheng is the official who bought German rifles for 600,000 taels and sold them to the government for 3,000,000. When the fraud was discovered Li Hung Chang slapped his face. The seizure of his property followed quickly upon the denunciation of the board of censors.

Count de Gainville's Trip.

San Francisco, Oct. 29.—Count V. E. de Gainville, of Paris, has arrived at this port on the steam whaler Jeannette after a five years' hunting trip in the unexplored wilds of Alaska and the northwest territory. All the country he passed through was mountainous and generally wooded. He saw many rich coal lands which could be developed and found traces of gold on the upper Yukon river, but no rich deposits. He was unable to discover the reputed big Esquimaux lake east of the Mackenzie river, but found many small lakes in clusters.

CZAR IMPROVING.

Favorable Reports Concerning the Condition of the Monarch.

Washington, Oct. 29.—Prince Cantacuzene, the Russian minister to the United States received the following satisfactory bulletin as to the condition of the Russian emperor from the minister of foreign affairs:

St Petersburg, Oct. 29.—The emperor slept well on Friday night. Yesterday the appetite was good and function of the heart was more satisfactory. General condition better. Oedema has not increased." Prince Cantacuzene feels very greatly encouaged at the receipt of this telegram, which carries the story of the emperor's condition down to Saturday night, the fact that the emperor is improving, however, slightly, is in itself a matter for congratulation and encourages the hope that he may ultimately recover. The further fact that the marriage of the Crown Prince and the Princess Alix has not been consumated is regarded in diplomatic circles as additional proof that the emperor's condition is not as serious as has been reported. Had his death been imminent the wedding would not have been expedited. It's postponement justifies the belief that the emperor is improving and that the hope is being indulged by his family that he may rally sufficiently to be present.

MASSACHUSETTS' EPIDEMICS.

Diphtheria of a Malignant Type and Scarlet Fever.

Boston, Oct. 29.—Scarlet fever is prevalent throughout the state and in a number of towns schools have been closed in consequence. The disease is epidemic, but not of a serious type, and there is apparently no large increase over the number of cases last year.

The type of diphtheria in the state is a seemingly severe one, and there is more occasion to fear it than the scarlet fever. Boston is undergoing a serious epidemic of diseases. The ages of the sufferers vary from one to twelve years. It is moreover, of a malignant type, and the death rate has been large.

The board of health is taking especial precautions to prevent contagion. This week 116 new cases of diphtheria and 24 deaths by this cause are reported. The wards of the city hospital are so crowded that twenty-five persons suffering with diphtheria have been denied admission.

Earthquake in Argentina.

New York, Oct. 29.—The Herald's special cable from Buenos Ayres says: At one minute past 5 o'clock a sharp shock of earthquake was felt in Buenos Ayres, which greatly alarmed the residents. The centre of the seismic disturbance seems to have been in San Juan de la Frontera, the capital of the province of San Juan, a city of about 9,000 inhabitants. Churches, theatres, schools, government offices and private houses were thrown down and the streets were filled with debris. Many persons were killed and injured and the people of the town are in a perfect panic. The shock was felt at twenty minutes past four, the direction being south. The earthquake was felt at La Paz, in the province of Mendoza, at twenty-three minutes past four.

By Pistol and Rope.

New York, Oct. 29.—George F. Katterson, fifty-five years old, of Putnam avenue, Brooklyn, commited suicide at his residence late Saturday night by shooting himself through the head. He formerly worked as a sugar refiner but had been sick for several years and had grown despondent on that account. He leaves a widow and two children. Mrs. Alba A. Gunddig, a Pole, twenty-five years old, was found hanging from a cloths line fastened in a doorway in her apartments on Fifth avenue, Brooklyn, yesterday by her husband. She left a communication stateing that her husband's dissipated habits had driven her to take her life.

Industrial Situation at Jamestown.

Jamestown, N. Y., Oct. 29.—The industrial situation in Jamestown is in a flourishing condition. Every factory is running full time and and many are running over-time. The Vandergrift Manufacturing co., manufacturers of machinery are rushed with orders and are working over-time. They expect to add two more large buildings to increase their capicity. Other manufacturers report the same condition of affairs.

CAPRIVI'S RETIREMENT

How He Come To Lay Down the Reins of State.

Fell Out With the Emperor on the anti-Socialist Measures—Wanted a Binding Pledge of the Support of the Whole Government—Demanded Too Much of the Kaiser.

Berlin, Oct. 29.—The columns of all the newspapers teem with surprises as to the final cause of Count von Caprivi's fall. The most trustworthy explanation now at hand was published by the Hamburgische correspondent, which is known to have got its information from Dr. Hammann of the foreign office. It is this: On Friday Count von Caprivi had an audience with the emperor to discuss the ministerial situation and the outlines of the proposed anti-socialist measures. He referred to the opposition which he had encountered in the conference of federal envoys and asked the emperor to give a binding pledge that the whole government, would support uniformly the programme of the chancellery. The emperor said he could not promise to carry out unchanged every detail of the chancellor's proposals; the situation was so complicated that it was impossible to mark out an unalterable line of conduct. However, he himself continued to hope that the chancellor would have the desired support and would remain at his post. Caprivi stood firm. The emperor declined to promise. Some temper was displayed on both sides, although there was no quarrel. Eventually Caprivi stated the alternative between the promise and his immediate resignation and the emperor accepted the resignation.

The changes incidental to Caprivi's departure are expected to include the resignation of Freiherr Marschall von Bieberstein, the foreign secretary, whom the conservatives accuse of intriguing against Miquel, Eulenburg and everybody else except his personal friends. One report which holds fast among the conservatives, is that he will be succeeded by Count Philip zu Eulenburg, the poet, story teller, and German ambasador in Vienna. The emperor is credited, however, with a version to all changes that can be avoided as he wishes to emphasize the principle that he is the supreme force in the government and all sufficient statesman. This he expects to accomplish by acting as if all dismissals resulted from party opposition to the personality of this or that adviser of the crown. If Freiherr Marschall von Bieberstein should go, it would be due to antagonism felt toward him by Miquel, the Eulenburg clan, and the agrarians whom he handled so roughly in the debates on the Russian reciprocity treaty.

The news of Caprivi's fall reached the social democratic congress in Frankfort just before the close of Friday's session. The crisis was felt to be a grave one, full of danger to the party. The general opinion was that it meant the signal triumph of the reaction. Deputy Paul Singer's closing address failed to encourage the delegates, although it rang with defiance of all that the imperial ministers might do. "No changes can effect the social democracy," he said. The party has outlived Bismark and Caprivi and will survive the future chancellors, it matters not how reactionary they may be, socialism is the vital principle of progress. Its adherents are animated with a spirit to overcome all persecution and they have spread their teachings despite all opposition. The congress closed with an appearence of harmony which was absent at the opening. There was much latent discontent, however, and the Bavarians and Berlin committeemen are sure to fight their differences out unless new exceptional laws force them back into a solid phalanx. The Vorwaerts to-day appeals to the entire party to bury all their minor differences and prepare for the combat which "the so-called parties of law and order have begun against the social democracy." In a paragraph on the significance of Caprivi's fall, the editor adds: "The most notable fact is that he was not dismissed because he had lost the confidence of the nation, nor because a vote of the reichstag had made him impossible as chancellor, but merely because a monarch, regarding himself as responsible to nobody, suddenly resolved to let him go. Caprivi never used legislation or administration for his personal advantage. His withdrawal darkens the political horizon."

Count von Caprivi's furniture was removed from the nine rooms which he occupied in the chancellery and was sent to his villa at Skieren, near Crossen, where he will live in retirement. His married sister, to whom he is much attached, occupies a house in the same neighborhood. Caprivi's friends say that when he called to bid them good bye he looked five years younger than he looked a week ago. He was in better spirits than for a month and said he felt as if a mountain had rolled off his back. His recent surroundings, he told one friend, had been little to his liking. The press campaigns for and against him had been especially disagreeable, although he was informed that they had to be. He regretted keenly that he must leave the beautiful garden at the chancellery. On Friday despite the heavy rain, he want through the garden to visit all the shrubs and trees he had planted and trained. He parted most reluctantly from Major von Ebmeyer, his aide-de-camp, who regards him as the most admirable man on earth. Ebmeyer was so effected that he could not speak articulately. His resignation has been accepted by the emperor and he will join his regiment immediately. In summoning the federal envoys to another conference the emperor said that Caprivi's policy would be continued. This statement is taken with a grain of salt, as the emperor made a similar statement after Bismarck's fall.

Huge Monument to Bismarck.

Berlin, Oct. 29.—The preliminaries are concluded for the erection of a colossal monument to cost 2,000,000 marks ($500,000), to Prince Bismarck at Hamburg, on the shore of the Elbe.

SOLD FOR THEIR DEBT.

ARISTOCRATIC BOARDERS PUT UNDER THE HAMMER.

To Settle Swell Setters' Accounts, Marshal Pangborn Officiates at a Sportsman's Sale.

Chief Marshal Pangborn sold four English setters at auction at Tallman & Wheeler's Netherwood Farm Kennels Saturday afternoon. The dogs were the property of Sylvester J Kiernan of Elizabeth, the defaulting insurance man, and were sold on an attachment secured by the proprietors of the kennels for a $195 board bill incurred for the keep of the animals.

Tallman & Wheeler took advantage of the sale to dispose of a number of their own dogs and others consigned from different fanciers and in consequence many enthusiasts from Connecticut, New York and Philadelphia were present.

During the sale, Netherwood contrasted with our western suburb, Evona, during the reign of Frisbie. At Netherwood, instead of the dogs falling under the ax (applied to the poor brute's head as was done at the dog pound) they were (in the language of auctioneers) knocked by the hammer.

The dogs disposed of were all sporting dogs, that is, sportsman's dogs, pointers and setters; it was quite a treat to the admirers of these dogs to see so many good ones together, and as Mr. Tallman knows all their wants, and as all their wants are supplied, the dogs all look in prime condition. The kennels have a beautiful location on Mountain avenue on the rear of the John Taylor Johnston farm. Here, besides their separate yards they have a thousand acres for working ground. The buildings were formerly used for poultry but have very ingeniously been converted into comfortable and commodious apartments for dogs.

A kennel building seems nowadays a requisite to a complete country place. The promoter of such buildings was Percy Ohl of this city, who more than 25 years ago housed upwards of 100 setters in his kennel in this city. Mr. Ohl has also designed the most important kennel buildings in this country and several in Europe, two of them in this State costing over $5,000 each, and though Mr. Ohl has retired, on account of illness, from the doggy world, and will give no information, he is probably on matters of dogs and live stock one of the best posted men living and the New York Sun says he stands without a rival on the subject in question.

The attendance was much smaller than was expected. It is proverbail that sportsmen, who will face any kind of weather in quest of game, won't attend church meetings, or auctions, if showers are predicted, and as rain was predicted for Saturday, many who intended to be on hand were absent. The day, however, contrary to the prediction, was one of the most perfect of the year. Among those present were Messrs. Blossom, Jarvis, Pickhardt, Arnott, Money, and Major Taylor of New York, also representatives of the Turf, Field and Farm, American Field, and Messrs. Duncan and Lewis of Philadelphia.

At 2:30 Marshal Pangborn, mounted on a dog-crate, announced his willingness to receive bids, and offered as the first sacrifice Gamester, an English setter (stud book number 21,991, 4 years old) bought by Mr. Duncan of Philadelphia, $60.

The next, Duke of Alma, (No. 32,340) a black, white and tan, a son of the famous Roderigo, 2 years old, went to Mr. Ohl for $55

Matt Noble (No. 30,233) a black and white bitch, was purchased by Noel Money of New York for $50. Elizabeth, another black and white bitch, was purchased by Mr. Wheeler for $32.

Buttons, a black and white dog, was bid up to $60, but a reserve bid on him of $75 was not raised so he was led back to the kennels.

Ray, an undersized black and white bitch, and a nursing mother of five fine puppies, was slowly competed for (exclusive of the pups). Mr. Duncan finally getting her at $40.

Fannyson Roy, the seventh and last English setter, was bought by the kennels.

Of the pointers. Springside Hal, 32450, by ch. Duke of Hessen, ch. Queen Fan, and partly broken, went to James Stratton of New York for $60. Springside Faust, 14 months-old dog by Faust and Beryl, went to Mr. Blossom of New York for $30. Springside, Tory and Springside Juno were withdrawn. Springside Jill (by Donald and Lady Tammany) went to Mr. Neuman of New York.

There was also quite a number of others disposed of. Two dogs of Mr. Anthony's breeding were put up and quickly sold, Mr. Ohl obtaining one very choice animal and Mr. Jarvis of New York the other.

Though none of the dogs was broken, and it being a forced and cash sale, the prices obtained were fair.

Plainfield has now quite a number of good kennels, and it's worthy of note that while it only costs $1 to be a voter it costs $4 to be a dog.

THE A. P. A'S.

A Correspondent Signs His Name to His Outspoken Views.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE DAILY PRESS: For some time back a great commotion or discord has been engendered by one class of citizens arrayed against another with ideas founded and based on the most shady type that could have entered into the human heart. A society or organization commonly known as the A. P. A's having tenets so wild as to proclaim nothing but what is unwholesome, unchristian and unholy. At present it tries to raise its head with principles detrimental to the chief article of our most glorious constitution which says that no religious test shall be ever required from any class of its citizens for the holding of any office or trust within the gift of the American people.

Yet now this self-same body of men are assidiously trying to sow the seeds of disunion and strife, which, perhaps, may in times surpass, if not dwarfed in its infancy, the sad spectacle the world had to witness some score and a-half years ago, that Civil War in our beloved country. But the public opinion and admitted intelligence of our people, will and can bury it ignominiously, as it has done to Knownothingism before. Any such poisoned weed, is fostered and fed, as it were by the satanic influence itself. However, the great masses of the people must be made aware from time to time of such snares and pitfalls, even when so masked and shaded. We now and then hear from the lips of self-styled Christian exponents of the brotherly Gospel of Christ. Among the many looming up in the horizon as a champion of this new crusade, is Madison C. Peters of New York, a luminary of very modest candle power, and who it appears by his language would wish to nullify the second commandment as given to Moses, on Mount Sinai: Love thy neighbor as thyself. But you know that was given a few thousand years ago and, of course, according to the doctrine of the A. P. A's. it must be obsolete by statute limitation. (God save the mark.) Now if any of the readers of The Press would ponder and exert their memory being historically inclined they would find that during our late Rebellion, there were no complaints uttered against foreigners holding office, I mean shouldering the musket, and they would also remember there was no religious qualification asked or that no Roman Catholic need apply. Oh no, but a cordial invitation, come ye brave and noble aliens in thousands to our shores. Oh Lord save us, lest we perish, for the Johnnies are at our doors, but although the best blood of Europe was shed in defence of the glorious banner of freedom, it was no spilled in vain for it has only cemented the closer the toiling exiles of foreign lands to love and cherish the land of their adoption the more; during that eventful time that illustrious General Thomas Francis Meagher, we cannot afford to so soon forget it, fought at Fredricksburgh, Chancellorsville and other fields of carnage. How the ethereal inhabitants must laugh when they hear men professing to be sane, crying out America for Americans, who can only claim so far as length of time is concerned, the sleep of a Rip Van Winkle and his dog since their first foreign ancestors crossed the ocean in quest of right of conscience, peace and happiness. But the world keeps moving all the same and its so with the legion of American Protective Association, or knownothingism revamped.

THOUGHT A THIEF.

Arrested for the Country Club Robbery.

William Wilson, a young colored man, was arrested by Chief Grant last night on suspicion that he is the thief who stole billiard balls, cigars and a pitcher from the Union County Country Club Friday night as was exclusively reported in The Daily Press of Saturday.

In the City Court this morning Wilson pleaded not guilty and was released in $200 bail to appear in court tomorrow morning for trial. Wilson was formerly employed by the club and Steward William Randolph feels confident he is the thief. The goods have not been found.

More Sewer Work.

A carload of eight-inch pipe having arrived, Cook & Co. today broke ground for the Putnam avenue sewer at the corner of Richmond street. An under-drain will be laid all the way to Woodland avenue. Work is still being pushed on Grant avenue.

COULD HARDLY BREATHE.

Catarrh of the Nose, Throat, and Stomach—Life Made Miserable by Headaches, Pain and Cough.

Lida McCandless, No. 1230 South Thirtyfifth street, Philadelphia, in conversation with a reporter, said: "I had a very bad case of catarrh of the nose, throat and stomach, with frequent headaches, pain under the shoulder blades and a horrible cough. I had to keep my mouth constantly open day and night to breathe, and felt as miserable as one possibly could. I was advised to try Munyon's Catarrh Cure. I am happy to say that from the beginning I felt relieved and continued to grow better until now I am entirely well. I am so thankful that this remarkable remedy was ever discovered, and hope others will take advantage of my experience."

Have you Catarrh? Are you willing to investigate a treatment that cures Catarrh by removing the cause? If so ask your druggist for a 25c bottle of Catarrh Tablets. The Catarrh Cure will eradicate the disease from the system, and the Tablets will cleanse and heal the affected parts and restore them to a natural and healthful condition.

Munyon's Homœopathic Home Remedy Company, of Philadelphia, put up specifics for nearly every disease, which are sold by all druggists, mostly for 25 cents a bottle.

ARCHDUKE JOSEPH HARD UP.

He is Trying to Sell a Lovely Island for Needed Cash.

Archduke Joseph, of Austria, is in financial difficulties, the result of unfortunate speculations in real estate, industrial concerns and stocks, of the most extensive and disastrous character. The matter is all the more serious inasmuch as he has always been regarded as a sort of man of business of the imperial house and the principal administrator of the vast fortune of the Hapsburg family. How grave are the difficulties in which he has become involved may be estimated from his having secured the Emperor's permission to sell that beautiful Margaret Island lying midway between Buda and Pesth, and which has frequently been described as "the pearl of the Danube."

Indeed, it is impossible to imagine anything more lovely than this island, which owes its name to a royal nun, the daughter of the Magyar King Bela IV., who lived in the thirteenth century. The convent which once stood there was destroyed by the Turks, its ruins being swept away by the great inundation of 1775 and 1838, and it remained for Archduke Joseph to purchase the island to provide it with a system of stately quays and to transform it into one picturesque garden, or park, the mass of almost tropical vegetation being dotted here and there with charming villas, hotels, a casino and a number of bathing establishments, there being mineral springs possessing remarkable curative powers in the island.

It is only about a mile in length, but has a tramway running from one end to the other, giving easy communication between the several hotels, while it is connected with both shores by ferries. The Archduke wants 5,000,000 florins for it, although he must have spent an infinitely larger sum than that in creating this, the pet scheme of his existence and with which his name will always be associated.

Everybody is sorry for the Archduke, for, in the first place he is probably next to the Emperor, the most popular member of his house, and then everybody knows how he looked upon Margaret Island as the very apple of his eye.

STORY OF A $20 NOTE.

It Was Bad But an Honest Sailor Sent it for Redemption.

Not long ago a $20 note was sent to the United States Treasury for redemption. Accompanying it was an affidavit saying that the owner put it in a cigar box where mice had got at it and nibbled it. The note was a counterfeit. Not only that, but it had been through the Treasury here at some previous time, and had been stamped with the word "bad" in letters cut out of the paper. But the alleged mice had almost obliterated the letters by nibbling around them. It was a queer way for mice to behave, to say the least of it. A detective of the service was sent to look the matter up. He investigated the case fully and reported that it was all right—in short, that the note had been submitted for redemption in good faith.

The owner, it appears, was an old German sailor, of respectable character. Nevertheless, he would go on an occasional spree. Waking up one morning, after a night of dissipation, he found all his money gone except this note for $20. Somebody had doubtless passed it off on him. He noticed nothing wrong about it and, had put it into the cigar box in which he kept not only his ready money, but also bird seed for his pet canary. Mice attracted by the bird seed, visited the box and incidentally chewed up the note. On finding it partly destroyed the sailor forwarded it to the Treasury at Washington. The case is interesting chiefly as an illustration of the way in which an appearance of fraud may sometimes mislead.

BOUND TO GET ONE.

Capt. Elmhirst Makes Three Trips to America for an Elk.

In one of his short pen sketches Major M. P. Handy says of an enthusiastic English sportsman:

A modern Nimrod is Captain E. Pennell Elmhirst, an English army officer, on the retired list, who has spent many years of his life going after big game. He is also known as an able writer on shooting. Moreover he is considered the best cross country rider in all England. His record of game shot includes elephants, tigers, elks and everything that is too big to put in a bag, and he thinks nothing of travelling half way round the world to get what he wants in the way of sport.

He came to America to shoot elk, and he found one with twelve prongs in the Williams River basin of Colorado, near the Devil's Causeway. It was a long way to travel to get a single elk, but Captain Elmhirst had made the journey twice before without success, and he is, therefore, quite elated this time. He thinks our game law should be more strictly enforced, and is especially severe on a young New Yorker, wearing a well-known name, who has recently been shooting deer in the velvet and left the country studded with the victims of his unsportsmanlike practices.

Splendid Stories Secured for The Daily Press.

EVERY ONE IS COPYRIGHTED.

Such Famous Authors as Rudyard Kipling, F. R. Stockton, Conan Doyle, Amelia Barr, Florence Warden, The Duchess and Julian Hawthorne, Engaged to Write for This Paper—First Instalment Nov. 1.

$9,000 has been spent for a new service which The Daily Press will begin Thursday, Nov. 1.

That large sum has been paid merely for the manuscript and illustrations, and the mechanical cost will be much more.

No other paper in Plainfield will be able to use this same material, as it has all been protected to Daily Press use by copyright.

The series will be known as Six-Day Serial Stories. That is, no story is to run more than six days. Each story will contain from 4,000 to 12,000 words.

The most famous writers of the world have been engaged as contributors. The list includes the following:

Conan Doyle	Amelia E. Barr
Stephen Crane	Mary N. Murfree
Hamlin Garland	Bret Harte
Margaret Deland	Mrs. Alexander
"Ouida"	Jerome K. Jerome
S. R. Crockett	Sarah Grand
Frank R. Stockton	David Wechsler
Florence Warden,	Brander Matthews
Richard Malcolm Johnston
Mary E. Wilkins	Maxwell Gray
Julian Hawthorne	T. Quiller Couch
Sarah Orne Jewett	Mrs. Lynn Lynton
Barry Pain	Thomas Hardy
Harriet Prescott Spofford
Opie Read	The Duchess
Henry Harland (Sidney Luska)
Howard Fielding	Ruth McEnery Stuart
Matt Crim	Rudyard Kipling
Elizabeth Stuart Phelps Ward
	Rosa Nouchette Carey

The following stories are now in hand:

"The Medal of Brigadier Gerard", 10,000 words, by A. Conan Doyle, a war detective story.

"From Dawn to Dusk", 4,000 words, by Sarah Grand, author of "The Heavenly Twins".

"The Undertakers", 6,000 words, by Rudyard Kipling.

"A Lynching in Mosinee", 6,000 words, by Hamlin Garland.

"Old Mosinee Tom; an Adventure with Wolves", 2,000 words, by Hamlin Garland.

"The Spectre of the Real", 9,600 words, by Thos. Hardy and Mrs. Henniker.

"A Christian Tale", by Mary E. Wilkins.

"The Moonshiner's Dream", by Matt Crim, author of the "Adventures of a Fair Rebel".

Remember these stories will appear in The Daily Press alone, handsomely illustrated, and that the first instalment will be published Nov. 1.

RED, WHITE AND BLUE.

PLAINFIELD SONS OF VETERANS OPEN A PATRIOTIC FAIR.

No Games of Chance, But Voting Contests by the Book System—Dancing Adds to Other Pleasures.

The new patriotic organization, John Hand Camp, No. 28, S. of V., entered the favorite field of older societies this season by opening a fair last evening. For the scene of their week of pleasure and business they had secured the store 321 West Front street, in L. L. Manning's new building.

The front part of the store was occupied by the tables. In the rear was plenty of space for dancing and Sam Frazee's orchestra completed the arrangements for that part of the evening's enjoyment. The decorations of the hall were entirely of American flags and red, white and blue bunting.

Besides the regular sales at the tables several contests are being carried on by the book system. A bicycle of high-grade will go to the young man voted to be the most popular. The young woman whose admirers secure the most votes will win a gold watch. The girls are trying to secure a gold ring. A contest which is limited to members of the Camp is one for a complete uniform. Everyone is interested in raising enough money by subscription to buy the Sons a flag.

The names of those in charge were: General Committee—H. S. Thatcher, chairman; H. C. McVoy, treasurer; Cyrus Moore, secretary; Walter C. Dobbins, Edward C. Bowman and George Bedford.

Candy Table—Mrs. William Chamberlain and Miss Force.

Ice-cream—Miss Smith and Miss Nash.

Flowers—Miss Lottie Chamberlain.

Soda-water—Charles F. Stephens.

Fortune-telling—Miss Nellie Jones.

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR.

The first anniversary of the Christian Endeavor society of the German Reformed Church will be celebrated next Sunday evening in the church. Rev. Dr. A. H. A MAN OF THE PEOPLE.

JOHN T. DUNN WORKED HIS WAY FROM THE RANKS.

How the Bobbin Boy Grew to Be Congressman—Custom and Worthiness Demand His Return to Washington.

John T. Dunn, the Democratic nominee for Congress, was born in Tipperary, Ireland, in 1838. He came to New Jersey in 1845, at the age of seven. His mother died when he was four years old and he was put with a farmer who engaged to give him three months schooling each year until he arrived at sixteen. The farmer neglected his part of the contaact, so that when he left the farm the lad did not even know the alphabet.

When about eleven years of age, being unable longer to endure the hardships and abuse he was subject to on the farm, he ran away and shipped from where Atlantic City now stands, as a cabin boy on a vessel trading with the West Indies. Five years later an older brother found him on the vessel and took him to Gloucester City, where he was employed as a bobbin boy in a factory. At about the age of sixteen he left the factory and went to learn iron moulding with the firm of Walker & Leeman. When about nine months at that trade the foundry burned down and was not rebuilt. Young Dunn then turned his attention to the trade of brass turning and silver burnishing with the firm of Knight & VanKirk, at Frankford, Pa. The death of one of the partners threw him out of his trade, but he took the next best thing, that of painting, and while an apprentice at that trade learned his first lessons in the alphabet. He soon became master of reading, writing and arithmetic, and Sundays, holidays, and all his evenings were devoted to study, so that, at the age of twenty-one, he had thoroughly mastered the English language. He was delighted with history; and his education opened up to him a new world, the enjoyment of which no amount of money could purchase, had he the power to part with it for any price.

The Douglass campaign found him an ardent supporter of the "Little Giant's" ideas, and he spoke at Norwich on the same platform with Mr. Douglass. Mr. Dunn, though a boy comparatively speaking, was one of the vice-presidents of the meeting. He spoke in many of the Connecticut towns for Douglass. After the campaign was over he had made all his arrangements to study law with Bried, at Norwich, Conn. In 1869 Mr. Dunn removed to Elizabeth, and in 1882 was admitted to the bar. His services to the party were rewarded by his election as an alderman in 1878. The next year he was elected a Member of Assembly, which office he held for years, discharging the duties of the same with great advantage to his district and honor to himself. On the adjournment of the Legislature in 1882 he took up the practice of law in Elizabeth. He devoted himself assiduously to this and held no political office until the Fall of 1891, when he was elected a member of the City Council of Elizabeth.

He was elected to Congress at the last Presidential election, receiving a majority of 983 in the new Eighth district. Immediately on his entering upon his duties he stepped to the front rank of debaters in Congress, and has delivered excellent speeches on the Silver, Elective, and Tariff questions, which came before that body. He had interested himself greatly in procuring improvements for his district: and has had bills passed and signed to improve the Rahway and Elizabeth rivers, and a bill granting permission for the building of a bridge across Newark Bay from Elizabethport to Bergen Point, as well as having a bill for a public building in Elizabeth passed by the House. This last measure Mr. Dunn hopes to have passed by the Senate and signed during the December session.

The Camera Club's New Home.

All of the furniture of the Camera Club has been moved to the rooms in the Babcock Building. The members will have their first meeting there next Thursday night. During the next two weeks the new furniture will be received; a reception to the friends of the Club will be given about the middle of November.

Borough Boys Beat Leal's.

Yesterday on the Park avenue grounds the North Plainfield Public School defeated the Leal's second by the score of 20 to 0. The North Plainfield Public School was under the management of Hummer, Carroll and Buell.

New Flag at Bryant.

A fine new flag, 10x20 feet in size, was raised for the first time on the Bryant School flagstaff yesterday. Janitor Hope has not discarded the old flag, but will raise it windy and rainy days and save the new one.

Contradiction.

It is not true that James E. Martine, the Farmer Orator, will speak in Bayonne tonight. He has received no notice of said meeting nor does he intend to be present.

SEVEN SMOTHERED.

Deadly Smoke at a Tenement-House Fire.

AN ANXIOUS SCENE IN NEW YORK.

An Eighth Victim, a Woman, Fatally Hurt by Jumping—Good Work of a Policeman in Rescuing Other Tenants of the House.

New York, Oct. 30—Smoke smothered seven persons to death in a tenement-house fire at 216 West Thirty-second street about 3:30 this morning. An eighth person, a woman, jumped from an upper-story window, when she could easily have gone down the fire-escape, and her injuries are such that she will probably die, a victim of the panic that seized all the tenants of the crowded building and made the fire one of the most anxious scenes of the kind ever witnessed in this city. Following is a list of the victims:

DEAD

Mrs. Margaret Killian, seventy years old.

Jabob Killian, her son, forty years old

Geo. Lovy, Mrs. Killian's grandson, twenty years old.

Lena Mitchell, twenty-four years old.

Annie Appleblat, twenty-four years old.

George Friedmann, four years old.

Levy Friedmann, three years old.

INJURED.

Lena Friedmann, mother of the dead children, fatally injured.

The policeman who was first on the scene bravely rescued many endangered lives.

"THE FAREWELL."

Henry Bender, Fritz Conde, Henry Meyer, Miss Meyer, George Bramer, John Reitzler, P. Postler, C. Felbert, Jacob Schlick, Henry Wedemeyer.

The play, of course, was the chief feature of the evening. Seidel and Stolle were two traveling men who went to the same hotel. Wedemeyer retired first to the room with two beds and opened a snoring concert. Stolle was assigned to the same room and found that it would be impossible to sleep during the concert.

Dramatic action began when Stolle aroused the snorer and the two commenced to quarrel. Interest increased when the discovery was made that both had married the same woman. It seemed that Stolle had been the first husband and had escaped from home by leaving his old clothes by the side of the river and running away in his new suit. After the "widow" had mourned awhile Seidel had married here.

The discussion in the double-bedded room was growing intensely interesting when the porter arrived with telegrams telling of the wife's death. Seidel and Stolle agreed to divide her fortune and became the best of friends.

The other numbers of the programme, especially the tableaux, were greatly appreciated. Dancing began at the close of the entertainment and lasted till after 1.

CHURCH CHIMES.

The site of the proposed parsonage of the German Reformed Church has not yet been selected. Duer street is the locality preferred by many.

The nine new members who joined the German Reformed Church Sunday night made a total of 20 who have been converted by the preaching of Rev. George Hauser.

—"Where did you get it?" "Oh, I was in Peck's store getting some of those nice stockings they always have there, when my eye lighted on it." "Well, I shall run down and see if I can get one. Peck always has such lovely things, and they are so seasonable."

WASHINGTON.

OUR IMMORTAL PATRIOT COMING AGAIN TO PLAINFIELD.

Following His Footsteps We All May Learn New Inspiration to Higher Living and Nobler Endeavor.

The immortal Washington will stand before Plainfield people in a newer light next Monday. On that night we shall all have opportunity to follow in his footsteps. H. H. Ragan, whom we love so well for the many pleasant journeys he has taken us in the past, will personally conduct us over the sacred paths the Father of His Country trod. Not the least of the delights will be the pause at our own beloved Plainfield, where the Rock and the Harberger House will be depicted. The famous church of our neighbor Springfield, the memorable headquarters at Morristown, the entire story of the retreat through the Jerseys, will be brought vividly before us in Mr. Ragan's matchless style.

The Washington lecture was given its first public hearing in Dubuque, Iowa, Oct. 22, and the Dubuque Daily Times of the succeeding issue says:

To say that the audience was delighted is putting it very mildly. There is probably no lecturer before the public today who meets the requirements and satisfies the people as does Mr. Ragan. It has ever been his aim to deserve the public's favor by giving to it the very best of which he is capable by making his lectures of the very highest character and by steadily improving upon himself. Instead of gathering his material second-hand he has invariably done his traveling in person, making his observations on the spot—not in the library—and procuring his information from original sources.

The lecture was in every sense a remarkable one. The views thrown upon the canvas were excellent. They set off the descriptions of the speaker admirably, and embraced scenes and localities in which the commander figured years ago. They were made by Mr. Ragan himself last Summer, and the nooks and crevices wherever the memory of the immortal savior of his country still lingers in historic annals, or in traditions of the people, were reproduced for the edification of those who will probably never have a chance to see them in reality.

Starting with the church in which are buried the mortal remains of ancestors of George Washington, the views took in all the places made familiar by history, as well as dozens of places which have never been recorded or described by the historian and yet which had important part to play in the great drama of the revolution. The perils of the first important mission of Washington bearing a message to the French commandant through the lead of winter in the pathless forest to the joining place of the Allegheny and Monongahela, where Pittsburg now stands, the house in which George Washington lived when a boy and the fireplace before which he toasted his shins and dreamed of his future life, the house in which he first met Martha Curtis, the Chew mansion at Germantown in which the obstinate companies of British decided the battle, the house in which Cornwallis's terms of surrender were made, the home at Mt. Vernon and the room in which his dying hours were spent—all these and dozens of others of more historical importance and yet no greater interest were flashed upon the canvas, and to the accompaniment of the splendid delivery and finished sentences of Mr. Ragan seemed to bring the listeners closer to the great leader and see more clearly into his virtues than ever before. In the delivery of such a lecture as "The Footprints of George Washington" Mr. Ragan deserves the thanks of the public as an educator. His lecture itself is an epitome of the leader's life that forms a rare and lasting portraiture. One hardly knows whether the views form an accompaniment to the lecture or the lecture to the views. A double interest is awakened through the coupling of the ways to appeal to the senses of the mind—through the ear and eyes—and the impression thus made is more permanent than were the lecture devoid of views, or were the views accompanied by a mediocre lecture.

Small Damage, Much Excitement.

A horse owned by R. V. Saums of Evona ran away across town shortly after 6 last evening. Mr. Saums was left behind on Fifth street near the Scott Press Works. The horse went on with the wagon, spilled the tools along Fifth street, and ran to Plainfield avenue, to Fourth street and turned down Grant avenue. At the corner of South Second street Lawrence Miner stopped the horse. The only damage was a broken rear wheel.

Boat-Building Geniuses.

Benjamin O. Bowers, Jr., of Franklin place, assisted by George Bull, is constructing a fine folding canoe for use in Canadian woods next Summer. It is so constructed that it can be packed in two canvas cases four feet long. Master Bowers is also building a large catboat for cruising in Long Island Sound.

STATE BAPTISTS HERE.

Holding Their Annual Convention in Plainfield.

OF COURSE THEY LIKE THE TOWN.

And They're Going to Enjoy Two Days of It Between Business Sessions—What Was Done in Teday's Proceedings — Dr. Yerkes Gives Cordial Greeting.

Representative New Jersey Baptists filled Plainfield today. Delegates to the meetings of the New Jersey Baptist State Convention and their Education Society began to arrive last night. All the trains this morning brought more and a steady stream of men and women flowed from the North Avenue station to the First Baptist Church for several hours.

By noon, when nearly all had arrived, the church contained over 600 people Of these only a very small proportion were Plainfielders. The delegates numbered perhaps 500 About the pulpit had been arranged tasteful decorations of chrysanthemums, cosmos, ferns, palms and smilax. At the left of the organ hung a large colored map of New Jersey.

The opening session of the Convention's sixty-fifth annual meeting began this morning at 9:15 with devotional services conducted by Rev. E. S. Fitz, of Cape May, the topic being "The Holy Spirit our source of strength". President F. W. Ayres of Camden being absent, Rev. George E Horr, of Bergen Point, a vice-president, took the chair at the business session. Rev. C A Cook, of Bloomfield, was secretary.

The delegates were given a cordial welcome to Plainfield and Plainfield's First Baptist Church by the local pastor, Rev. Dr D J Yerkes. In the course of his remarks he tenderly referred to the noble Christian men who had passed on to their reward since the convention first assembled in his church. Chairman Horr responded with hearty thanks to the church and their pastor who were entertaining them.

The following temporary committees were then appointed:

Nominating Committee—W. W. Case, E. J. Brockett, P. R. Letson, Hon. James Buchanan, H. A. Greisemer, A. H. Sembourne, J. E. Sagebeer.

Enrollment Committee—H. G. McKean, W. H. Shermer, J. E. Dyer, T. E. Vassar, J. D. Crumley.

Place and Preachers Committee—J. C. Buchanan, C. E. Cordo, J. W. Lyell.

Auditing Committee—W. A. May, L. E. Marsh.

A report on the adoption of a new constitution was presented by Rev. Dr. A. G. Lawson of Camden. Several important changes in various details were recommended. The work of the publication society of the denomination was reported by Rev. Dr. J. A. Chambliss of East Orange.

The different departments of the work described were the Sunday-school and Bible, the missionary and the publishing. The committees in charge of each were read by the chairman, showing the earnest workers who were engaged in the different divisions. The temperance branch of the State organization was represented by Rev. J. M. Hare of Burlington, who suggested in his report that the committee be discontinued as nothing had been accomplished during the year. Others of the committee joined him in advocating the abolishing of their body as a standing committee.

Rev. H. M. Lowry of Rahway, son of Rev. Dr. Robert Lowry of Park avenue, presented an interesting report of the home mission department, in which he carefully covered the whole field of labor. His report was followed up by a short instructive address on the same subjects by Rev. Halsey Moore of New York, District Secretary of the Home Missionary Society, who spoke in place of Rev. E. B Palmer of Philadelphia, who was not present.

The report of the constitution committee being again brought up, a discussion began in regard to the changing of the name of the convention from the "New Jersey Baptist State Convention" to the "New Jersey Baptist Convention". It was claimed that this change would destroy the charter issued by the State in the old name. The committee claimed on the other hand that they were simply changing the by-law in which the name of the organization was given.

The new constitution also provided that the delegates include all of the pastors of the State, all members of executive boards, and one delegate for every 100 church members. Under the old rules only pastors from contributing churches were delegates ex-officio.

The first articles of the constitution containing these changes were passed, to come up for final adoption at the reading of the constitution as a whole.

The reading of the next article started a spirited debate. The committee wished to place new men in the Governing Board without changing the number, 21. To do this they proposed to retire the members in regular order as their terms ended. This met with the opposition of Judge James Buchanan of Trenton, for three terms a Mercer County Congressman.

The judge said he had been approached by men who wished to get on the board, and that he thought it might be wise to have some of them in office. He did object, however, to having them displace such tried and experienced men as there were on the board, among them Rev. Dr. Yerkes, who had studied the field and knew the State from one end to the other. It would be better to increase the size from 21 to 30 members.

Rev. D. Dewolf of Newark, Superintendent of Missions, took the side of the committee, although he thought it might be well to add the nine members. He thought that while men in the board could point to their 25 or 40 years of experience there were others, equally competent, who could claim an office because they had been 25 or 40 years on the outside. What the convention needed most was an enlarged constituency, and by bringing in new men from churches heretofore uninterested this would be accomplished.

A few others gave their opinions and noon arrived before the question had been thoroughly debated. After half an hour of talk it was finally decided to lay the matter over.

The meeting was adjourned at 12:30, until tomorrow morning at 9 Rev J. B. L'Hommedieu of Newark pronounced the benediction. An afternoon session will also be held tomorrow.

Just before noon the minutes of the previous meeting arrived. They had been shipped by express, addressed to the church, and had been making a tour of the city in one of the express wagons.

After eating dinner at the home of hospitable Plainfielders the delegates returned to the church and at 2 this afternoon the meeting of the Baptist Education Society of the State was opened. Rev W E Staub led the fifteen-minute devotional exercises with which the meeting began.

Rev. E. T. Tomlinson, Ph. D., of Elizabeth, the president of the society, was the chairman. He proceeded at once to open the transaction of business.

After the visitors had been received at 2:30 President Tomlinson appointed the following committees:

Nomination Committee—W. G Russell, P R. Letson, H. B. Zimmerman, W. W. Case, C. C Tilley, H. F. Stillwell, H. C. Albert.

Enrollment Committee—Frank Gardiner, G. K. Allen, T. B. Pope, H. Cross, J. G. Dyer.

Place and Preachers Committee—D. T. MacClymont, Frank Fletcher, W. W. Pratt, M. M. Finch, C. H. Runyon.

Committee on the death of the president preceding the present officer—Rev. Dr. W. H. Parmley of Jersey City, Theodore Heisig, G. E. Horr, O. P. Eeches.

35 TO 150.

HOW QUEEN CITY HAS GROWN IN THREE SHORT YEARS.

Last Night She Celebrated the Event in Joyous Fashion—Odd Fellows Are Good Fellows.

Queen City Lodge, No. 226, I. O. O. F., had 35 members when the charter was received three years ago. Now there are 150 Most of these and many of their women friends and relatives gathered in their hall on West Second street last evening to celebrate the third anniversary.

Noble Grand J. E Mosher was master of ceremonies. Under his direction Herman Ellis of Elizabethport conducted the singing of the opening ode. The Noble Grand then welcomed the guests with a neat speech. N. H Guttman's orchestra played a long selection next. Judge Mosher introduced the visitor of the evening, Grand Master of New Jersey F. W. Tussy of Camden.

P. Ludwig Conde, the bridegroom violinist, played an excellent selection on the violin. Mr. Ellis made a hit with a comic song, Mrs. Ellis accompanying him on the piano. Miss Clum delighted the audience with a recitation. Guttman's orchestra played again and Master Ford recited a spirited selection. Mr. Ellis sang and Miss Clum recited again and the programme ended.

Ice-cream and cake were the refreshments served. For an hour the people remained to eat and talk before leaving the scene of the celebration. They had been entertained by Committeemen T. C. Smith, E. W. Titsworth, and Charles DeGraw.

HIGH SCHOOL NOTEBOOK

Superintendent Maxson announced this morning in morning exercises that some friend of the school had offered three prizes for the three best essays on the subject "The Use and Abuse of Tobacco" particularly in the form of cigarettes. The essays will be due Dec. 10, and the High School pupils may write on this subject as their regular monthly essay. The first prize will be five dollars, the second three dollars, and the third two dollars. The contest will be open to any member of the High or Grammar School.

—The finder of a pair of gold spectacles will be rewarded by returning them to The Daily Press.

AN ODD STORY.

"Do you mean to say you never did it?"

"No, never."

Her friend laughed a pretty, naive laugh, with whole volumes of confession in it, writes Nora Vynne.

"Oh, yes, I know," the other answered the laugh; "why not, if you felt the inclination? There is no particular harm in it. Some girls do and some girls don't, and the girls who do are probably just as good as the girls who don't. It isn't a question of morals, merely of manner."

There was a long pause. The girl who had spoken last slipped her canoe paddle into the water, and they dropped gently down stream under the willows, watching the lights in the windows of the pretty country house where they were stopping. Presently the naive girl put the companion question:

"Did you never even want to? Not even when the man was nice?"

"No. Now I think of it, yes; but not because the man was nice."

"If you are going to tell me," the naive girl said, laughing again, "that you wanted to kiss a man just because he was not nice I shall believe you, for that would be so very characteristic."

"It was something like that each time," the serious girl said. "I have wanted to kiss men—twice; but I have never done it. When one feels deeply, you see, it is always difficult to express one's self, and I remember I wanted to kiss very much then. I was in a little German town. There was a man staying there whose face was frightfully disfigured, and one side of it had been shot away. I won't describe it. The other side was quite beautiful. He was a tall, well made man, with very delicate hands and a big diamond ring. He used to go about holding a handkerchief to the disfigured side. We often met him. If he was playing with his big dog or putting on a coat, or doing anything that required two hands, and some one passed the white handkerchief and the white hand and the diamond ring would go up to his face in a flash. He was not staying at our hotel; he had been there, but there was a lady—very rich, and with a large family—who complained to the landlord about him. She said that she was very sensitive, indeed, and that she could not run the risk of meeting him on the stairs. She threatened to leave with all her family, so the disfigured man had to go. They didn't like to have him in the other hotels. He was lodging in the lower end of the town when we were there. People said hard things about him of his character. Said he went about with doubtful persons. I didn't wonder; bad people are rarely so cold hearted as good people—sensitive I should say. Of course, we didn't know him, but sometimes I would have liked to have told him how I despised that sensitive woman.

"One day he came to our hotel to pay a farewell visit to some men he knew, students who were leaving the university. They had the sort of banquet of sweet wine and sticky candy that Germans love. I suppose he had been long enough abroad to tolerate it. They sang songs, students' choruses, and were exceedingly happy; I heard him singing as I came upstairs. Such a voice! He was enjoying himself, and had quite forgotten there were such things as sensitive women in the world. He came out of the room as I passed; he had a big bundle of papers and books in one hand and a basket of fruit in the other. He saw a woman—a sensitive creature, you know—and he stopped dead short. He had no hand free to cover his face. He shrank back against the wall, staring at me; his eyes begged me, for God's sake, not to scream or faint. I wanted very much to kiss him then."

"And did you not?"

"No; I was under the impression then that I was quite a plain girl. I thought he might not care about it."

"I think he would have hated it, but not for that reason. And the next time?"

"I had a friend once—two years before I met you. I was very fond of him; we used to talk together about everything in the world. Remember I said my friend—not lover—but we did love each other in the way of friendship. His brilliancy, his gentleness, his fits of depression, even his weaknesses, were pleasant to me. I used to say I would do anything in the world for him except marry him, and he was not going to ask me that. It did not seem possible that I should ever stop loving him, but I think now that there was an undercurrent of distrust in my love all the time. One night we were at a party together. A certain great lady was present. She had been more kind to me than I can say, and I loved her—hero-worship would be a better word. That very day some silly mischief maker had made her believe that I had acted most rudely and ungratefully toward her.

"My feelings toward that woman were so strong that it would not have been possible for me to have had any motive for rudeness toward her; but, of course, she did not know this, and I could not tell her. She denounced me before people very emphatically—you must remember she was as impulsive as she was generous, and she thought I had behaved very badly. The man was present—they had come up from the supper room—and her hand was on his arm. He took my part quite nicely. 'Well, as she doesn't seem to know what it is all about, we will spare her life this time,' he said, and he took her on upstairs. Some man took me down to supper. I tried to enjoy myself and could not, I had been hurt. Later on my friend came and joined me. He said I looked tired, and asked if I would like to go home; and I said yes and he took me. I was so glad to get away alone with him; I wanted to tell him how I loved that woman, how much she had done for me, and how nothing on earth could have made me act as she supposed I had done. He kept changing the subject. I think he was afraid that I should cry—but he was very kind and good; very sympathetic. He spoke about my stories and the folly of trying to do three days' work in one, and told me of new friends of his whom he wanted me to know. I was very pleased with him for leaving the pleasant party so soon, to take a dull girl home.

"We got to my door and began to say good-night. We were generally a long time saying good-night—that night he was just a little quicker than usual. It was very dark; but I could see his face and the outline of his shoulders. He held my hand loosely, saying something pleasant. Then I longed to take him around the neck and draw his face to mine and kiss him once, and then say: 'Go. Go now, while I love you. Go before the time comes when I shall despise you. Let this be for good-by.' I shall always grudge that lost kiss."

"Did you speak?"

"Yes, the time came—I told you it was two years ago."—New Orleans Picayune

WRITERS AND ARTISTS.

Interesting Notes of Those Who Wield Pen or Brush.

Dr. Conan Doyle says that the first words he ever uttered were, "Please tell me a story?" There's precocity for you.

Mrs. Frances Hodgson Burnett is laconically described in an article on women writers, as "the mother of two sons and twenty-two novels."

Considering the vast amount of fiction she has produced, it is not surprising to learn that Miss Braddon began to write at the tender age of eight years. At twelve she had ready for the publisher a historical novel, a tale of domestic life, an Eastern story and a romance of the Hartz Mountains.

Many obituary sketches of the late Mrs. Celia Thaxter asserted that she married her guardian. The fact is that Mr. Thaxter was a college student when, happening to visit the Isle of Shoals, he fell in love with the lightkeeper's daughter, who became the distinguished poetess.

Munkacsy, the Hungarian artist, has passed the summer at his home in the Grand Duchy of Luxemburg working on a large canvas representing a strike in Paris. He has had great difficulty in procuring models, and for that purpose found it necessary to go into the industrial towns of Belgium and Lorraine to make sketches, and even into the reputed haunts of the Anarchists.

An Unexpected Confession.

Clarence Templeton and Clara Katchum were seated together on the moonlit beach.

Their acquaintance was one of but three weeks' standing, and yet in that short period of time they had been almost constantly together. Clara thought she saw the opportunity that she had longed for in her dreams, and had been shrewdly developing her hand.

The time had arrived for prompt and decisive action.

"So you leave for the city to-morrow, Mr. Templeton?" she said, with assumed indifference.

"Yes," he replied thoughtfully, "and although it may seem paradoxical, I am both sorry and glad."

"We shall all miss you so much," she continued. "You have contributed so inestimably to the success of our hops and other entertainments that it will be indeed hard to exist without you. But I don't think I exactly comprehend your meaning when you say you are both sorry and glad to leave. Haven't you enjoyed yourself here?"

"Indeed I have," responded Clarence, heartily, "for you girls have certainly made it most enjoyable for me. I shall miss the round of gayety and these delightful informal tete-a-tetes very much. It is on this account that I am sorry to leave."

"Then why are you glad you are going?" interrogated Clara, with feminine inquisitiveness, not particularly pleased with the turn things were taking.

"Well," replied Clarence, as he gazed abstractedly at the moon-besparkled water, "we have been good friends, Miss Katchum, "and there can be no harm in my intrusting you with the reason for my desire to leave, inasmuch as I depart to-morrow. On the day after I meet at the pier the steamer upon which are those I hold most dear in life—my wife and children, who have been visiting at her old home in England, and"—

An interesting feature of the increased demand for flags since the war is the fact that everybody now wants to be sure that the flag he is buying contains exactly the right number of stars. A flag manufacturer says that while before the war people were not particular about this, they look to it now every time.

In Italy there is a Government fund for providing marriage portions for poor young girls. Every year $2,000,000 is thus distributed. The applicant must prove that she is of good character, has no means, and that the young man who wishes to marry her has a trade.

In Illinois a law was enacted last year prohibiting the employment of any alien as a peace officer, or as a deputy sheriff, special constable, or special policeman in any part of that State, or by any of its local authorities. All persons thus employed must be American citizens, and must have been actual residents for one year of the county in which they may be employed.

The War Record of Ancient Days.

In primitive times, when man went into the fight, it is hardly supposable that anything like a roster was kept, no army bulletin printed, "dead, missing, wounded." According to tradition, the method employed to record the losses in battle was simple. Before going into the fight every man took a stone and deposited it in a heap. After the battle the survivors took away each one a stone. Nothing was easier than to count these stones which were uncalled for. The remainder showed the loss of life.

STORY TELLING AT THE ALDINE.

Bill Nye Tells Frank Stockton and Others Some Stories.

A company of artists, writers and publishers gathered at the Aldine Club one evening to smoke and listen to stories. Among the story tellers were Bill Nye, Frank R. Stockton, F. Hopkinson Smith, Dr. Henry Van Dyke, and John Kendrick Bangs.

Mr. Appleton opened the evening, when the smoke had got sufficiently thick, by introducing Bill Nye. Nye told a story of a preacher friend of his in Indianapolis who was named Dr. Reed. This Dr. Reed has also been in Congress. One Sunday morning he was opening the service in his church with the customary prayer. While he was in the midst of the praying a man entered the church and took a seat far back.

Dr. Reed was praying in a low voice, and the man in the rear, after straining his ears for a while, called out: "Pray louder, Dr. Reed; I can't hear you." Dr. Reed paused, opened his eyes, turned them around the church until they rested upon the man in the rear, then he said: "I was not addressing you, sir; I was speaking to God."

After a while Nye told another. "I have often been asked," said he, "whether I had any pathetic experiences in the West. I recall this in connection with a theatre out there, not a very high class theatre, but one of those where you go in, pay for your drink, and get the performance for nothing. Well, there was a girl doing a sort of ballet at this theatre. She had a husband who was a tough character, quite remorseless. He had moved several times during his life and always carried his cemetery with him, as it were. It was pretty well understood that when he caught up with his wife, who did the ballet, there would be an unpleasantness. Well, I heard a good deal about this lady, and one night I went to see her and sat with all the prominent citizens. We all had our hats on. The lady came out and was doing her part to my satisfaction. I heard some one coming down the aisle and then felt a hand resting on my shoulder. I heard a click and looked around. I recognized that the man with his hand on my shoulder was the husband. He drew a revolver and pointed it. The orchestra stopped. Then the girl stopped. Then the manager stepped up and said: 'What's the matter here?' And the man said: 'I am the matter.' The manager asked him what he wanted, and he said: 'I want my wife.' The manager said: 'You can't have her,' and stepped to the wings to get something. Just at this point I withdrew. As I passed out I turned my head and saw the manager and the husband exchange regrets. Then the husband dropped to the sawdust. I hastened on out, and went away—about a mile or so—then I turned back, and as I entered the town I met the manager coming out of a saloon. He said: 'Mr. Nye, you left us early this evening.' I said, 'Yes,' He said, 'You oughtn't to have left in the best part of the whole performance."

THE GHAZELS OF HAFIZ.

How the Nightingale's Love of the Rose is Told.

The songs or "ghazels" of Hafiz, the renowned Persian poet, have been rendered into English by Mr. Justin Huntly McCarthy. The familiar story of the love of the nightingale for the rose, told in one of the ghazels, is thus rendered:

"I went forth into the garden to gather the rose of the morning, when, on a sudden, sounded in my ears the song of the nightingale. Unhappy as myself, tortured with his passion for the rose, he filled the sward with the voice of his wailing. Long I paced the walks of the garden considering the case of the rose and the nightingale. The rose became the friend of the thorn, while the nightingale was still the constant lover—the one is ever unaltered, the other changeful. The voice of the nightingale pierced my heart until I was so stirred that I lost all power of patience. Many a rose hath bloomed in this garden, yet no one hath plucked a rose without being wounded by its thorn! O Hafiz! cherish no hope of happiness in this world, for with its thousand imperfections it can display no perfect excellence.

One of the Peculiarities.

The city man with a sun blister on his nose was sitting on the bank of a stream dangling a $25 fishing outfit in the water, when a boy with a pin hook and a string of fish came along and stopped to look at him a minute.

"Say, boy," he called up the road, "is there any place around here where a man can catch any fish?"

"No," replied the boy, "but there's plenty where a boy kin," and he grinned and went on his way.—Detroit Free Press.

PRACTISING.

I.

Ten little troublesome fingers,
Ten little finger-nails
Pattering on the piano,
Scattering over the scales;
Clicking and clacking and clattering,
Each in the other one's way;
What trying and sighing and crying
To teach the little children to play!

II.

To play? I call it working,
When ten little fingers like mine
Are bumping and clumping and thumping,
And never will fall into line.
They fumble and tumble and stumble,
They trip and they skip and they hop,
And just when the music is gayest
They come to an obstinate stop.

III.

Do you think that mamma's pretty fingers
That sparkle and dance on the keys
While the music is rippling below them,
Were ever as clumsy as these?
I would work, I would patiently practice,
How patiently! day after day,
If I thought that my practice and patience
Would end in such beautiful play.
—Eliza Chester.

HOW THEY ARE TRAINED.

Familiarity with One Another the Secret of the Docility of Animals.

Hagenbeck's trained animals were one of the popular sights on the Midway Plaisance, Chicago. The idea of lion taming in its present state is a very modern one indeed. In the old days when a man went into a small cage with a lion and made him leap over a hurdle or put his head into the brute's mouth it was an easy task compared with that which the trainers who are with the Hagenbeck aggregation daily perform with the various animals. Formerly this work was done in a small cage, where the trainer stood with his back against a sliding door, and where he was watched from the front by an attendant with an iron rod. With Hagenbeck's animals, however, the case is entirely different, as the performances are given in a huge iron cage fifty feet in diameter, and such is the nature of the performances that it is impossible for a man to always keep his eye on any particular animal.

The happy families of the old circus sink into insignificance when one thinks that Nubian lions, Thibet bears, polar bears, leopards, tigers, hyenas and boar hounds are all together in one immense cage and assist each other in performing various acts. One can hardly estimate the amount of patience required to teach a Nubian lion to sit upon a chariot, holding in his teeth the reins, and drive before this chariot two Bengal tigers, while two magnificent specimens of Stuttgart boar hounds ride behind as footmen. But this is done simply by getting these animals thoroughly acquainted with each other. When not appearing on the stage they are kept together in a menagerie. This is a notable fact in the cases of the equestrian lion Black Prince and of the lioness Princess Helena. For a horse to allow a lion to ride on his back is about as difficult a task to accomplish as it is to get the lion on the horse's back. The horses are not taken out of the theater at night, as is customary in most theatrical companies where horses are used, but, on the contrary, the horses Columbus and Lulu, who are used for the equestrian act, are stabled directly opposite their companions' cage in the big menagerie. Thus from one year's end to the other they never lose sight of each other and become thoroughly accustomed to being together.

LIVES IN AN OAK TREE.

Eccentric Old Tom Rogers Built Himself a House and Doesn't Have to Pay Rent.

An eccentric old fellow in Louisiana, Tom Rogers by name, has his home in a tree. This quaint domicile is perched among the low and larger branches of an immense white oak on the Calcasieu River, near Lake Charles.

While necessarily constructed in a rambling and circular manner in order to obtain a suitable foundation for a chamber of comfortable size, it shows ingenious design and much strength. So strongly and compactly is it built that it seems almost a part of the tree, and there would be little danger of its destruction except by fire or the uprooting of the monarch oak by a storm. It is several miles from any other habitation and is well adapted to the solitary life chosen by the strange old hermit.

He cultivates a few acres of land to meet his simple wants, and the adjacent river and forest afford him an ample supply of fish and game for food and to sell in the town market. He never leaves his retreat except when compelled by his necessities to sell farm produce and game to supply him with food and clothing. On his trips to town he avoids all conversation, and to the country round about he is a veritable enigma.

Rogers is not the only person who lives in a tree, for in Southern Asia there is a whole race of tree-dwellers, whose ethnic traits afford an interesting study. They are diminutive in size, wild in habits, and inhabit the most secluded forests, subsisting upon the natural fruits and nuts to be found in that tropical region. In point of reason and intelligence they occupy the lowest status of humanity, being but little removed from the monkey tribes. They reach their rude houses by means of ladders made of bamboo vines, which they are said to climb with the agility of apes.

A Story with a Moral.

A story is told on a young society man of a neighboring county that might have been serious instead of ludicrous. He paid a visit to his best girl, and while getting out of his buggy both the suspender buttons on the rear of his trousers gave way. To prevent embarrassment a couple of matches were substituted for the treacherous buttons and all went well until, by friction against the back of the chair, the matches became ignited. A conflagration was narrowly averted, and the young man is not over his fright yet.—Winchester Democrat.

LIFE WAS A BURDEN.

A Pain-Racked Sufferer Tells an Interesting Story—How He Was Tortured for Years and Finally Cured by Munyon's Remedy.

Charles Wark of 14 N. Twenty-fourth St., Philadelphia, has been a constant sufferer from rheumatism for years. He was cured by the use of Munyon's Rheumatism Cure. This is his story:

"I was afflicted with rheumatism in the righ shoulder and suffered the most excruciating agony. Sharp shooting pains darted through it so intense I could not sleep night. Even the weight of the bedclothes was more than I could bear; neither could I lie on the right side or my back. Life became a perfect burden to me. I could not raise my hand to my head, and when I attempted to put on my coat or any article of dress the torture was enough to drive me wild. Many remedies were suggested and tried, but none did me the slightest good, and I began to despair of ever being able to obtain relief. Some time ago, however, I procured a bottle of Munyon's Rheumatism Cure. It afforded me relief after the first few doses, and by the time the little 25 cent bottle was gone I was entirely free from pain. I have had no return of my old enemy, and I feel satisfied I am permanently cured. It seems so wonderful I can hardly realize it, and can only show my appreciation of the merits of the Cure by recommending it to other sufferers."

Munyon's Rheumatism Cure is guaranteed to cure rheumatism in any part of the body. Acute or muscular rheumatism cured in from one to five days. It never fails to cure sharp, shooting pains in the arms, legs, sides back or breast, or soreness in any part of the body in from one to three hours. It is guaranteed to promptly cure lameness, stiff and swollen joints, stiff back, and all pains in the hips and loins. Chronic rheumatism, sciatica, lumbago or pain in the back are speedily cured.

Munyon's Homoepathic Home Remedy Company, of Philadelphia, put up specifics for nearly every disease, which are sold by all druggist, mostly for 25 cents a bottle.

AN EARLY BANKNOTE.

It Was Made in 1699 for £555, and Paid in Installments.

The earliest banknote in the possession of the Bank of England is one dated December 19, 1699, for £555. It is printed from an engraved plate, but it has blanks for the amount, date, number and signature. Across it are written memoranda showing that it was repaid in three installments. In appearance it is not altogether unlike the modern note. It is noticeable particularly that in the words, "For the Govr. and Compa.," the word "company" is thus abbreviated, and not into "compy," which would be more in accordance with the usual practice. In the bank library is another note for £25, which was not presented for 111 years. Another curiosity, said to be unique, is a note for no less than a million sterling, dated 1782. Only four for such an amount have ever been issued. A singular use was made of a £5 note, now in the bank archives, which bears the following indorsement:

"If this note gets into the hands of John Dear, of Longhill, near Carlisle, his brother, Andrew, is prisoner in Algiers." This was copied into a Carlisle paper, by which means John Dear became aware of his unfortunate kinsman's fate. There is a pathetic interest, in the light of subsequent events, in the following indorsement on a £1,000 note by the gallant Cochrane, Lord Dundonald, who was absolved after his death of the crime of which he had been adjudged guilty in his lifetime: "My health having suffered from long and close confinement, and my oppressors having resolved to deprive me of property or life, I submit to robbery to protect myself from murder, in the hope that I shall live to bring the delinquent to justice.—Cochrane."—Strand Magazine.

STRUCK FOR LONGER HOURS.

Not Located, But Well Vouched For. Possibly a Misprint.

It has been customary for many people to consider the Southern laborer as slow, lazy and shiftless, yet no stranger could enter one of the mills or pass a day in the pine timber woods without being surprised by the vigor with which work is performed.

Work has become an instinct; the laborer knows but four conditions—eating, sleeping, working, and after pay day a carousal or absolute idleness.

A curious story of the strike is told of one of the mills. The hours of labor are long—from dawn to twilight. In the winter the hours are fewer, but in summer the saws are buzzing and the whole community alive and at work before the sun has touched the treetops.

A Northern foreman of philanthropic principles took charge of a certain mill and sorrowed within his heart for the poor fellows wearing out their lives with the canthook and saw. So he decreed that from seven in the morning to six in the afternoon should constitute the labor of a day.

There was a murmur in the camp, and in two days a general strike. Called upon for reasons, the spokesman stated the case of the men:

"We all jus' doan like dis yar gwine ter wuk at seben o'clock. Wha's de use ob sittin' aroun' fer two hours in de mawnin' 'fo' gwine to wuk? We jus' ain' gwine to stan' it, dat's all."

So the strike was declared off by the superintendent agreeing to allow the men to go to work at dawn and keep at it as long as they could see.—Engineering Magazine.

The Old Men of To-Day.

This is supposed to be the era of young men, but the truth is there were never more famous old men on deck than we have to-day.

Mr. Gladstone is 85 and M. Jules Simon is 80. Both are physically strong and active, and they are now doing some of their best work.

Donaldo, when past 90 and utterly blind, stormed Constantinople. Titian was painting his finest pictures when he died in his 100th year. Sir Isaac Newton was president of the Royal Society at the age of 83, and Landor finished his "Imaginary Conservations" at the age of 89. Brougham was a strong debater at 80, and Lyuhurst when over 90 spoke in the House of Lords. Franklin was Governor of Pennsylvania at the age of 82, and we now have Morrill in the Senate at 84 and Oliver Wendell Holmes who died at the age of 85, was as brilliant as ever.

Not His Kind.

Fontleroy (in the park)—Little boy, wouldn't you like to come up to our house and play?

Swipes of Bleecker street (whose years are six)—Whatju play—craps?

Fontleroy—O, dear, no.

Swipes—Gotter pistol an' play Injuns?

Fontleroy—No.

Swipes—Swipe your ole man's ciggerroots an' smoke 'em in de alley?

Fontleroy—No, indeed.

Swipes—What do youse play, anyhow?

Fontleroy—We play croquet, and we have a lovely kitten and——

Swipes—Ah; g'wry, sissy. You don't know nothin' 'bout playin'. Youse should die an' jine a angel band, you should.—N.Y. World.

Probably a Comparison.

Bank—Rivers have you ever taken off your summer underwear and put on your winter flannels?

Rivers—Of course I have.

Banks (scratching himself against the door frame)—Then you have some idea of what I'm suffering.

Rivers—Did you ever put on your winter flannels just after you had taken two large porous plasters off your back?

Bank—I don't remember that I ever did.

Rivers (picking up a large steel rasp from his desk and loosening his collar at the back)—Then you haven't the faintest idea, confound you of what I'm suffering.—Chicago Tribune.

No Doubt About It.

Hearing a faint rustle in the darkened hallway below, the elder sister, supposing the young man had gone, leaned over the ballustrade and called out:

"Well, Bessie, have you landed him?

There was a deep, sepulchral silence for some moments.

It was broken by the hesitating, constrained voice of the young man:

"She has."

Somewhat Squeezed.

"Yes," she mused. "I'm almost sure he loves me. At least, it looks to me that when a young man squeezes a girl's hand so hard that she can't run her typewriter next morning he must mean business.—Indianapolis Journal.

SUBMERGED ANTICS.

EATING, DRINKING, AND SLEEPING AMONG THE FISHES.

Surprising Aquatic Feats of James Finney, an English Swimmer, and His Sister Marie Who Are Now in This Country.

James Finney, so named without reference to his peculiar calling, and his sister Marie, subjects of Great Britain, are surprising Americans and gathering coin by means of some wonderful performances beneath the waves of a huge tank.

Running up a small ladder the Finneys glide headforward into the water, and from this moment every movement is a revelation of the grace possible to a swimmer. There is scarcely a ripple, as they dart from end to end of the tank, now at the surface, next at the bottom, circling under and over each other, but never brushing hand or foot in the narrow space. No globe holds goldfish that possess more perfect control of themselves than do the swimmers,

They seem to have stolen the very motion of the fishes themselves. There are no strokes of the arms, no kicks with the feet. The arms are often held full length at the side of the swimmer, only the hands moving, and these with the exact motion of a fish's fins. The feet, too, crossed most of the time, are used to guide the body as a fish does its tail, while simply raising or lowering the head seems to cause the swimmer to sink to the bottom or rise to the surface.

And what a length of time they swim under water! The spectator almost feels a sense of suffocation in sympathy and anticipates their gasp for breath when at last they rise to air. But the Finneys neither gasp or sputter, nor toss the water from their heads, nor do any of those things so common to swimmers after having been under water for even a second. They show no more signs of exertion than if they had been sitting placidly in a chair.

The real exhibition of staying powers come after Miss Finney has given diver and sundry exhibitions of graceful feats, and her brother has eaten cake and drank milk at the bottom of the tank, and both have waltzed and played cards together.

James announces that he is going to take a nap. Submerging his body to the level of the chin, resting one arm on the surface of the water, and lowering the other at an angle from the body, he holds for several minutes this pose, which the spectators is apt to think is merely for effect. In reality the man is filling every air chamber in his body. He does this by a series of short breaths then one long inhalation until his lungs are comfortably filled; not to a point that becomes exertion. Then, sinking slowly to the bottom, he rests his head on his hand, closes his eyes and becomes motionless.

While he sleeps, his sister shows some feats of floating in the water above him, then pretends to awaken her brother. He brushes her aside, and she, rising to the surface, waits for him to join her.

Take out your watch and see how long you can hold your breath. See how painful it becomes after a few seconds, and then imagine the endurance of that man, who stays under water three minutes and from ten to twenty-five seconds at every performance, and who has a record of having remained below the surface four minutes, twenty-nine and a quarter seconds.

Marie Finney with all her skill and practice, can stay down only two and a half minutes.

Then follows another amazing exhibition. Who has not tried on Hallowe'en to take coin with the lips from a tub of water, the hands tied behind the back? James Finney sinks to the bottom of the tank and picks up between sixty and seventy coins for the entertainment of onlookers, and has a record of having gathered up eighty-eight coins in this manner.

And he declares that while under water for this length of time he rarely has any uncomfortable sensation and never anything more troublesome than a slight pressure around the throat. Nor has any accident ever befallen him in all his swimming experience. His opinion on one subject may interest ambitious amateurs. He says swimmers are born, not made, and his conclusion is based on his experience with a younger brother, on whom he has worked his hardest, but cannot make an expert.

The Contented Masses.

Octave Thanet's instructive article on "The Contented Masses," in the October Forum, is not calculated to please Mr. Debs. She says that Mr. Howell's traveller from Altruria, before he shakes the dust of our country from his feet and goes away to weep over us, should come for a brief space to a Western town. There he might find manufacturers who voluntarily advance wages, and workingmen who voluntarily work overtime. . . . It is founded on the rights of the individual rather than those of the community; it has no sympathy with socialistic dreams: it is just a Western town of honest, hardworking, kindly, decently selfish men and women who are not working for the golden age of brotherhood, but to provide for their families; yet nowhere do I know of any place where there is less friction between the classes or where all classes help each other more along our checkered road."

Darky In the Dark.

For some years after the war, the colored people of Fairmont, W. Va., had the service of white people as superintendents and teachers in their Sunday schools. The illiteracy of the pupils made it necessary to begin with the rudiments of language instruction before much could be done in the way of Bible study.

One day while the primary class stood before a large chart on which were printed words of one syllable, the teacher pointed to the word it, and slowly spelling it, it, asked the class to say it after her. One of the scholars, a man of perhaps fifty, interrupting, said:

"Sah, I sees de I and I sees de t, but I can't see de it."—Youths Companion.

Making a Good Matter Worse.

"Forgive me," he pleaded contritely. "I didn't mean to kiss you, but the impulse was irresistible."

"Forgive you," she snapped. "Never while I live! A girl may forgive a man for kissing her, but never for apologizing afterward."—Somerville Journal.

STORIES OF PROFESSOR SWING.

Wit and Human Nature in the Man All Chicago Thought Well Off.

A reporter who enjoyed the late Prof. Swing's acquaintance met him early one Sunday morning at the corner of North State and Division streets waiting for a car to take him to Central Music Hall. On that corner is a building, the windows of which bear the familiar legend, "Family Resort." Outside, a stairway leads to a basement, and on the iron guard rail around it sat Prof. Swing with coat-tails parted, complacently whittling a piece of wood. Directly in front of him stood a telegraph pole braced by a stout iron rod. It had rained the night before and water stood deep in the gutters. A party of small boys were tempting a ducking by swinging from the curb out round the iron brace and back again to the other side.

As the reporter approached Prof. Swing paused in his whittling and dryly remarked:

"I've been watching those boys swing around that iron rod, and I've been wondering if I could do it, too. Do you think I could? My name is Swing, you know, and I guess that iron is strong enough to hold me."

The reporter admitted he had no idea of the minister's athletic powers, but volunteered to try it in advance. He did so and stepped into the water.

"I can beat that, any way," remarked Prof. Swing. "You hold my knife and I'll show you."

He took a firm grasp of the rod, and out into a horizontal position flew his legs and coat-tails.

"There, what did I tell you?" he panted as he reached the curb safely. "I often had harder things to do than that."

Then the car came along and Prof. Swing proceeded to his duties in the Central Church.

One slippery winter morning Prof. Swing was sauntering slowly along Scott street near his home. The stone pavement was covered with ice from the falling sleet and pedestrians were generally choosing the safer footing of the roadway. Opposite Prof. Swing a woman who lived in the neighborhood was cautiously picking her way over the glare of ice. Suddenly the catastrophe came and without warning her feet flew out and she came down hard upon the sidewalk. Prof. Swing paused to satisfy himself that she was not seriously injured. Then he remarked:

"Mrs. S——, I think you are a very good woman."

Slightly piqued at his remark, and at the same time at her predicament, she retorted:

"I don't know why. What do you mean?"

"Scripture has it," gravely replied Prof. Swing, "that 'the wicked stand in slippery places.' You seem to be sitting down."

Another afternoon a reporter met Prof. Swing in a North Side car. It was during the last grand opera season.

"I'm going to dissipate a little this afternoon," was his remark. "I've been working hard this week, and I feel it is my right and privilege."

"What are you going to do?" we asked.

"I am going to the matinee," he replied.

"So am I," came the answer.

"Ah, well," exclaimed Prof. Swing warmly, "but you haven't seen my girls. What would 'Lucia di Lammermoor' be without them?"

Later the reporter saw the "girls." Early in the first act Prof. Swing walked down the aisle smiling and happy. Holding his hand on either side walked two pretty little girls, both under 15 years of age.—Chicago Daily Tribune.

Somewhat Like Home.

The man from Kansas was making a trip across the Atlantic, and during the passage the weather was extremely boisterous. One morning when it was blowing great guns the Kansas man appeared on deck. Nobody was in sight except the Captain.

"Go below there!" he shouted.

The passenger looked around to see who he was talking to.

"You mean me?" he yelled back when he saw there was no one else in sight.

"Of course I do; go below," and the Captain came alongside.

"Well, I guess not," protested the Kansan. "I'm up here to see how one of your 'mountain high' waves and 'terrific gales' compares with what we have in Kansas in the way of cyclones. This ain't a patch to what I've seen our way."

Before the Captain could offer further objection a big green wave came curling over the place where the passenger stood, and the next thing he knew he was swept off his feet and carried aft over ropes and boats and all the paraphernalia of a ship's deck and landed in a heap in one corner, where he was saved from being washed overboard. When they got him out he had a broken leg, a twisted shoulder a sprained wrist, his face looked as if it had been dragged backward through a briar patch, and he was unconscious. They carried him to the Captain's room, and after much effort restored him to consciousness. He gazed around a minute in bewilderment, and his eyes fell on the Captain.

"By gravy, Cap," he said feebly, "that reminded me of home, only it was a dern sight wetter."—Detroit Free Press.

ETIQUETTE OF INTRODUCTION.

Some General Points That Everybody Ought to Understand.

In point of precedence in presenting there is none: only the younger woman to the older, and a man to a woman, a professional man by his title. The woman in her own home should always shake hands when a guest is presented; men should shake each other's hands. The Southern fashion of a woman's extending her right hand to a man is charming. It is now carried out to some extent in New York.

At a ball the introduction should be distinctly formal. Handshaking is not correct, and here again common sense comes in, for it is most awkawrd for a woman to place flowers and fan while shaking hands.

No man, when presented to a woman at a dance, should fail in asking for her card. His introduction means a dance.

What is the best form of presenting people?

None is so good as the simplest: Miss Brown, may I present my dear friend, Mr. Jones?" is all that is most elegant.

At any function less important than a large ball it is always pleasant to add a little note of interest to the presentation, which breaks the ice and leads the way for conversation.

These matters may seem a bit trivial at first, but the omission of them does not lead to pleasurable results.

REMARKABLE CURES
Of Recent Date.

A Statement from Ex-Mayor John Corson, Esq., of Clinton, N. J.

TO THE PUBLIC:

I acknowledge with the utmost pleasure the wonderful cure which Dr. Lighthill effected in my case.

I had been a sufferer from piles, which gave me constant pain and distress, during twenty long years, attended with frequent loss of blood and with great and painful protrusion of the pile tumors and rectum whenever my bowels moved.

I tried constantly to get relief from my sufferings, but to no purpose until Mr. Bryan, a friend of mine, who had been cured by Dr. Lighthill of the same trouble, recommended him to me, and he effected a complete and radical cure in my case also, and earned my lifelong gratitude.

JOHN CORSON.

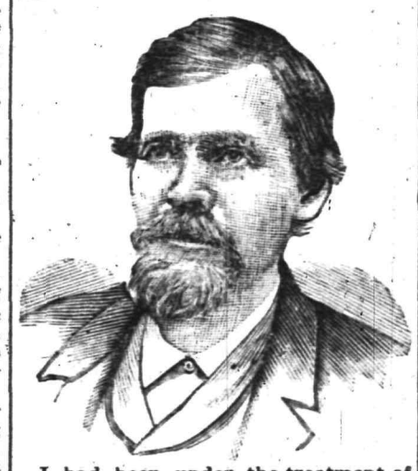
THE CASE OF MR. PETER G EYCK, OF BISSELL, HUNTERDON CO., N. J.

Dr. Lighthill Effects a Complete Cure Where Ten Physicians Had Failed.

TO THE SICK, SUFFERING AND AFFLICTED:

For many years past I have been afflicted with bleeding piles. Every movement of the bowels was attended with loss of blood and with intense pain which lasted for hours and sometimes all day. My condition was aggravated by a prolapse of the rectum, which greatly increased my suffering and sometimes gave me most agonizing pains.

So great was my distress and so bad my condition that I sold my farm, not being able to work it any longer. At one time the protruding pile tumors became so highly inflamed and swollen that they could not be replaced, and I had to go to bed, applying hot poultices for three months before I could get relief.



I had been under the treatment of ten different physicians, some of New York City, Easton, Washington and elsewhere, without any benefit whatever, and had given up my case as hopeless when, luckily for me, I heard of Dr. Lighthill's skill and success in such cases, and went to him for treatment, with the happy result that he effected a radical and permanent cure in less than four weeks's time; and I am glad to say that the entire treatment gave me neither pain nor distress.

I consider my cure perfectly wonderful, and so do all my friends and neighbors. I am confident that there is no case of piles which Dr. Lighthill cannot cure.

Vanity

is a virtuous vice. The world is better for it. It makes men ambitious—and it makes women careful of their personal appearance. It doesn't take much money to keep well-dressed now-a-days. Cleaning or dyeing makes it possible to use soiled or faded garments. And there's where our ax comes in. We are in the Cleaning and Dyeing business. Our cleaner is ready, and our dyer has his fall shades mixed.

RIVAL MINSTRELS CLASH.

But Gorton's Reputation Preceded Them from Plainfield, and They Drew the Crowd.

Two minstrel shows billed last night for opposition houses in Elizabeth made violent efforts to attract patrons.

Dockstader was booked at the Lyceum and Gorton's at Drake's Opera House.

The rival bands met on the street, and their music clashed into discord. The prices at Drake's had been cut one-half.

Each troupe hired horse cars and was followed by a crowd numbering several hundred persons.

At night Gorton's drew a big crowd Manager Charles E. Larkin having a great reputation for giving a splendid performance. His Gorton's Minstrels were in Plainfield Saturday night, and though the audience was small because the show had not been properly billed it was appreciative of the programme of good things.

There is nothing offensive in the show, and there is much that pleases. The performance was excellent and the audience was delighted. The Indian club swinging, singing and all specialties, acrobatic and vocal, were very good. The euphonian solo by young Gorton was superb. In fact, everything was first-class.

ITS RESTAURANT CLOSED.

Important Changes at the Union County Country Club.

The restaurant department of the Union County Country Club was closed up yesterday afternoon and for a while no meals will be served in the house. All of the colored employes, except Steward William Randolph, have practically been discharged.

While new arrangements are being made the kitchen and all the cooking apparatus will be thoroughly overhauled Steward Randolph is to stay at least until the new crew arrives. There have been frequent complaints about the service ever since Max Wirtz resigned and the Frenchmen were replaced by the colored servants.

Wilson Acquitted.

There being not evidence enough to convict, Counselor Marsh today moved for the discharge of Wm. Wilson, accused of the County Club robbery, and the case was dismissed.

SETTLING ACCOUNTS.

How to Render a Bill subject to Many Alterations.

Some weeks ago some representative young people were invited by Mr. T. A. Snyder, of Cincinnati, who is reported to be one of the wealthiest men in the porkopolis, to go to Canada on a camping party, says the Louisville Post. He represented himself as the host, and seemed so anxious for his Louisville friends to accompany him that not a one refused. They were delighted, and securing Mrs. John A. Stratton to chaperon them, they went to Cincinnati, and from there to Canada, going part of the way by steamer.

For over two weeks they enjoyed the camp life, and when they came home they were convinced that Mr. Snyder was a very liberal man, and an elegant host, though he did seem at times a trifle patronizing to some of the young men.

Imagine the surprise of the young people several days ago when each of them received a bill for $14 for board for the time they were in Mr. Snyder's camp. The men have sent the following to Mr. Snyder, which, they claim, will relieve them from all obligations;

To Mr. ——, Dr.

For services rendered while invited guest: Rowing boat, catching grasshoppers, waiting on table, bringing water, etc., $1.50 per day.

Total account, $21; Credited by board, $14; Balance due, $7.

The girls have not decided what to do. Some of them will probably remit, but several threaten to send in a bill for making themselves agreeable.

No man has come to true greatness who has not felt in some degree that his life belongs to his race, and that what God gives him He gives him for mankind.—Philip Brooks.

We turn our sad, reluctant gaze
Upon the path of duty;
Its barren, uninviting ways
Are void of bloom and beauty.
Yet in that road, though dark and cold
It seems as we begin it,
As we press on—lo! we behold
There's a heaven in it.
—Ella Wheeler Wilcox.

"That is no true alms which the hand can hold;
He gives nothing but worthless gold
Who gives from a sense of duty;
But he who gives a slender mite,
And gives to that which is just and right,
The hand cannot clasp the whole of his alms;
The heart outstretches its eager palms,
For a love goes with it that makes it a store
To the soul that was starving in darkness before."
—Lowell.

Veterans Passing Away.

One needs only to turn to the records of the Pension Office in Washington to realize how rapidly the men who fought for the Union thirty years ago are passing away. The latest report of the Commissioner of Pensions shows that the number of applications for pensions has fallen from 363,799 in 1891 to 40,148 in 1894, while about 37,000 were dropped from the rolls during the first fiscal year because of death.

HAPPY DAYS.

Oh, these here are the happy days—
No matter what they say;
There's more good fun in all the ways
Than's been here many a day!

Oh, these here are the happy days,
The farms are full o' life;
The feller with a sweetheart
Is a-thinking of a wife.

There's plenty in the corncrib,
There's honey in the hive;
And a feller's kinder feelin'
That it's good to be alive!

THE NEW STAMPS.

For the First Time the Judiciary Get On the Stamps.

The new issue of postage stamps will differ from the current issue in several particulars. Its denominatitns, for example, will be one, two, three, four, five, six, eight, ten, fifteen and fifty cents, and one, two and five dollars. The regular current issue—that of 1890—has no eight-cent stamp, for that became necessary only with the change in the registry fee from ten to eight cents during Postmaster General Wanamaker's administration. Neither has the issue of 1890 any fifty cent stamp, or any of the series from one dollar upward.

The coming issue will drop out the thirty and the ninety-cent stamps, transferring the heads of Thomas Jefferson and Commodore Perry, which now stand on them, respectively to the fifty-cent and one-dollar denominations. The Postmaster General has made the designs of the two-dollar and five-dollar stamps a special subject of consideration. Looking over the rest of the series he found portraits of Washington, Jefferson, Franklin, Jackson, Lincoln, Grant and Garfield, representing the executive branch of the Civil Government; Sherman representing the army and Perry the navy, and Webster and Clay representing the legislative branch. But the judicial branch has been persistently ignored in the stamp portraits from the foundation of the Government till now. In an earlier issue Alexander Hamilton had figured, but the great Constitution maker of opposite education and faith had been ignored, so now John Marshall and James Madison are to appear on the two-dollar and five-dollar stamps.

WHEN WOMEN VOTE.

The Social and Political Status will Often Get Slightly Mixed.

They were discussing a proposed entertainment when the caller asked:

"Have you invited Miss De Vercy?"

"Oh, dear no," replied the hostess. "I couldn't think of it for a moment."

"But, my dear, she is a charming conversationalist and a splendid dancer. She is wonderfully attractive in the ballroom."

"I know it," admitted the hostess, "but you see she is an offensive partisan."

"Really?"

"Yes, indeed. Why, she tried to get me to vote the Republican ticket, and I couldn't for a moment think of giving her an opportunity to make converts at my dance. I've had to leave her out."

"Naturally, under those circumstances," acquiesced the caller. "But how about Mrs. Wilkins?"

"Not a suitable person to invite, my dear. She's not in our set at all."

"I hadn't heard of it. What's the matter?"

"How thoughtless of you! Why, she doesn't vote in our ward."—Chicago Post.

Nine Feet High at Sixteen.

According to Berlin papers, the tallest man in the world at the present time is now to be seen in the Passage Panopticum in that city. He is the Arabian Hassan Ali, who has grown to the enormous height of nine feet, two inches, although he is on 16 years old. It is believed that he will continue to grow for several years. Hassan Ali was born near the Great Ammons Oasis, in Egypt. He has the Arabian cast of features, but does not possess the usual grace, it is needless to say, of his people. Before him, the same papers say, the tallest man was the Chinese giant, Shang-Yu-Sing, but even when twenty-four years old he was a half foot or more shorter.

Dickering for a Ticket.

Tommy Campbell got in from a trip last week with a brand new railroad joke. When it is known that Tommy knows every railroad story that ever was told the value of his discovery will be appreciated. It was up in Wisconsin, where a number of refugees have settled on farms. A gentleman named Polinsky was about to take a trip with his wife and little boy.

"How much is de ticket for me and her?"

"Where to?"

"To my brother's."

"Where does your brother live?"

"Two miles this side of Ishpeming."

"Four and a half each."

"And how much for the boy?"

"Under six years?"

"Yes."

"Nothing."

"But he takes up a seat just as I do."

"It's all the same. We don't charge for him."

"Say, mister, how much will you take off my ticket if I leave him home?"

The ticket agent fainted.—Cincinnati Enquirer.

Bicycles Dodge the Assessor.

The Massachusetts tax assessors are, it is said, having difficulty, in their efforts to assess the tax on bicycles provided for by a recent law of that State. They generally report that they have been able to get hold of hardly half the wheels in use, and in some places could not have made even that showing had it not been for the wheelmen's directories, published before the tax law was passed. Many of the wheels are owned by minors, whose property to the value of $1,000 can be exempted. The Massachusetts assessors had a similiarly bothersome task a few years ago, in the taxation of hens, of which the Legislature subsequently relieved them.

United We Stand, Divided, Fall.

John Dickinson in his "Liberty Song" of 1868, wrote:

"Then join in hand, brave Americans all!
By uniting we stand, by deviding we fall.

And many years later, George P. Morris in his "Flag of our Union," wrote:

"A song for our banner! The watchword recall
Which gave the Republic her station:
'United We stand, divided we fall!'
It made and preserves us a nation!"

Seemingly Dickinson's lines were in Morris's mind when he wrote these lines, and probably they were in the minds of those who gave her seal to Kentucky.

Corporation Notice.

Notice is hereby given that the following Ordinance has been introduced before the Common Council, read the second time and ordered engrossed preparatory to its third reading, and that it is the intention of the Council to adopt the same.

JAMES T. MACMURRAY, City Clerk.
Plainfield, N. J., October 15, 1894.

AN ORDINANCE

concerning the Construction, Maintenance and Repair of Sidewalks.

The Inhabitants of the City of Plainfield by their Common Council do enact as follows:

Section 1. That all sidewalks shall have a width not less than one-fifth of the entire width of the street and all sidewalks hereafter laid shall be raised, from the curbstone line to the side of the street adjoining, in the proportion of five inches in ten feet, unless otherwise specially directed by resolution of the Common Council, provided that this section shall not apply to sidewalks whose width has previously been established by ordinance.

Sec. 2. That all sidewalks in said city shall be well and sufficiently repaired and maintained at the expense of the abutting land owners, so as to be even on the surface and so laid and constructed as freely to shed water and for the width of at least four feet free from turf, grass, weeds, stubble and other foreign substances.

Sec. 3. That within that portion of said city described as follows, viz:—beginning with the intersection of the northeasterly side line of Norwood avenue with Green brook and running thence along said northeasterly side line of Norwood avenue continuing along northeasterly side line of Richmond street to its intersection with the centre line of Watchung avenue; thence in a straight line to the intersection of the easterly side line of Ninth street with the southerly line of Third place produced; thence along said easterly side line of Ninth street and the same line produced to its intersection with the southwesterly side line of Plainfield avenue; thence with the southwesterly side line of Plainfield avenue northwesterly to Green brook and thence along Green brook to the point or place of beginning; also on both sides of Watchung avenue from Richmond street to Woodland avenue; both sides of West Front street from Plainfield avenue to Grant avenue; and both sides of East Front street from Richmond street to Farragut road; both sides of Central avenue from Ninth street to Randolph road; in all cases in which sidewalks are not already constructed of blue stone flagging, sidewalks shall be constructed at the expense of the abutting land owners, and unless otherwise specially permitted by resolution of the Common Council, shall be composed of blue stone flagging, smooth and even on the surface, and properly laid in one course under the direction of and on such lines as shall be given by the Street Commissioner, and the flags shall not be less than four feet long and not less than two feet wide and not less than one and one-half inches thick in the thinnest part. And within that portion of the City of Plainfield described in this section, in all cases in which sidewalks are not already curbed with stone, cement, concrete, hard and durable substance, said sidewalks shall, when ordered by resolution of the Common Council, be curbed at the expense of the abutting land owners, and unless otherwise specially permitted by resolution of the Common Council shall be curbed with blue stone or ironolithic, not less than four inches thick in the thinnest part and sixteen inches in depth, smooth and even on the surface and laid in one course under the direction of and on such lines as shall be given by the Street Commissioner. That all return curbs shall have a radius of six feet, no piece to be less than three feet two inches in length.

Sec. 4. That within that portion of the said city not embraced within the foregoing limits described in Section 3, in all cases in which sidewalks are not now constructed in the manner hereinafter provided in this section, sidewalks shall be constructed at the expense of the abutting land owners, when ordered by resolution of the Common Council, and unless otherwise specially permitted by resolution of the Common Council, said sidewalks shall be composed of bluestone flagging as specified in Section 3, or crushed stone not less than six inches deep, thoroughly rolled and compacted, or cement not less than one-half inch in thickness, laid on at least four inches of concrete, said bluestone flagging, crushed stone or cement and concrete to be made smooth and even on the surface and properly laid in one course under the direction of and on such lines as shall be given by the Street Commissioner, and said sidewalks to be so laid for the width of not less than four feet, and in case bluestone flagging is used, the flags to be not less than two feet in width and not less than one and one-half inches thick in the thinnest part.

Sec. 5. It is hereby made the duty of the owners of land abutting on the sidewalks of said city to comply with the preceding sections of this ordinance under the direction and supervision of the Street Commissioner. The Street Commissioner is hereby authorized to serve notices in writing upon the owners or occupants of said lands requiring the necessary specified work to said sidewalks to be done by said owners or occupants within a period of thirty days from the date of service of such notice, and shall file with the City Clerk a list of the names of parties on which notices have been served; if any of said lands are unoccupied and the owner cannot be found within the city, the said notice shall be mailed, postage prepaid, to his or her postoffice address if the same can be ascertained; in case such owner is a non-resident of the city and his or her postoffice address cannot be ascertained, then the notice may be inserted for four weeks, once a week, in the official newspapers of the city.

Sec. 6. That in case the owner or occupant of such lands shall not comply with the requirements of the notice specified in the preceding section, said Street Commissioner shall file in the office of the City Clerk due proof of the service or publication of the aforesaid notice and thereupon the Common Council may by resolution order the required work to be done and paid for, and proceedings to be taken to perfect a lien for the costs thereof and to enforce payment of the same pursuant to the statute in such cases made and provided.

Sec. 7. That Sections 1, 2, 3, 4, of an ordinance entitled "An Ordinance Relating to Streets and Sidewalks and Encroachments Thereon", and the ordinance entitled, "An Ordinance Concerning the Construction, Maintenance and Repair of Sidewalks", and the amendment of said last named ordinance approved August 4th, 1890, be and the same are hereby repealed.

Sec. 8. That all ordinances and parts of ordinances which were repealed or abrogated by any ordinance hereby repealed, shall continue to be so repealed and shall be deemed abrogated.

A MOUNTAIN EXPLODES.

About Seventy Square Miles of Debris Fifty Feet Deep.

The following, which recently appeared in a metropolitan newspaper, is "startling if true," and a good story anyway:

Previous to July 15, 1888, Mount Bandai, a cone-cleft peak 4,800 feet in height, was the most conspicuous object in the mountain range, lying from 100 to 150 miles north of Tokio, the chief city of Japan. On the day mentioned it was literally "rent in twain" and "blown off the face of the earth" by the expansive power of steam which had generated within it. From the earliest times of which there is any record streams of cold water had been plunging under the peak on one side and escaping in the shape of steam and boiling hot water on the other.

That the "escape valve" was not sufficient to let off all the steam generated in the passage of the water through the red-hot interior of the peak is evident, because of the fact that when the pressure became too great the sides of the mountain yielded, just as a boiler would have done under like circumstances, and an immense explosion was the result. The explosion is said to have been heard a distance of over a thousand miles and to have caused absolute darkness in the vicinity of the exploded peak upward of three hours, during which time perfect torrents of hot water and mud were poured down from the immense heights to which they had been hurled by the force of the "pent-up furies," which caused the disaster.

The debris which fell after the explosion covered an area of about 44,000 acres, to a depth varying from 10 to 100 feet on an average, and in one place, where a beautiful valley had existed but a few hours before, rocks and mud were piled up to the height of 900 feet. Three villages were ingulfed in the ruins, and at least 500 inhabitants killed by falling debris or drowned and cooked in the torrents of boiling mud, which flowed down the valley to a distance of nine miles. These facts were gleaned from a report made by a visiting committee appointed by the University of Tokio.

PERSONS OF NOTE.

Interesting Items of a Half Dozen Notable People.

For over thirty years the Archbishop of Canterbury has prohibited the delivery of letters on Sunday at his country house, as he will never trouble his mind by reading one on the seventh day.

Mme. Patti has decided to spend the winter in Europe, and has accepted an offer made by M. Lofan, director of the Opera House at Nice, to take part in four special stage representations of opera at that theatre after the New Year.

Enoch Pratt, of Baltimore, who is in vigorous health at 86, and the active head of several large corporations, wanted to give Baltimore a library, and so has spent $1,300,000 without troubling his heirs with the business.

Mme. Bazaine and her family are in the direst poverty. The last resources of the Marshal's wife were spent in an attempt to recover from the Mexican Government her property, which had been confiscated by President Juarez on account of her marriage.

An authority in an English magazine gives as his opinion that the five greatest living writers of fiction are in the order named, George Meredith, Thomas Hardy, James Barrie, Robert Louis Stevenson and Rudyard Kipling. He says these are clearly entitled to the ranking, but is undecided as to who to put next.

Those who have liked to think of the beautiful, flowery home on Appledore Island that Celia Thaxter loved and cared for so devotedly will be glad to know that so long as her relatives live the garden will be attended as she had attended it for years. Her grave, which is within sound of the sea, is piled with flowers and shrubs every day by her friends and by the summer pilgrims who visit the island.

Invisible Writing, and Its Uses.

Writing with rice water, to be rendered visible by the application of iodine, was practised successfully in the correspondence with Jelalabad in the first Afghan war. The letter was concealed in a quill. On opening it, a small paper was unfolded, on which appeared the single word "Iodine." The magic liquid was applied, and therewith appeared an important dispatch from Sir Robert Sale. In the course of a trial in France last year a letter was read from Turpin, under sentence of five years' imprisonment as a spy, giving directions to a friend with a view to establishing a secret correspondence with him while in prison. This led to an official inquiry on the subject by the French authorities, and some strange revelations were obtained from some of the convicts. It came out that when information was to be conveyed to a prisoner, a formal letter, containing apparently nothing but a few trivial facts of a personal nature, was forwarded to the prison. This was read by the governor, who stamped it, and allowed it to be handed on to the man to whom it was addressed. The latter, however, was aware that there was another letter to be read between the lines, written in milk, and easy decipherable on being rubbed over with a dirty finger.

By Right of Possession.

There are hundreds of farmers, it is safe to say, in thinly occupied parts of this country who either do not own their land or do not know whether they do or not. They settled on their holdings when young, and no claims for rents or dispossess warrants have been exhibited since. Unclaimed lands have been taken up in New England within two years, and a man who recently built a house in Maine was asked why he did not buy the ground it stood on. "What's the use?" he answered. "The owners of all this country are big lumber companies. Do you suppose they're going to pay an agent a hundred dollars or more to hunt around for a fellow who is using ten cent's worth of their real estate and doing no harm to anything? I guess not. You can stay in this country as long as you like."

No Occasion for Worry.

Mrs. McPhiz—Tell me, doctor, is there any danger of becoming insane by using complexion bleaches?

Doctor Blunt—None at all. When a woman begins to use them she is about as crazy as it is ever possible for her to be.—Boston Transcript.

Gov. Hogg Must Have His Little Joke.

A great many hard things have been said against Gov. Hogg, of Texas, but nothing half so bad as he deserves for the kind of a sense of humor which induced him to name his daughter "Ima."

CRESCENT WHEELMEN ABROAD.

(Special by Wire to The Daily Press.)

New Brunswick, Oct 30.—Thirteen Crescent Wheelmen arrived here at 1:30 on their century run. They ate a hearty dinner at the Mansion House and left at 3, all in good condition.

THE SECRET ORDERS

Paugh Caugh Naugh Sioque Tribe of Red Men has 193 members enrolled after only six months of existence.

Trinity Commandery has received four elegant banners. Three are for working degrees. The fourth is a parade banner, 36x56, of white silk with massive gold fringe and tassels. At the centre is a painting of a castle with valiant knights issuing forth. The top is of dark blue velvet, and bears the title and motto of the Commandery.

Madame Sarah Grand has been writing an article with the engaging title: "Should Irascible Old Gentlemen be Taught to Knit?"

The Princess of Wales, who occasionally tries her hand at angling, has a gold mounted rod that cost $200. The fly fisherman gets more reel sport out of much cheaper rods.

The Khedive of Egypt has a bicycle which is entirely silver plated and of gorgeous build and equipment.

Mustafa Bey, formerly private physician to the Sultan of Morocco, is said to derive an income of $100,000 a year from his profession.

Emperor William's new opera—on a German subject—is to be given its first production next month before a select court circle. If it is then adjudged a success it will be tried on his other German subjects.

Paderewski claims that he has received fifty thousand requests for his photograph and his autograph from his fair admirers.

Miss Dora Reade Goodale, the poet of the Berkshire Hills, whose sister Elaine married Dr. Eastman, a Dakota Indian, a few years ago, is engaged to be married to Professor Thomas Sanford, of the University of California.

Miss Ellen Terry writes: "My hobby is a cottage! For many years I have had a mad desire for every pretty cottage I have passed on my drives in the country—the smaller the cottage the more attractive I find it. The only suggestion I can offer to young women on the subject is, 'Don't give your hobby his head!'" —Justice Nash today adjourned the case of F. E. Miller against Constable Mattox and Frank Licke until November 7.

—In Justice Newcorn's Court yesterday the case in tort of Mrs. Zimmer against William J. and Catherine Pearson was dismissed.

—The first house on the right hand side of Sandford avenue, had a fire in the register of the bath room this morning. E. C. Morse who was working on a house near by was appealed to to send in an alarm. But on going to the house he saw it was unnecessary, put out the flames, and received the thanks of the family of Daniel D. Westervelt, the owner of the house.

PINKHAM'S
Vegetable Compound
Is a positive cure for all those painful
Ailments of Women.

It will entirely cure the worst forms of Female Complaints, all Ovarian troubles, Inflammation and Ulceration, Falling and Displacements, of the Womb, and consequent Spinal Weakness, and is peculiarly adapted to the Change of Life. Every time it will cure

Backache.

It has cured more cases of Leucorrhœa than any remedy the world has ever known. It is almost infallible in such cases. It dissolves and expels Tumors from the Uterus in an early stage of development, and checks any tendency to cancerous humors. That causing pain, weight, and backache, is instantly relieved and permanently cured by its use. Under all circumstances it acts in harmony with the laws that govern the female system, and is as harmless as water. It removes

Bearing-down Feeling

Irregularity,

Suppressed or Painful Menstruations, Weakness of the Stomach, Indigestion, Bloating, Flooding, Nervous Prostration, Headache, General Debility. Also

Dizziness, Faintness,

Extreme Lassitude, "don't care" and "want to be left alone" feeling, excitability, irritability, nervousness, sleeplessness, flatulency, melancholy, or the "blues," and backache. These are sure indications of Female Weakness, some derangement of the Uterus, or Womb Troubles.

The whole story, however, is told in an illustrated book entitled "Guide to Health," by Mrs. Pinkham. It contains over 90 pages of most important information, which every woman, married or single, should know about herself. Send 2 two-cent stamps for it. For and Backache of either sex the Vegetable Compound is unequaled.

Kidney Complaints

CYCLING COMMENT.

Residents of Craig place claim that more people go there to learn to ride wheels than to any other street in town.

John Venable is the most enthusiastic of all the riders who have entered the Victor Wheelmen's races Thursday. He thinks he will have no trouble in winning at least three prizes.

A. H. Barnett expected to break Monte Scott's twenty-five-mile record in the road-race which was postponed last Saturday. He said yesterday that he would try to spoil the figures next Saturday.

Two cycle-sellers, George L. Babcock of Somerset street and William Nicholson of Charles C. Lister's shop, who rode to Metuchen Sunday evening, had both their wheels disabled by punctured tires.

When Monte went down East, Saturday, he left his picture in J. Hervey Doane's window. His absence makes it all the more attractive to the girls who stop and pretend to examine the clocks and silverware while they're really gazing at the chap in bangs and bathing suit.

Catarrh Cannot Be Cured

with local applications, as they cannot reach the seat of the disease. Catarrh is a blood or constitutional disease, and in order to cure it you must take internal remedies. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, and acts directly on the blood and mucous surfaces. Hall's Catarrh Cure is not a quack medicine. It was prescribed by one of the best physicians in this country for years, and is a regular prescription. It is composed of the best tonics known, combined with the best blood purifiers, acting directly on the mucous surfaces. The perfect combination of the two ingredients is what produces such wonderful results in curing catarrh. Send for testimonials, free.

A STRAIGHT LANE.

AND ONE THAT KNOWS NO TURNING BACKWARD.

Honest Andrew Has His Coat Off, and When He Puts It On Again Will Be Assemblyman-Elect.

The Democrats of Somerset made no mistake when they chose Andrew Lane their standard bearer in the present campaign. Mr Lane needs no introduction to his constituents. He is one of the solid business men of the county, conducting an extensive milling business at Neshanic Station, besides being a director of the Bound Brook National Bank and the Hillsborough Insurance Co., and connected in various ways with other concerns doing business in the county.

His sterling honesty and quiet philanthropy have made him immensely popular in his immediate neighborhood. His friends Hillsborough Township, are legion, and the Republican majority there will vanish. He is a man of the people. Any one can get audience with him at any time. He is a Democrat, first, last and all the time, respected by all the various factions of the party, but has no entangling alliance with any. His nomination fell like a bomb among the Republicans, as they well know it means their defeat.

Mr. Lane is a hustler of hustlers. In 1884 he gave Senator Thompson the fight of his life, and was only defeated by 89 votes. The party leaders all have their coats off, and it is now only a matter of the size of his majority.

DIDNOT COMMIT SUICIDE

Miss Jones Was Executed by Her Lover.

Samuel Buxton, Tired of His Victim Killed Her—Told Her a Witch Had Said to Him a Slight Hanging Was Necessary Before Marriage and She Consented To Try It.

Viroqua, Wis., Oct. 30.—Last week the body of Miss Mary A. Jones, aged 40, was found suspended by the neck in the chamber of her lonely farm house near this city. It was supposed that she had committed suicide, but Samuel S. Buxton, who was arrested Saturday at the instance of the dead woman's brother, confessed to having murdered Miss Jones. He ruined her under the promise of marriage, and when she pressed him to keep his agreement, strangled her to death, telling her that a witch had said to him a slight hanging was necessary before marriage.

Buxton was taken to Sparta yesterday, pleaded guilty, and was sentenced to life imprisonment. He lived near the Jones farm and did work for the lone spinister. In 1891 he conceived the idea of ruining the woman through a series of letters purporting to come from a witch, which in reality were written by himself. He carried them to his victim, who believed that Buxton would procure a divorce from his wife and they would be married. There had also been considerable talk between the couple about putting Buxton's wife out of the way.

Buxton became tired of his victim and caused her to believe that the witch said that if she would consent to be slightly hanged by the neck it would have the effect of killing his wife and they would be free from her. The woman consented and about two weeks before the murder they went into the second story of the house. Miss Jones placed herself in a standing attitude upon a chair. Buxton placed the rope around her neck and over a beam and tied her hands behind her. He says his heart failed him at that moment and he let her down with only a slight tightening of the rope. On the afternoon of Sunday, Oct. 21, Buxton returned to Miss Jones' home and she consented to try the hanging experiment again, informing her that Mrs. Buxton's neck had been nearly broken and he was sure one more trial would finish her. All the preliminaries were repeated as before, when Buxton pulled the chair from under her. Her body dropped, the feet touching the floor. He raised them till life was extinct.

The murderer is about 55 years of age and has a wife and two children. He came here from Ohio a few years since.

BREAD SHOULD BE CHEAPER.

Trick of the Trade Exposed by the Agricultural Department.

Washington, Oct. 30.—The agricultural department has given out a bulletin on the cost of bread taken from the forthcoming report of Prof. W. O. Atwater on the nutritive value of foods. It says:

"In practice 100 pounds of flour will make from 133 to 137 pounds of bread, an average being about 136 pounds. Flour, such as is used by bakers, is now purchased in the eastern states at not over $4 per barrel. This would make the cost of flour in a pound of bread about one and one-half cents. Allowing one-half cent for the shortening and salt, which is certainly very liberal, the material for a pound of bread would not cost more than two cents.

"The average weight of a number of shipments of ten-cent loaves purchased in Middletown, Conn., was one and one-fourth pounds. This makes the price of bread to the consumer eight cents per pound. The price of bread and the size of the loaf are practically the same now as when flour cost twice as much."

Reversal for Eno.

Washington, Oct. 30.—John C. Eno, formerly president of the Second National bank of New York city, must answer in the state courts to the indictments found against him for alleged crimes committed while acting as such president before he can invoke the jurisdiction of the federal courts in his behalf. Such is the effect of a decision made by the supreme court of the United States upon the appeal by the state of New York from the judgment of the circuit court for the southern district of New York discharging Eno from the custody of the warden of the city prison of New York upon his petition for a writ of habeas corpus. The extent of Eno's operations in 1882 and previous years, which formed the basis of the indictments against him, made the case one of the most notorious in all the records of financial irregularities.

Stones at a Political Meeting.

Wilmington, Del., Oct. 30.—During a republican open air meeting, at which Mayor Shortlidge was the presiding officer, and while David Healy, editor of the Irish World was speaking, a number of stones were thrown at the stand. Mayor Shortlidge was struck on the back of the neck with one of the missiles and he called upon the police to arrest his assailant, which was done. Healey was escorted from the place by two police officers.

Arrested for Reporting Czar's Death.

St. Petersburg Oct. 30.—It is reported that several persone have been arrested in Odessa by order of the city governor for the expression of belief that the czar was dead. A religious festival of prayer was held to-day throughout the Empire to celebrate the anniversary of the czar's escape from death in the Borki disaster.

Gen. Scammond Dying.

New York, Oct. 30.—General E. P. Scammond, a veteran of the Seminole and Mexican wars and the war of the rebellion, is dying of cancer of the stomach at the residence of his daughter, Mrs. N. P. Jones, in Audobon Park, Washington Heights.

After Fourteen Months of Idleness.

Reading, Pa., Oct. 30.—The Henry Clay furnace which has been idle the past fourteen months has resumed operations giving employment to sixty men.

LARGE FIRE AT PITTSBURG

Panic Barely Averted in a Theatre Adjoining the Building.

Pittsburg, Oct. 30.—J. J. Porter & Co., wholesale dealers in millinery and notions, at Nos. 820-824 Liberty street were entirely burned out last night. The fire started shortly after 9 o'clock and it kept the entire fire department hard at work to keep the flames confined to the Porter building. Porter & Co.'s loss on stock is $200,000. The building, which is owned by B. F. Jones, the iron manufacturer and valued at $50,000, is almost entirely destroyed. Nothing is left but the walls. Several of Porter's clerks were present during the fire but none of them would open their mouths when asked if the stock was insured. Their actions caused much comment. The building is probably covered by insurance but nothing could be learned regarding Porter's insurance.

The Porter building is located between the Academy of Music and the Seventh Avenue hotel. When the flames broke out there was a mad rush by the patrons of the academy to reach the exits. For a time it looked as if there would be a panic. At this juncture Manager Harry Williams appeared on the stage of the theatre and pleaded with the people to take their time as there was no immediate danger. Many of the audience were attracted by the coolness of the manager and a further crush was averted. The rear ends of the academy and the Seventh Avenue hotel adjoin the Porter building but neither place caught fire

NEW USE FOR THE LAW.

Scheme To Prevent a Mother-in-Law from Immigrating.

Philadelphia, Oct. 30.—A protest has been filed with John S. Rogers, United States commissioner of immigration at this port, by John Lenarse, of Wilmington, Del., in which the latter asks the authorities to prevent the landing of his mother-in-law, now believed to be bound here from Antwerp on the of the Red Star line steamers. The name of the undesirable mother-in-law is Catherine Cutjahr, but her maiden name, which is the one she is expected to travel under, is Catherine Kanardy. This has also been given the authorities to prevent her coming under either name. The authorities in New York have also been notified. Mr. Lenarse claims that Mrs. Cutjahr's coming would make his future life miserable, and interfere with his wife's and his own happiness, and that Europe is a far better place for her than Wilmington or any other place in the United States. Both Mr. and Mrs. Lenarse have made affidavits in which they swear that they will not receive the traveler should she land and they protest against her being allowed to leave the vessel's deck. Should she arrive they ask that she be sent back to the port from which she came by the vessel that brought her here.

In view of these affidavits, Superintendent of Immigration Stump has notified the authorities not to allow her to land without the treasury department's permission.

USED TO RESTORE MOSQUES.

Money for Earthquake Sufferers Misapplied.

London, Oct. 30.—The Standard correspondent in Constantinople has this information as to the use of the money sent for the relief of persons made homeless by the earthquakes some months ago:

"Although the government acknowledges the receipt of 60,000 Turkish liras as a donation to the earthquake sufferers, the receipt of 17,000 only has been officially announced. This is the sum disbursed to the sufferers, who, after endless trouble, secured three liras each, after submitting to a reduction of 20 per cent. for the expenses of distribution. The general complaint is that the Mussulmans receive more and larger grants than do the Christians. It is generally believed that after the customary pickings had been made by the officials the bulk of the money was employed in restoring mosques. This does not apply to the British subscriptions which were disbursed by the British committee."

General Duffield's Appointment.

Washington, Oct. 30.—The president appointed Gen. W. F. Duffield a member of the lighthouse board in place of Prof. Thomas C. Mendenhall. Gen. Duffield some time ago succeeded Prof. Mendenhall as superintendent of the coast and geodetic survey on the latter's resignation but it was understood at that time that Prof. Mendenhall would continue his connection with the lighthouse board. In the case of an appointment like that of Gen. Duffield's it is unusual for the president to specify whether the vacancy is made by resignation or removal but it was impossible to learn at the white house whether or not Prof. Mendenhall had voluntarily resigned, the explanation being offered that it was customary for the superintendent of the coast survey to be a member of the lighthouse board and that Gen. Duffield's appointment was made simply under the provisions of section 4,653 of the revised statutes.

The Peacemaker Killed.

Birmingham, Ala., Oct. 30.—S. A. Cameron, a prominent cotton buyer and compress man, and E. F. Allison a wealthy lumber merchant, quarreled over a business transaction and blows followed. Town Marshal J. W. Thompson tried to stop the fight, when the pistol of one of the combatants was discharged. The bullet pierced his heart, killing him instantly. Several more shots were fired, Cameron receiving a wound in the body and Allison getting a bullet in the groin. It is thought both men will die.

A New Railroad Opened.

Wellsboro, Pa., Oct. 30.—The Buffalo & Susquehanna railway, a connecting link between the Western New York and Pennsylvania and the Fall Brook railways, has been opened and regular trains are now running. It is forty miles long and runs from Keating Summit to Ansonia. This road opens up the vast lumber region in Potter and Clinton counties.

Pleases the Italians.

Rome, Oct. 30.—The appointment of the Prince of Hohenlohe to be German chancellor and Prussian premier has made a good impression on Italian politicians. His brother, Prince Gustav Adolf of Hohenlohe, cardinal priest, has received numerous messages of congratulation.

RACE WAR THREATENED

New Orleans Whites and Blacks Excited.

Reported That Both Parties Are Preparing To Fight—Expected That the Governor Will Call Out the Militia—White Men Struck Against Working with Negroes.

New Orleans, Oct. 30.—The strike situation in this city has asumed a serious phase and a race war is threatened. Last evening there was great excitement on the levee between Jackson and Sixth streets, the scene of Saturday's riot, caused by the report that a force of armed negroes was en route to the scene to avenge the action of the mob Saturday. In a moment every place of business in the locality was closed and work was suspended. Women and children ran into their houses for safety, execting at any moment to hear the reports of shooting. Chief of Police Gaster sent a large force to the scene of the alleged troforce to the scene of the trouble. The moment the screwmen of the ships heard the report, they swarmed out, flourishing their revolvers and rifles, but they could not find the enemy. The men congregated in the neighborhood, and the report is that both the negroes and whites are preparing for a fight.

The governor arrived last night and held a long conference with the directors of the cotton exchange. It is expected that he will order out the militia. To further complicate the situation the white 'longshoremen struck against working with negroes.

Charles Stoddard & Co. intend to load their ships with negro help, and this is expected to bring about a riot.

John Williams, a colored screwman, was shot and mortally wounded in the afternoon by Michael Biri, at Madison and Decatur streets. Biri is a seed merchant and is now at large. The men were heard to speak in a loud tone, and Biri acted as if he was trying to bulldoze the negro.

GROOM THAT DISSAPEARED.

Wedding Didn't Come Off, But There Was a Merry-Making Time.

Jersey City, Oct. 30.—John Glenn, of Centreville, this state, was to have been married Sunday evening at St. Mary's church, Elizabeth, by Father Carroll, to Miss Kate Moran. But the marriage ceremony was not performed, because Mr. Glenn did not appear, and his present whereabouts are unknown. The wedding party was to have taken place at 42½ Delaware street, the home of Mr. and Mrs. Michael Carvey, friends of the bride. A collation had been prepared, music hired, and all made ready for the occasion.

Minutes lengthened into hours and still Glenn did not appear and the bride and guests were reluctantly forced to admit that the wedding must be postponed. Miss Moran was taken weeping to her room and the coach dismissed.

The relatives of Glenn proposed, however, that the festivities go on just the same, and Miss Moran, after she had recovered from the shock of her disappointment, gave her consent to the arrangement.

The wedding supper was eaten and the balance of the evening until midnight was devoted to merrymaking. Miss Moran looked on but was too sick at heart to take any part in the festivities, although her friends did everything to cheer her spirits.

Miss Moran blames a sister of Glenn for his non-appearance.

Murdered the Peddler.

Wilkesbarre, Pa., Oct. 30.—Wm. Penn Bowman, a well known young man of this city, 18 years old, surrendered himself to the police. He made a full confession in the murder of the Arabian peddler who was killed in this city on the 21st of September last. He claims that the fatal shot was fired by a friend who stopped the Arabian, named Mike John, and demanded his money. After the murder Bowman and his friend left the city, the former returning the next day and his partner is supposed to have gone to Colorado. The police absolutely refuse to reveal the name of Bowman's accomplice. Detectives are now at work looking him up and his arrest at an early day is almost assured. Bowman's accomplice is supposed to be a young man named Geo. Metzger, who was seen in his company shortly before the murder, and who has since disappeared.

Destitution in South Dakota.

Sioux Falls, S. D., Oct. 30.—W. J. Wagner, traveling agent for the Great Northern road, has returned from a trip through the northern part of the state which was severely stricken with the drought. He reports the people there in destitute circumstances. Near Osceola and west of it whole townships were left by the sun and wind as dry and barren as a desert and stock was rendered worthless as there is no feed. One family was found eating horse flesh.

Changed Their Plans.

Washington, Oct. 30.—The President and Mrs. Cleveland have changed their plans since returning from Grey Gables, and instead of remaining throughout the autumn at the white house, as was at that time their intention, they will go to-day to their country place on Woodley road. They will spend a month there very quietly as Mrs. Cleveland will not observe any reception day, even in the most informal manner.

Hickory Again Sentenced To Death

Fort Smith, Ark., Oct. 30.—In the federal court Judge Parker sentenced Sam Hickory to hang Dec. 27. This is the second time he has been sentenced to hang, a new trial being ordered by the supreme court. He killed Joe Wilson, a deputy marshal for the Muskogee court in 1891 in the Cherokee nation. His case will again be taken to the supreme court.

New York's Registration.

New York, Oct. 30.—The correct returns from the various districts in this city, which were filed at police headquarters, show the total registration to be 308,693, instead of 309,931, as originally reported. This is 932 less than in 1892.

CURES OTHERS

Mrs. WILLIAM ROBERTS, Bridgeport, N. Y., writes: "If I had not taken your Medicine, I would not be here now. The doctors did me no good, I was just a mere skeleton, could not eat, I would have awful pain in my stomach—pain in my side, bowels and chest; soreness in my back and womb; was weak, nervous, and could not sleep. After I took your 'Favorite Prescription,' and 'Golden Medical Discovery,' I commenced to improve. In two weeks could walk about the house—could eat—did not have any more pain in my stomach—threw away my morphine powders. When I first commenced taking the medicine it made me feel worse. I was hoarse, could not speak aloud for three days; as I got better my pains and bad feelings left me and I could sleep good; my nerves got better. Before I took your medicine I kept my bed four months—got worse all the while. I am now quite fleshy and can work all day."

SCENTING POWERS OF A SETTER.

He Will Point a Live Bird While Carrying a Dead One.

The scenting power of a well-bred, well-trained setter is a thing wholly beyond human conception, and the marvellous exhibitions they give of this power can scarcely be credited. Indeed it would not be wise to seriously discuss the quality of a dog's nose were it not possible to verify the stories that might be told of this wonderful power.

Who would believe that a dog going at a good gallop, with a dead bird in his mouth, could scent a live bird on the ground several yards to one side of his course? And there are few sportsmen who have not seen a dog point a live bird with a dead bird in his mouth. It would seem as if the scent of the bird so near his nose would prevent the dog from scenting another bird of the same variety lying close in the grass several yards from him. A man with a bunch of roses in his face would not pretend he could smell a bunch of similar flowers a foot away. If he did no one would believe him.

Yet there is no doubt about this dog being able to smell and point live birds on the ground while he holds a dead one in his mouth. He goes further than this. He points a dead bird on the ground with a dead bird in his mouth, and he knows the instant he feels the scent that it is a dead bird. This fact he expresses in his manner of pointing, and if it is a wounded bird he knows that, too, and indicates the fact.

Most dogs are taught to point stanchly a live bird and, not to point a dead one. The dog will go full speed right up to his dead bird and never pause a moment. If there is a live bird near he will point that stanchly, and the promptness and certainty of his decisions show the instant he catches a scent he knows whether the bird is alive or dead. He makes a distinction, too, between a dead bird, a live bird and a wounded bird.

He points the wounded bird differently from what he does the live bird, and usually springs in and catches it. What there is about a wounded bird's scent that he can recognize instantly is a puzzle to every one who has thought much of the question.—Chicago Tribune.

A New Form of Hysteria.

Miss Carrie Munson, a school teacher of Beemerville, N. J., possesses a highly strung organization. Recently while returning home with a neighboring farmer she suddenly became impressed by the idea of impending danger, and began to tremble violently. Her agitation became so intense and distressing that it was with the greatest difficulty that she could be taken to the residence of Warren Haggerty, where the frightened people applied restoratives to the then swooning girl.

Reliable medical experts say that there has been a number of such cases, which have puzzled the local practitioners. "The question is: What is this new disease?"

A Tenderfoot in Butte.

A new arrival in Butte occupied a chair in a barber shop the other day during a snowstorm.

"This is a funny sort of a country," he remarked, "with snow in the summer time."

Then he looked out of the window and saw a sprinkling cart go by.

"Why in the world do they run sprinklers in a snowstorm?" he asked.

"To keep the snow from drifting," replied the barber, as he dashed an extra daub of lather over the man's mouth.—Anaconda Standard.

CHINESE IN DESPAIR

Cannot Arrest the Advance of the Japs.

It Is Not Believed That Port Arthur Will Be Attacked Before the End of the Week—Pursuit of Fugitives Abandoned—Do Not Want To Be Burdened with Prisoners.

London, Oct. 30.—A dispatch to the Globe from Tien-Tsin says the rout of the Chinese troops on the Yalu river and the failure of the Chinese arms to arrest the advance of the Japanese have spread consternation among the Chinese officials, who do not deny that the Chinese army has met with serious disaster.

The Japanese legation here has a dispatch saying that the second army, under Gen. Oyama, left his rendezvous in Korea, on Oct. 23, and made a successful landing at Talien-Wan.

London, Oct. 30.—It is rumored in Tien-Tsin that the young empress is dead, but the fact will not be announced nor mourning be worn by the court until after the birthday of the dowager empress.

The Central News correspondent in Tokio telegraphs: "It is not believed here that the Japanese will attack Port Arthur before the end of the week. General Nodzu, who commands the advance force of the Japanese army, has abandoned the pursuit of the fugitives from Kulienchao, as he does not wish to be burdened with more Chinese prisoners. The Japanese march upon Feng-Huang-Chang has begun.

The London correspondent of the Berlin Kreuzzeitung had an interview with a Japanese attache here. The attache said he learned privately from friends acquainted with Manchuria that for a trained army, campaigning in that region would be easier in winter than in summer. The ice in Korea bay would not suffice to prevent the free movement of the Japanese warships.

The Times has these dispatches from the east:

Yokohama—"Another Japanese army, 24,000 strong, is assembling at Hiroshima."

Shanghai—"It is reported that Port Arthur has been completely invested by the Japanese and cannot hold out long. Advices from Moukden state that Gen. Tso's force was not annihilated in the battle of Ping Yang. The greater part of it escaped and reformed under Gen. Nieh. It is believed at Moukden that the Japanese will require a much larger army than they possess to secure the Chinese palace treasure."

Hong Kong—"William Hill, an American, as been fined $100 for sketching the defences of Hong Kong."

San Francisco, Oct. 30.—Japanese residents of the Pacific coast have recently remitted to the war department at Tokio $10,000 to be used in the present campaign against China. Another $10,000 will be sent next week, and periodical remittances will be sent as long as the war lasts.

GERMANY ACTED HASTILY.

Efforts To Have the Exclusion of American Cattle Suspended.

Washington, Oct. 30.—Secretary Gresham has made a very strong representation to the German government of the injustice to the United States of the recent order prohibiting the importation of American cattle and fresh meat into Germany. He has protested that the action, which is a severe blow to the American industry, was taken without sufficient evidence of the existence of disease among the cattle exported from the United States, or of its contagious character or harmful effects. The secretary and the German ambassador were in conference at the state department on the subject, and the minister transmitted the protest to his home government, promising that it should receive careful consideration. There is some reason to hope that our government may be able to secure a suspension of the order for a time at least, to afford opportunity for further investigation, and the proper consideration of such representations as we can make to support our case. One reason for this belief is founded on the change just made in the German chancellorship.

Germans Need Not Be Alarmed.

Washinton, Oct. 30.—Secretary Gresham, upon the receipt of the protest from the secretary of agriculture regarding the prohibition of American cattle by Germany, promptly directed Mr. Theodore Runyon, the United States ambassador at Berlin, to make representations to the German government stating that Texas fever could not be communicated by diseased cattle, so that if the reported discovery of this disease was correct there would be no danger to German cattle; also that the meat of cattle affected by this disease had never been shown to be dangerous to the consumer. The ambassador was, therefore, instructed to protest against the action of the German Government.

Borki Disaster Anniversary.

Paris, Oct. 30.—The anniversary of the Borki disaster was observed with a service of thanks in the Russian church here. The president, Premier Dupuy and the foreign office were represented. It is reported that the idea of the czar's going to Corfu has been abandoned. The king of Greece and his son have returned to Athens, although preparations at the Monrepos villa continue.

A Prayer Meeting Party Waylaid.

Charleston, S. C., Oct. 30.—While some colored folks were going from prayer meeting the party was waylaid and shot into. One man was killed, one woman shot in three places and another had his clothes riddled by shot The assassin has confessed and if he can be taken away from the officers a lynching is probable. The colored people are much stirred up over the tragedy.

Souvenir Half Dollars Short.

Washington, Oct. 30.—So far nearly $500,000 of souvenir World's fair half dollars heve been exchanged for gold at the sub-treasuries. At the present rate of demand the supply will not last beyond next week.

WHAT AILS MY NERVES?

THEY ARE ALMOST DRIVING ME CRAZY.

They Won't Let Me Work and They Spoil My Pleasure—Here is a Way to Have Nerves Like Steel—Just Read This.

Thousands of people feel this way. Their nerves are weak and irritable, they pass sleepless nights; waking in the morning, tired and unrefreshed, with bad taste in the mouth, and dull feeling head. They feel nervous, blue and discouraged, often having a sense of anxiety and apprehension, as of some impending danger.

They feel they have lost their nerve power and much of their energy and ambition. They often declare themselves as "feeling just good for nothing." This was so with Mrs. N. H. Clark a prominent and well-known lady of Moretown, Vt. She writes the following unusually interesting letter:

"For some time I have been fearfully prostrated with nervous weakness. I was continually without strength and unable to do my work. I was completely tired out, and my nerves were so weak I was good for nothing.

"I could not sleep night I was so weak and nervous, and when I arose in the morning, I was as tired as when I went to bed, and sometimes even more so. I was entirely used up and miserable. I had no appetite, and the little food I could eat distressed me awfully.

"I had a constant fear and dread that something was going to happen. I also had a cough and bronchitis. I employed doctors and took medicines constantly, but without benefit. At this time a friend who had used Dr. Greene's Nervura blood and nerve remedy, and been cured by it, advised me to try it.

MRS. N. H. CLARK.

"I had not used the first bottle when I could plainly see more good results than from all the other medicines I had ever before taken. The good I derived from this most wonderful medicine was marvelous.

"I can sleep well and my nerves are strong and quiet. My appetite is good and I can eat anything without distress. I heartily recommend Dr. Greene's Nervura blood and nerve remedy to everybody, for I believe it to be the best medicine I have ever found, and a great boon to mankind."

You who are sick and suffering just remember this: Dr. Greene's Nervura blood and nerve remedy is the medicine that cures, and it is exactly what you want. There are countless numbers of persons in just this condition They are not sick with any particular disease, but are out of order, have weak nerves and tired bodies. They have lost their snap and energy, and work becomes an effort

You need Dr Greene's Nervura blood and nerve remedy. It will cure you. It is purely vegetable and harmless, and is the discovery of Dr. Greene, of 35 West 14th Street, New York, the most successful specialist in curing nervous and chronic diseases. He can be consulted free, personally or by letter.

Aluminium Boats are Flyers.

In a trial trip on the Thames recently of a second-class torpedo boat, built of aluminium, for France by the Yarrows, a speed of three and a half knots faster than the English boats of the same class was attained. In addition, the aluminum craft is two tons lighter than the present boats in use in the English navy, quite a consideration when it is remembered that warships carry this class of torpedo boat on their decks for use in scouting. The Yarrows say that a large cruiser built in the same manner would attain a speed of forty knots per hour.

The Girl of This Year.

"Can you sweep and cook divinely?" he asked his sweetheart true.
"I can sweep and cook," she answered, "quite as well as you;
Can make your coat and trousers, your shoes and derby fiat,
Or fill the place of janitor in a domestic flat.
But I think our cook would suit you, as a maiden up to date;
Come, let me introduce her—she's a kitchen graduate." —Detroit Free Press.

What a Name and Whiskers!

Bimber Yagg, of Scrooks Hollow, Ky., has barometrical whiskers. He predicts an unusually cold winter, because at sunrise and sunset his beard, which is three feet long, rises up and covers his face. Mr. Yagg has observed that this whiskerial phenomenon takes place only before intensely cold weather. He is well thought of in the community, and is to be put in charge of the local weather bureau.—Mail and Express.

Making It Serious.

He had lingered at the gate in the entrancing presence of the girl who is all the world to him. Her father had slammed the front shutters several times, but in vain. At last she murmured:

"Herbert."

"What is it?"

"You have said good night several times."

"Why—er—so I have."

"I want to trust you—but I can't help wondering whether you mean other things you say to me any more than you do that.—Washington Star.

HOHENLOHE POPULAR

His Appointment Continues To Meet with Favor.

Very Much Respected and Beloved in the Reichsland—Baron Koeller's Appointment Viewed with Concern—Correspondence to the London Press on the Situation.

London, Oct. 30.—The Morning Post's Berlin correspondent says: "Prince Hohenlohe being no speaker, Dr. von Boetticher probably will be the government's mouthpiece in parliament for home affairs and Freiherr Marschall von Bieberstein will represent it in foreign affairs. Prince Hohenlohe's appointment continues to be favorably commented on, although it will be regretted in the Reichsland where he was universally and deservedly respected and beloved. The position of statthalter in his hands developed a dignity and semi-independence with which only the viceroyalty of India perhaps is comparable. Owing to his and his wife's great wealth, the sacrifice of the place of statthalter, with a salary of £8,500 for the chancellorship with a salary of £2,700 was inappreciable.

Baron Koeller's departure will not be regretted in the Reichsland. His appointment is viewed with concern even by Caprivi's opponents. In the reichstags of 1887 and 1891 he was an avowed reactionist, a strong anti-semite, an advocate of repressive laws against the socialists, and an opponent of a free press."

The Daily News hears from its Berlin correspondent: "It is certain that the kaiser designated Count Botho zu Eulenburg for the governorship of the Reichsland and that Prince Hohenlohe objected. I learn from a credible source that the kaiser has decided upon the Prince of Hohenlohe-Langenburg for the place. The latter is unknown in politics, except in the one respect that he is not a reactionist nor an iron-fisted administrator. He is greatly interested in colonial matters." The News correspondent speaks of Baron Koeller as free from prejudice, energetic and just.

The Standard's Berlin correspondent says: "The countermanding at the last minute of the cabinet council summoned started all kinds of reports, one being that the crisis was not over, that several ministers and secretaries of state intended to resign, and that the secretary of justice had already retired."

The Standard correspondent regards the Prince of Hohenlohe-Langenburg as the most likely candidate for the post of statthalter in Strassburg, but says that the appointment of Prince Frederick of Hohenzollern is possible.

KILLED BY A BULL.

A Laborer Terribly Gored To Death on the Belle Meade Farm.

Somerville, N. J., Oct. 30.—Jacob Swartz, a farm laborer, at the Belle Meade stock farm of Charles Howell Cook, was gored to death by an infuriated Holstein bull. Swartz had entered the bull's pen to care for it when the animal tore from its nose the ring by which it was fastened on account of its vicious nature. With a mad plunge the bull pinioned Swartz to the side of the stable with its horns. Farm laborers rushed to the rescue, but were unable to beat off the maddened beast. Drawing back it repeatedly attacked its victim until it forced his body through a heavy board partition into the adjoining pen. Swartz was dead when picked up. The bull is the largest of his breed in the country and was formerly the property of Senator McPherson. Swartz is the third man the animal has killed.

Pinned to the Floor.

Fall River, Mass. Oct. 30.—While workmen were engaged in hoisting steam engines cylinders into place at the Durfee Mills, a part of the fastenings gave away and Robert Gray, an engineer employed by the Watts Campbell Engine company of Newark, N. J., was pinned between the cylinder and the flooring. Edward Preu, a workman, was similarly caught. Gray's injuries proved fatal at the hospital of the Good Samaritan shortly after he had been removed there. Preu was badly though not fatally hurt. Gray was a middle aged man and it is said he leaves a family in Newark.

Olney Against Tillman.

Washington, Oct. 30.—Attorney General Olney has decided adversely to Gov. Tillman on the question raised between the United States and the state of South Carolina in the dispensary case. This brings the South Carolina dispensary law into direct conflict with the international revenue laws of the United States.

Columbia, S. C., Oct. 30.—Governor Tillman says the opinion of Attorney General Olney was nothing more than he expected. That is all he has to say.

No Speech from Carlisle.

Washington, Oct. 30.—It is officially anounced that Secretary Carlisle will not make any speeches in New York state or any other state during the pending political campaign. This announcement was made presumably after Secretary Carlisle had conferred with the president, as on Saturday the statement was made that Mr. Carlisle would confer with the president before he took any action in the matter.

Roasted on Her Bed.

New York, Oct. 30.—By the explosion of a lamp which stood near a bed on which Mrs. Ellen Conroy was sleeping in her apartments on Cherry street last night the woman was almost roasted to death before she was rescued by neighbors. The flames were quickly extinguished and Mrs. Conroy was removed to a hospital where her injuries were pronounced fatal.

Doctors Say It Was Hysteria.

New York, Oct. 30.—Joseph Hurterscher, a young Illinois farmer, died in the Pasteur institute, in this city. He had been bitten by a dog that showed rabbies. Hurterscher was seized with a fit in Central park a week ago and sent to Bellevue hospital. The doctors said he was suffering from hysteria, not hydrophobia.

POLITICAL HISTORY.

A Correspondent Revives Some Memories Concerning John T. Dunn.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE DAILY PRESS: In an extract from the Elizabeth Herald, published in your issue of the 29th inst., occur these words, viz:

"Defeat will come only through men who would be traitors to their own party by refusing, on account of personal differences, to cast their votes."

An addition is made either by Mr. Dunn or the Herald editor, as follows:

"Such men should pause and consider the effect of their action on the future of the party. There are other elections in other years to come, and political fate has an unpleasant way of dealing with men as they deal with others."

In 1887 Mr. Dunn was a candidate for the office of Surrogate of the County of Union; his principal opponent was the late James J Gerber. Mr. Gerber was the successful candidate. At the same convention Robert L. Livingston of Plainfield was nominated to succeed himself as Senator; Thomas Forsyth as Sheriff and Crowell of Rahway for County Clerk.

Did Mr. Dunn abide by the action of the convention? Not at all. He spoke openly, and threw his influence against the action of the convention. The whole Democratic ticket, with the exception of Crowell, was defeated, a result more due to Mr. Dunn than to any other citizen of the County of Union.

In 1892 Mr. Dunn was nominated and elected a member of Congress of the Eighth Congressional District. Many believing that treachery should not be rewarded, refused to cast their votes for him, but the great majority supported him simply that if our President should be elected he should be strengthened by a strong majority in his favor in Congress.

Mr. Dunn is now a candidate for re-election. He charges all connected with the Democracy, that if they fail to cast their ballots for him they are traitors to their party.

Who set us the example? Was it not the honorable and illustrious John T?

He was chosen as the servant not the master of the Democrats of his district. In the distribution of his patronage what consideration has he given us? He knows full well that in his appointment of postmaster was in opposition to the wishes of almost all ever connected with the Democratic party of this city. Add to this the untruths that flowed from his mouth in a continuous strain, what right has he to expect marked favor from us?

"The mills of the gods grind slowly,
But grind exceedingly small."

Let Mr. Dunn take heed that he be not caught between the upper and nether millstone on Nov. 6, next. VERITAS.

What Father Smyth Really Said.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE DAILY PRESS:—To hear and repeat correctly is a rare talent, and in the short item in The Press of last night your correspondent completely distorted Father Smyth's few words spoken Sunday.

Although there is no reason why a citizen, or body of citizens of the country which all have fought for and love, should not appeal to that country's laws in case of any infringement of civil rights, there was no shadow of advice for such appeal in the short address made in St. Mary's Church last Sunday.

The occasion was one of special prayer to be held for forty hours in that church, and the services were too long to admit of a sermon. In his few words of exhortation to his people to make the most of their spiritual opportunity, Father Smyth spoke of the objects for which they should pray, and dwelt long on the freedom and prosperity of this dear land, that it might be true to its trust of the hopes of nations.

In this connection he alluded to secret political parties as menacing this prosperity, and urged his people to pray that God's spirit might dispel the ignorance of her teaching which alone caused the desire to persecute the Catholic church.

There was neither in spirit nor word a suggestion of "downing" anybody, or appealing to law; on the contrary, Father Smyth distinctly said: "We have no unkind feeling toward these people", but must pray that the bonds of charity and mutual understanding might avert the danger of such organization disturbing public peace.

One of his hearers thought how much just such words could do to bring about the result the good priest desired, and it is a little trying to see them misquoted, in a tone which could do nothing but stir up the feeling of fight, so fatal to religion and State.

The few words breathed the spirit of the eighth beatitude, and if they urged "downing" anyone, or anything, it was by the means with which Christianity has partly succeeded in downing paganism and cruelty: the weapons of love and prayer, and appeal to no law but God's law, His spirit of knowledge, and His grace to love, and be patient.

"There is Danger in Delay."

Since 1861 I have been a great sufferer from catarrh. I tried Ely's Cream Balm and to all appearances am cured. Terrible headaches from which I had long suffered are gone—W. J. Hitchcock, late Major U. S. Vol. and A. A. Gen., Buffalo, N. Y.

Ely's Cream Balm has completely cured me of catarrh when everything else failed. Many acquaintances have used it with excellent results—Alfred W. Stevens, Caldwell, Ohio.

An Office Boy's Share in a Chicago Robbery.

New York, Oct. 30.—Isaac Steinberg, fifteen years old, was arrested at his uncle's home, No. 690 Park avenue, Brooklyn, by Detective Zellenger, of the Chicago police, assisted by Detectives Grady and Dolan, on a charge of robbing a safe in Chicago of $5,000 worth of diamonds and $200 in cash. According to the statement of Detective Zellenger, young Steinberg was employed in the big picture frame factory of S. Franklin, at Morgan and Twelfth streets, Chicago, as office boy. On the morning of August 24 he was found in the office bound and gagged upon the floor. The safe doors were open and the valuables taken. The lad told a wild story of three well dressed men who entered the office, bound him, and looted the safe. He gave accurate discriptions of the mythical thieves—for myths they proved to be—and for several weeks the police hunted for the men. Their efforts proved in vain, and then they suspected the office boy. A trap was laid for Steinberg. He was sent to the postoffice to get $11 worth of stamps. He got $4 worth and kept the change. When confronted he confessed his guilt. Then finally he was induced to tell the story of the burglary. The famous Martel and McGraw gang, he said, had, with his aid, carried out the robbery. He had let them into the office and the safe, and they had bound him to mislead the police. The lad's employers declined to let him be arrested, since they had hoped to obtain more information that would lead to the arrest of the perpetrators of the deed. The boy remained a week or so at work and then fled to this city. Detective Zellenger followed him here and with the help of the Brooklyn police arrested him. The boy was arraigned in the Lee avenue police court. He admitted having received $50 as his share of the profits, and told the detectives where a gang had buried a part of the diamonds. This information was telegraphed to Chicago. The lad was held pending the arrival of the necessary requisition papers to take him west.

TROUBLE FOR SENATOR MARTIN

A Warrant Issued for His Arrest on the Charge of Criminal Libel.

Topeka, Kas., Oct. 30.—A warrant has been issued in Allan county, on the complaint of Nelson F. Acres, for the arrest of United States Senator John Martin, on a charge of criminal liable. In an authorized interview given out by Senator Martin a little more than a week ago, he defended Gov. Lewelling and other populist state officers against a charge of corruption made by Acres, and denounced him as a gambler and all round disreputable person. Acres was collector of internal revenue in Kansas during Cleveland's first administration, and has for years been prominent in democratic circles. When he saw Martin's interview he came to Topeka promptly and demanded a retraction. The Senator refused to accede to the demand. Acres returning to his home in Iola and instituted the proceedings against the senator that will result in his arrest. Senator Martin is supporting the populist state ticket and when asked as to the probable effect of his arrest politically, said that it would make thousands of democrats vote for populists.

THE CZAREWITCH'S WEDDING

It Is Not Expected To Take Place Before Next Friday.

London, Oct. 30.—A dispatch to the Pall Mall Gazette from Yalta says that the Metropolitan of St. Petersburg has arrived there to annoint Princess Alix, in view of the fact that her wedding is shortly to take place. During the next four days it is added the princess will attend religious services in the National church. It is not expected, however, that her marriage to the czarewitch will occur before Friday. The Yalta dispatch also announces that preparations are being made there for the arrival of the Duchess of Saxe-Coburg-Gotha (the Duchess of Edinburgh), sister of the czar, the royal family of Denmark and other, distinguished guests.

Conductors Suspended.

Boston, Oct. 30.—Two conductors of the eastern division and two on the western division of the Boston & Maine railroad have been suspended charged with negligence in collecting tickets. The particular offence charged is the practice of neglecting to compel passengers who use the commutation 100-mile ride ticket to show their books. This is quite common on many of the suburban trains where the conductors are familiar with the commuters whom they meet every day. The men are also charged with accepting coupons given by commuters to friends in violation of the company's rules.

Cadets Expelled.

Boston, Oct. 30.—Thirteen of the cadets aboard the ship Enterprise have been asked to withdraw from the Massachusetts nautical training school. This is the outcome of an investigation made by the commissioners and is only another way of saying that the thirteen have been expelled. Among the causes specified as bringing about the request are incapacity, insubordination, lack of desire to study, general incompetency and unamenability to discipline.

Will Try and Break the Record.

Boston, Oct. 30.—C. S. Vinton of the Eagle Cycling club of this city and the Century Road club of America began yesterday in his attempt to break the record of J. F. Gunther of 3,500 miles in thirty days. His trials will be made over the course from Boston to Newburyport and return which is just 100 miles in length and which he covered in nine hours. He is but 19 years old, and during the last five or six days of the trial expects to be able to ride 200 miles a day.

Blizzard in the West.

Sioux City, Io., Oct. 30.—Snow has been falling all day over nearly all of South Dakota and northwestern Iowa. At Vermillion the snowstorm resembles an old-fashioned blizzard. Several inches of snow have fallen here and it is still coming down.

Fall River Strike Declared Off.

Fall River, Mass., Oct. 30.—The weavers at a special meeting held in the Academy of Music voted almost unanimously to declare the strike off and will go back to work.

TRANSATLANTIC POSTAGE.

Insignificant States Defeat an International Stamp.

The most ardent protectionist never yet dreamt of proposing a duty, eo nomine on letters coming for him, or sent to a foreign county. A letter, however ill-spelt and blotted, from a mother in Galway is certainly a luxury when delivered in New York; but as a man can only have one mother, no American interest is injured by its arrival. And how many millions of American citizens have relatives in Europe, not only in the Emerald Isle, but in crowded English towns, or bleak Scottish braes, by the "castled crags" of the Rhine, along the stormy flords of Norway, on snow-mantled Russian steppes, high up on the sides of Swiss and Hungarian mountains—all of whom welcome a letter from America as Noah welcomed the dove that brought an olive leaf to the ark. "Thought is free."

Nevertheless, correspondence with foreign countries is subject to direct and needless taxation by the United States Government in common with all the governmehts which have adhered to the Postal Union. As is well known, the postage on a letter weighing one ounce, sent 2500 miles from New York to Vancouver, a foreign town is two cents; while the charge for sending a letter of half that weight 2,540 miles to another foreign town, Liverpool, is five cents.

What is the reason for this difference? asks a writer in the North American Review. It cannot be the cost of conveyance, for railway freightage is higher than sea freightage. It cannot be that the letters sent to Europe prejudice American interests that way. It cannot be the favorite (though, as will be presently seen) unsound argument of a British postmaster-general, that the five cents have to cover not only the cost, of putting one outgoing letter on board ship, but of delivering free a return letter; the postage on which has been received by a foreign government. For the postage to Canada (and I believe to Mexico) is but two cents, though letters coming from the Dominion (or Mexico) are equally delivered without charge.

The real reason is that the majority of the Postal Union consists of poor, greedy states, which are not advanced enough to recognize the wisdom of facilitating international correspondence and have therefore fixed the common Union tariff as high as possible.

Is it not intolerable that the voice of a mighty continent should count for no more than that of Servia or Siam? Yet at the late Postal Union conference the American proposal to establish a common international stamp was rejected chiefly by the insignificant reactionary states with small interests at stake.

A QUEEN'S PERQUISTES.

Whales Caught on the British Coast Belong to Victoria.

Among the most curious of her Majesty's perquisites is her right to every whale or sturgeon captured on the coast of the United Kingdom and brought to land. Both of these perquisites date back to the days of the Norman kings, and it appears that in case of the whale the monsters were divided between the sovereign and his consort, the Queen taking the head in order that her wardrobe might be replenished with the whalebone needed for the stiffening of her royal garments.

Another of the Queen's perquisities is a certain number of magnificent cashmere shawls, which are dispatched to her every year from the Kingdom of Cashmere. They vary in value as a rule from £60 to £250 a piece, and the Queen is accustomed to present one of them as a wedding present to every young girl of the aristocracy in whose future she is in any way interested. Every tailor holding a patent of "Purveyor to her Majesty," if he conforms to ancient tradition and usage, should present her with a silver needle each year. Another class of royal purveyors is called upon to present her annually with a tablecloth, while from other sources again she is entitled to an annual contribution of such varied tips as white doves, white hares, currycombs, fire-tongs scarlet hosiery, nightcaps, knives, lances and crossbows.

Moreover, at the coronation the Lord of the Manor of Hadington must present to the sovereign a "dish of pottage" composed of "almond of milk, brawn of capons, sugar, spices, chickens parboiled and chopped." At the same ceremony the Lord of the Manor of Haydon is obliged by virture of his tenure from the Crown, to present the monarch with a towel, the Lord of the Manor of Workshope giving the sovereign a "right-handed glove." These are only a few of the various perquisites to which Queen Victoria is entitled by tradition and usage.

Kisses Are Uncertain in Price.

The price of a stolen kiss varies in different countries. In America the court usage fixes it from $5 to $10, provided the thief don't bite the kissee. In London it ranges from half a crown to half a sovereign. In Ireland it has no commercial value. In France the tariff is fixed by the woman herself, and no one grumbles. In India an officer in Her Majesty's service has just been requested to resign for asking a lady to allow him to kiss her. The superfine standard of virtue thus suddenly brought to light creates some amusement in England, and Truth asks if compulsory retirement is deemed the proper penalty in this case, what would be the fate of the man who takes a kiss without asking leave, and suggests something lingering with boiling oil in it.

No Occasion for Formalities.

"Is this your umbrella, sir?" inquired the stranger in the brown suit, hurrying after the stranger in the drab suit, who had just got off the train.

"My dear sir," answered the other, "there need be no formalities in this case. We both saw it in the vacant seat at the same time. You got it first. I see it is a gold-handled affair and I congratulate you. Good-day."

A New York woman, who had been unable to serve divorce papers on her husband, owing to his continued absence, had it reported that she was dead, thinking that her husband would at least come to the funeral. A few days later she received a letter from him in which he remarked that he knew the announcement of her death to be false, for he had always lived under an unlucky star—probably Venus.

His Arm Could Wait.

Miss Mollie Stigers and Mr. Joseph Charlton of Hancock, drove to the recent Hagerstown fair to see the sights and incidentally to get married on the sly. Mr. Charlton was pitched from the buggy in a runaway accident, and had one of his arms broken. The Rev. Isaac Condit married the couple however, before Charlton would have his arm set.—Washington Post.

Strictly Business.

"O—h! And is it a real diamond?" twittered the young woman, in the most artless manner imaginable.

"It is not, Miss Fetherbee," said the young man firmly, "but I will say that it has always been my custom to give bond to replace it with a real one immediately after the performance of the ceremony."

WM. HOLMES A STAR.

HE DOES GOOD WORK IN OPERA COMIQUE AT CRANFORD.

The Alcaeus Society Commences Its Third Season With "The Mousquetaires"—Who Were in It, and the Success They Made.

The Cranford Opera House was crowded last evening when the Alcaeus Society began its third season, presenting Louis Varney's charming opera comique "Les Mousquetaires" ("The Musketeers") with the following cast:

Narcisse de Brissac.....Wm. Holmes
Gontran de Solanges.....J. T. Brennan
Abbe Bridaine.....A. W. Macintosh
Count de Pontcourlay.....H. R. VanSaun
Rigobert.....H. McCullough
Richard.....J. Halsey Sanford
Langlois.....R. F. Hibson
Farin.....J. Harper Hunt
Fracasse.....W. H. Lawrence
Patatras.....Walter Cawthorne
Marie de Pontcourlay,
Miss Ethel Voorhies Thompson
Louise de Pontcourlay.....Miss Sara J. Brown
Simone.....Miss Nettie Hellerman
Lady Superior.....Miss T. A. Hibson
Sister Opportune.....Miss Annie Edgecumbe
Madame Champvert.....Mrs. W. H. Lawrence
Jacqueline.....Miss H. Jackson
Claudine.....Miss B. Burhans
Isabelle.....Miss Lucy Miller
Berthe.....Miss Elizabeth Davis
Julie.....Miss J. Torbush
Clorinde.....Miss O. B. Edgecumbe
Yvonne.....Miss E. L. Kingsland

The performance was thoroughly enjoyable and the large audience most liberal in its applause. The production was the most ambitious yet attempted by the society, and while the ability of the manager, H. M. Jackson, was fully displayed in more ways than one, his work and that of the company might have been materially strengthened by a few judicious omissions, especially in the case of the interpolated part song by Bridaine and Marie in the second act, which while well sung, was not in harmony with the rest of the music, and, seemingly out of place, might well have been left out.

Wm. Holmes of this city was capital as the Captain of the Musketeers, singing and acting the part to its fullest possibility. Mr. Brennan, a newcomer, was most acceptable in the tenor role, and Mr. Mackintosh made up well as the old abbe, although he might have wrung his hands a little less and removed his hat in the indoor scene. Miss Thompson was a sweetly pretty Marie, singing most tunefully, and Miss Hellerman was exceedingly clever in the soubrette part. The chorus, as usual, was excellent, but did not have in this opera the opportunities they deserve. The interpolation of a "Robin Hood" quartette in the first and DeKoven's "Past and Future" in the last act was appropriate and enjoyable, the latter being delightfully rendered by Miss Thompson. The next performance of the society is announced for Jan. 22

Successful Oyster Supper.

The oyster supper held in the Monroe Avenue Chapel last evening, was a success socially and financially. It was under the auspices of the Young Ladies Association and the proceeds were for the benefit of the Chapel.

Owing to the threatening weather the attendance was n't as large as expected.

There were six tables constantly kept filled during the evening.

The tables were tastefully decorated with flowers and showed a fine appearance. The young ladies deserve credit for the manner in which the supper was carried out.

President—Miss Gracie Palmer.
Vice-president—Miss Mary Beekman.
Secretary—Miss Kate Apgar.
Treasurer—Miss Lizzie Koster.

Those who waited on the tables were: Miss Lottie Beekman, Miss Ada Wenzel, Miss Georgia Beekman, Miss Emma Hayes. Samuel Beekman acted as cashier and took charge of the funds to the satisfaction of all.

Good Time Over Lunch-Boxes.

Howell Division, Sons of Temperance, No. 97, gathered in their rooms on East Front street last evening and enjoyed one of their famous lunch-box sociables. Worthy-Patriarch W. E. Clum and several members of the Scotch Plains Division were present and joined in the festivities.

Worthy Patriarch Mrs. James Huntington of Howell Division was in the chair and announced the programme. It consisted of a recitation by Try Mattox, instrumental selection, Arthur Drake, and a recitation by Bertha Clum. Sylvester Scribner and George Eddy spoke very enthusiastically of the work and were heartily applauded by the audience.

The lunch-boxes were then auctioned off by William R. Mattox. The price averaged for each box was about 35 cents.

The balance of the evening was spent in a social way and all were much pleased with the event.

Mrs. Howe Next.

The members of the Monday Afternoon Club gathered in the Casino Monday and informally discussed various club topics. It was announced that at the next meeting Mrs. Julia Ward Howe would speak on the woman's suffrage question and that a general discussion of the subject would follow her address.

THE CRESCENT CENTURY

Twelve Riders Finished the Hundred Miles.

SOME OF 'EM RODE EVEN MORE.

A Rider of Twelve Centuries Said He Never Before Had Such Congenial Company—Events of the Trip in Detail.

Thirteen cyclers went on the Crescent run yesterday. All of them finished except one. Four went 105 miles and eight 101. A slight rain made the last few miles disagreeable, but otherwise the day was well suited for a century trip.

The riders were Captain J. A. Haynes, T. J. Carey, John J. Kenney, F. L. C. Martin. John Rickert, R. A. Meeker, Fred W. Bird, John Petrie, Wm. Bamberger, Walter Manning, Will L. McClure, John Keefe, and C. P. Staubach of the Manhattan Wheelmen, New York.

After waiting 15 minutes after 5, the time set, Captain Haynes led the party from Trade Temple on the way to Bound Brook. Beyond Dunellen Bamberger had frequent falls from the narrow sidepath, the darkness making it difficult to follow it.

According to the schedule exclusively announced in The Daily Press the ride before dinner was through Somerville, Belle Mead, Hopewell, Pennington, Trenton, and Princeton to New Brunswick. During this part of the trip two mishaps occurred. McClure punctured a tire before reaching Hopewell and was delayed a short time for repairs. In Kingston Petrie's wheel was disabled by a hot-box caused by the tightening of the cones. He found a jeweler who was able to repair his wheel so that he could ride by bee line to Plainfield.

Dinner was eaten at the Mansion House in New Brunswick, Capt. Haynes having ordered it for 2:30. Just after leaving the city one of Carey's tires was punctured. This caused but little delay, and all the riders were together in Metuchen.

Here Capt. Haynes decided to go direct to Plainfield as it began to drizzle. All followed him except Carey, Kenney, Bird and Rickert, who went over the course originally mapped out, through Rahway. Elizabeth had a share of bad roads and reached Plainfield at 6:15, having covered 105 miles. The larger party came to Plainfield and then made a quick trip to Springfield, making 101 miles by 6.

Staubach, the New York cycler who came out to make the trip, had ridden in 12 centuries before. He said he had never been in more congenial company nor on such a combination of roads. The macadam about Plainfield seemed perfect to him while at the other end of the route 71 miles of road were employ strips of shale scattered in lumps between two lines of fence.

REPUBLICAN RECEPTION.

Candidates to Meet Their Plainfield Constituents Tonight.

The Republican City Executive Committee announce an informal reception to be held in Republican Headquarters over the City Bank tonight. The Republican nominees for Congress, Assembly and County Clerk will be there to greet all citizens. It will be an excellent opportunity for all to get well acquainted with one another.

Late Arrivals, Hotel Albion.

Newark—Mr and Mrs Chas N Barcole, F T Cook.

The Mystery of the Key.

A circumstance which is giving Justice Mosher considerable to worry about is that when he retired last evening the windows and doors were all fastened securely; when he arose this morning everything was found just as they were left, except a strange key which lay in the middle of the dining room floor. Neither he nor his wife had seen the key before and they do not know how to account for its presence.

THREE PERSONS KILLED.

COLLISION AT AN OPEN SWITCH.

Serious Accident to a Delaware, Lackawanna and Western Night Express.

Scranton, Pa., Oct. 31.—Express train No. 7 on the Delaware, Lackawanna and Western Railroad northbound, running at the rate of forty miles an hour, dashed into a freight train standing on an open switch at Forster, twenty-seven miles north of here, at 1 o'clock this morning. Three persons were killed and large number were injured. The train was a through one. It left New York at 7:30 o'clock last evening and was due in Buffalo this morning.

Engineer James Lynott of Scranton and Fireman Elmer Scull of Moscow were among the killed.

Engineer Valentine Butler and Fireman William Hosey, both of Binghamton, were on the passenger engine. Hosey was caught in the wreck of the engines and scalded to death. But Butler escaped with scarcely a bruise.

President Samuel Sloan of the Delaware, Lackawanna and Western Railway said in New York city that the three men killed in the wreck were the engineer and two firemen. According to his advices no passengers were killed.

PRACTICAL ELECTRICITY.

To Be Taught in Right Schools, Supervised by Professional Experts.

Dr. J. Allan Hornsby, the engineer and inventor, who won a national reputation as chief electrical engineer at the World's Fair in Chicago, is in New York city to look after the organization of a National School of Electricity. He also proposes visiting Plainfield before returning West, to organize a branch here. The officers of the school are as follows: Thomas A. Edison, dean; Prof. J. P. Barrett, chief of the Electrical Department at the World's Fair, president, and Dr. Hornsby, secretary.

The faculty comprises, among others, the following well-known electricians and engineers: Nikola Tesla, Prof. H. J. Ryan of Cornell, Prof. H. S. Carhart of Ann Arbor University, Prof. D. C. Jackson of the University of Wisconsin, Prof. B. Y. Thomas of the Ohio State University, Dr. F. A. C. Perrine of Leland Stanford University, and Dr. Elisha Grey.

The object of the school is purely philanthropic. There are no salaries for either officers or faculty. It is organized to teach electricity to those who desire to take up this line of study, and cannot take advantage of a college course. All merely technical and scientific knowledge is eliminated from the course of study.

The course consists of forty-five lectures. Each lecture is prepared by an expert in the particular subject. It is then submitted for examination in proof to every member of the faculty. Thus every lecture gets the advantage of the criticism of thirteen first-class experts. The faculty appoint an instructor, who is usually selected from the thoroughly equipped college graduates.

Dr. Hornsby will probably be at the Y. M. C. A. rooms in this city on Saturday evening of this week, but definite notice regarding the time will be given later.

SURPRISE CELEBRATION.

Uncle Jack Adds to the Merriment of a 12th Anniversary.

Last evening the following young misses and masters gathered at the residence of Councilman Valiant on Craig place and thence proceeded to the home of Mr. and Mrs. Jacob Voehl for the purpose of congratulating Tena, their youngest daughter, whose birthday it was. The evening was most pleasantly spent in games of all kinds, after which lunch was served, of which all partook. Those present were the Misses Ethel Porter, Helen Harned, Addie Carney, Nellie Valiant, Tena Voehl, Sadie Winckler, Ethel King, Lucretia Clark, Ada VanHorne, Mabel Stevens, and Masters George Pope, Fred. Armstrong, Hilare Blatz, Harry Vetterlein, Robbie Hand, John Carney, Fred. Voorhees, George Giddis, James Patterson and Eddie Smalley.

John H. Carney made all merry by telling them his original and funny stories. He is known by all the children as Uncle Jack.

A Bible, Bottle, and Hemp.

Nelson Peterson, colored, was arrested by Policeman Robinson, last evening, on West Second street, for being drunk and disorderly. Judge Coddington suspended sentence this morning.

William Briffith and Joseph Halliwell, were drunk and disorderly on North avenue last night and Policeman Cooney arrested them as suspicious characters. They had a bottle of whisky, a Bible and some tar rope. They were trying to force an entrance into Roberts's livery, when arrested Sentence was suspended by the Judge.

PLEA FOR PRINCIPLE.

MANLY REPLY NO THE "PLEA FOR WORKINGMEN".

Publicist Urges the Establishment of a Higher Ideal in Politics, and Repudiates McKinleyism.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE DAILY PRESS:—A letter has been printed and published over the initials P. S. purporting to come from a workingman and to advocate the workingmen's interests, but in reality it is only a plea for the election of Charles N. Fowler. It is, however, so full of sophistry, I do not heed its abuse of the Democratic party, that I ask the favor of The Press to offer a brief reply.

I am no partisan. I have studied practical politics closely ever since the war, and when I remember the administrations of Grant, Hayes, and Harrison, and the experience of New York State and city and other examples of Democratic misrule, I am absolutely unable to determine whether the Democrats or the Republicans when in office are the greater rascals. I am, I must confess, rather disposed to award the dishonor to the Republicans, but I have not decided.

It is unfortunate that both parties allow themselves to be carried away from first principles by questions of minor import. It is unfortunate too that legislators are too often men of such narrow mind that they make measures mere local issues when they should be dealt with as of national importance. With this much by way of preface let me come to our alleged workingman, P. S.

His argument may be very briefly stated. It is the threadbare one, that this country two years ago was "enjoying a degree of prosperity beyond anything in the memory of the oldest inhabitant", and that since Mr. Cleveland's inauguration it has sunk into a slough of "blasted hopes", "silent factories", "broken hearts", and all that sort of thing. Now, the first proposition is false. I am not going to worry your readers with figures to substantiate my statement, but contest myself for the present, at least, with the assertion. Two years ago the country was very far from enjoying an unprecedented measure of prosperity. The blight of Mr. Blaine's policy and failures was upon it, and the blunders of Mr. Sherman and his mistaken followers were paralyzing it. If so prosperous as P. S. pretends, of what use had been the McKinley bill, which could not make its influence felt in less than a year or two. But in that time it was felt, and meanwhile Mr. Cleveland, having come into office, the Republicans were only too glad to unload the responsibility of their antiquated and unstatesmanlike policy on to Democratic shoulders; and the people —— what shall I say? Have the people, like P. S., been fools enough to believe them?

It is all very well to talk as P. S. does about "American institutions, American factories, American wages, American homes" and the like. It is plausable bait, but American common sense should be able to discern that there is nothing in it more than bait to catch the thoughtless. P. S. is fully justified when he lays stress on the misery that prevailed last Winter and for so many months before, but the idea that a mere Presidential election or even a change of policy can so suddenly change the condition of 65,000,000 of people from one of unprecedented prosperity to one of unparalleled distress, is simply ridiculous, astoundingly ridiculous. If it were true, we would better abolish Presidential elections, abandon a Republican form of Government and send to Europe for a King.

The Wilson bill is not a free trade measure. I cannot discover that any large proportion of the Democratic party are free traders. P. S. and other extremists like him are awfully frightened, but the bogy that scares them is of home manufacture. They make it themselves. Free Trade is not yet within the region of practical politics in this country. I can recollect though when it was the earnest issue in England, and I remember that the following of Coburn, Bright, Sir Robert Peel, and the parts was made up largely of working men. I will go a step further. I say not only that free trade and of protection have never yet been adequately discussed, either in the press or in the Legislature of the United States. If they had been no same majority of persons rightfully claiming to be statesmen would ever have sanctioned such an abuse of legislation as that which attaches to the name of McKinley.

Unlike P. S. I am not writing in favor of any candidate. I should like to see faction relegated to a less degree of insignificance, and principle raised to a higher prominence. I should like to see better men nominated for office, and the best men influencing nominations. I should like to see politicians crushed out existence, and statesmen, as numerous as under our institutions, they ought to be; and I know that until some such ideal is attained, corruption and silly laws will characterize our law-making powers, but that it can never be attained while heed is given to such influence as that which men like P. S. try to exercise.

THE VALUE OF TRUTH.

A Pastor Scores the "Advanced Thought" of Bible Critics.

SAYS IT WEAKENS CHRISTIAN LIVING

Plea for Higher Education by a Plainfield High School Graduate—Christ's Demand for Young Men—Other Doings of the Big Church Gatherings—Thanks to Plainfield Baptists.

The meeting of the Baptist State Education Society was continued in the First Baptist Church yesterday afternoon after the appointment of committees reported exclusively in The Daily Press of yesterday.

At 3 the annual report of the Education Society was given by the secretary, Rev. Dr. O. P. Eaches of Hightstown. The roll of the society showed that 42 students were being helped by the organization They were divided among the different educational institutions as follows: Peddie Institute, 4; South Jersey Institute, 8; Brown University, 2; Bucknell University, 2; Rochester Seminary, 2; Chicago University, 2; German institutions, 2; Corex Seminary, 8; Maryland Seminary, 3; Southern Seminary, 2; Philadelphia Training School, 1

According to the report, new rules under which the work will be more effectively accomplished had been adopted by the board. The sum given to students has been reduced, and the number to be aided limited to 40. Dr. Eaches offered many valuable suggestions as to the future labors of the organizations.

Rev. C. C. Tilley, of Bridgeton delivered the annual sermon. His text was Proverbs XXIII: 23, "Buy the truth and sell it not". The discourse was one of sterling merit, and held the close attention of the congregation from the reading of the text to the closing sentence. Mr. Tilley said that men had sold the truth to escape death and afterwards regained it at the cost of their lives. At the present time we do not sell it, we give it away. We are in danger now from what is called advanced thought. Many are deceived by these teachings, and the common people are weakened in the practice of God's commands. The possession of truth and its proper use form a necessity of life. Life depends on truth for its very existence. We must pay the price for thuth, and when we have it we must use it. A man must have a certain spiritual development that comes only from humble obedience of the truth. Let us earnestly pray that the souls of our younger men be prepared as the Spirit can prepare them.

Rev. G. E. Horr, treasurer of the Society, next made his report. The receipts for the year were $6,103.63 and the debt of the Society was $1,467 13 Means of raising money to pay off the debt were discussed by several, among them Rev. W. V. Wilson of Port Monmouth, Rev. Dr. D. J. Yerkes of Plainfield, Rev. D. T. MacClymont of Newark, Rev. Dr. O. P. Eaches of Hightstown, Rev Dr. N. B. Randall of Summit and Rev. T. J. Cross of Atlantic City.

It was proposed to raise the $1 400 at once by contribution. Several large subscriptions were announced, and several of the clergymen went through the church collecting. Time pressing, the raising of the remainder of the money was referred to a committee.

Mrs. Miller of the Baptist Training School for Christian Work in Philadelphia was then introduced. She told of what graduates from the school were accomplishing in the different fields to which they had been called. New Jersey had sent six students already. The speaker hoped that the societies of the State would recognize their indebtedness and send on a subscription.

Rev. H. G. Trask, principal of the South Jersey Institute in Bridgeton, presented interesting details of the educational accomplishments in his institution. Rev. J. E. Perry of Peddie Institute. He treated his field in a similar manner.

The Nominating Committee having reported, the following officers were elected:

President—Rev. E. T. Tomlinson.

Vice-presidents from Associations—West Jersey Association—C. C. Tilley; Camden—H. A. Griesemer; Trenton—Judson Conklin; Central—F. A. Smith; East—J. B. L'Hommedieu; North—E. McMinn; Morris and Essex—I. M. B. Thompson.

Secretary—O. P. Eaches.

Treasurer—George E. Horr.

Board of Managers—W. W. Bullock, Lemuel Moss, J. A. Chambliss, C. E. Cordo, W. T. S. Lumbar, J. T. Craig, G. W. Clark, J. B. Crumley, M. P. Pike, G. H. Demarest, E. F. McKean, A. S. Flock, Albert Foster, M. M. French, J. P. Hopping, J. M. Hare, F. C. A. Jones, Nathan Kent, P. A. H. Kline, J. W. Lyell, E. W. Stone, D. T. MacClymont, G. B. Lawson, C. E. Lapp, Charles H. Runyon, C. H. Dodd, H. M. Lowry, J. J. Pierson, H. Westcott, G. B. Young.

Rev. Dr. Yerkes offered prayer in closing and the afternoon session ended.

The body of the church was again crowded at 7:30 last evening when the second and final session of the Education Society began. Rev. L. E. Wheeler of New Brunswick led the devotional services.

The report of the Enrollment Committee was first received. It showed that 75 churches were represented at the meeting by 128 delegates. The Place and Preacher Committee announced the selection of the North Church of Camden as the place of meeting next year and Rev. F. A. Smith of Somerville as the preacher for the occasion.

The committee on the death of President Parmley reported through Dr. Eaches, who made a touching address on the noble life of the man and his connection with the society. The resolutions presented by the committee were adopted. On motion of Rev. J. H. Dudley of Union Hill the thanks of the society were given to the people of the First Baptist Church for their generous hospitality. Dr. Yerkes suggested that the Park Avenue Church should also receive recognition, and the motion thus amended was unanimously carried.

"The Relation of Higher Education to Evangelization" was the subject of an address by Rev. W. G. Partridge of Scranton. He was introduced as a Jerseyman, and supplemented this with the statement that he was graduated from the Plainfield High School in 1872. He spoke in high terms of the work of the society, and of all organizations which aid the progress of education. Their work was hindered by the churches which took young men from the first classes of college with the idea that too much learning would spoil their preaching. The practical preacher should be able to interest both educated and common people.

Rev. A. W. H. Hodder of New York spoke on "Christ's Demand for Young Men". He said there existed a great demand for young workers in the ministry. Their need of careful preparation was the theme of the greater part of his talk. Rev. Leighton Williams of New York followed in the same line of thought with a speech brightened with anecdotes cleverly worked into his remarks. The happy medium between a "short-cut" to the pulpit and a waste of time in study was what he sought.

Short prayers were offered by Rev. Dr. A. G. Lawson of Camden and Rev M. V. McDuffie of New Brunswick. Then the meeting of the Education Society was formally adjourned.

At 2 yesterday afternoon, while the Education Society was in session in the church, the Woman's Baptist Foreign Missionary Society met in the lecture-room below. The room was crowded. Madame Layyah Barakat of Syria addressed the meeting. She gave details of her experience as a missionary, especially in her early life, and of how she obtained her education in Beirut, Syria. The women were much interested.

The session this morning was highly interesting, the most important business being the announcement by the Nominating Committee of the following ticket:

President—Samuel Colgate.

Vice-presidents—D D Read, C E Sutphen, Asa Suydam, T Burroughs, J C Buchanan, A H Sembower, H C Albert.

Secretary—C A Cook.

Corresponding Secretary—D DeWolf.

Treasurer—B F Fowler.

Managers for three years—A W Rogers, E A Armstrong, W H J Parker, J M Watson, L E Wheeler, Theodore Heisig, S Gifford Nelson.

Additional managers provided for by new rules:

For three years—W W Pratt, J K Manning, W G Russell.

For two years—R F West, N A Merritt, W N Hubbel.

For one year—W E Ware, J W Brougher, P F. Botzong.

The ballots were distributed, and it was apparent that the officers named had been elected, although the report of the teller was held over.

KILLED BY A CASTING.

Workman Maitland's Skull Crushed at the Worthington Works.

Elizabeth, Oct. 31—John Maitland, a moulder, 35 years old, married, and residing at 9 Passaic avenue, Newark, was instantly killed at 10 today in the Worthington Pump Works at Elizabethport.

A heavy plate casting was being hoisted into a car by a derrick when the hook of the hoisting chain broke, letting the casting fall on Maitland's head, crushing his skull into a pulp.

LEE CONVICTED.

He Is Fined $50, and Appeals.

The jury in the case of William H. Lee, tried yesterday for illegal liquor selling, convicted him after 10-minutes deliberation. Judge Coddington fined him $50. He appealed.

THE SECRET ORDERS.

The attendance at the Sons of Veterans fair last evening was excellent and an evening of much pleasure was enjoyed by all. Division Commander Pollitt and staff of Paterson are expected to attend one night during the week.

A Cow Blown Over.

As the 8:48 train went by Netherwood and approached Fanwood yesterday morning passengers who happened to be looking back saw a cow climbing the bank. The animal went slowly up and was just about to step on the express track when a fast Philadelphia train came up. The cow was knocked over by the wind of the train and thereby just escaped being killed.

DEPEW'S WELCOME TO GEN. BOOTH.

New York's Orator Eulogizes the Salvation Army's Chief.

At a reception given a short time ago, at Carnegie Music Hall, New York, to Gen. Booth of the Salvation Army, the brief welcoming address was made by Chauncey M. Depew, who said:

"It has fallen to my lot to address all kinds of celebrities. I have welcomed Stanley, the traveller, Sala and Forbes, the journalists, Edwin Booth, the actor, and many others, but I feel more pleasure on this occasion than on any of those former ones.

"The General represents the cause of philanthropy; he raises and improves the masses to whom we owe so much. Different men have different ideas.

"Some men are won by the superb ritual of the Roman Catholic Church, others by the simplicity of Methodism. Some, entranced by the splendid literature of the Episcopalian Prayer Book, desire no sermon, while the sturdy Covenanter desires nothing but sermon. Gen. Booth has reached a class that has not been reached for 1,800 years. The General pressed the button and 10,000 officers and 13,000,000 soldiers did the rest. Few men deserve the gratitude of the world. Peter the Hermit deserved it, Martin Luther deserved it, and Gen. Booth deserves it."

Gen. Booth then addressed the assembly on his book, "In Darkest England," and the philanthropic scheme contained therein. "My scheme is the result of experience gained in the haunts of vice and misery," he said. "In England I made £7,000 from my book, all of which I devoted to the poor. My book was pirated in America, and we made not a dollar from it. This country owes me at least $35,000, and I am come to collect it.

"Some people talk of the survival of the fittest, but our motto is the salvation of the unfittest. We do not inquire whether a man is worthy, and rejoice most in the rescue of the criminal. Another of our principles is reformation, and reformation means employment. In the immense tracts of waste land which abound in countries like this, I am convinced that employment can be found for all men. I asked for £100,000 at first and £30,000 a year to carry out my scheme. I got the £100,000, but, alas, the £30,000 is not forthcoming."

At the close of the proceedings a collection was made. Commander Ballington asked for $10,000. "Let any one," he said, "who will contribute $500 raise his or her hand." Several hands were raised. There were several other large contributions made by persons who sent in their names on slips of paper left in the boxes for the purpose.

FOR SERIOUS FOLK.

Bits of Prose and Fragments of Verse Worth Reading.

Men are made rich not by what the world can give, but what it can't take away.—Ram's Horn.

Whoever may

And strong enough to reach them.

Stern daughter of the voice of God!
O duty! if that name thou love,
Who art a light to guide, a rod
To check the erring, and reprove,
—Wordsworth.

When a man thinks nobody cares for him, and he is alone in a cold, selfish world, he would do well to ask himself this question, "What have I done to make anybody care for me?"

"The best part of one's life is the performance of his daily duties. All higher motives, ideas, conceptions, sentiments, in a man are of no account, if they do not come forward to strengthen him for the better discharge of the duties which devolve upon him in the ordinary affairs of life."—Henry Ward Beecher.

To live content with small means; to seek elegance rather than luxury, and refinement rather than fashion; to be worthy, not respectable; and wealthy, not rich; to study hard, think quietly, talk gently, act frankly; to listen to stars and birds, to babes and sages with open heart; to bear all cheerfully, do all bravely, await occasions, hurry never—in a word, to let the spiritual, unbidden and unconscious grow up through the common—this is to be my symphony.

An Artist's Error.

M. Munkacsy, whose picture of the "Crucifixion" gave him such a world-wide reputation as an historical artist, has come to grief through an error which has been noticed in his new painting designed for the Chamber of the Diet at Budapest. In the new painting, which is called "Arpad," M. Munkacsy has depicted in the "Arpad" the figure of a noble warrior, with a shaven face, astride a sixteen-hand charger. At the period represented in the picture Hungarian nobles invariably wore beards, and rode the small, wiry horses of the country. The artist's fellow countrymen criticised the picture as "a serf on a French horse," and refused to allow it in the Chamber. Commenting on this action, an authority says that M. Munkacsy deserves his punishment, as an error so gross can only mean carelessness, and an inattention to history cannot be permitted in a great artist. The picture has been placed on exhibition in an art museum.

Two Questions Answered.

1. Which is the oldest city in the world? 2. Was Rome ever totally destroyed?

1. Damascus is said to be the oldest; it is spoken of in the story of Abraham. When it was really built, however, no one can say. 2. No; but it has been "destroyed" and "burnt" several times. In B. C. 387 it was burned by the Gauls, except the citadel or capitol; in A. D. 64 Nero burned the city "to the ground," destroying the greater part of seven of the fourteen quarters or wards of the city; the capitol was struck by lightning and partly burned. A. D. 188; but the entire city was never destroyed.—N. Y. Sun.

Good Advice from a Burglar.

A citizen of Orange, N. J., who forgot to take from the pocket of his overcoat a memorandum of his losses at the race track has received advice from an unexpected quarter. A burglar, who had gathered up $1,000 worth of silverware in his house the other night took the overcoat also, but left the memorandum thus endorsed: "Don't play the races—they caused my downfall."

The Question of Plagiarism.

Robert Louis Stevenson's recent admission that his "Treasure Island" was based upon ideas appropriated from "Robinson Crusoe" and "Tales of a Traveller" inspires a pedantic contemporary to cite instances to show that Shakespeare, Goethe, Cervantes, Voltaire, Dryden, Daniel Webster, Charles Sumner and other eminent orators and writers were consummate plagiarists. These examples are misleading, and the deductions drawn from them false. No doubt in the productions of these men may occasionally be found expressions bearing a close similarity to sentiments and ideas uttered before by others. It is sometimes difficult to convey a truth clearly and forcibly except in phraseology that has been current for generations.

But this is altogether different from implying that Shakespeare, Goethe, and recognized geniuses of like standing were imitators or echoes, "burglars of other men's ideas," to employ a term Disraeli once applied to Sir Robert Peel. In paying tribute to such men the world has not been crowning impostors. A spontaneous repetition of the thought, and even the language of another occasionally, is a peculiar trait of the mind that is seemingly unavoidable. It is like the act of a master of instrumental harmony who, in constructing an original composition, will sometimes glide unconsciously into strains which had their birth in the mind of another, and unperceived haunt his own. Some of the finest flights of eloquence have undoubtedly been thus inspired. Edmund Burke's fine tribute to Marie Antoinette and the peroration of Webster's reply to Hayne were evidently prompted in part by certain passages in "Paradise Lost."

Such "plagiarisms," however, are incidental and generally accidental. They do not touch the title of Shakespeare and his kind to intellectual kingship. The work of such men must be judged as a whole, not by its flaws or apparent flaws. The originality of Avon's famous son is too well established to be a subject of controversy at this day. This is true of Goethe, Cervantes, Burke, Webster and others. Mr. Stevenson's modesty and candor to the contrary, much the same may be said of himself. The aid of other writers no doubt he has sought, but in spite of this his fascinating pages bear a stamp of individuality which it is as impossible to deny as it is for him to disown.

Fate and the Girl Athlete.

Long she stood at the window and mused. The rays of the setting sun entangled themselves in her Titian hair, or surrounded her glorious height of five feet eight with an aureate halo. Proud, queenly, limbed like a goddess, she was indeed a magnificent specimen of femininity.

"Strange," she muttered. And then a soft, self-pitying, half-happy smile flitted across her face like a gleam of April sunshine.

"Strange," she said again, "to think that I, who only six short months ago was the quarter-back of the Emancipated Maidens' football eleven, should have lost my heart to a man whose collar is a size and a half smaller than mine. But such is fate. And I love him!"

Carelessly picking up a forty-pound dumbbell, she tossed it out of the window and across the lot, and then sought her boudoir.—Cincinnati Tribune.

TABOR'S HARD LUCK.

Once a Senator with a $250 Night Shirt, Now Pushed for Money.

The formerly famous silver king, ex-Gov. Tabor, is "down on his luck." For years he was considered the richest man in Colorado, and the splurge he made with a $250 night shirt and other accessories when he went to fill a short term in the United States Senate was the culmination of his remarkable career. In fact, his luck turned when he put off his old wife and took up with a new one in the far-off counties of New Mexico, where, they say, he hired the clerk of the court to paste the pages of the docket together so that no one could see the entry of the case.

The first Mrs. Tabor came across the plains with him in a wagon, and wandered through gulches and over the crests of the mountains with him for twenty years. She kept a boarding house for the miners, and often did the laundry work for the whole camp. It was not until he became a millionaire that Mr. Tabor detected her defects; but he saw then that she was not able to shine in society and decided to cut her off. She was a sensible as well as a plain woman, and went into the courts of Denver and asked them to set the New Mexico divorce aside. This was done and a decree was granted in her favor with a large slice of Tabor's millions for alimony.

According to the rule of the Sunday school books the good woman's property has increased in value, and she is now perhaps the richest woman in the State, while he has had a succession of financial difficulties that have nearly ruined him, and his horses and carriages were sold by a constable to satisfy a judgment the other day.—Chicago Record.

THE PUGILISTIC ACTORS.

The Corbett and Fitzsimmons Match a Side Issue to Theatrical Engagements.

After all the talk, innumerable threats, and violent recriminations of the pugilists, it is now perfectly evident that both Fitzsimmons and Corbett have arranged their meeting solely with an eye to their theatrical earnings. Theatres play such an important part in pugilism nowadays that it is a question whether it will ever be possible hereafter to force a meeting between aspiring boxers upon a reasonable basis. As matters stand at present Mr. Corbett is only six pounds over his fighting weight. He could take this off in two days, and, as he is in excellent physical condition, could put himself in trim to meet any fighter in a few weeks. Fitzsimmons is as fine as a race horse, and if, as he says, he wants to add fifteen pounds to his weight, he could accomplish this in the course of a few weeks of training in the country without great effort. It is doubtful whether two men when they signed an agreement to meet in the ring were ever so near their best form. Nevertheless they make the date of the fight almost a year after the time of the agreement, and neither of them will meet any other pugilist in the mean time. Every effort of the clubs to get them together before the date fixed upon has failed, and the two men will now go out on tour and make as much money from the stage as is possible until the date of the fight. Every person acquainted with the two men knows that if they were really eager to meet they could step into the ring in the pink of condition thirty days from date.

Of course, Corbett should win this battle, which will be one of the greatest ever fought. It has been argued all along that Corbett would derive no credit from defeating Fitzsimmons; but, as a matter of fact, their measurements are not so widely apart as sporting men seem to imagine. Fitzsimmons said the other day that he would fight Corbett at 160 pounds, but the chances are that 170 would be nearer the mark; and with Corbett at 188 he would have 18 pounds to his credit, not 30, as even Corbett appears to have thought. The following measurements are interesting at this time;

Corbett—Age, 28; weight, 188; height, 6 ft. 1 1-2 in.; reach, 29 3-4; chest, 38; waist, 33; thigh, 21; calf, 14; biceps, 14 1-2; forearm 11 1-2.

Fitzsimmons—Age, 32; weight, 170; height 6 ft. 1-2 in.; reach, 29 1-2; chest, 39; waist, 30; thigh, 20; calf, 14; biceps, 13 1-2; forearm, 11 1-2.

The fight will attract thousands of men and may break all records on the size of the gate receipts.

THE CASHIER GAVE UP.

A Robber With the Drop on Him Took $5000 and Escaped.

"I know how it feels to look down the barrel of a six shooter," said H. K. Holloway, cashier of the Trinidad National Bank of Trinidad, Col., "when the weapon is in the hands of a determined man who means business.

"It was a few years since, and at noon, while occupied with my duties in the bank that my attention was attracted by the sound of footsteps. I looked up and as I did so my eyes met a revolver pointed squarely at my chest.

"'Don't move,' was the injunction in quiet, low tones, 'and don't you speak except to answer my questions.

"I never obeyed a command with such alacrity. Well, he proceeded to tell me that he wanted all the money in sight, which was about $5000, and he got it without an outward murmur. I couldn't help myself. My partner and one clerk had gone to their dinners, and I had nothing else to do but to comply with the robber's demands. The whole thing was over in five minutes, and before anybody could be called in pursuit, the thief was well on his way to the mountains. We never recovered a cent of the money, but we learned subsequently that the robber was a well-known horse thief. A few months later he met his doom. His fondness for other men's property got him into trouble again, and he was left dangling from the limb of a tree, as was the custom in those days of dealing with thieves when you caught them."—St. Louis Globe Democrat.

She Took Onion Flavor.

Clerk—What flavor?

Bridget (aside to Pat)—Phat do he mean, Pat?

Pat—Whist, Biddy; don't show your ignerance; they has fruit flavors in the soda. I'll be having sthrawberry in mine.

Bridget—Oh, yis, Oi see, fruit flavors; Oi'll have onion in mine.—St. Louis Star-Sayings.

Equal to the Occasion.

Bob—What did the lecturer say when you threw those cabbages at him?

Dick—Oh, he said he had hoped the audience would be pleased, but he really hadn't expected they would entirely lose their heads.—Courier-Journal.

The Development of a Chick.

The development of a chick within the egg is one of the most wonderful things in nature. At the end of the fifty-eighth hour of incubation the heart begins to beat, two vesicles are seen, and a few hours later, the auricles also appear; on the fourth day the outlines of the wings may be perceived and sometimes of the head also; on the fifth day the liver is visible; on the sixth, other internal organs appear; in 190 hours the beak is fully formed; in 200 hours the ribs are clearly developed; in 240 hours the feathers are visible; in 266 hours the eyes appear; in 288 hours the ribs are completed and the feathers on the breast; in 330 the lungs, stomach and breast have assumed a natural appearance. On the eighteenth day the first faint piping of the chick is sometimes audible.—St. Louis Globe

When Niagara Was Born.

Professor Spencer computes the age of Niagara Falls at about 32,000 years. It is now 8000 years since Lake Huron emptied into Lake Erie for the first time. The land has risen about the outlet of Lake Erie, and if the present rate continues, in five or six thousand years the waters of the four upper lakes will be turned into the Mississippi River drainage at Chicago.

RAISED $2,270,000 IN A HURRY.

How Brayton Ives Got the Millions in an Afternoon.

There is plenty of loose money in New York. Brayton Ives, President of the Western National Bank proved that conclusively when he was compelled to raise $2,270,000, with no credit except his own word, and within twenty-four hours, to meet the demands of the court in Milwaukee and save himself and his friends in the Northern Pacific a great deal of trouble.

He accomplished this feat in the afternoon. Mr. Ives received a telegram from Judge Jenkins, in Milwaukee, on a Saturday afternoon a few weeks ago, saying, the amount mentioned must be in his hands to pay for the new certificates the following Monday at noon or else the petition of the receiver, who is opposed to Mr. Ives must be granted.

It was not a case of borrowing the money for a few days at a high rate of interest. That would have been comparatively easy. The men who had to put up the money had to invest it and take their chance, and they would not receive the certificates until several days after they had parted with the cash.

Saturday afternoon is a particularly bad afternoon on which to raise money. Nothing daunted, Mr. Ives started out upon his Napoleonic work. He first made out a list of some fifty available men, and he was surprised, he said, to find how many friends he had made during his financial life of twenty years, and how many millionaires, with money always ready for an investment, there are in New York.

Meanwhile, one of his assistants was telephoning to these men finding out whether or not they were in their offices, and if they were, asking them to wait for a short space until Mr. Ives should call upon them.

Mr. Ives then hurried out of the Equitable Building and jumped into a cab. He once rowed on the Yale crew. He is still athletic, and he can get in and out of a cab with considerable alacrity.

"I knew," he said, "when I started out that there were men who had the money, but I also knew that they were the men who are extremely careful as to how they invest their money."

The first man whom Mr. Ives met was a ten-millionaire. He had know him for a long time. "I want to raise $2,000,000, and I want you to let me have as much of it as you can," was the way Mr. Ives started the ball rolling.

"Maybe that isn't very much," answered the millionaire, smiling, apparently not at all surprised at the request.

"I will explain," continued the banker, and he did explain. The millionaire asked just three questions, which were answered satisfactorily. The millionaire reached in his desk and drew out a little book. A few rapid dashes of the pen and then he gave Mr. Ives a check for $400,000.

At that rate it would not have taken long to have met the obligation. But Mr. Ives had to call upon three or four more millionaires before he found one who had $100,000 which he was willing to part with under such conditions.

By 5 o'clock Mr. Ives had raised $1,500,000 of the amount he needed, either receiving the checks, which he took to his own bank and deposited in the vaults, or else the assurance that the money would be sent to him before noon on Monday.

Then he was driven uptown. Business men seldom invade one another's houses on business errands after business hours, but this was a special occasion. Some of the capitalists were found at their dinners. The mere matter of $100,000 or so, if they had the money, was quickly adjusted, and then he slipped out to make another call, while the capitalist went back to his dinner.

By 9 o'clock Mr. Ives had all but $100,000, having received a second investment of an even $400,000, and he began the round of the rich men's clubs to find the last contributor. This gentleman and Mr. Ives sat down at a table and drank a cup of coffee, and the gentleman looked at his empty cup and said he would send a check around as soon as he reached his office on Monday.

Mr. Ives did not spend longer than a quarter of an hour with any one of the men he met, and only one accepted his offer of a personal receipt and the rest were left with nothing but Mr. Ives's word as a guarantee for their money.

There is a code of honor between capitalists who have known one another for years upon the street. It is needless to say that Mr. Ives, who had telegraphed Judge Jenkins that he would guarantee the $2,270,000, was a very happy man when his night's work was done.

A Big Deal in Turkeys.

"Ever hear about my deal in turkeys?" said a man whose home is in a little village of northern Delaware, "I happened to be in a little mountain town of Virginia when an acquaintance asked me what I was buying. I said, just for a joke, that I'd buy a car load of turkeys, and thought no more about it until next day, when turkeys began coming in to the railway station. There was nothing for me to do but buy those turkeys, and when I left town I had 1,280 of them. I brought them up here, and when they were let out of the cars to be driven to the place where I decided to keep them it looked as if the little State wouldn't hold 'em. By actual count there was a turkey apiece for every man, woman and child in my village, but I sold 'em off in lots of twenty-five, fifty, and a hundred to the farmers around, and the joke turned out pretty well, though I thought for a while it was going to be a costly bit of fun."—N. America's First Private Carriage.

The first private carriage seen at Germantown, Pa., was that of Judge Allen, who had a country seat at Mt. Airy. This was some time before the Revolutionary war. There were then only three or four private carriages in Philadelphia. The Judge was a wealthy grandee, and his coach was an object of much curiosity at Germantown.

Remarkable, Indeed!

The most remarkable instance of rapid growth was recorded by the French Academy in 1729. It was a boy 6 years of age, 5 feet 6 inches in height. At the age of 5 his voice changed, at 6 his beard had grown, and he appeared a man of 30. He possessed great physical strength, and could easily lift to his shoulders and carry bags of grain weighing 200 pounds. His decline was as rapid as his growth. At 8 his hair and beard were gray; at 10 he tottered in his walk, his teeth fell out and his hands became palsied; at 12 he died, with every outward sign of extreme old age.

FIGHTING FOR LIFE.

A Suffering Woman Testifies.

Mrs. Henrietta Burton, of Janvier, N. J., writes: For a long time I suffered from a disordered stomach. My appetite was gone and what little I ate distressed me terribly. My health failed rapidly. I became very weak and feared I should never be well. After reading your "Guide to Health," I was encouraged to try Munyon's Dyspepsia Cure. Its action was so prompt that I soon felt like a new woman, and am now completely cured."

MUNYON'S STOMACH AND DYSPEPSIA CURE cures all forms of indigestion and stomach troubles such as constipation, rising of food, distress after eating, bloating of the stomach, palpitation of the heart, shortness of breath, and all affections of the heart caused by indigestion. It soothes, heals and invigorates stomachs that have been weakened by over-eating, or where the lining of the stomach has been impaired by physic and injurious medicines. Price 25 cents.

Munyon's Homœopathic Home Remedy Company, of Philadelphia, put up specifics for nearly every disease, which are sold by all druggists, mostly for 25 cents a bottle.

QUEEN EMMA A TALKER.

The Dutch Regent is Developing Into a Female Depew.

Queen Emma, of Holland, who has been governing the Netherlands in behalf, first of all, of her demented husband, and since his death for her little daughter, with such remarkable sagacity and success, has, the Magazine de Fontenoy says developed of late a tendency which has caused much astonishment to the people among whom her lot is cast. The Dutch are proverbially silent and even taciturn, perhaps because their language is so peculiarly unlovely and lacking melodiousness, and Queen Emma was generally believed to share to a remarkable degree this quality—a quality particularly meritorious in a person of my sex. In one word, she seemed to share not only the national tendency to embonpoint but also its stolidity and extreme moderation of speech.

Suddenly she underwent a change. This was about three months ago and since then she appears to have developed a perfect craze for speech-making.

People talk of "the spouting German Emperor," as a phenomenon in that respect, but the Regent of Holland seems bent on running him very close for on the slightest provocation she delivers addresses that are not only well turned but also spirited and marked by an astonishing amount of vivacity.

She speechifies at luncheon, and she speechifies at dinner, she delivers addresses to deputations and she endeavors to stir up the patriotism of the military by rousing appeals to their sense of what is due to their country and their Queen. In fact there is no end to the number of her public utterances, and the worthy Hollanders are still rubbing their eyes in sheer astonishment at this altogether unaccountable fever of eloquence on the part of their hitherto so cautious and reticent Queen-Regent.

For my part I am glad of it. It has hitherto always seemed to me that there was something or other lacking about this otherwise estimable young widow. I now realize what it was—namely, the excessive brevity of speech. Who ever heard of a silent woman? Why, even stammering is almost unknown among the sex. I for one, at any rate, cannot recollect ever having met any lady who was afflicted with impediment of speech.

It is notable, by the way, that three of the most successful and popular rulers in Europe at the present moment are women; Queen Christiana of Spain, Queen Victoria and spouting Queen Emma of the Netherlands.

NOTES OF NOTABLES.

Short Stories of People Who Have a Claim to Your Notice.

William Barnes, a clerk in the Treasurer's Office in Washington for thirty-five years, who died a few days ago, in his lifetime probably handled more money than any other man in the world. The greatest amount which passed through his hands in one day was $60,000,000.

Mr. Gladstone can now be classed as a hotel keeper. Last month he opened a hotel near the library he equipped with 25,000 volumes at Hawarden, and established a rate of 25 shillings a week for board and lodging and the use of the library. Readers and students have made it a success.

Mr. F. S. Church is using the famous lion "Black Prince" as a model for the lion in a picture, "Una and the Lion," which he is at present engaged in painting. Black Prince, it will be remembered, is the lion who has become celebrated for occasionally trying to kill his trainers. He should make a most excellent subject for the artist to draw inspiration from.

Meissonier intended that his fine house, situated at the corner of the Boulevard Malesherbes and the Rue Legendre, should be turned into a national museum after his death. This house was furnished with the most perfect taste upon models at Venice and elsewhere. It is now being torn down because of an unfortunate dispute between the heirs to the estate, and, therefore, the dream of the great artist will never be realized.

OXFORD AND CAMBRIDGE HARD UP.

The Great English Colleges are in Financial Straits.

It will doubtless come as a shock to many people even on this side of the Atlantic to learn that the old English universities, Oxford and Cambridge in particular, are in financial straits. An impression has hitherto existed that these two time-honored institutions were possessed of vast revenues. But it seems that the greater part of their property is invested in land, and that they have consequently suffered from the prevalent agricultural depression as well as from the decrease in value of real estate. Cambridge, indeed, last year was officially reported to be insolvent, while, according to the librarian of the famous Bodleian Library, at Oxford, one of the five great libraries of the world, the Alma Mater on the banks of the Isis can only manage to keep the wolf from the door by docking, and even entirely suppressing, the subventions which for centuries it has been in the habit of paying to a number of its principal institutions, notably the Bodleian.

Broadway, Seventy Years Ago.

When an English woman wrote home from New York seventy-five years ago in the midst of a cold February, she said of the city's most popular thoroughfare: "Broadway, the chosen resort of the young and gay, on these cold, bright mornings seems one moving crowd of painted butterflies. I sometime tremble for the pretty creatures, (and very pretty they are) as they flutter along through the biting air in dress more suited to the Italian winter than to one which, notwithstanding the favorable season, approaches nearer to that of Norway."

John's Big Peach Orchard.

John Harris's peach orchard in Queen Anne's county, Md., was in its day perhaps the largest single orchard in the world. The farm contained 1,013 acres, all, save seven or eight acres, in peach trees. There were at one time 165,000 trees in this orchard. Mr. Harris had his own canneries, and when there was a good yield of peaches he ran a steamboat daily from a wharf on the farm to Locust Point, across the Chesapeake, whence the peaches were shipped by rail. In such seasons Mr. Harris employed about 800 men.

THE POST OFFICE AT SEA.

Men Who Handle Great Stacks of Mail on Ocean Flyers.

The system of railway post offices has been found so successful, and a means of saving so much valuable time, that it has been extended to the transatlantic steamships. This was begun under Mr. Wanamaker's administration as Postmaster-General, but so far mail clerks have only been placed on the American ships running to Southampton and on the German ships that go to Bremen and Hamburg.

On each of the vessels of the lines mentioned large staterooms have been set aside and fitted out for the use of the postal clerks. Big racks of pigeon-holes stand up against the walls, and the mail-pouches hang from stands in the centre of the room. In these post offices the clerks work from eight to ten hours a day during the entire voyage, distributing the mails by cities and States, when coming this way, and by railroad lines when going to Germany. On each ship there is one American clerk, one German clerk, and a German assistant. The American is in charge going eastward, and the German has charge of things coming this way.

The clerks, of course, are men of energy and intelligence. They are the best material taken from the postal services of both countries. The Germans wear gaudy uniforms with military caps and swords, and are called by the high-sounding name of "Reichs Post Secretaer." The American calls himself a "sea post clerk." In spite of the lack of gold braid and side-arms, however, the Americans are the most reliable men. It is said that when the Lider went on the rocks on the coast of Ireland last year the "Reichs Post Secretaer" grabbed his sword and made for the life-boats. The American stood to his business, and did not leave his post until he had overseen the transfer of the mails from the leaking ship to a tug. These sea post clerks handle about 140,000 letters and sixty sacks of papers each trip; but in December and January their work is almost doubled.—Harper's Young People.

ONE OF GREELEY'S BOYS.

Amos J. Cummings, Printer, Reporter and Congressman from New York.

Amos. J. Cummings is the ideal of the printers, whose battles he has fought at home and in the halls of Congress. He is a talented journalist and a first rate reporter, and in his fifty-three years of life has crowded many adventures and much hard work. He was with Walker in Nicaragua, and was with the Union forces at Fredericksburg, Chancellorsville and St. Mary's Heights.

AMOS J. CUMMINGS.

Mr. Cummings' talents as a journalist were developed by the late Horace Greeley, while he was working at the "case," and he made his mark on more than one journal in this city. He was first elected to Congress in 1886, and declined a renomination in 1888, but in 1889 was induced by Tammany to succeed Samuel S. Cox, and since has been re-elected. Mr. Cummings is manly, genial, a political fighter of unflinching courage, and few men from this city have made the record for hard work in Congress that he has made.—N. Y. Herald.

Queen Elizabeth's Great Wardrobe.

The wardrobe of Queen Elizabeth must have been about the most varied and extensive ever recorded in royal annals, to judge from a list of her wearing apparel recently gathered from the State papers. When the maiden Queen was 68, and might therefore have been supposed to have outlived some of her youthful vanity, she possessed 99 complete official costumes, 102 French gowns, 100 robes with trains and 67 without, 126 antique dresses, 136 bodices, 125 tunics, not to mention such trifles as 96 mantles, 85 dressing gowns and 27 fans. With all these dresses, however, it is curious to note that Queen Bess only owned nine pairs of shoes. When she died in 1603 three thousand articles of apparel were found in her wardrobe duly catalogued.

"DAD'S STRUCK ILE."

The Story of Leander Jenkins and the Blacksmith's Daughter.

There died a few days ago in the backwoods of Venango county a man through whom something over thirty years ago a catch phrase was added to the vocabulary of the day, which became the text for humorists, song writers, and even playwrights, and was as much on the popular tongue for years as anything that has taken the fancy of folks since. His name was Leander Jenkins. He lived near Franklin, Pa., in the early years of the oil excitement, and was a sort of man of all work. A blacksmith named Evans lived on French Creek, and he had a plump and rosy daughter named Susie. Jenkins fell in love with Susie and she with him, or at least she thought so, and they became engaged to be married.

At that time large oil wells were being struck on Oil Creek, some miles above Franklin, and everybody's head was full of the matter. There was a well of water in Blacksmith Evans's yard, and one day, during that early oil excitement, the water in it was found to be strongly impregnated with petroleum. Such a thing had never been known before, and the blacksmith at once made up his mind that there was oil on his property. But he didn't lose his head. He had no money, except what he earned in his shop shoeing horses and mules. He made up his mind that he would drill a well in his yard as soon he could get iron enough to make the tools to do it. That time seemed a long way off, though, and at last he induced a Franklin merchant, after showing him some of the oil-impregnated water from his well, to go his security for money enough to buy the iron. That obtained, he forged the drilling tools at odd times in his shop. When they were finished he rigged them up and began sinking his oil well. An engine to do the drilling was out of the question, and he attached his drill to the end of a spring pole and started in to "kick" his well down, just as all of the early wells were drilled on Oil Creek.

Evans worked at his well only when he was not busy in his shop. If there was a mule to be shod, Evans dropped the drill and earned his twenty-five cents a shoe by shoeing the mule. In that way he worked at his well for several months, until at the depth of 73 feet he struck oil. The oil wasn't at all like the oil they were finding on Oil Creek. It was thick and heavy, and would not flow. The news that Blacksmith Evans had found "grease" on French Creek soon spread. Experts visited his well and pronounced its product lubricating oil of the finest quality. It was so superior, in fact, that it could be used just as it came from the well. Evans, utilizing his spring pole as a pumping engine, kicked twenty barrels of oil a day from his well, and it fetched $30 a barrel.

The demand for it was so great that the supply could not keep up with it. Then Evans deepened his well a little, and it responded with a yield of 200 barrels a day. An offer of $500,000 in cash for one-half interest in the well was made to him, but he refused it. On the Saturday of one week, by hard work, he made $5 in his blacksmith shop. Two weeks later Evans's income was $6,000 a day.

It was on the second day after the blacksmith's well began to yield its 20 barrels that Leander Jenkins went to make his weekly call on Susie. He was elated, but Susie met him coldly.

"Lee," said she, "you'll have to git. I don't want you."

"How so, Suse?" said Leander.

"'Cause dad's struck ile!"

And "Lee" had to "get." Susie's pat remark soon spread all through the region and all over the country, and it was the popular phrase long after the early oil excitement had died away. Evans made an immense fortune out of his well, but lost it nearly all, like hosts of others, in subsequent speculations in oil. Susie was only 16, and her father sent her away to be educated. She returned home in three years, a beautiful and accomplished girl, and is now the wife of a rich ranchman in New Mexico. And Leander Jenkins died the other day, a backwoods teamster, not more than four miles from the spot where he met his fate because "Dad struck ile."

JOKES ON THE GROOM.

An Old Bachelor's Wedding a Picnic for Jocose Friends.

A dispatch from Cleveland, Ohio, telling of a recent wedding, says: Andy H. Goff, 35 years old, was the groom. Through a long bachelorhood he has perpetrated a series of practical jokes upon his friends who have preceded him in the matrimonial relation. They bided their time and last night "got even" with a vengeance.

While the ceremony was in progress one of the conspirators found his way to the groom's room, stole his traveling suit and hid it in the barn. Goff borrowed an ulster from his newly acquired brother-in-law and wore it to the train over his dress suit. On arriving at the train he found his sleeping car section decorated with white ribbon and white roses. The trip to the depot was made on the street car, another conspirator having, with his wife, palmed themselves off on the carriage driver as the bride and groom and driven to the depot. The quondam groom possessed himself of satchels, hand bags, umbrellas and the like in the carriage and had them hidden.

A third conspirator followed Goff's luggage from his home to the depot during the day on a bicycle, bought a ticket to Olmsted Falls, Ohio., for forty cents, and on it checked the luggage to that village, where it is safely stored in the home of a friend. Goff and his bride, who was Miss Frances Southworth, move in the highest society circles.

A Good Word for the Clam.

The clam is commonly taken for an example of all that is unprogressive, but he is by no means a stationary creature. Every man bred at the seaside knows how a clam left upon the sand will utterly disappear by sinking himself below the surface; but the clam has also a forward movement, and will travel thirty feet in the course of a week. The large muscle of the clam, which helps to make him indigestible, is his single leg, and by the aid of this he makes his progress.—N. Y. Sun.

The True and the False.

"Then you are another's, he hissed."

She sat silent, as one benumbed.

"Confess!" he thundered. "You are another's."

She shivered.

"Partially," she faltered. "This hair ——"

She pressed her hand to her brow.

"——and the upper teeth I wear are borrowed. The rest is yours. I swear it."—Detroit Tribune.

REMARKABLE CURES
Of Recent Date.

A Statement from Ex-Mayor John Corson, Esq., of Clinton, N. J.

TO THE PUBLIC:

I acknowledge with the utmost pleasure the wonderful cure which Dr. Lighthill effected in my case.

I had been a sufferer from piles, which gave me constant pain and distress, during twenty long years, attended with frequent loss of blood and with great and painful protrusion of the pile tumors and rectum whenever my bowels moved.

I tried constantly to get relief from my sufferings, but to no purpose until Mr. Bryan, a friend of mine, who had been cured by Dr. Lighthill of the same trouble, recommended him to me, and he effected a complete and radical cure in my case also, and earned my lifelong gratitude.

JOHN CORSON.

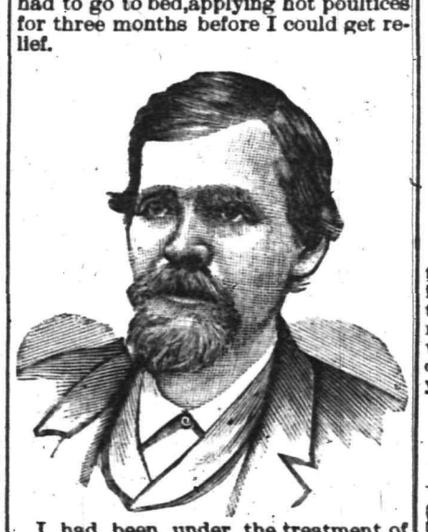
THE CASE OF MR. PETER G. EYCK, OF BISSELL, HUNTERDON CO., N. J.

Dr. Lighthill Effects a Complete Cure Where Ten Physicians Had Failed.

TO THE SICK, SUFFERING AND AFFLICTED:

For many years past I have been afflicted with bleeding piles. Every movement of the bowels was attended with loss of blood and with intense pain which lasted for hours and sometimes all day. My condition was aggravated by a prolapse of the rectum, which greatly increased my suffering and sometimes gave me most agonizing pains.

So great was my distress and so bad my condition that I sold my farm, not being able to work it any longer. At one time the protruding pile tumors became so highly inflamed and swollen that they could not be replaced, and I had to go to bed, applying hot poultices for three months before I could get relief.



I had been under the treatment of ten different physicians, some of New York City, Easton, Washington and elsewhere, without any benefit whatever, and had given up my case as hopeless when, luckily for me, I heard of Dr. Lighthill's skill and success in such cases, and went to him for treatment, with the happy result that he effected a radical and permanent cure in less than four weeks's time; and I am glad to say that the entire treatment gave me neither pain nor distress.

I consider my cure perfectly wonderful, and so do all my friends and neighbors. I am confident that there is no case of piles which Dr. Lighthill cannot cure.

For Congress, Third District—JACOB A. GEISSENHAINER.

For County Clerk, Union County—WM. M. OLIVER.

For Assemblymen, Union County—FREDERICK CLAUSS, JOHN B. GREEN, ALFORD B. COOK.

For Coroner, Union County—THOMAS E. DOLAN, M. D.

For Assemblyman, Somerset County—ANDREW LANE.

Our Baptist visitors can't complain that Plainfield does not respect their doctrines of immersion.

The fact that The Daily Press continues to print first and most accurate news of local Republican politics continues to disturb the ring organ, whose editor seems not to be in confidential touch with his party managers. The Press can afford to scorn the ring organ's vulgar abuse, and will continue to print the news of all the town for all the people.

Mr. Martine was accosted by a citizen of this city with the remark: "I see by the Plainfield Courier that you have abandoned tariff as an issue and are only interested in the county election". Mr. Martine declared that "no one has authority to make such a statement. I feel a deeper interest in this question than ever, and shall do all in my humble way to press on the fight for Tariff Reform."

The question was asked by a Republican fellow-citizen. Who is Clauss, the Democratic nominee for Assembly? Mr. Clauss has been a citizen of Elizabeth for over 25 years—he is a German by birth, and an extensive manufacturer of surgical instruments. He has been the trusted treasurer of one of the most prosperous Building Loan Associations of the State, for over 20 years, and is the essence of integrity and honor, and if elected will be a credit to the Democratic party and State.

Henry E. Bowen has accepted a position on The Cosmopolitan, the leading magazine of the country. This position comes through his friend Arthur Shelburne Hardy, the editor, who is a frequent visitor at the home of Mr. Bowen. Mr. Bowen has been a resident of Plainfield since 1878, and until recently was connected with the New York Mail and Express. He enters on his new duties tomorrow, and will find in the congenial work of the highest plane of literature scope for his power and brilliancy.

To those Republicans of Plainfield who read The Daily Press and no other paper, and to all citizens generally, the medium of The Press is asked for the announcement that tonight a pleasant time awaits them at Republican Headquarters. The Republican candidates will be on hand to greet old friends and new acquaintances. The reception will be informal, from 8 to 10, and anyone will be welcome to drop in any time. There will be no speech-making except such as the voters insist on demanding from the nominees.

A VETERAN'S VERDICT.

The War is Over. A Well-known Soldier, Correspondent and Journalist Makes a Disclosure.

Indiana contributed her thousands of brave soldiers to the war, and no state bears a better record in that respect than it does. In literature it is rapidly acquiring an enviable place. In war and literature Solomon Yewell, well known as a writer as "Sol," has won an honorable position. During the late war he was a member of Co. M, 2d. N. Y. Cavalry and of the 13th Indiana Infantry Volunteers. Regarding an important circumstance he writes as follows:

"Several of us old veterans here are using Dr. Miles' Restorative Nervine, Heart Cure and Nerve and Liver Pills, all of them giving splendid satisfaction. In fact, we have never used remedies that compare with them. Of the Pills we must say they are the best combination of the qualities required in a preparation of their nature we have ever known. We have none but words of praise for them. They are the outgrowth of a new principle in medicine, and tone up the system wonderfully. We say to all, try these remedies."
—Solomon Yewell, Marion, Ind., Dec. 5, 1892.

These remedies are sold by all druggists on a positive guarantee, or sent direct by the Dr. Miles Medical Co., Elkhart, Ind., on receipt of price, $1 per bottle, six bottles $5, express prepaid. They positively contain neither opiates nor dangerous drugs.

THE ETIQUETTE OF WEDDINGS.

What All the Persons in These Festivities Should Do and Leave Undone.

It is surprising and painful to note the number of young persons who prepare to rush into matrimony with no knowledge of the proper manner of entering the estate. A young man will propose to a young woman before he knows whether he will have to wear white gloves or pearl-gray ones. He will assume the awful responsibility of marriage without knowing who should pay for the bridal bouquet. He will prepare to set up as a householder and head of a family when he is ignorant of the proper coat to wear at a noon wedding. Then he spends weeks of agony trying to decide these questions, and finally he writes to The World for advice.

One familiar question concerns the expenses of the wedding. With the exception of the clergyman's fee and the presents which the bridegroom makes his ushers and the bridesmaids, the expenses of the wedding are borne entirely by the bride's family. If their income is not sufficient to allow them to give her a "show" wedding, they must content themselves with a quiet one, for it is entirely opposed to the dictates of propriety that the bridegroom should pay for any of the festivities the bride's people choose to indulge in.

At a church wedding there must be ushers, and there may be bridesmaids. The groom, with the best man, waits at the altar the coming of the bride. The ushers advance two by two, followed by the bridesmaids. At the altar the couples separate and form almost a semicircle. The bride enters the church with her father, or whoever is to give her away. Her maid of honor precedes her. The best man's duty at the ceremony is to find the ring and give it to the groom at the proper moment. The maid of honor holds the bride's bouquet. The procession leaves the church with the bride and bridegroom leading, the best man and maid of honor following immediately, and the rest of the party back of them.

At the reception following a wedding the bride and bridegroom are assisted in receiving by their parents. The reception takes place in the bride's home. The ushers are still useful to introduce people to the newly-married pair. There should be at such a reception two rooms reserved for dressing-rooms, a room where the presents are displayed, a dining-room, and as many other rooms for the guests to wander through as space permits. Receptions are uncomfortable things at the best, and when they are "crushes" they are unendurable.

A home wedding may be as elaborate or as simple as the bride chooses. The processional is dispensed with usually. She enters the room on her father's arm, is conducted to the place where the bridegroom, best man and clergyman await her, hands her bouquet to the maid of honor at the proper time and is quietly married.

The wedding dress should be made with high neck and long sleeves. Nothing can be in more questionable taste than decollete wedding gowns. If the bride is a widow she may not wear the conventional white frock and veil. If she is not she may wear what she pleases, but unless she uses the customary white silk it is better for her to wear a travelling gown and bonnet. At a wedding occurring after 6 o'clock the bridegroom, best man and ushers should wear the usual evening garb. At a morning, noon or afternoon wedding they should wear fine striped or checked trousers, black frock coats and white four-in-hands or bow ties.

All the persons whom the bride wishes to keep on her list of calling acquaintances must be invited to either the church ceremony or the reception. All persons who are invited must call on her afterwards. Generally the bride gives two or three wedding receptions to enable her friends to clear off this debt. It is customary for all those who are invited to either the ceremony or reception to send some token of their regard, but it is not absolutely necessary. Between very formal acquaintances a note of congratulations and good wishes will suffice. All presents should be sent to the bride and all things which need marking should have the initials of her maiden name on them.

PERSONS OF NOTE.

Alexander of Russia, Blondin, Johann Strauss and Others.

The Czar of Russia plays on the cornet, it is said, with such utter disregard to time and place that some one once hinted that it entirely accounted for the existence of Nihilists.

Blondin began to toddle across a rope when he was 4. At the age of 8 he performed before the King of Italy. Since then he has appeared in all parts of the world, and has earned as much as $500 a performance.

Miss Nellie Gregg, of Roxbury, who saved a woman from drowning not long ago, has just turned twenty and has had a gold watch presented to her on her birthday. She is as brave as a lion when she has to be, but she is nevertheless suspected of a tendency to run when a stag beetle gets too close to her.

The piano, the billiard table and the game of tarock are the favorite amusements of Johann Strauss, the great composer of waltzes. He has grown rich from his music, but lives very unostentatiously in a plain house in Vienna. His devotion to billiards is so intense that he has been known to pass a whole night at the table.

The home of Mrs. Mary Hartwell Catherwood is in Hoopestown, Ill., about three hours by rail from Chicago. The household is a small one, consisting of husband, wife and one small daughter, Hazel. Mrs. Catherwood was born and educated in Ohio, though her ancestry, like that of most Western folks, is Eastern and New England. She confesses to three weaknesses, old silver, fine old prints and—her typewriter.

Curious, and 1800 Years Old.

A curious box was recently found amid the ruins of Pompeii. The box was marble or alabaster, about two inches square, and closely sealed. When opened it was found to be full of a pomatum of grease, hard but very fragrant. The smell somewhat resembled that of roses, but was much more fragrant. What the perfume was made of can but be conjectured now, but it is singular that men in the nineteenth century should be able to regale their noses with perfumes prepared in the first.

Private Allen's Duel Story.

During a debate on the Pension Appropriation bill in the Fifty-third Congress, Congressman Meredith of Virginia and Congressman Funk of Illinois almost came to blows. There had been some talk of a duel from day to day, and everybody knew that the Virginian would as lief fight as not. He is a very nervous man, while the Illinois statesman is as cool as a cucumber in a refrigerator. Congressman John Allen, of Mississippi, said:

"If Meredith and Funk ever came together on the field of honor, I am afraid they might be reconciled before they would kill each other. Down in my neighborhood once upon a time there was bad feeling between two lawyers, and it was decided that only blood could wipe out the enmity which existed. A challenge was sent and duly acknowledged. The hour was appointed and the two men met in a secluded spot. One of them was a great sufferer from Saint Vitus's dance, the other was cool and collected.

"As they faced each other the afflicted man began to tremble from head to foot, while his pistol described an arc with varying up and down strokes. His opponent stood as firm as a rock waiting for the signal to fire. Before it came, however, he laid his pistol on the ground, walked into the woods, and cut a limb of a tree with a fork in the end of it. Then, turning to the second, he said: 'I must request you to ask your principal to rest his pistol in that fork.'

"'What for?' asked his opponent's second.

"'Well,' replied the other, 'I have no objection to running the risk of one shot, but I certainly do decline having one bullet make a honeycomb of me. If that man was to shoot while his hand is shaking the way it is now he would fill me full of holes at his first shot.'

"This was too much for the seconds and, by mutual agreement, a truce was patched up and no shots were exchanged. I think if Meredith and Funk were to fight, Meredith's hand would shake—and they would both shake hands."—Philadelphia Times.

IT IS FREE, BUT WORTH A FORTUNE.

And it is worth a fortune because it is the means of giving health and strength to the weak and complaining—to you, reader. The following splendid proposition is made by Dr. Greene, of 35 West 14th street, New York City, the most successful specialist in curing nervous and chronic diseases. Write him a letter, tell him just how you feel, and he will answer it, free of charge, explaining your case so thoroughly that you will at once understand exactly what your complaint is. Every letter receives his most careful attention, he explains every symptom telling just what to do to be cured, and for all this he charges nothing.

He is the discoverer of that wonderful medicine, Dr. Greene's Nervura blood and nerve remedy, which is doing such enormous good among the suffering. This is the opportunity of a lifetime for everyone especially those living at a distance from large cities, to consult, entirely free, the most eminent and successful of specialists. No fee to pay and no journey to make. The doctor makes a specialty of treating patients through letter correspondence, and you cannot do better than write him at once. You will without doubt be made strong and well by doing so. Thousands of others have. Don't delay.

"Oh, You
Ought to see the lovely new SILK WAISTS AT EDSALLS."

The above remark was made by a lady on the street to another lady. They are made up in the latest fashion from a good heavy quality of silk in stripes, plaids and brocades.

Prices $5.69, $5.99, $6.39, $6.69 and $7.39.

Guess you would pay as much as that for the making alone.

YOU will save money on your Crockery, China and Housefurnishings if you will come in and get our prices before you purchase.

TWO IDEALS.

"And you really never have cared for any one before," said Nellie, contentedly, as she allowed Tom to draw her a little closer to him. "No little flirtations at Eton?"

"Not one," replied Tom, emphatically.

"Nor at Aldershot?"

Tom shook his head. "Never anywhere till I came here, darling, and first saw you."

"How odd!" said Nellie. "Why, my brothers are always desperately in love with some one. I thought all men had a succession of 'flames' till they came across the right person and then settled down. You know, Tom," she went on, "I would much rather be told if you have—have—well, made love to other girls. Don't you think there ought to be mutual confession about things before people marry?"

"Certainly, if there is anything to confess," replied Tom, lightly. "But I, I can assure you, present a perfectly clean bill of good conduct."

"So," continued Nellie rather shyly, "I am the first girl who has been fortunate enough to set light to the latent flame."

Suddenly, she exclaimed, "Tom, I can't believe it. All young fellows, even boys at school, have their little love affairs. It is very nice to hear you say that you have never 'looked twice' at any one else; but you are 26, and I simply don't believe it. It is so unnatural. Please," she added coaxingly, "do tell me the truth. I shan't mind what you tell me; but I shall be terribly jealous if I think there is anything I don't know about."

Tom looked at Nellie critically. He had no sisters, and he knew very little of women's—especially young women's—natures. It was quite true that he never had loved any woman but Nellie. His past was entirely free from even the shadow of a flirtation. He was peculiarly unimpressionable, and had often been pointed at by his friends as the man with an impregnable heart. He had fallen desperately in love with Nellie the very first moment that he saw her; and he had stepped over every obstacle, with persevering determination, till he had gained her parents' consent to their engagement. The mere fact of her doubting the truth of his statement—that he had never loved before—wounded him deeply.

Nellie watched him closely. He was so very honest. She could tell by his half-knitted brows and thoughtful expression, that he was actually trying to recollect if any little incident, such as she had alluded to, had ever taken place.

Suddenly a flush overspread Tom's sunburnt cheeks. He laughed a little constrainedly. Nellie instinctively changed her position, as she felt a sharp stab of pain at her heart. After all, Tom was like other men. Now, that it was too late, she wished that she had not been so importunate.

"Ah!" she said lightly. "Confess, confess."

"It is nothing. Nothing whatever," said Tom.

"Come, Tom, be honest. A man of 26 doesn't blush like that for nothing."

"Nellie, my darling, I tell you again and again that there is no one in the world but you," replied Tom earnestly.

"Not now—I should hope not, indeed. But your face tells me that there has been someone. If there is anything that you can't, or won't, tell me, you had no business to ask me to marry you. There!" and Nellie stamped her little foot. She was very angry and also very unhappy.

Tom was perplexed. He could not understand Nellie's doubting him.

"If—if you don't choose to confide in me, I don't see any use in my caring for you."

Nellie's voice broke in spite of herself.

"How can you say such a thing? I won't let you say it. You know there is nothing I would not do for you—nothing in the world. So—though I feel an idiot, and a fool, like one of those silly creatures called poets—I will tell you. It is only that I have an ideal, and——"

Nellie's heart stood still.

"I don't understand how the thought of an 'ideal' could make you blush. Tom, it isn't like you," she said slowly.

"No, that's just it. I am horribly ashamed of myself for being such a fool. But you insisted on knowing, and so I have told you."

"Then you have loved some one before?" said Nellie angrily.

"I have told you that it was an 'ideal' that I—well, loved, since you will have the word, and you ought to be satisfied with what I have said. You don't mean to say," Tom continued as he noticed the expression of distrust on Nellie's face, "that you actually disbelieve me?"

Nellie's eyes dropped before Tom's indignant and penetrating glance.

"You implied that there could be no happiness without mutual confession; there can certainly be none without mutual trust." Then Tom turned and left her standing alone beneath the shady beech tree.

There was something in Tom's manner which awed Nellie. She felt that he had spoken the truth. She knew that he could not lie; but still she was not satisfied.

She was angry with herself for having forced Tom to say what he had said; and she was madly jealous that he had ever had a vestige of affection for any one except herself.

It was intolerable to know that after all he had had some woman—be it only an "ideal" one—in his mind all these years. Perhaps he would compare her with this "ideal"—perhaps the "ideal" really existed in the flesh. Nellie knew that in letting herself think thus she was unjust and ungenerous; but a jealous woman is unable to be either just or generous. By degrees the fury of her passion subsided; and then came the rebound of self-condemnation and regret. She loved Tom so very dearly, and now she had lowered herself in his eyes. She had been a horrid, suspicious and jealous woman. Even her love did not justify her prying into his past life. And after all, why could not she be contented that he, at any rate, loved her most passionately now?

Nellie was truly distressed that she had made Tom miserable, and did her best to show him that she was sorry. Had she offended him past forgiveness? Something in his manner made her feel unpleasantly conscious of her shortcomings.

When Tom asked her to go for a walk with him she acquiesced with apparent reluctance, for she was really rather frightened at his grave face and serious voice.

Both were unusually silent as they wended their way through the sequestered little wood which they had lately much frequented. Nellie was too shy to say all that was in her heart, and Tom was silently ashamed of himself. They were both uncomfortable, both miserable. The demon Doubt had found a place in their hearts.

At length Tom, who could no longer keep silent, said abruptly:

"I have been thinking over what you said. I have made my confession. Have you no past reminiscences to relate?"

Nellie felt herself distinctly insulted. Had she not told Tom a week ago that she loved—when she loved him—for the first time?

"I suppose I may also be permitted to have an 'ideal,'" she replied satirically.

The tone of her voice, more than her words, stung Tom.

"How spiteful you are," he returned hotly.

"Thanks. Since you cannot be civil, I will not trouble you with my company." Nellie turned short round and walked off in the opposite direction.

"Blow it all!" exclaimed Tom. "Nellie, my darling, Nellie, don't be angry, don't go away," and he had overtaken her in a few long strides.

"I am a brute," he went on; "but I am so awfully jealous. I can't bear to think that you have even looked at another fellow. I can't help it, but tell me just this once more, that you only love me. Me, wholly and entirely."

Nellie's better nature urged her to say what was in her heart; but there was that little green-eyed monster still gnawing at it.

"If you will tell me the origin of your ideal, I will perhaps tell you about mine. You may think it strange, but I, too—for years—have worshipped an ideal man."

"You have!" exclaimed Tom, in a voice in which despair and jealousy were strangely mingled.

"Why not? You own to a similar weakness," said Nellie.

"Mine is only the outcome of an absurd, child-like fancy; a fancy that struck root years and years ago."

"How odd; so did mine."

"Nellie, I can't stand this. It is playing with edged tools. I didn't know I had it in me. But I feel that I could kill the man you loved."

"He was an ideal," and Nellie laughed heartily.

"It is no laughing matter," said Tom, angrily. "Darling, don't torture me. Tell me the truth. I can't be happy till I know all."

"I thought there could be no happiness without trust," replied Nellie, who was not at all displeased to see Tom so greatly disturbed by a mere phantom.

"I feel a fool—and you may think me one, too—but I will tell you everything, everything. Then you will——"

"I will make no rash promises," said Nellie. But you may set me the example."

Tom leaned against the ruddy stem of a huge Scotch fir, and Nellie stood opposite to him. Each was anxious to scan the other's face closely.

"Well, I am now twenty-six," began Tom. "My 'ideal' dates from the infantile age of ten. I was at a child's party, and I met there the dearest little girl in the world."

Nellie bit her lip and flushed, but she kept silent.

Tom continued: "She was six or seven. I don't know which; but she was a good bit smaller than I was. She had large violet eyes—like yours, Nellie—and long golden hair. It is so long ago, and yet I remember it all so distinctly. She and I danced together, and played together the whole evening. We didn't speak to the other children at all."

"What excellent manners!" interrupted Nellie, with a little curl of the lip.

"When the time came for my little girl to go home, the nurse found us all alone in a little out-of-the-way room. She—my little girl—cried at having to leave me, and gave me a cracker as a keepsake. I was, like all boys, very much averse to kissing; but I recollect kissing her and wiping her tears away myself, and feeling an odd chokiness in my throat. Then she went away and I never saw her again. Well, Nellie, that is all. I never felt the least interest in the crowds of girls I have since known. Till I met you I was true to my own little girl."

There was a slight tremor in Nellie's voice as she asked: "But if you were to meet that little girl again. Don't you think you might—find her—that you might love her, even now, more than you do me?"

"Nellie!"

There was such a world of reproach, such a depth of unwavering constancy in Tom's voice that Nellie felt she could never doubt him again.

"Tom," she said, "look at me."

"I am always looking at you," he answered, smiling.

"Don't you remember that little girl's name?"

"No; I don't think we told each other our names. I called her Golden-locks."

"But you recollect the name of the people at whose house you met her?" inquired Nellie.

"Oh, yes. Sinclair. I was staying with an uncle who had taken a house near theirs for the shooting— Nellie, what is the matter? Surely you are not jealous of a child?"

"Oh, Tom, Tom. I, too, loved a little boy, and oh, don't you recognize me now?"

"My first and my only, only love," said Tom, passionately. "My little golden-haired girl." Tom put his arm round Nellie, and, drawing her to him, he kissed her as he had never kissed her before.

Nellie burst into tears of relief and joy.

"Oh, darling," she said, "how happy every one would be if they were always true to their first loves."—Alice Powell in Belgravia.

A Luminous Creed.

I am a believer in the idea of thought-thingness.

In the negative suggestiveness of ideo-impressionism lies the receptivity of disease the destructive influence of deterioration and decay undermining house of character and tenement of clay.

Though both dynamic force and static energy are necessary to the completion of things, in the worship by homo brutalis of dynamic force we see brutality triumphant in our religious, social, political and industrial circles. Col. Mazuma in the political arena, and Queen Fashion in all her eccentricities and freaksomeness in the social whirl.—Freedom.

Disappointed, but Forgave.

With a wild cry of joy the prodigal rushed into his father's arms.

"My child," said the old man, "tell me all."

"Across the sea," rejoined the son, "I wed the daughter of a railroad king."

The parent grew suddenly cold and distant.

"Huh," he sneered. "I thought you must have married into a police Captain's family by the lugs you put on."

He finally concluded, however, to make the best of it.

JOHN T. DUNN IN CONGRESS.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE DAILY PRESS: Having been on the ground and a close observer of men and measures during the first and second sessions of the Fifty-third Congress, I presume I am in a measure qualified to speak by the card.

I wish to say a word in commendation of Congressman Dunn. I feel a native pride in the Eighth District of New Jersey, and when, through the ability of its Representative, it is brought into prominence, as it has been during the present Congress, it is worthy of mention and earnest commendation. It is rare indeed that our gallant little State rises near the average point in the men sent to represent her several Districts in the popular branch of Congress.

Almost at the threshold of Mr. Dunn's Congressional career he sprang into prominence, a thing rare indeed in a new member. His capacity as a forcible extemporaneous orator, his quick, keen and clear repartee brought him at once to the front as a debater, giving him prominence and influence.

His more prominent speeches on the Sherman repealer, the Banking, Force and Tariff bills have attracted widespread attention and been extensively circulated, more particularly his speech for Tariff Reform.

In the way of legislation for his District he has secured much of substantial character, that will prove a lasting benefit to his constituents.

Mr. Dunn has loyally sustained the Administration in all its efforts to carry out the pledges of the Chicago platform.

While he has labored zealously in Committee, more particularly that on Labor, he has not neglected the sessions of the House, and his vote will be found recorded on every important measure that came before that body.

Mr Dunn's Congressional record is above criticism, and where a man thus honors his constituency he merits a continuance of their confidence by being continued in a position where he may reflect still further their sound judgment.

Let John T Dunn be returned as a member of the Fifty-fourth Congress.

Japs Capture a Fort at Port Arthur.

Minister Denby's Dispatch to Secretary Gresham—Another Army Marching to the Front—Chinese War Vessels Take Flight from the Port for Wei-Hai-Wei.

Washington, Oct. 31. — Secretary Gresham received the following cablegram from Minister Denby at Pekin: "Chinese forces have been defeated at Chinlien Chang. Have retreated to Moukden. Japanese have taken one fort at Port Arthur."

A copy of Minister Denby's dispatch was sent to the Japanese legation. The legation has received additional information that some other forts are expected to fall into the hands of the victorious Japanese to-day.

Minister Kurino has also received a report that upon the landing of the Japanese troops at Ta-Len-Wai on Saturday last, the Chinese war vessels at Port Arthur immediately took flight and did not stop until they arrived at Wei-Hai-Wei, another strong point which, like Port Arthur, guards the entrance to the gulf of Pechili.

The Japanese minister is gratified at the receipt of the Denby dispatch, which seems to foreshadow the early capitulation of Port Arthur. The capture of this place, from a military and strategic standpoint, he says, can hardly be overestimated. Moreover, it will doubtless throw into the hands of the Japanese a number of splendid Chinese warships, which were disabled in recent actions, and which have been undergoing repairs at Port Arthur.

The Chinese have also built a dry dock at Port Arthur, which the Japanese will find convenient after the place falls into their possessions.

The capture of Port Arthur, Minister Kurino adds, is a part of the Japanese movement upon Pekin, and when effected will make the march to the Chinese capital a matter of more easy accomplishment.

London, Oct. 31.—The Westminister Gazette has a despatch from Yokohoma which says that the second Japanese army has landed at Talien-Wan and is now marching upon Port Arthur. The total number of Chinese troops at Port Arthur and Kin-Chow is 13,000, of which 4,000 are raw recruits. A despatch from Tien Tsin to the Central News says that Major von Hanneken has gone to Pekin, where he will have an audience with the emperor. The government has allowed all steamships to carry cargoes of rice, but this permission was promulgated to late to prevent a winter rice famine. Gen. Nieh has been appointed to the command of the troops at Han-Kow. Thirteen battalions of Hunanese troops have left Han-Kow for Chin-Kiang, whence they will proceed overland to Pekin. A despatch to the Pall Mall Gazette from Cheefoo says that twenty-six Japanese transports, convoying the nineteen warships, are landing troops on the mainland north of Eliot Islands.

The Times correspondent in Tien-Tsin sent a brief dispatch confirming previous reports of severe fighting at Kulienchao on Oct. 25.

"The greater part of the Chinese force," he says, "is said to have been destroyed. Sung-Kwei, in reporting the battle officially to the emperor, praised the valor of the Chinese troops, but confesses that they were overmatched in weapons and training. The complete initiative in national affairs hitherto exercised by Li Hung Chang is being assumed in Pekin. The foreign officers have not yet rejoined the fleet. They await the settlement of the conditions of service."

Washington, Oct. 31.—The Chinese legation is in receipt of copies of Shanghai newspapers published during the latter part of September in the Chinese language. The war news printed in these papers does not agree with that which appears in the Japanese journals or which is telegraphed to this country. The Chinese papers show that the Japanese have not always been victorious in the contests between the two countries since the war began. In some cases they credit victory to their enemies, but claim in other cases that the Chinese armies have triumphed.

It is still asserted at the Chinese legation, with more emphasis than before, that the fall of Pekin will not end the war. They are not prepared to believe that Pekin can be captured by the Japs, but should such an event occur, the emperor, it is said, will betake himself and his household to a more remote point in the interior and hostilities will continue as before. The Japanese it is said, must overrun the whole empire before the Chinese will sue for peace. The legation officials still cling to the belief that the severity of the now rapidly approaching winter will compel a cessation of hostilities until next spring, when the Chinese forces will be better organized, and more capable of opposing the invading hosts of Japan.

Coachman Howard's Case.

Washington, Oct. 31.—Attorney General Olney has been asked for an opinion in the case of Howard, the undercoachman of ex-Vice President Morton. Whether the opinion will simply be verbal or formal, is unknown. Secretary Carlisle will, of course, be guided to a great extent by the opinion of the law officers of the government, but the law as it now stands upon the statutes constitutes him the sole final judge of who is an alien contract laborer, regardless of judical determination.

Three Killed in a Wreck.

Williamsport, Pa., Oct. 31.—Seventeen cars were wrecked in an accident on the Beach Creek railroad at Horseshoe curve, caused by the breaking of a brake beam. Three men were killed, and from the complete burglar kits which they carried they are supposed to have been professional burglars. Lewis R. Trump of this city had his skull crushed. The burglars and Trump were stealing a ride.

Melbourne Parliament Open.

London, Oct. 31.—The Earl of Hopetoun, governor of Victoria, opened parliament at Melbourne yesterday.

A REGULAR GRETNA GREEN

Pennsylvania's Marriage License Law Said To Be Inoperative.

Pittsburg, Oct. 31.—Wm. Reardon, in criminal court, raised a point of law which amounted to a legal sensation. He was defending Thomas McQuirk charged with perjury for falsely swearing to the age of the woman he married, and Mr. Reardon moved to quash the indictment on the ground that there was no such offense under the law as the marriage license act was not in force and no license was required to be taken out by parties who desired to be married.

This caused Judge Magee to remark: "Why Mr. Reardon, you surely don't make such a statement in earnest."

"I do your honor, and I can prove it. The marriage license act was passed in 1885, and was amended in 1893. By that amendment on and after Oct. 1, 1895, parties desiring to be married in this state must take out a license."

The acts of 1885 and 1893 were sent for and read to the court. Judge Magee said that if the act was correctly printed Mr. Reardon was right and the present marriage license law would not be in force until 1895. By agreement of counsel, a certified copy of the act was sent for and the trial proceeded.

Harrisburg, Pa., Oct. 31.—Inquiry relative to the supplement of 1893 to the marriage license act of 1885 referred to in a Pittsburg dispatch elicited the information that while it was clearly the intention of the author of the bill that it should take effect Oct. 1, 1893, a mistake of the transcribing clerk in writing "five" for "three" makes the supplement take effect Oct. 1, 1895. The error was discovered shortly after the legislature adjourned, but it was then too late to rectify the mistake. The bill on file at the state department fixes Oct. 1, 1895, as the date upon which the supplement shall go into effect.

THROWS STREAM 125 FEET.

A Marvelous Geyser Well on an Illinois Farm.

Bloomington, Ill., Oct. 31.—The geyser well on the farm of John Sholl east of here, continues its marvelous performances. The well is a tube four inches in diameter and 200 feet deep. When it was sunk to that depth a week ago the gas forced the drill, weighing 600 pounds, out of the well to a height estimated at eighty feet. Then followed gravel and stones, then water mixed with the gas spouted fully 150 feet in the air.

The stream threatened to convert the farm into a lake and wash away Mr. Sholl's farm house. A barrier of two-inch pine planks was built to shield the house, but the water and gravel sawed it in two in a short time.

After difficulty the pipe was capped and a gate valve was adjusted. Yesterday the valve was again opened. A solid stream of water arose 125 feet, and rocks and gravel shot nearly as high. A half-inch board held over the stream was cut in two in twenty seconds. Thousands visit the scene every day.

An Exciting Steeplechase.

Geneseo, N. Y., Oct. 31.—One of the most exciting steeplechases ever held in this section of the country took place on the "Home Farm" near Geneseo yesterday. The contest was for a cup valued at $500 and presented by F. J. Mackey, of Chicago. The race was over a flagged cross country course three miles and repeat and brought together the finest field of blooded horses ever seen in the valley. There were fifteen starters and every inch of th ground was hotly contested from start to finish. The race was won by S. S. Howland's famous high jumper Ontario, with Captain Adams up. A large crowd witnessed the race, among whom were prominent people from Chicago, New York and other cities.

McKane Out of Politics.

Sing Sing, N. Y., Oct. 31.—Convict John Y. McKane was in the prison yard directing a gang of fellow convicts in the work of erecting new buildings when a reporter called at the warden's office. Acting Warden Sage said he did not care to have McKane interviewed on the remarkable falling off of over 4,000 in the registry list in the town of Gravesend. McKane sent this message: "I am out of politics. I have no views to express and am not posted as to what is going on in Gravesend this year."

Offer $2,000 Reward.

Wilkesbarre, Pa., Oct. 31.—The county commissioners increased to $2,000, the reward offered for the apprehension of the persons who blew up with dynamite the building containing a number of Hungarians near Fairview on Sunday. Another victim, whose back was broken, died from his injuries yesterday, making the fourth fatality. A fifth victim may die but the others are expected to recover. There is no clue to the perpetrators.

Jacksonville Bricklayers Strike.

Jacksonville, Fla., Oct. 31.—All the union bricklayers in the city struck for $3 per day for nine hours' work. They have been working ten hours at private terms. Contractors on a number of prominent buildings are not disturbed in the least, being sanguine that they can fill the men's places with ease. There was no trouble in connection with the strike and none is anticipated.

Murder an' Suicide.

New York, Oct. 31.—Maggie Maltz, German, 32 years old, of 227 East 42 St., was shot last evening by her husband, Fritz Maltz, a baker, 45 years old. The woman died while being taken in an ambulance to Bellevue. After shooting her Matz put a bullet in his own head and died instantly. The shooting was the result of a quarrel.

Policeman Mitchell Reinstated.

Albany, Oct. 31.—By a decision of the court of appeals in the case of the people in relation with John F. Mitchell against the New York city police commissioners, appellants, Mitchell is to be reinstated to his position on the New York city police force.

Rate of Wages Restored.

Waltham, Mass., Oct. 31.—The American Waltham company has restored the former rate of wages to the emploes of its setting-up department, about 100 in number.

RUSSIA'S RULER DYING

Asks That Friends Be Called To His Bedside.

He Becomes Delirious and Does Not Recognize His Family—Prince and Princess of Wales Will Go to Lavidia—London Preparing To Mourn the Czar's Death.

St. Petersburg, Oct. 31.—The following bulletin was issued from Livadia at midnight: "During the day the spitting of blood continued ad the emperor was seized at times with shivering fits. His temperature was 100 degrees Farenheit and his pulse was 90, and weak. His breathing was difficult. He can take only a little nourishment and has become very weak. The odema has increased materially.

The Grand Duke Alexis Michailovitch, youngest brother of the Grand Duchess Xenia's husband, is seriously ill. He left yesterday to hasten southward for the winter.

The bulletins concerning the lung disease of the czar deeply affected the public. Boys are selling the notices in the streets. Grave crowds gather round the bulletin boards all day. The Journal of St. Petersburg and other newspapers testify again to their gratitude for foreign sympathy. They ascribe the manifestations of homage to the services of the czar as a peacemaker whose aversion to war was recognized universally.

Berlin, Oct. 31.—A dispatch from Yalta says that the congestion of the czar's lungs is spreading rapidly as the patient has too little strength to resist it.

St. Petersburg, Oct. 31.—A dispatch from Lavadia says the czar's malady had attacked his left lung, and that his condition is most serious. The latest dispatches from Lavadia confirm the previous ones, announcing a marked change for the worse in the czar's condition. The most pronounced symptoms are those of congestions of the lobe of his left lung, greatly increasing coughing and raising of blood. The dispatches add that his majesty's condition is extremely dangerous.

Vienna, Oct. 31.—Veue Freie Presse has this dispatch from St. Petersburg "The czar was delirious last night and did not recognize his family. Upon learning that death was near he asked that several friends who had not been summoned, be called at once to his bedside."

London, Oct. 31.—The report is current here that the czar is dying. The decoration of Marshall & Snelgrove are engaged upon an order which will occupy them until midnight in preparing mourning paraphernalia for Marlborough House, the residence of the Princes of Wales. The prince and princess will go to Lavadia to-day.

The Central News correspondent in Denmark says that, in consequence of an urgent telegram received this morning, King Christian and his wife will start for Livadia. They will join the Prince and Princess of Wales on the way.

Washington, Oct. 31.—The Russian Minister, Prince Cantacuzene, received the following telegram regarding the emperor's illness from the minister of foreign affairs:

"St. Petersburg, Oct. 31.—The condition of the emperor is considerably worse since yesterday. The expectoration of blood is increased by a strong cough. In the night symptoms of partial inflammation of the left lung. Condition dangerous. (Signed) GIERS."

"St. Petersburg, Oct. 30.—Sunday night the emperor slept less. Yesterday he ate but little and felt weaker. The cough from which his majesty has suffered a long time, has increased and expectoration is slightly tinged with blood. (Signed) GIERS."

SPANISH MINISTERS RESIGN.

The Queen Requests Senor Sagasta To Form a New Cabinet.

Madrid, Oct. 31.—The cabinet has resigned because the ministers could not agree as to several measures to be introduced in the coming session of the Cortes, most notably the proposal to reform the tariff. Queen Regent Christina accepted the resignations, but is understood to have requested Senor Sagasta to form a new cabinet. Should he consent, several of his late colleagues will join him.

Sagasta succeeded Canovas del Castillo as premier in December, 1892. The retiring ministers are: President of the council, Senor Sagasta; foreign affairs, S. Moret; justice, R. Capdepon; finance, Senor Gamazo; interior, Lopez Puigcerver; war, Gen. Lopez Dominguez; public works, Senor Moret; colonies, Senor Maura; marine, Admiral Pasquin.

Edward M. Field Free from Arrest.

New York, Oct. 31.—The order of arrest which was granted by Judge Beach, of the supreme court on Feb. 15, 1892, against Edward M. Field, who has spent a great deal of his time in the insane asylum and also in jail, was vacated by Justice Barrett of the supreme court, upon consent of the plaintiff in the action, Charles Nette. Field has been out on the limits since March last when he gave a bond to the sheriff and was released. By the present order the bond is cancelled and the surities released. Kellogg, Rose and Smith are the attorneys for Nette.

Relief for Earthquake Sufferers.

New York, Oct. 31.—Dr. Louis Klopsch, treasurer of the Turkish relief fund, forwarded $2,000 to Constantinople, that being the first instalment of the fund collected in New York for the relief of the earthquake sufferers. The funds collected here are sent direct to the United States minister, and there can be no doubt as to their being properly disposed of in keeping with the wishes of the subscribers to the fund.

Football Player Injured.

Hanover, N. H., Oct. 31.—McCormack, one of Dartmouth's best football players and who was the life of the team back of the line, had his shoulder hurt in a practice game and will be unable to play again this year. He has been full back this season and the time is now very short in which to train a new man to play that position in the championship contest with Williams next Saturday.

ALL OVER THE GLOBE

—Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets are known. They are far more effective in arousing the liver to action than the old-fashioned cathartic pills, calomel or other preparations, and are purely vegetable and perfectly harmless in any condition of the system. No care is required while using them.

They cure biliousness, sick headache, costiveness, sour stomach, windy belchings, "heart-burn," pain and distress after eating, and kindred derangements of the liver, stomach and bowels.

Montgomery, Orange Co., N. Y.

DR. PIERCE: Dear Sir—I suffered untold misery with bleeding piles. I could get no relief night or day, until I commenced using your "Pleasant Pellets," and now for two years or more, I have not been troubled with the piles; if my bowels get in a constipated condition, I take a dose of Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets, and the trouble is all dispelled by next day.

WHALEBONE IN MY LADY'S STAYS.

Many Who Imagine that They Wear the Real Article are Being Deceived.

If a woman were asked for pointers about whalebone she would probably promptly respond that whalebone, as represented in corsets, is growing thinner and shorter and scarcer and dearer every year. And, as whalebone is now almost exclusively used for corsets, and corsets almost exclusively by women, these pointers are valuable as far as they go.

But every woman will also tell you that science and mechanical art have been taxed to the utmost in the production of a substitute for whalebone and produced nothing which, compared to the genuine article, is not a miserable makeshift.

Many an old lady, and many a lady not yet considered old, can remember the time when the crinoline epidemic swept over the land and entire skirts were ribbed with whalebone. Not in the thin and sickly guise of the bones in her stays and corsets to-day, but in long and substantial strips that made the complete circle of the broadest skirt.

Such a skirt now would be worth more than the dress that covered it. The same material was then used in umbrellas and very largely in whipstocks. There are whalebone whipstocks still in the market, though the real amount of whalebone in them is hardly enough to protect the dealer from the charge of false pretences.

For our consumption now we depend on the Arctic whale chiefly. Every Arctic whale is good for from 500 to 2,000 pounds of bone, the average being about 1,500 pounds. The price of this delivered in New York fluctuates constantly, but of late years it has ranged from $5 to $6 per pound. The Japan whale is next to the Arctic in the general supply. The Japan whale furnishes about fifty to one hundred pounds.

Scarcely one hundred whales are taken in the Pacific in a whale season now, and not more than 20,000 pounds of bone are furnished by the Atlantic catch. The latter is mostly by English vessels, and what is known as the Dundee fleet. From this it will be seen that the whalebone of the world, as was formerly the case with the whale oil of the world, is practically supplied through the United States.

TEMPERING DAMASCUS BLADES.

An Old Record Says that Each Operation Cost a Human Life.

Advices received from Professor von Eulenspiegel and party state that in delving among the ruins of ancient Tyre there has been unearthed a parchment inscribed in ancient Syriac characters and in a fair state of preservation. The professor, after months of close study, has pronounced it an extraordinary discovery—one calculated to cast much light upon the heretofore mysteries of the ancient craft of weapon making, giving in detail the methods followed in making the perfect Damascus blades.

The manner of tempering these blades when intended for a ruler or an officer of high rank was as follows: "Let the high dignitary furnish an Ethiop of fair fame and let him be bound down, shoulders upward, upon the block of the god Bal-hai, his arms fastened underneath with thongs; a strap of goatskin over his back and wound twice around the block, his feet close together, lashed to a dowel of wood, and his head and neck projecting over and beyond the block. * * * Then let the master workman, having cold hammered the blade to a smooth and thin edge, thrust it into the fire of cedar wood coals, in an out, the while reciting the prayer to the god Bal-hai, until the steel be of the color of the red of the rising sun, when he comes up over the desert toward the east; and then with a quick motion pass the same, from the heel thereof to the point, six times through the most fleshy portion of the slave's back and thighs, when it shall have become the color of the purple of the King. Then, if with one swing and one stroke of the right arm of the master workman it sever the head of the slave from his body and display not nick nor crack along the edge, and the blade may be sent round about the body of a man and break not, it shall be accepted as a perfect weapon, sacred to the service of the god Bal-hai, and the owner thereof may thrust it into a scabbard of asses' skin, brazen with brass and hung to a girdle of camel's wool, dyed in the royal purple."

THE FIELD OF POLITICS

Senator Faulkner Makes a Statement.

Gov. McKinley Back Again on His Native Heath—Ambassador Bayard in Delaware and Tom Reed in Missouri—Hill Speaks at Amsterdam—All Fighting Hard.

Washington, Oct. 31.—Senator Faulkner, chairman of the democratic congressional campaign committee, for the first time has made a statement bearing upon the congressional election that could be considered as a prediction. His statement was based, he said, upon information he had received from the chairman of the state committees in Wisconsin, Indiana and Illinois.

"If our advices be correct," said Mr. Faulkner, "our republican friends are the most mistaken individuals I ever came across. The campaign in Wisconsin has been conducted in a most excellent way and I believe Governor Peck cannot be defeated. More than that, I am prepared to claim a majority of the congressional delegation from that state. In Illinois we will elect a successor to Mr. Cullom in the senate, just so sure as election day comes around, and we will hold our own in that state in the congressional delegation, despite the claims of the republicans. The latest news from Indiana is very encouraging and, although a little while back the situation looked gloomy enough, we confidently expect to have the majority of that delegation.

"West Virginia is naturally a close state but Mr. Wilson is safe unless a great deal of money is poured in there at the last moment. The delegation from that state will, I believe, be solid, although Mr. Alderson appears to have the most difficult task before him."

Referring to the situation in New York, Senator Faulkner said there were only two city districts in New York about which there would be any doubt, that now represented by Mr. Quigg and another which the chairman did not care to mention. There was but one uncertain district in Brooklyn. Mr. Faulkner concluded his predictions as to New York by claiming the election of a democrat in the Elmira district.

McKinley Back in Ohio.

Newark, O., Oct. 31.—With a message of good cheer from the republicans of the score of states southeast and northwest that he has traversed during the past four weeks, Governor McKinley returned to his native heath yesterday to continue in Buckeyedom his missionary work for "Protection, Prosperity and Patriotism," until election day. The skies were leaden and the rain fell in torrents in every place in the day's schedule, but the people turned out in thousands. The meetings of the day were at Mansfield, Mount Vernon, Newark, and at Urichsville, where a large audience was addressed. Several thousand men and women stood under umbrellas at the Mansfield depot to listen to a twenty minutes denunciation of revenue tariff doctrines and advocacy of the principles of protection to home industries.

Working for Pettigrew.

Sioux Falls, S. D., Oct. 31.—Bishop Marty of the Catholic diocese of South Dakota has sent letters to the priests of the state urging them to use their influence for the re-election of Senator Pettigrew.

On the letters are type-written the list of the republican legislative candidates and underneath in pencil are these words: "Please use your influence for the election of the above named candidates to the end that Pettigrew may be sent back to the senate. M. Marty, bishop."

The bishop in an interview admitted that he wrote the letters as he believed the election of Mr. Pettigrew an important matter just now for the prosperity of the state as a whole, as defining its position on financial questions. The news has caused a sensation in political circles.

Ambassador Bayard Speaks.

Georgetown, Del., Oct. 31.—Ambassador Bayard made his third political speech since his return from Europe at a democratic mass meeting held in the courthouse here upon national issues. Mr. Bayard's speech was largely upon the lines laid down in his address in Wilmington last week. He dwelt at length upon the business depression that recently afflicted the country and attributed it largely to lack of business confidence engendered by the operations of the Sherman silver purchase law, followed by the high taxation and business restrictions imposed by the McKinley bill.

Saxton at Gloversville.

Gloversville, N. Y., Oct. 31.—Hon. Charles T. Saxton received a genuine ovation on his arrival here. Several old soldiers went to Fonda with the reception committee to greet their old comrade. On his arrival here he was driven to his hotel preceded by the Gloversville military band. At 7:45 he was again met by the band and a large delegation of the boys in blue, who escorted him to Memorial hall, where he was to be the speaker. His ride to the hall was amid a gorgeous display of fireworks. At the hotel he was presented with a handsome bouquet of roses, with the compliments of the republican women of Gloversville. The hall was crowded to the doors with persons eager to hear the speaker's words.

Senator Hill at Amsterdam.

Amsterdam, N. Y., Oct. 31.—Senator David B. Hill, accompanied by James Lindsay Gordon, of New York city, and Amasa J. Parker, jr., of Albany. He was met at the station by a committee of democrats comprising several hundred people last evening. The party was escorted to Neff Opera house through streets crowded with people and ablaze with red-fire. The opera house was crowded to the doors an hour before the meeting was called to order with about 3,000 people. It took the band a half hour to work its way through to the stage and Senator Hill himself found it almost impossible to work his way through the surging mass of people at the entrance and in the main aisle. When he was observed working his way along the audience gave him a joyous welcome and he was soon upon the stage. The senator discussed the apportionment question and the repeal of the Sherman silver and the force bills.

Reed in Missouri.

St. Louis, Mo., Oct. 31.—Hon. Thomas B. Reed was given every attention by leading citizens and politicians. He will leave here by boat for Memphis where he will commence a speech-making tour through the central southern states. Mr. Reed is delighted with his reception here.

EX-PREMIER MERCIER DEAD

Passes Away After a Long and Painful Illness.

Montreal, Oct. 31.—Ex-Premier Mercier died in this city yesterday.

Mr. Mercier had been suffering from a complication of diseases for years past, diabetes predominating. After his defeat at the general elections of March, 1892, his friends expressed the opinion that he had only six months to live, but by dint of adopting abstemious habits of living he managed to prolong his life.

Honore Mercier was born at St. Athanose, county of Iberville, Province of Quebec, on Oct. 15, 1840. He was graduated at the Jesuit college in Montreal and began the study of law at St. Hyacinthe. He also did newspaper work, and was for a period editor of the Courier de St. Hyacinthe, which supported the conservative party.

Having finished his course of law studies, Mercier was admitted to the bar in 1865. For some years he devoted himself to his profession, but in 1872 he was elected as a liberal to represent Rouville in the house of commons.

His career in the Dominion parliament was short, as he retired in 1874 and resumed the practice of his profession. In 1879 he was appointed solicitor general by the then premier, Mr. Joly.

In 1883, on the retirement of Joly, Mercier was elected leader of the Quebec liberals, then a very small party in the house, and he at once commenced an aggressive policy. The feeling aroused by the execution of Riel, leader of the half-breed rebellion in the northwest, gave him a great opportunity, and when the election of 1886 came on he organized a brilliant campaign which led to the defeat of the conservative government.

Mercier was summoned to form a cabinet on Jan. 27, 1887. His administration was full of exciting incidents. As premier he was a staunch champion of the French Canadians and their rights. One of the most important acts of his administration was the settlement of the Jesuit estate question. The Jesuits received a large sum of money, and it provoked a storm of indignation in the other provinces.

Mercier was surrounded at Quebec by a number of hungry followers, and when the Baie Des Chaleurs railway exposure came in 1891, he was dismissed from office by Lieut.-Gov. Angers, and was a few weeks afterward defeated at the polls. Since then he has been rapidly declining and has not taken much interest in politics, but he attracted considerable attention on account of his advocacy of Canadian independence.

A Notable Marriage at Nashville.

Nashville, Tenn., Oct. 31.—A marriage of unusual interest took place here. Bernard Francis Seraph de Gruenebaum, the son of an Austrian baron, was united to Mrs. Elizabeth P. Franklin, the widow of Captain James Franklin, the noted turfman. The bride owns the stock farm Kennesaw, near Gallatin, which has given to the turf George Kinney, Aranza, Stuyvesant and other noted horses. Mrs. Franklin met her husband in New York a year ago. The ceremony was performed by a justice of the peace and afterward by a priest.

Animals Shockingly Mutilated.

Newark, N. J., Oct. 31.—Within a month a number of horses and cows turned loose to graze in open lots in the vicinity of Emmet, Goble and Wright streets, have been shockingly mutilated. Henry Vanderroest, a veterinary surgeon, has been called upon in three such cases. In one instance, he said to a reporter, a cow's tail had been cut off, in another a horse had been so stabbed that its lungs were punctured and in a third a horse had been ripped up the breast, and he had to take thirty-two stitches to close the wound. There is no clue to the identity of the offender.

Clemency Granted to Convicts.

Harrisburg, Pa., Oct. 31.—The board of pardons has recommended that the death sentence of James Newton Hill, the Allegheny county murderer, be commuted to life imprisonment. They also recommend a pardon for William H. Bradley, formerly an editor on the Philadelphia Press, convicted of larceny. Pardons were refused Charles P. Hewins, Butler county, and Moses Carr, Fayette county, convicted of larceny and selling liquor without a license respectively.

Violinist Thomson in New York.

New York, Oct. 31.—The eminent Belgian violinist, Cesar Thomson, made his first appearance in America at the Carnegie Music hall last evening in conjunction with Walter Damrosch's Symphony orchestra. A large and critical audience testified their warm approval of his interpretation of several classic selections.

Died Like Her Husband.

Middletown, N. Y., Oct. 31.—Mrs. John Gabbey, of Phillipsburgh, this county, met with a fatal accident here. While driving home her horse became frightened at a piece of paper on the road. Mrs. Gabbey was thrown from the wagon and her neck was broken. She died almost instantly. Four years ago her husband met with a similar accident.

Killed His Last Deer.

Saranac Lake, Oct. 31.—Lute Evans, an Adirondack guide, 71 years old, died last night of heart failure. He was hunting near Dr. Webb's park with F. G. Halleck and killed a buck. He was remarking at supper that that made over three hundred and fifty deer he had killed in his life, when, without warning, he dropped dead.

Killed in a Mine.

Wilkesbarre, Pa., Oct. 31.—George Shiga was killed and Marion Nymsick and Peter Noviniski fatally injured in the mines in this vicinity.

SALISBURY HITS BACK

Rosebery's Speech Against the Lords Attacked.

Says the Prime Minister Has Drawn a Big Herring in the Way of Home Rule—Advises the Liberals To Drop the Ruinous Irish Policy. Warns the Voters.

London, Oct. 31.—Lord Salisbury, speaking in Edinburgh last evening, replied to Lord Rosebery's speech against the house of lords. The prime minister, he said, had drawn a big herring in the way of home rule, but it was evident that during his Bradford address he mentally, if not actually, held his tongue in his cheek. Lord Rosebery had no more power than had anybody else to determine the subject which would be referred to the voters at the next election. To submit a detailed measure for the decision of the electors was certainly an honest proceeding and in the form in which it existed in the states was decidedly advantageous to good government and the stability of the country. However, Lord Rosebery had not stated his project, but had merely asked that a blank check be drawn in favor of his instruments in the house of commons. It was ridiculous to suppose that the English and Scotch electorates would place their neck under the feet of men in the west and south of Ireland who had sent Archbishop Walsh's battalions to Westminster. If the liberals would only drop this ruinous Irish policy the parties in the house of lords would be found more evenly balanced than ever before. He must warn the people earnestly against an unrestrained representative chamber. Urging new theories prompted new cowardice. In closing his address Lord Salisbury expressed confidence that Joseph Chamberlain's domestic proposals would receive the hearty support of the unionists of all sections.

Most of Lord Salisbury's speech was commonplace criticism of Lord Rosebery, without the slightest suggestion of a counter policy.

"I have heard," he said, "many proposals to change the constitution of the house of lords. Some of them I sympathize with; some of them doubtless are very bad. But everybody is agreed that all of them would end in making the lords much stronger against the commons than they now are. Such proposals therefore did not suit the premier whose object is to make the commons supreme. But Lord Rosebery enunciated no programme or policy; he merely proposed to his followers a string of conundrums with which their intellects doubtless will be engaged for the short time remaining to the present parliament. The lords threw out the measure passed in the commons solely by support of members from the west and south of Ireland. By so doing the lords merely presented the revolutionary changes in the constitution which those members dictated.

"I do not contend that England and Scotland have the power of imposing new conditions upon Ireland, but I do claim that when a revolutionary change is proposed, their voices must be heard and unless there be a second chamber they could not be heard. Lord Rosebery's resolution doubtless will be passed against the voices of England and Scotland by the Irish but does he imagine that it will possess any authority?

"Lord Rosebery complained of empty liberal benches in the house of lords. Not many years since this was quite different. The majority of the peers supported the liberal government against the conservative opposition after the death of Palmerston. Why this remarkable change? It is because liberal opinions, not men, changed. The latter had been far sighted enough to see that Gladstone's policy was fatal to the integrity of the empire and had joined the ranks of those who desire to render the severance of England and Ireland impossible. The proposed changes in the house of lords would affect vast sections of society. By no means the rich alone opposed the government. Numbers who were attached to the religious institutions of the country, and valued freedom, security of contract and sancity of property, trembled in fear lest the new theories and new cowardice prompting them should shatter the hopes of a steady advance in the morality and knowledge of mankind. The struggle would be a desperate one, but there was no doubt as to how it would terminate."

AFTER MAIL ROBBERS.

The Government Issues Offers of Reward for Their Conviction.

Washington, Oct. 31.—In view of the great number of postoffice burglaries and highway mail robberies the Post master General to-day issued offers of reward as follows: "One thousand dollars for the conviction of any person, in the United States court, on the charge of robbing the mails while being conveyed in a mail car attached to a railway train. "Five hundred dollars for the conviction of any person, in the United States court, on the charge of robbing the mails while being conveyed over any post route, other than a railway. Two hundred and fifty dollars for the arrest and conviction of any person, in the United States court, on the charge of breaking into a postoffice and stealing. Two hundred dollars where the amount stolen exceeds $500."

Ran into a Japanese Warship.

Tacoma, Wash. Oct. 31.—The Northern Pacific steamship company officers received word that the steamship Zambesi, formerly a Northern Pacific steamship, ran into the Japanese warship Tsubukan in Kobe harbor last month and sunk her. The man-of-war only had time to run in shallow water before she went down. The Zambesi was recently purchased by some wealthy Japanese and was being operated by them.

Building a Wigwam for Hill.

Elmira, N. Y., Oct. 31.—The democrats of Elmira are building a wigwam for Senator Hill to speak in Saturday night. The building will hold 7,000 people and 150 workman are employed on its construction, working day and night.

UNION COUNTY DEMOCRATIC NOMINEES FOR THE ASSEMBLY.

ALFORD B COOK.

The subject of this sketch is about 50 years old, and a Democrat in every sense of the word.

Mr. Cook was born in Rahway, and with the exception of a very short period has resided in that city.

By trade Mr. Cook is a house painter, and there are few today who can handle the brush better than he. He is also a veteran of the war, having been among the first to answer to his country's call.

As a taxpayer of Rahway, he has always taken an active interest in that city's welfare and no man is better known there than "Al" Cook.

As a Democrat he has served as water commissioner of Rahway, and has also served in other departments there.

Five years ago he ran for Assembly in the old Third Assembly District, against Sheriff Kyte.

He made a most remarkable run in this overwhelming Republican stronghold and succeeded in cutting down the normal Republican majority from about 550 to 115

In 1893 he was elected clerk of the Board of Freeholders, and as clerk gave general satisfaction.

Mr. Cook did not seek the nomination this year, but having accepted it he will do his utmost to score a handsome majority.

Frederick Clauss, nominee for Assemblyman, is one of the best known and most respected of the German citizens of the County seat. He moved to Elizabeth in the year 1856, at the age of thirteen years, and has always resided at the old homestead, 644 Fulton street, in the old Third ward.

FREDERICK CLAUSS.

Mr. Clauss is a representative workingman and can be found at his bench working at his trade, that of surgical instrument maker.

Mr. Clauss held the first office to which he ever aspired, as assessor, in the old Third ward, and was almost unanimously elected. He was again nominated in the new Seventh ward last year and came out of that disastrous election with colors flying.

To show in what high esteem Mr. Clauss is held by his fellow citizens, it is well to say that he has held the responsible position of secretary of the Mutual Saving Fund Harmonia for twenty-three years, and out of over eighteen hundred members no one has ever had occasion to find fault with his administration of that office. He is a respected member of the Turn Verein Vorwærts, and is looked up to by every member as one of the most prominent leaders of that influential organization.

He is a lifelong Democrat, and has always looked to the best interests of his party and his fellow citizens in Elizabeth and Union County. He is a brother of the well-known George Clauss, Henry Clauss and the late Louis Clauss, and there is not a man in Elizabeth but looks with pride to him and his esteemed family.

JOHN B. GREEN.

Mr. Clauss is of a quiet disposition, and his election on November 6, is predicted, by a large majority, as his friends are legion, in his party and out of it.

Lawyer John B. Green of Westfield is a Democrat whose Democracy cannot be questioned.

He was born in New York city May 17 1850, and was admitted to the New York bar Sept. 8. 1871. He has practiced law in New York since 1881 as a member of the law firm of Freeman & Green.

In 1880 Mr. Green removed from New York to Brooklyn, where he resided until the Fall of 1890, when he became a resident of Westfield, his present home.

He is regarded as one of Westfield's most popular citizens, and is held in high esteem not only in Westfield, but by everyone else who has the honor of knowing him.

He is a prominent member of the Royal Arcanum, being past regent of Fireside Council. He is also chairman of the committee on laws of the grand council.

He is a communicant of St Paul's Episcopal Church, Westfield, and its senior warden.

Mr. Green is also a member of Atlas Lodge, F. and A. M.

He is an orator of no mean ability, a man who thoroughly understands the political situation of the day, and one, who if elected to the Assembly, can be relied on to do his whole duty.

He favors the good roads agitation and is endorsed by the L. A. W.

AFTER PURE GOLD.

Uncle Sam Working Hard For a Bar Absolutely Pure.

Uncle Sam is preparing a standard of pure gold. It will take the form of a bar weighing fifty ounces. This bar will be cut into several pieces, one of which will be given to each of the United States mints and assay offices. A slice will also be sent to England for comparison with the British standard of pure gold. It seems that no absolutely pure gold has ever been produced in this country—at all events, none of which there can be certainty. The standards now possessed by the various mints differ somewhat; not one of them is surely free from impurity.

The bar that is to be is now a liquid. The fifty ounces of gold are in a chemical solution in the mint in Philadelphia. The yellow metal thus dissolved was extra fine to begin with, having only one tenth of one per cent. of impurity. The impurity was chiefly silver. This gold was rolled to very thin sheets and then put into a tank of aqua regia and hydrochloric acid. The solution of gold made in this way was diluted with twenty gallons of distilled water. In that condition it now remains, a thin but precious liquor. Under the action of the acid the silver falls down to the bottom of the tank in a white cloud. At the end of a month the clear liquid will be drawn off carefully into flasks, without stirring, so as to leave the silver impurity behind. Sulphurous acid gas will then be passed through the solution, causing it to throw down the pure metallic gold.

But many processes have yet to be gone through before the gold will be considered chemically pure. It will be washed with distilled water, boiled with hydrochloric acid, dissolved in aqua regia, evaporated almost to dryness, diluted with water and precipitated in metallic form by oxalic acid. All this will then be repeated. Finally the gold will be collected, melted in a porcelain crucible and made into a bar. The piece of the bar sent to each mint will be compared by chemical tests with the standard of pure gold now used at that mint.

POPE'S NIGHT IN MARBLEHEAD.

Tenacity with Which One New England Town Clings to Old Customs.

Marblehead, that curious Massachusetts fishing town which has figured so sturdily in every war in New England's history, is famous for the rough dialect, quaint expressions, and unfettered independence of its people. Here some queer old-time customs prevail that have died away elsewhere in the United States.

"My business detaining me in Marblehead for a few days last November," said a commercial traveller, "my perusal of the Boston paper was interrupted one evening by a tremendous blowing of horns and beating of drums and tin pans in the street. Looking out of the window I saw a long line of boys and girls marching down the street in double file, carrying torches. Their faces were blackened; they were clad in long white gowns, and as they shouted and performed antics the townspeople, who had turned out to view the procession, applauded the spectacle. This strange procession paraded up and down through the town until bedtime. All the while huge bonfires, a part of the celebration, were blazing down near the water's edge.

"Upon inquiring as to the meaning of this weird spectacle, I learned that the children were carrying out their annual custom of celebrating what is known to them as Pope's Night. It is doubtful if any of them ever heard of Guy Fawkes or the gunpowder plot, but they know that the evening of the 5th of November is a legitimate time for them to indulge in all sorts of mischief. The town was settled in 1629, just twenty-four years after the exposure of Guy Fawkes's conspiracy by people from the islands of Jersey and Guernsey and from the west of England. The first comers undoubtedly brought this quaint celebration across the Atlantic to their new home, and it has survived to be observed to-day, more than 250 odd years after the founding of the town."

MORE ROPE FOR GERONIMO.

A Proposal to Give Greater Liberty to the Old Apache.

Geronimo, the Apache chief, has been in captivity for eight years, and has so good a record that his enlargement is now recommended, with the proviso that he be planted near some frontier military post where an eye can be kept on him, and set, with some of his people, to the work of raising small fruits or garden vegetables. This would be a peaceful and useful occupation for the ex-brave and his fellows, but there is a kind of sameness about it commonly very irksome to the aboriginal mind, and it is not at all impossible that they might be impelled to resume their old habits, making it necessary to capture and sequestrate them again. Geronimo's old collection of scalps must be very much desiccated by this time, and he might feel impelled to provide himself with a new outfit, as an appropriate embellishment of the close of his warlike career. Still, a change of heart is always possible, even to an Apache, and a virulent one, such as Geronimo has shown himself to be; and his introduction to agriculture on a limited scale might be a turning point in his career.

A Pretty English Fashion.

One of the prettiest of English fashions is that of painting the name and the favorite flower of the owner on his pet chair. A chair seen recently in a charming home was beautifully individualized by this treatment. It was a low slat sewing chair that had belonged to the grandmother of its present owner, and as strong to-day as it was seventy years ago. This clever girl gave it three coats of white enamel paint, then gilded the two balls terminating the side posts. On the top slat across the back she painted La France roses, her favorites; on the middle slat she inscribed her name, "Mary," in up-and-down English writing, and on the bottom slat were old-fashioned pinks, her grandmother's posies. The cushion of the seat was pink India silk, covered with a pattern of delicate green leaves, tied on with ribbons of two colors. The autograph and the blossoms stamped the chair with a unique individuality, and it was altogether quite as "fetching" as those seen across the water.

"What are those people doing over there?"

"Lynching an alligator."

"Isn't that odd?"

"No; there's a darkey inside the alligator!"—Atlanta Constitution.

SCENES IN A SHOT TOWER.

How Bullets are Made and Where they Come From.

There are two large establishments in New York where shot is manufactured, not a few at a time, but where tons and tons of pig lead are turned into the little balls of lead which work such havoc among the game of plain and wood and upon the battlefield. These queer factories are known as shot towers, and resemble great, tall chimneys, rising 150 to 200 feet in the air. The only difference one can see from the outside is the small windows with which the wall is dotted up to the top, which is surmounted by a conical-shaped cap not at all like the coping stone of a factory chimney. All day long from the summit of this cap there issues a tiny stream of smoke, which makes it resemble the crater of some dormant volcano. On entering the structure one sees on every side huge piles of pig lead. In one corner is a small but powerful elevator of the simplest construction, for it is just two platforms, one six feet above the other, and about four by two feet in measurement. Standing on one of the platforms, and taking hold of the cable to keep from knocking against the grimy brick walls, the elevator starts. It is like entering a coal mine, only one ascends instead of descending. Presently there is an opening in the wall; and one sees what appears to be a shower descending through the hole in the center of the tower. So it is—a shower of shot falling from a height of 150 feet into the water below. All the way up at each landing one can look at the steady downpour. When the landing at which the men are at work is reached it presents a novel sight.

To one side there is the furnace with the great melting pot from which the melted lead is carried down by a pipe to an iron colander which is fitted in a framework just over the centre of the drop hole. The holes in this colander vary from 1-50 to 1-360 of an inch in diameter. A peculiar fact is that the shot dropped from a colander will not pass through the hole in it, as the shot swell when cooling. If lead alone were used to make the shot the pieces falling in the water would not be round, but would take an elongated shape, something like a grain of oats. Arsenic is therefore mixed with the lead, and the chemical properties are such that the metal takes a true globular form.

How The Armor Is Made.

Harper's Young People has a descriptive article entitled, "How a War Ship's Armor is made," and its opening paragraph gives this summary of what an armor plate is, and the skill required to produce it:

"It requires a great amount of intense heat, a lot of tremendous pounding, much knowledge of chemistry, and a great deal of good judgment and skilled labor to make a plate of armor. The fires must be so hot that the temperature runs often as high as 3,000° Fahr., the pounding or pressing must be so vigorous as sometimes to equal a pressure of 14,000 tons, and the chemical knowledge must be of the most expert and delicate kind, the result of years upon years of experiment. And when a large plate of the best modern armor is finished, it will be a block of moderately soft steel perhaps 17 inches thick, 7 and one half feet tall, from 6 to 12 feet long, alloyed with a certain amount of nickel to make it tough, and hardened on its face with a preparation of carbon to make its exposed surface brittle. This block of metal weighing perhaps from 25 to 30 tons, but not large enough of itself to be very imposing, will cost from $15,000 to $20,000. And that is only one plate of armor which goes with others to protect a ship."

In making one of these plates, of course the ingot is first prepared The steel, nickel and other ingredients are melted to a liquid state, a chemical analysis made, the liquid cast into an ingot, and then allowed to cool. Patters, or templates are produced of every plate of armor to be made, and then these big ingots, large blocks of steel are heated, placed under hammers or in enormous pressures, hammered down, and bent into shape, after which they are tempered by an oil bath, annealed in another furnace, or made tough on the outside by lying in a bed of carbon, called the Harvey process, and absorbing the carbon to the depth of an inch. It takes about seventy hours to heat an ingot through before it is ready to be flattened and bent.

Football and Its Dangers.

A special to the New York World from Cambridge, Mass., tells the following story of October accidents at Harvard: "Never in the history of Harvard football has the team been in such a state of demoralization five weeks before the final struggle. And this condition of affairs is due to the phenomenal array of injuries that have happened since a week ago. The following is the rather unique hospital list up to date: Three broken collar-bones, one broken leg, one splintered rib, one twisted jaw, one set of teeth knocked out, one twisted leg, producing water on the knee, and three sprained ankles."

The "Carnot Poignard" is Popular.

The assassination of President Carnot has made the fortune of the hardware dealer in Cette where Caserio bought the knife with which he committed his crime. The man's name is Guillaume. Since the origin of the knife became known, no day has passed without Guillaume's receiving orders for the "Carnot poignard." These orders come not only from France, but also from foreign countries, in such numbers that the dealer cannot fill them. One house in Brussels alone ordered 300.
